+ N Y Sun p4 D 6 '13 150w

JENKS, JEREMIAH WHIPPLE, and LAUCK,
2 WILLIAM JETT. Immigration problem. 3d ed, rev and enl il *$1.75 (1c) Funk 14-17

The first edition of this study of immigration was issued about two years ago; the second edition was a reprint of the first; this, the third edition, printed from new plates, is practically a new work. The first edition was issued before the report of the United States Immigration commission was in its final form; for this revision a careful comparison of all figures used with those in the final report was made. The Census statistics of 1910, not available at the time of first publication have also contributed to this edition. In addition to these changes, "some of the chapters have been completely rearranged; others have been cut in some places; still others have been largely supplemented. To the appendices a number of new tables have been added." (Preface)

+ A L A Bkl 10:253 F '14

"The book is the most exhaustive study of the immigration problem in compact form that we have; and the fact that the authors gave four years' study to the problem on the Immigration commission puts them in a position to produce a standard and authoritative work."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 17 '14 530w

+ Dial 57:22 J1 1 '14 820w

"It may safely be said that outside of the forty-two volumes of the Report of the Immigration commission there is no such handy, authoritative, and up-to-date work for reference and study on the problem of immigration."

+ Lit D 48:499 Mr 7 '14 220w

"This book will continue to hold its position as the authoritative digest of the reports of the Immigration commission, and as such will serve a widely useful purpose."

+ Nation 98:163 F 12 '14 200w

+ N Y Times 19:63 F 8 '14 1150w

R of Rs 49:250 F '14 50w

JEPSON, EDGAR. Intervening lady. il *$1.25
7 (1½c) Bobbs 14-9879

The intervening lady of this collection of stories is Lady Noggs, Mr. Jepson's delightful child heroine from another book. In part one of the present work she appears in her eleventh year, charming and irrepressible. Her earliest escapade is the adoption of a foundling, a little boy of her own age whom she picks up in London. The appearance of the boy's father takes Michael out of her life as suddenly as he came, and it is not until she is a grown up young lady, in part two, that she meets him again. The Admirable Tinker, another favorite of the author's appears in this book, too.

"Altogether, she is a refreshing personality." Norman Bryce

+ Bookm 39:685 Ag '14 180w

+ Boston Transcript p22 J1 1 '14 230w

"If there were a stronger word than 'impossible' it might well be applied to this picture of the doings and happenings of these peers and peeresses 'of various degree,' especially of their youthful 'deus ex machina.' Nevertheless, the story is eminently readable and amusing—a cheerful, breezy contribution to one's hammock library."

+ N Y Times 19:250 My 31 '14 300w

"The present tale is quite diverting."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 380w

JEPSON, EDGAR. Whitaker's dukedom. *50c
11 (1c) Bobbs A15-182

James Whitaker, taking shelter in a wood during a thunder storm, finds that he has a double. The two men have but a moment to face one another and marvel at the amazing likeness between them when they are cut down together by a lightning stroke. James Whitaker regains consciousness after a time to find the other man dead. An examination of the dead man's pockets reveals that he was the Duke of Lanchester. James Whitaker changes clothes with him, determined to find out what it feels like to be a duke. He presents himself at the ducal residence with the announcement that he has been struck by lightning and thereafter in the adventures that follow any vagaries of conduct or lapses of memory are accounted for by the effects of the electricity.

"Mr. Edgar Jepson leads his impostor into so many stock situations, and leads him out again by such extraordinarily improbable devices, that we regard him in much the same light as the invulnerable, and therefore uninteresting, hero of a penny novelette."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup468 Mr 28 150w

"Strange coincidences form the plot of 'Whitaker's dukedom' but they are coincidences which fall to the lot of a clever man, and are cleverly used."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 330w

N Y Times 19:475 N 1 '14 120w

"An impossible but entertaining story."

+ Spec 112:919 My 30 '14 40w

JEROME, THOMAS SPENCER. Roman memories in the landscape seen from Capri. il $2.50 J. V. Sheehan, 178 Woodward av., Detroit, Mich. (Eng ed A14-1384)

"Thomas Spencer Jerome surveys land and sea as viewed from Capri, and writes entertainingly of the scenes in Roman history that have been enacted therein. Not forgetting the myths of Circe, the sirens, and the sibyl, he tells their stories as illustrating 'the psychological truth of poetry.' Then follow in nearly a score of chapters a series of what one might call moving pictures in words of some of the great events and great characters in Roman history. . . . Mr. Jerome lived for many years at Capri, where he had large interests, and where he served the United States as consul. He died there in the early spring of this year." —N Y Times

"We are not wholly at home with Mr. Jerome's vocabulary, but the English language is changing so rapidly that judgments quickly become old-fashioned. On the whole, the style and treatment of the subject remind us of the historico-journalistic work of Signor Ferrero, except that Mr. Jerome has a constant and most refreshing fund of humour wholly lacking to the Italian master. We commend the book before us as not only instructive, but also very good reading."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup427 Mr 21 950w

+ Nation 98:578 My 14 '14 700w

"Very readable volume."

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 200w

JERROLD, WALTER COPELAND, and LEONARD, ROBERT MAYNARD, eds. Century of parody and imitation. *50c Oxford

"This collection of parodies and imitations in verse begins fittingly with the 'Rejected addresses,' here printed in their entirety. The editors own, in their preface, to a somewhat vague use of the word 'century,' and as a matter of fact they go back as far as Canning and George Ellis. They include Skeat's imitation of the 'Canterbury tales,' and Andrew Lang's delightful perversions of various contemporary poets. But they exclude living authors. . . . In the representation of nineteenth-century humour Calverley and Lewis Carroll are naturally prominent; we note also Francis Thompson's

JERROLD, W. C., and LEONARD, R. M., eds. —Continued.

cricket version of Omar, Southey's imitations of the Della Cruscan, and Swinburne's 'Nephelidia' the alliterative parody of himself."—Ath

"The volume is well equipped with notes, and certainly provides a good variety of entertaining reading."

+ Ath 1913.2:697 D 13 150w

"Now and then we may well wonder at the inclusion of certain parodists' work by the editors, notably those on Tennyson and Poe by Robert Fuller Murray. They are absurd in more senses than one." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 14 '14 650w

"General completeness marks the book, even to the inclusion of poems valuable only as historical missteps in the growth of parody towards general good taste, while all, from Hogg's 'The flying tailor' to Bunner's 'Home, sweet home,' are well indexed and well annotated."

+ Nation 98:63 Ja 15 '14 100w

"The editors and publishers are to be commended for the production of a really valuable book of references."

+ N Y Times 19:12 Ja 11 '14 270w

JESSE, FRYNWYD TENNYSON. Milky way. " il *$1.25 (1c) Doran 14-11141

The author takes her title from a Provencal proverb: 'He who is light of heart and heels can wander in the milky way,' and it is of a group of these light-hearted folk that she writes. Chief of them is the heroine, Viv Lovel, who adopts a ship-wrecked baby, joins a traveling troupe of players, serves as an artist's model, and leads an unconventional life generally. Another of them is Peter, who happens to be a piper, and who cheerfully assumes joint guardianship of the ship-wrecked baby, for Peter and Viv, after wandering unconventionally about the country, discover that they are friends, also lovers, and proceed to marry as two young people should in a happy-hearted tale of this kind.

"The story contains many vivid pictorial passages and elfishly humorous situations. Those who appreciate the picaresque novel will read it with delight."

+ Ath 1913.2:525 N 8 100w

"If Miss Tennyson Jesse could have read 'Gray youth' before writing 'The milky way,' she might even have left it unwritten."

— Atlan 114:531 O '14 350w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:445 Je 14 320w

"It is light and it may be even slight; but it is bright, cheerful and original."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 220w

"Even an idyl can be too sugary; and this one is also a little too long."

+ Nation 99:45 Ji 9 '14 230w

"A tale of wanderings merrily described, and not lacking in human kindness."

+ Sat R 116:659 N 22 '13 70w

"An inconsequent, happy story."

+ Spec 111:387 D 6 '13 14w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 4 '14 300w

JESSEN, FRANZ DE. Katya: a romance of Russia; tr. by W. J. Alexander Worster. *$1.40 (1c) Luce, J. W.

This story of Russian life is translated from the Danish. The author is a Danish journalist who as a foreigner correspondent has lived in most of the capitals of Europe and who knows the cities of Russia and the Balkans, described in this story, as well as he knows those of his own land. His novel is both a study of character and a story of diplomatic life. It centers about Katya, a beautiful woman of emotional nature but with little depth of feeling. She learned when just a child that it was a simple matter to win from men anything she wanted of them, and this knowledge she put to use all thru her life. Perhaps her one real passion was for her childhood's home, and her one real tragedy the losing of it.

"An intense, well-written Danish story."

+ Cleveland 6:77 S '14 40w

"Both author and translator are unknown to us by name, but the latter has done his work in so masterly a way that he leaves us quite unconscious of any struggle in the effort to express the thought and style of his original in a foreign medium, while the former has produced one of the biggest pieces of fiction that has come to us from a continental source for many years." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:421 My 16 '14 1450w

"The book is well and solidly constructed. There are several episodes in the story that might easily have got out of hand and distracted attention from the main plot, but the author has so handled it that they strengthen it instead. But perhaps the chief merit of the book is the author's comprehension—sadly lacking in the younger school of novelists—that it is possible to write a novel whose chief element is the power of sex, without making it a novel of passion."

+ N Y Times 19:196 Ap 19 '14 650w

"It is a story of great interest, and Mr. Worster has done his work of translation well on the whole, if he uses split infinitives by the score."

+ Spec 112:444 Mr 14 '14 220w

JESSUP, ANNIE LOWDEN. Sewing book. il 50c Butterick pub. co. A14-2410

"Into 120 pages Miss Jessup has packed some 250 pen drawn illustrations and text which requires 163 titles in the index, from Apron to Wristband. The author knows the pedagogical aspects of needlework through an unrivalled experience extending from the East Side to New York university."—School Arts Magazine

"Wherever girls are being taught the art of sewing in elementary and secondary schools this book of Miss Jessup's will be found highly useful."

+ Educ R 48:209 S '14 100w

"A book that gets right down to business without a waste word, and stays there without wasting time and space. Her book is primarily a sure help for the busy teacher."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:145 O '14 100w

JEVONS, FRANK BYRON. Philosophy: what is it? *$1 (3¼c) Putnam 14-12513

This book is made up of a series of five lectures delivered originally in England before a branch of the Workers' educational alliance which had expressed a desire to know what philosophy is. This request, the author points out, assumed that philosophy is a concern of the average man and that it should not be the monopoly of the professed student. With this assumption he heartily agrees. The five lectures dealt with: Philosophy and science; Materialism and idealism; Scepticism in philosophy; Philosophy in practice; Personality and the whole.

A L A Bkl 11:151 D '14 +

"What will impress the trained philosophical reader most is the remarkable simplicity with which the most difficult problems in philosophy are explained."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 480w

"We are glad to commend it to beginners."

+ Educ R 48:537 D '14 80w

Int J Ethics 25:274 Ja '15 70w

+ Nation 100:27 Ja 7 '15 150w

"To any who are disposed to begin acquaintance with philosophy on easy terms no simpler introduction could be given."

+ Outlook 108:412 O 21 '14 200w

JEWETT, SOPHIE. Folk-ballads of southern Europe; tr. into English verse by Sophie Jewett. *$1.50 Putnam 13-26471

Miss Jewett was at work on these ballads at the time of her death. Her request that her friend Katharine Lee Bates should continue the work and prepare it for the press is fulfilled with the publication of this volume. "These ballads of southern Europe—the originals of which appear on the left-hand page and the translations on the opposite pages—tease the reader with their likenesses and their unlikenesses to the well-loved ballads of Great Britain. Most of the material is stock material, appearing in varying forms in different dialects—a clear delight to the scholar with knowledge enough to trace provincial traits in the versions. They divide quite clearly into five types, ballads of love, of murder, of prisoners, Biblical and Apocryphal ballads, and ballads of the supernatural." (Boston Transcript)

A L A Bkl 10:272 Mr '14

Ath 1914.1:190 Ap 4 1150w

Reviewed by W. A. Bradley

+ Bookm 39:202 Ap '14 50w

"So many of the ballads in the book are impressive and noteworthy that it is difficult to select from among them. They hold our attention because of their relation to the familiar ballads of the north, because of the dramatic power and beauty of this nearest expression of the heart of the Latin peoples, and because of the loveliness of the verse." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 4 '14 850w

"A contribution of distinctive and enduring value, for it has material new to most readers, and the translations themselves are masterpieces." M. H. Shackford

+ Dial 56:419 My 16 '14 1550w

+ Nation 98:757 Je 25 '14 1250w

"The chief value of the memorial volume consists in the introduction and in the interesting poetical versions, which show great talent notwithstanding that the author's muse was held in check by her conscientious desire to translate exactly."

+ — N Y Sun p6 D 13 '13 100w

+ N Y Times 18:332 Ag 2 '14 160w

"Although rendering texts which were necessarily very 'stiff,' she succeeds in giving them a certain flexibility and charm. The material is interesting in itself, and that interest is increased by Miss Jewett's personality."

+ Outlook 106:371 F 14 '14 110w

JOHANNSEN, ALBERT. Manual of petrographic methods. il *$6 McGraw 14-5048

The work begins "with a short introductory chapter on crystallography and a thorough treatment of stereographic projection (so necessary for some of the more recent microscopic methods). Chapters follow on the transmission of light through crystals, with a very complete and practical treatment of such topics as lenses, the petrographic microscope and the innumerable accessories which are now available, while the following chapters, comprising 300 pages, or nearly half the book, give a very complete account of the practical methods of application of the principles and instruments previously described."—Science

"This publication fills a long-felt want. For a first edition of a book of this character, dealing with numerous details of description, tables, and formulas, it appears to be remarkably free from infelicities or errors of detail in statement or print." G. D. Louderback

+ — J Geol 22:281 Ap '14 700w

"The book is clearly printed and compact, notwithstanding the extended text and many figures; it represents a vast amount of careful, discriminating and constructive work on the author's part, as, for instance, is shown by the bibliography at the end of each chapter, and should be invaluable in its special field." J. E. Wolff

+ Science n s 39:690 My 8 '14 350w

JOHNSON, ALVIN SAUNDERS. Professor and the petticoat. *$1.30 (1c) Dodd 14-6795

A Harvard doctor of philosophy—rather a young doctor with a recently acquired degree—accepts the chair of philosophy in Asuncion university. Asuncion is in Texas, but Edward Gresham when he blithely accepts the proffered chair, knows nothing much of it beyond this fact. He learns much in the course of a year, of the South, of the state of Texas, and of Asuncion and its university. The institution is co-educational, but there are occasions, two at least, when the calm atmosphere of a class room is disturbed and when the young ladies are requested to retire while southern gentlemen settle the difficulties after their own manner. The title has already told that the story has a heroine, a charming one she is, too, and a law unto herself.

+ A L A Bkl 10:413 Je '14

+ Ath 1914.2:178 Ag 8 120w

"It is all very gay and very lightsome, and the book as a whole is an enjoyable piece of genial frolicsome humor."

+ N Y Times 19:188 Ap 12 '14 400w

JOHNSON, FRANKLIN WINSLOW. Problems of boyhood: a course in ethics for boys of high-school age. (Constructive studies—ethical group) *$1 (4½c) Univ. of Chicago press 14-17502

This book is the result of an interesting experiment tried out in the high schools of Chicago and outlined by the author in a Foreword to the teacher. For several years boys from the different high schools of the city have been meeting once a week during the school year for a six o'clock dinner, separating after the dinner into groups for informal discussion. The author has been associated with one of these "Discussion clubs" for four years and the problems taken up in his book are those which have concerned the boys in his charge. The treatment of the subject is suggestive, and the volume will perhaps be most valuable as a handbook for those who wish to carry out a similar plan. Topics for discussion, of a most practical nature, are appended to each chapter.

+ A L A Bkl 11:196 Ja '15

"A practical book and one which can be used with inevitable success among boys of high-school age."

+ Bib World 45:51 Ja '15 80w

Ind 80:102 O 19 '14 30w

"The book ought to be of real value to men workers with adolescent boys." H. W. Thurston

+ Survey 33:276 D 5 '14 420w

JOHNSON, MARTIN ELMER. Through the South Seas with Jack London; with an intro. and a postscript by Ralph D. Harrison. il *$2 Dodd 13-35934

"It is of Jack London's adventurous voyage in the forty-five-footer, known as the Snark, that Mr. Johnson writes, and though Mr. London himself has written concerning this voyage, it is a good thing to have a story of the affair from a member of his crew. Mr. Johnson says that after years of longing for a real adventure he found what he wanted aboard the Snark while it was sailing from San Francisco to Honolulu, and thence on to Sydney by the way of the Marquesas, Society, Samoan, and Fiji islands."—N Y Times

"A tale, plain in style, almost too colloquial at times but on the whole breezy and not at all extravagant. Will be enjoyed most by admirers of Jack London."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:225 F '14

"The whole thing was a stupendous lark, and is told as such, and the reader who takes it on these lines will enjoy Mr. Johnson's book throughout."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup430 Mr 21 650w

+ N Y Times 19:89 F 22 '14 300w

JOHNSON, OWEN MCMAHON. The salamander. il *$1.35 (1c) Bobbs 14-9082

Among the definitions of "salamander" offered by the dictionary is this: "one of the genii fabled to live in fire; hence, colloquially, any person who can stand great heat." This, one takes it, is the definition which explains Mr. Johnson's title. His heroine, Doré Baxter, who comes wandering out of the everywhere into the here (which is New York), lives in what certainly appears to be a fiery furnace of danger and comes out unsinged. She is the young and attractive girl who comes to New York, eager and curious about life. She is very pretty, very clever and she knows how to "take care of herself." In the end she marries and marries well, and becomes "a conventional member of society, rather extreme in her conservatism."

JOHNSON, OWEN MCMAHON—Continued.

— Atlant 114:532 O '14 140w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:553 J1 '14 930w

"If not so light-heartedly gay as 'The varmint,' it is as thoroughly enjoyable in quite a different way. It sets the seal on Mr. Johnson's independence of his first success and evidences an artistic skill and sincerity full of promise."

R. T. P.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 13 '14 1150w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ — Dial 56:505 Je 16 '14 260w

Lit D 48:1494 Je 20 '14 260w

"In Mr. Johnson's anxiety to keep the Salamander lovable, he has reduced her to a dainty impossibility, a pretty actress giving an exhibition of childish incorrigibility in a stage picture of New York."

— Nation 98:635 My 28 '14 350w

"From a strictly literary point of view 'The salamander' is not important. Mr. Owen Johnson is a shorn David Graham Phillips. He gains by the possession of a sense of humor; he loses by lack of the sledge-hammer quality which made 'The husband's story' a chapter out of the Book of Jeremiah. His book would gain greatly by compression, by the use of occasional suggestion instead of particularity, by recognizing the existence of atmosphere even under the arc lights, but he has a theory back of his fluent, melodramatic style that calls for meditation and prayer on the part of the reader."

+ — N Y Times 19:225 My 10 '14 1000w

Reviewed by Doris Webb

Pub W 85:1348 Ap 18 '14 400w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 4 '14 970w

JOHNSON, ROSSITER, ed. War in Europe: its causes and consequences. il *$2 (2c) Sully & Kleinteich

The aim of this book is to serve as an aid to the reader who wishes to follow the war intelligently. Causes, immediate and remote, are dealt with, and the resources of the countries involved are outlined. There is no attempt to predict the outcome of the war or to fix the blame. One chapter gives a review of the European wars since 1815; one is devoted to The effect of the war on the western world. The book closes with a chronological list of events.

"The work seems well adapted to the needs of those who are limited to a single source of reference."

+ Nation 99:779 D 31 '14 100w

"A volume containing a large amount of information. It should prove of value to those who require a work of reference on the conflict."

+ N Y Times 19:511 N 22 '14 40w

JOHNSON, SAMUEL WILLIAM. From the letter-files of S. W. Johnson; ed. by Elizabeth H. Osborne. il *$2.50 (2½c) Yale univ. press 14-878

Samuel W. Johnson, for forty years a member of the faculty of Yale university, was one of the pioneers in this country in the field of scientific agriculture. He was instrumental in establishing the Connecticut agricultural experiment station of which he was director from 1877 to 1900. This was the first institution of its kind in the country, but his idea spread and at the time of his death in 1909, fifty-six such stations had been established. This book, made up largely of his letters, with annotations by his daughter, throws much light on these early activities.

"This volume will be consulted and referred to often by scientific men. It will also serve as a biography of the teacher and leader in research, and it will be a memorial tribute to the worth of a noble character and a busy life."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 28 '14 300w

+ Nation 99:111 J1 23 '14 750w

"The editor is to be congratulated on the way the material has been collected and arranged."

E. J. Russell

+ Nature 93:133 Ap 9 '14 600w

+ N Y Times 19:328 J1 26 '14 200w

"His biographer has done her work, not only with filial piety but with notable discrimination and restraint and with marked literary ability."

H. P. Armsby

+ Science n s 39:509 Ap 3 '14 1150w

Reviewed by E. H. Jenkins

+ Yale R n s 4:297 O '14 1050w

JOHNSON, STANLEY CURRIE. History of emigration from the United Kingdom to North America, 1763-1912. il *$2 Dutton (Eng ed 13-26668)

"The present contribution to the subject of immigration presents clearly and accurately the history of the great migration from the British isles to America, principally to Canada, with here and there a reference to the schemes by which it has been attempted to colonize South Africa and New Zealand. To us of the United States one of the book's claims to attention is its account of the similarities and differences between our own laws and those of Canada relating to the restrictions of immigration. . . . 'A history of emigration' also contains a valuable summary of the results of attempted colonization—a scheme which is frequently advanced as a cure-all for the evils of congested immigration in our own cities. According to Mr. Johnson, such attempts have invariably been failures when the colonists were not already competent and experienced farmers—and in many cases where they were."—N Y Times

Reviewed by W. E. Clark

Am Econ R 4:687 S '14 500w

Reviewed by E. A. Ross

+ — Am Hist R 20:200 O '14 400w

"It is a piece of work which shows not only painstaking and careful research, but breadth and clearness of vision. It adds materially to the fund of accurate information so warmly welcomed by students of emigration on both sides of the Atlantic." H: P. Fairchild

+ Ann Am Acad 55:290 S '14 620w

Ath 1913,2:555 N 15 20w

"The author has conceived his subject broadly and has used his materials with diligence and discrimination."

+ Dial 57:260 O 1 '14 450w

"His book suffers sometimes from an excess, of detail, and might have given more light if there had been less matter, but it is easily written and interesting. There is a valuable bibliography, but the index is badly constructed and diminishes the value of the book for purposes of reference." E. A. B.

+ — Eng Hist R 29:624 J1 '14 220w

Reviewed by Homer Hoyt

+ J Pol Econ 22:920 N '14 40w

"The preliminary survey, dealing with the period after 1763, is, however, misleading as far as averages are concerned, in that it interprets a very unusual movement from Scotland during the 'seventies, due to the rent-racking policy of Scottish landlords, as if it were part of a normal outflow. The work becomes trustworthy only after 1815, when definite statistics are reached, but the best sections are those that concern the conditions of emigration at the present time."

+ — Nation 99:326 S 10 '14 140w

+ N Y Times 19:295 Je 28 '14 350w

"Despite the minor shortcomings that have been indicated, it is likely to be a serviceable book for a long time to come." E: Porritt

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:719 D '14 600w

JOHNSON, WILLIAM SAMUEL. Nothing else matters. $1.25 (2½c) Kennerley 14-11090

A story of student life in Paris which is quite free from the sordid details that are too often dragged into tales of the kind to give the necessary Bohemian atmosphere. The band of young men and women who call themselves the "little ones" and who, with delightful assurance, claim all the great ones of the past as members of their order, have youth and hope and ideals. They live for their art, and with mystic vows bind themselves to be true to the power that is in each one of them—and nothing else matters.

"The student life of Paris has seldom been shown more attractively."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 8 '14 300w

"If there is anything Mr. Johnson and his Bohemians seem determined not to be guilty of, it is a simple phrase, or a straightforward thought."

— Nation 99:254 Ag 27 '14 450w

N Y Times 19:291 Je 28 '14 250w

JOHNSTON, CHARLES HUGHES, ed. Modern high school; its administration and extension, with examples and interpretations of significant movements. il $1.75 Scribner 14-12182

"It consists of a series of thirty independent but correlated chapters on various phases of the American high school. Some of the chapters deal with the technical questions of teaching, but a number of them concern the sociological influence of the high school—that is to say, the high school as a social center. These chapters are quite as interesting to and as important for the parent as for the teacher. A valuable feature of the volume is an unusually complete bibliography of the subjects discussed in each separate chapter."—Outlook

"An informing book for educators."

+ A L A Bkl 11:99 N '14

"Many chapters of the book are informing, though—since the book is to serve as a text for a pedagogical seminary—few are inspiring."

+ — Nation 99:321 S 10 '14 110w

"This book certainly should be included in every high school library where it can be easily obtained not only by the pupils but by the parents."

+ Outlook 108:283 S 30 '14 300w

"Aside from a few weaknesses, the book contains the best body of assembled material on high-school administration." C. C. Kohl

+ — Science n s 41:216 F 5 '15 1100w

JOHNSTON, MARY. Witch. il $1.40 (1c) Houghton 14-18425

The story opens with a scene in the death chamber of Elizabeth, to which Gilbert Aderhold, a young physician newly returned from study in France, is admitted on the commendation of Robert Cecil. The old queen died and a new reign began in England and with it began bitter times for Gilbert Aderhold, who as a thinker in advance of his times was looked upon askance by the strict Puritanism of the age. Finding no opening in London for one suspected of atheism, he settles in a remote country district but here too he finds narrowness and hardness of heart masked under the name of religion, and persecution is again his lot. The same fate is meted out to Joan Heron, suspected of witchcraft and the two are tried and condemned to death. They escape and make their way to the new world. Here on one of the remote islands of the West Indies they spend a few idyllic years, but an evil fate again overtakes them; they are returned to England to meet a final martyrdom.

A L A Bkl 11:221 Ja '15

+ Ath 1914.2:502 N 14 160w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 40:553 Ja '15 400w

"Its exposition of the witchcraft mania is strong, clear and convincing, and it is a part of Miss Johnston's skill as a story teller that she is able to convince us that these people thought and acted as they did solely at the behest of their consciences and as a result of their belief in the mysteries of a higher power. Now and then, however, Miss Johnston lets herself go with all the absurd unrestraint of the romantic novelist." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 O 24 '14 970w

+ — Ind 81:176 F 1 '15 60w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:653 D 3 '14 60w

+ — Nation 100:52 Ja 14 '15 570w

+ — New Republic 1:28 N 28 '14 260w

+ N Y Times 19:474 N 1 '14 530w

+ Outlook 108:603 N 11 '14 200w

Reviewed by M. K. Reely

+ Pub W 86:2010 D 12 '14 600w

+ — R of Rs 50:765 D '14 250w

+ Sat R 118:sup6 N 14 '14 170w

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 630w

JOHNSTON, REGINALD FLEMING. Buddhist China. il $5 Dutton (Eng ed A14-370)

"While this scholarly volume may be regarded as something like higher education in Buddhism, because it covers so fully and scientifically all phases of what seems destined to be the surviving religion of China, there is also much in it of myth and history. . . . The author has spent fifteen years in China and has freely partaken of the hospitality of the Buddhist monks, therefore his information is intimate and his viewpoint friendly. Everyone knows that China has three religions—Buddhism, Taoism and Confucianism—but there is nothing in either that prevents a believer from espousing all three. This volume, however, is devoted mainly to Buddhism. . . . The writer believes Taoism and Confucianism must abate something of their claims; but it is not quite certain that Buddhism must follow their example. He quotes a Christian theologian as stating that Buddhism is the only religion in the world that can be considered 'a serious rival to Christianity.'"—Boston Transcript

"Will interest the general reader as well as the student."

+ A L A Bkl 10:356 My '14

+ Bib World 44:64 J1 '14 240w

"The volume obviously is the result of long and arduous research; it is well arranged and well written, and in view of recent events in China is important and timely." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 28 '14 800w

"His study is a very pleasing example of that sort of scholarly work which, instead of destroying the object of its analysis, really succeeds in conveying that object in essence to the reader."

+ Dial 56:305 Ap 1 '14 450w

+ Nation 99:378 S 24 '14 1650w

+ N Y Times 19:404 S 27 '14 750w

"An informative book. Perhaps it will disappoint some readers, however, because they will think it more informative on the historical than on the descriptive side."

+ — Outlook 106:504 F 28 '14 100w

"The book may be confidently recommended alike to the student of comparative religion, to the lover of Chinese art, who will find the explanation of much that is obscure, and to the general reader who has never suspected the Chinese of the possession of a soul."

+ Sat R 117:240 F 21 '14 600w

"Scholarly work."

+ Spec 112:831 My 16 '14 850w

JOHNSTON, ROBERT MATTESON. Bull Run: its strategy and tactics. il $2.50 (3½c) Houghton 13-25300

The civil war divides itself into three periods, says the author. The first is characterized by crudeness; the second by crudeness flanked by great daring and brilliancy; the third by brilliancy sobered down to a ripe and masterly

JOHNSTON, ROBERT MATTESON—Continued exposition of military science. In this work on Bull Run he makes a study of the first period. He says: "By investigating its crudities, we shall understand better the brilliancy and the maturity that followed." He sees in the Bull Run disaster a lesson for to-day. It was "a lamentable illustration of the awful calamities invariably attending nations that lack or neglect an army."

Reviewed by Eben Swift

+ — Am Hist R 20:174 O '14 750w

"Written without bias, but freely criticizes the leaders. Useful maps and diagrams."

+ A L A Bkl 10:272 Mr '14

"We have in these pages a common-sense, systematic review of the preliminaries, the battle, and the causes of Federal loss and Confederate gain. The author avoids the pitfall of romantic writing and devotes his efforts sincerely to the task of setting in order what many other historians have found chaotic." S. A.

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '13 450w

"Prof. Johnston has done, in a measure, for Bull Run what Major Bigelow a few years ago did for Chancellorsville. He has given a thoro and detailed study, from all available sources, of the first important battle of the civil war."

+ Ind 77:278 F 23 '14 300w

+ — Nation 98:726 Je 18 '14 1950w

"Mr. Johnston apparently has spared no pains in his effort to make his book accurate; there undoubtedly will be dissenters among his readers with respect to some of his opinions, but his statements of fact will be apt to stand unchallenged."

+ N Y Times 19:85 F 22 '14 230w

R of Rs 49:253 F '14 120w

JOHNSTONE, JAMES. Philosophy of biology. $2.75 Putnam A14-2023

"As the author himself explains, the point of view and methods of treatment in this book are largely those suggested by Driesch and Bergson. The book is not long; there are eight chapters entitled, respectively, the Conceptual world, the Organism as a mechanism, the Activities of the organism, the Vital Impetus, the Individual and the Species, Transformism, the Meaning of evolution, the Organic and the inorganic; there is also an appendix with a brief account of the chief principles of energetics."—Science

"Dr. Johnstone's book is worthy of most careful study by all who have followed recent advances in biology. His power of exposition and descriptive analysis is excellent, and his reputation as a naturalist is well known; but his philosophy seems disappointing in that it is premature."

+ — Ath 1914.2:82 Jl 18 700w

"The arguments we have singled out for notice give but an inadequate idea of the thorough way in which Dr. Johnstone has expounded in this most valuable book the various problems of biology and their relation to the laws of physics. The interest is sustained throughout." H. W. Carr

+ Hibbert J 13:443 Ja '15 2450w

"Mr. Johnstone has the merit of putting his case in clear, well-written language, and although he has to deal with philosophical problems he avoids philosophical technical terms as much as possible, so that the ordinary reader has little difficulty in following him. On the principle, apparently, that any stick is good enough to beat a dog with, Mr. Johnstone employs arguments of totally different, and somewhat incompatible, kinds to enforce his position." E. W. M.

+ — Nature 94:303 N 19 '14 850w

"Although disagreeing with the author's main contentions, the reviewer wishes to recognize the merits of the book as an interesting, enthusiastic and ingenious contribution to the literature of its subject. We have noted some errors in matters of biological detail, but these are not such as to affect the main argument." R. S. Lillie

+ — Science n s 40:840 D 11 '14 4250w

"His book is well deserving of careful study."

+ Spec 112:1097 Je 27 '14 130w

JOLINE, ADRIAN HOFFMAN. Rambles in an autograph land. il $2.50 Putnam 13-23031

"Mrs. Joline has revised and arranged the materials of 'Rambles in autograph land,' of which the manuscript was found among the posthumous papers of the author. The volume is a discourse on the collecting of letters, manuscripts, and other documents of personal, historical, or literary interest. Sections of the book deal with 'The autograph in literature,' 'The autograph market,' 'Collectors and their methods,' and kindred subjects. These are followed by chapters on the documents of various writers, both English and American. There are a large number of portraits and facsimiles of documents from the collection of the author."—Ath

"The book is decidedly entertaining, for it is the work of an enthusiast who had a pleasant sense of humour. It contains some keen criticism of others, although all its details are not above reproach."

+ — Ath 1913.2:701 D 13 160w

+ Boston Transcript p24 D 3 '13 620w

+ Ind 78:216 My 4 '14 120w

"Sometimes the comment is charmingly mellow, again tiresomely lengthy or crudely testy. Altogether it is a readable jumble, and an interesting memorial of a sturdy personality, but lightness of touch, the saving grace of such 'abiblia,' is absent."

+ — Nation 97:542 D 4 '13 210w

"Because he felt this way and put his feeling into what he wrote he is able to make his readers enjoy his pages, whether or not they have previously sympathized with the collector's view-point."

+ N Y Times 18:693 N 30 '13 630w

JONES, ALICE. Flame of frost. il $1.30 (1½c) Appleton 14-14914

"Flame of frost" was the name given by the Indians to a diamond of wonderful beauty and Fred Norval who came up into northern Ontario in search of the precious stones reputed to be hidden in old Indian burial grounds, found it in the possession of Iseult, the niece of the mysterious old Frenchman who lived on the Sleeping Water. When Fred Norval had said good-bye to Lena Ampion, he had taken one of her gloves as a keepsake and had promised to bring it back filled with diamonds, but long before his quest succeeded, Lena was the bride of another and Fred, disappointed and disillusioned, readily agreed to the dying Frenchman's request that he wed Iseult. With his beautiful woodland bride and his fortune in gems, he goes back to his old friends, and we have thereafter the story of the shy young girl's attempts to adapt herself to fashionable society, the ill luck brought by the "Flame of frost," her return to the woods and the final reconciliation with the husband who has learned that she is more precious than diamonds.

"The plot is full of unusual turns, and the character of the woodland girl makes the tale a charming one."

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 230w

"It is a good story and told with sincerity and not a little charm. The plot has many unexpected turns and unusual developments."

+ N Y Times 19:370 S 6 '14 480w

"It is well written and will hold the reader who seeks relief from every-day life."

+ Outlook 108:440 O 21 '14 50w

JONES, DORIS EGERTON. Peter Piper. il $1.25 Jacobs A14-2333

"'Peter Piper' is a diary novel, in which the maker of the record is an Australian girl in her later teens who has lived all her life on a station—'station' is Australian for what Americans call a ranch—in a remote region—the 'back blocks'—of West Australia. All her life this girl has dressed as a boy, and has ridden and hunted and slept in the bush o' nights if she felt like it. . . . This portion of the book is fresh and unconventional and touched with the weird beauty of the Australian bush. Afterward, when the heroine goes to live in Adelaide and the plot of the story and the reasons for the singular conditions of her youth are developed, both the diary and the story it tells ring less true and more conventional."—N Y Times

"The book strikes us as being unnecessarily drawn out."

— Ath 1913,2:208 Ag 30 80w

"It is more of a novel than 'Oh! James!' And has many dramatic scenes and a plot that holds the reader from first to last." J. L. Güder

+ Ind 80:403 D 14 '14 80w

"The author takes too long for the telling of the second part of her tale and the reader's interest lags through many pages. But the character drawing is good, the young diarist, particularly, standing out through her self-revelments as quite a vivid creature. And the book has a certain richness of quality that will commend it to people who like something more than mere story in their fiction."

+ — N Y Times 19:182 Ap 12 '14 400w

"It is a book that every woman should read. The author has treated an old problem in a new way. There is no maudlin sentiment here, and no preaching." Jane Forrester

+ Pub w 55:1339 Ap 13 '14 300w

JONES, EDWARD DAVID. Business administration; its models in war, statecraft and science. (Works management lib.) $2 Eng. mag. 14-6698

"The title well outlines the scope of the book. Professor Jones has taken as his thesis that since those responsible for the success of our vast American enterprises have with few exceptions been secretive regarding their ideals and the philosophy of their detailed methods, we must turn for models of administration to the treasury of history, where lie abundant sources as to the methods which have won success in war, statecraft and science. . . . There are three main divisions in the book. In the first the administrator is considered as a general, the leader of an industrial army; in the second, as a scientist; in the third, as a diplomat. A summary chapter closing each section aims to crystalize the principles which the previous discussion has revealed."—Engin Rec

"If the book is on the whole disappointing it is because the presentation of highly valuable ideas is too fragmentary and out of proportion. In a condensed form, merely suggestive of the lines of thought pursued, or as a volume twice the size of the present one this work would, to the reviewer's mind, have been more valuable." C: W. Mixer

+ — Am Econ R 4:908 D '14 700w

Reviewed by E. W. Douglas

+ Engin N 72:165 Jl 16 '14 500w

"Against one point the reader should be warned—Professor Jones' failure to see any good whatever in the middle ages."

+ — Engin Rec 70:389 O 3 '14 350w

"The author has in this little volume brought out a rather interesting production. Its principal result will be to make a man think and analyze his industrial problems, rather than enable him to point out any specific remedy for his present industrial ills."

+ Indust Engin 14:344 Ag '14 250w

JONES, HARRY CLARY. New era in chemistry. il $2 Van Nostrand 13-21771

The author writes the history of chemistry from the year 1887 on. "Beginning with the Periodic law of Mendeléeff, which, as he truly says, converted chemistry from mere empiricism to system, he shows with great lucidity how Kekulé's discovery of the six carbon atoms in aromatic compounds led to Van 't Hoff's invention of stereochemistry, and this in turn to Prof. Arrhenius's ionic theory of electrolysis. Ostwald, however, is to his mind the real founder of modern chemistry. . . . Thus he leads his readers to the new theory of electrolysis founded on Le Blanc's researches into decomposition values, and pronounces in favour of Sir Joseph Thomson's speculation that matter is nothing more than isolated electric charges moving with high velocity through a perfectly elastic medium." (Ath)

A L A Bkl 10:226 F '14

"Prof. Jones does his work with fairness, giving to every one, so far as we have been able to discover, his due, and supplying the student with a very clear and concise summary of the researches of which he treats. We have noticed some awkward words, but, on the whole, the book is as well as it is clearly written."

+ — Ath 1914,1:94 Ja 17 850w

"Professor Jones's book makes one glad to be alive, makes one realize what a wonderful age it is in which we are living, and fills one with admiration for the unselfish, often unremunerative and infinitely painstaking work accomplished by the chemists of this wonderful age. The inherent charm of the book makes one gladly forget and forgive the occasional lapses from correct English. But these are of slight consequence compared to the vast amount of careful and accurate as well as enthralling information which the book contains." N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 O 29 '13 1500w

+ Ind 77:170 F 2 '14 70w

"The book is, on the whole, disappointing." J. B. C.

+ — Nature 93:555 Jl 30 '14 500w

+ Outlook 105:498 N 1 '13 50w

Reviewed by E. C. Franklin

+ — Science n s 40:172 Jl 31 '14 1550w

JONES, HENRY ARTHUR. Mary goes first; a comedy in three acts and an epilogue; with an introd. by Clayton Hamilton. (Drama league ser.) *75c (3c) Doubleday 14-10412

A situation which, Mr. Hamilton says in his introduction, it would be impossible to duplicate in America where our social traditions are not crystallized, is the basis of this comedy of manners. The question of precedence at dinner has to be settled between Mary Wichello and Lady Bodsworth. The latter, with her newly acquired title, goes first until Mary, by clever scheming, succeeds in winning a baronetcy for her husband and a title for herself.

"An excellent example of light comedy in general and a worthy example of the author's art in particular."

+ A L A Bkl 11:163 D '14

+ Ath 1913,2:735 D 20 50w

"It will afford an hour's hearty enjoyment to any intelligent reader and is entirely worthy of the reputation of its able author."

+ Nation 99:530 O 29 '14 470w

"It shows Sir Henry in his most winning mood—one of wide good nature and amused tolerance of human frailties and human vanities."

+ N Y Times 19:416 O 4 '14 300w

+ R of Rs 51:119 Ja '15 140w

"Mr. Jones's ability as a dramatist has been long established and it is sufficient to say that this play holds up to the standards he set in 'The liars,' 'Whitewashing Julia,' 'Dolly reforming herself,' and other notable comedies in which he has satirized the foibles of the British aristocracy. It is especially notable, however, as showing the dramatist's technical skill."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 270w

"One of the cleverest of modern 'comedies of manners,' satirizing with delicate humor the foibles of British aristocracy."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:393 D '14 20w

JONES, LIVINGSTON FRENCH. Study of the Thlingets of Alaska. il *$1.50 Revell 14-2860

"The author of this book limits his study of the native tribes of Alaska to one of the four principal groups into which the aborigines of that country are divided. They occupy the south-eastern portion of the land, are the nearest to civilization, and that portion of the population with which our people have come in contact. . . . The plan of the book is sufficiently comprehensive to embrace the whole life-history of the people. Chapters are given to their origin, their language, their family and social life, their dress, industries and traits, their customs of the past and of the present, shamanism and totemism, legends and myths, music and amusements, religion and morality. The closing chapter of the book is devoted to education." (Boston Transcript) The author has spent over twenty years in Alaska as a missionary.

Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 350w

"A very entertaining and instructive account."

+ N Y Times 19:165 Ap 5 '14 110w

R of Rs 49:505 Ap '14 90w

"A valuable study of this people. Mr. Jones presents here a great deal of new material along with some things told before."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 650w

JONES, REV. MAURICE. New Testament in the twentieth century. *$3 Macmillan

A14-2409

"In this survey of recent Christological and historical criticism of the New Testament a most competent British scholar gives a full and lucid critical account of the stage it has reached, with his estimate of its net result thus far and its present tendency. Part 1 is mainly concerned with various schemes, reconstructive and destructive, intent on a new Christology. This is the present 'storm-center' of criticism, promising to rival the classic controversy of the fourth century. Part 2 is a survey of the work of historical or 'higher' criticism upon the books of the New Testament." —Outlook

"The volume is an excellent summary of the present day criticism of the person of Christ and the New Testament. It is a valuable addition to the library of the theological student, to the busy pastor who wishes to keep himself informed as to the work of the critics, and to the intelligent layman." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 700w

+ Outlook 108:733 N 25 '14 250w

JONES, RUFUS MATTHEW. Spiritual reformers in the 16th and 17th centuries. *$3 Macmillan 14-19669

"Starting from the main current of the Reformation, the author traces the division of spiritual forces which he terms one of the greatest tragedies of Christian history. His first idea for the volume was a lengthy study of the great German mystic, Jacob Boehme, and his influence; but as his research continued, he found that Boehme was but one of a group that must in justice include such men as Hans Denck, Bunderlin and Entfelder, Sebastian Franck, Caspar Swenckfeld, Castello, Weigel, and the entire group of the early English interpreters of spiritual religion that begins with Thomas Everard and ends with Thomas Traherne and the other spiritual poets of the seventeenth century." —R of Rs

+ Ath 1914,2:303 S 26 750w

"The author has done a great service in placing before the church of today these spiritual reformers."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 29 '14 480w

"We may thank Dr. Jones for a clear and attractive account of a movement." C. C. J. Webb

+ Eng Hist R 30:140 Ja '15 1100w

"The work is written from the sources and is a valuable addition to our knowledge of the religious and ethical forces of the period." J. H. T.

+ Int J Ethics 25:124 O '14 170w

"Dr. Jones brings to his task unusual qualifications, unusual especially in a writer identified, as he is, with the religious group he is attempting to describe."

+ Nation 99:553 N 5 '14 1050w

"Inspiring book."

+ R of Rs 50:635 N '14 200w

JOOS, ROBERT. Success with hens. $1 (2c) Forbes 14-1965

A handbook for poultry raisers which covers its subject very thoroly. The subjects of hatching, brooding, incubation, feeding and housing, marketing, are all given due attention. The professional poultry raiser will find the book a useful guide; so, too, will the amateur and the beginner, for the author is an enthusiastic supporter of the small flock kept in the city back yard.

"Presented in a popular style, the information is, nevertheless, reliable, up to date, and not apt to be misleading in any part."

+ A L A Bkl 10:356 My '14

+ Chaut 72:574 Mr 21 '14 110w

"The book is practical as a text book, humanly and enthusiastically written and very encouraging to the novice."

+ Ind 78:212 My 4 '14 150w

N Y Times 19:212 Ap 26 '14 80w

R of Rs 49:765 Je '14 70w

JORDAN, DAVID STARR. America's conquest of Europe. 60c (55c) Am. Unitar. 14-38

Two essays make up the contents of this book. The first was written at the request of Henri La Fontaine and a French edition of it has been printed in Brussels. The second, "World peace and the treaty of Ghent" was delivered before a world congress of heads of secondary schools in Ghent in 1913. The thesis of the first is that the two ideals for which America stands, democracy and internationalism, must in time come to prevail in Europe, bringing about a condition of universal peace.

+ Ann Am Acad 53:312 My '13 180w

Boston Transcript p7 Ja 10 '14 250w

"An acute and penetrating study."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 18 '14 150w

JORDAN, DAVID STARR, and JORDAN, HARRY VERNER. War's aftermath. *75c (1c) Houghton 14-18713

A book described in its sub-title as "a preliminary study of the eugenics of war as illustrated by the civil war of the United States and the late wars in the Balkans." It is in the main a study of the racial or biological consequences of the civil war based on an investigation made in three counties of the South, Spottsylvania county, Virginia, the scene of the Wilderness campaign, Rockbridge county in the Shenandoah valley, and Cobb county, Georgia, in the track of Sherman's march. Statistical exactness was impossible in making the investigation; the authors have had to rely largely on the opinions of Confederate survivors and other men of intelligence. An analysis of these opinions is offered. The study is prefaced by an introductory chapter written since the outbreak of the European war.

"The book is one of dramatic suggestion, well worth while, whichever side of the argument one takes." D. W. LaRue

+ Am J Soc 20:555 Ja '15 400w

A L A Bkl 11:196 Ja '15

Dial 57:394 N 16 '14 100w

"This gets at the real heart of the matter."

+ Ind 80:242 N 16 '14 70w

Int J Ethics 25:273 Ja '15 130w

J Pol Econ 23:104 Ja '15 170w

N Y Times 19:479 N 1 '14 800w

Outlook 108:1020 D 30 '14 160w

"Serves as an effective argument against war."

+ Pittsburgh 20:10 Ja '15 50w

Reviewed by Alexander Johnson

+ Survey 33:465 Ja 30 '15 350w

JORDAN, ELIZABETH GARVER. May Iverson's career. il *$1.25 (1½c) Harper 14-18647

A group of stories all about May Iverson grown up. When the commencement exercises at St. Catharine's are over May Iverson tells her father that she has decided to be a nun. Her father asks her to take three years to think it over; these years are taken up with newspaper work in New York. She makes a phenomenal success as a journalist, author and playwright, and in the end marries, having long before given up the idea of the veil. May Iverson grown up is a more conventional figure than the May of convent days.

A L A Bkl 11:174 D '14

"Worth recommending particularly for such girls whom life has all too carefully sheltered from the storms of the outer world." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:448 D '14 60w

+ Boston Transcript p25 N 25 '14 150w

"In its clear-cut, direct simplicity and appreciation of significant moments, 'May Iverson's career' is quite the best work Elizabeth Jordan has done."

+ Ind 80:290 N 23 '14 60w

Nation 99:608 N 19 '14 160w

"She would be more appealing and more human were she less of a prodigy. Taken separately, the stories are fairly interesting and well told."

+ — N Y Times 19:516 N 22 '14 400w

+ Outlook 108:788 D 2 '14 80w

JORDAN, HUMFREY ROBERTSON. Carmen and Mr. Dryasdust. *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-4536

The story opens with a prologue in which Basil Pontifax and Carlotta Manton bid one another a passionate farewell before he goes to South America, as it happens, to meet his death. Chapter one opens in a wholly different setting—the academic halls of Cambridge with Carlotta, who has been "Carmen" to Basil Pontifax, married to Reginald Pontifax, his brother, a "dryasdust" scientist. Reginald knows nothing of Carlotta's connection with his brother; does not know that there was even an acquaintanceship between them. Carlotta's friends cannot understand why she married her husband; the reader shares the mystification, and it is this riddle, together with his interest in the transformation of Mr. Dryasdust, that holds him closely to the reading of the book.

+ A L A Bkl 10:371 My '14

"A keen, discerning book, written in a spirit of blended irony and indulgence." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:445 Je '14 340w

"Mr. Jordan has that thoughtfulness which is so much to be desired; and he lacks the human touch by which alone it can be animated—or else he has this human insight but the tools of his trade come so awkwardly to his hand that he cannot transmit it."

— Boston Transcript p8 Ap 11 '14 680w

"It is a very human story and a highly entertaining one, albeit its course is placid and the depths of emotion are no wise sounded." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:423 My 16 '14 360w

"Let no one think that the book is a thesis. The story is the life of it all. The characters are full of interest. Reading the book for the story alone the most casual reader will hardly go amiss. Living with it, as we have said, it will be long before its suggestiveness is exhausted."

+ N Y Times 19:120 Mr 15 '14 1050w

"The story is very readable, and never flags for a moment."

+ Sat R 117:543 Ap 25 '14 180w

+ — Spec 113:100 Jl 18 '14 10w

JORDAN, MODESTE HANNIS. Art of short-story writing simplified. *50c Hannis Jordan co., 32 Union sq., N. Y. 13-22671

This little book "gives in fifty diminutive pages the whole secret of winning editorial approval, including a two-page list of verbs to indicate speech or reply." —Dial

Dial 55:413 N 16 '13 50w

Nation 98:543 My 7 '14 60w

"Anybody with a talent for story-writing undoubtedly will profit through a careful reading of Mr. Jordan's treatise."

+ N Y Times 18:651 N 23 '13 40w

JOSEPH, SAMUEL. Jewish immigration to the United States from 1881 to 1910. pa *$1.00 Longmans 14-15642

"It gives briefly and clearly an analysis of the economic, social, and political conditions in Russia, Roumania and Austria-Hungary, which bear upon the Jewish question; the economic and social position of the Jews in those countries, and their history for the past thirty years. Then comes a discussion of the movement and characteristics of the Jewish immigration to the United States, followed by a carefully prepared and well-arranged set of statistical tables. This study shows the Jewish movement as a true migration, in contrast to what the author characterizes as 'normal immigration.'" —Survey

"It is regrettable that the author's discussion of the statistics, occupying the second half of his text, is expressed in a style far from clarity."

+ Boston Transcript p6 O 3 '14 270w

Educ R 48:537 D '14 40w

+ Int J Ethics 25:273 Ja '15 70w

"The author has spent his time so entirely on what might almost be called obvious facts, as almost to preclude the consideration of points of real interest."

+ — J Pol Econ 23:99 Ja '15 350w

"This book is valuable to have at hand on the reference shelf." K. H. Claghorn

+ Survey 33:266 D 5 '14 300w

JOYCE, THOMAS ATHOL. Mexican archaeology. il *$4 (3½c) Putnam (Eng ed 11-11319)

"The object of this book is to summarize shortly the extent of our knowledge concerning the life and culture of the Mexican and Maya peoples of pre-Spanish America." (Preface) The author regrets the fact that foreign countries, England and Germany in particular, have given more attention to the scientific study of American antiquities than have Americans themselves, and expresses the hope that his book may serve to stimulate interest in the subject in our own country. Tribal history; The gods; The calendar and calendrical feasts; Medicine and burial, Crafts, dress and daily life; Architectural remains and pottery, are some of the subjects touched upon.

"A brief bibliography would have added to the usefulness of the book. We may say with confidence that Mr. Joyce has used well his special opportunities for the study of his subject, and has produced a volume of great value and interest."

+ Ath 1914:1:899 Je 27 1350w

"It is filled to bursting with facts, solid, substantial, undeniable facts, carrying the knowledge the world has been able to recover of the lost civilizations of Mexico down to the most recent discoveries."

+ Dial 57:303 O 16 '14 350w

+ N Y Times 20:24 Ja 17 '15 50w

"A work of great value and interest."

+ Pittsburgh 19:522 N '14 60w

"Learned and extremely interesting book."

+ Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 100w

JUDSON, HANFORD CHASE. Songs toward the sunlight. $1.50 Stewart & co. 13-22454

"'Songs toward the sunlight' contains not so much poetry, as the stuff of poetry—its raw material. It is all there." (N Y Times) "Unusual is the poem, 'Pere Jogues,' and his wonderful dream; also the 'Legend of the guarded door,' one of the longer poems. 'Factory poems' is a collection of short work-a-day verses which show the author to be alive to the human element of the workers in the hives of industry. Some of these verses have been published in the Outlook and Scribner's magazine." (Boston Transcript)

JUDSON, HANFORD CHASE—Continued.

"A collection of verses that will be appreciated by persons who can discriminate between 'jingle' and really good poetry."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 7 '14 110w

"The finely-wrought verses are few among numbers that are commonplace and uninspired. If Mr. Judson would be less didactic and less given to the ode form, and would make every word count as he has already made many a word count, he might accomplish very considerable things in poetry."

+ — N Y Times 19:213 Ap 26 '14 170w

"The sonnets are among the best poems in this collection; they have not only graphic energy and life, but that human feeling which is the reconciler of apparently antagonistic conditions and brings remote things within the circle of vision. The longer poems are less successful from a technical point of view, but they have more solid poetic substance."

+ — Outlook 107:625 Jl 11 '14 330w

JUDSON, KATHARINE BERRY, ed. Myths and legends of the great plains. il *$1.50 (4½c) McClurg 13-24649

To her collections of legends of the southwest, of the Pacific coast, and of Alaska, Miss Judson adds this volume of stories drawn from the folklore of the plains Indians. "A great number of legends, ascribed to various Indian tribes, are brought together in brief and readable form, sometimes in verse, and with occasional illustrations of native origin. A petroglyph in Nebraska is reproduced, portraits of two Indian chiefs are given, and other suitable pictures are provided." (Dial)

A L A Bkl 10:226 F '14

"This collection, illustrated with numerous pictures, should be interesting alike to young and old."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 24 '13 170w

"The book is excellent as a popular and at the same time faithful treatment of its subject."

+ Dial 55:487 D 1 '13 130w

"Another interesting story book."

+ N Y Sun p5 N 29 '13 23w

+ N Y Times 19:407 S 27 '14 80w

"The preparation of this volume is a commendable undertaking."

+ R of Rs 49:381 Mr '14 90w

JUDSON, KATHARINE BERRY, comp. and ed. Myths and legends of the Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes. il *$1.50 (6c) McClurg 14-14941

This group of legends from the folk-lore of the Winnebago, Wyandot, Biloxi, Menomini, Ojibwa, Cherokee, and other tribes of the Mississippi valley is added to the other books in Miss Judson's excellent series. This particular group has an especial literary interest, for it was the tales of the northern tribes that furnished Longfellow with his material for Hiawatha; while the legends of the southern Indians show interesting parallels with the slave stories given form by Joel Chandler Harris.

A L A Bkl 11:39 N '14

"To the student of folk lore the stories are exceedingly interesting to study because of the recurrence of many of the traditions to be found in the folk lore of various parts of Europe proving the relationship of races and the curious, manner in which race ideas constantly reappear."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 330w

Dial 57:464 D 1 '14 230w

+ Ind 80:330 D 7 '14 170w

JUDSON, KATHARINE BERRY, comp. Selected articles on government ownership of telegraph and telephone. (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1 (1c) Wilson, H. W. 15-1840

A volume made up, like others in the series, of a brief, a bibliography and selected articles bearing on all sides of the question under discussion. "The present service of the telegraph and telephone systems is fully described under the heading General discussion, where articles discussing government ownership from all points of view are reprinted. Other articles arguing definitely for the affirmative and negative have been placed under those respective headings." (Explanatory note)

"A vast and imposing array of arguments and facts Katharine B. Judson has assembled in the latest of the 'Debaters' handbook series.'"

+ Ind 81:176 F 1 '15 60w

K

KAHLENBERG, LOUIS, and HART, EDWIN <sup>3</sup> BRET. Chemistry and its relations to daily life. il *$1.25 Macmillan 13-13594

"This comprehensive summary of the main principles of chemical science and their applications to art, manufactures, and agriculture contains a rich store of information, with sufficient theory for those who wish to acquire a knowledge of applied chemistry only." (Ath) The book is designed as a text book for students of agriculture and domestic science.

"A comprehensive summary, practical, with only enough theory for understanding and still not too simple to need careful reading, which would give the reader a good elementary knowledge of applied chemistry."

+ A L A Bkl 10:187 Ja '14 *

+ Ath 1913:258 S 13 110w

+ Ind 75:343 Ag 7 '13 30w

+ — Nation 99:331 S 10 '14 560w

"The descriptions are simple and interesting; the instruction is sound so far as it goes. Students who are not making chemistry their primary study, but desire to have some knowledge of the chemical properties of common articles, will find the book full of trustworthy information."

+ Nature 92:628 F 5 '14 150w

Reviewed by C. J. Pieper

School R 22:279 Ap '14 360w

KAISER, JOHN BOYNTON. Law, legislative and <sup>7</sup> municipal reference libraries. *$1 Boston bk. 14-10941

An introductory manual and bibliographical guide to materials and methods of three important types of special libraries: namely, the law library, the legislative and the municipal reference library. The tendency towards, nay, rather, the present-day necessity for, making the professional library an aggressive and efficient tool created a need for this work which the author has admirably met. The part of the text dealing with law libraries aims to give (1) to the law student a knowledge of the use of his tools; (2) to the library school student a general notion of the materials with which he must be familiar; (3) to the law librarian a convenient cumulation of certain heretofore scattered information; and (4) to the practitioner of law an orderly tabulation of his law library which will make familiar volumes serve him more efficiently. The sections on legislative and municipal reference work record for university graduates, library school graduates and legislators the history and development of these two phases of library activity and give topically the materials and methods employed.

+ A L A Bkl 11:150 D '14

+ Ann Am Acad 57:335 Ja '15 90w

"The book will succeed in its object. Though the author insists in calling it, in his preface, as well as on his title page 'an introductory manual'—as though it were a mere superficial pamphlet of five or six pages—it does not seem possible that human industry will tackle the subject again. How can it? The topic seems to be squeezed dry."

+ Boston Transcript p23 Je 17 '14 550w

"The book is full of practical suggestions and will be found useful."

+ Educ R 48:532 D '14 70w

"The book should be of valuable aid to lawyers, legislators and those interested in municipal government."

+ Ind 79:415 S 21 '14 50w

"It is ungenerous to complain of overabundance when there can be no criticism of omission. Mr. Kaiser has certainly garnered the field diligently. But he has been more than a mere compiler of disassociated facts." H: E. Legler

+ J Pol Econ 22:810 O '14 530w

"In spite of the phrase 'introductory manual' the subject is treated at length and with care."

+ N Y Br Lib News 1:115 Ag '14 20w

"Painstaking and exhaustive study. The public and legislative librarian will find the book a veritable vade mecum." M. R. Haines

+ Survey 33:277 D 5 '14 450w

KALEEL, MOUSA J. When I was a boy in Palestine. il *60c (2½c) Lothrop 14-7082

The fifth volume in the "Children of other lands" series. The writer who was born ten miles from Jerusalem tells of his boyhood at Ram Allah; of his home life and its customs; of school days; of the religions of Palestine; of his race and its history; and of reminders of Bible times which make Palestine a land of memories. He closes with impressions of America which are mainly of college and its training, both physical and mental, and of the America that develops "grandstand" stars who play the leading rôles in this country's arena.

"For older children, and useful in high-school grades in connection with Bible study."

+ A L A Bkl 10:418 Je '14

"His narrative is full of life and vigor, but the great element of value is the frequent mention of features that present interesting sidelights upon Bible study."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 140w

Nation 99:695 D 10 '14 30w

KALES, ALBERT MARTIN. Unpopular government in the United States. il $1.50 (3c) Univ. of Chicago press 14-4241

The author defines unpopular government as "a government of the few, by the few, and for the few, at the expense and against the wish of the many." Part 1 of his book is taken up with the explanation of how this form of government got a foothold in the United States against all the precautions taken to prevent such a happening. Part 2 discusses some of the remedies that have been applied—the primary, the initiative and referendum, and the recall, the commission form of government, etc. These have proved inefficient and have even tended to aggravate the evil. The author's own remedy is the short ballot.

"An effective and convincing argument for the short ballot. Covers much the same field as Childs' 'Short-ballot principles'; small libraries having Childs will not need this."

+ A L A Bkl 10:356 My '14

"The work throughout displays exceptional powers of political insight and constitutional discernment." H: J. Ford

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:514 Ag 14 170w

"Tersely written and pertinent book." C. L. King

+ Ann Am Acad 53:329 My '14 470w

"His book was meant to be read as a whole, and it deserves to be so read, but the omission of an index is not altogether excusable." W. F. Dodd

+ J Pol Econ 22:1018 D '14 950w

"His theme is developed with a reformer's zeal, and it must be added, with a lawyer's prolixity. The most original part of Mr. Kales's book is his examination of various proposed methods of dethroning the 'politocrats.'"

+ Nation 98:436 Ap 16 '14 270w

+ R of Rs 49:755 Je '14 170w

Reviewed by Graham Taylor

+ Survey 32:550 Ag 29 '14 470w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. William James and Henri Bergson. *$1.50 (3½c) Univ. of Chicago press 14-18573

A study of the contrasting theories of life of these two modern philosophers. The difference between the two the author says, "turns on what is ultimately a philosophic prevision of the future and a philosophic summation of the past. James's theory of life seems to me to face forward, to be an expression of the age's underlying and hence vaguely felt and unformulated tendencies. Bergson's theory of life sums itself up as a consummation of the philosophic tradition, restated in the modes of thought and harmonized with the modes of feeling of the age." (Preface) The six chapters, thru each of which the comparison is carried, are: Radical empiricism and the philosophic tradition; James, Bergson, and the "new realism"; The method of intuition and the pragmatic method; The revelations of intuition and the discoveries of pragmatism; Divinity—its nature and its rôle in human affairs; The origin and destiny of man.

Boston Transcript p9 F 6 '15 820w

"An admirable presentation of the philosophy of two of the most influential thinkers of the age."

+ Ind 80:245 N 16 '14 50w

"An instructive study."

+ N Y Times 20:25 Ja 24 '15 170w

"Dr. Kallen's book is evidently far from being a neutral comparison of two philosophic doctrines in a perfectly dry light; it is, in effect, an examination of one doctrine in the light of another. As such it is all the more a contribution to current philosophical discussion; as such it is all the more interesting to the layman. Dr. Kallen as a writer possesses something of that brilliant clearness that belonged so notably to the man whom he owns as his master in philosophy—William James. He has written a genuinely readable book."

+ No Am 201:94 Ja '15 1200w

"An able study."

+ Spec 113:933 D 26 '14 50w

KANDINSKY, WASSILY. Art of spiritual harmony; tr. with an introd. by M. T. H. Sadler. il $1.75 Houghton (Eng ed 14-16958)

In this work "Kandinsky, leader of the new art movement in Munich, cheerily attempts to write down his philosophy. Whether he succeeds or not must be left to the judgment of philosophers. He does, however, make perfectly clear to even the most casual reader what every artist of the slightest importance knows—that art is not nature or imitation of nature, that it is constructive and springs from an inner necessity for expression. He goes farther than most artists in declaring that in a work of art 'the more obvious the separation from nature, the more likely is the inner meaning to be pure and unhampered.'"—N Y Times

"There should be small quarrel with Kandinsky's definitions, as descriptive of a certain type of art. As a general aesthetic, however, the doctrine has manifest defects."

+ Nation 99:588 N 12 '14 3100w

"Filled with the picturesque correspondences that spring promptly to an artist's mind, verbose but in no manner outrageous or even eccentric, the book is one to be read quite simply, as one might read the letters of one musician to another, getting intuitively at the thought back of occasional technical phrases."

+ N Y Times 19:500 N 15 '14 650w

R of Rs 50:634 N '14 160w

KAUFFMAN, REGINALD WRIGHT. Spider's web. il $1.35 Moffat 13-23735

"The Spider's web," Mr. Kauffman declares, is the last of a cycle of four novels beginning with 'The house of bondage,' in which he has tried 'to put before his readers the theory that the superimposing of one human being's will, or the will of any group of human beings, upon any other's, is the great crime.' . . . Luke Huber, the hero of the book, is 'a man that comes to see the sin of compulsion exerting itself against humanity in all the powers that conduct modern society'; but though this is what the author has intended to portray him as seeing, it is the money power which is more prominent than any other. From the Wall street office of 'The man'—never named, but called by various persons 'the modern Napoleon' and 'the King'—radiate the threads in which every character in the novel is more or less entangled."—N Y Times

"This crude and melodramatic anarchism is too emotional to be impressive, and too biased to make any serious appeal to the rational mind." W: M. Payne

— Dial 56:26 Ja 1 '14 550w

"The present story lacks the positive appeal of its predecessors. There are only two or three bits of nastiness in the book."

— Nation 97:618 D 25 '13 530w

"Mr. Kauffman's book is interesting. We do not think that even though many of his statements be accepted as fact, he will make many converts to his ultimate theories."

+ — N Y Times 18:739 D 14 '13 900w

KAWAKAMI, KIYOSHI KARL. Asia at the door. $1.50 Revell 14-2916

A study of the Japanese question in continental United States, Hawaii and Canada. "Professor Kawakami makes in this interesting work a plea for his countrymen with regard to the emigration question. Every statesman and publicist should read a work which is calmly and dispassionately written and states in a clear way every argument to prove the reasonableness of Asia before the door that is being opened into her house. The whole field of Japanese immigration is covered—California, Hawaii, and Canada being the main seats of white population whose advantages Japan wishes to share. He justifies the wish to the best of his abilities. He attempts to sweep away all racial, social, and political obstacles to a coalition of America and Asia." (Lit D)

"Admirably supplements Gulick."

+ A L A Bkl 11:10 S '14

"[This volume and Gulick's] (for one supplements the other) should be read by all forward-looking Americans, and especially by those whose official position gives them the opportunity to be of service in meeting this great world-problem, in the solution of which America must take a leading rôle." P. J. Treat

+ — Dial 56:418 My 16 '14 450w

"All must acknowledge the good feeling which animates the writer, the fund of knowledge and experience which he has brought into service expended in setting out so frankly and tactfully the light in which Japan views the exclusiveness of foreign peoples."

+ Lit D 48:1127 My 9 '14 150w

"Possessing an intimate knowledge of both Americans and Japanese, the author has had unequalled opportunities for making a first-hand study of the facts, free from bias and prejudice."

+ N Y Times 19:307 Jl 12 '14 1100w

"Just the sort of book that should be written and widely read on American-Japanese relations."

+ R of Rs 49:367 Mr '14 120w

"This study is written with great moderation and good feeling."

+ Spec 113:504 O 10 '14 100w

KAYE, GEORGE WILLIAM CLARKSON. X rays; an introduction to the study of Röntgen rays. il $1.75 Longmans A14-2892

"Dr. Kaye tells us in the preface that this is not a treatise on the rays, but an attempt to give 'a notion of the historical trend of events' from Prof. Röntgen's discovery in 1895 down to the end of last year, and we gather, further, that it is particularly addressed to the medical profession."—Ath

A L A Bkl 11:159 D '14

"There is, a good deal that is practical, and on the whole we think a medical man with an elementary knowledge of electricity would be able to glean from it what apparatus he should use or avoid in working with the X-rays. That most of the contrivances here recommended are English, and that little notice is taken of the work of French or German manufacturers, is perhaps natural. With this limitation the book is singularly complete."

+ Ath 1914.2:796 Je 6 750w

"A connected account of the latest results in this branch of physics by one who has made several important contributions to it can not fail to be welcome. Dr. Kaye has succeeded in producing a very useful summary of the latest results together with a brief account of the historical development of the subject and numerous practical details which should be useful to any one working with X-rays. The book contains a number of excellent illustrations. A few minor errors have crept in." H. A. Wilson

+ — Science n s 40:351 S 4 '14 250w

"Clearly written book. Dr. Kaye's work is neither recondite nor mathematical, and should be of great service to medical men and readers who take a general interest in the progress of science."

— Spec 113:62 Jl 11 '14 70w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA. Three Furlongers (Eng title, Three against the world). il $1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 14-11042

The three Furlongers who stood together against the world were brothers and sister, Leonard, Nigel and Janet. The story opens with the return of Nigel who at nineteen was sentenced to three years imprisonment. Prison has wrought changes in Nigel's character, he has grown at once older and younger—childish. He feels out of touch with the world and only in the presence of Tony Strife, a shy, young girl, does he feel at home. In his few meetings with Tony a deep love is awakened, but when she finds out who he is she turns from him in horror. Janet, too, is unhappy in her love. In a spirit of self sacrifice she gives all he asks to the man who loves her and then lives thru the bitterness of seeing him go from her to the girl who attracts him because of her innocence—the girl, as it happens, being the same Tony Strife whom Nigel had vainly loved. In attempting to avenge his sister's wrong Leonard loses his life, and the story ends with the departure of Nigel and Janet for London where he is to win distinction with his violin. The two still stand together against the world and so, in a sense, triumph over it, even in the face of defeat.

Ath 1914.1:sup742 My 23 200w

"Miss Kaye-Smith writes so warmly and vividly and with such imaginative conviction that the book is compelling, even in its crudest moments. She has achieved realism, if not reality, and the tragic pitch, if not tragedy itself. It is hard to lay one's finger precisely upon the shortcomings of the book: it seems a little sketchy, its emotions not carefully prepared for, its tragedy not always artistically conveyed; perhaps the whole deficiency is just a general inferiority to greater realists like Hardy."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 480w

"Her story is written with such sincerity of feeling and appreciation of moral beauty and contains so much human truth that the author deserves warm commendation. For she has written a good story clothed with these qualities, that are not as common in fiction as might be wished, and has given it also dramatic moments and strong emotional tension."

+ N Y Times 19:399 S 27 '14 370w

Reviewed by N. W. Sheldon
 Pub W 86:1291 O 17 '14 370w
 + Spec 112:1040 Je 20 '14 230w

KEARTON, CHERRY. Wild life across the world; with introd. by Theodore Roosevelt. il *$5 Doran (Eng ed 14-30086)

"Mr. Kearnton's reputation as a photographer of wild life is world wide. In this handsome volume he tells us how and where he has obtained some of the films and photographs that delight naturalists and thrill the devotees of the cinematograph shows. It is in itself a striking record of unflagging endurance, immense patience, and almost incredible intrepidity. . . . India, Borneo, the Yellowstone park, and, above all, British East Africa—that zoo with all the animals let loose—are all laid under contribution; and the famous Kearnton-Jones expedition, when leopards, zebras, cheetahs, giraffes, rhinoceroses, and a lioness were lassoed and coolly photographed, is fully described."—Ath

"Chiefly noteworthy for its many remarkable illustrations."

+ A L A Bkl 10:226 F '14

"It is one of the most important studies in natural history that the Kearnton brothers have produced."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup437 O 18 80w

"But wonderful as they are, many of the pictures in this book, having been taken by a cinematographic machine, lack the sharpness of outline and perfection of composition which distinguish other photographs of wild life by the author."

+ — Ath 1913,2:530 N 8 880w

"In novelty of subject, the photographing of savage beasts, not in zoological gardens, but in their native wilds, and in attractiveness of illustration by virtue of the success of the undertaking, it must be accorded a high rank. The printer and binder have admirably aided the author in making it a book of surpassing beauty, an ornament to the bookshelf that will appeal with equal force to the naturalist, the student and the hunter of big game, all of whom will find between its covers much that will appeal to their varying tastes."

+ Boston Transcript p10 D 6 '13 550w

"The text of the book is really of more interest than the illustrations. There are a few things in the book which might have been corrected when the proofs were read."

+ — Spec 111:sup948 D 6 '13 550w

KEAYS, MRS. HERSILIA A. MITCHELL (COPP). Mrs. Brand. *$1.25 Small 14-150

"Though it is Mrs. Brand whose name appears upon the title page of this new novel she is by no means its most interesting or its most attractive character. For Mr. Overholt is the one and little 'Chrys' the other. . . . Mr. Overholt is a clergyman who has chosen his profession principally because it enables him, 'a born orator, to let his genius soar and watch it, intoxicated with admiration at its flights,' thus affording an 'adequate scope for his emotions,' emotions which, while he was under their sway, he himself believed to be perfectly sincere."—N Y Times

"The book skirts along the margin of melodrama and frankly is too much overdone to carry conviction." F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:325 My '14 250w

"A well planned story that suggests a broader field for church activity."

+ — Boston Transcript p25 Mr 18 '14 300w

"In spite of its occasional sentimentality, it is well planned and crisply written, and presents two or three characters drawn with unusual skill."

+ — Nation 98:468 Ap 23 '14 170w

"It is indeed the life-likeness of most of its characters which gives 'Mrs. Brand' its strongest claim to praise."

+ — N Y Times 19:100 Mr 1 '14 650w

KEELING, FREDERIC. Child labour in the United Kingdom. 7s 6d P. S. King & son, London

"The conference of the International association for labour legislation held at Zürich, September, 1912, requested a series of national reports on child labor, to be presented to a special international commission. This volume contains the work of the subcommittee appointed by the British section to draw up the report on child labor in the United Kingdom."

"The report is far less comprehensive than its title. It practically excludes child labor which is subject to the Factory and Mines acts and is 'a study of the administration of the law, rather than of the facts which necessitate the adoption of regulation.' Considering the familiarity of these facts, 'it seemed to the committee that it would be more valuable to investigate the practical steps which can be taken to deal with child labour, rather than to elaborate further the inquiries into its character and effects.'—Am Econ R

"The whole report is an admirable contribution." E. L. Wells

+ Am Econ R 4:659 S '14 750w

"This is an authoritative work. It would be hard to find a more carefully elaborated study of the development and administration of the law relating to child labor in any country."

+ Ann Am Acad 53:313 My '14 130w

"A lucid and exhaustive study."

+ Hibbert J 12:695 Ap '14 40w

"The report embodies the work of a large number of volunteer investigators and is a model of painstaking editing. Charts, schedules, tables, texts of by-laws, indexes and a bibliography afford the student every available aid for understanding a most intricate, difficult and discouraging subject—the confused and incoherent mass of British legislation concerning child labor." Florence Kelley

+ Survey 32:201 My 16 '14 350w

KEIM, ALBERT, and LUMET, LOUIS. Charles Dickens; tr. by F. Taber Cooper. (Great men) il *75c (2c) Stokes 14-8102

A biography of Charles Dickens, with notes on his novels, written by two Frenchmen. The book is illustrated with portraits, pictures of houses made famous by Dickens, and reproductions of some of the illustrations from his works.

"Its French origin is unmistakable, for it is episode and disjointed, its pages are liberally besprinkled with exclamation points and question marks, and it is rhapsodic in its appreciation of Dickens and enthusiastic in its claims for him as an artist and reformer." E F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p25 Ap 29 '14 450w

"A valuable addition to 'The great men' series. There is little new in the volume save the few references to Dickens' visit to Paris, and his estimates of Victor Hugo, Lamartine and George Sand."

+ Cath World 100:116 O '14 50w

KEIM, ALBERT, and LUMET, LOUIS. Louis Pasteur; tr. by F. Taber Cooper. (Great men) il *75c (2c) Stokes 14-7888

The biography is written by two Frenchmen who speak of Pasteur as "one of the glories of France." They trace his life thru boyhood, and student days, tell of his early scientific experiments and describe the discovery that made his name known in every country. The volume is illustrated and there is a good bibliography and a brief index.

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 9 '14 450w

+ Cath World 99:830 S '14 260w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON, ed. American boys' workshop; each subject by an expert. il *$1.25 (1½c) McKay 14-14780

The matter contained in this book has appeared, the editor states, in "The American boy," but it has been re-edited and arranged for this volume. It is a book that tells boys how to make things, and its chapters are grouped under the following heads: The outdoor boy in summer; The aquatic boy; The outdoor boy at home; The outdoor boy in winter; The indoor American boy; Miscellaneous helps; Rope work every boy should know. The book is well illustrated.

KELLAND, CLARENCE B., ed.—Continued.

"There is an abundance of interesting and useful information in this book."

+ N Y Times 19:419 O 4 '14 100w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Mark 1 Tidd. il *$1 Harper 13-21742

"Clarence B. Kelland has the courage to make his hero a fat boy. He is remarkably level headed, quickly gets the upper hand of the other boys in the village, including the narrator, and thwarts the machinations of sundry grown up evildoers."—N Y Sun

"Full of good sort of fun and tricks, at no time pernicious."

+ A L A Bkl 10:248 F '14

"The book makes one think of the inimitable 'Diary of a real boy,' for it is told by one of the boy characters who has a big propensity for slang and humour." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:446 D '13 90w

"It is an amusing book, that older readers may enjoy also."

+ N Y Sun p5 N 8 '13 60w

"A jolly story."

+ N Y Times 18:649 N 23 '13 70w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Mark 1 Tidd in the backwoods. il *$1 (1½c) Harper 14-15187

In this story Mr. Kelland takes his fat-boy hero, with his three friends Tallow and Plunk and Binney, up into the Michigan woods where they spend a summer as the guests of Binney's uncle. Mark, for all his slowness, has the instincts of a detective and his clever wits are the means of foiling the two agents of a copper company that is trying to get possession of Uncle Hieronymous's land.

"Wholly delightful." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:448 D '14 190w

KELLER, GOTTFRIED. Village Romeo and Juliet; tr. by A. C. Bahlmann. *$1 (3c) Scribner 14-5466

A story so simple that the reader, when he has closed the book, may be at a loss to account for the hold it has upon him. The story is like its classic namesake only in its central situation. The boy and girl lovers of the story are the children of two farmers who have quarreled over a piece of land. Marriage is impossible, and forced to choose between separation and death, they do not hesitate before the choice. The story is translated from a volume known as "Seldwyla people," which Nietzsche called one of the four masterpieces of German prose. Edith Wharton in her introduction says of the story that in its completeness it ranks with Balzac's "La grande Bretesche," and Tolstoy's "Death of Ivan Ilich."

+ Ind 79:250 Ag 17 '14 50w

"The little story is hauntingly beautiful, for Keller had the poet's vision, and saw things simply, and at the same time veiled with that witchery which is denied to the eye of the ordinary mortal. And he had also the gift of a simple, flowing prose style which translates his poetic vision into a tale that is tender, noble, moving, and, above all, beautiful."

+ N Y Times 19:142 Mr 29 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 49:626 My '14 270w

KELLEY, EDGAR STILLMAN. Chopin, the composer. il *$2 Schirmer 13-25409

This work on Chopin is, according to its subtitle, devoted to a study of "his structural art and its influence on contemporaneous music." The author treats his subject in the following chapters: Need for a revaluation; National elements; The exponent of the improved piano-forte; Virtuosity idealized; Figuration plus inspiration; Novel phases of lyric forms; Unusual combinations; The revitalized rondo; Fresh paths through old forests; Amplification of the sonata principle; Unique structural problems; Embellishments; Orchestral experiments; Universality; A world force.

"In the field of musical literature Mr. Kelley's volume on Chopin is the most original and valuable book of the year; in some respects, moreover, it is the most important of all the monographs on this great and popular composer."

+ Nation 97:546 D 4 '13 850w

"His expression is sometimes exuberant, and some may find that he goes further than a sober view would warrant; but his book is interesting and suggestive, and will help to a better understanding of the subject."

+ — N Y Times 18:741 D 14 '13 260w

R of Rs 49:371 Mr '14 70w

KELLEY, MRS. FLORENCE. Modern industry in relation to the family, health, education, morality. $1 (4c) Longmans 14-9104

Four lectures, revised and enlarged, given in 1913 at the Teachers' college, Columbia university. "Mrs. Kelley has devoted many years to the study of those problems in connection with modern industry which are discussed in this book. Perhaps no one in this country is more thoroughly informed as to their practical aspects. It is with full information as to the conditions of home life among factory workers and their bearings on health, education, and morality that Mrs. Kelley writes." (R of Rs)

+ A L A Bkl 11:99 N '14

"The chapters leave a feeling of incompleteness and uncertainty in the mind of the reader, which is unjustifiable, particularly in a book sufficiently small in volume to be made specific and succinct."

+ — Ann Am Acad 56:176 N '14 140w

+ Boston Transcript p10 Je 6 '14 100w

+ — Int J Ethics 25:272 Ja '15 190w

J Pol Econ 22:922 N '14 530w

"Her treatment of her subjects is far more interesting and valuable than any merely doctrinaire discussion."

+ R of Rs 49:755 Je '14 110w

"It is a most succinct, specific and condensed indictment of present-day industry. It presents, all the more convincingly, because implicitly, the direction of true progress. No president, director, or general manager will have a real estimate of what his cost statements are likely to show in the ten years succeeding this year, unless he reads this book—reads it through and ponders it." R. G. Valentine

+ Survey 32:345 Je 27 '14 450w

KELLCOTT, WILLIAM ERSKINE. Textbook of general embryology. il *$2.50 (2½c) Holt 13-17104

This book aims "to give the student an idea of the present-day point of view of biologists towards the various problems of which it treats, to arouse his interest, and to direct his steps towards the fuller expositions to be found in contemporary literature. An introductory chapter upon ontogeny is followed by excellent chapters on the cell and cell-division, the germ cells, and the process of maturation or meiosis." —Nature

Boston Transcript p10 D 22 '13 430w

"A complete and very modern presentation."

+ Educ R 47:310 Mr '14 30w

"Scholarly work based upon personal research, extensive reading, and philosophical thought. An admirable presentation of some of the fundamental problems of biology. The style is cursive but somewhat indirect, and on the whole difficult to read."

+ — Nation 98:549 My 7 '14 520w

"This is an excellent book to place in the hands of intermediate students of zoology. If the hypercritical reader regards it as somewhat scrappy and superficial, it must be answered that this is unavoidable in a book of its size dealing with so large a subject. The book does not pose as a work of reference. A few obvious slips will, no doubt, be corrected in a new edition. The book is excellently written, and clearly illustrated; it fills an obvious gap in the teaching literature of zoology, and it deserves to have a wide circulation amongst students of that science."

+ — Nature 93:106 Ap 2 '14 330w

KELLNER, LEON; ARNOLD, MME. PAULA;
and DELISLE, ARTHUR L. Austria of the Austrians and Hungary of the Hungarians.
(Countries and peoples ser.) il *$1.50 Scribner 14-30361

"The country embraced within the limits of the dual monarchy contains such a mixture of races and politics that it has been found necessary to apportion the sections of this composite book to three writers. For the general survey of the political and historical circumstances of Austria-Hungary, Prof. L. Kellner, of the University of Czernowitz, is responsible, while, in the section of the book strictly confined to Austria, he and Madame Paula Arnold jointly write. The description of Hungary is the work of Mr. Arthur L. Delisle, a well-known resident in Budapest, moving both in literary and journalistic circles."—Ath

"Not only gives much information but also descriptions of the life of the people."

+ A L A Bkl 10:356 My '14

Ath 1913,2:sup436 O 18 100w

"The account of Austria-Hungary before us deserves high praise. We hope the book will soon go to a second edition, and when it does some small points in the indexes and the text should be corrected."

+ — Ath 1914,1:86 Ja 17 1250w

"A serviceable work of the popular type, which will answer the needs of many small libraries and will supplement Bovill, Drage and 'Story of the nations' histories in larger ones."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:261 N '14 60w

KEMP, HARRY. Cry of youth. *$1.25 Kennerley
14-19079

Many of Harry Kemp's poems reflect his own experiences—at sea, in the breadline, on the hobo trail, in the harvest field. They are not a mere record of what he has seen and done; they tell what he has felt and give voice to his philosophy. Among them are a number of biblical and religious themes: Joseph's lament; Jesus, brother of Jesus; Nicodemus; A tramp's confession; and The conquerors.

"It is a collection of unusual accomplishment and distinction. Mr. Kemp has a way of his own in viewing life; he is frank in his social sympathies; he has chosen the experiences and adventures which average humanity prefer to take no notice of; but I do not think that in any of these things he has failed to come to the surface of our conventional existence without some spiritual light shining, or some message to touch us into sympathy and respect." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 16 '15 530w

"A sensitive, strong poetic spirit is Harry Kemp's."

+ — Ind 81:29 Ja 4 '15 250w

"A collection of lyrics that establishes Mr. Kemp's right to a place in the foremost ranks of the 'younger choir.'"

+ R of Rs 51:117 Ja '15 230w

KENDRICK, EDWIN WILLIAM. Practical sailing and motor-boating. il *$2 McBride,
Nast & Co. 13-14367

Mr. Kendrick "explains at length, and very clearly, everything you will want to know about the puzzling motor in your boat, going fully into the principles of vibration and ignition. There is a chapter on navigation and seamanship, another on nautical astronomy, and still another on the rules of the road at sea. About sailing boats the author writes in an equally detailed and authoritative manner. The final chapter is about yacht clubs—on choosing one's club and how to join it."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 10:141 D '13

"The book is clear and fully justifies the designation of practical in the title."

+ N Y Sun p6 Je 14 '13 120w

"A handy volume for all lovers of big or little boats, and whether you are a yachtman of experience or a novice with a brand-new boat on your hands, you will find the book interesting and instructive."

+ N Y Times 18:572 O 19 '13 180w

KENNA, EDWARD DUDLEY. Railway misrule.
*$1.25 Duffield 14-4566

"This interesting and well-written little book contains a review of the railroad situation from the days of the Granger movement until the present time, and offers a constructive program for the elimination of railroad difficulties. As Mr. Kenna sees the problem it is essentially one of finance. The transportation machine is deficient because it has not kept pace with the ever-increasing traffic. The author's solution is a repeal of the Sherman law in so far as it has been made to apply to railroads. Allow the strong roads to absorb their weak competitors. Make a compact system with a monopoly for each district, and cut out the large wastes caused by competition. Route the through traffic over the line best equipped to handle it expeditiously and economically and allow the poorly located and poorly built lines to handle local business only. The losses on the latter would be offset by the greater net revenue from the well equipped lines."—Engin Rec

"All of Mr. Kenna's suggestions, however, are interesting and deserve careful consideration by students of transportation problems. The book is written in a clear style and the author has a good grasp of his subject." W. J. Cunningham

+ — Engin Rec 69:458 Ap 18 '14 600w

Nation 100:58 Ja 14 '15 280w

"Mr. Kenna argues well from his standpoint, and makes an appeal to general readers by an attractive style."

+ N Y Times 19:187 Ap 12 '14 500w

KENNEDY, CHARLES RANN. The idol-breaker. il *$1.25 (5½c) Harper 14-2934

The characters in this play are Adam, a blacksmith; Ellen, his wife; Naomi, a woman of the highroad; three citizens of Little Boswell; and Jake, a wastrel. The action is played out in the smithy between the hours of four and half past six on a summer morning. As are all of Mr. Kennedy's plays, this one is symbolical. Adam is the worker who is awakening to a sense of freer and fuller life; Naomi is the spirit of freedom; Ellen and the others of Little Boswell, typify respectable conventionality; Jake is the wastrel who slinks in the path of freedom, attempting to pervert and destroy her followers.

"Not pleasant reading and not equal to his earlier work."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:312 Ap '14

"The work is big rather than beautiful."

+ Cath World 99:541 Jl '14 230w

"The symbolism of Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy's latest play, 'The idol-breaker,' is confused. His theme is freedom, and an occasional noble meaning flashes out from the murky cloud of metaphor in which the author chooses to veil his ideas; but the roughness of the dialect and lack of clearly-cut images will prove stumbling blocks to the reader, even tho sympathetic to the purpose of the iconoclast."

+ — Ind 77:336 Mr 16 '14 70w

"It is marked by uncommon literary ability, vivid characterization, and intense if not always profoundly philosophical earnestness. In many ways it is a notable addition to the rapidly growing list of the modern printed drama, and it might even be successful on the stage if actors capable of interpreting it in the right spirit could be found. It has a message, and delivers it potently. But it has the defects of its virtues. In his zeal for the cause of the proletariat and the brotherhood of man, Mr. Kennedy seems to ignore the fact that in the social economy there are productive agencies besides physical labor."

KENNEDY, CHARLES RANN—Continued.

+ — Nation 98:340 Mr 26 '14 1050w

"Not a parlor play, but one for the lusty stage, and for an audience willing to work with their minds and to forget the dearest of their conventions for the sake of hearing dead language made quick once more and feeling the impact of genuine convictions."

+ N Y Times 19:147 Mr 29 '14 1350w

"The best thing Mr. Kennedy has done. In its present state the play is a trifle confusing, for the reader gathers the impression of a deeper symbolism moving underneath that which is obviously intended."

+ — R of Rs 49:501 Ap '14 400w

KENNEDY, J. M. How the war began. *50c
10 (1c) Doran (Eng ed 14-22342)

"This little volume gives in a convenient form a great number of the despatches which appeared in the White Paper dealing with the origin of the present war. . . . It is unfortunate that it was published a day or two too soon to include the telegrams which showed the mistake made by the German ambassador in London, and that its author, Mr. Kennedy, was unable to comment on the way in which the German government has attempted to mislead foreigners with regard to the efforts of Sir Edward Grey. . . . To Mr. Kennedy's work Mr. W. L. Courtney has contributed an introductory chapter in which he has traced, in excellent language, the main facts about our 'splendid isolation' and its results, and has dealt with the origin of the Entente, and the way in which Germany was encircled. Prussia's aggressive policy and the trouble over Morocco are carefully analyzed by Mr. Courtney; while in the text of the book will be found most of the dates and facts which English readers will require when they wish to refresh their memories. . . . The book endeavours to show why the German emperor considered the moment favourable for war."—Ath

"Had the book been kept back for a week, it could have been improved. We learn as we go to press that a new edition will contain the story of the White Paper."

+ — Ath 1914,2:241 S 5 650w

Reviewed by E. B. Krehbiel
Dial 57:379 N 16 '14 150w

Reviewed by Carlton Hayes
+ Pol Sci Q 29:702 D '14 30w

"We recommend this little book to our readers as a very useful work of reference in matters which already seem ancient history—the beginnings of the war."

+ Spec 113:331 S 5 '14 580w

KENNEDY, J. M. Imperial America. *$3 Pott

"Mr. Kennedy is well known as one of our ablest publicists. More than two-thirds of the present book is unexpectedly a history of the United States from the earliest colonial days to President Wilson. . . . He is very impatient with those politicians who proclaim that war is impossible between the States and England because of kinship; competition for markets or even for territory in South America may yet lead to strife." (Sat R) "He reveals constantly that he has not penetrated below the surface of our national development, and that he is constitutionally incapable of understanding, often even of perceiving, the existence of the American spirit as it is manifest in the masses of the people, in national movements, in individual character, in regional and community life." (N Y Times)

Boston Transcript p22 F 3 '15 450w

Ind 81:176 F 1 '15 50w

"These introductory pages are written in a most deplorable spirit—the kind of spirit that is far more likely to produce war than even coveted lands and commercial prizes, the kind of spirit that has set the torch to the European conflagration that is now raging. In the body of his book he reviews the history of this country, always with the aim in view of proving that its tendencies, from the first, have been toward imperialism. And he says much therein that it would be good for our souls to read and digest."

+ — N Y Times 19:523 N 29 '14 330w

"If it contains little that is not in the standard American writers, it is clear and concise, and easily establishes his thesis that the United States, judged by the test of ability to expand its territories, is one of the most successful imperial States of modern times."

+ — Sat R 118:54 Jl 11 '14 300w

KENNEDY, J. M. War lord. *50c Duffield

A book made up of selections from the speeches, letters and telegrams of the Kaiser.

Ind 81:99 Ja 18 '15 100w

"Handy and interesting collection of brief extracts."

+ Spec 113:469 O 3 '14 100w

KENNEDY, SINCLAIR. Pan-Angles; a consideration of the federation of the seven English-speaking nations. *$1.75 Longmans
14-20746

"The author suggests that the English-speaking peoples, the mother country, the colonies, and the United States of America, should form a great federation so that 'the control of the world and the self-control of our own citizens will again be in the certain care of the Pan-Angles.' This federation is expected to come as a result of a spontaneous popular movement such as that which federated the American colonies into the United States and the British colonies into the unions of Canada, Australia and South Africa. . . . The book suggests no definite imperial constitution, and the author confines his discussion to a plea for closer union and an analysis of the causes which make it both possible and necessary."—Ind

"This thoughtful treatise is most fortunate in one respect: its speculations have taken the wrong turning. Mr. Kennedy, we fear, leaves his Pan-Angle federation a mere pious aspiration."

+ — Ath 1914,2:447 O 31 730w

"Exaggerates outside racial dangers and minimizes interior national differences."

+ — Ind 80:210 N 9 '14 23w

Ind 80:288 N 23 '14 500w

"Like most books with a thesis, it is three times too long."

+ — Nation 99:692 D 10 '14 800w

"Mr. Kennedy's thesis is a plausible one, and it is worked out with great patience and in a very candid spirit. But the underlying assumption is, we believe, radically mistaken, as well as essentially brutal."

+ — N Y Times 19:503 N 15 '14 550w

Spec 113:534 O 17 '14 50w

Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 1100w

Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 300w

KENT, WILLIAM. Investigating an industry: a scientific diagnosis of the diseases of management; with an introd. by H: L. Gantt. *$1 Wiley
14-485

Analyzes the "troubles of a whole industry—not of the factory alone, which is generally the limit of the province of the specialist in scientific management, but also of the selling department and the general administration. The whole method of analysis is given, working up finally to a functional committee system, operating not only in the factory, where such committees are not by any means new, but also in the board of directors. The book is not written with the purpose of outlining the details of highly efficient factory or selling-force management but rather to give executives an idea of the wide scope that can be taken by scientific investigation of the needs of an industry. It should be a stimulus for such men to undertake like studies in their own plants."—Engin Rec

"Mr. Kent's little book is interesting as an essay on a much-talked-of subject."

+ Elec World 63:1355 Je 6 '14 170w

Engin N 71:387 F 12 '14 350w

"An interesting story of the work of an 'industrial doctor.'"

+ Engin Rec 69:375 Mr 28 '14 150w

Nature 93:632 Ag 20 '14 350w

N Y Times 19:288 Je 21 '14 60w

KENYON, CHARLES. Kindling: a comedy drama in three acts. il *75c (2½c) Double-day 14-1372

This is the first volume published in the Drama league series of plays. It is a play of tenement house life telling the story of a young woman who, convinced by her husband that children born in such surroundings are handicapped and that to bring a child to life in such surroundings is a crime, steals in order that they may go together to the country where her unborn child will have a chance.

"Well written and interesting."

+ A L A Bkl 10:272 Mr '14

KEPPEL, FREDERICK PAUL. Columbia. (Am. college and university ser.) il *$1.50 Oxford 14-6834

A monograph on the history, organization, life and influence of Columbia college. "Dean Keppel has made a very readable book, abounding in interesting allusion, quotation and anecdote which treats Columbia as a human, growing institution, with all the weaknesses and liabilities to err which characterize that which is human and which grows. In doing this he presents a very vivid and at times a fascinating picture of the active life and labor of what has become, during the past generation, the most noteworthy body of productive scholars in the western world." (Educ R)

"Dean Keppel's book adds to its array of facts enough of anecdotal and human interest to make it readable."

+ A L A Bkl 11:56 O '14

+ Dial 57:301 O 16 '14 500w

"We congratulate Dean Keppel upon this really excellent book descriptive of his alma mater, and the best that we can hope for the series which it introduces is that the volumes to follow will treat their several subjects with as much adequacy and human interest."

+ Educ R 47:95 Je '14 1850w

+ Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 100w

"On the whole, the personal element adds interest to the tale, without impairing its veracity."

+ Nation 99:22 Jl 2 '14 270w

"Not only carefully written but very interesting."

+ Outlook 107:564 Jl 4 '14 300w

Spec 112:963 Je 6 '14 130w

KERSCHENSTEINER, GEORG MICHAEL ANTON. Schools and the nation: auth. tr. by C. K. Ogden; with an introd. by Viscount Haldane. il *$1.60 Macmillan A14-2359

"This book is a collection of recent speeches and lectures of the Director of Education in Munich. Dr. Kerschesteiner preaches the gospel of what is known to the education world as 'Vocational' training. His views, backed by many years of experience, are especially welcome now that thoughtful educationists have become convinced of the folly of mere memorizing. . . . Dr. Kerschesteiner's main idea is that every child before ending his or her eighteenth year of life shall have learned some vocation in life, unless engaged in higher studies. His first step is with the elementary school, and the continuation school is to carry on the work."

schools of practical work' by substituting where possible methods based on practical work for the present method based on books. After fourteen the continuation school is to carry on the work."

—Sat R

A L A Bkl 11:100 N '14

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 8 '14 150w

"Exceptionally important series of papers."

+ Educ R 48:210 S '14 70w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:914 Jl '14 70w

+ Nation 99:320 S 10 '14 270w

"This is a book of exceptional interest for all who are engaged in the work of education and for those who are seriously concerned with the future social and economical well-being of the children of the nation."

+ Nature 93:505 Jl 16 '14 280w

"All who care for education or profess to understand it must read this book. It is the history of a great attempt and still greater achievement."

+ Sat R 118:179 Ag 8 '14 300w

KETCHAM, VICTOR ALVIN. Theory and practice of argumentation and debate. *$1.25 (1c) Macmillan 14-9947

"The object of this book is to furnish practical directions for the preparation and presentation of oral and written arguments." It is adapted for use as a text-book in college classes in Argumentation and debate. Part 1, on The practice of argumentation and debate, takes up: The proposition; Analyzing the proposition; Evidence; Constructing the brief; Constructing the argument; Rebuttal; and Delivering the argument. Part 2, on The theory of argumentation and debate, considers: Inductive argument; Deductive argument; Argument from causal relation; Argument from analogy; Fallacies and Refutation. Examples of argumentative discourse and propositions for debate are given in appendices.

"Ordinary libraries having the Foster book will not need this."

+ A L A Bkl 11:100 N '14

"The material is well chosen and exceptionally well ordered."

+ Educ R 48:210 S '14 40w

Nation 99:322 S 10 '14 50w

"His book is, above all things, practical."

+ Spec 113:367 S 12 '14 450w

KETCHUM, MILO SMITH. Structural engineers' handbook. il *$5 McGraw 14-19038

"This book is a mine of information to anyone dealing with the subjects of which it treats. . . . It is intended to be a source book, not a treatise, and presupposes a knowledge of applied mechanics and the calculation of stresses. The designer and the draftsman will find data and details selected from a wide range of material, much of which has heretofore been accessible to only the few. . . . The author in part 1 includes chapters on retaining walls, bridge abutments and piers, timber bridges and trestles, steel bins, steel grain elevators, etc. Under part 2 he gives 280 pages of tables, a number of which were calculated especially for this book."—Engin Rec

"Any unfavorable opinions about parts of the book are more than offset by its many excellences. No one interested in structural engineering can afford to be without this book." R. Fleming

+ Engin Rec 70:598 N 28 '14 520w

"Exhaustive reference book of a very high order of merit. Much wider in scope than subtitle indicates."

+ Pittsburgh 20:19 Ja '15 100w

KEY, ELLEN KAROLINA SOFIA. Renaissance of motherhood. *$1.25 (3½c) Putnam 14-9789

Three essays which not only draw attention to the social means possible for bringing about a renaissance of motherhood: namely, a study of eugenics, a year of social service as preparation for motherhood, and state pensions for mothers, but show that the real renaissance must come thru the education of the feelings. The author takes a broadly optimistic view of the woman movement; she keeps her gaze fixed steadily upon the triumph which is sure to follow the stress and agitation attending the reactionary's work today. She stoutly opposes the

KEY, ELLEN KAROLINA SOFIA—Continued. ideal of the future which, for the working woman who has not time to educate her child and for the society woman who will not take it, favors turning children over to "born" educators for training. She says this ideal is the death of home life and family.

Reviewed by Raymond Bellamy
Am J Soc 20:541 Ja '15 920w

"The most interesting of the three essays in the book is that on 'Women and morals,' because in this essay she leads up to the problems of the present by a keen analysis of the relation of women to the morality of the world from the dawn of civilization." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 950w

"Much wearisome cant has been written about 'motherhood,' but Ellen Key's handling of the theme seems fresh and wholesome, and it would be difficult to find a more eloquent defence of the traditional family ideal."

+ Nation 100:173 F 11 '15 250w

N Y Times 19:119 O 4 '14 170w

+ Spec 113:209 Ag 8 '11 25w

"There is much confusedness of thought which cannot be excused on the ground of the translator's unfamiliarity with English idiom and the niceties of English vocabulary."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ji 9 '14 420w

KEY, ELLEN KAROLINA SOFIA. Younger <sup>12</sup> generation; tr. from the Swedish by Arthur G. Chater. *$1.50 (3c) Putnam 14-18377

A book addressed to the young people of this generation, who are fortunate, the author thinks, in having been born in an age that is rich in ideas and problems. The great gift of the age to the younger generation is "the hope of a new society and a higher humanity." Eight papers make up the contents of the book: What the age offers and expects of youth; Associated activity and self-culture; The peace problem; Youth, woman and antimilitarism; "Class badges"; The children's charter; Recreative culture; The few and the many. The last, which is the longest and most serious contribution in the book, is a discussion of possible developments under a socialist state.

A L A Bkl 11:100 N '14

Reviewed by G. B. Donlin
Dial 57:250 O 1 '14 1300w
Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 25w

"Some of the chapters deserve to rank as literature."

+ Nation 100:173 F 11 '15 330w

N Y Times 20:47 F 7 '15 200w

"A very thoughtful survey of social agitation since the French revolution."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 430w

KEY, MRS. K. J. Daughter of love. *$1.25 (1½c) Duffield

Born out of wedlock, the heroine of this story yet becomes the wife of a peer, and, by the aid of her lovable qualities and compelling beauty, straightens the unmoral tangle for which her mother's ignorance of the world was responsible. In the end is the long delayed marriage which adds moral justice to a situation that in the course of years had seemed to fare amazingly well without it. In other words, there is no evidence of the activity of Nemesis.

"A rose-coloured extravaganza in which the characters are cheerfully impossible."

— Ath 1913,1:696 Je 28 80w

"The story is told in such a manner that the characters all seem to be cameos of eighteenth century aristocrats rather than snapshots of present-day people."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 150w

"There is one well-drawn character in this otherwise crude book—the charming little old lady, Mlle. d'Avril."

— N Y Times 19:230 My 10 '14 280w

KEYSER, CASSIUS JACKSON. Science and religion, the rational and the superrational. *75c (4½c) Yale univ. press 14-17499

An address delivered before the Phi Beta Kappa association in New York city in May, 1914. The author looks at his problem from the point of view of the higher mathematician and makes use of the mathematical method or process of limits. Religion he finds is primarily an emotion; it cannot be known scientifically. Only its manifestations are subject to analysis, and the study of these manifestations has resulted in the establishment of a relation between religion and human ignorance. It is believed that as knowledge advances the domain of religion must be narrowed until it disappears, but here the author brings in his creed of the limitless progressibility of human knowledge to show that this point can never be reached. Further, emotions do not diminish with knowledge, and religion is essentially an emotion. From this conclusion the author goes on to develop his thesis that just as there is a subrational domain, the zone of sense, so there is a super-rational world, implied in and revealed by the rational.

"Deserves and will repay reading and rereading."

+ Educ R 48:532 D '14 80w

KILMER, JOYCE. Trees, and other poems. *$1 Doran 14-18369

Homeliness of theme and simplicity of form characterize the poems in this slight volume. The twelve-forty-five, Pennies, Trees, Old poets, Delicatessen, The apartment house, The house with nobody in it, Alarm clocks—these are some of the titles.

"In 'Trees and other poems' there is an art whose simplicity of motive in the individual poems is of extraordinary charm, but it is a transfiguring charm which turns a common object or an ordinary experience into a reality mystical at root." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 19 '14 920w

"The verses celebrate common things but the author's gift of words, robust sanity and reserved humor lift them clear of the commonplace."

+ Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 50w

"Leaving aside the entertaining experiment in traction poetics with which the book opens, 'Trees and other poems' contains much to show that its author's talent has matured and broadened since the publication of 'A summer of love.'"

+ N Y Times 19:581 D 20 '14 730w

KILPATRICK, JAMES A. Tommy Atkins at <sup>12</sup> war, as told in his own letters. *50c (2c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-21627

A little book that celebrates the light-heartedness and bravery of the British soldier in action. The letters are not quoted in entirety or at any length; the author intersperses sentences from them thruout his text. The subject matter is arranged in short chapters, headed: Off to the front; Sensations under fire; Humor in the trenches; The man with the bayonet; With the Highlanders; The intrepid Irish, etc.

"Mr. Kilpatrick has arranged his matter well, and has allowed the letters to speak for themselves, with scarcely any comment."

+ Ath 1914,2:420 O 24 280w

+ Ind 80:475 D 21 '14 90w

+ Nation 99:719 D 17 14 260w

"The good humor and patience with which the British soldier, private and officer alike, takes life under service conditions are notably shown in the letters."

+ N Y Times 19:511 N 22 '14 180w

KIMBALL, ATKINSON. Prince of Mercuria. il <sup>12</sup> *$1.25 (6½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-20114

A half dozen happy tales, all about the prince and princess of the smallest principality in Europe. The prince and the princess are married in the first story and in each of those that follow an adventure in their domestic career is related. Indeed the little book as a whole is a whimsical dissertation on the "how to be happy though married" theme.

"Any reviewer who passes this story casually by, regarding it merely as a fairy tale for the very young, will miss something unusually enjoyable."

+ Boston Transcript p25 D 2 '14 290w

"It is an amusing little book, written with cleverness and a sense of humor."

+ N Y Times 19:463 O 25 '14 370w

KIMBALL, DEXTER SIMPSON. Principles of industrial organization. il $2.50 McGraw 13-20797

"Professor Kimball's contribution to the literature of scientific management, so called, is based on a course of lectures which he has been giving for a number of years to the senior class in mechanical engineering at Cornell university. He explains in the preface that the book is an endeavor to set before young men entering the industrial field the salient facts regarding the most important modern movements in this field and to explain the origin and growth of the important features of industrial organization." (Engin N) "His treatise includes a review of the history of the development of the factory system, of the degradation of labor and of its subsequent elevation after the introduction of that system; modern industrial tendencies; systems of organization, including functional foremanship, committee work and other recent devices; principles of cost-keeping; distribution of expense; depreciation; systems of compensation of labor with critical study of the advantages and disadvantages of the different systems; purchasing; location, arrangement and construction of industrial plants; theories of management, business failures, human relations and economic results." (Indust Engin)

Reviewed by C. W. Mixer

+ Am Econ R 4:386 Je '14 550w

"Very good book, brief, concise yet comprehensive in scope."

+ A L A Bkl 10:312 Ap '14

"Others besides 'young men entering the industrial field' will read this book with interest and profit. The old-school manager who wishes to get a birdseye view of 'scientific-management' methods can find no better book. It is true that anyone wishing thoroughly to study any branch of the subject must refer to works which go into further detail, but on the other hand, no matter how familiar one may be with all the details, he will derive benefit from Prof. Kimball's clear and intelligent review and analysis." R. R. Potter

+ Engin N 71:157 Ja 15 '14 1200w

"The author has succeeded very well in the task he has set out to perform."

+ Engin Rec 68:560 N 15 '13 250w

"We cordially recommend Prof. Kimball's book to those students of scientific management who wish to obtain a broad view of its relations to the larger questions of social and economic progress, and also to beginners in the study, as giving them a critical view of the principles of scientific management, preliminary to their taking up books that go more largely into detail."

+ Indust Engin 14:40 Ja '14 1000w

Reviewed by F. M. Simons, jr.

+ J Pol Econ 22:814 O '14 1100w

KING, BASIL. Letter of the contract. il $31
(2½c) Harper 14-1232

A woman rising out of the past to cast a shadow over a happy home is the not uncommon theme which the author of "The inner shrine," however, handles in an unusual way. A wife happily wedded for seven years is suddenly confronted by her husband's former misdeeds, and no amount of extenuating argument restrains her from divorcing him. She marries again, and he in his loneliness does the same. After a few years they meet and agonize over their mistake. Yet, in spite of her present husband's willingness to give her back, arguing that it is a greater economy of human material for two out of four miserable people to regain happiness, they decide upon renunciation. And here is the crux of the story: The letter of contract had killed; now, after their purging, they look for the spirit that "giveth life." Their duty is to find that spirit in their present situation. The wife says: "You may call it a waste of human material if you like. . . . Yet, even though we can't give them happiness by standing by, yet, it's some satisfaction just to stand by. Isn't that it? Isn't that the spirit?"

"A tedious book."

— Ath 1914,2:425 O 24 200w

"What there is no doubt about is the hold which the tale takes on the reader's interest, and its intensive culture of his expectation, with moments of nature, of real pathos, of genuine emotion. It is needless to say, however, that the book is no such book as 'The way home,' with its true hopes and high consolations. As a solution of the divorce question it has the prime defect of not solving." W. D. Howells

+ — No Am 20:919 D '14 350w

"The story is clever, and covers an immense ground, but the matrimonial vagaries are so complex as to be unconsciously humorous."

+ — Spec 113:533 O 17 '14 30w

KING, CHARLES. True Ulysses S. Grant. ("True" biographies and histories) il $2
(1½c) Lippincott 14-18316

The author, himself a distinguished soldier, writes of General Grant with sincere admiration. He tells the story of his boyhood, cadet life at West Point, his part in the Mexican war, and his marriage, but devotes the greater part of the book to the civil war, following Grant's campaigns with careful attention to detail. The final chapters are given up to discussions of: Peace and perplexities; Problems and politics; On to the White house; President and Commander-in-chief; Storm and stress; Foreign travel and final return; The final blow.

Ind 80:341 N 30 '14 50w

"An admirable story of Grant's life, notable for its vivid portrayal of his personality and character, its fine appreciation of his military genius, and its intelligent survey of his political career."

+ N Y Times 19:562 D 13 '14 50w

KING, FRANKLIN HIRAM. Soil management; 2 ed. by C. H. King. il $1.50 Judd 14-11824

"The key-note of Prof. King's work appears to have been the study of the influence of soil structure upon its plant-raising capabilities, and we know of no other book which gives such simple explanations and practical suggestions regarding this complex subject. . . . A great part of the work is devoted to the question of water in soils, and it is shown how extremely finely divided soils such as clay may absorb large quantities of water, but hold it and the soluble plant food so rigidly by surface tension as to render it unavailable for plants. Experiments are quoted to show how soils of differing structure vary in their power of absorbing and retaining moisture and soluble foods, and the bearing of these results on the processes of ploughing, cultivating, and mulching. Figures are also supplied of the evaporation from the soil surface and plants, and of the amount required for various crops; and the question of irrigation is discussed."—Ath

"Clear and interesting, but not so complete as Doctor King's own book 'The soil.' For farmers and others, desiring non-technical information."

+ A L A Bkl 11:203 Ja '15

"Although the information given is of great interest and importance, the book lacks the continuity and cohesion which it undoubtedly would have had if Prof. King had been spared to carry out his intention; and it is somewhat disconcerting to find the same principles and illustrations cropping up in widely separated chapters under different headings."

+ — Ath 1914,2:200 Ag 15 700w

KING, IRVING. High-school age. (Childhood<sup>10</sup> and youth ser.) il *$1 (2c) Bobbs 14-12489

Professor O'Shea in his introduction to this book says that its author "has presented in simple, straightforward language most of the more important results of modern investigations regarding the physical changes which take place during the early teens, and the intellectual and emotional developments which occur parallel with the physical changes, or follow after them very closely." Many of the conclusions are based upon statistical studies, and a number of tables, worked out in New York city and in the cities and towns of Iowa, afford an interesting field of comparisons between the large and the small high school.

"This book should prove a valuable aid to us in our efforts to deal intelligently with the educational needs of the adolescent child."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 20 '15 90w

"On the whole, the volume is a very useful summary of the more elaborate discussions on the high-school period."

+ EI School J 15:13 S '14 200w

KING, WILSON. Chronicles of three free cities: Hamburg, Bremen, Lübeck. il *$4 Dutton

14-14307

"At the present time, when so much is said about trusts and trade gambling, selling of futures, corners, strikes and boycotts it is instructive to read how the Germans in the middle ages dealt with them all, including 'peaceful picketing' and the minimum wage, for medieval Germany had them all. . . . The name Free cities was given to four German towns which were of themselves sovereign states and members of the German confederation—Hamburg, Bremen, Lübeck and Frankfort-on-Main. Frankfort was annexed to Prussia in 1866, but the other three, of which Mr. King writes, are surviving remnants of the once numerous 'imperial' cities, or cities not subjected to any superior lord, but immediately under the empire."—Boston Transcript

"As a chronicler, Mr. Wilson King has many merits, not the least of which is a simple and straightforward style, exactly suited to a long and detailed narrative."

+ Ath 1914,2:143 Ag 1 1200w

"An interesting and useful volume." G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 800w

+ Nation 99:718 D 17 '14 150w

+ N Y Times 19:581 D 20 '14 140w

"Mr. King has written about a subject on which there is a remarkable dearth of English books. He has a personal knowledge of these cities and his book betrays a minutely careful treatment of their written records. A word of praise must be given to the illustrations."

+ Sat R 118:118 Jl 25 '14 250w

+ Spec 112:363 Je 6 '14 150w

KINGSFORD, CHARLES LETHBRIDGE. English historical literature in the fifteenth century. *$5 Oxford 14-6015

"Mr. Kingsford, whose work in connexion with the 'London chronicles' is already well known, attempts a general treatment of a difficult and little-known subject." (Spec) "He has made a contribution of historical and literary significance in tracing back many of the legends of Henry V to the middle of the fifteenth century, to a work now lost which purported to be 'Reminiscences of the Earl of Ormonde,' who accompanied the King into France. In the historical plays of Shakespeare he observes a remarkable perception of the unity of the fifteenth century which is too often overlooked: 'The downfall of Ricard II, the glories of Henry V, the long struggle of Lancaster and York ending in the happy union of the rival houses, were all stages in the preparation for a greater Age.'" (Nation)

Reviewed by James Taft

+ Eng Hist R 29:753 O '14 650w

"Though the reader frequently feels that Mr. Kingsford is overstraining the theme of literary development in a conscious effort to appeal to a wider circle, the volume will nevertheless prove valuable to the students of Shakespeare and sixteenth-century literature in general, for it traces to their origin many of the tales preserved in the literature of that period."

+ Nation 98:111 Ja 29 '14 970w

"Very careful volume."

+ Spec 112:442 Mr 14 '14 800w

KINNE, HELEN, and COOLEY, ANNA MARIA. Foods and household management. il *$1.10 Macmillan 14-1480

A companion volume to "Shelter and clothing" by the same authors, and, like that book, intended for class room use in high schools and normal schools. The authors express the hope, however, that the two volumes will prove useful in the home as well, "including as they do a treatment of the homecrafts, and the related topics now so significant to the home maker." Many of the chapters are devoted to Fruits, Meats, Vegetables, and other foods. Others of a more general nature consider Kitchen furnishings, Food preparation, Table service, The household budget, etc.

"A good book, presupposing a knowledge of elementary cooking, and of value not only to classes in household arts and in high and normal schools but also to the home maker."

+ A L A Bkl 10:273 Mr '14

"This book will be useful and valuable in any household, and especially to a young housekeeper."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 300w

"To the woman, who wishes to operate her home as her husband does his business, this book will prove the guide and help she needs."

+ Chaut 72:509 F 28 '14 170w

+ Educ R 47:527 My '14 50w

+ Nation 98:609 My 21 '14 320w

+ Nature 93:83 Mr 26 '14 80w

+ Spec 113:22 Jl 4 '14 270w

"It is especially recommended as a guide to those who are inexperienced in the art of home management and home-making."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 110w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:87 Ap '14 40w

KINNEY, TROY, and KINNEY, MARGARET WEST. The dance: its place in art and life. il *$3.50 (3½c) Stokes 14-8075

The Kinneys confess in the preface to this book that the subject of which they write is one of their two "overwhelming enthusiasms." The other, we take it, is their own particular art of painting; but they write of dancing, too, as an art and accord it a place of honor with its sisters. "Appreciation of an art," they say, "requires no faculties not included in the normal human equipment; more than anything else it is a matter of knowing what to look for." Their aim is to help others to an appreciation of dancing by telling them what to look for. There are chapters devoted to: The dancing of ancient Egypt and Greece; Dancing in Rome; The ballet's technique; European folk dancing; Oriental dancing; The Russian academy and its workings; Social dancing of to-day, etc. The book has a frontispiece in color, many line drawings and over three hundred illustrations from photographs.

"The most complete book on the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 11:161 D '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 730w

+ Nation 99:437 O 8 '14 620w

"Informed and scholarly though it is, it is also very readable."

+ N Y Times 19:239 My 17 '14 550w

"The Kinneys write well and with a breadth of outlook and a seriously artistic purpose that contribute in making their book unique."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 16 '14 820w

"For the student of dancing, the most satisfactory of the recent books."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:302 D '14 50w

KINNEY, TROY, and KINNEY, MARGARET
 * WEST. Social dancing of to-day; demonstrated by Mr. J. Murray Anderson. il *$1
 (1c) Stokes 14-9387

The section on social dancing contained in the larger book on the dance by these joint authors is reprinted in more convenient form in this volume.

N Y Times 19:239 My 17 '14 130w

KINROSS, MARTHA. Tristram and Isoult.
 *$1.25 Macmillan

"The author divides her story—for although cast in theatrical form, it is more narrative than play—into three parts, of which the second is subdivided into three episodes. The first is as Camelot, where Guinevere and Isoult exchange confidence while discussing a tournament in which Arthur and his knights have been engaged. . . . In the second part the scene is in Mark's castle of Tintagil. Here there is more action, although the interest still centres in the picturesqueness and vigor of the dialogue. . . . In the last act (Part 3) Tristram is dying in the house of his wife—Isoult of the white hands—whither he has been transported. She is nursing him patiently and hopelessly, as she had done once before. It is a pathetic situation, handled with tact and womanly insight, but not much dramatic originality. Queen Isoult, of course—no matter how—arrives in time to bid her lover a last farewell, and to kill herself upon his dead body. The meeting of the two women, with its mutual revelation of wrecked love, is, perhaps, the most genuinely dramatic moment of the whole play."—Nation

"Mrs. Kinross must be congratulated on an achievement of a high order. It is the more remarkable in that one might have supposed the Tristram legend already overworked. There is, perhaps, a certain detraction from the faithful and all-conquering splendour of the lovers' passion in her presentment of King Mark as a craven assassin; while the desire to 'justify' Tristram and Isoult, and to distinguish their love from that of Lancelot and Guinevere, for example, tends rather to lower than to heighten the emotional intensity of conception which is their final court of appeal."
 + — Ath 1913,2:463 O 25 470w

"There is poetic imagination of no common order in this latest variation of the ancient Arthurian legend. But the ability manifested is fanciful rather than dramatic—although there are several effective scenes—while the spirit and manner, notwithstanding the occasional use of antique words and phrases, are completely modern."
 + — Nation 99:142 J1 30 '14 780w

KIPPAX, JOHN ROBERT. Call of the stars. il
 *$2.50 (2c) Putnam 14-6589

The subtitle describes this as "a popular introduction to a knowledge of the starry skies." The author's aim has been "to present, in plain, non-technical language, a concise and accurate story of the starry heavens, together with the legendary lore that time and fancy have associated with them." (Preface) The book is intended for the general reader, and is well supplied with pictures and charts.

"The book is excellent to arouse a love in the non-professional reader for astronomy."
 + Boston Transcript p18 Ag 19 '14 260w

"The writer combines science, both exact and popular, with historical and mythological information. He makes his subject extremely interesting."
 + Educ R 49:102 Ja '15 50w

"Will be found a most useful book for libraries, and it deserves rewriting and bringing down to date every few years. The rather abrupt ending might well be modified, and an ampler index would be found very helpful. Nevertheless, it is easily among the best English compilations of astronomical fact and fancy."
 + — Nation 99:170 Ag 6 '14 820w

"While far from being elementary in the usual sense of the word, Mr. Kippax has written with such simplicity and clearness that the book may truly be called a 'Star and planet book for the people.'"
 + N Y Times 19:500 N 15 '14 150w
 + Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 100w

KIRBY, RICHARD SHELTON. Elements of * specification writing. *$1.25 Wiley 13-16989

This text-book for civil engineering students "treats of the fundamentals of a contract—particularly of a construction contract with its attendant plans and specifications; advertisement and information for bidders; essentials of a proposal and methods of bidding; general clauses; practical suggestions on specific (or technical) clauses, and a classified list of references, largely to recent articles in the more readily accessible technical journals. . . . Outlines of specific clauses for nine simple construction projects are given to assist the novice who writes his own specifications." (Engin N)

"A textbook very useful to the technical undergraduate or practicing engineer."
 + A L A Bkl 10:312 Ap '14

"The text is admirably well written, and the typography is excellent. Many pitfalls not only of the beginner, but often of the experienced engineer, are interestingly brought out, and the often overlooked need of absolute fairness to the contractor is well emphasized. Apt quotations and illuminating incidents from recent technical literature add much to its readability. The reference list of articles in recent technical journals on contracts, contractors and specifications is evidently well selected and systematically arranged, and alone makes this little book worthy of a place in any engineer's library."
 + Engin N 70:789 O 16 '13 250w

KIRKALDY, ADAM WILLIS. British shipping.
 12 (National industries) il *$2 Dutton 14-14200

"The author gives a complete and detailed story of the development of England's merchant marine, and deals with matters pertaining to its organization and management and with its regulation by the state. He also has some instructive chapters relating to trade routes, including our new canal, and others, descriptive of the most important ports and docks of the United Kingdom."—N Y Times

"Useful now when we are trying to build up our own shipping."
 + Ind 80:63 O 12 '14 23w

"A carefully prepared and well written work."
 + N Y Times 19:383 S 13 '14 90w

Spec 113:140 J1 25 '14 40w

KIRKALDY, ADAM WILLIS. Economics and 10 syndicalism. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) *40c (1c) Putnam 14-13373

The author believes that the great need of the present time "is that all ranks of the industrial army should be equally well versed in the economic laws which regulate, not only the production of wealth, but also its distribution and its consumption." He considers it "a most hopeful sign that the more serious sections of the working classes are striving after a real knowledge of economic laws and their working." It is the aim of his book to contribute to this knowledge. Contents: Unconscious and semi-conscious economists; The effect of nationality on economic thought and practice; The origin and development of socialism in England; Early continental socialism; Socialism to-day and its rival—Syndicalism. The speeches of the French and German delegates to the Manchester trade union congress, 1913, are printed in an appendix.

Reviewed by N. R. Whitney
 Am Econ R 4:924 D '14 200w
 Nation 99:663 D 3 '14 180w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

KIRKHAM, STANTON DAVIS. North and South. il *$1.75 Putnam 13-23848

A series of nature studies designed as a companion to the author's earlier volume, "East and West." "In this volume as in the one which preceded it, Mr. Kirkham has not taken a very large area for his nature studies, but has selected one typical spot in each section from which to work. . . . In the North, camp was made on Canandaigua lake, in New York state; in the South, the spot selected lay in South Carolina. . . . In the one shelter is provided by a rough shack, in the other by an austere beautiful, ante-bellum mansion, from both of which the author issues forth with the first rays of the sun to view his landscape o'er. Natural life about both habitations is various and wonderful, but Mr. Kirkham never loses sight of the larger aspects of nature while studying more minutely the smaller." (N Y Times)

Boston Transcript p7 N 11 '13 400w

"An intensive rather than extensive study of nature in a few chosen places of the higher and the lower latitudes of our broad country, all enlivened with a genial humor and embellished with innumerable views of field and forest and rippling stream."

+ Dial 55:533 D 16 '13 120w

Reviewed by C. E. Hesselgrave

Ind 76:511 D 11 '13 60w

"The lover of the great out-of-doors will be delighted with Mr. Kirkham's reflections on the life of the woods, described not in the dry-as-dust language of science, but with a loving tenderness such as only one of nature's true worshippers can feel. A truly enjoyable book."

+ Lit D 48:509 Mr 7 '14 250w

Nation 97:545 D 4 '13 220w

+ N Y Times 19:10 Ja 11 '14 450w

KIRKLAND, WINIFRED MARGARETTA. Boy<sup>1</sup> editor. il *$1 (3c) Houghton 13-20585

The story of a boy who at the beginning of his senior year was merely a student, and who in the course of that year developed into something more. The transformation in Herbert Spencer Briggs was brought about by Jeanie Campbell, a girl who might herself have been editor-in-chief, had not her maternal interest in the spectacled Herbert Spencer prompted her to step aside in his favor. This is a school story that should be of interest to both boys and girls.

"An interesting and not at all conventional school story."

+ A L A Bkl 10:162 D '13 +

N Y Times 18:520 O 5 '13 80w

KIRKLAND, WINIFRED MARGARETTA. Christmas bishop. il *$1 (3½c) Small 13-24978

This is "the story of the last day, Christmas day, in the life of an old and great-hearted Episcopal bishop, a day in which he tries, with all the spiritual strength within him, and all the physical strength that age has left in his failing body, to make things go better for three people, one after another. With each one he fails, or thinks he has failed, and goes home with the sense of personal failure heavy upon him, though with unabated faith still strong in his heart. He does not live to know it, but he has succeeded in all that he had tried to do."—N Y Times

Dial 55:535 D 16 '13 80w

"It is a beautifully written and poetic sermon."

+ N Y Sun p3 N 29 '13 130w

"The book has the distinction that comes from a noble personality that is at once strong and fine. For the Bishop permeates all the story, is the story, indeed, and the reader sees life and its meanings as they look to him on the threshold of departure."

+ N Y Times 18:764 D 28 '13 180w

KIRKUP, THOMAS. History of socialism. 5 *$1.50 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-516)

The revision of Kirkup's work for this fifth edition has been made by Edward R. Pease, an English Fabian. "Roughly, Mr. Pease has brought up to date those chapters which described primitive socialism and the origins of the present movement, has written several new chapters on the movement abroad, and particularly in England, and has collected (in chapters 15 and 16) Kirkup's own views on the question in general, these views in previous editions having been scattered through six chapters, and being now rearranged and much condensed. The result of his labor is a handy edition of a valuable work." (Nation)

A L A Bkl 11:83 O '14

"The last chapter ['The English school of socialism'] is an especially interesting and valuable one."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:105 F '14 300w

+ Dial 56:255 Mr 16 '14 180w

"Kirkup's book will make an appeal to many who are tired of Spargo, Hillquit, and the other painstaking but tedious modern scholastics of the more reasonable and coherent Marxian school."

+ Nation 98:299 Mr 19 '14 1150w

"We need not wish for a much clearer handbook on the subject than the late Mr. Kirkup's. The book on the whole is free from cant. But here and there are passages too reminiscent of the kind of imposter Charles Dickens loved to show up, the flowery humanitarian."

+ Sat R 116:749 D 13 '13 830w

KLAPPER, PAUL. Teaching children to read. 2 il *$1.25 Appleton 14-17642

"Mr. Klapper has brought together a statement of the various methods employed in teaching primary reading and has added a few chapters on reading in intermediate grades and the methods of teaching a literary masterpiece. The review of primary methods is preceded by a brief study of the hygiene and physiology of reading and the psychology of reading."—El School J

"A book which is not only practically useful, but which illustrates how one who is both scholarly and practically minded can treat a topic of this sort with more than usual helpfulness. We should like to have elementary school teachers get hold of this book and make it the subject of their year's thought and study."

+ Educ R 48:536 D '14 70w

"The review of different methods will be gladly received by students of education as well as by teachers, because there is such diversity in the methods of dealing with primary reading that a summary of these different methods is always acceptable. It is to be regretted that books of this type simply review practices and do not subject them to careful, constructive criticism."

+ — El School J 15:238 Ja '15 650w

"A good working manual for the teacher."

+ Pittsburgh 20:15 Ja '15 40w

KLUCHEVSKY, VASILII OSIPOVICH. History of Russia; tr. by C. J. Hogarth. v 3 *$2.50 Dutton (11-29251)

The present volume is the last of three, and was intended to cover the period from 1613 to 1855, but the author's death cut the narrative short five years. It is "not a simple narrative of political or international happenings but a remarkable study of Russian social, economic and international history based upon years of personal research in the available historical sources of the subject. This will appear even to the casual reader if he is at all acquainted with the older histories of Russia. Instead of the conventional and somewhat disconnected chronicle by Rambaud, we have here a work that not only approaches the subject from a new and original point of view but reveals in every chapter a familiarity with and an assimilation of the sources for Russian history that compels attention and interest." (Ann Am Acad)

"It maintains the quality of scholarship and the rather heavy style of the former volumes."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:399 Je '14 (Review of v 3)

"One of the best historical works published in any language in recent years is this history of Russia." W: E. Lingelbach

+ — Ann Am Acad 53:331 My '14 900w (Review of v 1-3)

"Unfortunately, the translation of this volume is no whit better than that of its predecessor."

+ — Nation 99:528 O 29 '14 470w (Review of v 3)

"Perhaps the most detailed and thorough study of the period available."

+ N Y Times 19:231 My 10 '14 870w (Review of v 3)

"This volume is as interesting as its predecessors have been. The work is erudite and packed with information. Its very mass seems to keep the author's style from being attractive or 'popular' in the best sense. For most readers the work has far too much detail."

+ — Outlook 107:214 My 23 '14 120w (Review view of v 3)

KNIBBS, HENRY HERBERT. Overland Red: a romance of the Moonstone Cañon trail. il *$1.35 (1½c) Houghton 14-5042

The hero of this California story is a combination of tramp, cowboy, prospector and philosopher. When Red is first discovered by Louise Lacharme on the Moonstone ranch, he is a tramp, with the boy, Collie, in his care. When Red borrows Louise's pony and makes a sensational escape from the sheriff who is on his track, Collie is left behind at the Moonstone ranch where he learns how to work and grow up to be a man. Thereafter the scene of action alternates between the ranch and the desert cañon where Red, having annexed a new partner, Billy Winthrop from the east, prospects for gold.

+ A L A Bkl 10:372 My '14 ✱
Atlan 114:528 O '14 50w

"Those who enjoy a tale filled with excitement and adventure, and touched with a sentiment sincere, but crudely expressed, will find pleasure in these pages."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 Mr 25 '14 250w

"There is a great deal of brilliant color in blotches; little of delicate shading."

+ — Ind 78:3:8 Je 1 '14 50w

"Once beginning it, few will lay it aside until the end is reached. It fulfills the first duty of a novel—to be interesting."

+ — N Y Times 19:120 Mr 15 '14 430w

KNIBBS, HENRY HERBERT. Songs of the outlands. *$1.25 Houghton 14-21450

Songs of the cowboy and the hobo that will be read with pleasure by many for their swinging rhythms and free, out-of-door atmosphere.

KNIGHT, WILLIAM ALLEN. Bedouin lover. il *50c (5c) Pilgrim press 13-23417

The author repeats the story that was told to him in the queen's chamber of one of the pyramids by his guide Saïd—the story of Saïd's life of love. An added interest is given the narrative by the description of a meeting with an old guide who had served Mark Twain on his memorable first trip abroad.

"It is a charming story; but before it flows with full current, there are rocks that disturb its smoothness."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 N 12 '13 120w

+ Ind 77:106 Ja 19 '14 50w

"A pleasing little story."

+ N Y Times 18:722 D 7 '13 150w

KNIGHT, WILLIAM ANGUS. Coleridge and Wordsworth in the West country: their friendship, work and surroundings. il *$2.25 Scribner (Eng ed A14-604)

"Drawing freely upon the records, and pursuing a line of careful investigations, Professor Knight has gathered an interesting collection of facts about the lives and the work of Coleridge and Wordsworth. He gives, for instance, the greater part of a chapter to the origin of 'The ancient mariner,' quoting Wordsworth's personal statement contained in a letter to Miss Fenwick." (Boston Transcript) "The work is not meant for the serious student of either poet, but for the general reader. No new light is shed on Wordsworth or Coleridge, with the exception of the first chapter—originally contributed to 'The academy' in 1905—in which the author strives to fix the proximate date of the first meeting of the two poets." (Ath)

"There are many blemishes in the book: misprints, errors as to dates (possibly a few of these come also under the previous category) several errors as to facts, some needless repetitions. Readers will appreciate the number and excellence of the illustrations by Mr. Edmund H. New."

+ — Ath 1914:1:56 Ja 10 1200w

+ Boston Transcript p23 Mr 4 '14 1200w

Sat R 117:17 Ja 3 '14 1100w

KNOOP, DOUGLAS. Outlines of railway economics. *$1.50 Macmillan A13-2041

"The writer begins with a brief consideration of the principles underlying the organization of industry and the determination of price in general, and then proceeds to apply these principles to the railway industry. . . . He discusses the principles of production, distribution, exchange and consumption of wealth in relation to agriculture and manufactures. To show how these general theories apply to the railway industry is the chief theme of the book. He is led also to discuss the relation of the state to the railways, methods of railway administration and finance, and the taxation of railways."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by M. O. Lorenz

+ Am Econ R 4:375 Je '14 500w

"Clearly written and readable but for the student."

+ A L A Bkl 10:312 Ap '14

+ Ann Am Acad 52:252 Mr '14 550w

"Students of railway questions will find much useful information, but not a spark of original thought, nor any guidance."

+ — Ath 1913:2:348 O 4 150w

"Concerned almost exclusively with railway conditions in Great Britain, Mr. Knoop's chapters contain nevertheless many suggestive hints to students of railroad problems in this country, and while he deals at times with highly technical and difficult subjects, his style is clear and attractive and the book is eminently readable."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 13 '13 470w

Reviewed by H. F. Lane

+ J Pol Econ 22:502 My '14 500w

"For those who desire a knowledge of the fundamental principles underlying the rate-making policy of railways, and who have not already steeped themselves in the elementary principles of economic theory, there is no better guide than 'Outlines of railway economics.'"

+ Nation 98:438 Ap 16 '14 450w

"The volume is to be put in the front rank of the works that deal with the theory of railway economics."

+ Pol Sci Q 29:556 S '14 190w

"A somewhat dry book."

+ — Spec 112:1037 Je 20 '14 80w

KNOWLES, REV. ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL. Adventures in the Alps. il *$1.50 (3c) Jacobs

The author attempts "simply to picture some of those things which make Switzerland so beautiful and fascinating and to enable one to enter into 'the treasures of the snow.'" He describes with genuine love the wonders of the

KNOWLES, REV. ARCHIBALD C.—Continued. white peaks, the glaciers, the valleys, lakes and interesting climbs. To him the mountains are a symbol of God and he is strengthened in his Roman Catholic faith by contact with them. The recently opened electric railway to the Jungfrauoch, the St. Bernard hospice and the Dolomites are some of the subjects that are of interest to the general reader.

"His style is irritating and defective."

— Ath 1913:1:306 Mr 15 250w

"There is a certain amateurishness about his little book."

+ — Boston Transcript p11 N 21 '13 120w

"The whole is instinct with the lure of the mountains."

+ Dial 55:530 D 16 '13 120w

"An entertaining little book."

+ N Y Times 18:738 D 14 '13 100w

KNOWLES, JOSEPH. Alone in the wilderness. 2 . il $*1.20 (1½c) Small 14-1961

Mr. Knowles began his experiment by wondering; he wondered how dependent he had become on the artificial comforts of civilization; he wondered what show a modern man would have against the elemental forces of nature with only himself to depend on. He talked it over with his friends and, partly because they scoffed at him, decided to try the experiment. On the fourth of August, 1913, he went into the woods of northern Maine, leaving all the trappings of civilization, including clothing and matches, behind him. How he made his fires, built his shelter, what he had to eat, how he clothed himself, are matters that form the substance of his narrative, together with interesting notes on the animal life of the woods.

"Not very well written."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:313 Ap '14

"The book describes an experiment that gives us much valuable knowledge which could be gotten only in some such way and it makes very interesting reading."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 520w

"Mr. Knowles, artist, trapper, hermit, naturalist, social reformer, and writer, possesses elements of unconscious picturesqueness and simple charm that cannot fail to endear him to a wide circle of readers."

+ Dial 56:346 Ap 16 '14 380w

"Mr. Knowles's account of his experiment, though badly written with respect to grammar and diction, is sufficiently vivid and detailed. The chief defect in the book consists in the conclusions that he endeavors to draw. Though these conclusions are, in spirit and substance, in accord with some of the leading thoughts of our day, they are set forth in a disorganized, slapdash manner, and when related with the author's intentions regarding his future, are fatuous."

+ — Nation 98:188 F 19 '14 1050w

Spec 112:sup1069 Je 27 '14 120w

KNUDSON, ALBERT CORNELIUS. Beacon lights of prophecy. $*1.25 Meth. bk. 14-7471

"These 'Beacon lights' are introduced by a chapter on 'The history and nature of prophecy.' The book is written for easy reading by those not trained in scientific Bible-study. In subject-matter, scope, and style it is admirably suited to the needs of its intended readers." (Am J Theol) The five prophets whose messages are interpreted in the volume are Amos, Hosea, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Deutero-Isaiah.

"It is encouraging to see so modern an interpretation of biblical literature issued by the publication society of so soundly evangelical a body as the Methodist Episcopal church."

+ — Am J Theol 18:470 Jl '14 189w

"A popular but scholarly study."

+ Bib World 44:296 O '14 60w

"The author is thorough and fearless in his scholarship. In fact, he has the spirit of the genuine scholar; he never hesitates to express an independent opinion, but he never does it for the sake of being independent. The book will take its place among the best works in English on the prophets, and it will be a worthy addition to the already rich literature on the subject." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 11 '14 1150w

KOESTER, FRANK. Modern city planning and maintenance. il $*6 (5½c) McBride, Nast & Co. 14-8789

To the citizen whose civic conscience has been thoroly aroused this imposing volume makes a big appeal. It embraces all matters pertaining to the city sanitary, the city useful, and the city beautiful, and presents, in a concise and comprehensive form, the principles underlying the science and art of civic development in the present day. In addition to the statement of principles and practices numerous factors in city planning and maintenance are considered which have not yet been introduced in America but which have stood the test of time and practice abroad; how successfully, the illustrations show.

"Many repetitions occur, even entire paragraphs are found repeated in different chapters. The same topic is treated in different chapters when logically the material belongs in the same chapter. The short paragraphing is inexcusable, yet it makes excellent popular reading. This is an excellent addition to the books by Robinson, Unwin, Howe, Triggs, and the extensive German literature on the subject." S. E. W. Bedford

+ — Am J Soc 20:125 Jl '14 200w

"More direct and more generally informing than Unwin. A good book to be recommended to civic improvement or city planning associations."

+ A L A Bkl 11:64 O '14

"Mr. Koester's book is brim-full of common-sense. A few strange misprints appear here and there. It ought to be in the hands of every mayor and city official in the country. It would certainly stimulate and interest in what is bound to come and will cost more the longer it is put off—a rehabilitation of many of our great cities."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 730w

+ Dial 57:345 N 1 '14 380w

+ Engin N 73:263 F 11 '15 270w

"A handsomely printed and beautifully illustrated volume, rich in detailed information, and as indifferently written as books of the sort are apt to be."

+ — Ind 78:565 Je 29 '14 50w

+ Nation 99:23 Jl 2 '14 120w

KOLB, ELLSWORTH LEONARDSON. Through the Grand Canyon from Wyoming to Mexico. il $*2 (2c) Macmillan 14-19365

"This is a simple narrative of our recent photographic trip down the Green and Colorado rivers in rowboats—our observations and impressions," says the author—as one might speak of rowing down the Hudson or the Mississippi! Owen Wister, who contributes an introduction, puts a different face on the matter. "Perhaps," he says, "this planet does somewhere else contain a thing like the Colorado river. . . . The few who have ventured through these places [the canyons] and lived are a handful to those who went in and were never seen again." A note later in the book lists five successful journeys thru the canyons. This one made by the Kolb brothers in 1911 is the fifth. Aside from the adventure of the thing, the object of the expedition was the securing of photographs, if possible of moving picture films. This end was attained and a number of the remarkable photographs are reproduced as illustrations.

+ A L A Bkl 11:215 Ja '15

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:432 D '14 240w

+ Dial 57:456 D 1 '14 250w

"It is an admirable piece of writing in its unassuming simplicity, lit up by good nature and enthusiasm. It is a capital book for boys to read."

+ Ind 80:380 D 7 '14 250w

"It is a thoroughly American book of the best time-honored stamp."

+ Lit D 50:110 Ja 16 '15 200w

+ N Y Times 19:530 N 29 '14 80w

"There is a new interest in this fresh story as told by the latest explorers, an interest which is greatly heightened by the remarkably vivid photographs."

+ R of Rs 50:758 D '14 120w

+ Spec 113:897 D 19 '14 60w

KRALL, EMIL. Art of tone-production on the violincello. (Strad lib.) il *$1 Scribner

"This is a discussion of what the author very justly calls the most difficult part of the art of playing stringed instruments—the technique of bowing. It is avowedly an exposition of the theories and scientific researches of Dr. F. Steinhausen, who, according to Mr. Krall, has ascertained physiological laws and established physiological principles relating to the art of bowing for the first time. Such a treatise is of course a purely technical one, addressed solely to practitioners of the bowed instruments, and in this case of the violincello. . . . There is a very full series of illustrations of the hand, wrist, arm, &c., concerned in bowing, and diagrams conveying further the author's meaning."

—N Y Times

Reviewed by H. T. Finck

Nation 98:584 My 14 '14 110w

"It is a book that will stimulate thought, whether all its teachings are admitted by everybody or not."

+ N Y Times 18:497 S 28 '13 170w

KREHBIEL, HENRY EDWARD. Afro-American folksongs. *$2 Schirmer 14-1130

The author says that this book was written "with the purpose of bringing a species of folksong into the field of scientific observation and presenting it as fit material for artistic treatment. . . . The songs created by the negroes while they were slaves on the plantations of the South have cried out in vain for scientific study, though 'ragtime' tunes, which are their debased offspring, have seized upon the fancy of the civilized world." (Preface) The author defends vigorously the right of the African slave songs to a place in "American" folklore; for they grew out of peculiarly American conditions. Scattered thru the text and in an appendix, he gives examples of characteristic songs with words and music.

+ A L A Bkl 10:357 My '14

"The author quite underestimates his contribution. It is true he has entered upon a pioneer work, but he has done his work with great thoroughness; and the enthusiasm which is evident on every page is sure to make his new subject contagious, and the study of the slave songs will no longer be neglected by American musicians."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 28 '14 250w

"It is not an attractive book to the eyes, and the numerous quotations are printed in type so small that one almost needs a microscope to read them; but these shortcomings must be overlooked because of the value of the material."

+ Nation 98:311 Mr 19 '14 1150w

"It would seem that this book, while it is the first competent treatment of the subject from the point of view of the folklorist, as well as of the thorough musician, would also remain the final and authoritative treatment of it."

+ N Y Times 19:317 Jl 19 '14 950w

"One of the most praiseworthy and much-needed books among those concerned with musical erudition. It would be difficult to recommend a more interesting and useful book to the student of music, or to anyone athirst for general information about the folksongs of America."

+ R of Rs 49:371 Mr '14 110w

KREYMBORG, ALFRED. Erna Vitek; a study in morals. *$1 Boni 14-13578

"A glimpse of the life and nature of a waitress in a cheap New York restaurant is given in Alfred Kreymborg's novelette. Three young men, a writer, a musician, and an artist, in the opening pages have a discussion as to whether she is moral, immoral, or immoral. Then follow many scenes written with an evident purpose to report the life of the girl with precision and reality. Her attitude toward the three young men, her pugnacity, her stubborn love of her freedom, the infatuation with her of a young prize-fighter, are all told crisply and vividly."—N Y Times

"The novel has technical excellence. But its appeal is weakened by the author's mistaken assumption that brutality constitutes strength."

+ — Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 150w

"Apparently a first story, it shows ability in the conception of character and in making it portray itself by means of action and brief, commonplace conversation. But the author seems to have been inspired more by the desire to set a problem in the philosophy of life than by the instinct of the story-teller."

+ — N Y Times 19:346 Ag 16 '14 150w

KRUHM, ADOLPH. Home vegetable garden. il *$1 Judd 14-7232

"A book of the practical type. . . . An uncommon feature is the listing of the best varieties to be planted in the home garden; this should be of use to a great many amateurs who, for lack of experience, have not known how to find their way to the most desirable seeds among the hundreds so enthusiastically commended in the catalogues."—Nation

"A book which will help develop real gardeners, and cause many to take up for the first time a healthful and delightful pursuit."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 30 '14 200w

"Well arranged and practical little guide."

+ Ind 78:105 Ap 13 '14 30w

"A compact but workmanlike and serviceable handbook, without graces of style, but readable, and with some good pictures." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 98:459 Ap 23 '14 430w

KUNOS, IGNÁCZ, comp. and tr. Forty-four Turkish fairy tales. il *$3 (3c) Crowell A14-2577

"The stories comprising this collection have been culled with my own hands in the many-hued garden of Turkish folk-lore. They have not been gathered from books, for Turkey is not a literary land, and no books of the kind exist; but, an attentive listener to the story-tellers who form a peculiar feature of the social life of the Ottomans, I have jotted them down from time to time, and now present them, a choice bouquet, to the English reading public." (Preface) The author further points out that these stories are in no way related to the eastern tales of the "Arabian nights." In both structure and contents, Turkish fairy tales are more like the Western type.

"Some of the drawings suggest nightmares."

+ — Ath 1913,2:sup68 D 6 210w

"Librarians will welcome such richness, and will adapt it to younger hearers than the book appeals to."

+ Lit D 49:1135 D 5 '14 110w

"They are gayer, wholesomer in tone than most of the Oriental stories known to us, and Dr. Kunos tells them simply and vivaciously."

+ N Y Times 19:528 N 29 '14 130w

"A fine 'volume.'"

+ Spec 111:1089 D 20 '14 90w

KUNZ, GEORGE FREDERICK. Curious lore of precious stones. il *$5 (3½c) Lippincott 13-26431

The author of this work is a vice-president of the jewelry firm of Tiffany. He is the owner of the most comprehensive private library in America on this subject, and is qualified to speak with authority. The object of the book is, he says, "to indicate and illustrate the various ways in which precious stones have been used at different times and among different peoples, and more especially to explain some of the curious ideas and fancies that have gathered around them." In his eleven chapters he discusses: Superstitions and their sources; Talismans and amulets; On the talismanic use of special stones; Engraved and carved gems as talismans; Ominous and luminous stones; Crystal balls and crystal gazing; Religious use of precious stones; The high-priest's breastplate; Birth-stones; Planetary and astral influences of precious stones; The therapeutic use of precious and semi-precious stones.

KUNZ, GEORGE FREDERICK—Continued.

"The average library will prefer Wodiska's 'Book of precious stones.'" — A L A Bkl 10:227 F '14

"A very useful compendium of legendary history which will be a mine of information to all those curious in the matter. We note a few slips when the author leaves his subject." — Ath 1914.1:196 F 7 530w

"It is full of interesting and memorable lore." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '13 2350w

"The most comprehensive, scholarly, and satisfactory discussion ever printed in English on the subject of precious stones and their properties." M. H. Shackford

+ Dial 56:242 Mr 16 '14 1400w

+ Ind 77:212 F 9 '14 280w

+ Lit D 49:522 S 19 '14 170w

"A work that is not less extraordinary in its way than Mr. Kunz's sumptuous 'Book of the pearl.'" — Nation 98:40 Ja 8 '14 200w

"The book, which is admirably illustrated, is as entertaining as it is instructive." J. W. J. — Nature 93:105 Ap 2 '14 750w

"It is a book that will charm the folklorist and the general reader, will interest the collector and will enliven scientific labors." — N Y Sun p5 D 13 '13 300w

"The excellent illustrations as well as the vast amount of well-ordered material presented in this volume represent the study of twenty-five years and the collection of the most comprehensive private library in the world on this subject." — N Y Times 18:675 N 30 '13 470w

"This is a beautiful and fascinating book." — Outlook 106:154 Ja 17 '14 110w

+ R of Rs 49:377 Mr '14 380w

"There are slight shortcomings in a book which can hardly fail in any part to interest the student of precious stones and of mind." O. C. Farrington

+ Science n 39:539 Ap 10 '14 900w

+ Spec 112:1093 Je 27 '14 1400w

L

LA BRANCHE, GEORGE MICHEL LUCIEN.
* Dry fly and fast water. *$2 (7c) Scribner 14-9814

The author discusses fishing with the floating fly on American trout streams, and adds some observations on fly fishing in general. Contents: Early experiences; The value of observation; The rise; Where and when to fish; The imitation of the natural insect; some fancies—some facts; The point of view; A few patterns of flies.

+ Ind 78:398 Je 1 '14 100w

Reviewed by W. H. Johnson

+ Nation 99:100 Jl 23 '14 450w

"His book is so charmingly written that it will prove most interesting not only to dry-fly fishermen, but to all who love the great outdoors, for it has evidently come from the heart and the pen of a nature lover, as well as an expert angler." E. M. Gill

+ N Y Times 19:257 Je 7 '14 1150w

"It proves to be written with a very attractive precision and flexibility of style by a man who reveals himself an unusual student of the finer and more delicate arts of fishing. It is, therefore, a book which any sportsman will count as an added prize in his library and which the man who has even a slight interest in fishing will find fascinating."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 1450w

LADD, GEORGE TRUMBULL. What can I know? *$1.50 Longmans 14-16561

"Five questions are discussed by George Trumbull Ladd in 'What can I know?' the one contained in the title to his book and four others, viz.: 'What is it to know?' 'What may the known take for granted?' 'What is the use of knowing?' and 'Can a man know God?' The author describes his work as an inquiry into truth, its nature, the means of its attainment, and its relation to practical life." — N Y Times

"Popular and interesting."

+ Ind 80:102 O 19 '14 30w

N Y Times 19:419 O 4 '14 70w

"If overmuch philosophizing have made us mad, Dr. Ladd's book will do much to restore us to sanity; if we are intellectually unambitious because we are muddled without knowing it, or because we are indolent so far as 'subjective' thought is concerned and consequently deficient in self-knowledge, the same book will help to rouse us to a deeper consciousness."

+ No Am 200:944 D '14 720w

"For such of these as are seeking a satisfying answer to the inquiry propounded by this volume a veteran thinker here cuts an easily traveled path through the mazes of the subject, clearing it of entanglements, and steadily keeping in view its issues in practical value for the rational conduct of life."

+ Outlook 108:902 D 16 '14 350w

LAFON, ANDRE. Jean Gilles, schoolboy; tr. by Lady Theodora Davidson. *$1.25 (2c) Putnam 14-15175

A record of school-boy life in France. Jean Gilles is a lonely lad whose mother, while she adores him, is forced to devote her time to her husband, a self-centered musician. The father, in turn, disappointed in a son who has no musical talent, ignores the boy entirely. The story, told in Jean's own words, has little plot. It is a simple account of his life at school, his friendships, and of the pleasures of holidays spent at the home of an aunt.

+ A L A Bkl 11:174 D '14

"On the whole, Lady Theodora Davidson has done her work well; she has paraphrased freely, but has reproduced the unadorned directness of the original with success."

+ Ath 1914.2:sup99 Jl 18 300w

"Even though the story has the great disadvantage of not standing in the language in which it was written, the reader feels instantly its artistic superiority to contemporary English fiction. The reading of his story is a pure and unusual delight." M. J. V.

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 730w

+ N Y Times 19:430 O 11 '14 300w

"A fine, sensitive piece of work."

+ Sat R 118:53 Jl 11 '14 750w

LAGERLÖF, SELMA OTTILIANA LOVISA.
* Legend of the Sacred Image; tr. by Velma Swanson Howard. il *50c (5c) Holt 14-20861

The story of two Sicilian peasants who hear a wandering monk tell of the miracles performed by the Sacred Image in the church at Lucca. Any offering made to the image will be returned to the giver increased one hundred fold, he says, and believing him, the old man and woman journey to Lucca to lay all their wealth on the altar. The story tells how their simple faith was rewarded.

"In an exquisitely tender fashion, happily preserved by the translator, is told how the faith of an old peasant and his wife was justified."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 13 '15 180w

"The story is simply and pleasingly told."

+ Dial 57:509 D 16 '14 100w

LAGERLÖF, SELMA OTTILIANA LOVISA. Liljecrona's home; tr. from the Swedish by Anna Barwell. *$1.25 Dutton A14-862

"'Liljecrona's home' is a somewhat slender story of Swedish village life worked out with masses of closely observed detail. The characters are elementary, and move to a single tune throughout, but they are marvellously lifelike. There is a specially good study of a little girl who had to act as a buffer between a woman and her stepdaughter." (Ath) "The entire story breathes of Sweden, and the atmosphere of mystery is so real that it does not seem strange to have anything happen there." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bkl 10:326 Ap '14 ✕

+ Ath 1913,2:494 N 1 60w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:209 Ap '14 400w

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 14 '14 270w

"The real meaning of the title does not dawn on the reader until the last chapter and, in that, as throughout the book, there is the attraction of intangible spiritual power and the charm of direct and simple methods."

+ Lit D 48:626 Mr 21 '14 160w

"This is a story of more general appeal than anything else by this writer. It is an idyll full of delicate feeling and fancy, and not without a touch of northern magic."

+ Nation 98:239 Mr 5 '14 220w

"The story is full of that delicate feeling and Scandinavian strength that have characterized all Miss Lagerlöf's work."

+ R of Rs 99:628 My '14 60w

Spec 112:654 Ap 18 '14 20w

LAIDLER, HARRY WELLINGTON. Boycotts and the labor struggle; with an introd. by H. R. Seager. *$2 Lane 14-1784

"The author has done a great service in making public his careful study of the boycott and answering all possible questions connected with it. The book is divided into three parts: the economic aspects, the legal aspects, and boycotts in the light of social and economic conditions. At the close of the book is a very valuable appendix in which are given the summary and digest of decisions in a number of boycott and allied cases."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Leo Wolman

+ Am Econ R 4:399 Je '14 1050w

A L A Bkl 10:357 My '14

Reviewed by J. W. Bryan

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:513 Ag '14 400w

"Nothing is left to be desired in this clear, scholarly and unbiased study." Alexander Fleisher

+ Ann Am Acad 53:334 My '14 350w

"The book will be valuable to students of social problems, and to lawyers and legislators. Both the employer and employee will do well to read this book, and keep it for reference."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 250w

+ J Pol Econ 22:715 Jl '14 280w

"To those who desire to know more about this much-diseused weapon of union labor we can unreservedly recommend the perusal of Mr. Laidler's work."

+ Lit D 48:1264 My 29 '14 100w

"Excellent as is Mr. Laidler's collection of facts bearing upon the legality of boycotts in labor warfare, making of his work, as his introducer says, a very good 'case-book,' it is certainly not unfair to say of it that it reads much more like an argument by an advocate than a scientific inquiry by a dispassionate observer."

+ Nation 98:267 Mr 12 '14 1000w

"A timely, useful, and comprehensive treatise."

+ N Y Br Lib News 1:34 Mr '14 30w

"Legislators and lawyers, social students and labor agitators of the thoughtful class—there are such—will find the book of assistance. It might even be recommended for general reading by those wishing to supplement what the newspapers will present upon the subject. Of falsehood Mr. Laidler is incapable, otherwise his book would be unworthy of attention. He is fair in his facts, but unfair in presentation of his views, as though they were the views of others and he were a critic. He neither suppresses nor misstates, but he colors, and argues from an ambush."

+ N Y Times 19:45 F 1 '14 2300w

+ R of Rs 49:379 Mr '14 150w

Reviewed by L. Levine

+ Survey 32:99 Ap 25 '14 570w

LAISANT, CHARLES ANGE. Mathematics. (Thresholds of science) il *50c Doubleday 14-11235

This volume in a useful series discusses the principles that underlie the science of mathematics. It is addressed especially to those who are responsible for the instruction of children.

LAMB, HORACE. Dynamics. il *$3.50 Putnam A14-1154

"This book is a sequel to a treatise on statics published a little more than a year ago. The book forms an introduction to the dynamics of the astronomer and the mathematician, and is therefore not likely to be used in the engineering colleges of this country. . . . Many problems illustrating the principles are solved in the text, as for example, the complete solution of four problems by means of Lagrange's equations. At the end of each chapter is a collection of problems, nearly 350 in all."—Engin Rec

"Comparing the two volumes, we must confess that the present one falls short of the expectation aroused by the former. The total impression that the book leaves with us is that Prof. Lamb has somewhat disregarded the claims of the student for whom mechanics is a tool (the engineer, physicist, &c.), in favour of the mathematical specialist."

+ Ath 1914,2:121 Jl 25 450w

"The typography, arrangement and figures are very good, but the index is very incomplete. The book is a distinct addition to the literature of this field." M. L. Enger

+ Engin Rec 69:514 My 2 '14 200w

"In style, this volume closely resembles the first; the bookwork is cast in an interesting and refreshing form; the able student will find much that is highly stimulating, and the boy of ordinary capacity will appreciate the concentration on the fundamental processes required for the systematic solution of problems."

+ Nature 93:663 Ag 27 '14 200w

LAMBETH, WILLIAM ALEXANDER, and MANNING, WARREN HENRY. Thomas Jefferson as an architect and a designer of landscapes. il *$10 Houghton 13-24650

This book, which is "the joint work of a professor of the University of Virginia and of an accomplished landscape architect, tells the story of the part played by Jefferson in designing and carrying through that unique and important piece of American architecture, the University of Virginia. That a man without special training accomplished what Jefferson did has caused the amazement and occasional scepticism of men in the profession. The wonder grows, but the doubts are silenced by a reading of these pages." (Boston Transcript) "With very small means at hand, but with marvelous taste, skill, constructive imagination, and capacity for technical detail, Mr. Jefferson created the most beautiful example of classical architecture to be found anywhere in the United States. . . . Another very remarkable specimen of his architectural skill was his own home, Monticello." (R of Rs)

"Despite minor defects Dr. Lambeth has in his plea rendered a real service to the history of American architecture and to the reputation of the great Democrat. The plates which accompany these texts are excellent, but one could wish they had been distributed with more regard for logical sequence and relation to the text. The details of the plan of Monticello do not agree in all respects with the photographic views of the interior." A. D. F. Hamlin

LAMBETH, W: A., and MANNING, W. H: —Continued.

+ — Am Hist R 19:690 Ap '14 600w

"Interesting volume." G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 7 '14 1050w

"The authors of the book have pursued their researches with enthusiasm, and what they have to say is presented in convincing form."

+ Dial 55:533 D 16 '13 220w

"A contribution of great importance to the documented history of our national architecture."

+ Nation 97:548 D 4 '13 270w

"An admirable volume."

+ R of Rs 49:380 Mr '14 700w

LANCASTER, MAUD. Electric cooking, heating and cleaning; a manual of electricity in the service of the home; ed. by E. W. Lancaster; American ed. rev. by Stephen L. Coles. il *$1.50 Van Nostrand 14-20691

This is an American edition of a work brought out in England, where the lower rate for electric current supply has stimulated the development and use of electrical household appliances. All the electrical devices described however can be supplied by American manufacturers and can be used in any American home that is wired for electricity, and the editor of the American edition assures us that electric station officials are at work on the problem of lowering rates for household consumers. The work opens with a chapter on Electricity—a brief explanation from a woman's point of view. There are chapters on: What electricity can do in the home; Why electric cooking is ideal and best; Electric cookery at the table; Electric heating; Electricity for medical purposes; Electric cleaning, etc. The many illustrations are an important feature of the book. The editor has worked out a table of prices charged in the United States.

+ A L A Bkl 11:204 Ja '15

"A practical, interesting and popularly written manual."

+ Elec World 64:825 O 24 '14 100w

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 60w

LANE, RALPH NORMAN ANGELL (NORMAN ANGELL, pseud.). Arms and industry (Eng title, Foundations of international polity). *$1.25 (1½c) Putnam 14-8615

This book is a companion volume to "The great illusion." It is concerned chiefly with the interrelation between modern states. The author says: "I have attempted here to show that the civilized world has become, not merely economically, but morally and intellectually, independent." An introductory summary of the argument is followed by six chapters as follows: Case for the revision of certain principles of statecraft; Moral and material factors in international politics; The influence of credit upon international relations; The place of military force in modern statecraft; "Two keels to one not enough"; Concerning the international polity movement.

A L A Bkl 11:57 O '14

"The book is a worthy companion volume to its predecessor."

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 29 '14 450w

"Though Mr. Angell's style is often involved, what he has to say is always compelling. His new book is not only most instructive but profoundly stimulating, and deserves to be widely read." E. B. Krehbiel

+ Dial 57:135 S 1 '14 1250w

+ Educ R 49:105 Ja '15 50w

Ind 98:289 My 18 '14 17w

"It is an exceedingly thoughtful thesis that Mr. Angell presents and it reflects high social ideals."

+ J Pol Econ 22:714 J1 '14 150w

+ Nation 99:255 Ag 27 '14 1800w

"As an arraignment of war in the abstract, as a criticism of the mere fetishism of nationality, as a summing up of the influences that are making the settlement of differences by armed conflict continually more illogical, 'Arms and industry,' like 'The great illusion,' must have great weight. As a complete philosophy of international politics, it leaves us somewhat unsatisfied, because it seems to share in part the grandiose universality of the military theories it was written to confute."

+ — No Am 200:157 J1 '14 1000w

Sat R 117:346 Mr 14 '14 200w

"Mr. Angell's addresses in this volume are examples of clear thinking and sound exposition."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 16 '14 520w

LANG, ANDREW. Oxford. il *$3 Lippincott

"It is a quarter-century since Andrew Lang, sometime fellow of Merton College, Oxford, delighted his brother Oxonians and many others with his historical and descriptive notes on the famous old university. That book, with its numerous exquisite drawings by Mr. Joseph Pennell, R. Kent Thomas, A. Brunet-Debaines, and others, is probably no longer easily obtainable; hence the acceptability of a new edition with what will be to many modern readers equally attractive and even more attractive illustrations in the colored plates of Mr. George F. Carline."—Dial

"Many curious anecdotes, traditional or historical, enliven these chapters, which, despite the antiquity of their theme, are brisk with life and color."

+ Dial 57:461 D 1 '14 140w

"For any lover of Oxford this is a book to recall rare memories; and for any lover of good books it is one to handle with fondness."

+ Nation 99:662 D 3 '14 120w

"It is indeed the very soul of Oxford that he shows us."

+ N Y Times 19:529 N 29 '14 120w

"The story is full of fascination, and the large type in which it is told and the captivating illustrations make this book a delight to the eye and to the mind."

+ Outlook 108:900 D 16 '14 220w

LANG, ANDREW, and LANG, JOHN. Highways and byways in the Border. il *$2 Macmillan 14-699

The material for this book was gathered by Andrew Lang and his brother John. It has been edited and prepared for publication by John Lang. "Whether this account of the Borderland is as interesting to a particular reader as the other volumes have been, will depend on the attraction for him of the dour deeds of the Douglasses and Percys and their like, compared with the more civilized literary traditions that prevail in the southern counties. But there is humor, too, besides the romance of ruthless feuds." (Nation)

+ A L A Bkl 10:227 F '14

"This is a book with a double interest—an interest for its subject, an interest for what it contains of Andrew Lang's latest writing."

+ — Ath 1914,1:406 Mr 21 850w

"A notable contribution to the lore of the ever-interesting Border."

+ Dial 55:528 D 16 '13 220w

Reviewed by C. E. Hesselgrave

+ Ind 76:509 D 11 '13 90w

"As it stands, the book is worthy of the unvaryingly excellent series which Macmillans have had the good fortune to carry through."

+ Nation 97:568 D 11 '13 270w

"A modest enough book, from either a literary or a historic point of view, but one wishes that upon every subject which is capable of being made interesting to the majority of men and women as sound and charming a book could be written."

+ No Am 199:463 Mr '14 600w

"A truly delightful volume." Sir Herbert Maxwell

+ — Sat R 117:76 Ja 17 '14 1800w

"The book has the charm, the aroma of the scholar of Oxford and St. Andrews, and Mr.

John Lang is heartily to be congratulated on a charming volume, which all lovers of the Border will joyfully add to their bookshelves. A word should be added in praise of the illustrations by Mr. Hugh Thomson, at once accurate in drawing and delicate and suggestive of atmosphere."

+ — Spec 111:1027 D 13 '13 1550w

LANG, JOHN, and LANG, JEAN, comps. Poetry of heroism. il *$2.50 Putnam 14-30088

"The running title at the top of the page, 'Poetry of empire,' describes far better than that on the title page, 'Poetry of heroism,' the contents of this volume . . . for the collection of verse is designed to be a 'chronological history of the English nation.' (N Y Sun) "One will find all the favorites long familiar to readers, but there are likewise a large number of poems not easily accessible in ordinary editions for which the reader will be very grateful." (Boston Transcript)

A L A Bkl 10:228 F '14

"The editors have done their work well in every respect."

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 6 '13 250w

Nation 97:464 N 13 '13 120w

"As a historical record in verse, the collection is excellent, for it is full of stirring events which often have found worthy poets to sing of them. The colored pictures by W. Rainey are spirited and harmonious."

+ N Y Sun p6 O 25 '13 200w

"It is all a fine array of heroic verse, but is of particular value as an anthology containing pieces not easily found elsewhere."

+ N Y Times 18:702 N 30 '13 80w

LANGE, ALGOT. Lower Amazon; with an intro. by F. S. Dellenbaugh. il *$2.50 (2c) Putnam 14-20570

The region bordering the Amazon on the south, from Peru to the Atlantic is called Amazonia, taking in two Brazilian states, Amazonas and Pará. In his earlier book "In the Amazon jungle" the author described his explorations into the extreme western part of this territory; the present work describes journeys thru the extreme eastern part, in the state of Pará. He gives an account of a journey up the Tocantins river; another to the headwaters of the Rio Moju, and two into the interior of the island of Marajó at the mouth of the Amazon. The book has over one hundred illustrations and a folding map. There is a chapter giving Notes on Amazonian folk-lore, and an appendix gives the vocabulary of one of the native tribes. Brief explanatory remarks add to the value of the index.

"There is an amiably intimate touch about Mr. Lange's book, and even his frequent complaining about unpleasant conditions, hardships and so on, is not as deterrent an it might be because it all adds to the intimacy. The Tupi vocabulary at the end of the book is of value and absorbing interest to the student of languages." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:571 Ja '15 250w

"He writes of all these things with a pleasing facility and he conveys a knowledge that carries its own stamp of authenticity. Many excellent pictures illuminate a capital account of adventure and exploration." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 6 '15 1250w

"A most readable account."

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 30w

Ind 81:212 F 8 '15 60w

Lit D 50:110 Ja 16 '15 200w

LANGE, DIETRICH. Lost in the fur country. il (1½c) *$1 Lothrop

A story of the early days of our country's history. John and Ellen, twin brother and sister, are captured by Indians and taken from their Kentucky home up into the Great Lakes region. For a time they are kept together, but later are separated to be brought up by different tribes. The story thereafter follows the adventures of John, who is fortunate in being given over to the care of Netnowa, a motherly

Indian woman. He is given to understand that his parents are dead, and learns to be happy in his Indian home, but the memory of his sister never leaves him and when he attains manhood he goes in search of her. The two learn that the story of their parents' death had been false, and they return to their home for a happy reunion.

"If for nothing else, would be worthy of commendation for the charming portrait of the Indian mother Netnowa." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:450 D '14 80w

"An interesting tale."

+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 60w

"A carefully wrought story. It has the accuracy and literary skill that one would expect from its author, who is superintendent of schools in St. Paul." H. L. Reed

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 100w

LARNED, MRS. LINDA (HULL). One hundred cold desserts. *50c (7c) Scribner 14-5126

Recipes for one hundred desserts which, altho they are to be served cold, require considerable fore-preparation. The recipes will give the housewife many suggestions for the coming hot summer days.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 16 '14 20w

+ Ind 78:53 Ap 6 '14 20w

+ Nation 98:610 My 21 '14 10w

LARNED, MRS. LINDA (HULL). One hundred cold salads. *50c (7c) Scribner 14-5127

The salad recipes are preceded by directions for the making of various kinds of dressings. The author shows how almost every known fruit and vegetable may be utilized, and tells as well how to make chicken, lobster and shrimp salads.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 16 '14 20w

+ Ind 78:53 Ap 6 '14 20w

+ Nation 98:610 My 21 '14 10w

LASELLE, MARY AGUSTA. Young woman worker. il (3c) *$1 1½grim press 14-18929

The author gives advice to girls on matters of Manners, Health, Dress, Friends, Habits, and Aims. "Efficiency, fitness, ability, these are what make work a pleasure and bring success" is the book's message.

Boston Transcript p9 Ja 16 '15 200w

"Admirable advice for girls who earn their own living is given."

+ N Y Times 19:508 N 15 '14 80w

"Practical, sound advice upon what might be classed as the superficial essentials of a business woman's training is to be found in this small volume."

+ Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 70w

LAUBER, ALMON WHEELER. Indian slavery in colonial times within the present limits of the United States. (Columbia univ. studies in history, economics and public law, v. 54, no. 3) *$3.50 Longmans 13-15790

"Dr. Lauber divides his volume into two parts: the first dealing with the enslavement of Indians by the Indians themselves, the Spaniards, and the French; and the second with the institution as practised by the English. He also summarizes the legislative measures which brought about its gradual decline and final abolition."—Ath

"Searching and scholarly monograph." P. A. Bruce

+ Am Hist R 19:356 Ja '14 770w

"The volume is interesting, not only as dealing with a neglected phase of our early history, but as affording some additional information regarding the interplay of social and economic forces in the beginnings of American society." A. B. Hall

+ Am J Soc 19:684 Mr '14 100w

"Exhaustive treatise."

+ Ath 1913,2:206 Ag 30 90w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

LAUBER, ALMON WHEELER.—Continued.

"A voluminous treatise, and a scholarly one, evidencing elaborate research."

+ Chaut 72:383 Ja 10 '14 120w

"The author of this volume has entered a comparatively new field of research, and his thorough and careful study places before the public much interesting material hitherto inaccessible."

+ J Pol Econ 21:976 D '13 80w

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. Everybody's<sup>12</sup> birthright; a vision of Jeanne d'Arc. il *75c (2½c) Revell 14-16211

Courage is an ideal too seldom held up to girls; gratitude is due to Clara E. Laughlin that she has made it the keynote of this story. A young girl crushed by the weight of a sad bereavement comes under the influence of an older woman who shows her the need of heroism in every day life, using Jeanne d'Arc as an inspiration. There is a pilgrimage thru France to the haunts of the Maid, and the love story which gives the tale its touch of romance comes to an end with the meeting of two long-parted lovers in the cathedral of Rheims.

"Miss Laughlin has studied the natures of all kinds of girls and she has the art of writing the kind of story at once to interest and inspire them."

+ Boston Transcript p21 S 9 '14 130w

N Y Times 19:379 S 13 '14 100w

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. Work-a-day girl. il *$1.50 Revell 13-24487

"Miss Laughlin has made a concrete appeal. Every chapter is the telling of the story of some girl who has had to go into the world to make her living without sufficient preparation, and to work for wages which cannot support her. . . . The questions that the book arouses are many. Some have to do with a minimum wage legislation, others with the training of girls to be ready to earn a living wage—a problem that the public schools are apparently solving with the noticeable turning toward the teaching of trades in place of and in combination with the more purely academic studies."—Boston Transcript

A L A Bkl 10:228 F '14

"The subject matter as well as the manner of handling makes 'The work-a-day girl' one of the most vital books of the season. No one can read it carefully without feeling the need of just such a book and without being aroused at the call of the needs and the problems of a large class of workers, who are today, pushed into the world to fight for themselves." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 31 '14 580w

Lit D 49:522 S 19 '14 200w

"Disclaiming positive authority, she has made a fairly comprehensive study of her subject and presents some extremely telling stories."

+ Outlook 106:46 Ja 3 '14 160w

LAURIE, ARTHUR PILLANS. Pigments and mediums of the old masters. il *$2.75 Macmillan 14-10201

"The pigments and mediums of the old masters' are here discussed almost solely with the object of providing means for deciding when and by whom a picture was painted. The question of how or why is hardly touched upon. . . . The book embodies the result of a certain course of inquiry on these lines, the experiments being for the most part made with certain illuminated manuscripts—above all, the Court rolls in the Record office—and the Venetian Ducali, which have the advantage for the purpose of being definitely dated. We thus find a table of pigments arranged chronologically to show the dates of their introduction and their period of use in various countries, together with information as to the pigments or media used in certain pictures."—Ath

Ath 1913,2:sup437 O 18 50w

"Mr. Laurie's book is invaluable to any one interested in testing the authenticity of alleged old masters. It may as cordially be recommended to the other large class which is interested in evading those tests."

+ Ath 1914,1:563 Ap 18 800w

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 120w

+ Int Studio 53:168 Ag '14 220w

"The book is thus of much interest, not only to dealer and collector, but to the artist and historian." W. M. Gardner

+ Nature 94:276 N 12 '14 470w

LAUT, AGNES CHRISTINA. New dawn. il *$1.35 Moffat 14-118

"This volume is cast in the form of fiction, but the author is much more concerned with expressing an idea, stating a conception of life, than she is with telling a story. Each character is a sort of personification of an attitude toward life, and the whole story might be described as a modern morality novel." (N Y Times) "It traces the career of an American boy from the moment when he first attracts the attention of his employer, the head of a gigantic ship-building corporation, through all the ensuing steps of his career, the marriage with his employer's daughter, his own rise to supreme control, his mad dream of a vast consolidation, international and world-wide,—and then his slow enlightenment, the final dawning upon him that it had all really not been worth while, that he had missed the essentials of the joy of living." (Bookm)

"The weak point of the book is its divided interest. The author started to expound broadly the problem of American industry, commerce, and finance;—and she ended with the anti-climax of an individual destiny." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:80 Mr '14 250w

"Is a story of great force and vividness."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 4 '14 300w

"Miss Laut's work, whatever she essays, can always be taken up with the assurance that in one way or another it will be worth while. She is less successful when she attempts fiction than she is when she confines herself to the descriptive and historical work."

+ N Y Times 19:73 F 15 '14 400w

"A capital story."

+ R of Rs 49:374 Mr '14 170w

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Widowing<sup>6</sup> of Mrs. Holroyd. (Modern drama ser.) *$1 Kennerley 14-6802

The scenes of this three-act drama which are laid in the kitchen of a miner's cottage, recall the early part of Mr. Lawrence's novel, "Sons and Lovers." A woman of superior character and refinement is married to a man much her inferior. Weary of her sordid life, she is ready to listen to the lover who begs her to go away with him, but on the night that she is to give an answer, her husband is brought up dead from the pit.

"The fault of the play is its inconclusiveness, which would handicap it on the stage; but, from the reader's point of view, this is more than redeemed by keen insight into character and firm grasp of situation." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Dial 58:48 Ja 16 '15 220w

"A psychological play involving sex, with a very sordid setting. Written with insight."

+ Ind 78:324 My 25 '14 13w

"It deserves its place in the 'Modern drama series,' as an example of the new realistic school, but the 'superb craftsmanship' which the editor discerns in it is scarcely its most distinguishing quality. It is, on the contrary, in constructive skill that the play is chiefly defective."

+ Nation 99:112 Jl 23 '14 670w

"Mr. Lawrence's play is mere photography, but it is the excellence of the lens which makes it a good play."

+ N Y Times 19:416 O 4 '14 220w

LAWRENCE, REV. THOMAS JOSEPH, comp.
Documents illustrative of international law.
$2 Heath 14-15472

"This volume contains a large number of documents of various kinds bearing on the development of international law from the writings of Grotius and Pufendorf down to the Declaration of London." (Am Pol Sci R)
"Although this collection was prepared before the outbreak of the present European war, its materials are of great convenience, especially in the chapters which present the laws of war and those affecting questions of neutrality. The important Hague conventions and treaties are given in full, and extracts are presented from a vast number of treaties, laws, and documents that relate to the more important topics of international concern." (R of Rs)

"Not all the various fields or divisions of international law are covered with equal fullness, but this is not a very serious defect, and the volume will undoubtedly be a welcome aid to all teachers of the subject."

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:671 N '14 120w

"An exceedingly useful volume."

+ R of Rs 50:633 N '14 100w

LAWSON, W. R. British railways; a financial and commercial survey. *$2 Van Nostrand (Eng ed A14-341)

"Mr. Lawson's book deals with the railway system as a machine and a business and may be said to discuss its design and its operation in these two aspects. It gives a most interesting explanation of the railway business as conducted in Great Britain, with an insight into the special conditions affecting matters of policy and of practice. One striking feature of the book is that it indicates a great similarity of conditions in Great Britain and the United States in regard to railway development and the problems of railway administration." (Engin N) "In many respects he holds up American practices for British emulation. But his sympathies are with stockholders and directors as against traders and the workers on the railroads." (Ind)

"Mr. Lawson has an intimate knowledge of his subject, which he presents in a lively and interesting way. There are inaccuracies as well as loose or incomplete statements that amount to inaccuracies, so far as the impression that they leave on the mind of the reader is concerned." E. R. Dewsnup

+ — Am Econ R 4:640 S '14 750w

Ath 1913,2:726 D 20 170w

"The book is written well and in a manner that attracts attention."

+ Engin N 71:1166 My 21 '14 550w

Ind 78:494 Je 15 '14 100w

"It is an interesting book, and should prove of interest to all American students of transportation who enjoy seeing themselves as others see them." J. M. Clark

+ J Pol Econ 22:800 O '14 970w

"Students of the American railroad problem will find it profitable to read this work with some care."

+ N Y Times 19:331 Ag 2 '14 120w

"Mr. Lawson has a vigorous and effective style, though it sometimes takes a carping tone."

+ — Spec 112:1037 Je 20 '14 70w

LAZAROVICH-HREBELIANOVICH, STEPHAN
LAZAR EUGENE, prince. Orient question to-day and to-morrow. il *$1.25 Duffield 13-19494

In this book the author "deals with the problems of southeastern Europe in their relations to the older continents and to the world in general. He finds that the geo-political situation of the Balkan peninsula brings it into important relationships with such world problems as Anglo-Russian and Anglo-German antagonisms, and the United States as a world power. The approaches to Suez and Panama are considered by him in this book as historic trade routes, and the great question of Islamism is discussed informally."—R of Rs

"Timely because of their intelligent treatment of many international questions, not only Far Eastern but Near Eastern, European and American."

+ A L A Bkl 10:273 Mr '14

Reviewed by A. B. Hart

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:707 N '14 500w

Boston Transcript p8 O 18 '13 1250w

"Since the date of the Foreword—March, 1913—the alliance of the Balkan states has broken up and Balkan unity seems farther off than ever, so that some of the author's conclusions must be revised, but as a spreading forth of facts the volume is valuable and readable."

+ — Chaut 72:282 D 6 '13 320w

N Y Times 18:560 O 19 '13 130w

"In his 'Servian people' Prince Lazarovich has already instructed us in interesting detail. In his present volume he gives us more instruction. It would be more immediately available had the book been provided with an index."

+ — Outlook 106:321 F 7 '14 400w

R of Rs 48:635 N '13 140w

LEA, FANNIE HEASLIP. Sicily Ann. il *$1<sup>12</sup> (2c) Harper 14-17813

Sicily Ann of Salem, Virginia, went out to visit her married sister in Honolulu. On the first stage of her journey she shed bitter tears because Jimmy Fox had not come to the train to say good-bye. Jimmy Fox's father had made his money in hardware and his family tree, as he himself said, resembled one of those Japanese pines that are about two feet high. Plainly he was no match for an Ambler of Virginia, and the visit to Honolulu was arranged with admirable forethought by Sicily Ann's mother. Arrived at her destination, Sicily Ann learns why Jimmie had failed to see her off; he had sailed the day she did on a fast steamer and was there to greet her on the dock. There are a variety of flirtations and love affairs in the course of the story, but before its close there are occurrences which lead Mrs. Ambler to overlook the hardware and the stunted family tree.

"The success of the story lies in the mirthful, light, subtle and happy spirit in which the characters are described."

+ Boston Transcript p25 D 2 '14 480w

"As slight and soap-bubbly a story as one might find in a long search—or even as one might wish to find, Mrs. Lea's novel is also dainty and gay and mildly amusing."

+ — N Y Times 19:475 N 1 '14 230w

"The story is a bright little sketch."

+ Outlook 108:653 N 18 '14 500w

LEA, HERMANN. Thomas Hardy's Wessex. il<sup>1</sup> *$2.50 Macmillan A14-673

"Mr. Lea's plan is to follow the characters of each novel through the scenes of their lives as Mr. Hardy portrays them. He begins with 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles,' as the first of the 'Novels of character and environment,' and thereafter follows Mr. Hardy's own classification, the second part of his work being given to 'Romances and fantasies,' a third to 'Novels of ingenuity,' with a supplementary fourth part traversing the scenes of 'Wessex poems,' 'The dynasts' and the other volumes of poetry."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:274 Mr '14

"Though Mr. Lea is not first in the field, he holds his own easily by the thoroughness of his survey. Our only objection to Mr. Lea is that he is too businesslike, and, anxious apparently to get through his long journey, does not give us more of the details which would make his work less like a guide-book."

+ — Ath 1913,2:617 N 29 920w

"Those who desire to know well the country of Hardy's novels, will be interested in this book. When all is said, mental pictures do need confirmation, at any rate, in the majority of cases. And here we have just such confirmation as is needful."

+ Cath World 98:543 Ja '14 200w

LEA, HERMANN—Continued.

"The author has given us what must be adjudged the most thorough and trustworthy guide to Mr. Hardy's Wessex that has yet appeared."

— Dial 56:14 Mr 1 '14 220w

"So long as there are no limits to human curiosity and to hero worship, there will be people eager for precisely such details as Mr. Lea has gathered."

— Ind 77:212 F 9 '14 80w

"For the enthusiastic student of the works of Thomas Hardy it will be valuable as a book of reference."

— Nation 98:242 Mr 5 '14 150w

"Mr. Lea has produced a book adapted for easy reference, describing much that will ultimately disappear, and giving pleasure to the casual reader. Moreover, such facts as he has collected add a sense of permanence and definiteness to our appreciation of Hardy's novels."

— No Am 199:470 Mr '14 550w

"Apart from the special Hardy interest, the book gives charming glimpses of the English country."

— Outlook 106:95 Ja 10 '14 100w

— Spec 111:988 D 6 '13 60w

LEACH, HENRY, happy golfer. $1.75 Macmillan

"Mr. Leach recounts his varied experiences in many parts of the world with thorough enthusiasm and enjoyment, and, we may add, with distinct profit to golfing readers. His discourses on the origins of golf, and does not despise Sir Walter Simpson's somewhat fantastic theories of the Shophers and their pebbles; and the ethics, wonders, and advantages of the game receive due recognition from him." (Ath) "Various chapters treat of recent golfing incidents in this country including Olmsted's memorable defeat of the foremost British professionals. . . . He describes golf in Canada, in France, Spain, and Italy, on the Riviera and in the Pyrenees, and he has an argument to present in favor of British golf courses with which nobody can seriously disagree." (N Y Times)

"We can recommend the book to all golfers, travelling or otherwise."

— Ath 194:2173 Ag 8 200w

"An agreeable mélange of story and advice, travel and description."

— Nation 99:694 D 10 '14 230w

"This is a brightly written book, full of the free air of the links and the sweet philosophy of the man who enjoys the simple life of the natural athlete." C. G. K.

— Nature 94:807 N 19 '14 230w

"As a whole, Mr. Leach's new book is chiefly noteworthy as an exposition of the golfing character and a study of the human peculiarities associated with the game. To enjoy it most one must have had some experience as a golfer."

— N Y Times 19:593 N 15 '14 370w

"He is never dull. It is a happy book—happily conceived, happily written."

— Sat R 118:54 J1 11 '14 280w

Spec 113:101 J1 18 '14 80w

LEACOCK, STEPHEN BUTLER, Arcadian adventures with the idle rich. $1.25 (13c) Lane 14-19307

Mr. Leacock chooses as a subject for his satire a group of American plutocrats who live on Flutaria avenue, frequent the Mausoleum club, put up at the Grand Palaver hotel, and bestow benefactions upon Flutaria university, moved thereto by the eloquence of its president, Dr. Foomer. The stories are: A little dinner with Mr. Lucullus Fyshe; The wizard of finance; The arrested philanthropy of Mr. Tomlinson; The Yahi-Bahi oriental society of Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown; The love story of Mr. Peter Spillikins; The rival churches of St. Asaph and St. Oseph; The ministrations of the Rev. Uttermust Dumfarthing; The great fight for clean government.

— Ath 1915:168 Ja 23 220w

"Another collection of short stories is offered to that portion of the reading public which is glad to laugh and doesn't object to thinking a little too. 'Arcadian adventures with the idle rich' will maintain Mr. Leacock's reputation as a humorist. Whoever reads it must laugh, particularly if he reads it aloud."

— Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 250w

"A successful satire."

— Dial 58:86 F 1 '15 140w

"The style is unusual; it is at once deft, subtle and clever."

— Ind 81:57 Ja 11 '15 70w

"Some of these characters are deliciously conceived, with just the touch of exaggeration that is required for satire, but without the distortion that turns the picture into caricature."

— Nation 19:715 D 17 '14 400w

"Not a book to be read all at a time; in sections, with suitable intervals between, it is very amusing, though it cannot be denied that Mr. Leacock has done better work."

— N Y Times 19:569 D 13 '14 350w

"Sometimes he wields a two-edged sword, but most of his sketches are good-humoured and breathe a spirit of light-hearted gaiety that is quite contagious."

— Sat R 118:635 D 19 '14 480w

"A blend of delicious teasing and excellent satire. Once more the author of 'Literary lapses' has proved himself a benefactor of his kind."

— Spec 113:753 N 28 '14 1950w

LEAKE, ALBERT H. Industrial education, il $1.25 Houghton 13-15259

The author of this Hart, Schaffner and Marx prize essay is inspector of technical education in Ontario. He "discusses the history of his subject, points out that industrial education was in operation centuries ago and outlines a system of training that will meet the needs of the schools of the present. Mr. Leake is especially anxious that America shall not give too much attention to German methods, as he contends that they cannot be adopted in entirety by this country." (Boston Transcript)

"An excellent book for both teacher and general reader."

— A L A Bkl 10:142 D '13

"Few more thorough studies of the whole problem of industrial education have been made than this one."

— Boston Transcript p9 S 13 '13 100w

"The book will be useful to students of our present-day problems of industrial education." E. G. Cooley

— Educ R 47:203 F '14 500w

"The work is of much value for reference and as a summary to those who appreciate and are following this very important problem."

— Engin Rec 69:457 Ap 18 '14 200w

— School R 22:203 Mr '14 250w

"The book is written from a practical standpoint with a historical background which renders it at once interesting and instructive." F. M. Leavitt

— Survey 31:528 Ja 31 '14 260w

"Authoritative and useful survey of the whole subject."

— Wis Lib Bull 10:126 My '14 30w

LEARY, LEWIS GASTON, Syria, the land of Lebanon, il $3 (5c); $1.25 (2c) McBride, Nast & co. 13-26662; A14-1241

The author has written this book as a companion volume to an earlier work on "Real Palestine of to-day," in order that the two together may give a complete view of the lands of the Bible. The chapters that describe his journeys thru the picturesque land are: The white mountain; The left-hand land; The city of Saturn; The spirit of Olympia; Across the mountains; The land of Uz; The earthly paradise; The port of the wilderness; The riches of Damascus; The desert capital; Some salt people; The cedars of the Lord; The giant stones of Baalbek; Hamath the great.

— A L A Bkl 10:425 Je '14

"The interesting story of a land that possesses a rare natural beauty. This book and his previous volume, 'The real Palestine of to-day,' give a complete view of the lands of the Bible, although the two books may be read independently."

- + Boston Transcript p7 Ja 19 '14 270w
- + Ind 78:565 Je 29 '14 169w
- + Lit D 48:620 Mr 21 '14 250w

"His accounts of his personal experience are always interesting and occasionally humorous and he provides many fine photographs. A book of travel that any reader can enjoy and profit by."

- + N Y Sun p1 Jr 13 '13 170w

"Valuable because of the few readable books on Syria."

- + Wis Lib Bull 10:59 Ap '14 10w

LEBLANC, MAURICE. Teeth of the tiger; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. 11-16459 (1c) Doubleday

Arsène Lupin, supposed by everyone to have died, returns to Paris in this story as Don Luis Perenna. A series of mysterious murders demands explanation and Arsène is put on the track. The first man to die by an unknown hand had been his friend, Cosmo Mornington, who had remembered him in his will; those whose deaths followed were the direct heirs to Mornington's wealth. Suspicion rests upon two people, Mme. Fauville and Arsène Lupin, himself; so in the story that follows he plays a double rôle of suspected criminal and detective.

Bookm 40:683 F '15 250w

"An over-use of the element of chance and a tendency toward melodrama weaken the story, tho there is action and excitement enough to spur the most jaded taste."

- + Ind 89:174 N 2 '14 70w

"On the whole, an excellent detective story. Its plot, in piling up mystery upon mystery, becomes somewhat too complicated; and the story is open to the usual censure that its 'villains' are sometimes too stupid, and its 'heroes' too lucky, to be quite true. 'The teeth of the tiger,' too, is quite too long. But it is not impossible, for all that, that it may be 'read at a sitting.'"

- + N Y Times 19:411 O 4 '14 450w

"With 'The teeth of the tiger,' Maurice Leblanc takes his place among the masters of detective fiction." M. A. Hopkins

- + Pub W 86:1291 O 17 '14 490w

LEDoux, LOUIS VERNON. Shadow of Aetna. 14-6225 [poems]. *$1 Putnam

"The volume opens with 'Persephone: a masque,' a lyrical telling of the maiden's abduction by Pluto, the story being told in accumulative effects in which the deed is the episode of a climax; and ends with 'A threnody: In memory of the destruction of Messina by earthquake.'"—Boston Transcript

- + Bookm 35:199 Ap '14 30w

"Very few contemporary poets have proved themselves such architects of rhythm and rhyme as Mr. Ledoux proves himself in the contents of this slender volume. The lyrics and sonnets will be liked for their beauty of color and music, for their expression of moods and ideas pulsing with the sympathy and feeling for human nature." W. S. B.

- + Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 1450w

"Mr. Ledoux's longer poems are full of dignity and splendor; sometimes, however, as in 'The gift' and in this delightful lullaby, [Slumber song], he writes with an intimate simplicity that is most appealing."

- + Lit D 48:845 Ap 11 '14 500w
- Nation 59:249 Ag 27 '14 100w

"Mr. Ledoux has beautiful ideas to express, and the power to express them beautifully. Therefore his poems, lofty in theme and admirable in execution, have a charm that will not vanish with the swift years." Joyce Kilmer

- + N Y Times 19:565 D 13 '14 280w

LEE, CUTHBERT. With Dr. Grenfell in "Labrador. 11-19105 Neale

"The introduction is by Douglas Palmer, a member for four years of the medical staff of the international medical mission in Labrador. The opening chapter, written by Dr. Grenfell himself, is a description of the whole economic organization of the coast, and points out what he believes to be the great possibilities of the future for this little-known land. In the remainder of the book, the author, who has been a volunteer aid to Dr. Grenfell, describes the people, Indians, Eskimos, and the 'liveyeres,' or white natives; the hunting and fishing, the commercial opportunities and the various explorations. He gives the first full account of Dr. Grenfell's medical mission, their stations, buildings, personnel, and fleet of schooners and launches. He gives also exact information of how to reach Labrador, detailing routes and accommodations to be found by the way."—Springfield Republican

- + Boston Transcript p5 Je 16 '14 290w

"A brightly written manual of information."

- + Nation 98:641 My 23 '14 230w

"A book of unusual interest."

- + Springfield Republican p5 S 24 '14 250w

LEE, ELIZABETH. Ouida: a memoir. *$3 Duffield (Eng ed 15-2572)

"Both for the purpose of recording the truth and dispelling the false, Miss Lee has written her biography of Ouida. It is a straight-forward, unimaginative record. It is written from a friendly and sympathetic point of view and it makes no attempt at a critical weighing of the genius of Ouida, the novelist. It is simply a statement of facts, a lively chronicle expanded by free use of Ouida's own letters. 'My aim in writing this book has been to set forth,' says the biographer, 'a plain statement of the facts of Ouida's life and career. So many apocryphal stories had gathered around the woman and the novelist that it seemed desirable to clear the ground. As far as the material available admitted, I have allowed Ouida to tell her own story, and have intervened only when necessary to secure the clearness and coherence of the narrative.'"—Boston Transcript

"Judicious and well-balanced memoir. Miss Lee has performed a very difficult task with ability and tact."

- + Ath 1914:1517 Ap 11 1200w

- + Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 1650w

- Nation 59:502 O 22 '14 480w

- + N Y Times 19:533 N 29 '14 650w

- Sat R 117:466 Mr 28 '14 500w

"Very pleasing and entertaining life."

- + Spec 112:691 Ap 11 '14 1900w

LEE, GERALD STANLEY. Crowds jr. *50c (2½c) Doubleday 14-2146

The author gives this book the sub-title: "a little introductory run through 'Crowds.'" The contents have been selected from the larger book and arranged for "men in a hurry." The subjects chosen for this smaller book are: Getting one's own attention; Getting other people's attention; The American temperament in business; Fear and business; Scorn and business; The man and the machine; The latest bargain; The man who says how; News; Last news.

"Although the points of some sections are lost or weakened because of the condensation, the book will be found useful for small libraries unable to afford the larger one or for those 'who read as they run.'"

- + A L A Bkl 10:336 Ap '14

"The author's ideas shape themselves in paragraphs, and these are thrown together in a heap."

- Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 270w

"Into this book he seems to have put the essence of a straightforward, clear-seeing, honest man's thinking about the world—an honest man

LEE, GERALD STANLEY—Continued.
with a sense of humor and a very special gift for saying things."

+ N Y Times 19:88 F 22 '14 480w

LEE, HELENA (CRUMETT) (MRS. JOHN CLARENCE LEE). Across Siberia alone:
an American woman's adventures. il $1.35
Lane 14-2750

Mrs. Lee "tells an entertaining story and covers much more than one would expect a traveller to catch in so hasty a journey, for she lingers on the way only as long as her stopover ticket will allow. That her adventures are all so pleasant doubtless is due to her resourcefulness and courage, for while she occasionally reaches the edge of danger she never allows herself to go over."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:313 Ap '14

"Mrs. Lee describes many sights of interest along the way and conveys much historical, political, educational, religious, social and other information in small space, thus contributing to her work a solidity that many globe-trotting writers omit."

+ Boston Transcript p23 F 18 '14 150w

"If Mrs. John Clarence Lee had intentionally striven to prejudice her readers against her story of 'Across Siberia alone,' it is difficult to see how she could have chosen a more effective way than her selection of an American wedding in Shanghai for her first chapter. This chapter is ultra-personal, it is super-sentimental, it is everything that the rest of the book is not. One closes the book with more facts fixed more firmly in mind than would result from the perusal of many pretentious but less clearly written volumes."

+ — Nation 98:243 Mr 5 '14 220w

"Were one to depend upon her statement and statistics he would be led far afield."

— N Y Times 19:314 Jl 19 '14 400w

"Mrs. Lee has presented a practical, apparently up-to-date, and certainly useful account of that country."

+ Outlook 106:505 F 28 '14 50w

LEE, JENNETTE BARBOUR (PERRY) (MRS.
GERALD STANLEY LEE). Woman in the alcove. il $1 (5c) Scribner 14-15747

A middle-aged business man, wedded to money-making and saving and investing, steps into a brilliant café in the course of an afternoon's business. Seated across from him, half-hidden by the curtain that shelters her alcove, is a beautiful, mysterious and richly-gowned woman. At first sight she seems, to Eldridge Walcott, to be his wife, Rosalind. Yet she cannot be, for he left Rosalind that morning, as he did every morning, a drab woman in shabby clothes and spectacles, interested only in the children's stockings and his comfort. Thruout the remainder of the little story Eldridge Walcott is engaged in a quest—he tries to discover the woman he has lived with for many years, but never known. The title of the story, and perhaps the idea, is taken from the Browning poem beginning:

Room after room,
I hunt the house through
We inhabit together.

"A slight but convincing story."

+ A L A Bkl 11:77 O '14

"Read it by all means, for it preaches that beauty and love and happiness are often within our very grasp if only our eyes are not too blinded by the greed of material things." F: T.
Cooper

+ Bookm 40:440 D '14 290w

"The interest is admirably sustained; we seem to listen to thought; and to behold the awakening of love; it is a story told with a delicacy and charm like that of a soft spring breeze; something ethereal that touches
one gently as it passes."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 S 26 '14 20 w

"This little story of Jennette Lee's has charm;
it has meaning; it is a human story conceived with exquisite sympathy, a bit of allegory told with a rare and gracious and suggestive loveliness. Not to have read it is to have missed something beautiful."

+ N Y Times 19:400 S 27 '14 460w

+ Outlook 108:440 O 21 '14 60w

LEE, RICHARD HENRY. Letters of Richard
Henry Lee, v 2 1779-1794; coll. and ed. by James Curtis Ballagh; pub. under the auspices of the National society of the Colonial dames of America. $2.50 (1½c) Macmillan

Volume 1 of these letters was published in 1911. The present volume covers the last fifteen years of Lee's life, 1779-1794, and contains something over 290 letters. During this period
Richard Henry Lee served as member of Congress, Virginia assemblyman, president of Congress, and first United States senator from Virginia.

"These pages make their appeal to the casual reader as well as to the seeker after the facts of history."

+ Dial 57:297 S 16 '14 200w

"The editor has shown most praiseworthy diligence in collecting these letters and collating their texts; he might, with advantage to readers less thoroughly informed than himself as to the persons and matters noticed in them, have been more liberal in explanation." W. H.

+ — Eng Hist R 29:797 O '14 620w

+ Nation 99:690 D 10 '14 800w

R of Rs 50:120 Jl '14 100w

LEE, VERNON, pseud. (VIOLET PAGET). The beautiful; an introduction to psychological aesthetics. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) *40c Putnam 14-969

"Vernon Lee deals with what is, rather than with what ought to be. She does not attempt to tell how things can be made beautiful, or even how we can recognize them when they are beautiful. She conceives beauty as existent and ready to be enjoyed, and she analyzes and explains its existence and its enjoyment." (Boston Transcript) "In pursuit of this aim, the author leads us through chapters of varying difficulty on 'Elements of shape,' 'Empathy,' 'The aims of art,' 'Co-operation of things and shapes,' 'Aesthetic irradiation and purification,' and kindred topics." (Dial)

"The subject is carefully thought out, but the writer's use of italics does not add to the value of her style and explanations."

+ — Ath 1913,2:593 N 22 50w

"There is life throughout this very human discussion of an academic theme." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p7 Mr 7 '14 380w

Cath World 100:679 F '15 200w

"The plan of this little book is delightfully simple. In this respect Miss Paget's volume is admirable; for it does not blink the hard points, while the presentation is as clear and as free from technicalities as the nature and status of the subject will allow. All in all, one is glad to predict that the readers of this tiny book will be well paid. After this commendation we may be allowed to voice our belief that the final chapter might have given us a little more help in answering the important question, How has sensitivity to Beauty contributed to the survival of mankind?"

+ — Dial 56:306 Ap 1 '14 380w

"Just because her work is conspicuous always for acute observation, and not infrequently for just reasoning, this little book is, in a way, more disappointing even than the stupidity of the ordinary run of aesthetic treatises." Sydney
Waterlow

+ Int J Ethics 24:459 Jl '14 1550w

"Though the author of this little work once wrote an essay on 'The handling of words' she fails to avoid obscurity of style on this occasion. Her argument is most difficult to follow."

— Int Studio 52:170 Ap '14 150w

Reviewed by T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Science n s 40:382 S 11 '14 50w

+ — Spec 112:sup1031 Je 27 '14 280w

LEE, VERNON, pseud. (VIOLET PAGET).
 8 Louis Norbert. *$1.25 (2c) Lane 14-11362

The story of the seventeenth century, which forms one part of this two-fold romance, is told largely in the letters that pass between Lady Venetia and the young archaeologist. The letters follow the discovery, on the occasion of a walk together in Pisa, that each has, as Lady Venetia expresses it, "a friend in the seventeenth century." It doesn't make any difference, she explains, how long ago one's friends may have been born and died. Her friend, and he had been hers since her childhood, is Louis Norbert, a young Frenchman whose portrait hangs in the picture gallery of her English home, and who, she learns, met his death in Pisa. The friend of the young archaeologist is Artemisia, a seventeenth-century poetess, afterwards an abbess; and it is the story of these two that the two moderns, after much delving in old archives, piece together bit by bit.

"On the whole, Louis Norbert and his doings are the real interest (we could, perhaps, wish they were the sole interest) of the book—sufficient in itself without any setting."

+ — Ath 1914.1:754 My 30 350w

"A book whose charm is distinctly that of style and atmosphere."

+ Cleveland 6:77 S '14 40w

"The atmosphere of time and place in all that Vernon Lee writes of these far-off personages is fresh and convincing, though superficial rather than deeply studied; and the style is refreshingly polished and easy. The romance, as the writer calls it, of the two modern protagonists is disappointing."

+ — Nation 99:105 Jl 23 '14 230w

"No one who cares for history and romance, who enjoys good writing or likes to meet entertaining people, should fail to add to their reading list this tale of Louis Norbert, who was such a very great personage—perhaps!"

+ N Y Times 19:298 Jl 5 '14 520w

"The book, with its mediæval setting, has fascination."

+ Sat R 117:742 Je 6 '14 300w

Spec 113:140 Jl 25 '14 30w

LEE, VERNON, pseud. (VIOLET PAGET).
 6 Tower of the mirrors, and other essays on the spirit of places. *$1.25 (1½c) Lane 14-5849

"This collection of essays and sketches by 'Vernon Lee' has a very pleasant suggestion of idleness about it. The writer seems to have gone hither and thither through France, Italy, and Germany, without scheme, compass, excess of luggage. . . . From 'The tower of the mirrors' we usually look out on places which only the confirmed wanderer knows in any proper sense, and we like its author best when she is writing of some dull small town of provincial France or a hidden corner of the Tuscan country." (Sat R) These are some of the things and places of which she writes: French roads; Chablais; The churches at Poitiers; Lavater's house at Zurich; A Tyrolean crucifix; The gooseberry garden of Jena; Vallombrosa; Winter days at Ravenna; Divinities of Tuscan summer fields.

"Will appeal only to the few."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:25 S '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 180w

+ Dial 56:430 Mr 16 '14 220w

"The occasional defect of this work is a sort of priggishness, insistence on small impressions, forcing a sensation when none arrives spontaneously, a trick of deliberately avoiding the larger point of things as too obvious."

+ — Nation 98:578 My 14 '14 280w

+ R of Rs 49:629 My '14 50w

"Her essays are the delightful record of a sentimental journey."

+ Sat R 117:406 Mr 28 '14 700w

"'Vernon Lee's' delicate sketches will appeal to those who know the places, chiefly in Italy and Germany, of which she writes; to strangers they will seem a little monotonous."

+ — Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 29w

LEES, FREDERIC. Art of the great masters.
 10 il *$12.50 Houghton (Eng ed 14-9625)

"This essay is written on the art of the great masters as exemplified by drawings in the collection of Emile Wauters. The book contains a very large number of reproductions made with exceptional delicacy, and it is the greatest names the world has known that are represented." (Int Studio) "Mr. Lees has 'not attempted to do more than lightly touch on the chief characteristics of the great masters and indicate the schools to which they belonged'; his object has been 'to arouse interest in one of the most fascinating of subjects' and his aim has been 'to suggest a systematic and profitable method of studying the art of these skillful draughtsmen—that of placing their preliminary drawing, wherever it is possible, side by side with their finished works, and noting the admirable patience and conscientiousness with which they built up their compositions.'" (Boston Transcript)

"Mr. Lees has gone to some pains to make his book attractive and readable. He has endeavored to construct for his readers a coherent history of art. We think, however, that he would have been better advised had he adopted a more scientific method, and devoted his attention more exclusively to the drawings under consideration, many of which are of great interest."

+ — Ath 1913.2:759 D 27 1750w

"Especially if it be taken in connection with the fuller authorities whom he cites, Mr. Lees's book would be equal to a term in the history of painting. The plan of the book is admirable and its richness of illustration and suggestion deserves all praise. There are, unfortunately, some misprints." N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p7 O 28 '13 830w

"Whilst everything is written round the drawings, the history of Italian and Flemish art is developed in the text in such an interesting manner that the book becomes of the utmost value to a reader entering upon the study of the old masters."

+ Int Studio 53:253 S '14 240w

LEESON, MAUDE. Marriage of Cecilia. il
 6 *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-4739

"Cecilia lived in a red brick suburb. . . . 'Red brick had become to her a symbol of the monotony and mean modernity of the life against which she chafed.' She lived with a half-brother, a middle-class, household tyrant, who, if not red brick himself, was much given to heaving unpleasant 'arf bricks' of speech at his long-suffering womankind, consisting of an insipid, colorless wife, and the inwardly mutinous Cecilia. To the latter a loophole of escape offered itself in a nominal marriage, the circumstances of which, impossible as they are, the author succeeds in investing with credibility. What follows thereafter is the story."—N Y Times

"In spite of the great dearth of action and the author's reckless digressions in the pursuit of her characters, the narrative is surprisingly absorbing, and based as it is on a purely circumstantial plot, it still contains a good deal of vital interest. If 'The marriage of Cecilia' were only inspired by a stronger and deeper emotional touch—a big 'if,' it must be admitted—it would be a book of commanding remark, for even now it is a not unworthy example of a neglected type—the novel of character."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Mr 21 '14 400w

"It is, perhaps, a little too long, and would have been the better for less description and more dialogue. Nevertheless it holds the reader's unflagging interest. The author says many good things in a striking way."

+ — N Y Times 19:112 Mr 8 '14 470w

Reviewed by F. M. Holly

Pub W 85:1342 Ap 18 '14 280w

"There are certain faults of construction in the story, but the author contrives to hold her readers' attention—a feat which is much less easily learnt by practice than that of the building up of a plot. The weak point of the story is the reason of Cecilia's marriage."

LEESON, MAUDE—Continued.

+ — Spec 112:487 Mr 21 '14 150w

LE GALLIENNE, RICHARD. Lonely dancer, and other poems. il $1.50 Lane 13-26674

Richard Le Gallienne "has lost none of his old magic: his work has the characteristic sensitivity, imagination, and charm, but there are new qualities in it. . . . To grace has been added dignity. As usual he makes beautiful phrases, but they are not made for their own sake, they are the vesture of beautiful ideas."

—N Y Times

"His new volume is rich in the old delicacy and fancifulness, in the poet's gift of wresting new secrets from common things, but there is also a change. Outlook and style are alike matured, and he has outgrown the affectation, with its occasional banality, which was wont in former days to inspire and justify the parodist."

+ Ath 1914.1:221 F 14 350w

"In 'The lonely dancer, and other poems,' is the full blooming of a lyric genius. Imperishable fragrance and color, imperishable charm and melody—the eternal ritual of inspiration, performing the inexplicable miracle of song on every page. By what currency can we value it? Only by the life-blood of those dead masters who have made English song." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 11 '14 1450w

"Its contents are graceful lyrics of love and nature, with here and there an emergence of the note of human brotherhood." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:66 Ja 16 '14 380w

"Richard Le Gallienne's place in English poetry was fixed some years ago. His strong yet delicate art entitles him, beyond a doubt, to the rank of the greatest living lyric poet. If any critic hesitate to acknowledge this, he need only read 'The lonely dancer, and other poems' to be convinced. In all this book there is no line that is not poetry."

+ Lit D 48:31 Ja 3 '14 800w

"Of course there are blemishes. But these defects are few—they cannot alter the fact that 'The lonely dancer, and other poems' is a book of real poetry, that it is full of strength and beauty, and that it contains at least three poems—'Flos aevorum,' 'To a bird at dawn,' and 'The lonely dancer'—that must surely become a part of the great heritage of English letters. Richard Le Gallienne may now be regarded not as a maker of dainty lyrics, but as a captain of song." Joyce Kilmer

+ — N Y Times 19:51 F 1 '14 1100w

"The last muddying tincture of paganism and self-consciousness seems to have disappeared from the lyrical work of Mr. Richard Le Gallienne. His latest book of verse rises to a high level of poetic sincerity and insight into spiritual things."

+ R of Rs 49:246 F '14 170w

"His latest volume shows him at his best."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 18 '14 500w

"Mr. Le Gallienne's last book is his best, yet we must praise 'The lonely dancer' with certain reservations, for though it charms it also disappoints." E: B. Reed

+ — Yale R n s 4:179 O '14 600w

LEGGE, EDWARD. More about King Edward. 5 il $4 (3½c) Small (Eng ed 14-8093)

Mr. Legge's ire against Sir Sidney Lee and the "Dictionary of national biography" was but partially appeased by the writing of "King Edward in his true colours." He now adds a second volume in the late king's defence. A statement in the "Times" to the effect that "it is well known that King Edward was no very devoted student of poetry," also calls for an answer, to which one entire chapter is given. Other chapters tell of: King Edward's attributes; The "first gentleman" abroad; King Edward in story; King Edward's family, etc.

"Turning Mr. Legge's pages we find him calling upon Caesar, Bacon and other worthies equally far removed from the scenes of King Edward's activities, to furnish proofs of King Edward's striking resemblance to the great gods of history. All this is sorry flapdoodle."

— Boston Transcript p22 Ap 8 '14 250w

"With all its serious faults of style and manner, Mr. Legge's book is decidedly interesting."

+ — Dial 56:429 My 16 '14 400w

"His book is readable to all those who have the inestimable gift of curiosity which in high things as well as in low is the mother of knowledge. We have found the book amusing sometimes in the sense that the 'Yellowplush papers' are amusing. Considered as a sort of intimate view of court life it is stimulating and valuable."

+ — Lit D 48:918 Ap 18 '14 1150w

"We supposed that Mr. Legge had, in his own opinion, polished off poor Sir Sidney pretty thoroughly, but he here returns to his bone."

— Nation 98:402 Ap 9 '14 780w

LEGGE, JAMES GRANVILLE. Thinking hand; or, Practical education in the elementary school. il $2.25 Macmillan

"Mr. Legge 'directs' education in the City of Liverpool, and has written this book to show the useful practical work now being done in the city's elementary schools. Possibly the book is a justification to Mr. Legge's masters, but it has more than a local value and we are glad of its wider appeal. . . . Liverpool, like the better schools of Germany, the United States, and many of our own Colonies, is striving to waken the child's brain through the interested work of its hands, teaching it to think as a result of practical experience. There is no trenching on true technical teaching, but a gradual preparation for it, a growing into accuracy, a gradual realisation of care, leading up to a joy in successful endeavour."—Sat R

Educ R 48:532 D '14 70w

"The text is brightly written, but is mainly an introduction to the illustrations. The appendices contain much relevant information."

+ Nation 99:321 S 10 '14 60w

"Although the number of text-books and essays on manual training already published is very large, we believe Mr. Legge's book will be found to be a valuable addition to the works which teachers and administrators may usefully consult."

+ Nature 93:633 Ag 20 '14 920w

+ Sat R 118:22 Jl 4 '14 200w

LEHMANN, LILLI. How to sing; tr. from the German by Richard Aldrich. new and rev ed il $1.75 (4c) Macmillan 14-2831

In the first edition of this book the author wrote: "My purpose is to discuss simply, intelligently, yet from a practical standpoint sensations known to us in singing, and exactly ascertained in my experience, by the expressions 'sing open,' 'covered,' 'dark,' etc. These expressions correspond to our sensations in singing; but they are unintelligible as long as the causes of those sensations are unknown." In the preface to this edition she says: "The object of the first edition is attained. The book has opened the eyes of many to the nature of the art of song. . . . I have endeavored in this second edition to forestall misinterpretations and to express better what I had to say in the first."

A L A Bkl 10:425 Je '14

"An invaluable handbook for the singer who looks upon his art as a means of ennobling the taste of mankind and of bestowing happiness, and who is willing to work."

+ Ind 78:402 Je 1 '14 100w

Reviewed by H: T. Finck

+ Nation 98:508 Ap 30 '14 230w

+ N Y Times 19:335 Ag 2 '14 200w

+ R of Rs 49:371 Mr '14 35w

LEHMANN, LILLI. My path through life; tr. by Alice Benedict Seigman. il *$3.50 (2c) Putnam 14-19703

A book of musical memories and reminiscences of the great figures in music of the past fifty years. Lilli Lehmann was born in 1848. Her parents were both singers and her babyhood was spent in journeying from one city of Germany to another. Later, for the sake of her children and their education, the mother gave up the stage and settled in Prague where the future prima donna spent her girlhood and received her early training. She made her debut in 1868 and from this time on her story is one of triumphs in all the capitals of Europe and America. One chapter is devoted to Bayreuth and memories of Wagner, with quotations from his letters. The American chapters will find many interested readers. The book is illustrated with photographs of the singer in some of her many rôles and of her sister Marie, and other musicians.

"The book will be found enjoyable by musicians and laymen alike."

+ Dial 58:87 F 1 '15 400w

"Her book is remarkable not only as a record of the musical world during the last two generations, but as the expression of a richly emotional life."

+ Lit D 49:1188 D 12 '14 180w

"Her memory is astonishing; and the vivacity of her style makes her book readable from beginning to end. The autobiography has some of the best traits of autobiographical writing in its frank self-revelation." R: Aldrich

+ N Y Times 20:29 Ja 24 '15 1400w

+ R of Rs 51:121 Ja '15 260w

LEICHTER, ELSA. Successful selling. *50c (3c) Funk 14-19011

A series of short, pithy chapters discussing all phases of the art of selling. Contents: Modern aspect of selling; Requisite qualities; The approach; The presentation; The closing; Negations; The larger sale; The story of a career.

"It is written in a common-sense manner and is a keen analysis of the selling art."

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 40w

"If it has a fault it is that its manner of presentation may prevent the average salesman from reading it. Nevertheless, this little book is a worthy contribution to the subject."

+ Nation 100:28 Ja 7 '15 400w

"Sound, authoritative, and practical advice is well presented."

+ N Y Times 19:492 N S '14 60w

LEMMON, ROBERT STELL. Training the dog. il *75c (3c) McBride, Nast & Co. 14-5778

The author is not concerned with the training of the hunting dog or the trick dog. He aims only to give such simple directions as will enable the inexperienced person to bring up an "all-around dog." His chapters take up: General principles; The puppy; "Come" and "Lie down"; "Heel" and "Fetch"; Teaching tricks; Advanced lessons; The all-round dog; The choice of a breed; The dog's quarters; General care.

+ A L A Bkl 10:399 Je '14

LENNOX, AGNES GORDON. Girl's marriage. *$1.25 (1½c) Lane

Fay Beaumont had spent a very happy girlhood in the care of her three elder brothers, and the marriage of the eldest of them came to her as a shock; for altho she was twenty at the time she knew nothing of the meaning of marriage, and looked upon it as a piece of human folly. She exacts a promise from the youngest brother that he will never marry but will spend his life with her. Later she learns that he is in love and that his promise to her is making him unhappy. It is to set him free that she enters into the mad relationship that makes the plot of this story, and from which much unhappiness results. The death of the man she marries sets her free and she learns in time what real love is.

"The heroine is a very nice girl, and the book throughout is in excellent accord with her, in that it is sufficiently direct in regard to its main theme without being either coarse or sentimental. The characters have some measure of life about them, and here and there a scene proves telling; but the improbable is rather too frequent and predominant a factor in the sequence of incidents."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup466 Mr 28 270w

+ N Y Times 19:238 My 17 '14 220w

Sat R 117:609 My 9 '14 170w

"The novel is slight, but portrays a certain knowledge of character and power of writing, and the heroine, in spite of her follies, is decidedly attractive."

+ Spec 113:240 Ag 15 '14 150w

LEONARD, MARY FINLEY. Little red chimney: being the love story of a candy man. il *$1 (3c) Duffield 14-14805

A nice story about a candy man, a lovely lady, a long-legged little girl, a miser, a reporter, and some others. The candy man is an unusual sort of person who keeps a shabby copy of Epicurus in his candy wagon, and Margaret Elizabeth, who lives part of the time with her aunt Mrs. Pennington in her aristocratic house and part of it with her other aunt, Dr. Prue, in the house with the little red chimney, is quite easily pardoned for falling in love with him. Quaint and delightful silhouettes of all the characters are used as illustrations.

"The author possesses a distinctive gift in her ability to impart this feeling of the unusual to ordinary affairs."

+ N Y Times 19:371 S 6 '14 120w

"A pretty little story, full of cheeriness and sentiment, and having a surprise at the end."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:263 N '14 50w

LEOPOLD, LEWIS. Prestige: a psychological study of social estimates. *$3 Dutton (Eng ed 13-19305)

"Mr. Leopold has gotten hold of a splendid subject and, on the whole, has treated it suggestively. When one reflects on it, the whole world is ruled by prestige, yet there has hitherto been no adequate study of this mysterious power which enables grey-haired veterans to order about men who could knock them down with a blow. . . . As Mr. Leopold points out, prestige is the obverse of prejudice. Indeed, it is prejudice in favor of a person, just as prejudice per se is an unfavorable judgment of a person before real acquaintance with him. The importance of prestige in modern life cannot well be over-estimated. . . . All this and more also Mr. Leopold illustrates and analyzes with great psychological skill."—N Y Times

"The book is valuable for the wealth of acute observation and subtle suggestion which it contains, as well as for its main purpose of bringing the subject of prestige into the field of scientific observation and of making it an object of study." R. E. Park

+ Am J Soc 20:546 Ja '15 550w

"The volume is a constructive and brilliant psychological investigation of an important phenomenon in social life and should take rank among the valuable treatises on social psychology."

+ Ann Am Acad 52:232 Mr '14 190w

"The study of the psychological aspects of social relations advances a stage with the publication of this book."

+ Ath 1913,1:618 Je 7 300w

"The work is most unevenly written, its fundamental difficulty being the absence of a sufficiently definite plan of procedure and an equal absence of the fundamental descriptive data upon which the interpretation depends. No chapter is devoid of suggestive principles and clever applications, though frequently marred by irrelevant matter and by the statement of conclusions without relations to their supporting premises. Despite this discursive and in a measure disconnected method of presentation, the general impression of the volume carries a distinct appreciation of the theme in its manifold relations."

LEOPOLD, LEWIS—Continued.

+ — Dial 56:112 F 1 '14 350w

"Mr. Leopold brings to his task a large store of reading, literary, historical, and anthropological, which makes some of his pages interesting, though more of them are dull, and the book as a whole seems pointless. The book abounds in obscure and ill-constructed sentences of a kind to suggest that the writer, though a man of culture, is not quite at home in the English language."

+ — Nation 97:540 D 4 '13 200w

"The book is suggestive, in many ways, or, as the author would say, 'thought-compelling.' There is a certain Carlylesque ruggedness about the thought and treatment which stimulates, though at times it may irritate. Such qualities are sufficiently rare now-a-days to give this book of Mr. Leopold's distinction, and, if we may so phrase it, prestige." Joseph Jacobs

+ — N Y Times 18:711 N 30 '13 700w

"The book is one far out of the ordinary with respect not alone to subject-matter but also to brilliancy, skill and thoroughness of treatment."

+ — Outlook 106:371 F 14 '14 160w

"We have felt bound to call attention to these defects in Mr. Leopold's method, for the book shows signs of wide reading and patient investigation, and is worth studying if only for the wealth of instances and illustrations which it contains. But as a definitive study of this fascinating subject it cannot be considered successful."

+ — Spec 112:24 Ja 3 '14 550w

LEROUX, GASTON. Secret of the night. il *$1.25 (1½c) Macaulay co. 14-3901

"The story of mysterious attacks of Nihilists upon a Russian official told in 'The secret of the night,' takes a French detective to St. Petersburg and gives him a busy, exciting, and perilous time. He is that same Rouletabille who has figured in several of Gaston Leroux's detective stories, such as 'The mystery of the yellow room,' and 'The perfume of the lady in black.' . . . The plot is concerned with the suspicions that fall upon the daughter of the Russian official of belonging to the Nihilists, and of trying to compass her own father's death."—N Y Times

+ — Ath 1914,2:425 O 24 140w

Boston Transcript p8 My 23 '14 320w
Ind 78:256 My 11 '14 25w

"It is such an exceedingly complicated plot that one wonders how the author ever managed to keep it straight in his own mind while he was writing. The story lacks much in the way of literary graces, but in the tangling of its scheme and the rapid succession of incidents and mysteries the most devoted lover of detective yarns could hardly ask for more."

+ — N Y Times 19:230 My 10 '14 220w

"As a piece of literature this story is not to be recommended; nor is it to be recommended as a narcotic. It belongs to the order of stories which are called 'rattling.'"

+ — Outlook 107:370 Je 13 '14 140w

"The interest of the book is well sustained throughout and has an additional element of horror with its Russian background and plots and counter-plots. In the end only the guilty suffer. When the story once gets under way, the reader will find it abundantly supplied with thrills." H. Dick

+ — Pub W 85:1064 Mr 21 '14 350w

LE ROY, JAMES ALFRED. Americans in the Philippines; with an introd. by W: Howard Taft. 2v il *$10 Houghton 14-6172

A history of the conquest and first years of occupation of the Philippines, with an introductory account of the Spanish rule. "Mr. Taft, who ought to know, says that Mr. Le Roy was 'not free from some prejudices,' and Mr. Coleman says that in his writings on Philippine questions he allowed 'no argument in favor of Philippine independence to go unchallenged.' These statements are obviously very moderate, and place Mr. Le Roy's two heavy volumes in their correct position. They are to be put in the same category as the volumes of former Commissioner Dean C. Worcester. Both are animated by a single spirit—the disposition to discredit the native inhabitants and to demonstrate the inability of the Filipinos to govern themselves." (Nation)

"It is by far the ablest and most just account which has so far appeared upon the American possession of the Philippines. The charge of partizanship brought by one hasty reviewer cannot be maintained." D: P. Barrows

+ — Am Hist R 20:181 O '14 1550w

"Small libraries would prefer Chamberlain as an exponent of American policies."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:22 S '14

"Mr. Le Roy's own conclusions may at times seem open to question, but he makes such a complete statement of the case that the reader is in a position to reach an independent judgment. Mr. Le Roy's own opinions reveal prejudices and limitations that impair the value of his criticism." H: J. Ford

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:515 Ag '14 820w

"Carefully written volumes." C. L. Jones

+ Ann Am Acad 57:338 Ja '15 500w

"His preliminary survey of the condition of the islands under Spanish rule is a marvel of compact and lucid statement, and the book is uniformly well written. The book abounds in notes, often containing information as important as that in the text, and it is buttressed everywhere with citations to original documents." Wallace Rice

+ — Dial 56:463 Je 1 '14 400w

"The effort to give a 'scientific' cast to these volumes is fruitless because of the manifest bias of the treatment, even where the language is moderate, and because of the evident intent to supply 'material' for use against those who have urged a more humane and liberal policy."

— Nation 98:700 Je 11 '14 1150w

"It is thorough, comprehensive, and complete as far as it goes, and it affords such an immense amount of information concerning our early relations with the Filipinos that no one who wishes to be thoroughly informed upon that subject can afford to miss it."

+ — N Y Times 19:311 Jl 12 '14 280w

"These valuable volumes form the best account which we have seen of American dealings with the Philippines."

+ — Spec 113:174 Ag 1 '14 70w

"Mr. LeRoy's book may be characterized as a calm, unprejudiced historical narrative, well written, and embodying the fruits of long and patient research. It will take its place as a standard work, which will not need to be re-written, and which will be a necessity to students of the Philippines for a long time to come." Ellsworth Huntington

+ — Yale R n s 4:399 Ja '15 1000w

LESLIE, GEORGE DUNLOP. Inner life of the Royal academy. il *$3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-14335)

Both Mr. Leslie and his father were Royal academicians. Both "were students in the schools, and their successive association with the academy covers an entire century. Mr. Leslie can therefore lay claim to an acquaintance direct or indirect with the 'inner life' of that body such as probably no other member has enjoyed since its foundation in 1768. His book teems with reminiscences of distinguished artists with whom from the days of his boyhood onwards he has come into touch and having drawn freely upon his father's stock of recollections he gives many interesting glimpses of others who departed before his time." (Int Studio)

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Ja 13 '15 900w

"Mr. Leslie's work is an admirable source for historical data, and has, moreover, a chatty charm which reveals unconsciously the spirit of the academy."

+ Ind 81:30 Ja 4 '15 80w

"Written in a pleasant, chatty vein, Mr. Leslie's book, conveying as it does a good deal of reliable information about the Royal Academy and its proceedings of which outsiders are ignorant, will prove a popular accompaniment to the more serious histories of that institution."

+ Int Studio 53:82 Jl '14 750w

"A mine of anecdote and reminiscence."

+ Nation 99:785 D 31 '14 550w

"A singularly entertaining book."

+ Outlook 109:237 Ja 27 '15 130w

"To the thoroughly saturated academician even the smallest academy beer is apparently important."

— Sat R 118:sup6 N 14 '14 250w

LESSING, BRUNO, pseud. (RUDOLPH EDGAR BLOCK). With the best intention. il $1.25 (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-7690

Sixteen sketches whose moving spirit is Chaim Lapidowitz, the schnorrer, who arrives in New York from a tiny town in Lithuania. "A schnorrer, if you have never met one, is a member of a Jewish community who lives by his wits, never works if he can help it, knows every line of the Torah and Talmud that can possibly be used as an appeal for charity, eats, drinks, wears, and smokes anything that is given to him, and is usually quite amiable." The obstacles in the way of living off of other people are surmounted with cleverness that amounts to genius. The stories are full of types true to racial characteristics, and they furnish first class entertainment.

"The other stories in 'With the best intention' are not up to the level of 'Klein's financial system,' either in ingenuity or in humor, but they are nevertheless genuine sketches of the comic side of Jewish life in a great city. To call Mr. Lessing, however, the 'Kipling of the Ghetto' is absurd." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 1000w

"As with most picaresque tales, there is an abundance of humor, and some of the situations are certain to provoke laughter, though not to arouse sympathy."

+ Dial 57:390 N 16 '14 130w

"We fear schnorrers are not much given to books, but it would be for their souls' health if all of whatever race would read 'With the best intention,' as admirable in style as it is interesting in content, it merits a large public, especially as it behooves us to know the qualities of the strange metals daily cast into our American 'melting pot.'"

+ N Y Times 19:299 Jl 5 '14 200w

LE SUEUR, GORDON. Cecil Rhodes, the man<sup>2</sup> and his work. il $3.50 (3½c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-30362

This life of Cecil Rhodes is the work of one of his private secretaries. The author's reference to himself as "one" of these so-called secretaries is significant, for it was Rhodes's custom to surround himself with a number of them—"a sort of body guard of young men in whom he was interested, and who were chosen on account of various and varied qualifications." It is from the point of view of one admitted to this intimate relationship that the book is written. Some of the chapters are devoted to: Early days in Kimberley; Rhodes as an organizer; Rhodes and the Transvaal; Rhodes and the Dutch of South Africa; Rhodes's daily life.

+ A L A Bkl 10:357 My '14

"There are indiscretions and a number of petty inaccuracies; here and there the 'withers' of living persons too candidly discussed may not unnaturally be 'wrung.' Faults of taste must be admitted; and the arrangement of the book leaves something to desire."

+ — Ath 1914:1:6 Ja 3 1400w

Reviewed by I. F. Marcossou

+ Bookm 39:463 Je '14 1500w

"Egotistical and badly arranged but full of intimate detail and interesting references to distinguished friends and contemporaries."

+ — Cleveland 6:79 S '14 30w

"This biography by Le Sueur is a sketchy and desultory production, whose almost sole merit lies in the fact that it is natural and truthful."

+ — Lit D 48:837 Ap 11 '14 410w

Outlook 106:650 Mr 21 '14 150w

"Not everything in these crowded pages is novel. But, speaking generally, their freshness and fullness of information would become a forerunner."

+ Sat R 116:sup5 O 11 '13 1450w

"There is a considerable fascination, though it is not unnatural to feel slightly ashamed of gratifying it, in learning the intimate details of the existence of any one whose actions have proved that he possessed an exceptional sort of mind. The reader of Mr. Le Sueur's book will find a very large number of such details badly arranged but readably described. Mr. Le Sueur adds very little, if anything, of value to our knowledge of the main activities of Rhodes's life."

+ — Spec 111:574 O 11 '13 260w

LETTS, EDMUND ALBERT. Some fundamental problems in chemistry, old and new. $2 Van Nostrand 14-30871

"In the preface the author says that one of his chief ideas was to contrast certain ancient views, such as those of atoms and a primordial element or primordial elements in the shape of air, earth, fire, and water, together with the possibility of transformations of these latter into each other, with the modern conception of electrons and the discovery of changes, such as those which the radio-active elements experience, which amount in fact to a change of one so-called chemical element into others." . . . The book consists of four chapters on the older chemistry and seven on the newer chemistry." —Science

A L A Bkl 11:105 N '14

"We notice some slips here and there, doubtless due to insufficient correction of proofs. But these are trifles in a readable and interesting volume."

+ — Ath 1914:1:561 Ap 18 750w

"Well-written and readable book."

+ Nation 99:328 S 10 '14 450w

"The author has produced a most useful and suggestive little volume which may be profitably read by chemists of both the older and younger generations." R. Meldola

+ Nature 93:291 My 21 '14 2300w

"Fortunately one may like the book without accepting the author's thesis. The part on the newer chemistry is admirable though distinctly not critical. The author apparently accepts, without much reservation, all the transmutations which Ramsay has described." W. D. Bancroft

+ — Science n s 40:139 Jl 24 '14 650w

LETTS, WINIFRED M. Songs from Leinster. 2 $1 McKay (Eng ed A14-1253)

In this little book of poems a new Irish poet is introduced to American readers. The verses are arranged under the headings: In a Wexford village; In Dublin; A fire of turf; Songs in three counties. An introductory note says that they first appeared in the "Spectator," "Saturday review," "Nation," and other English publications.

"These songs are fashioned of the stuff of which true lyrical poetry is made. They are musical and instinct with imagination, and those of lighter texture show both daintiness and humour. They were well worth republishing in their present form."

+ Ath 1913:1:646 Je 14 50w

"Miss Letts is a real poet; her verse is simple, sincere, and beautiful. She is not afraid to use the homely idiom; dialect in her poems has dignity, even splendor, sometimes."

+ Lit D 47:1020 N 22 '13 750w

LETTIS, WINIFRED M.—Continued.

"The book is so rich it is difficult, in a limited space to display properly its chief charms. The flaws are few and venial only," T. A. Daly
+ N Y Times 18:526 O 12 '13 1500w

+ Sat R 116:177 Ag 9 '13 200w

"She has much of the tender lilt and the warm humanity of Moira O'Neill. Her poems about children such as 'Angels unawares' and 'Little Peter Morrissey,' have not been bettered in our day, and 'The Kerry cow' is a delightful extravagance. 'To C. L. G.' shows how deftly and gracefully the author can handle the lighter modes of verse. In 'Irish skies' she has reproduced that homesickness which in Irish poetry has found its most haunting form."

+ Spec 111:23 J1 5 '13 180w

LEUPP, FRANCIS ELLINGTON. Day with 5 father. *50c (5c) Scribner 14-4742

The writing of this story was inspired by Kathleen Norris's "Mother," for it was while reading that tale that Mr. Leupp recalled Artemus Ward's comment on the mother-literature of his own day: "Why not give the old man a chance?" He describes a typical day—a Saturday with the afternoon off—in the life of Father, whose family consists of Mother, two grown daughters, and Dolly. Dolly is twelve years old, and one already foresees in her a future champion of Father's rights.

"May 'Father's' womankind promptly peruse 'A day with father' and profit by its revelations."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap 1 '14 200w

"The little story is an amiable showing up of the feeling of the average American family toward its head and provider. While the events of the story are closely and neatly woven together in compact construction the style is loose and careless, with overmuch explanation."

+ N Y Times 19:112 Mr 8 '14 230w

LEUPP, FRANCIS ELLINGTON. In Red man's 12 land: a study of the American Indian. (Inter-denominational home mission study course)
il *50c Revell 14-11508

"Few men are better equipped than Mr. Leupp to write of the red man; he served as Commissioner of Indian Affairs—the 'Little white father'—for four years and was a member of President Cleveland's Board of Indian Commissioners in 1895-7. . . . His view of the Indian is distinctly friendly and his opinion of the government's relations with the Indian is based on knowledge and sound judgment. . . . Having described briefly the aboriginal, the writer turns to the red man and the government. The Indians of continental United States number about one in every three hundred of population, and yet 'it is only recently that the government had an Indian policy worthy of the name.' . . . The volume closes with a word for the red man as a teacher, for in spite of the greatness of the Caucasian race, Mr. Leupp shows that the white man may learn much from his primitive brother."—Boston Transcript

"A comprehensive, authoritative little book, clear and definite in its statements and distinguished by breadth of outlook and sympathy."

+ A L A Bkl 11:70 O '14

"His little volume is surprisingly comprehensive. The work is an interesting supplement to his earlier book, 'The Indian and his problem.'"
F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 8 '14 1050w

LEVICK, G. MURRAY. Antarctic penguins: a
4 study of their social habits. il *$1.50 (5c)
McBride, Nast & co. (Eng ed A14-1400)

The author was zoologist to the British Antarctic expedition, 1910-1913, and he writes an interesting account of these South-polar inhabitants. He says that when seen for the first time an "Adélie penguin gives you the impression of a very smart little man in an evening dress suit," and some of his illustrations bear out this amusing comparison. The subject is treated in three parts. Part 1, describes The fasting period; part 2, Domestic life of the Adélie penguin; part 3, McCormick's skua gull, and Emperor penguins.

+ A L A Bkl 11:61 O '14

"The only criticism possible is that the photographs are not always well placed in the text. But they are no mere embellishment to the book; they really 'illustrate' it. We cannot praise too highly the patient and careful observation which is evident in every page of this delightful book."

+ Ath 1914:1:596 Ap 25 550w

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 15 '14 300w

"Nice, affectionate, wobbly beasts described with much human sympathy."

+ Ind 78:289 My 18 '14 20w

"Young people especially will find much enjoyment in the book."

+ Ind 79:385 S 14 '14 70w

"A delightful little book." E. L. Pearson

+ Nation 98:569 My 14 '14 1400w

+ Nation 98:704 Je 11 '14 100w

"We have to congratulate the author on his well-told story."

+ Nature 94:145 O 8 '14 820w

+ N Y Times 19:407 S 27 '14 100w

"The book verily is quite a rare little treat, and we like the natural way, the jolly way, it is written. The pictures—there are between seventy and eighty of them—are full of humour. Everybody concerned in bringing out this book must have enjoyed himself. It ought to have, and we think it will have, a great run."

+ Sat R 117:405 Mr 28 '14 800w

"The merit of the book lies in the detailed and minute accuracy of the author's observations. Unfortunately it lacks any index."

+ Spec 113:sup692 N 21 '14 200w

"A rare little book which will be laid down by any lover of natural history with the feeling that its brevity is a fault rather than a virtue."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 7 '15 620w

LEWER, H. WILLIAM. China collector: a guide
6 to the porcelain of the English factories; with a prefatory note by Frank Stevens. il
*$1.60 (3½c) Dodd 14-20518

This book is concerned with that branch of ceramics embraced under the designation of Old English porcelain. A feature of the treatment is a discussion of the chief distinctions of each factory under the headings: History, Paste, Glaze, Decoration, Production, Characteristics, Noted artists, Chronology, and Marks. The illustrations, thirty-two in number, are chosen from pieces of practical value in the Victoria and Albert museum at South Kensington.

"Several instances of faulty English should be corrected if there is another edition."

+ Ath 1913:2:523 N 8 80w

"We can recommend this last recruit to the china collector's library, and for two reasons. First, the author has concerned himself solely with a discussion of the porcelain of the English factories, and has not attempted to give in a single volume a survey of the whole subject of ceramics, and secondly, the book is most conveniently and logically arranged."

+ Int Studio 52:257 My '14 150w

"This work, in a general way, may be recommended to collectors who are without access to larger and more costly works."

+ Nation 98:143 F 5 '14 230w

N Y Times 19:417 O 4 '14 230w

LEWINSKI, JAN-ST. Origin of property and 4 the formation of the village community.
*3s 6d Constable & co., London

"This little volume, which might more properly be called 'The origin of property in land,' attempts to present to the English reader a summary of the exceedingly valuable evidence which recent studies of rural life in Russia and Siberia have brought to light bearing upon the history of the village community." (Spec)
"Individual property in land, according to Dr.

Lewinski, came first; the village community was only forced into existence through efforts to equalize the product of the soil amongst cultivators. The universal application of two forces—labor, and what Dr. Lewinski calls . . . 'individual scarcity'—has, according to the author, produced everywhere similar phenomena and similar developments." (Ath)

"Brief as this book is, it is a valuable adjunct to the older works of Maine, Maurer, Seehohn, and Baden-Powell. To the average student who does not read Russian it is particularly useful because it presents in compact form a large amount of material from Russian sources not otherwise available." U. G. Weatherly

+ Am Econ R 4:125 Mr '14 400w

Reviewed by F. S. Chapin

+ — Am Hist R 19:678 Ap '14 530w

Reviewed by E. H. Sutherland

Am J Soc 19:851 My '14 360w

Ath 1913,2:156 Ag 16 100w

"Altogether, as a sketch of the general evolution of property, M. Lewinski's book appears entirely inadequate. Nevertheless, it may be of good use to the student of economic history in so far as it provides a number of illustrations from the interesting works of Russian writers who have investigated the curious conditions of Siberian colonization." B.

— + Eng Hist R 29:180 Ja '14 400w

J Pol Econ 22:289 Mr '14 200w

"Mr. Lewinski is not content with a mere summary of the achievements of other students; he has made a detailed investigation of relevant official documents on his own account and reduced the whole evidence to a series of very interesting conclusions."

+ — Spec 112:sup163 Ja 31 '14 700w

LEWIS, GEORGE GRIFFIN. Mystery of the oriental rug. il $1.50 (15c) Lippincott

14-18280

This book, made up of three articles on the oriental rug, forms a supplement to the author's more extensive work, "The practical book of oriental rugs." The author's purpose has been "to present in a concise form certain facts that may enable the novice to more fully understand and appreciate the beauty and interest attached to these treasures of the Orient." The three articles that make up the contents are: The mystery of the rug; The prayer rug; Some advice to purchasers of oriental rugs. To these the author has added a section on Characteristics of rugs and a description of the plates which accompany the text.

"A valuable little volume."

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 28 '14 160w

"With the fast-diminishing opportunity to procure genuine antiques in Eastern rugs, Dr. Lewis's book is one to study and profit by now or never."

+ Dial 57:508 D 16 '14 150w

"Dr. Lewis is so filled with his subject that he makes it intensely interesting."

+ Ind 80:506 D 28 '14 70w

"The arrangement of text, plates, and the key to the plates, with the small price, make the volume most desirable."

+ Outlook 105:847 D 9 '14 70w

"This book is a practical one to guide the beginner and the collector. It is some time since we handled a more pleasant volume."

+ Sat R 118:635 D 19 '14 280w

LEWIS, SINCLAIR. Our Mr. Wrenn. il $1 (1c) Harper

14-3561

It is in the correspondence of the Souvenir and art novelty company that he figures as "Our Mr. Wrenn." He is a sales-entry clerk, and for eight or more hours a day his time belongs to the Job, outside of that it is devoted to the reading of travel literature and to enjoyment of the travel pictures at the Nickeloron on Fourteenth street. All his dull and drab life Mr. Wrenn has had dreams of foreign travel, and unexpectedly the dream comes true. He goes to England where he wanders about unconventionally with a young woman artist, returns to New York and the Job, falls in love with a perfectly nice girl named Nellie, has the smoothness of his routine jolted by the appearance of the girl artist, but regains his balance, marries Nellie and is content to give up dreams.

+ A L A Bkl 10:413 Je '14 +

"A respectful consideration of the claims of plot and construction might be suggested as not out of place even when a person is making his first book 'a labor of love,' as his publishers announce he is here doing."

— Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 400w

"It is a story out of the ordinary, with an individuality which atones for a certain slowness in pace."

+ — Nation 98:266 Mr 12 '14 220w

N Y Times 19:92 F 22 '14 120w

"The rather whimsical little story is well off the usual line of fiction in its conception and especially so in its leading character."

+ N Y Times 19:100 Mr 1 '14 320w

"Constructively the story is unsatisfactory, but it certainly arouses attention—and exception also."

+ — Outlook 107:46 My 2 '14 100w

"The tired business man will find just the right antidote for weariness in 'Our Mr. Wrenn.'"

+ R of Rs 49:628 My '14 310w

LEYLAND, JOHN. Royal navy. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) *40c (½c) Putnam

14-13600

A brief description of the nature, character and development of the British navy. The larger purpose of the book, the author says, "is to shew the influence of the navy in safeguarding the independence and security of the country, and the part it has played in promoting the growth and upholding the integrity of the empire. . . . The lessons of this book are not insistently put forward. Rather, it is left to the reader, with some indications, to deduce the meaning of history from its events and circumstances." (Preface)

+ Spec 113:395 S 19 '14 2050w

LIEN, ARNOLD JOHNSON. Privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States. (Columbia univ. studies in history, economics and public law) *$1.25; pa *75c Longmans

13-15025

"For all practical purposes this may be described as a study of supreme court decisions and these largely consist of interpretations of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution." (Ath) "Emphasis is naturally laid on our double citizenship in state and nation." (Chaut)

Reviewed by A. B. Hall

+ — Am J Soc 19:683 Mr '14 400w

"Much of the ground over which the author treads has already been covered by earlier monographs, and he adds little new light to the subject, but the book may serve as a useful summary of the leading cases on this topic."

+ — Am. Pol Sci R 8:297 My '14 280w

"This treatise is admirable in form and expression. It brings together the decisions of the United States supreme court interpreting the enigmatical phrase, 'privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States,' as used in the fourteenth amendment. The author is not so much concerned with setting in array the rights connoted by the term, as he is in demonstrating the consistency and correctness of the supreme court's definition of the term." C: H. Maxson

+ — Ann Am Acad 51:281 Ja '14 250w

Ath 1913,2:131 Ag 9 50w

Chaut 72:157 O 25 '13 120w

LINCOLN, CHARLES HENRY, ed. Narratives of the Indian wars, 1675-1699. (Original narratives of early American history) il $3 (2½c) Scribner

13-24819

The editor presents a half dozen reprints of old chronicles, all bearing on the early history

LINCOLN, CHARLES HENRY, ed.—Continued. of New England. Early spelling and punctuation are retained, with a few amendments in punctuation where clearness seemed to demand it. Contents: A relation of the Indian warre, by John Easton, 1675; The present state of New-England with respect to the Indian war, by N. S. (Nathaniel Saltonstall?), 1675; A continuation of the state of New-England, by N. S., 1676; A new and further narrative of the state of New-England, by N. S., 1676; The warr in New-England visibly ended, by R. H. (Richard Hutchinson), 1677; Narrative of the captivity of Mrs. Mary Rowlandson, 1682; Decennium luctuosum, by Cotton Mather, 1699.

"Has useful introductions and textual, personal, geographical, elucidative, and critical annotations that are valuable." V: H. Paltstis
+ Am Hist R 20:166 O '14 750w

"A source book of real value to students, and one which, in its richness of local detail, will furnish new atmosphere for writers of Indian and colonial stories."

+ A L A Bkl 10:274 Mr '14

+ — Nation 99:22 J1 2 '14 420w

"Acquaintance with this volume is to discover the actual structure of the past."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 500w

LINCOLN, JOHN WILLARD. Young homesteaders. il *$1 (1c) Wilde 14-111

Two eastern boys who know nothing about the West and little about farming, go out to Washington to take up a claim and make a home for their mother and sisters. With pluck and perseverance and the help of kindly neighbors they make a success of their venture.

LINCOLN, JOSEPH CROSBY. Cap'n Dan's daughter. il *$1.35 (1c) Appleton 14-4302

In this story Mr. Lincoln develops his favorite theme—the contrasting of sterling youth with social sham. When Cap'n Dan inherits a small fortune, his wife, Serena, already infected with social ambition, seizes the opportunity to shine in higher spheres, much to the Captain's discomfort. She cannot drag him with her, and as clubs and society and bridge and the tango absorb more and more of her time, he is left more and more alone. Then his daughter Gertrude comes home from college and takes a hand. Her mother is successfully reformed and peace restored to Cap'n Dan's home.

A L A Bkl 10:371 My '14

+ Ath 1914,1:sup873 Je 20 110w

+ Boston Transcript n24 Ap 1 '14 550w

"Cap'n Dan is quite as lovable and entertaining as any of Mr. Lincoln's previous creations. His characteristic Cape Cod air of buoyant, breezy wholesomeness pervades the book. But he has his own individuality, distinct from his predecessors in Mr. Lincoln's novels, so that knowing him will be a fresh pleasure to those who have taken delight in Cap'n Eri and Mr. Pratt and the rest of them."

+ N Y Times 19:112 Mr 8 '14 500w

+ — Outlook 106:650 Mr 21 '14 70w

"A rattling good story, making a bit of allowance for considerable dialect conversation and a slight strain on the credulity anent daughter Gertrude's heroic self-subjugation." Joseph Mosher

+ — Pub W 85:1066 Mr 21 '14 320w

R of Rs 49:629 My '14 60w

LINCOLN, JOSEPH CROSBY. Kent Knowles:
12 quahaug. il *$1.35 (1½c) Appleton 14-18497

The natives of Bayport called Kent Knowles "the quahaug." A quahaug is a certain kind of clam supposed to live a particularly solitary kind of existence shut within its own shell. For Kent Knowles, altho he wrote thrilling romances of high-handed adventure, was a stay-at-home person who had never wandered far from his native Cape Cod. On the advice of his publisher to whom he confesses that he has written himself out, he takes a trip abroad in company with his cousin, Miss Hephzibah Cahoon, a New England spinster. Hephzy's chief interest in the trip is the hope that they may find a long-lost sister's child known to her loving heart as Little Frank. They do find Little Frank but that person turns out to be Frances, an attractive young lady, and the final transformation of the quahaug is largely due to her.

A L A Bkl 11:174 D '14

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 40:560 Ja '15 400w

"As a novel this is Mr. Lincoln's best story. It has a more complicated plot, a definite romance, and is well written and attractive."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 550w

"Hephzibah is one of the ladies best worth knowing in recent fiction."

+ Ind 80:479 D 21 '14 80w

+ Lit D 50:107 Ja 16 '15 300w

"In this book, Mr. Lincoln has deserted his old friends, and has wandered after strange gods—with somewhat questionable results."

+ — Nation 99:633 N 26 '14 150w

"All readers of Mr. Lincoln know what it is to come under his spell, and it is enough to say of this latest story that therein he has surpassed himself. It is for the reader's happiness to put himself into the author's hands, and have him tell the tale from first to last in his own peculiarly delightful and humorous way."

+ — N Y Times 19:516 N 22 '14 470w

"Is of the same general character as all Mr. Lincoln's delightful tales. This story is distinguished over many of its predecessors, by a plot that never gets lost in the joy of picturing local types, and is strongly sustained throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 5 '14 530w

LINCOLN, NATALIE SUMNER. Man inside. il
6 *$1.30 Appleton 14-5196

"The first chapter, a sort of prologue, is laid in a café in Colon, where a stranger with very blue eyes and very black hair behaved in a somewhat precipitate manner. Then the scene shifts to Washington, and the actual tale begins when, on a certain dark and stormy night, Senator Carew of Maryland is found dead in his carriage, a sharp letter file buried in his breast and piercing his heart. . . . The state of affairs looked complicated enough to Brett, the detective, and Douglas Hunter, the dead man's protégé, but soon the mystery was increased by a few words impressed on a blotter, the abrupt action of the Japanese Ambassador, the strange occurrences at the Navy department, and the sudden appearance and yet more sudden disappearance of the stranger with very blue eyes and very black hair. . . . Tangled as the threads of the plot are with a couple of thefts, as well as murder, and riddle following riddle, the author holds them all firmly in hand." —N Y Times

"Unobjectionable and not gory."

+ A L A Bkl 10:371 My '14

"There is a great deal to be cleared up and explained away in the concluding chapters, and some of the excuses offered seem to us rather paltry."

— Ath 1914,2:534 N 21 150w

"The tale is cleverly worked up, it moves swiftly and the reader's interest is never allowed to flag for a single moment. We would not advise any one to begin 'The man inside' after dinner who is not prepared to sit up late enough to finish it."

+ N Y Times 19:125 Mr 15 '14 530w

LINDSAY, NICHOLAS VACHEL. Adventures
12 while preaching the gospel of beauty. *$1
(3c) Kennerley 14-30915

In the summer of 1912 the author tramped from his home in Springfield, Illinois, across Illinois, Missouri and Kansas, thru Colorado and into New Mexico. He carried with him for distribution a pamphlet "The gospel of beauty," and, to pay his way, a collection of verses, "Rhymes to be traded for bread." This is an account of his adventures on the road, in the villages, and at work in the harvest fields.

+ A L A Bkl 11:169 D '14

"A delightful book."

+ Ind 80:506 D 28 '14 80w

"The book has a sociological interest, and if it procures many readers the author will have served his purpose less by his preaching than by the report he gives of social and cultural deficiencies in the rural west. But its main appeal is as a narrative in the Borrowian manner."

+ Nation 99:555 N 5 '14 450w

+ New Republic 1:26 D 5 '14 200w

"Here is a genuine, rooted love for fields and simple folk, for God and little birds, all informed by a prophet's realization of beauty. Here is sweetness and serenity and a nice awareness to the unending comedy of life."

+ N Y Times 19:489 N 8 '14 350w

"This is a book to commend to all social workers who are saddened and perhaps almost crushed by city problems." V. D. Scudder

+ Survey 33:267 D 5 '14 280w

LINDSAY, NICHOLAS VACHEL. Congo and other poems. $1.25 Macmillan 14-17118

Harriet Monroe in her introduction to this volume congratulates Mr. Lindsay on his effort to make poetry a song art, "an art appealing to the ear rather than the eye," and says that the first section of the book "is especially an effort to restore poetry to its proper place—the audience-chamber, and take it out of the library, the closet." This first section contains the poem on The Congo; a study of the negro race, part of which is to be delivered in a deep rolling bass, part to be solemnly chanted, etc. The Santa Fé trail, The firemen's ball and others in this section are on the same order. The second section is made up of a collection of poems under the heading Incense; the third is A miscellany called the Christmas tree; the fourth contains Twenty moon poems; the fifth, seven poems of War—1914.

"Perhaps in no American poet is the prophetic note so strongly a part of his utterance. The vision of the middle west is evoked in Mr. Lindsay's moods. Another surprising quality in the versatile poetic temperament of this poet is the fanciful note in the two sections, one 'A miscellany called the Christmas tree,' and the other 'Moon poems.' Here effort is effortless as in Blake, and art is artless, but the results are those limpid symbols which the stronger they are with light and simplicity the deeper they are in meaning." W. S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 19 '14 850w

"One of the important books of a season rich in good verse."

+ Lit D 49:1021 N 21 '14 300w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 100:12 Ja 7 '15 550w

+ New Republic 1:26 D 5 '14 250w

+ R of Rs 51:116 Ja '15 400w

"No event more interesting—which is not, however, the same thing as saying no event more important though that might have been said also,—has lately occurred in American letters than the appearance of a new collection of verse by Vachel Lindsay. All in all there is an intense and vivid Americanism in these poems—a racy, pungent, authentic note, which, if he fulfills the last measure of his promise, will make Mr. Lindsay a prophet of American life."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 15 '14 1900w

LINDSAY, NICHOLAS VACHEL. General William Booth enters into heaven, and other poems. $1.25 Kennerley 14-184

Mr. Lindsay's remarkable poem, given magazine publication last year, with its picture of General Booth entering heaven to an accompaniment of drums, banjos, tambourines, and a Salvation army refrain, is used here as an introductory poem. Those which follow it are less striking and more conventional but are all marked, more or less, by the characteristics of an unusual personality.

Reviewed by W. A. Bradley

Bookm 39:196 Ap '14 50w

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 430w

"The first is the strongest poem in the book, but there are others, well worth notice."

+ Ind 77:72 Ja 12 '14 550w

+ Lit D 48:639 Mr 21 '14 750w

+ New Republic 1:26 D 5 '14 200w

"In every way 'General Booth' is a remarkable poem and fittingly forms the title piece to the present volume. Few poets of to-day see things in their larger aspects as clearly as does Nicholas Vachel Lindsay." J. B. Rittenhouse

+ N Y Times 19:75 F 15 '14 1350w

"The 'other poems' do not make the universal appeal of the title poem, but they are in many respects equally remarkable."

+ R of Rs 49:245 F '14 600w

"Mr. Lindsay can wing his flight with his own aviator into regions of charming fantasy. But we recognize in his work more serious value, more real poetic promise, when he treads buoyantly on solid earth, keeping step with the new crusaders and perceiving that they march to the music of the spheres." V. D. Scudder

+ Survey 31:684 F 28 '14 900w

Reviewed by E. B. Reed

+ Yale R n s 4:183 O '14 500w

LIPPMANN, JULIE MATHILDE. Martha and Cupid. $1 (2c), Holt 14-20503

A book of short stories with "Martha by-the-day" as their heroine. The first story tells of the courtship of Sam Slawson and Martha Carrol, the last of their silver wedding. The titles of the six stories are: "By advice of counsel"; The time of her life; Her husband's family; The chorister invisible; The lady of the house; The silver bride.

+ A L A Bkl 11:175 D '14

"Not quite as delightful as the earlier literary creations of its author."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 300w

"Martha should be placed in the portrait gallery of American fiction very near 'Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage patch.'" J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:104 D 14 '14 110w

"Martha and Cupid" is as full of wit and common sense as 'Martha-by-the-day'."

+ Ind 81:177 F 1 '15 60w

"The story is written with rather less spontaneity than appeared in the previous books, but it is of more complicated structure and contains more dramatic incident."

+ N Y Times 19:504 N 15 '14 200w

+ Outlook 108:847 D 9 '14 60w

LIPPMANN, WALTER. Drift and mastery. $1.50 Kennerley 14-18900

The book is made up of a series of chapters in which the author attempts "to diagnose the current unrest and to arrive at some sense of what democracy implies." This unrest expresses itself in industry, in politics, in religion, in social life and the life of the family. All of these phases of modern life are discussed, with an attempt to determine whither we are tending. The real problem of our present day, as it presents itself to the author, rises out of what he calls "the chaos of new freedom."

A L A Bkl 11:200 Ja '15

"It is a fascinating compendium of all the best and soundest of radical thought, welded into definite conceptual form and presented with the clearness and shadowlessness of light." H. E. S.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 1700w

"A cocksure, tho brilliant analysis of our social ills, and a new scheme for making over the world."

+ Ind 80:210 N 9 '14 40w

"It is an entertaining book, one which stimulates the reader to thought upon lines not always familiar to the student of economics and politics, and for that reason it may be welcome even though it contains no very new message."

+ Nation 100:21 Ja 7 '15 1350w

Reviewed by Theodore Roosevelt

+ Outlook 108:650 N 18 '14 1450w

LIPPMANN, WALTER—Continued.

"Mr. Lippmann is evidently too afraid of expressing himself dogmatically, and the result is that when he has finished he has seemed to say very little that was illuminating or helpful."

— Springfield Republican p5 N 26 '14 770w

LISLE, DAVID. Soul of life; or, What is love? $1.25 (1½c) Stokes 13-23491

The author fills this story with echoes of an earlier book, "The painter of souls," for the daughter of the leading character in that story is the present heroine, and there are many references to past events. Isola Dering, a convent-bred English girl, is called upon to play a part in a decadent French drama. She has no understanding of the play or of the part she is to act, and altho she wins a triumph, it is in a way not intended by the author. The story is chiefly concerned, however, with the deterioration of a great actress who, when the realization that she has passed her prime comes to her, takes her own life. For the young girl there is promise of a happy future in England, far removed from the theatre with its hectic triumphs and sorry failures.

"If ever a novel was written to appeal to what Mr. George Moore has called 'the lowest depths of servantalism,' 'What is love?' is emphatically to be classed with it."

— Ath 1913,2:279 S 20 80w

"It is Ouida out-ouida-ed, with touches of modern decadence of which Ouida never dreamed." Cornelia Van Pelt

— Bookm 39:220 Ap '14 600w

"If 'The soul of life' does not live up in some respects to its title, if its style tends toward the florid, and its characters seem at times unconvincing the novel is one that proves nevertheless thoroughly readable and provides 'thrills' that would affect even the most jaded appetite."

+ — N Y Times 19:47 F 1 '14 550w

LITCHFIELD, GRACE DENIO. Collected poems. $1.75 Putnam 13-24129

"We are glad to welcome the 'Collected poems' of Grace Denio Litchfield, whose work in scattered form has been known to the public for the last two decades. . . . Having gone to school to Keats and Shelley and Tennyson, she has formed the instinct of seeing life in terms of beauty." (Nation) The longer poems in the collection are: The nun of Kent, Vita, Narcissus, and Bal'dur the beautiful.

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

+ Bookm 39:201 Ap '14 30w

"The narrative and the dramatic poems, 'Narcissus,' 'Vita, an allegorical drama,' 'Bal'dur the beautiful,' and 'The nun of Kent, an historical drama,' show the poet's talents at their best, and these, especially the last two, have won high critical approbation. The shorter miscellaneous poems, which hardly make a third of the contents of this volume, have little of that contagious substance either in feeling or expression which kindles the reader's emotions. They have that kind of flawlessness that is without life."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Mr 7 '14 230w

"Brought together in a volume of nearly 350 pages, her verses will impress readers as a substantial achievement whose level is distinctly high. For Miss Litchfield has unmistakably real poetic quality. Besides three long dramatic poems, which it is not necessary to review here, Miss Litchfield's volume contains a hundred pages of short lyrics. On the whole, these do not seem to the present writer to have quite the merit of the longer work. But the lack appears to be owing less to native ability than to choice of theme."

+ — Nation 98:138 F 5 '14 406w

"A volume of wholesome verse, not lacking beauties of thought and diction."

+ N Y Sun p26 N 29 '13 140w

"Miss Litchfield is a poet of great gifts, and a representative selection of her work will be of much more than temporary interest."

+ N Y Times 18:604 N 2 '13 50w

"Next to Miss Litchfield's strength as a moralist pure and simple is her charm as a lyricist."

+ N Y Times 19:213 Ap 26 '14 350w

R of Rs 49:117 Ja '14 60w

LITTA-VISCONTI-ARESE, POMPEO, duca. Monsignor Villarosa. $1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-11092

This story of the Catholic priesthood in Italy is a defence of modernism. Monsignor Villarosa is a broad minded, humanitarian bishop whose liberal policies, in espousing the cause of the peasants and other matters, incur the displeasure of Rome. The better part of his life has been given to the writing of a book on "The symbolism of the fourth gospel." The publication of the book brings the congratulations of scientists and philosophers the world over but the church denounces it as heretical. As a secondary interest the book has the love story of Guido Calvella, the bishop's nephew, and Della Leoni, a woman who has been freed from a cruel and vicious husband by divorce. For a time the bishop stands out against their union, true to the teachings of his church. In the end he is won over and his last act on earth is to bless their marriage.

"The tale is frankly anti-clerical, but its human quality lifts it above the plane of tract or campaign document." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:461 O 15 '14 300w

"Duke Litte does not escape the ever-present peril of the purpose novel—having the novel crushed beneath the purpose. The book holds a story of love, but it will appeal most strongly to those who care for its thesis and whose catholicity is that of its protagonist."

+ — N Y Times 19:449 O 18 '14 120w

Sat R 117:838 Je 27 '14 320w

LITTLE, ANDREW GEORGE, comp. and ed. Roger Bacon essays. $5.25 Oxford A14-1674

"The volume has been prepared and published as part of the commemoration at the University of Oxford of the seventh centenary of the birth of Roger Bacon. . . . In particular, attention should be called to the admirable study by M. Picavet, of the Collège de France, of the position to be assigned to Roger Bacon among the philosophers of the thirteenth century."

Other excellent studies are those of Professor Baur of Tübingen and by Cardinal Gasquet, the latter dealing with the highly interesting subject of Roger Bacon and the Latin Vulgate. Professor David Eugene Smith writes with full knowledge and great interest of the place of Roger Bacon in the history of mathematics."—Educ R

"The publication of this volume of essays is the most remarkable addition to our knowledge of Roger Bacon and his work that has been made since Charles published his monumental book more than half a century ago."

+ Ath 1914,2:142 Ag 1 850w

"The essays are without exception written by men of eminent scholarship and marked capacity for the task entrusted to them. We could wish that this book might find its way into the hands of all serious students of European history, of the development of philosophic thought and of the history of scientific endeavor and inquiry. It is a worthy contribution to the memory of one of the greatest names in the history of the intellectual life." N. M. B.

+ Educ R 49:94 Ja '15 350w

Reviewed by W. H. V. Reade

+ — Eng Hist R 30:123 Ja '15 780w

"Mr. Little contributes an introductory life, valuable both for its own sake and because the author quotes at length a lucid and judicial estimate of Bacon from a lecture by the late Prof. Adamson."

+ Nature 94:443 D 24 '14 480w

"This work can be commended in its entirety to all students of science. The volume is interesting and instructive in many ways." L: C. Karpinski

+ Science n s 40:894 D 18 '14 1200w

LITTLE, RAYMOND DEMOREST. Tennis tactics. (Outing handbooks) il *70c (2c) Outing pub. 13-21862

"Mr. Little was the winner in 1911 of Doubles championship. He deals with his subject from the comprehensive viewpoint of generalship and strategy, although the opening chapter will meet the need of beginners for elementary instruction." (N Y Times) Contents: The different strokes; Baseline and net play; The all-around game; The attack; Quick thinking; Doubles; Doubles-play; General points of strategy.

+ A L A Bkl 10:188 Ja '14

"Even those who only sit and enjoy the spectacle of well-played tennis will profit by reading this book, which will deepen their knowledge of the game and reveal to them its finer points. As for the budding champion, it will prove a short cut to experience that could otherwise be gained only at the cost of many years of tournament play."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 150w

Nation 99:228 Ag 20 '14 40w

N Y Times 19:10 Ja 11 '14 80w

LITTLEWOOD, SAMUEL ROBINSON. Fairies —here and now. *85c (3c) McBride, Nast & co. A14-2528

We do believe in fairies, and after reading this suggestive little essay, we may, perhaps, be less ashamed of confessing to our belief and less inclined to throw the responsibility on the children. For a belief in fairies is as necessary to us adults as to the children themselves, and, in common with the children, we possess the two gifts that make the existence of fairies possible and, at the same time, essential to our happiness, imagination and the dramatic instinct. Mr. Littlewood goes "fairy hunting" thru folk lore and modern literature and his conclusion, after a study of the many kinds of fairies, is that they "are only human—are only ourselves idealized, projected into nature by conscious and unconscious art."

"A scholarly essay which yet smiles throughout as from the very heart."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup471 O 25 600w

"The most hardened scoffer will be entertained by Mr. Littlewood's argument, equally with readers who already appreciate the fairies at their true worth."

+ Dial 56:510 Je 16 '14 230w

LIVINGSTON, GEORGE. Field crop production.<sup>10</sup> (Rural text-book ser.) il $1.40 (1c) Macmillan 14-8200

This book is designed for use in elementary and college courses in which a combination text-book and lecture plan is followed. An introductory view of the subject is followed by chapters on: Crop rotations, Corn or maize, Wheat, Oats, Barley, Rye, Rice and buckwheat, The perennial grasses, Annual grasses for grain and forage, Legumes in general, The clovers, Alfalfa, The vetches, Legumes for grain and forage, Root crops, The fiber crops, The potato, Meadows and pastures, and The marketing of grain. An appendix contains a list of reference books, List of experiment stations, Tables showing composition of the principal field crops and their products, and Review questions. A study of the illustrations alone would be worth while for any one unfamiliar with farming operations in America.

"A clearly and interestingly written text-book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:204 Ja '15

+ Educ R 49:100 Ja '15 50w

"Some of the engravings are good, a few seem superfluous, and more than one can be termed unintelligible. With this slight reservation, the handy treatise can be cordially commended to the attention of those who wish to learn the best modern systems for cultivating field crops. It is a useful member of the useful series which Professor Bailey is editing under the title, 'Rural text-book series.'"

+ — Nation 99:30 S 10 '14 230w

LLOYD, GODFREY ISAAC HOWARD. Cutlery trades: an historical essay in the economics of small-scale production. il $3.50 Longmans 14-2937

"Mr. Lloyd's purpose in writing this book was to trace the course of industrial evolution from handicraft to machine industry as exemplified by the cutlery trades of England, since they furnish an excellent example of the continued survival of the characteristic features of the domestic system. He points out the fact that the great alteration in industrial form which we call the industrial revolution must be considered a product of the nineteenth century and not of the eighteenth as is generally stated. It was only in the manufacture of cotton that the change took place so early, and so completely. . . . Especial attention is given to the efforts at concentrating the work, and the attempts at combination on the part both of the employees and the employers."—Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by M. T. Copeland

+ — Ann Econ R 4:638 S '14 470w

"Such a maze of historical facts is presented, that the reader has difficulty in getting the economic significance of those facts, and the author himself does not clearly point out their import." R. M. Keir

+ — Ann Am Acad 53:335 My '14 300w

Ath 1913,2:699 D 13 50w

"Professor Lloyd's book is admirable, both in plan and execution." S. R. Weaver

+ J Pol Econ 23:90 Ja '15 800w

"A valuable addition to the growing mass of material now awaiting the man who will undertake to write the history of the development of the English people. From the nature of the trades which Mr. Lloyd has studied, this volume forms a valuable and necessary check upon generalizations concerning the factory system which have been made from data drawn only from the textile industries and the primary iron trade." A. G. Porritt

+ Pol Sci Q 29:332 Je '14 650w

+ Spec 113:753 N 28 '14 180w

LOCK, ROBERT HEATH. Rubber and rubber planting. il $1.50 (2½c) Putnam Agr14-66

The author says in his first chapter that "probably no raw material of vegetable origin has been put to such multifarious uses as india-rubber. No other vegetable product has risen with equal rapidity from a position of comparative insignificance to one of the highest commercial prominence." It is the story of this development of the rubber industry that he tells in full in chapters as follows: History of the use and cultivation of rubber; The botanical sources of rubber; The physiology of later production; Tapping experiments; Hevea, planting operations; Harvesting operations; Factory work on the estate; The pests and diseases of Hevea; The cultivation of species other than Hevea, Brasiliensis; The chemistry of india-rubber; The manufacture of rubber goods.

+ Bot Gaz 58:188 Ag '14 140w

"Altogether, the book can be regarded as being of great value, not only to the practical man on the estate, but also to investigators in this country." H. W.

+ Nature 93:132 Ap 9 '14 850w

"It would also have added not a little to the text in point of value to the intelligent student to have given specific citations of authorities on which the author frequently and properly depends, while a little further consultation of these would have obviated some minor insufficiencies and errors." F. E. Lloyd

+ — Science n s 40:411 S 18 '14 1050w

LOCKE, ROBERT HEATH—Continued.

"Mr. Locke, who is a high authority, gives a full and lucid account of the rubber industry in this excellent book."

+ Spec 112:274 F 14 '14 100w

LOCKE, A. AUDREY. Seymour family. (Great families ser.) il *$2.50 Houghton

The author tells the story of the family of which Jane Seymour, wife of Henry VIII, and mother of Edward VI, was a member. "The family grew into many branches, producing proud and able men such as Charles Seymour, the sixth Duke of Somerset, called the 'proud Duke,' Sir Edward Seymour, fourth Baron Seymour of Berry Pomeroy, the famous speaker of the House of Commons; Francis Seymour Conway, first Marquis of Hertford, and his brother, General Henry Conway, the friend and idol of Horace Walpole. The most conspicuous member of the family in the nineteenth century was the third Marquis of Hertford, who became famous as the prototype of Thackeray's infamous Lord Steyne." (Boston Transcript)

Reviewed by E. Fuller

Bookm 40:464 D '14 500w

Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 350w

"A refreshing book, after many modern biographies, collective and individual."

+ Nation 99:352 S 17 '14 370w

+ N Y Times 19:453 O 18 '14 400w

Springfield Republican p5 F 4 '15 330w

LOCKE, GLADYS EDSON. Queen Elizabeth; various scenes and events in the life of Her Majesty. il *$1.35 (1½c) Sherman, French & co. 13-26617

A rather fragmentary account of the life of Elizabeth written in a popular style, with frequent quotations from other historians and biographers. The author's aim is to present the personal rather than the political side of the queen's life.

"Miss Locke brings to her aid much contemporary evidence in regard to Elizabeth's character, which adds very greatly to the value and to the interest of the book."

+ — Boston Transcript p25 Mr 25 '14 240w

"A most excellent book to make history attractive."

+ Chaut 72:634 My 2 '14 100w

+ Educ R 47:100 Je '14 40w

+ — Nation 99:22 J1 2 '14 260w

LOCKE, GLADYS EDSON. That affair at Portstead manor. *$1.25 (2c) Sherman, French & co.

An English country home during a house party becomes the scene of a double mystery. The theft of a priceless necklace which throws the guests into confusion is taxing the combined detective strength of amateur and professional to the uttermost when the household is shocked by the murder of the master of Portstead and plunged into a deeper and more puzzling mystery. One of the three detectives employed on the case is a woman whose common sense, calm, and plain logic are skilfully employed in straightening the tangle. A double love story as well as a double crime seems not too much for the writer to handle.

"The story is well written and interesting; it has a pleasing variety of characters and no little originality."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 200w

"One of these detectives is an amateur, who is actually made to act like an amateur, without the wonderful insight—or second sight—sometimes suddenly displayed by personages of his class—in novels."

+ Nation 99:194 Ag 13 '14 280w

N Y Times 19:347 Ag 16 '14 100w

LOCKE, WILLIAM JOHN. Fortunate youth. il *$1.35 (1c) Lane 14-5512

In this fairy story Paul Kegworthy, one-time of Budge street, Bludston, plays the of the herd-boy who marries the princess. As a little boy he runs a race at a Sunday school picnic, loses it, but attracts the attention of a visitor, a pretty girl who calls him, in his hearing, a fairy prince, and gives him a cornelian heart as a talisman. Thereafter his belief in his own superior birth and high destiny never wavers. At thirteen he runs away from his squalid home in search of his heritage. Barney Bill, a wayside peddler, helps him on his way; Jane, his London landlady's daughter, proves his second friend; an aristocratic political family adopt him as private secretary and protégé; a princess gives him her love. All the gods conspire in his favor, and even the disclosure of the secret of his parentage when it comes cannot crush him. He is the fortunate youth to the end.

+ A L A Bk1 10:372 My '14 ✕

"If Mr. Locke's story possessed credible characters, and were not written throughout in a high-pitched falsetto, it might be a good novel, since its plot is both ingenious and, with one glaring exception, plausible."

— + Ath 1914:1sup467 Mr 28 200w

Reviewed by Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 39:217 Ap '14 480w

"Although Mr. Locke is no magician, either at the making of reality seem unreal or unreality seem real, he is able to tell an old story in a way so new and individual that it cannot fail to satisfy the most exacting reader. 'The fortunate youth' is thoroughly Lockian, and that should suffice." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 25 '14 950w

Reviewed by W. M. Payne

+ Dial 56:423 My 16 '14 410w

+ Ind 79:73 J1 13 '14 80w

+ Lit D 48:1119 My 9 '14 300w

"For some readers this latest book may not rank with Mr. Locke's best work, delightful though it is. It has not the sheer beauty of 'Stella Maris,' nor the whimsicality and insight of 'Septimus' and 'The beloved vagabond'; nevertheless it is a charming tale, one that only Mr. Locke would write." L. M. F.

+ N Y Times 19:141 Mr 29 '14 880w

"The defect of this book is that it is an unmitigated fairy story, and a fairy story ought to be mitigated occasionally by a little touch of adversity."

+ — Outlook 107:264 My 30 '14 200w

"The situation is ingenious, without, perhaps the originality in theme of 'Stella Maris,' 'Simon the jester' or 'The glory of Clementina.' Yet in general popularity the book might well outstrip any of these stories for there is vigor, wholesomeness and humanity in the tale—something of 'The happy warrior' spirit." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 85:1062 Mr 21 '14 600w

R of Rs 49:627 My '14 180w

"The story is in Mr. Locke's best manner."

+ — Sat R 117:407 Mr 28 '14 700w

+ — Spec 112:837 My 16 '14 250w

"But while buoyant and zestful, it must be set down that the book is an example of less delicate art than several of those which its author has previously given us."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 380w

LOCKHART, CAROLINE. Full of the moon. il *$1.25 (2½c) Lippincott 14-7279

The sons of respectable and conventional families oftentimes feel the need of a break from home ties. This is the story of one of the daughters who insisted on having her "fling." In spite of protests from well-meaning relatives and devoted lover, Nan Galbraith went west—to see the country, meet new types of people, and enjoy new experiences. The west quite comes up to her expectations, and she has the experiences, too; for the story has the regulation villain of melodrama who lures her away to his lonely ranch house to a fate from which a lucky chance alone saves her. In other points, however the author deviates from the conventional; the rescuer in the case above cited is a half-breed Indian woman, not a dashing cowboy. Indeed, the cowboy lover of the tale is not the usual picturesque hero of fiction at all; and the eastern lover when he appears on the western scene proves himself to be a man equal to the best of them.

"The events of the story are exciting, but the plot is slight and commonplace and the emotional tone even more ordinary."

+ — Boston Transcript p4 My 27 '14 270w

"A pleasanter story than either 'Me, Smith' or 'The lady Doc.'" J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:404 D 14 '14 120w

Nation 98:529 My 7 '14 180w

"Could we forgive the heroine there would be much to commend in the book. The story holds as fine a young hero as one could meet on a summer's day, and it is written with vivacity—it goes. But as for the young lady who holds the center of the stage, she is the kind of person whom, as Richard Watson Gilder once said, 'one gets up in the night to hate'; and it is disconcerting to perceive that she finds favor in the eyes of her creator."

— N Y Times 19:101 Mr 1 '14 450w

Reviewed by Doris Webb

Pub W 85:1060 Mr 21 '14 550w

LOCKWOOD, FRANCIS CUMMINS, comp.
Freshman and his college. *80c Heath

13-19169

In this book of advice to college freshmen, the author "strikes the social note stirring; every man must render some service to the state, and to do it properly present duty demands the organizing of physical, mental and moral strength, the fostering of ideals of purity, justice and honor and the training of a disciplined and fearless will. Mr. Lockwood's own words of advice are strengthened by suitable quotations from David Starr Jordan, William James, Dr. Eliot, John Grier Hibben and other teachers and thinkers of force and repute." (Chaut)

+ A L A Bkl 10:188 Ja '14

Boston Transcript p11 D 18 '13 190w

+ Chaut 72:106 O 4 '13 130w

"None of the papers would fail to be of service to the thoughtful freshman, but William James's chapter on Habit, happily included, is easily worth all the rest for sheer imperative force."

+ Ind 76:177 O 23 '13 110w

"As a whole, the book is marked by wholesome frankness and candor, constraining appeal to manly instinct, and good sense stated in a plain, honest fashion. It furnishes in brief compass some of the best recent utterances on college ideals and student temptations."

+ Nation 97:389 O 23 '13 300w

LOEB, JACQUES. Artificial parthenogenesis and fertilization; tr. by W. O. Redman King. il *$2.50 (2c) Univ. of Chicago. press

13-24757

The German work of which this is a translation was published in 1909. The translation itself has been revised by the author to include the results of later experiments. "Dr. Loeb has not as yet reached the mystery back of the universe, but he has lifted one corner of the great curtain and has shown certain processes which spell life." (Boston Transcript) "As the result of a large number of experiments, he found that it was possible to imitate the natural fertilization of the eggs of certain small creatures (the sea-urchin, star fish, etc.) by chemical and physical means. By treating the eggs with a hyper-tonic solution of sea water, certain weak solutions of acids, alkalis, etc., he succeeded in causing the unfertilized eggs to mature, grow, develop, and become normal sea-urchins or star fish—which in turn generated their kind in a natural manner." (N Y Times)

"It is a marvelous triumph of modern science, told with extraordinary detail and with all the reticence of truly modest knowledge." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p10 D 22 '13 700w

+ Dial 56:391 My 1 '14 60w

"As a comprehensive summary of all that has been done in this field of investigation, the book is indispensable for reference libraries and laboratories."

+ Ind 78:256 My 11 '14 380w

+ — Nation 99:696 D 10 '14 520w

"Altogether this book can be recommended as an authoritative statement on artificial parthenogenesis by one who has himself contributed so much to the subject." R. T. H.

+ Nature 94:30 S 10 '14 650w

"This book contains a wealth of illustration and material bearing upon the subject matter included in the title."

+ N Y Times 19:33 Ja 25 '14 570w

Reviewed by E. N. Harvey

+ Science n s 39:908 Je 19 '14 1150w

+ Spec 112:sup1068 Je 27 '14 90w

LOEB, MORRIS. Scientific work of Morris Loeb; ed. by Theodore W. Richards. il *$2 Harvard univ. press 14-479

The scientific works of the late Morris Loeb of the Havemeyer chemical laboratory at New York university. "The first part of the volume is a collection of some lectures and addresses referring to chemical research, the Chemists' club building, the chemical museum and kindred subjects. . . . The 170 pages of the second part of the volume relate exclusively to original experimental investigations carried out by Morris Loeb since 1885." (Science)

A L A Bkl 10:399 Je '14

"Not only is the book a fitting tribute to a man of significant achievement, but it will be valuable for consultation in the future."

+ Boston Transcript p9 F 28 '14 220w

+ Nation 99:81 JI 16 '14 930w

"A scholarly volume."

+ R of Rs 49:764 Je '14 100w

"The many friends of Dr. Morris Loeb will feel very grateful to Professor Theodore W. Richards for arranging this volume. It is the best monument yet erected to the memory of a man whose life was an inspiration to all who knew him." L. H. Baekeland

+ Science n s 39:537 Ap 10 '14 1700w

LOEB classical library. ea *$1.50 Macmillan
Descriptive note in December, 1913.

+ — Am J Theol 17:477 JI '13 520w

+ — Am J Theol 18:322 Ap '14 250w

+ Ind 77:456 Mr 30 '14 160w

+ Ind 80:142 O 26 '14 80w

"We have spoken of this mechanical aspect of the Loeb library at what may seem undue length, but it is really a matter of supreme importance to the success of the undertaking. Otherwise, one recognizes gladly that excellent work is going into the books."

+ — Nation 98:336 Mr 26 '14 850w

+ — Nation 98:546 My 7 '14 900w

+ — Nation 98:577 My 14 '14 500w

+ Nation 99:323 S 10 '14 570w

Reviewed by Joseph Jacobs

+ N Y Times 20:13 Ja 10 '15 1100w

Spec 112:sup677 Ap 25 '14 300w

+ Spec 112:917 My 30 '14 400w

LOGAN, ALEXANDER. Principles and practice of school gardening. 3s 6d Macmillan, London

"The author points out that nature-study, as usually carried on in elementary schools, is purely observational, and that, at twelve years of age, the pupil's interest in the acquisition of information by this means begins to flag, unless it aids him in action that requires thought. . . . Gardening is held to provide the new stimulus that is necessary. . . . A course of practical work is therefore described, in which the principles underlying each operation are sought for."—Nature

LOGAN, ALEXANDER—Continued.

+ Ath 1913:2:12 J1 5 100w

"The book can be commended to teachers of rural schools, both elementary and secondary."

+ Nature 92:604 Ja 29 '14 300w

"Happily it is a book that we can commend to the adult. It is packed with first-hand information of a practical kind."

+ Sat R 116:342 S 13 '13 180w

LONDON, JACK. Mutiny of the Elsinore. il
*$1.35 (1c) Macmillan 14-15176

Perhaps Jack London's purpose was to show that hardy romance has not gone from the sea and that the life of the seaman has not become one of ease and peace, for he describes a passage round the Horn in the year 1913 and with it as much of battle and mutiny and murder as could be packed into the yarns of any old sea-dog of the early days. The story is told in the first person by the ship's one passenger who has looked forward to the trip as a time of peaceful meditation. He is especially desirous of escaping from the presence of women, and in booking passage had insisted on assurance that the captain would not be accompanied by a wife. He failed to take account of a possible daughter, but with Margaret West once on board he is helpless, and the inevitable love story follows.

"A cruel and brutal story in which the sea descriptions are unusually good."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:122 N '14

"We have discovered a new Jack London, who has discarded the bold brushstrokes of his earlier days and has adopted a mosaic method, carefully fitting bit by bit with infinite slowness and infinite precision, but in the end making a picture just the same." J. Marchand

+ Bookm 40:324 N '14 580w

"Never before with all his fertility of invention and fluency of speech has Mr. London let himself go so unrestrainedly as in 'The mutiny of the Elsinore.'" E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 870w

+ Dial 57:342 N 1 '14 110w

+ — Ind 80:26 O 5 '14 33w

"Good reading."

+ Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 60w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ — Nation 99:654 D 3 '14 70w

"As a mere tale of adventure, a stirring account of a voyage round the Horn, Jack London's newest book is entirely satisfying."

+ — New Republic 1:28 D 26 '14 330w

"A perfectly corking pot-boiler. It is a pot-boiler by virtue of the exceeding purple of its purple patches, the sop to the sentimental of its love episode, and its general air of having been put together while you wait. It is perfectly corking inasmuch as it has the real wildness and savor of the sea in it, the thrill of adventure and danger and conquest, and the immortal truth that if George Moore could wind-jam around the Horn just one voyage he would be twice the writer."

+ — N Y Times 19:386 S 20 '14 650w

"An exciting, excessively brutal tale."

+ — Outlook 108:846 D 9 '14 40w

"If this is not Mr. London's biggest book he has certainly done nothing better. It is dignified, calm and glitters in its vividness. He avoids none of the brutality in the situation and under the circumstances practically justifies the forceful type of the superman."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 8 '14 630w

LONDON, JACK. Strength of the strong. il
*$1.25 (2½c) Macmillan 14-9528

Seven stories with the usual "punch" of the writer: The strength of the strong; South of the slot; The unparalleled invasion; The enemy of all the world; The dream of Debs; The sea-farmer; Samuel. The last two are stories of Island McGill off the northeast coast of Ireland "where fathers and mothers are revered and obeyed as in few other places in this modern world." An idea wholly new to the short story is found in "Samuel." A mother gives her first-born a name ill-omened in her family. The child dies. Then, doggedly, she gives the same name in turn to three other sons, each of whom suffers the fate of the first. In the face of her troubles the mother's courage never flinches.

"Have you any regrets, Margaret Henan?" I asked, suddenly and without forethought.

"She studied me a moment.

"'Ay, that I no ha' borne another son.'

"'And you would . . . ?' I faltered.

"'Ay, that I would,' she answered. 'Ut would ha' been hus name.'"

"Noteworthy collection of short stories. F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:679 Ag '14 500w

"His latest collection of short stories contains seven in all, and two of these involve and defend, at least tacitly, the violent methods of those who contend that a man is not free to earn his own living. In the remaining stories which fill the concluding pages of the volume, Mr. London is at his best, for they are stories and nothing else. It is a pity that Mr. London cannot forget his socialism and confine himself to the writing of stories such as these." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 750w

Ind 78:491 Je 15 '14 40w

"The stories are all rugged, vivid, and interesting."

+ Lit D 49:199 Ag 1 '14 130w

"The stories are by no means of equal merit. 'Samuel' does not touch the high-water mark of the talent that we recognize as peculiarly Jack London's. But, in a less narrow sense, it is perhaps the finest and most moving story that he has ever written."

+ N Y Times 19:270 Je 14 '14 500w

"The book is highly interesting throughout, and possesses many of the striking qualities that made Mr. London's early books notable."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 400w

LONG, HELEN BEECHER. Janice Day. il
*$1.25 (1½c) Sully & Kleinteich 14-16762

When her father goes to Mexico on business, Janice is sent "back east" to spend a year with relatives. She finds them to be a family of shiftless, easy-going ne'er-do-wells, only a shade more shiftless, however, than the rest of the village in which they live. Janice is at first discouraged at the plight in which she finds herself, but she rises to the occasion with the feeling that she must do something. Thru her efforts the sleepy old town is awakened; a clean-up-day, a new school building and other reforms result.

"The story is written with much vivacious realism and with considerable feeling for character."

+ N Y Times 19:512 N 22 '14 200w

LONG, LILY AUGUSTA. Radisson, the voyageur. $1 Holt 14-20808

A semi-historical drama in verse, based upon the picturesque career of Pierre Radisson, who with his brother-in-law, the Sieur des Groseilliers, explored the upper Mississippi a quarter of a century before the coming of Father Hennepin. The author says there is no historical record of any love adventure such as is included in the play, "but—Radisson was twenty, and a Frenchman." The play is intended for reading, but notes are provided which make it available for out-of-door performance by amateurs or as a basis for an Indian pageant.

LONGFORD, JOSEPH HENRY. Evolution of new Japan. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) il $40c (1c) Putnam 14-2019

A brief sketch of the modern history of Japan, extending over the period of Meiji in the reign of the Emperor Mustu Hito. "After a brief sketch of the history of Japan, Professor Longford treats of the abolition of the Shogunate; the assumption of power by the new Emperor, Mustu Hito; his political and social reforms; the abolition of feudalism; the mitigation of the cruel penal code; the formation of a Parliament; the organization of the army; the fight for national autonomy, etc. Our author corrects one common impression about Japan, viz., that she reformed herself; that her own statesmen saw of themselves the immense material superiority of Western civilization, and deliberately followed the example set by the nations of the West." (Cath World)

+ Am Hist R 19:954 J1 '14 70w
A L A Bkl 11:22 S '14

"A most entertaining account of the rise and development of modern Japan."

+ Cath World 99:245 My '14 270w

J Pol Econ 22:820 O '14 150w

+ Nation 99:108 J1 23 '14 80w

"J. H. Longford throws a great light on a subject about which most men are hazy."

+ N Y Times 19:185 Ap 12 '14 50w

Reviewed by T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Science n s 40:382 S 11 '14 180w

"An admirable piece of work."

+ Spec 112:sup1062 Je 27 '14 120w

LONGUEVILLE, THOMAS. Policy and paint.
$2.75 Longmans

"Under this title the author narrates certain incidents in the lives of those great contemporary artists, Dudley Carleton and Peter Paul Rubens, which reveal that in a more golden age art and politics went well together. There are amusing stories of negotiations over pictures and curios between the painters and rich noblemen which would not shame a professional dealer of to-day. Many interesting people come into this history of these two brother artists and politicians—Charles I, Elizabeth of Bohemia, Sir Ralph Winwood and George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham."—Sat R

"The book is decidedly worth reading for any one who desires a completer knowledge of English affairs in the first half of the seventeenth century."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 13 '13 190w

"This book gives a good insight into the devious ways of seventeenth century diplomacy."

+ Cath World 98:681 F '14 470w

"On the rather slender thread of the relations of Carleton and Rubens our author has constructed an excellent bit of biographical history. The necessary complications of the narrative make the book one rather for the scholarly than for the general reader."

+ Nation 98:304 Mr 19 '14 380w

Sat R 116:691 N 29 '13 110w

"We have said enough to indicate the interest of this pleasant and discursive book."

+ Spec 112:sup160 Ja 31 '14 650w

LONGUEVILLE, THOMAS. Vices in virtues. and other vagaries. $1.20 Longmans 14-6678

"Satirical essays on unsatisfactory excesses in such virtues as unselfishness, gardening, and common sense." (Ath) Some of the titles are: The vices of gardening; The vice of loving without liking; The ungentlemanliness of ladies; The vice of common sense; The vice of being too previous; and Ill-health as a profession.

"The essays are certainly better reading than a good deal of the sort that appears in the press."

+ Ath 1913,2:702 D 13 200w

"It is all couched in excellent English drollery, and some of the foibles knocked out are accompanied by telling anecdotes. There is also wisdom mingled in due proportions with satire and milder irony. The book gives the impression of an extremely vivacious after-dinner conversation, with rather long monologues. One cannot help being in agreement with a good deal of the author's sardonic cynicism, especially since it is flavored with an underlying atmosphere of good humor."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Mr 27 '14 270w

"There are lots of good things in these airy nothings, or, as our author styles them, vagaries."

+ Cath World 99:542 J1 '14 330w

"He has a keen eye for light and shade, and can understand those subtle distinctions that make all the difference between things."

+ Sat R 116:787 D 20 '13 230w

"The essays are very clever and amusing; more suited, perhaps, to journalistic than book form. They are, in fact, 'vagaries,' the fruit of an hour's whimsical speculation of no permanent value, but productive all the same of passing delight."

+ Spec 112:917 Mr 30 '14 250w

LOREBURN, ROBERT THRESHIE REID, 1st Earl. Capture at sea. *2s 6d Methuen, London 14-7536

"A vital difference exists between the rights which belligerents can exercise on land and those which they can enforce at sea. On land, to put the matter briefly, the private property of unoffending individuals is respected; at sea one belligerent state is free to confiscate the merchant ships owned by the private citizens of the other. Lord Loreburn, who makes his first appearance as an author with this book, urges that the property of private citizens should possess at sea the immunity from capture it enjoys on land."—Ath

"Lord Loreburn recognizes that his plea for the inviolability of private property at sea is opposed to the opinion of naval experts. The value of his book lies not only in the singularly lucid statement of his own view, but also in his frank acknowledgment of the weight of the opinion that can be urged against it. While he never ceases to be earnest, he never fails to be fair."

+ Ath 1913,2:104 Ag 2 500w

+ Sat R 116:177 Ag 9 '13 900w

"Sufficient has perhaps been said to satisfy the reader that he must examine with great care the case presented in this book before he accepts the proposed changes in the manner of conducting war at sea."

+ Spec 112:189 Ja 31 '14 1300w

LORIA, ACHILLE. Economic synthesis: a study of the laws of income; tr. from the Italian, by M. Eden Paul. *$3 Macmillan

(Eng ed 14-5224)

"The main thesis of the book is that economic science is now sufficiently advanced to permit the formulation of a general law of social stability. Economic and historical research directed, however unconsciously, towards this end, first studied the bundle of phenomena which enter into the conception of rent. The next stage of progress in economics elucidated the nature of profits. The third and final stage explains what income is. As social stability directly depends upon the distribution of income, it is at last possible to come to a general conclusion."—Ath

"Professor Loria set himself a difficult task and has brilliantly handled it." C: A. Tuttle

+ Am Econ R 4:871 D '14 970w

"We welcome this work as containing the sort of generalization which economic science appears to us to need. Analysis has by this time been carried far enough to justify a deliberate effort at synthesis."

+ Ath 1914,1:816 Je 13 550w

"Tested by the standards of the modern scientific point of view, 'The economic synthesis' falls short of the requirements of a scientific treatise. Judged by its fundamental hypotheses as well as by its method, it seems to hold forth scant reassurance to the science with which it deals, though it is the result of a laudable ambition and an amazing erudition." Leon Ardzrooni

+ J Pol Econ 22:699 J1 '14 2050w

"A very clever imitation of a great book; but it lacks all substance of reality."

+ Nation 99:658 D 3 '14 1450w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

LORING, JOHN ALDEN. African adventure stories. il *$1.50 (2½c) Scribner 14-16454

A book of true stories. The author was field naturalist to the Roosevelt African expedition, and Mr. Roosevelt contributes a commendatory foreword to this volume. Many of the adventures related came within the experience of Mr. Loring or other members of the expedition; others are the stories told by travelers and hunters whom he met.

A L A Bkl 11:207 Ja '15

"Although Mr. Loring is a naturalist by profession, his book drips gore from its many killings, and we hear little about the habits of the animals and much detail about ways of destroying them." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:450 D '14 120w

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 17 '14 150w

N Y Times 20:53 F 14 '15 80w

LOTI, PIERRE, pseud. India; tr. from the French by G. A. F. Inman; ed. by Robert H. Sherard. il *$2.50 Duffield (7-32831)

"Loti writes with his usual vibrant imagination, and what is more, he writes with a subjectivity of plausible sincerity. . . . It is needless to state that his 'India' does not give the ordinary scenes and impressions: we do not see the English and missionary influences, nor pageants of theatrical interpretation, we do not have customs pointed out on account of their oddity by a mind thoroughly out of tune with their true meaning. The first of the book is a description of Loti's visit to Travancore, which because of its lack of transportation conveniences, is inaccessible to all but privileged travellers."—Boston Transcript

A L A Bkl 10:254 F '14

"We may well feel a thrill of expectation at the thought of this land of ancient mystery and beauty sketched by the exotic pen of Loti; and we can scarcely be disappointed, even though the book as a travelogue of information which it does not pretend to be falls short of the usual standard. Even if it were not artistically clear, following the excellent sequence of natural chronology, the combination of author and subject would be promising enough."

+ Boston Transcript p25 N 12 '13 800w

"The language of the translator and editor has done all that could be done to reflect the iridescent splendor and variety of his rhapsodical musings."

+ Lit D 47:700 O 18 '13 350w

"A score of illustrations are added to the hand of A. Hugh Fisher, A. R. E. To these last only a qualified commendation can be allowed."

+ Nation 97:533 D 4 '13 100w

"The book has been carefully edited by Robert Harbrough Sherard and is enriched with a series of sketches which add much by way of carrying out that spirit of place by which M. Loti's work is characterized."

+ N Y Times 18:501 S 28 '13 100w

R of Rs 48:637 N '13 70w

LOTI, PIERRE, pseud. Morocco; tr. from the French by W. P. Baines. il *$2.50 (4c) McKay (Eng ed W15-36)

A record of something over a month's sojourn in Morocco. The first entry—the book is written in diary form—is dated March 26, 1889, the last May 4 of the same year. The author journeyed from Tangier to Fez as a member of a diplomatic mission. He gives his impressions of Tangier at first sight, describes the journey across the desert country, and gives fascinating glimpses of the city of Fez which he explored by himself, choosing to separate himself from his European companions and don native dress.

"Apart from a few weaknesses of translation, there is little ground for fault-finding, and much for praise and admiration. In his few weeks of Moorish travel and observation, Pierre Loti succeeded in securing a vivid impression of the real spirit of the country and its people. His generalizations are remarkably sound, and so the effect of his picture is astonishingly true. This is the outstanding fact about the book; this it is that gives it real value, and is, in a sense, a tribute to the power of literature."

+ Ath 1914,1:847 Je 20 970w

"Mr. Barnes has done his best to turn this book into straightforward, respectable English, but in this guise so little is left to justify the author's reputation that the task was hardly worth while."

—Spec 113:102 J1 18 '14 60w

LOTI, PIERRE, pseud. Siam; tr. by W. P. Baines. il *$2 (6½c) McKay (Eng ed 14-16968)

A record of travels in Siam in 1901. It is largely taken up with a description of the ruined temple of Angkor-Vat, which the author had dreamed in his childhood of someday visiting. A reference here and there to French rule in Indo-China attracts attention, and in the dedicatory preface there is this significant sentence: "I do not believe in the future of our distant colonial conquests. And I mourn the thousands and thousands of our brave little soldiers who were buried in those Asiatic cemeteries, when we might so well have spared their precious lives, and risked them only in the last defence of our beloved French land."

"One of the slightest, but most characteristic of his recent books. The translation is very good in view of the intrinsic difficulties of a style which depends on romantic sensitiveness of temperament and hardly carries over into another language. The illustrations in colour and halftone really illustrate the text, and are pleasing in form and colour. The charm of the Far East and of its women is here to the full."

+ Ath 1913,1:669 Je 21 110w

Cleveland 6:78 S '14 40w

LOVEJOY, SOPHIA. Self-training for motherhood. *$1 (3c) Am. Unitar. 14-5477

Some of the problems of motherhood and child training are discussed in chapters as follows: The vocation of motherhood; The art of self-criticism; The training of the body; The training of the senses; The training of the mind; Morals; Manners; The financial basis; The study of the child; The discipline of the child; The mind of the child; The soul of the child.

Reviewed by H: W. Thurston

+ Survey 32:641 S 26 '14 280w

LOW, BENJAMIN R. C. Wand and strings, and other poems. *$1.25 Lane 13-21927

"This is the second volume of poetry by a young writer whose work attracted considerable attention and was much discussed on its first appearance in a volume entitled 'The sailor who has sailed.' Mr. Low is an interesting figure in the new school of letters and poetry that looks to Yale as the fountain head of its culture." —N Y Times

"There is nothing very arresting or magical about these songs, but their technique is good, and their thought clean-cut." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:67 Ja 16 '14 220w

+ Lit D 47:830 N 1 '13 430w

"Mr. Low has advanced greatly in technique of verse without revealing the self-consciousness of the metricalian, the besetting sin of the scholarly bard; in his complete humanity he stands shoulders above his fellows. His philosophy, unashamed of life but never shameless, marks him out as a poet to be noted and admired, from whom the new literature of man and woman may attain a noble and healthy message."

+ N Y Times 18:708 N 30 '13 450w

"This collection is characterized by a quiet beauty and perfection of technique. The sense of restraint—of over-care for technique—at times mars the emotional content of the verse. One longs for the trample of the hoofs of a freer muse."

+ R of Rs 49:116 Ja '14 90w

LOW, SIDNEY JAMES MARK. Egypt in transition; with an introd. by the Earl of Cromer. il $2.50 (3½c) Macmillan 14-3577

Mr. Low's book is a critical examination of the British administration in Egypt. The chapters of it were written, he says, "after visits to Egypt and the Sudan in which I endeavoured to gain some insight into the political, social and administrative conditions of those countries. They are intended to convey some account, slight, but I hope faithful, of my impressions of the territory in that stage of transition which ensued after the conclusion of Lord Cromer's great period of reconstruction." He begins his study with the Sudan, and then follows the course of the river to Cairo and the delta. His conclusion is that the British occupation must be continued for many years. England can in time withdraw from the Nile country, but that time is yet far distant.

"Presents in a readable style much of interest to the serious reader and the tourist."

+ A L A Bkl 10:358 My '14

Reviewed by G. B. Roorbach

+ Ann Am Acad 56:182 N '14 450w

"Fortified by an introduction from Lord Cromer, this book contains, indeed, a quantity of information on the work and methods of officials in Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, random glances at the previous history of the country in relation to the British occupation, and some light discussion of the surface problems of administration. But of the significance of the phenomena on which he blandly touches, of the real crux of the Egyptian question, Mr. Sidney Low affords his readers scarce a glimpse."

+ Ath 1914,1:222 F 14 1300w

+ Cath World 100:101 O '14 670w

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ Dial 57:252 O 14 1050w

"Mr. Low neither shuns the dark side of the picture nor exaggerates the bright features of the narration."

+ Lit D 48:914 Ap 18 '14 750w

+ N Y Times 19:311 Jl 12 '14 160w

+ Outlook 107:368 Je 13 '14 850w

+ R of Rs 49:635 My '14 100w

"By this book Mr. Sidney Low has done for Egypt what he did for India with his 'Vision of India.' He has made an admirable book which we can recommend."

+ Sat R 117:178 F 7 '14 700w

"Few English writers who are accustomed to travel and record their experiences in books combine so well as Mr. Sidney Low a light and easy touch that makes for extreme readability with a very serious interest in affairs."

+ Spec 112:306 F 21 '14 1550w

"An uncommonly vivid and meaty book."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 270w

Reviewed by D. W. Kittredge

+ Yale R n s 4:191 O '14 1350w

LOWE, ORTON. Literature for children. *90c Macmillan 14-13550

The author believes that a taste for literature is a result of cultivation, and that the time when the cultivation of this taste is easiest is that spent in the elementary school. His book is addressed to the teacher, who, he believes, has it in his power to overcome the "vaudeville idea" of the age by planting in its place a love for that which is good and beautiful and abiding in literature. Part 1 is made up of chapters on: The value of good books; Books and literature in elementary schools; The learning of lyric poetry by heart. Part 2 is composed of Selections for memorizing, arranged by years. Part 3 takes up Sources of standard prose for children.

"This volume should be in the possession of every household where there are good young children."

+ Boston Transcript p24, D 2 '14 270w

+ El School J 15:240 Ja '15 320w

"Altogether a useful book."

+ Ind 89:413 D 14 '14 60w

"The arrangement of the book might have shown better unity. But it is to be recommended."

+ Lit D 49:1136 D 5 '14 90w

LOWE, PERCY ROYCROFT. Our common sea-birds. il *$6 Scribner

This book "contains an exceedingly good account of the cormorants, terns, gulls, skuas, petrels, and auks. . . . Dr. Lowe writes rather for the field naturalist than the museum student. Mr. Ogilvie-Grant and Mr. Pycraft have some contributions to the drier side of ornithology, and Mr. O. Plke describes his adventures in photographing the skuas."—Spec

"Though heavy in the hand and somewhat trying to the eyes, the book is undoubtedly a beautiful one, and will be most welcome to all who wish to learn something about birds of the shore. Later in the book it becomes a positive relief to be able to read a page or two of letterpress almost free from photos. Perhaps in the second volume it may be found possible to keep more consistently to the principle that illustrations should illustrate."

+ Nature 92:688 F 19 '14 730w

"Dr. Lowe writes without dry technicality. The chief feature of the book is, of course, the great and wonderful collection of photographs of living birds in their haunts. Nothing finer has ever been done, and we have some of the latest work of our best bird-photographers."

+ Spec 112:sup159 Ja 31 '14 200w

LOWELL, ABBOTT LAWRENCE. Public opinion and popular government. (American citizen ser.) *$2.25 Longmans 13-22313

"This work is, in the main, an attempt to answer the question, 'To what extent can public opinion be translated into action?' The book resolves itself into a survey of what constitutes public opinion, and a study of the Referendum." (Ath) "It has a clear and orderly division into four parts, 'The nature of public opinion,' 'The function of parties,' 'Methods of expressing public opinion' and 'The regulation of matters to which public opinion cannot directly apply.'" (N Y Sun)

Am Econ R 4:186 Mr '14 100w

Reviewed by R. E. Park

+ Am J Soc 20:270 S '14 500w

A L A Bkl 10:229 F '14

"On the whole, the book, although an essay rather than a treatise, is a valuable contribution to the subject." J. M. Mathews

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:308 My '14 380w

"This book has the good qualities of the author's 'The government of England'—a catholic grasp of facts, and a power of seizing points which become obvious only when stated."

+ Ath 1913,2:657 D 6 110w

"In spite of minor defects, the book is a distinct addition to the literature dealing with popular government,—in some respects, indeed, the most valuable that has been made by an American author."

+ Dial 56:188 Mr 1 '14 400w

"There is much in the book from which the American political student and observer of political action will dissent, but on the whole it is a wise, useful and stimulating volume."

+ Educ R 47:310 Mr '14 90w

"It is the sort of philosophic treatise on a topic of popular interest and concern which, to our loss, is by no means so common in this country as in Europe, a piece of political speculation with an immediate bearing on political practice."

+ N Y Sun p9 N 8 '13 1000w

"The distinguished President of Harvard university has done a good citizen's work in his discussion of public opinion as the basis of popular government."

+ N Y Times 19:81 F 22 '14 1450w

+ No Am 199:944 Je '14 780w

LOWELL, ABBOTT LAWRENCE—Continued.

"Dr. Lowell's book may be confidently recommended to the study of editors, reformers, and legislators interested in the preservation and promotion of popular government."

+ Outlook 105:936 D 27 '13 320w

Reviewed by E. M. Sait

+ Pol Sci Q 29:130 Mr '14 900w

+ R of Rs 49:506 Ap '14 89w

LOWELL, AMY. Sword blades and poppy seed. *$1.25 Macmillan 14-17849

Another attempt to make poetry free; to loose it from the bonds and traditions of set forms. The author says: "Many of the poems in this volume are written in what the French call 'Vers libre,' a nomenclature more suited to French use and to French versification than to ours. I prefer to call them poems in 'unrhymed cadence,' for that conveys their exact meaning to an English ear. They are built upon 'organic rhythm,' or the rhythm of the speaking voice with its necessity for breathing, rather than upon a strict metrical system. They differ from ordinary prose rhythms by being more curved, and containing more stress." (Preface)

"It is not too much to say that 'Sword blades and poppy seed' is significant in a variety of aspects not even hinted at in her former work. In saying this we are not vouching for the entire contents of the volume. Miss Lowell relapses frequently into a mere exercise of words, but there is a goodly portion of the volume in which the substance is burnished with imaginative gold and subtly wrought into a cadenced elasticity of rhythm altogether rare in English verse." W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 400w

Reviewed by A. D. Ficke

+ Dial 58:12 Ja 1 '15 600w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 100:139 F 4 '15 500w

"The book as a whole is notable for the organic relation it bears to life and to art." Ferris Greenslet

+ New Republic 1:28 Ja 30 '15 1400w

"Miss Lowell has a remarkable gift of what one might call the dramatic-decorative. Her decorative imagery is intensely dramatic, and her dramatic pictures are in themselves vivid and fantastic decorations. Her style is mannered even to dandyism, but her dandyism includes very trenchant sword-play; so she lives up to half her title; as for the other half, the 'poppy seed,' her whole book is of the veritable stuff of dreams." R: L. Gallienne

+ N Y Times 20:11 Ja 10 '15 1400w

+ R of Rs 51:117 Ja 15 '14 140w

LOWIS, CECIL CHAMPAIN. Fascination. *$1.25 Lane 13-24451

"The title is due to a minor part played by an East Indian snake charmer, the story being of Burmese life. The general theme is one Kipling has often put into far less verbose form: the marital entanglements brought about by the narrow scope of white society in the over-sea empire. Mr. Cavisham, wife, and daughter no sooner arrive at Mindaung, where the tottering old man is to engage upon some ethnological work, than the young wife and the resident Governor, Chepstowe, who tells the story, feel an irresistible attraction towards each other. The remainder of the book, excluding small parts dealing with the love affair of the daughter and the Vice-Governor, is concerned with the fatal triangle." (Nation) "There are no heroics; the narrator tries to explain things to himself in the matter of fact way in which he might make an official report. The reader will rejoice in his escape from the temptation that opportunity offers." (N Y Sun)

"The author knows Burma in the tourist sense, and describes a scene with a snake-charmer well, but he gives no idea of the spirit of the people, and does not arouse our interest in the main characters. The hero, who tells the story, has not yet learnt to express his feelings or analyze his motives, nor has Mr.

Lowis done it for him. The style is jerky, and the book is wearisome in parts, but it improves near the end."

+ Ath 1913,2:418 O 18 80w

"The story suffers from a persistent atmosphere of poison and unwholesome danger."

+ Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '13 240w

"A sense of humor atones for lack of varied incident."

+ Nation 98:35 Ja 8 '14 250w

"An honest bit of realism."

+ N Y Sun p3 D 20 '13 200w

"The only good pieces are the intimate descriptions of Burma wherein the plot is laid and the strange attraction of Ma Kin, the native snake-charmer. Otherwise there is a great deal of much ado about nothing in the book."

+ Sat R 116:sup9 O 11 '13 170w

+ Spec 112:444 Mr 14 '14 25w

LOWNDES, MRS. MARIE ADELAIDE (BELLOC). The lodger. *$1.25 Scribner 13-23216

This story "tells of a series of murders committed by a homicidal maniac, and how they preyed on the minds of the respectable couple with whom he lodged, and who had accidentally discovered his secret." (Ath) "In her last novel, 'The end of her honeymoon,' Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes kept her readers in a pleasant state of mystification until the final chapter. In 'The lodger,' there is a reversal of this method. Before the story is half told the clue to its mystery is purposely disclosed, and the interest of the reader is thereafter intensified by the accumulating horrors, which he is himself led to add to the strange situation first suggested to his mind." (N Y Times)

"The book, which displays both humour and observation of human nature, is interesting more for its style than for any brilliancy or profundity of plot."

+ Ath 1913,2:228 S 6 60w

"The only weak point in the whole volume is the somewhat melodramatic and unlikely coincidence of having all the parties concerned meet by chance in the chamber of horrors at Madame Tussaud's wax works." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:209 Ap '14 500w

"Mystery stories are supposedly of a low class of fiction. However that may be, 'The lodger' is wrought with such skill that it is of a high class of mystery story. And in it Mrs. Lowndes offers a plausible solution to the famous mystery of the Whitechapel murders." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Mr 4 '14 870w

"The book is a clever monograph in the form of fiction, a job hardly worth while, and well done."

+ Nation 98:363 Ap 2 '14 250w

"In this department of fiction, indeed, she can be depended upon to produce work of a very excellent quality—work that has just that touch of reality, that feeling of 'atmosphere' that gives to a novel of this character genuine and permanent value. Her book is a splendid bit of work in the art that creates mystery in literature."

+ N Y Times 19:82 F 22 '14 780w

"The story is well worked out."

+ Outlook 106:650 Mr 21 '14 90w

"The lodger cannot be regarded as a work of first-rate creative imagination, because in the main theme a good deal of detail has been supplied ready-made. But it forms an extremely ingenious and engrossing commentary on one of the most horrifying episodes in the annals of modern crime, besides raising a highly interesting problem of civic ethics."

+ Spec 111:573 O 11 '13 700w

LOWRY, EDITH BELLE. Home nurse. il *$1 (2½c) Forbes 14-2155

A handbook on the home care of the sick. Part 1, which takes up general disorders, has chapters on: The home nurse, The sick room; Bed making; Observation of symptoms; Daily care of patient; Baths, etc. Part 2, is devoted to Nursing in special diseases; Part 3, to Minor disorders, accidents, home remedies.

"The book is free from technical terms, and its instructions can be understood and followed by any intelligent person."

+ Chaut 72:694 My 2 '14 150w

Springfield Republican p5 JI 2 '14 170w

LOWRY, EDITH BELLE. Teaching sex hygiene in the public schools. *50c (3½c) Forbes 14-6665

The question as to how and where sex instruction should be given is still unsettled. The author does not pretend to settle it; she presents this little book "simply as an explanation of the present status of the question as related to the public schools." Contents: The necessity; The method; The caution; The greater work; The blindness of parents; The story of life; The girl; The boy; The well directed childhood; The coworkers.

"A silly little book."

— Educ R 48:425 N '14 80w

"Excellent book." W: F. Snow

+ Survey 33:272 D 5 '14 300w

LUBSCHEZ, BEN J. Perspective: an elementary textbook. il *$1.50 Van Nostrand 13-9253

This book "is intended for the struggling student who is endeavoring to better himself by hard study, and who yearns, not for the knowledge of the science and theory of perspective, but rather for the ability to make a perspective drawing. For such purpose the author thinks it best to use what he calls the 'laboratory method,' attempting to teach the student first to make a perspective drawing, and then to 'study its grammar and rhetoric.'"—Nation

"Admirably adapted for the purpose intended."

+ A L A Bkl 10:400 Je '14

Ath 1913,2:761 D 27 50w

Nation 96:628 Je 19 '13 80w

+ School Arts Magazine 13:792 Je '14 60w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. Landmarks. 12 *$1.35 (2c) Macmillan 14-19689

Mr. Lucas calls his story a moving-picture novel, because in it he has tried to adapt to the novelist's use the methods of "the gifted gentlemen who apply the severe selective machinery of the cinema." His story touches on only the landmarks in the career of his hero, Rudd Sergison, and scene after scene from his life, from the age of seven onwards, is flashed onto the screen. The incidents selected for reproduction are not always the biggest and most startling; Mr. Lucas knows life well enough to realize that it is the trivial occurrences that may prove momentous.

+ Ath 1914,2:502 N 14 170w

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:557 Ja '15 400w

"The charm of this story, or series of stories, lies as much in its manner as in its subject matter. It is no less like life because it is episodic, and in spite of its lapses of time, it has all the illusion of an uninterrupted tale of actual happenings. It tells exactly what might happen to any human being on his way from infancy to early manhood." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 1100w

+ Ind 81:175 F 1 '15 170w

+ Nation 99:659 D 3 '14 430w

"A very entertaining novel."

+ N Y Times 19:539 N 29 '14 680w

"The book is, in fact, a characteristic Lucas production, and, in many ways, the best thing that has come from his prolific pen."

+ Sat R 118:sup6 N 14 '14 350w

"Mr. Lucas's new excursion into the realms of fiction, though it retains some of the characteristic features of his previous 'easygoing chronicles,' shows a somewhat closer conformity to the rules and regulations of the game as played by the orthodox novelist."

+ Spec 113:641 N 7 '14 1150w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL, ed. Lucas' 11 annual. *75c (1c) Macmillan 14-15569

Among the treasures that Mr. Lucas has collected for this volume are a group of new letters by Stevenson printed here for the first time. Other contributions to the volume are from the pens of Barrie, Arnold Bennett, John Galsworthy, Maurice Hewlett, Hugh Walpole, Stephen Leacock, and other well-known men.

A L A Bkl 11:163 D '14

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 17 '14 1050w

"Quaintly charming volume."

+ Dial 57:345 N 1 '14 400w

+ No Am 200:948 D '14 430w

+ Outlook 108:732 N 25 '14 80w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. Swollen-headed William; painful stories and funny pictures after the German! il *50c Dutton

An attempt to adapt "Struwwelpeter" to fit the present situation in Europe. Some of the verses are: The story of cultured William; The dreadful story of William and the matches; The story of William who would not have any peace-soup, etc.

Ath 1914,2:587 D 5 30w

"We are surprised to see E. V. Lucas's name on such a collection. Evidently the war has a bad effect on taste as well as temper."

— Ind 80:477 D 21 '14 130w

"Some of the adaptations are most amusing."

+ Spec 113:567 O 24 '14 150w

LUCAS, EDWARD VERRALL. Wanderer in Venice. il *$1.75 (2c) Macmillan 14-21044

This is neither a guide to Venice nor a history. For either of these, the author says, the reader must look elsewhere. Which is merely a way of saying that it is, like the other books on Florence, Paris, London, and Holland, a delightful volume to read, before going to Venice, or after. There are two chapters on St. Mark's, two on the Doges' palace, several on the Grand Canal, with many references to Browning, Wagner, Byron, Shelley, and others who have had associations with these places. There are other chapters devoted to painters and pictures, and to churches. The sixteen illustrations in color are by Harry Morley, and there are in addition thirty-two reproductions of paintings and a map.

"Of real value for the traveler abroad or by the fireside."

+ A L A Bkl 11:215 Ja '15

"The delightful volume before us, which is better illustrated than any other we remember at the price, will hardly receive more than its due if it surpasses them all in popularity. He knows his Venice, and is well read in the literature of the subject."

+ Ath 1914,2:554 N 28 1850w

"He takes them into every nook and corner of Venice and he proves himself a competent, an expert and an inspiring guide." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p23 D 30 '14 650w

+ Dial 57:506 D 16 '14 350w

+ Nation 100:26 Ja 7 '15 230w

"A worthy companion to Mr. Lucas's other 'Wanderer' books. It is dignified in form, illustrated with intelligence, informed in art and criticism, delightful in personal touch, in humor, and in quality."

+ Outlook 109:237 Ja 27 '15 31w

"Our only complaint against Mr. Lucas's guide-book, is one which we did not in the least expect to have to bring against it. The book is far too conscientious, painstaking, and orderly. We had hoped from Mr. Lucas something nobly discursive, and, lo and behold! our volatile, touch-and-go essayist toiling and grinding at the painting, sculpture, and architectural mill of Venice with the topographical slaves of Baedeker and Murray."

+ Spec 113:919 D 26 '14 1850w

LUCAS, JOSEPH. Our villa in Italy. il *$1.50
 12 (4½c) Duffield A14-2341

This Englishman who tells of his hunt for a villa in Italy in which to spend a winter knew exactly what he wanted—"a villa centuries old, with an interesting pedigree clinging to it like the smell of old lavender," "a house with walls weather-stained and thick, with a secret staircase and underground passages, and if possible a family ghost," "a small house with a large garden—the garden as venerable as the house." He writes of his experiences in house hunting, describes the house when found, its furniture, the garden, the neighbors and the podore, which last, being interpreted, is a small farm of about nine acres attached to the villa.

"A pleasant, discursive book."

+ A L A Bk1 11:72 O '14

"It is a pity then that the author is not able to give a more eloquent and a more interesting account of his adventures. In spite of its shortcomings, however, the book has considerable interest for all who love or have lived in Italy, the best things in it being the chapters dealing with furnishing of the villa."

+ — Ath 1913,2:353 O 4 250w

"As a whole, his book is a most agreeable blending of the poetic, the imaginative, and the romantic-historic, on the one hand, with the practical, the domestic, the homely and pleasantly realistic, on the other."

+ Dial 57:260 O 1 '14 270w

R of Rs 50:757 D '14 60w

"If Mr. Lucas had told us more about life as it is actually lived 'up at a villa' and given us less of his reflections on things in general, his readers' anticipations would have been more agreeably fulfilled. However, we can follow him with interest in his house-hunting expeditions and in his quests for old furniture and majolica."

+ — Spec 111:sup694 N 1 '13 160w

LUDWIG, ERNEST. Consular treaty rights and comments on the "most favored nation" clause. $4.50 New Werner co. 13-24124

"Consul Ludwig has put in a convenient form treaty provisions relating to certain of the rights and immunities of consuls, with the extracts of cases interpreting those provisions. The author cites many recent cases. The extracts and comments deal more especially with the rights of consuls in the care of estates of deceased nationals in their districts. Appeal is made to the 'most favored nation' clause to extend to consuls of other countries the treaty rights enjoyed by any one of them."—J Pol Econ

"This book is badly arranged, burdened with unnecessary repetitions, and not clearly written. Nevertheless it is not without some value."

J. S. R.

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:331 My '14 170w

Ann Am Acad 52:233 Mr '14 170w

"The comments interspersed in a somewhat confusing way throughout the book are of interest as giving the views of one experienced in the application of the treaties and regulations in actual practice."

+ — J Pol Econ 22:603 Je '14 150w

LUNN, ARNOLD HENRY MOORE. Exploration of the Alps. (Home univ. lib.) il *50c
 (1c) Holt 14-17886

The book opens with an interesting chapter on the medieval attitude toward mountains. This is followed by an account of Hannibal's famous crossing of the Alps, and after that comes the record of later ascents and explorations, in chapters as follows: The opening up of the Alps; The story of Mont Blanc; Monte Rosa and the Bündner Oeroland; Tirol and the Oberland; The coming of the English; The story of the Matterhorn; Modern mountaineering; with a concluding chapter on The Alps in literature.

A L A Bk1 11:170 D '14

Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 70w

"Its 250 pages are packed with useful information."

+ R of Rs 50:759 D '14 50w

LUNN, ARNOLD HENRY MOORE. The Harrovians. 6d Methuen, London

"The question is often asked, particularly in the United States, what the real life of the boys in English public schools is like in our own day. The best answer to that question that has been made is to be found in this volume. . . . This book answers the question all the better because it professes no such useful purpose. It is rather a minute chronicle of the life and experiences of a boy at Harrow. . . . The story is based upon a boy's carefully kept school diary."—R of Rs

"It is written with verve and humor, and displays insight into the psychology of the average schoolboy. It has the real atmosphere. Its only fault is an occasional tendency to deliver the Balliol point of view through the medium of the Harrow 'fag.'"

+ — Ath 1913,2:62 J1 19 60w

"It has admirable literary quality, and is so written that American boys, as well as their fathers and their instructors, will find it well worth reading. It is the sort of book that may find a rather slow and gradual recognition, but that will keep a permanent place in the field of books dealing with the life and training of boys."

+ R of Rs 49:381 Mr '14 180w

+ — Sat R 116:244 Ag 23 '13 250w

"It may be a very good thing to correct the tendency to idealize public-school life, but a monotonous insistence on the superficial brutalities of the schoolboy, on the irreverence of his language or the cynicism of his outlook, produces in Mr. Lunn's hands an unloveliness a good deal beyond the facts. Nor is there novelty, though there is certainly unusualness, in Mr. Lunn's attempt. Although we cannot accept Mr. Lunn's picture as true in its cumulative effect, some of the incidents and observations are as penetrating as anything we have read about public schools."

+ — Spec 111:217 Ag 9 '13 1250w

LUSK, GRAHAM. Fundamental basis of nutrition. *50c (4c) Yale univ. press 14-7044

A valuable little handbook which offers a scientific calculation of the food, or fuel, demanded by the human machine. Its aim is to present the subject of nutrition in its broad general aspects and to suggest the possibility of the practical application of some of the facts which years of labor have brought to light. A brief historical chapter is followed by a discussion of the need of fuel and the need of protein, the habits of diet, the disease of beri-beri, and criteria of the monetary value of foods.

Am Econ R 4:675 S '14 40w

"Treats the subject in a clear, up-to-date way, and fully enough, for the unscientific person. Very well written."

+ A L A Bk1 11:14 S '14

"It is the work of one of the best experimental physiologists in this country." C. H. J.

+ El School T 14:492 Je '14 180w

"We wish that Professor Lusk had expanded his lecture sufficiently to make it clearer than we fear it will be to the lay reader. It is full of valuable information."

+ — Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 180w

LUTHER, MARTIN. Luther's correspondence<sup>2</sup> and other contemporary letters; tr. and ed. by Preserved Smith. v 1, 1507-1521. *$3.50
 (2c) Lutheran pub. soc. 14-2526

v 1 As a volume of published letters this work is unique in that it is not confined to the correspondence of one man. It is a collection of letters of the period of the reformation, all bearing on that crisis, called by the author, "the most momentous in the annals of Europe." Biographical notes and other necessary annotations are furnished by the editor. Volume 1 covers the period from 1507 to 1521.

"This important volume is practically a source book for the early years of the Lutheran movement." W: W. Rockwell

+ Am Hist R 19:680 Ap '14 600w

+ A L A BkI 10:400 Je '14

"It was a happy thought that suggested the publishing of these letters, and the great usefulness of the book is evident, and will be appreciated by all those who wish to find the inner sources of the reformation."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 15 '13 550w

"If an English translation of Luther's letters were desirable, it seems rather a pity that Dr. Smith, eminently fitted as he is for the task, should not have tried to make it complete, adding, if necessary, a selection of other letters by way of appendix. The notes, biographical, historical, and critical, are well-balanced, neither too many nor too few, and are invariably helpful to an understanding of the text."

+ Nation 98:15 Ja 1 '14 300w

"A valuable source-book. The notes supplied by the scholarly editor are a helpful accompaniment to the text."

+ Outlook 107:317 Je 6 '14 140w

LUTYENS, EDWIN LANDSEER. Houses and gardens; described and criticised by Lawrence Weaver. il *$8 Scribner 14-21136

"A chronological survey of Mr. Lutyens's development is given by Mr. Weaver with full and careful analysis of its salient characteristics. Besides the general introduction there are twenty-six chapters, some devoted to a number of contrasted or allied constructions, others confined to one chef d'oeuvre. They range from comparatively small houses to enormous castles or mansions with vast appendages of gardens and other accessories."—Boston Transcript

"The book is charmingly written except for the author's too frequent use of the awkward French idiom beginning with 'it was' or 'it is that.' It is a book which anyone, architect or layman, might well be proud to add to his library." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p6 M 7 '11 780w

"Americans, whether architects or clients, seeking for instruction as to English country-house architecture, will find more and better material in other sources."

— + Nation 98:767 Je 25 '14 320w

+ Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 270w

LUTZ, MRS. GRACE (LIVINGSTON) HILL.. Best man. il *$1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 14-3289

A young man in the employ of the government secret service is sent from Washington to New York on a delicate mission. On his return, with the papers for which he had been sent in his possession, he is obliged to evade pursuit. Followed by his enemies, he takes refuge in the vestibule of a church where he is received joyously by a group of people who seem to take him for a missing member of a wedding party. He finds himself propelled up the aisle and is under the impression that he is acting as best man. It is only when the ceremony is nearly over that he realizes that he is being married. Here is a situation that must inevitably lead to further complications and to many explanations, and these together with the man's efforts to get back to Washington take up the remainder of this ingenious tale.

+ Ath 1914.1:sup876 Je 20 210w

"To those who measure all their fiction by fact, 'The best man' will probably seem an impossible yarn, but for those in happier case who delight in the impossible presented as undeniable and inevitable events, 'The best man' can promise an amusing evening."

+ Boston Transcript p8 M 14 '14 150w

"A most cheerful little tale."

+ Nation 98:265 M 12 '14 250w

"It is a good story of its kind, the kind that must be taken without question as to whether or not it has any likeness to the ordinary course of human events. The action is rapid, everything moves in a breathless whirl, the incidents follow logically from preceding situations, and there is much novelty in the component parts of the plot."

+ N Y Times 19:49 F 1 '14 330w

"The plot abounds in more or less evident weaknesses, but the reader is hurried along at such a breathless pace that he finds little time to dispute petty improbabilities that simply have to be bridged to bring the story to its obvious end."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 180w

LUTZ, MRS. GRACE (LIVINGSTON) HILL..

Man of the desert. il *$1.25 (1½c) Revell 14-15742

Hazel Radcliffe, lost on the desert of Arizona, is rescued by John Brownleigh, a missionary. She is returned to her family, and her father's private car whisks her back to her eastern home, but neither of the two, tho their acquaintance has been of but two days duration, can forget the other. Hazel finds society life cloying, makes friends with John's saintly mother in a New England village, takes training as a nurse and goes back to the desert to become the missionary's bride.

"The character of the missionary is the best in the story, which is written with a stern moral purpose. Most of the characters are very colorless—seldom becoming living human beings throughout the whole story."

— Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 200w

"The story is evolved wholly out of romance and sentiment and shows little knowledge of the region where most of its scenes are laid."

— N Y Times 19:379 S 13 '14 140w

LÜTZOW, FRANZ HEINRICH HIERONYMUS

* VALENTIN, count von. Hussite wars, il *$4.50 Dutton A14-2950

"Unless we can accustom our minds to the importance formerly placed upon doctrine, it is useless to try to comprehend the religious wars of the fifteenth century that followed the death of John Hus. This book by Count Lützow is written as a sequel to his biography of John Hus, and it is really necessary to know something of the former book in order to appreciate what the death of Hus meant to the Bohemian enthusiasts. The stand upon which Hus made his great fight, and that made him so bitterly hated by the papacy, was upon the administration of the two elements at the communion."—Boston Transcript

"As the first full account in English, the work is of value to students, though it is heavy in style and so detailed as to be somewhat confusing."

+ A L A BkI 11:113 N '14

"It is unfortunate that he gives us no table of contents for his book, and no marginal notes, but the omission is to a slight extent atoned for by a fairly satisfactory index."

+ Ath 1914.2:74 Jl 18 770w

"Count Lützow has had the benefit of many hitherto unknown documents in the Bohemian, and this makes his book valuable as history."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 600w

"Count Lützow's work will no doubt find a welcome among students of fifteenth century history; but it is not likely that his conclusions will be given immediate acceptance, as the whole work is somewhat controversial in character."

+ Dial 57:261 O 1 '14 170w

+ Ind 80:65 O 12 '14 70w

"But while the author's facts and conclusions will receive ready credence as a valuable contribution to history, his work is likely to be treated more as a book of reference than anything else. He has set down his story so soberly that he has not tried to make it interesting to the ordinary reader."

+ N Y Times 19:341 Ag 9 '14 420w

"Count Lützow's narrative of a courageous struggle for religious, national, and popular liberties makes enthralling reading."

+ Sat R 117:710 My 30 '14 200w

+ Spec 113:205 Ag 8 '14 750w

LYDE, LIONEL WILLIAM. Continent of Europe. (Continents of the world) il *$2 Macmillan A14-1211

A work that is at once descriptive, statistical, geographical, social and political. The author "takes the natural regions of Europe, one after the other, working his way from the circumference inward, and emphasizes with considerable detail the interdependence of the groups of the control and of the political factors. Although he begins as far back as the theory of the tetrahedral deformation of the earth, he succeeds in presenting the development of both physical and political conditions with extraordinary vividness." (Ath)

+ A L A Bkl 10:400 Je '14

"Fuller discussion of fewer topics would have added greatly to the value of the book for most readers." G. B. Roorbach

+ Ann Am Acad 53:336 My '14 350w

"Prof. Lyde's new book is one of the finest specimens yet published of the textbook of twentieth-century geography. This is likely to be a work equal in importance to Mr. H. J. Mackinder's 'Britain and the British seas.'" + Ath 1913.2:416 O 18 120w

"Teachers of geography will do well to obtain this book for their libraries, and the general reader will also find it instructive."

+ Nation 98:552 My 7 '14 370w

+ Nature 92:709 F 26 '14 530w

"A very thoroughgoing descriptive work."

+ R of Rs 49:120 Ja '14 40w

"Should be interesting alike to traveller and student."

+ Spec 112:398 Mr 7 '14 120w

LYNCH, ELLA FRANCES. Educating the child at home: personal training and the work habit. il *$1 (1c) Harper 14-12488

A practical little book that brings the vital matters of child training right home to the parents. It makes a plea to mothers to "resume and do their sacred duty by their children instead of shirking it and delegating it to the school." The writer contends that with proper individual instruction the normal child can accomplish in four hours of daily work for four years results which are not now attained in eight years and eight weary hours a day. Little emphasis is put upon the theory of education, the aim being rather to marshal "plain facts and essential principles." In the early chapters the most striking evils of our present system of education are outlined with suggestions for reconstruction. The remaining chapters give plans for teaching the child either at home or in small neighborhood schools for individual instruction.

"The friendly little book teaches as much by suggestions as by direct advice—based upon actual practical experience and study—and will carry inspiration with it wherever it goes."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 250w

"The book will be helpful to intelligent persons who wish to qualify themselves for home teaching."

+ N Y Times 19:357 Ag 23 '14 60w

LYNDE, CARLETON JOHN. Physics of the household. il *$1.25 Macmillan 14-10245

"This is an elementary textbook of physics, written for students of household science. It covers the ground usually covered by elementary textbooks, but differs from many of them in two ways: first, the illustrative examples and applications are taken largely from the home; second, the common system of weights and measures is used, in addition to the metric system." (Preface) The volume is well illustrated, exercises are provided at the end of each chapter, and there is a good index.

"Those who are teaching physics as an aid to housekeeping rather than as a science will find this a useful text."

+ Nation 99:331 S 10 '14 130w

+ Nature 94:416 D 17 '14 550w

"It is somewhat disappointing to find a commendable book with so many amateurish free-hand drawings." F. F. Good

+ Science ns 41:29 Ja 1 '15 970w

LYNDE, FRANCIS. City of numbered days. il 10 *$1.35 (2c) Scribner 14-14807

A big government dam, in process of construction, is destined in course of time to flood the Niquoia valley. In spite of this a party of promoters lay out a town in the valley and by clever wire pulling at Washington, the manipulation of a gold boom and other enticements, develop the city of Mirapolis to their own enrichment. Victor Brouillard, the government engineer, opposes the wild project in the beginning, but gradually, hypnotized by the prospect of easy money that will pay off an old debt and enable him to marry the girl he loves, he is drawn into the enterprise. The story follows the rise and fall of the boom city, the completion of the government work, the squaring of Brouillard's account with the grafters, and the righting of himself in his own eyes and in those of Amy Massingale.

"A rather disjointed story."

+ A L A Bkl 11:77 O '14

"This is a brisk, clean, breezy western story, of the type that we have learned to expect from the pen of Francis Lynde." F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:309 N '14 380w

"Mr. Lynde seems to have a definite faculty for writing good stories of great industries, and he draws well his men and women. His hero is somewhat less convincing than heroes usually are, and one never feels quite sure that he is not more naturally a grafter than an honest man."

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 26 '14 370w

"Though on the whole not so good a book as the author's 'Honorable Senator Sage-brush,' 'The city of numbered days' is an interesting novel."

+ N Y Times 19:379 S 13 '14 350w

"A reclamation story, well invented and well told."

+ Outlook 108:224 S 23 '14 80w

"Many will feel that Mr. Lynde is less interesting in this story than in the 'Sage-brush senator,' but no reader will complain of a lack of lively happenings."

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 17 '14 480w

LYNN, MARGARET. Stepdaughter of the prairie. 7 *$1.25 (1½c) Macmillan 14-9299

The prairie sketches by Margaret Lynn that have been appearing in the "Atlantic" have been collected and are reprinted in this book together with two which are new. The titles are: A stepdaughter of the prairie; A prairie caravansary; The urban test; My book and heart; The vanity of romance; A green thought; The path of learning; The youngest daughter of Zelophehad; The scrap-book; Ivy of the negatives; A daughter of the prairie.

+ A L A Bkl 11:32 S '14 +

+ Ath 1914.2:sup96 J1 18 150w

+ Atlan 114:531 O '14 170w

"The conditions of which Miss Lynn writes have long since departed. They had their day and exercised an influence in the making of the nation that is hardly estimated at its true value. Miss Lynn knows thoroughly the details of this vanished past, and the reader will lay the book down when the closing page is reached with a murmur of thankfulness for such a delightful study of an age that is no more."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 170w

+ Ind 79:31 J1 6 '14 100w

"The book is a far cry from the urban traves-ties of country life which stud the fiction shelves nowadays, and has many hints for any one who would treat a social phase in essay form."

+ Nation 98:665 Je 4 '14 450w

"Delightfully written, with graceful phrasing and charming style. In addition to its pictures of a distinctive kind of life, now gone forever from our national experience, its graceful fancy, its gentle humor, its true portrayal of what the child sees when it looks out on life and the world, it has that exquisite touch which marks the dividing line between something written and literature."

+ N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 320w

"Altogether this is a volume to be read quietly and in moments of leisure. It has flavor and quality."

+ Outlook 107:370 Je 13 '14 200w

"The book is like a fresh breeze. It is full of green thoughts and carries us into the wide spaces of the world. There is poetry in it too."

+ Sat R 118:87 J1 18 '14 150w

+ Spec 113:303 Ag 29 '14 20w

LYON, LEVERETT SAMUEL. Elements of debating. *$1 (2½c) Univ. of Chicago press 13-23422

A handbook for the use of students and young debaters. The author has endeavored "to present the elements of forensic work so freed from technicality that they may be apparent to the student with the greatest possible economy of time and the least possible interpretation by the teacher." (Preface) The chapters take up: What argumentation is; What debate is; The requirements of successful debating; Determining the issues; How to prove the issues; The brief; The forensic; Refutation; Management of the debate; A summary and a diagram. Questions for debate, etc. are given in appendices.

"Specially useful in high school libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 10:275 Mr '14 *

"It is simple enough to be read and used by high school boys."

+ Educ R 47:101 Ja '14 50w

"The directions seem admirably adapted to high-school students. It deals in a practical way with subjects in which they are interested."

+ Nation 98:543 My 7 '14 50w

"This text is suitable for high-school classes in debating."

+ School R 22:284 Ap '14 50w

"A good supplement to Robbins' 'High school debate book.'"

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:126 My '14 30w

LYON, WALTER HASTINGS. Principles of taxation. *75c (2½c) Houghton 14-17244

The book contains a report on the principles of taxation worked out at the request of the Tax committee of the Investment banker's association of America. Contents: What is taxation? What shall be taxed? Should all property be taxed alike? Where should taxes be paid? How should taxes be assessed? Should state and local taxation be kept apart? Are corporations taxed too little? Single tax, the increment tax, and local option in taxation.

"Compresses into 128 duodecimo pages a lot of common-sense concerning the subject with which it deals."

+ Nation 100:58 Ja 14 '15 430w

+ N Y Times 19:567 D 13 '14 270w

LYONS, ALBERT MICHAEL NEIL. Simple Simon. il *$1.25 Lane 14-4069

The title is taken from the nursery rime of the hero who went to see if cherries grew upon thistles. "For this is a voracious and lively narrative of Simple Simon's adventures in the 'thistle patch' of these disordered social times, the said Simon being an inquiring youth who, on the strength of a legacy of fifteen hundred pounds, undertakes various investments for the good of humanity. The opening scenes of Mr. Lyons' satire are laid in the country town of Broxbury, the original of which is the Bedford of John Bunyan fame. . . . The scene of Simon's experiments in sociology, however, is soon shifted to the mean streets of London, the squalor of which Mr. Lyons paints with distressing realism." (Boston Transcript)

"The author writes with humour and sympathy of poor people, and knows his subject well."

+ Ath 1913:2700 D 13 60w

"If the novel does not lead to social reforms, it will certainly leave its readers in that sympathetic frame of mind out of which reforms grow." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 20 '13 300w

"Neither Simon nor the other queer figures in the story presumably intended to represent real people are especially interesting."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 310w

"One trait we hope Mr. Lyons will outgrow—a belligerent tone due to the assumption that other people are probably less sensible than he."

+ Nation 98:301 Mr 19 '14 320w

"Despite faults, Mr. Lyons has drawn a vivid picture of a state of affairs that is now commanding a good deal of public attention, a picture, moreover, which contains many touches of a somewhat satirical humor."

+ N Y Times 19:37 Mr 1 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 49:500 Ap '14 180w

"Truly we have no idea how the author's own theories could be put in practice, but we recognise that he is an extremely clever writer, with an agility in passing from grave to gay which is quite amazing."

+ Sat R 116:785 D 20 '13 470w

"First of all let us give praise to Mr. Peto's illustrations. Those who come fresh to his work will find in it a peculiar humour, irresistible, cynical, wholly irreverent, sometimes—as in his account of a meeting of the Silverside board of guardians—a little unkind. They will also find a power of satire and a true understanding of what are known as the 'lower classes.'"

+ Spec 112:397 Mr 7 '14 250w

LYTTELTON, EDWARD. Corner-stone of education. *$1.50 (3c) Putnam E14-768

The present work, its author explains grew out of attempts to comply with certain requests to write on the "moral temptations of boyhood." His inquiry into this problem led to a deeper question, On what is character built, or What is the foundation of a training in virtue? It is this question that he attempts to answer. The book is addressed to parents. Contents: The problem stated; The halcyon days; The place of stimulus; Christ and the child-mind; Double-mindedness and drift; Types of failure; Where is the source of virtue; Training in single-mindedness; Perspective and freedom.

"We advise parents to read these pages, not because they make altogether pleasant reading—they go too straight to the mark of parental infirmities not to cause some heart-searching—but because the main steps in the argument are just, and, as it is imperative to face such facts, they will be led up to them by one whose experience and study of adolescent life make him a sympathetic monitor. We cannot say that on the whole the book makes attractive reading. It is cast in a highly argumentative and dry logical mould, and its excessive repetitions are somewhat trying. There are many blemishes of diction."

+ Ath 1914:1:614 My 2 750w

"There is much in the book that might well be read aloud at school exercises and that might well be pondered by students and teachers in general."

+ Educ R 48:421 N '14 60w

+ Nation 99:321 S 10 '14 60w

"The chief difficulty in Dr. Lyttelton's scheme of first steps in moral education is its demand for full reformation of those whose characters may be taken to be already formed. To put the matter briefly, he would have parents educate themselves on drastic lines."

+ Sat R 117:440 Ap 4 '14 680w

"The book has certain qualities which will tend to spoil its welcome. The matter of it is rather diluted—the author makes only one main LYTTELTON, EDWARD—Continued. point, which he reiterates and re-emphasizes through two hundred and forty pages—and the manner of it is rather sentimental."

+ — — Spec 113:464 O 3 '14 330w

LYTTON, CONSTANCE, lady. Prisons and prisoners. il *$1 (1c) Doran A14-1685

Even before her own experience in prison, Lady Constance Lytton confessed to an unusual interest in prisoners. When she had served four sentences she knew more about them and could point out the way to better methods of treatment. This book is written in the interests of prison reform rather than as a defence of suffragette tactics, altho it is that also. The author describes the details of her four imprisonments, three in her own person, and under her own name, one in disguise, under the name of Jane Wharton.

A L A Bkl 11:10 S '14

Reviewed by J. P. Lichtenberger

+ Ann Am Acad 56:183 N '14 400w

"The author has written her book with a broadness of sympathy that adds dignity and conviction to a document of commendable frankness."

+ Ath 1914.1:376 Mr 14 600w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 13 '14 820w

"Lady Constance writes about herself, her convictions, her purposes and methods, with a frankness and fulness that make her book extremely interesting from cover to cover."

+ Dial 57:143 S 1 '14 470w

Ind 79:136 Jl 27 '14 130w

Sat R 117:408 Mr 28 '14 150w

"In spite of a double want of sympathy, we can regard her book from the literary and human side and here it is distinctly attractive."

+ — Spec 112:486 Mr 21 '14 450w

M

MABIE, HAMILTON WRIGHT. Japan to-day and to-morrow. il *$2 (2½c) Macmillan 14-18290

The author finds that there is no new Japan; there is only an old Japan expressing itself in the language of modern industry and science. "Modern Japan is old Japan turning its attention to business. . . . Japan of to-day is the Japan of yesterday, and the Japan of to-morrow will be the Japan of to-day." That is only to say that the spirit and character of the Japanese people is enduring, and it is as an interpretation of this spirit and character that the author has produced a pleasant book, which ward aspects of Japanese life only as an expression of the inner soul of the people. Anti-Japanese feeling in this country, he believes to be the result not so much of race antagonism as of ignorance of Japanese character and history.

"Writing with full sympathy and skill, the author has produced a pleasant book, which will prove profitable to those readers who have only a slight knowledge of the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 11:216 Ja '15

Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 50w

"Outside of these chapters on Okuma . . . there is little of value in the book. Dr. Mabie has failed to absorb the best material, the pages bristle with inaccuracies and 'non sequiturs,' and his style is so slipshod as to be a constant irritation."

+ — Nation 100:81 Ja 21 '15 2150w

N Y Times 19:561 D 13 '14 90w

"If we have ought to complain of, it is that the book is a bit too uniformly pleasant to permit of much sharp thinking, though here and there we met with an illuminating passage."

+ — No Am 200:950 D '14 450w

Outlook 108:732 N 25 '14 180w

R of Rs 50:758 D '14 70w

Spec 113:897 D 19 '14 70w

"Japan has never lacked literary exploitation since it found a place on the tourist map, but it has seldom had a more sympathetic, discriminating, and literary treatment than that accorded it by Hamilton Wright Mabie."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 600w

MABIE, LOUISE KENNEDY. Lights are bright. il *$1.25 (1½c) Harper 14-12484

A tale of the Lake Superior iron country whose heroine, Theodora Trevor, is the sole owner of a great steel mill. The manager of the works is a strong, well-favored young man whose worst weakness, as he looks at things, is loving a girl who must never know his heart. She mistakes this courage of pride for indifference and many complications worry the pair before an understanding is reached. On the business side a rival concern tries dishonest means of forcing the young heiress to dispose of her iron interests. The wicked corporation, the wily financier, emissaries including the smooth aristocrat who makes love to Theodora complete as varied a cast of characters as one could wish for a rousing drama. The title is a part of the call of the outlook on the ore-boats of the Great Lakes—"Four bells and the lights are bright."

"A very melodramatic but entertaining story."

+ A L A Bkl 11:77 O '14

"The characters are well drawn, and its setting gives a pleasant picture of the broad humanity, friendliness and generous hospitality of life in our middle west."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 200w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

Dial 57:107 Ag 16 '14 50w

"Certain of the minor characters have far greater reality than the principals, and the lake atmosphere, a setting for human action as distinctive as that of coast village, prairie, or bayou, is conveyed with a good deal of force."

+ — Nation 99:224 Ag 20 '14 350w

"Aside from its story her novel is worth reading for the sake of its account of life and traffic upon the Great Lakes. But she has shown also such capacity and subtlety in the creation and development of her characters as mark her an author whose future work will be worth keeping track of. Her heroine is perhaps a little too much of the 'girly-girl' type to be as impressive as Mrs. Mabie meant her to be."

+ — N Y Times 19:347 Ag 16 '14 430w

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 8 '14 400w

MACALISTER, ROBERT ALEXANDER STEW.

ART. Philistines; their history and civilization. (Schweich lectures, 1911) *$1.20 Oxford (Eng ed A14-2969)

"The Philistine enigma is discussed by Prof. R. A. Stewart Macalister, the well-known Palestinian excavator. The origin of this people has been a standing puzzle—it has been held that they came from Crete or from the coast of Asia Minor. Macalister, after detailing such hints as are given in the Old Testament and in Egyptian and other inscriptions, concludes that they probably came from both these regions—a non-Semitic seafaring people, who, like the Northmen, descended on cultivated coasts, seized territory, and established kingdoms."—Nation

"His book is the best work on this subject in any language, and for many years will doubtless be the standard treatise." L: B. Paton

+ Am Hist R 20:130 O '14 750w

"At last we have a respectable history of the Philistines."

+ Am J Theol 18:463 Jl '14 450w

Ath 1913.2:698 D 13 70w

"It does not seem to us that Prof. Macalister has on a number of points escaped the temptation of overrating the capabilities and influence of the people whose history he has laid before us with conspicuous learning and uniform clearness of expression."

+ — Ath 1914.1:582 Ap 25 1100w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"The book shows signs of wide and careful reading, but the author's claims for the Philistines frequently carry him too far. His numerous speculations are often exceedingly ingenious; but they are rarely convincing." S: A. Cook

+ — Eng Hist R 29:538 J1 '14 1100w

"Professor Macalister has not solved the great problems involved in his investigation, but the materials he has collected help us to understand the general life of western Asia in the fourteenth and thirteenth centuries B. C."

+ — Nation 99:168 Ag 6 '14 250w

MACAULAY, THOMAS BABINGTON MACAULAY, 1st baron. History of England from the accession of James II. 6v v 1-4 ea $3.25 Macmillan 14-14308

v 1 and 2 This illustrated edition is to be complete in six volumes. "The first, which has just appeared, contains above seventy illustrations, besides a dozen full-page plates in color. In the preface to this volume, the editor, Charles Harding Firth, regius professor of modern history at Oxford, sets forth the principle governing the selection of the illustrations. These include portraits of both the leading and the minor personages of the time covered, caricatures, maps and plans, places and buildings, broadsides, ballads, and autographs." (Nation) "In preparing his text for this edition Professor Firth takes the completed work of 1857 as he found it." (Boston Transcript) The second volume contains between one and two hundred illustrations, including Lyly's portrait of the Duke of Monmouth, portraits of James II, Mary of Modena, William III and others.

v 3 and 4 "The third volume extends from the ninth to the twelfth chapter, and describes the events of 1688-9, between the invitation to William of Orange and the raising of the Siege of Londonderry. The coming of William and Mary and the stirring events which followed, and which Macaulay narrated in his stirring style, provide, again, ample opportunity for historical illustration by medals, maps, prints, and broadsides. . . . The fourth volume covers the period from 1689 to 1691, and, opening with Macaulay's famous account of the course of the revolution in Scotland, gives occasion for plentiful reproductions of prints and portraits which illustrate the topography and personages prominent in the crucial era that preceded the Union." —Ath

"When all is said, this new edition is not merely sumptuous, it is satisfactory. To the admirer of Macaulay it is something more, for it can have no higher praise than to say the illustrations are worthy of the text." W. C. A.

+ Am Hist R 19:612 Ap '14 550w (Review of v 1)

"Whatever the criticisms, one fact remains, this is an edition not merely worthy of the text but one which is likely to be henceforth regarded as the 'standard' Macaulay." W. C. Abbott

+ — Am Hist R 20:149 O '14 520w (Review of v 2)

"The illustrations in colour and black and white are no less lavishly supplied, and not less well chosen, than in the first volume."

+ Ath 1914,2:389 O 17 900w (Review of v 2-4)

Boston Transcript p23 Ja 28 '14 570w (Review of v 1)

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ap 22 '14 950w (Review of v 2)

"No one could be better fitted to supervise and produce such an edition than Professor Firth, of Oxford, whose very name carries authority with it." Lionel Cust

+ — Eng Hist R 29:373 Ap '14 1350w (Review of v 1 and 2)

Reviewed by Lionel Cust

+ — Eng Hist R 30:150 Ja '15 570w (Review of v 3 and 4)

"It is unfortunate that the general excellence of the volumes should be marred by the extraordinary weight of the paper used."

+ — Ind 79:173 Ag 3 '14 250w (Review of v 1 and 2)

+ Nation 98:244 Mr 5 '14 350w (Review of v 1)

"The second volume bears out the splendid promise of the first."

+ Nation 98:504 Ap 30 '14 250w (Review of v 2)

+ Nation 99:327 S 10 '14 480w (Review of v 3)

+ Nation 99:750 D 24 '14 140w (Review of v 4)

"The edition in form, dignity, and illustration is more than satisfactory; it comes near being a perfect model for this class of publication."

+ Outlook 106:97 Ja 10 '14 90w (Review of v 1)

"The edition is of permanent value and worthy of a place in every library."

+ Outlook 107:1017 Ag 22 '14 90w (Review of v 3)

+ R of Rs 50:119 J1 '14 140w (Review of v 2)

+ R of Rs 50:381 S '14 50w (Review of v 3)

"This illustrated edition of Macaulay's history, which Mr. Firth has taken charge of, is sure of a wide welcome. Macaulay himself would probably have approved of it; and today a large public will delight in the venture."

+ Sat R 117:274 F 28 '14 1550w (Review of v 1)

"Our only quarrel with this delightful book is the adoption in a few cases of the three-colour process."

+ — Spec 111:982 D 6 '13 530w (Review of v 1)

MCCABE, JOSEPH. George Bernard Shaw. II $2.25 (3c) Kennerley A15-4

A critical interpretation of Shaw and his message. Its chief value lies in its denial of the popular illusion concerning Shaw—that he is a mere jester whom only the dull and stupid take seriously. "To have merely amused his generation he would regard as a tragic and criminal prostitution of a great power. He is a man of the most austere sentiments and lofty ideals. . . . He does not smile at the people who take him seriously; he smiles at the people who do not." The first chapter, The making of a rebel, is biographical. Following this are chapters on: Socialism; The Shavian philosophy; The question of marriage; Problems of the family and the state; The function of art; Plays, pleasant and unpleasant; In the lime-light; The man and his influence.

"Mr. McCabe, in his 'critical interpretation' of Shaw and his message, has not only done a good piece of work, but has set a sane and wise example to future critics of that much overrated, much underrated, and altogether too much berated propagandist. A few casual slips may be noted."

+ — Nation 100:60 Ja 14 '15 1050w

MCCABE, JOSEPH. Treitschke and the great war. $1 (2½c) Stokes (Eng ed War15-12)

The author lays the major part of the responsibility for the present war on this German historian. "To him we can trace a very large part of the abnormally swollen idea which young Germany has of its position and its future. . . . He, more than any, infused into German students—the generation which is fighting against us to-day—a jealousy and disdain of England." (Preface) Contents: The ideas and influence of Treitschke; Glorification of Germany; Vilification of England; The praises of the war-god; Imperial expansion and moral law; The German "kultur"; The working of the poison.

Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 140w

N Y Times 20:18 Ja 17 '15 50w

MCCALL, SAMUEL WALKER. Life of Thomas Brackett Reed. II $3 (3½c) Houghton 14-21589

This biography of "Speaker" Reed, written by a friend and fellow congressman, is first of all an account of his personal life. Of his method of treatment of public questions which came up during Reed's long term in the House of representatives, the author says "I have made the consideration of them entirely secondary to the recording of his course upon them, and have endeavored to permit him to present his own view in his speeches, letters, and other writings."

MCCALL, SAMUEL WALKER—Continued.

"A more 'intimate' biography will perhaps some day be prepared by another hand; but meanwhile we are grateful for this excellent presentation of the eminent Speaker." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 58:42 Ja 16 '15 1850w

"It is fortunate that so much intimate detail of the human side of the famous Speaker has been put into a book. To one who knows little of his reflective nature or fine literary sense the work will be of more than usual biographical interest."

+ Ind 81:102 Ja 18 '15 80w

"One lays down Mr. McCall's book with a sense of disappointment that, being so good, it is not better."

+ — Nation 100:142 F 4 '15 900w

"Certainly no fault can be found with the biographer. He has done his work faithfully and sensibly, with cordial sympathy, with animation and with ample knowledge of Mr. Reed's career and of the conditions attending it. One criticism only suggests itself, and that a minor one: neither in the body of the volume nor in the index are dates given in a way to make it easy for the reader to trace clearly the sequence of events."

+ — N Y Times 19:585 D 27 '14 1150w

MCCARTER, MRS. MARGARET (HILL). Winning the wilderness. il *$1.35 (1c) McClurg 14-16470

The author tells the story of the winning of the prairies, covering in the course of her narrative the lives of two generations. Asher Aydelot, a young union soldier, comes to Kansas after the close of the civil war, bringing with him as his wife the southern girl he had won during his days of campaigning in Virginia. Together they fight the good fight against the wilderness, blizzard and drouth and cyclone uniting to defeat their efforts. Then in the next generation their son Thaine, endowed with their spirit, carries on the work of building up a great state.

MCCARTHY, JUSTIN HUNTLY. Fool of April. 6 *$1.35 (½c) Lane 13-26564

The story of a little, middle-aged bank clerk who for one year of his life enjoys the possession of great wealth. When Mr. Malmorne, an eccentric old Scotchman, dies it is found that he has left a large sum to the son of the woman he had once loved, on condition that said sum be spent in the course of one year in following the pursuits of the ordinary rich young man about town. At the end of the year, it is intimated, other benefactions will be revealed. As Mr. Vimpany has reached the age of fifty when this strange legacy comes to him, he is forced to start rather late in life to learn the ways of a man about town. His progress and the unexpected revelation at the end of the year form the substance of Mr. McCarthy's narrative.

+ Ath 1913,2:494 N 1 50w

Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 200w

"The story is rather better in its conception and in some of its parts than it is as a whole. Its construction is highly artificial, and its various characters have their life-threads intertwined by the sheer force of the necessities of the plot. It has many charming chapters, and many of its characters are delightfully drawn, with that completeness and that sense of individuality that only the leisurely novelist can convey."

+ — N Y Times 19:183 Ap 12 '14 450w

"Mr. McCarthy handles the theme too realistically and at too great length."

— Outlook 107:46 My 2 '14 100w

"It is good farce for us, but now and then Mr. McCarthy makes us ask why we are in the least interested or amused at all this nonsense. The lucid intervals are, however, rare, for the talents of the skilled novelist are exercised to keep us from introspective thought."

+ — Sat R 116:530 O 25 '13 300w

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 400w

MCCLURE, ABBOT. Making built-in furniture. 4 (House and garden making books) il *50c (6c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-5075

Altho the author is an enthusiast over the use of built-in furniture, he warns against its abuse. Following an introductory chapter come chapters devoted to: Closets, cupboards and drawers; Seats and chests; Bookcases, sideboards and dressers, with an added chapter on miscellaneous pieces.

+ A L A Bkl 10:400 Je '14 +

"There is great ingenuity in the various hints given."

+ Ind 77:421 Mr 23 '14 50w

+ Nation 99:447 O 8 '14 70w

"A useful little book."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:161 Je '14 30w

MCCLURE, ABBOT, and EBERLEIN, HAROLD DONALDSON. House furnishing and decoration. il *$1.50 (2½c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-10904

Every lover of tasteful appointments for the home will profit by a peep into this attractive book. Unlike many handbooks on house furnishing and decoration which seem to be designed for fat pocketbooks this one offers suggestions within the reach of moderate incomes. Text and picture both emphasize that successful furnishing and decorating are largely matters of discrimination in buying and of ingenuity in adapting available resources to our needs and not so much matters of lavish expenditure. Several appendices give color schemes for rooms and lists of furnishings necessary, with the prices attached.

"Practical and suggestive specially to those who already have good taste."

+ A L A Bkl 11:169 N '14 +

"A helpful book for the home-maker."

+ Cleveland 6:86 O '14 40w

+ Ind 80:66 O 12 '14 50w

"Should prove useful to householders."

+ N Y Times 19:92 F 22 '14 50w

MCCLURE, SAMUEL SIDNEY. My autobiography. 12 phy. il *$1.75 (3c) Stokes 14-15200

Mr. McClure tells the story of his boyhood and its struggles, of his ambition to obtain an education and his successful efforts toward that end. Later he writes of the founding of the McClure syndicate and of the magazine that also bears his name. Robert Louis Stevenson, Kipling, George Meredith, Anthony Hope and other famous people have been among his contributors, and his book is filled with anecdotes and interesting personal reminiscences.

+ A L A Bkl 11:73 O '14

+ Ath 1914,2:447 O 31 950w

Boston Transcript p1 S 9 '14 900w

"The struggles of the syndicate to win a footing make an absorbing story, as do the early fortunes and misfortunes of the magazine." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 57:247 O 1 '14 2100w

"If you do not read it you are going to miss a big experience and an enjoyable one. The book is as tonic as a mountain climb, as wholesome as optimistic, and as genuine."

+ N Y Times 19:576 D 20 '14 1200w

"His story is quite as entertaining as a novel of adventure."

+ R of Rs 50:634 N '14 70w

+ Spec 113:717 N 21 '14 1150w

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 24 '14 1550w

MCCLURE, W. K. Italy in North Africa: an account of the Tripoli enterprise. il $2.50 Winston (Eng ed A13-2599)

"The author has written at his leisure, after verifying and amplifying from numerous sources what he saw with his own eyes." (Spec) "Mr. McClure shows clearly that Italy had many grievances in the past for which Turkey needed to answer. Italian enterprise had been thwarted and the Italian flag had not received proper dignities. . . . His account of the campaigns is full and very clearly told. He also speaks of the possibilities and the future of the colonies." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bkl 10:401 Je '14

"This is the best critical account of the Italian occupation of Tripolitania that we have read. It is not unprejudiced, for the author has few good words for the Turks or for the 'Arabs,' as he terms the mixed desert tribes."

+ Ath 1913:2:486 N 1 1050w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ap 25 '14 750w

+ Lit D 50:156 Ja 23 '15 130w

+ N Y Times 19:311 J1 12 '14 160w

"Mr. McClure's book probably contains the truest estimate of the work and conduct of the Italian army in Libya that has been published in English."

+ Spec 111:422 S 20 '13 1650w

MCCOMB, SAMUEL. Prayer, what it is and what it does. *50c (9c) Harper 13-22381

The modern religious attitude toward prayer is the subject of this brief essay. The author considers the nature of prayer, and its place in man's life.

"The book is a brief but powerful statement of the essentials of real prayer."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 16 '13 250w

"Those who are naturally of a religious or even of an ethical turn of mind will find much in this little book both helpful and encouraging—that is, at the same time, not in contradiction to common sense or established fact."

+ N Y Times 19:200 Ap 19 '14 210w

MCCRACKAN, WILLIAM DENISON. Spell of Tyrol; new ed. il $2.50 (3½c) Page

This is a revised and enlarged edition of the author's "The fair land Tyrol." The title has been changed to conform with those of the other books of the "Spell series" in which it is now issued. The book is illustrated from photographs and from paintings by Woldemar Ritter.

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

Bookm 40:427 D '14 350w

MCCUTCHEON, GEORGE BARR. Black is white. il $1.30 (1c) Dodd 14-5271

Mr. McCutcheon's latest story is a melodramatic tale with a New York setting. James Breed, who has believed his first wife unfaithful, and who has in consequence never acted the part of father to her son altho he has fed and clothed him, returns home unexpectedly bringing with him a second wife. She is a strange, beautiful woman whom no one quite understands, yet she casts a spell over every one, including her step son, Frederic, and there is a time when, to the old animosity between father and son, there is added jealousy. Among these warring elements peace is finally restored and the story ends with a reconciliation between father and son, husband and wife, and between Frederic and Lydia, the young girl he has always loved.

Reviewed by Norman Bryce

Bookm 39:684 Ag '14 270w

"It is the mildest form of frankness to say that 'Black is white' is worth neither the serious discussion nor the space here given it." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p24 Mr 18 '14 800w

"There are some dramatic scenes in the novel, but the book would as a whole have been more effective and more plausible had the author not forced a happy ending."

+ — N Y Times 19:124 Mr 15 '14 250w

"It is one of this writer's strongest romances — McCutcheon at his best."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 470w

MCCUTCHEON, GEORGE BARR. Prince of Graustark. il $1.35 (1½c) Dodd 14-15791

The prince of this story is the son of that princess of Graustark who in an earlier novel succeeded in breaking precedent and marrying an American. Prince Robin, like his mother, is independent; he refuses to consider the match arranged for him by the kingdoms of Graustark and Dawsbergen, and starts out to see the world for himself. He is in America as the guest of the Truxton Kings when the story opens and when Mr. Williams W. Blithers decides that he will have him for a son-in-law. To escape Mr. Blithers the prince runs away and takes passage for Europe. But Miss Maud Blithers is also independent and she runs away to Europe. Now by a fixed rule of fiction, two young people who flee from fate and one another must end by falling in love; and Mr. McCutcheon, complying with the rule, contrives it that the prince in the end marries the girl who was destined for him in the beginning.

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ — Bookm 40:558 Ja '15 350w

"Reading every page to the end, and being entertained, as we honestly confess, we found that the author has not been fair with us; not only unfair, but a positive traitor to our confidence."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 750w

"The author has shown noteworthy constructive skill in the clever development of this unexpected denouement."

+ N Y Times 19:378 S 13 '14 550w

MCDANIEL, ALLEN BOYER. Excavating machinery. il $3 McGraw 13-14994

"The basis of this book is a set of notes used by the author in his class-room and thence expanded to meet practical needs in the field, having in mind 'not only the engineer and the contractor, but also the farmer, land owner, promoter and officials charged with the construction of public works.' Each chapter gives a description of the machines, cites places where they have been used, cost data and a résumé and bibliography. The general plan of the author has been to describe the smaller machines first, then the larger and more powerful ones, thus leading the reader by easy stages to the consideration of machines of the greatest capacity."—Engin N

"The author's style is simple, forceful and concise, and the arrangement of the chapters and divisions admirable. The author has collected a large amount of valuable information that heretofore could only be obtained by reading several books and many periodicals and the book should be in the possession of everyone concerned in the choice or operation of excavating machinery." W: B. Landreth

+ Engin N 70:580 S 18 '13 800w

"The arrangement is admirable."

+ Engin Rec 68:531 N 8 '13 230w

MCDONALD, MRS. ETTA AUSTIN (BLAIS-DELL). Colette in France. (Little people everywhere) il 60c (2½c) Little 13-18071

In this story children are introduced to a little French girl and are given an opportunity to learn something of the geography and history of her country. Some of the chapters describe: Spring in Normandy; Sunday at Versailles; Market day in Paris; The forest of Fontainebleau.

+ A L A Bkl 10:204 Ja '14 +

+ Boston Transcript p24 S 17 '13 110w

MCDONALD, ETTA AUSTIN—Continued.

"The child who reads this book will learn very little and probably be very much bored."
Joyce Kilmer

— N Y Times 18:532 O 12 '13 60w

MACDONALD, GREVILLE. Jack and Jill: a fairy story. il *$1.50 Dutton

"This story 'is full of the strange nonsense that delights children. Jack and Jill are charmingly profuse in the matter of adventures, and their sheep dog is the drollest, most wise and responsible dog who has stepped out of a fairy tale for many years. . . . Even if we did not know that Greville MacDonald is the son of George MacDonald, we should feel the kinship between this story and 'The princess and the goblin' and 'At the back of the north wind.'"—Boston Transcript

"The adventures of this dear little couple in fairyland, as told by their elder sister, will probably interest grown-ups more than children. We wish there had been more of Mr. Scarecrow, who is 'such a loving joker.'"

+ Ath 1913,2:sup680 D 6 180w

"A fairy story that will appeal to children and grown-ups alike, because of the amount of charm in the spirituality of the imagination, and in the tenderness with which the story is told."

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 14 '14 170w

"Contains a charming fairy story."

+ N Y Times 19:339 Ag 9 '14 60w

+ Outlook 106:651 Mr 21 '14 40w

"There is just a tinge of the didactic here and there, and the story is a trifle long, but it is a good successor to the author's last story of Sussex children spirited away into fairyland. It is carefully illustrated by Mr. Arthur Hughes, who has quite caught the spirit of the tale."

+ Spec 111:1090 D 20 '14 100w

MACDONALD, RONALD. Gambier's advocate. il *$1.30 (1c) Lane 14-14459

Stephen Gambier, a rising young politician, resting up in the Riviera after the rigors of a campaign, rescues Eugenia Beltervane from a runaway motor car and is himself injured. A long convalescence in the home of the Beltervanes follows. Eugenia is the young and pretty wife of a middle aged man, and, fond of life and gayety, is not above entering into a harmless flirtation with her goodlooking guest. Silas Beltervane, returning home unexpectedly, finds the two in a compromising position, but is outwitted by his clever daughter Clarissa who shields her stepmother by pretending that it was she to whom Stephen had been making love. A formal engagement is agreed upon between the two, but when things are going very smoothly for Stephen he is plunged into a more serious difficulty. A woman who had once been his mistress is murdered. Suspicion falls upon him and it is then that Clarissa becomes his advocate, proving his innocence and making a true engagement out of their former arrangement of convenience.

"The narrative at one point becomes, if not unlikely, at least distasteful. The book is fluently written, but fewer words and more simplicity of style would have improved it."

+ Ath 1914,2:247 S 5 200w

"A clever story."

+ N Y Times 19:389 S 20 '14 300w

MACDONNELL, JOHN DE COURCY. Belgium, il her kings, kingdom and people. il *$3.50 (1c) Little (Eng ed 14-18949)

A book which will supply some of the facts which people wish to know about the little country so suddenly hurled into prominence. The author who has lived in Brussels for twelve years has had access to valuable state archives. The book is well illustrated and the following topics are covered in the contents: Growth of the nation; The Belgian revolution; The framing of the constitution; The intervention of the powers; The search for a king; The Marquis

Peu-à-Peu; The Nestor of Europe; Leopold, the empire builder; Albert, the people's king; Agriculture; Commerce and industry; Art, literature and language; The Belgian parliament, 1831-1857; Belgium and France, 1851-1870; Belgium, England, the Congo, 1870-1914; Religion, politics and education.

+ A L A Bkl 11:213 Ja '15

+ Lit D 49:1188 D 12 '14 220w

+ N Y Times 19:503 N 15 '14 850w

+ Outlook 108:817 D 9 '14 30w

"A useful, informational volume."

+ R of Rs 50:762 D '14 70w

"If only Mr. MacDonnell's judgment were equal to his learning his 'Belgium' could be pronounced a standard work. As it is we can only say that about half of the book is of the utmost value to students of European history."

+ — Sat R 118:116 J1 25 '14 2000w

Spec 113:141 J1 25 '14 50w

MCELROY, ROBERT MCNUTT. Winning of the far West. il $2.50 (3c) Putnam 14-20567

A volume written at the request of the publishers as a continuation of Roosevelt's "Winning of the West." "For the views expressed in the volume, Colonel Roosevelt is, however, in no way responsible." (Preface) The account begins with the Texas revolution under Houston and is carried thru the winning of Texas, Oregon and California, and the purchase of Alaska, covering the period from 1829 to 1867.

"The work combines value as a reference book with bright narrative quality."

+ Ind 81:30 Ja 4 '15 110w

R of Rs 50:761 D 14 120w

MCEVOY, CHARLES. Private affairs. *$1.25 il Houghton A15-35

"Mr. McEvoy contrives to produce upon his fiction-canvas a very convincing effect of a section out of the life of the family at 41 Rock-ely gardens, Shepherd's Bush. . . . The Barnards are a middle-class English family, the head of the house engaged in a small manufacturing business that supports them in economical comfort. Three daughters and a son, with the mother, father, and housemaid, comprise the family. The youngest offspring, a girl in her latter teens, develops ability as an actress in school theatricals and is quickly transferred to the professional stage at a salary that sweeps away in amazement the objections and refusal the father and mother had thought they were going to make." (N Y Times) "Although Myrtle is a leading actress during the greater part of the story, it is in no sense either a tale of or a study in theatrical life. Its contact with the theatre is desultory and occasional, the novelist persistently clinging to his theme of the relations between parents and children as exemplified by the attitude of the elder Barnards." (Boston Transcript)

"The author has selected an unconvincing theme, and the end of it brings his penalty. Mr. McEvoy knows how to draw a portrait, but he takes unconscionable liberties with his background and setting."

+ — Ath 1914,1:sup870 Je 20 180w

"It is as a chronicle of the family that Mr. McEvoy's novel—despite its extremely unattractive title—succeeds. Its multitude of details come from life. It tells a story that interprets itself." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 O 3 '14 920w

"The humor of the story, which is genuine, lies wholly between the lines; and there, too, will be found social satire of an unusual sort."

+ Dial 57:390 N 16 '14 250w

"This is in the main an entertaining book with an utterly unsatisfactory conclusion."

+ Nation 100:114 Ja 28 '15 350w

"Even his minor people are individual and distinct realities. The book as a whole, in addition to the entertaining story it tells, is a suggestive study of the influence of even moderate material prosperity upon individuals and families as they rise step by step in the social grades."

+ N Y Times 19:400 S 27 '14 330w

MACFARLANE, PETER CLARK. Those who have come back. il *$1.35 (3c) Little 14-17510

The eight sketches in this book, all said to be based on truth, tell stories of regeneration. In each of them a man or woman far sunk in vice has returned to a righteous and useful way of life. The stories are: Back from morphia; The unmaking of a bank burglar; A madonna from Whitechapel; The case of Eyringe; The return of "Lucky Baldwin"; Three ways from whiskey; A Chicago wonder-worker; "All of it."

"Whether it is all literal truth, one may pardonably question. Certain real characters and certain real incidents undoubtedly inspire the writer's pen, and if there is a tendency to trim and polish now and then, it is no more than literary art seems to demand."

+ Dial 57:346 N 1 '14 320w

"Without prejudice or false sentiment, and with little dramatic effect, the author shows a sympathetic understanding of men and habits in the world of lawbreakers that may well serve to others as a guide to these much misunderstood unfortunates."

+ Ind 81:176 F 1 '15 60w

"He has caught the peculiar jaunty, snappy style which 'gets across' with that immense grammar-schooled public to which the ten-cent magazine stands for literature."

+ Nation 99:717 D 17 '14 350w

"The effect of the stories is marred somewhat by a certain commonplaceness in the telling and the indulgence in cheap floridities of style."

+ N Y Times 19:557 D 6 '14 200w

MACGILL, PATRICK. Children of the dead end; the autobiography of an Irish navy. *$1.35 Dutton A14-2337

"Mr. MacGill writes both a novel and an autobiography, his foreword placing it in the one category and his title-page in the other. . . . Its action begins in County Donegal, and its narrator tells his story of the shifting scenes and incidents of his life, and of his encounters with man and the world, from early boyhood onward until he has reached man's stature. He describes with no little visualizing power the peculiar ways of the peasant Irish, the superstitions and discomforts of his own home and the farms where he was employed as a boy to do a man's labor. . . . Throughout the course of his story, Mr. MacGill blinks at nothing that comes his way, telling the tale of his experiences in all their varied peace and horror as something that must be told."—Boston Transcript

"Its revelation of the hopelessness and wretchedness of the submerged, and its brutality, may be too vigorously told for some; as a poetic interpretation of the navy's life the book has its chief interest."

+ A L A Bkl 11:122 N '14

"Some of the passages will be far too lurid for 'respectable' people, and the whole is full of rugged strength."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup466 Mr 28 230w

"From beginning to end the book is intensely masculine. It is a book which delves to the heart of things with a touch as firm as it is tender." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 39:333 My '14 1000w

"If it is the province of literature to open to us vistas of life that would otherwise remain undisclosed, then 'Children of the dead end' should command unstinted praise. It is a revelation, and it is all the more effective because its writer has cast it in the form of fiction."

E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 1400w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 56:504 Je 16 '14 450w

"In its terrible pictures the book slips over the border line of effect and gives rather more than one can grasp."

— Ind 79:217 Ag 10 '14 60w

"It is a gloomy book, rebellious rather than powerful, though not without touches of power."

+ Nation 98:665 Je 4 '14 350w

"Mr. MacGill's story of the life of a young Irish navy is vividly realistic and of absorbing interest; he knows how to sketch a character in a few picturesque phrases, and to give dialogue its proper narrative value. In the book now under consideration are several figures to be long remembered. Aside from its ultra-modern sentimentality and from Mr. MacGill's curiously un-Irish lack of humor, 'Children of the dead end' is a literary achievement well worth while." Joyce Kilmer

+ N Y Times 19:233 My 17 '14 850w

Outlook 107:502 Je 27 '14 90w

"It is a pity Mr. MacGill was not content with autobiography. As it is, the reader can readily disentangle the fiction and the fact. They can be recognised, like good coins, by ring. With all its limitations, however, Mr. MacGill's book is an achievement, and probably the truest first-hand description of the navy's life that is in print."

+ Sat R 117:sup6 Mr 21 '14 650w

+ Spec 112:999 Je 13 '14 220w

"The book grips from the first page." A. V. Woodworth

+ Survey 32:642 S 26 '14 420w

MACGILL, PATRICK. Songs of the dead end. *$1.25 Kennerley (Eng ed 13-3273)

The men of the pick and shovel are immortalized in this volume of impressive verse. The author has lived the life that he sets to the rhyme of Kipling. It is a sort of human document in verse making a tremendous appeal for the unshaven and unwashed who swelter and sweat on creation's muck-pile. He shows the heroism and often idealism of these working men. A L'Envoi fashioned after Kipling's own in "Seven seas" concludes the volume.

"There are glimpses of good things here and there, but the writer often mistakes mere vehemence for strength. It is pleasing to find a little poem of real beauty, like 'A spring idyll,' amid much turquidity."

+ Ath 1913,1:126 F 1 50w

Reviewed by W. A. Bradley

Bookm 40:208 O '14 250w

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 680w

"Unfortunately Mr. MacGill's chief susceptibility is to the eloquence of Mr. Kipling, and we fear that a susceptibility to another's eloquence is no more commendable than the courage of the opinions of others. At any rate, it does not constitute a poet." A. C. Henderson

— Dial 57:254 O 1 '14 300w

Lit D 49:159 J1 25 '14 800w

"Rough stuff, doubtless, to the ear of the sentimentalist, but true stuff." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 20:33 Ja 31 '15 600w

MACGRATH, HAROLD. Deuces wild. il *$1 (5½c) Bobbs 13-24979

J. Mortimer Forbes the popular creator of the beautiful faces that adorn the magazine covers is the hero of this little tale. A stunning girl with "copper-beech" hair, an amateur burglar, a poker game, a real and an amateur detective, figure in the plot, which is worked out satisfactorily altho at the end a man other than the hero walks off with the heroine.

"Things happen on every page, as should be the case in all good mystery stories." P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 38:564 Ja '14 90w

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '13 130w

"The best designation of the story is found, perhaps, in the author's last sentence: 'You see, I'm Piffle.'"

+ N Y Sun p4 D 6 '13 90w

MACGRATH, HAROLD—Continue.

"Perhaps the spasmodic style in which it is written has made it possible for Mr. MacGrath to include so many topics."

+ — N Y Times 19:21 Ja 18 '14 270w

MACGRATH, HAROLD. Pidgin Island. il *$1.25
 (2c) Bobbs 14-5818

A story of fishing and of smuggling. When John Cranford faced the necessity of earning a living, he entered the secret service because it was the only thing that offered, but he learned to hate his work,—he called it a "sneak's business,"—and when it got on his nerves, he went fishing. But up at the lake resort where he had fished for years, he found that his favorite guide was not at his disposal. Uncle Billy was rowing that season for another fisherman—a girl. And she proved, too, to be as good a fisherman as Cranford himself; and also as clever as catching smugglers; for, as it turns out, she is in the secret service herself, and the two together find a piece of work already cut out for them.

Reviewed by Norman Bryce

+ Bookm 39:683 Ag '14 200w

"Elements in 'Pidgin Island' that are good prove that the author has not lost his fundamental art—that of being able to tell an interesting story—but what a pity that he should write so carelessly."

+ — Boston Transcript p4 My 13 '14 170w

"Mr. MacGrath writes with spirit, and will carry with him that large class of readers which asks only to have conjecture held in leash and curiously sustained until the end."

+ — N Y Times 19:182 Ap 12 '14 350w

MCGRAW, JOHN J. How to play baseball. il
 *60c (1½c) Harper 14-13667

The manager of the Giants has prepared this manual for boys. He calls the book 'a series of lesson talks on the various positions on a ball club.' At least one lesson is devoted to each position, with added chapters on Batting, Base running and Team work. The book is illustrated with pictures of major league players in action.

"The book is well worth consideration by all lovers of the national game."

+ Ind 79:174 Ag 3 '14 70w

+ N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 60w

"If McGraw has made any mistake it is that of being too elementary at times. There is constant allusion to the various divisions of the book as 'lessons'—a word peculiarly obnoxious to husky boys. But why spoil a good book by playing up its weaknesses." Robert Lynd

+ — Pub W 86:817 S 19 '14 700w

MACGREGOR, MARY. Story of Greece. il
 *$2.50 Stokes A15-25

"Miss Macgregor's 'The story of Greece' resembles her 'Story of Rome' in so far as it is no continuous story at all. It is a succession of short stories from mythology and from history down to the deaths of Alexander and Demosthenes. The writer has evidently gone to the best sources, for the tales are taken from Homer, Herodotus, Plutarch, and other good writers."—Spec

"A book of good, solid reading for elder boys and girls, and the nineteen coloured illustrations by Walter Crane are artistic."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup474 O 25 30w

"This is an excellent introduction to all we deem classic in Greece."

+ Ind 80:413 D 14 '14 40w

"This will prove an excellent foundation for nursery stories, and we recommend its use at an early age, for our classical knowledge is being sorely neglected."

+ Nation 99:666 D 3 '14 50w

"Perhaps the full measure of quantity and the brevity of each story make the whole seem too 'scrappy,' but in any case Hawthorne and Professor Church are not superseded by this work. Mr. Walter Crane is still a master of beautiful composition and design, but he has not adapted his colouring for modern reproduction, nor is he careful to keep his figures in correct drawing or perspective."

+ — Spec 111:sup951 D 6 '13 150w

MACGREGOR, MARY. Story of Rome. il *$2.50
 1 Stokes (Eng ed W13-35)

The story of Rome from the earliest times to the death of Augustus is here told for young readers. "The author's task was difficult; to compress into one volume the enormous mass of historical data covering the rise and progress of Rome, from its building, 753 B. C., to the death of the founder of the empire into which it developed, 14 A. D., and to make this complicated detail clear and interesting to young people; more, to make the narrative of some of its vital incidents suitable for children to read without detracting from their strength or historical accuracy. This threefold task, Miss Macgregor has accomplished with rare success." (Boston Transcript)

"Will be enjoyed by children as a story and useful to those in the upper grades as a vivid history from the earliest times down to the death of Augustus."

+ A L A Bkl 10:163 D '13

"Would have been more fitly adorned with classic busts, medals and reliefs. The coloured drawings by various hands look like groupings for stage purposes rather than representations of real events. The text is unnecessarily verbose, but the print is good and clear, and well adapted for young eyesight."

+ — Ath 1912,2:485 O 26 100w

"Inspired by a sincere love of history, and written with an unaffected charm of style, Miss Macgregor's story of Rome cannot but appeal irresistibly to the children for whom primarily it was written."

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 10 '13 420w

+ Int Studio 48:265 Ja '13 70w

"In expression, there has been a very manifest effort to get down to the level of children, and this has been done at a sacrifice of such qualities as would make the book enjoyable to older readers as well. Again, the story suffers from its unsuccessful handling of legends included for the sake of completeness, but distorted out of regard for the age of the intended reader."

— Nation 98:115 Ja 29 '14 200w

"Tells in an easily understood way the stirring events of that epoch-making city and empire."

+ R of Rs 48:764 D '13 30w

"The stories are told simply and clearly, though without any particular charm."

+ — Sat R 114:sup5 D 7 '12 60w

"An undue proportion of space is given to the early legends. No attempt is made to combine cause and effect, and there is no map or means whereby the direction of wars of expansion or the extent of the conquests would be impressed upon a child."

+ — — Spec 109:sup939 D 7 '12 180w

MACH, EDMUND ROBERT OTTO VON. What
 12 Germany wants. il *$1 (3c) Little 14-19685

An endeavor to answer temperately the question What does Germany want? The outstanding feature of the book is its criticism of Bernhardi. The author's contention is that Bernhardi no more represents Germany than Homer Lea represents the English speaking countries. Contents: What Germany wants; Alsace-Lorraine; The German emperor; The past; The new empire; Russia, the Slavs, and Germany; Germany and continental Europe; Germany and England; Militarism; Conclusion. The author is a Prussian by birth and early training, tho he is a Harvard graduate and now resides in America.

+ A L A Bkl 11:200 Ja '15

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ Dial 58:46 Ja 16 '15 180w

Ind 80:242 N 16 '14 80w

— + Nation 99:778 D 31 '14 160w

"His book is a calm good-tempered attempt to place the German position in a favorable aspect before American eyes, and the book gains strength and assures itself of getting read in a fair-minded spirit by the average man because of its restrained, non-controversial tone."

+ N Y Times 19:498 N 15 '14 300w

"The ablest statement of Germany's case we have seen."

+ Outlook 108:815 D 9 '14 80w

"In attempting to counteract Bernhardt with those Americans who cannot accept the Treitschke-Cramb-Bernhardt view of war as inevitable and even desirable, Mr. von Mach commits an innocent error which would be laughable if it were not associated with so vast a tragedy."

— Springfield Republican p5 N 19 '14 1150w

MACHINERY. Machinery's handbook for machine shop and drafting-room: a reference book on machine design and shop practice for the mechanical engineer, draftsman, toolmaker and machinist. il $5 Industrial press 14-2166

"The field covered by this handbook corresponds closely with that of the periodical from which it takes its name. The information collected here is calculated to be of interest to those engaged in the operation, construction or design of machinery. Steam and electrical engineering are not touched upon, except for a paragraph on the power rating of steam hammers in the section on forge-shop equipment, a couple of pages on electrical welding and some twenty pages' on electric motors used to drive machine tools. A dozen pages each are devoted to foundry and forge-shop practice, but the 'practical' portions of the book deal chiefly with machine-shop work."—Engin N

"For the first edition of a volume of nearly 1400 pages, this book appears to be surprisingly free from typographical and other errors. One of the commendable features is that it sticks pretty closely to the presentation of facts, giving little space to mere opinion or speculation over doubtful matters. The material is, in general, well selected and presented in a way which makes it easily available." R. R. Potter

+ Engin N 71:872 Ap 16 '14 1450w

"In a recent issue we advised all machine shop designers and draftsmen to get Halsey's 'Handbook for machine designers and draftsmen,' and now we have to advise them also to get 'Machinery's handbook,' notwithstanding 'the high cost of living' for an up-to-date draftsman will not be fully equipped unless he has both books. The two books in general, cover the same field, but the several sections are treated more fully or more clearly, sometimes in one book, sometimes in the other."

+ Indust Engin 14:213 My '14 850w

MACHUGH, ROBERT JOSEPH. Modern Mexico. il *$3.50 (2½c) Dodd (Eng ed 14-8534)

The author is an Englishman who visited Mexico in 1913 as correspondent for the "Daily Telegraph." The chapters of this book which were written originally for that paper have, he says, been rewritten with new matter added. The book opens with an historical sketch of Ancient Mexico, followed by chapters devoted to: Independent Mexico; Physical configuration; Political organization; Mexican characteristics; Mexican politics; Present conditions; Resources; Industries; Horticulture; Railways; Mexico city; Mexico and the United States.

"Expensive and needs careful revision."

+ A L A Bkl 11:25 S '14

"In spite of many recent books there was room for 'Modern Mexico,' for it is the result of recent observation by a writer who has seen a good deal, and has taken care to make himself acquainted with the present position of that troubled country."

+ Ath 1914,1:333 Mr 7 1150w

"Moderate in tone, conservative in statement, one feels after reading it that one has seen Mexico through the steady eyes of a keen, observant, fair-minded spectator." A. M. Chase

+ Bookm 39:552 Jl '14 270w

— Boston Transcript p20 Jl 22 '14 600w

Reviewed by Wallace Rice

+ Dial 56:501 Je 16 '14 1050w

+ Ind 78:324 My 25 '14 50w

"An informed report of the conditions which may be received as wholesome and sound."

+ Nation 58:637 My 28 '14 1100w

"Mr. MacLugh puts on record some very harsh denunciations of the attitude taken by the United States in the Mexican business, even bringing so ugly a phrase as 'international blackmail' to his pages. But, aside from this, his book will be found by many to be interesting and as accurate as might have been expected."

+ N Y Times 19:233 My 17 '14 1500w

"As a handbook to the Mexican situation, which is all that it claims to be, it is a work of real value, sensibly planned and lucidly compiled. It sets out just what the average man wants to know, and in this connection it is interesting to note how much space is occupied by the presentation of economic data."

+ Sat R 117:sup5 Mr 21 '14 850w

+ Spec 113:501 O 10 '14 570w

MCILHENNY, EDWARD AVERY. Wild turkey and its hunting. il *$2.50 (4c) Doubleday 14-17876

This work on the wild turkey attempts "to cover the entire history of this very interesting and vanishing game bird." An introduction explains that it is a completion of a work left unfinished at his death by Mr. Charles L. Jordan, "who knew more of the ways of the wild turkey in the wilds than any man who ever lived." The photographs used in illustration are his. Some of the chapters are: Range, variation and name; The turkey prehistoric; The turkey historic; Social relations, nesting, the young birds; Association of the sexes; Its enemies and food; Habits of association and roosting; Guns I have used on turkey, etc.

"A complete guide for naturalist or hunter."

+ A L A Bkl 11:109 N '14

MACINTIRE, HORACE JAMES. Mechanical refrigeration: a treatise for technical students and engineers. il *$4 Wiley 13-26446

"The author starts with the supposition that the reader is familiar with mechanical refrigeration, and so only a few representative types of machines are described, and only a hasty review is given of the more important equations and heat cycles. In addition to the above-mentioned subjects, consideration is given to auxiliaries, theory of mechanical refrigeration, refrigerating mediums, testing, insulation (including the construction of buildings), economy and specifications, applications (including ice making), cold storage and cooling of air, liquids and solids."—Engin Rec

"The best American book on the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 10:313 Ap '14

"The reviewer found that the book contains some valuable tables and diagrams, but that it lacks that peculiar combination of theoretical and practical information which is necessary to make its contents of real value to engineers and laymen interested in this class of machinery. First, overlooking what are no doubt typographical errors, or errors due to insufficient proof-reading, there are a number of incorrect statements in the text and a few mistakes in the interpretation of formulas copied from other writers. Apparently, a great deal of information was simply obtained from manufacturers; in several places arguments used by salesmen are advanced here as actual facts or judicial statements. This should not be the case in a book of this kind. The typographical errors are so many, that the book must have been gotten out in an extreme hurry." Fred Ophilo

— Engin N 71:382 F 12 '14 1100w

MACINTIRE, HORACE JAMES—Continued.

"The book, which is intended for technical students and engineers, is well written, with clear and direct explanations and is well adapted to the use of either class." W: W. Bird

+ Engin Rec 69:147 Ja 31 '14 150w

+ Nature 93:610 Ag 13 '14 70w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Present 12 hour. il *$1.25 Macmillan 14-20386

Two groups of contrasting poems, poems of War and Peace, make up the contents of this volume. Those of part 1 (War) have been written during this time of conflict. Those of part 2 (Peace) have been selected from poems written during the last two years. Among the former are: Fight; the tale of a gunner; The conflict; six sonnets; The lads of Liege; Carnage; six sonnets; and Men of Canada. Some of the peace poems are: Panama hymn; Goethals; and a Hymn for equal suffrage.

"Among the abundance of militarist books written by authorities in practically all of the great nations involved, this book of poems by an American poet stands with illuminating significance." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 850w

+ Lit D 50:155 Ja 23 '15 950w

Reviewed by J. B. Rittenhouse

+ N Y Times 20:21 Ja 17 '15 1050w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Saint Louis: a civic masque. il *$1 Doubleday 14-9941

A masque correlated with Thomas Wood Stevens' "Pageant of St. Louis" and performed at the end of May in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of St. Louis. The pageant presents historically the social life of St. Louis from its beginnings; while the function of Mr. MacKaye's masque is to relate that local life to the larger national and world life. Interpreting symbolically the historical material of St. Louis the author has conceived the national and world meanings of that material as revealing the lapse and resurgence of man in the evolution of a more highly socialized state. The masque opens with the fall of the mound-building civilization; proceeds to the coming of the white man and a theme of the hopeful, resurgent powers of civilization and the forces of Gold, War and Poverty; then sweeps on towards its civic goal—a harmonious socialized state of human society.

A L A Bkl 11:65 O '14

Ind 79:217 Ag 10 '14 100w

"In promise of future development, in largeness of conception, and in realization of the possibilities in the opportunity offered, his masque of St. Louis is one of the best pieces of work that has come from his pen."

+ Outlook 107:515 Jl 4 '14 380w

Survey 32:372 Jl 4 '14 3550w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Sanctuary: a bird masque: with a prelude by Arvia MacKaye. il *$1 (13c) Stokes 14-3923

Mr. MacKaye's masque was written for the dedication of the bird sanctuary of the Meriden Bird club of Meriden, New Hampshire, and was given its first performance there in September, 1913. It took its origin, the author says, from two important sources, rarely, if ever, associated—nature study and the art of the theatre. The characters are Quercus a faun; Alwin, a poet; Shy, a naturalist; Tacita, a dryad; Ornis, a bird spirit; Stark, a plume hunter; with many other characters appearing as birds in the pantomime. The volume is illustrated with scenes from the original production.

A L A Bkl 10:313 Ap '14

"Mr. MacKaye has acquitted himself of a difficult task with delicate fancy and much verbal skill."

+ Nation 98:705 Je 11 '14 110w

"It is hard to be fair to the merits of a masque that one reads in a printed book. So much of the effect depends upon the setting and the degree to which the actors create an illusion that about the most one can say of one in its published form is whether the author has or has not offered good material to the producers. In the case of Mr. MacKaye's 'Sanctuary' it is safe to say that the material is good."

+ N Y Times 19:117 Mr 15 '14 330w

+ R of Rs 49:502 Ap '14 230w

MACKAYE, PERCY (WALLACE). Thousand years ago: a romance of the Orient; with an introd. by Clayton Hamilton. *75c (4c) Doubleday 14-905

This play, which is published as one of the Drama league series, is based on an old Persian tale which served for the theme of an eighteenth century comedy, "Turandotte," of which Schiller made a translation. Mr. MacKaye, however, has not made an adaptation of this comedy, he has written a wholly new play, introducing as a new set of characters a group of strolling Italian players who have wandered into China. Their leader, Capocomico, wins the favor of the king and is granted the privilege of wielding the royal sceptre for one day.

"Interesting in itself and because of its historical significance as an echo of an early dramatic form, the mask. The style is excellent as poetry and as expressive of the various characters."

+ A L A Bkl 10:275 Mr '14

R of Rs 49:502 Ap '14 180w

"Has historical interest, oriental coloring and good technique."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:88 Ap '14 30w

MCKEEVER, WILLIAM ARCH. Industrial training of the boy. il *50c (2c) Macmillan A14-1030

This little book is made up of Part one of the author's larger work, "Training the boy." He advocates strongly industrial training in the schools, but in this book is more concerned with the part the home must play in such training. Contents: Pre-school development; The public school and adjustment; Vacation employment (two chapters); Serious industrial employment; Sending the youth to college. A brief bibliography follows each chapter.

A L A Bkl 11:83 O '14

"Opinions and suggestions that merit careful consideration from the parents of boys are set forth."

+ N Y Times 19:212 Ap 26 '14 70w

"Taken as a whole Professor McKeever's books on the training of our boys and girls make a valuable contribution to our literature of educational purpose and technique." H: W. Thurston

+ Survey 32:548 Ag 29 '14 400w

MCKEEVER, WILLIAM ARCH. Industrial training of the girl. il *50c (2c) Macmillan 14-30916

Part one of the author's larger work, "Training the girl" is here reprinted. The chapters that make up its contents are: The small beginnings; The kindergarten training; Attending the public school; Home and school co-operation; The high-school girl; Sending the daughter to college. Each chapter is followed by a list of reading references.

A L A Bkl 11:186 D '14

"The most remarkable characteristic of the book is the author's unqualified faith in the happy results which he believes will follow the adoption of his rather general programme for the instruction of the girl."

— Dial 58:58 Ja 16 '15 350w

"The germ of practicality in 'The industrial training of the girl' is a vigorous one or it would have miserably perished in such an atmosphere of sentimentality, but when disentangled from 'baby hands' and 'soft little fingers' the author's latest educational treatise offers his usual constructive and valuable material."

+ — Ind 81:31 Ja 4 '15 50w

"With the best of intentions Mr. McKeever has produced a handbook that reads like pedagogical cant. A candid judgment must pronounce that as a whole there is little excuse for this book." H. M. Jones

— School R 23:58 Ja '15 470w

McKEEVER, WILLIAM ARCH. Training the girl. il *$1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 14-3586

The author says: "This book is intended to be a running mate to my recently published volume, 'Training the boy,' and these two are intended to supplement the earlier one. 'Farm boys and girls.'" The problem of girl training rises from the necessity of preparing her for two vocations. She must be able to earn her way in the world and she must be prepared for motherhood. The author treats the problem sanely and seems to point the way to a solution. The book is divided into four parts: Industrial training; Social training; Vocational training; Service training. Reading lists are appended to each chapter.

"The most comprehensive book on the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 11:7 S '14 +

"As were its predecessors, the book is filled with sane and helpful advice."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 250w

"Excellent in judgment and insight."

+ Ind 80:140 O 26 '14 20w

"He writes with sympathy and optimism. If the reader sometimes wearies of the ardent and hortatory tone, it is probable that just this touch will appeal to the perplexed parent or teacher seeking guidance."

+ — Outlook 106:818 Ap 11 '14 200w

Spec 113:398 S 19 '14 120w

"The book is written with rare good judgment, familiarity with and insight into the lives of active girls." H: W. Thurston

+ Survey 32:549 Ag 29 '14 750w

"The most comprehensive book we have, valuable in every library."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:124 My '14 40w

MACKENZIE, COMPTON. Sinister street. *$1.35 (1c) Appleton 15-273

This is the second book of the story of Michael Fane. The first part was published last year in "Youth's encounter." In England the two books bear the titles "Sinister street, part 1" and "Sinister street, part 2." The whole takes Michael only to his twenty-third year, and, as the author says, it is not a life which he has written, but the prologue of a life. The first part of this second volume is taken up with the four Oxford years. In this quiet, meditative atmosphere Michael finds himself at home and at peace. Then with Oxford behind him comes an abrupt change, and a descent into the underground world of London. A quixotic desire to find and rescue Lily Haden, his girl sweetheart who has sunk into vice, leads Michael thither. Failing in his effort to redeem the girl, he realizes that another phase of his life has come to an end. He doesn't know what is to come next; there is a hint that it may be the priesthood.

"We will pay Mr. Mackenzie the compliment of believing he could have conveyed in half the number of pages all that is essential to the understanding of the two phases of his hero's life here treated. We can also affirm that there are few pages which do not carry the reader on with fresh zest. In the writing we admire most the author's wealth and appositeness in the choice of words. On the other hand, some sentences are in need of revision."

+ — Ath 1914.2:531 N 21 850w

"The book is in a measure formless, but that can be forgiven, because of the richness of what it contains." F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 40:676 F '15 570w

"A novel that is written with the zeal of the biographer who has known intimately his subject, and with the skill of the novelist who knows him none the less intimately because he has created him out of his own mind and his own experience with life." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 16 '14 1600w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 58:53 Ja 16 '15 250w

"He is a good story teller and knows how to make his readers sit up and take notice, but the world would be just as happy without 'Sinister street' as with it." J. L. Gilder

+ — Ind 80:404 D 14 '14 170w

— Nation 100:81 Ja 21 '15 330w

Reviewed by Cuthbert Wright

+ New Republic 2:53 F 13 '15 1100w

"Deserves the careful, unhurried reading which it demands."

+ N Y Times 19:568 D 13 '14 1200w

MACKINTOSH, ROBERT. Christianity and sin. *75c Scribner 14-30728

"This small volume, the sixteenth in the series of 'Studies in theology,' deals exclusively with the doctrine of sin as an individual experience apart from sin of which society is guilty. The history and constructive development of the doctrine from ancient to present time are exhibited in detail, including modern efforts at re-statement." (Outlook) "Twelve chapters make up the historical discussion. Four of these deal with the Old Testament, four with the New Testament, and four with the period from the close of New Testament times to the present."

The remaining six chapters contain the author's constructive work to explain the Christian doctrine of sin." (Boston Transcript)

"The author brings to his task abundant scholarship and wide reading. But it is to be feared that the readers for whom this series is intended will find themselves quite as much bewildered after reading this discussion as they were before."

+ — Am J Theol 18:487 Jl '14 280w

"A scholarly, readable treatment which will impress even those who disagree as able and reverent."

+ A L A Bkl 11:7 S '14

"The author has done his work well, but it is a most difficult kind of work. The reader, we fear, will not lay the book down with a clear idea of just what sin is."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 F 28 '14 350w

"The volume is well worked out and suggestive."

+ Ind 81:102 Ja 18 '15 60w

Outlook 107:878 Ag 8 '14 230w

MACKMURDO, A. H. Pressing questions. *$1.25 4 Lane W13-71

"The main questions here discussed are Profit-sharing, Female suffrage, and Electoral reform. . . . Our present capitalistic system, the author contends, is bad. The evils of the day are caused by the facilities afforded for the making of profit without doing a day's work to win it. The remedy is profit-sharing rather than copartnership. . . . As to 'female suffrage' Mr. Mackmurdo is opposed to it. But his arguments against it are not very convincing. In his discussion of the 'electoral reform,' he appears to be on more familiar ground."—J Pol Econ

"The appendices will, we believe, prove the most useful portions of the book."

+ — Ath 1913.2:151 Ag 16 550w

Reviewed by H: C. Shelley

Boston Transcript p5 Jl 12 '13 700w

"The book can be neither wholly praised nor wholly condemned. It contains many good thoughts, which are, unfortunately, poorly discussed."

+ — J Pol Econ 22:286 Mr '14 350w

"Female suffrage is indeed a pressing question and Mr. Mackmurdo's treatment of it deserved a better fate than to be squeezed into one book between two alien problems. Altogether, wonderful to relate, Mr. Mackmurdo has put a strong case against female suffrage. But he is not a stick-in-the-mud. He has a program of positive betterment for women's condition which it is but fair to leave the reader to discover." J: Martin

+ — Survey 31:530 Ja 31 '14 430w

MCLAREN, AMY. Through other eyes. Il
$*1.25 (1½c) Putnam 14-5168

All the action of this story centers around an invalid's easy chair. She is called Miss Sunshine—we are never told whether she had another name—and she lived with a delightful person known as Mrs. Fancy. If she leads a somewhat selfish existence, she ought not to be blamed for the unkindness of fate seems to give her a just excuse for selfishness. But Ernest Muspratt, the young man who unexpectedly runs on to her garden retreat, shows her that there is work in the world for her to do.

"The story is calm and wholesome, with a freshness and originality that are inspiring."

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 210w

"It is a good book to read of a hot summer's day, when the brain is not equal to a problem novel."

+ Cath World 99:692 Ag '14 110w

"The flaws are very few, and the cheerful, altruistic atmosphere of the romance disarms the carping spirit. It is a wholesome and helpful story, as well as one furnishing plenty of interest to readers who like a little bemuddlement en route and a satisfactory clearing-up in the end."

+ — N Y Times 19:197 Ap 19 '14 200w

MCLAUGHLIN, ANDREW CUNNINGHAM, and HART, ALBERT BUSHNELL, eds. Cyclopedia of American government. 3v $22.50
Appleton 14-10093

A cyclopedia of American government complete in three volumes made up of contributions by experts in various departments of government and administration. The range of subjects covers not only the United States but also Canada, and South and Central America. "In their introduction the editors say that the need of this cyclopedia has been made plain to them by their own experience as students and teachers. . . . The word 'Government' in this work is used as a comprehensive term; it includes the theory of philosophy of political society, the forms of political organization, the methods and agencies by which law or governmental purposes are usually carried out." (N Y Times)

"Useful although there are many typographical errors and numerous inaccuracies."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:133 D '14 (Review of v 1-3)

"The work deserves careful consideration on the part of all who specialize in government and also by the layman as the source of much valuable information."

+ Ind 79:32 Jl 6 '14 100w (Review of v 1)

+ Ind 80:289 N 23 '14 110w (Review of v 3)

"The extreme brevity of many of the articles is partially offset by the well-chosen bibliographies appended."

+ — N Y Br Lib News 1:126 S '14 50w (Review of v 1)

+ N Y Times 19:343 Ag 9 '14 920w (Review of v 1)

+ — N Y Times 19:550 D 6 '14 600w (Review of v 2 and 3)

"Not the least valuable feature of the present work is that it offers to the reader more than one point of view on certain contested topics."

+ Outlook 107:877 Ag 8 '14 270w (Review of v 1)

MACLEAN, J. KENNEDY. Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South; adapted from 'Heroes of the Polar seas.' il *50c (1c) Crowell (Eng ed A13-2324)

Sir John Franklin is the first hero whose story is told in this little volume. Following it come the stories of Kane, Nares, De Long, and other early heroes; then the stories of the modern men, Nansen, Peary, Amundsen, Shackleton and Scott. The book is illustrated and there are two maps.

+ A L A Bkl 11:128 N '14

"An excellent little book which should interest the general reader."

+ Ath 1913,1:465 Ap 26 60w

"While written primarily for boys and girls, it will appeal equally to older readers."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 250w

+ Chaut 72:663 Ap 25 '14 80w

+ N Y Times 19:266 Ja 14 '14 80w

+ R of Rs 49:762 Je '14 80w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:191 Jl '14 30w

MACLEOD, ALICE. Pigeon raising. (Outing handbooks) il *70c (3½c) Outing pub.
13-22679

This book is written for the inexperienced the first chapter is devoted to The novice and his mistakes. Following it are chapters on: How I should build a pigeon plant; Costs and profits; The various breeds and their markings; The nature and habits of high-bred pigeons; Breeding; Disease and feeding; Marketing, killing, and curing feathers.

A L A Bkl 10:275 Mr '14

"For one who is seriously interested in pigeon raising as a business, the concise advice in Miss MacLeod's book will be of practical value."

+ Nation 98:461 Ap 23 '14 170w

MACMANUS, SEUMAS. Yourself and the neighbours. il *$1.25 (1½c) Devin-Adair
14-16475

A collection of sketches which, all taken together, give a picture of life in an Irish community. They are not the familiar folk-tales of Mr. MacManus's platform repertoire altho they are more or less tinged with the lore of the Irish countryside. The book opens with a series of related sketches, reminding "you" of your boyhood and courting days and so on. Some of those that follow are: A day in the bog; The come-home Yankee; The gentle people; When the tinkers came; The tales you told; When God sent Sunday.

"The charm of Ireland is in every story."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 300w

"If the lover of Irish lore has a drop of Celtic blood in his veins, and a long evening at his disposal, he will find a rare treat laid up for him."

+ Cath World 100:253 N '14 320w

+ Dial 58:85 F 1 '15 100w

+ Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 40w

+ Nation 99:715 D 17 '14 430w

"It gives the reader a clearer idea of the men, women, and children who lived among the hills of Knockagar a generation ago than the most exhaustive treatise or the most relentlessly realistic analysis. He has art and knowledge and sympathy, and he has put them all into this entertaining and lovable book."

+ N Y Times 19:505 N 15 '14 350w

"Its most notable quality is its intimacy with Irish life and the informal and perfectly frank way in which it lets that life present itself. This veracity gives the book its charm and its value."

+ Outlook 108:505 O 28 '14 90w

+ Outlook 109:294 F 3 '15 70w

"This is in a class with his other good work."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 12 '14 250w

MACMECHAN, ARCHIBALD MCKELLAR. Life of a little college, and other papers. *$1.35
(2½c) Houghton 14-18452

In the first paper the author, who is a professor in a small college in Nova Scotia, writes of the advantages, both to teacher and pupil, of the associations possible in the smaller institutions of learning. In the second he presents a pleasant picture of coeducation. Papers that follow are: The vanity of travel; Tennyson as artist; Browning's women; This is our master; Child of the ballads; "The best sea-story ever written"; Evangeline and the real Acadians; Everybody's Alice; Virgil.

+ A L A Bkl 11:163 D '14

Boston Transcript p23 D 26 '14 300w

"It would be too much to say that there is enough matter of exceptional value or profundity in the individual essays to compensate for their lack of unity and make them widely acceptable to the reading public in their collected form."

— + Dial 58:24 Ja 1 '15 220w

"An individual charm and grace color the various subjects that caught the fancy of this Canadian scholar."

+ Nation 99:555 N 5 '14 300w

MACMILLAN, MARY LOUISE. Short plays.
2 *$1.25 Stewart & Kidd 13-25626

The chief value of these little plays in the eyes of the amateurs for whom they are intended will be that they are actable. Most of them were written to order for college and club women. They run from one to three acts in length and can be given without elaborate setting. There are ten of the plays with titles as follows: The shadowed star; The ring; The rose; Luck; Entr'acte; A woman's a woman for a' that; A fan and two candlesticks; A modern masque; The futurists; The gate of wishes.

"While some show undeniable talent, their chief value lies in the fact that they are actable and can be given without elaborate settings."

+ A L A Bkl 10:358 My '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 7 '14 250w

"The book will prove a valuable help to any one having on hand the preparation of an entertainment."

+ Chaut 72:557 Mr 14 '14 110w

"Some of the plays, though well enough adapted to their professed purpose, have no distinctive quality, but there are four or five which arrest attention."

+ — Nation 98:409 Ap 9 '14 410w

+ R of Rs 49:247 F '14 150w

MACMUNN, NORMAN. Path to freedom in the school. *60c Macmillan E14-1178

"Mr. MacMunn, a British public schoolmaster, has applied Montessori principles to secondary school pupils with rather surprising results. He finds that the scholars are much more orderly when no formal discipline is exacted and learn far more rapidly when left to their own devices. He takes the ground that the teacher can learn much more from all his pupils than any single pupil can learn from any teacher. He is also a firm believer in the theory that every healthy boy is innately good from a moral standpoint and eager to be educated."—Boston Transcript

"Many self-styled reformers are in nine-tenths of their suggestions merely destructive. With Mr. MacMunn it is otherwise. Latest and most sweeping of revolutionaries, he builds a new fabric on the ground which he has cleared."

+ Ath 1914,1:881 Je 27 480w

"The book as a whole is well worth reading; it is a pioneer work in a field that is sure to see some interesting developments within the next few years."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 18 '14 130w

"The book is capital both in form and in content."

+ Educ R 48:421 N '14 45w

Nation 99:320 S 10 '14 110w

"Lively and vigorous in its English, sometimes putting conclusions more strongly than sober critics, even friendly ones may approve, it is, above all, valuable for its constructive side, and is the outcome of definite and successful experience." E. P. C.

+ Nature 93:659 Ag 27 '14 400w

MC MURRY, CHARLES ALEXANDER. Conflicting principles in teaching and how to adjust them. $1.25 (1½c) Houghton 14-13885

One example of the conflicting principles in teaching of which the author treats is furnished by the following question: Can children be trained, at one and the same time, into two such opposite virtues as prompt obedience to authority and free, self-controlled, independent action? This is one of many such questions, all arising, the author says from the dualism inherent in nature, from the "conflicting forces found in child and adult, and in society as organized." The purpose of his book is to show that the principles involved in each case are complementary, not antagonistic.

Boston Transcript p8 F 6 '15 200w

"This book ought to be studied and discuss by elementary teachers generally. It will be found exceedingly helpful in the everyday work of the schoolroom."

+ Educ R 49:98 Ja '15 80w

"Mr. McMurphy presents clear and positive views with respect to questions of method and practice, which will be of service to teachers and others whose own opinions are more or less unsettled."

+ N Y Times 19:355 Ag 23 '14 70w

MACNAMARA, RACHEL SWETE. Torch of life (Eng title, The awakening). *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-9279

The heroine of this story marries at nineteen. An accident on their wedding day leaves the husband a hopeless cripple, and for ten years she lives shut off from the world, a slave to his mad whims and morbid fancies. Then at twenty-nine she is widowed, and, set free, she faces life with the ignorance and naïve innocence of nineteen. During her lonely years she had had one friend, her husband's cousin, Fenton Mede, but in her newly awakened passion for experience, she overlooks the strong patient love he is ready to give her, and turns to the more glittering attractions of a mad flirtation with a man younger than herself. She barely escapes without scorching her wings, and learns, before it is too late, to appreciate the great gift that had been offered her.

"This tale is smoothly rather than stirringly written. The end is abrupt and unsatisfactory, and leaves the reader with the impression that the number of words expected by a publisher had been attained sooner than the author expected."

— + Ath 1914,1:sup473 Mr 28 100w

"Her theme is ingenious, and she works it out interestingly, but one never for a moment feels it to be a section out of the real life of the world."

+ — N Y Times 19:400 S 27 '14 300w

"There is a great deal that is artificial, sentimental, and even absurd in the story, but the presentation is effective, the glamour excited by Italy on a receptive and susceptible mind is well conveyed, and the style, alike in dialogue and description, is of a much superior quality to that usually found in books of this type."

+ — Spec 112:653 Ap 18 '14 780w

MACNAUGHTAN, SARAH. Snow upon the desert. *$1.35 Dutton 13-22817

In this Anglo-Indian story "the central figure, Mrs. Antrobus, is the familiar beautiful, unhappily married woman whom men admire and women dislike. . . . In this particular instance she is perfectly respectable, though flirtatious and given to spasms of night-horror, when India terrifies her and she cries: 'We are too near the unseen and the unknown; too near the mere tragedy of living.' As was to be expected, she champions the little ingenue, who has become the innocent cause of scandal." (N Y Times)

"A book which will not be popular but will interest those who like character studies in a setting of Anglo-Indian life."

+ A L A Bkl 10:326 Ap '14

"This tale of Indian life is written with freshness and ease, but the craftsmanship is faulty."

+ — Ath 1913,2:315 S 27 90w

"There is only one aspect of the book that really counts, and that is in so far as it is a study of the personality of just one woman." F. T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 38:670 F '14 470w

MACNAUGHTAN, SARAH—Continued.

"The author has invented a commendable plot, has woven it in an excellent style with memorable details, and has created a distinct, if incomplete, character to stand within it. Whether she failed to ally her story and character from choice or from inability, is not to be determined: the result in neglected possibilities is the same."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 D 12 '13 620w

"Mrs. Mackenzie and Mrs. Grainger are both mildly amusing, but on the whole the book is dull."

+ — N Y Times 18:698 N 30 '13 140w

"Miss Macnaughtan's style of writing is, as always, delightful. It is a keen perception of details which is responsible for much of the freshness and delight of the book."

+ Spec 111:467 S 27 '13 350w

MCNEIL, EVERETT. Totem of Black Hawk.
2 il $1.20 (1c) McClurg 14-18651

A story of pioneer life in northwestern Illinois in the eighteen-thirties. The Clays, father, mother and three children, are among the first settlers in the Rock river valley, and the story follows all the incidents of the making of a frontier home, the building of the log house, the hunt for meat, and so on. Later comes the outbreak of the Black Hawk war, the capture of Mrs. Clay and the children, and their escape from death by virtue of the little image worn by Ruth—a little black hawk carved in stone which had been given her by an Indian girl she had befriended.

"A vivid tale of pioneer days." H. L. Reed

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 80w

MACPHERSON, HECTOR, jr. Wonders of modern astronomy. il 75c (1½c) McKay

The contents of this book have been taken from a larger book by the author, "The romance of modern astronomy." Some of the matters which are taken up in the chapters are: Our place in the universe; Effects of the earth's motions; The sun's family of worlds; The evening star; Mars, the red planet; The asteroids; The boundaries of the solar system; The sun's family of comets; The messengers of space; The nature of comets.

MAETERLINCK, GEORGETTE (LEBLANC)
2 (MRS. MAURICE MAETERLINCK). Choice of life; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. il $1.25 (2c) Dodd 14-16445

An idealistic—and, from the American point of view, very sentimental—French woman takes a beautiful peasant girl into her home and tries to transform her so that her inner life may become as lovely as is her outward form. The means by which the girl is to be awakened out of her mental lethargy is love. Rose is to experience a "grand passion." But she proves unable to rise to the heights expected of her, and is capable only of a quiet contentment, in which state her benefactor at last leaves her.

"The style is of a Gallic sleekness and melodiousness which the admirable work of the translator more than suggests. The effect of the book as a whole is (to John and Jonathan) strained, sensuous, ecstatic, doubtfully wholesome." H. W. Boynton

+ — Nation 99:461 O 15 '14 350w

"The book abounds in poetic phrase and in a philosophy expressed alike with frankness and beauty. The translation is excellent."

+ N Y Times 19:387 S 20 '14 520w

"The translation is capable, but lacking in light and shade."

+ — Spec 113:933 D 26 '14 20w

MAETERLINCK, GEORGETTE (LEBLANC)
2 (MRS. MAURICE MAETERLINCK). Girl who found the blue bird; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. il $1 (19c) Dodd 14-17223

The girl who has found the blue bird of happiness is Helen Keller. Mme. Maeterlinck describes in detail the incidents and conversations of two visits to the blind girl made during her recent stay in America.

"The record is surcharged with emotion, Madame Maeterlinck burying her observations under an avalanche of sentiment. The little book is an unimportant addition to what we might as well begin to refer to as Kelleriana."

— Nation 99:502 O 22 '14 80w

+ Spec 113:855 D 12 '14 20w

MAETERLINCK, MAURICE. Children's Blue bird, by Georgette Leblanc (Mme. Maurice Maeterlinck); tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. il $2.50 Dodd 13-22821

"Georgette Leblanc has retold her husband's lovely fairy play in simple prose for children too young to appreciate it in play form. It begins very properly 'Once upon a time, a woodcutter and his wife lived in their cottage on the edge of a large and ancient forest.'—Bookman

"Well done though with rather more explaining of the moral than one might wish."

+ A L A Bkl 10:163 D '13

"The illustrations are disconcerting. Are they the 'impressions' of an artist or the drawings of a child?"

+ — Ath 1913,2:sup474 O 25 110w

"The illustrations are so superlatively satisfying that one cannot imagine them being done any better." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:438 D '13 320w

"The tale breathes reverence and enchantment, and if anything could dispel these qualities, we think it would be Mr. Rothenstein's work, for its effect rests entirely with a clever fantastic distribution of colour."

+ — Int Studio 51:171 D '13 150w

"Artistically and typographically 'The children's Blue bird' deserves warm recommendation. But we are not quite reconciled to the retold version, wherein much of Maeterlinck's own text is served up to us in shortened conversation."

+ — Lit D 47:1123 D 6 '13 70w

Nation 97:543 D 4 '13 140w

+ N Y Times 18:599 N 2 '13 470w

"It is artistically printed, and the allegory, though a fairy story, is without that grossness that is often found in fairy lore of the past."

+ R of Rs 48:763 D '13 100w

Sat R 116:sup4 N 29 '13 90w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:165 Je '14 40w

MAETERLINCK, MAURICE. Our eternity; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. $1.50 Dodd 13-22850

This is an expansion of Maeterlinck's essay on "Death." "He endeavors to prove, in the first place, that total annihilation is impossible. He then discusses carefully the survival of our present consciousness, and undertakes to show that this form of survival is undesirable as well as improbable. Then he shows that survival without any sort of consciousness would be equivalent, as far as we are concerned, to annihilation, and would be no more dreadful than dreamless sleep with no awakening. But the more acceptable hypotheses, he holds, are survival in the cosmic consciousness (absorption in infinity), and survival with a modified consciousness. The latter theory is his choice."

In the concluding chapter Maeterlinck expresses his belief that death will not solve for us the secret of the universe—that the unknown will remain forever unknowable." (Chaut)

A L A Bkl 10:425 Je '14

"His views on these engrossing topics should appeal to a wide circle of readers."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup437 O 18 100w

"M. Maeterlinck's work is at once judicious and speculative, but it will hardly satisfy the reader who goes to it for comfort or assurance concerning the after-life, for, though it fills the mind abundantly, it leaves the heart starved."

+ — Ath 1913,2:489 N 1 110w

"Masterly work"

+ Chaut 72:493 F 21 '14 270w

"The chapters on 'The theosophical hypothesis' and 'The neospiritualistic hypothesis' are admirable, on the whole, for their adequacy of treatment and for their fairness. This part of the book is valuable to the honest inquirer who lacks time to go through the wealth, or wilderness, of spiritistic evidence,—indeed, it is the only part that possesses absolute value to a fact-seeker and positive thinker." T. P. Beyer
+ — Dial 56:61 Ja 16 '14 1300w

Reviewed by J. W. Cunliffe
Ind 78:565 Je 29 '14 470w

"Without technical completeness or basic originality, the work merits the praise of impartial temper, an alert critical spirit, acute and circumspect reasoning, duly circumscribed and wisely tentative conclusions."
+ — Nation 97:565 D 11 '13 800w

"The essay of 1912 was a poem, beautiful, a work of art; the book to which it has been inflated this year is simply a botch."
— N Y Sun p16 N 8 '13 1450w

Reviewed by J. B. Rittenhouse
+ — N Y Times 18:637 N 23 '13 1850w

"It is the most significant treatise that has appeared concerning the claims and results of psychical research, to the consideration of which more than half of the volume is devoted. Philosophically the most valuable portion of the work is that part of it which had previously been published as an essay on death, mainly concerned with the question as to the survival of individual consciousness." H. M. Alden
+ N Y Times 18:660 N 30 '13 2200w

"A book profound and beautiful is M. Maeterlinck's discussion of theories as to survival after death. It lacks, however, definite conclusions even as to the author's own belief, and leaves the whole subject much where it was before, so far as reasoned grounds of conviction are concerned. One wishes that the elimination of untenable theories had been more decisive, and it would have been more satisfactory to have had a more concrete expression of Maeterlinck's own opinion."
+ — N Y Times 18:677 N 30 '13 300w

R of Rs 48:760 D '13 90w

"He has really nothing to add to our knowledge, although he meanders on fluently enough for some two hundred pages."
— Sat R 116:531 O 25 '13 180w

MAETERLINCK, MAURICE. Unknown guest; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. $*1.50 (2½c) Dodd 14-18577

The author says: "My essay on 'Death' led me to make a conscientious enquiry into the present position of the great mystery." One part of the result of his investigation is published in this volume. The second part, treating of the miracles of Lourdes and other like phenomena, will come later. Five papers make up the contents of this book. The first, Phantasms of the living and the dead, is a consideration of certain cases of veridical apparitions and hallucinations, and of haunted houses. The next, Psychometry, has to do with some of the phenomena of clairvoyance. The third paper, Knowledge of the future, takes up premonitions. The fourth, The Elberfeld horses, is a study of animal psychology. The last, The unknown guest, considers the sub-conscious self.

"In all these papers a fascinating subject is treated with fascinating effect. At their worst the various diversions which the book contains are fatally circumscribed by the precautions needed for dealing with possible 'mystery-mongers.' At their best they tabulate barren results. Whatever may be thought of his exposition, his appeal rests on a basis of vivid life and graceful language, and the whole has emerged unspilt from the translator's hands."
— + Ath 1914:2:583 D 5 1400w

"The shadowy brush of unseen wings from the thin upper atmospheres can visit his pictured paragraphs whenever he wills. His delicate but comprehensive reach and thrust of words, without any appreciable effort, bring to the reader's consciousness a relief and refreshment rather than the weight and fatigue of ingrowing problems, the less soluble the more they are solved." Stuart Henry

+ — Bookm 40:465 D '14 1950w

"That Maeterlinck is honest, there is no doubt; and perhaps it will one day be proved that our partial incredulity over his mystical and idealistic explanation of the soul was due to our own great ignorance."
— Boston Transcript p8 N 14 '14 420w

"It is a little surprising, and also wholly gratifying, to find him dealing with the subject in an admirably cautious, coldblooded, and scientific fashion." J. A. Hill

+ Hibbert J 13:460 Ja '15 1350w

"We fear that M. Maeterlinck has not the temperament for the weighing of evidence and detection of trickery as is required for such investigations."
— Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 80w

"Maeterlinck tries here to preform the impossible feat of living in two worlds at once. He is a little too much concerned about the objective evidence of his occult phenomena." R. S. Bourne
— New Republic 1:26 N 21 '14 820w
Spec 113:855 D 12 '14 50w

MAINS, GEORGE PRESTON. Christianity and the new age. $*1.50 Meth. blc. 14-16567

"Under this title Dr. Mains takes an inspiring survey of the social, industrial, and religious movement of recent times for the furtherance of the ideal social order as the kingdom of Christ. He sees great gaps still existing between that ideal and its achievement. Making full account of the various hindrances yet to be overcome, he emphasizes the potency of the overcoming factors now working toward the achievement of prophetic hope."—Outlook

+ Ind 80:291 N 23 '14 45w

"This is a remarkable book. It is distinguished by mastery of its subject, wide scholarship, broad tolerance, clear vision, an earnest and fearless reverence for truth as the only sure foundation of faith, a disregard of mere dogma and tradition, and by a thoroughly devout, cheerful, and hopeful spirit. Logical in its arrangement of argument and facts, philosophical in its reasoning, and delightfully free from sectarian bias, dealing only with undisputed essentials of Christianity—its mission, its failures, its achievements, and its prospects—it is a fascinating and instructive volume, not only for churchmen, but for all workers for the betterment of mankind."
+ Nation 99:436 O 8 '14 1250w

N Y Times 19:393 S 20 '14 70w

"Well-balanced criticism, constructive thought, a clear and energetic style, and an optimistic outlook characterize the volume."
+ Outlook 108:441 O 21 '14 170w

MAIR, GEORGE HERBERT. Modern English literature, from Chaucer to the present day. ii $*2 Holt 14-30802

"Mr. Mair's work is a revision and amplification of a small volume that he wrote two years ago for the 'Home university library,' its aim being to maintain an individual point of view, to lay stress on ideas and tendencies rather than on the record of events, and to draw generously from the writings of other historians, biographers and critics. It is divided into ten chapters, each, as is necessary in a book of such restricted scope, covering a long period and each setting forth the circumstances and results of the work of a certain group of writers or of an epoch. The beginning extends 'From Chaucer to More,' and then follows 'Elizabethan poetry and prose,' 'The drama,' 'The seventeenth century,' 'The age of good sense,' 'Dr. Johnson and his time,' 'The romantic revival,' 'The Victorian age,' 'The novel,' and 'Contemporaries.'—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 11:84 O '14

"In every detail his study is original, significant and important." E. F. E.
+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 29 '14 1100w

MAIR, GEORGE HERBERT —Continued.

"Though he now and then lapses into an over familiar style, and though, as we have seen, his judgments lack finality, Mr. Mair on the whole is naturally alert, and expresses things for himself, often with vigor, and sometimes with felicity." Lane Cooper

+ Dial 58:15 Ja 1 '15 2550w

"By maintaining thruout an individual point of view he succeeds in imparting freshness and interest to a subject hackneyed by much disquisition."

+ Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 140w

"It is a worthy achievement." Philip Tillinghaast

+ Pub W 87:185 Ja 16 '15 670w

"His plan is in good perspective, his judgments comprehensive. He is no staid registrar of facts. He traffics generously in ideas and tendencies. He is never vaguely discursive nor tediously diffuse."

+ Sat R 118:150 Ag 1 '14 300w

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 26 '14 800w

MALE, ÉMILE. Religious art in France, XIII century; tr. from the 3d French ed. by Dora Nussey, rev and enl *$6 Dutton 14-11607

"This exhaustive work of M. Male first appeared, of course, in Paris, where, in an atmosphere impregnated with the artistic sense, it was received with enthusiasm. Three editions came in rapid succession. From the third edition, which was a revision and enlargement of the previous issues, this admirable translation has been made. At the outset M. Male shows that mediæval art was didactic. The sculptures and the stained glass windows were employed as teachers of the faith. . . . It is the author's aim to show that the design of the artist of those days was not to perfect himself in technique, but to clothe a thought in form. The thirteenth century, the author tells us, 'is the period when the thought of the middle ages was most fully expressed in art.'"—Boston Transcript

"It is clearly and simply written, and, apart from the eccentric idea of using the composite Douay version for Biblical quotations, it is in excellent taste. The weak points in M. Male's iconography are his comparative silence as to the early Christian sculpture of France, and his reliance on hearsay evidence as to Byzantine art. M. Male's is one of the most interesting and original books on mediæval art that have been published for many years."

+ Ath 1914.1:18 Ja 3 770w

M. Male has exhibited in his exposition of these symbolic forms an erudition and a depth of thought unequalled save by Champollion, to whom we are indebted for the discovery of the hidden thought in the hieroglyphics of Egypt, or by Rawlinson, the interpreter of the cuneiform inscriptions of Ninevah, Babylon and Persepolis." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 4 '14 900w

+ Cath World 100:115 O '14 250w

+ Nation 98:443 Ap 16 '14 340w

+ N Y Times 19:280 Je 14 '14 450w

+ Outlook 107:214 My 23 '14 150w

"On the whole this book is a valuable addition to the literature of the subject. Unfortunately there is no subject index, an omission considerably impairing the working utility of a book whose nature and great value are well worth the extra labour needed. The translation, we should add, is very good, and the illustrations are excellent."

+ Sat R 117:147 Ja 31 '14 1150w

MANATT, JAMES IRVING. Aegean days. II *$3 Houghton (Eng Ed A14-638)

"Professor Manatt wrote this almost ideal book of travel with the experience of a four years' consulate at Athens and of three subsequent visits and with a rich accumulation of Hellenic culture gained through a lifetime of loving study and honored teaching. . . . In Part 1 a summer's vacation at Andros is used as a centre of interest, and around it are grouped excursions to the near-lying Cyclades—

Euboea, Syra, Tenos, Naxos, and Paros. Part 2 is less unified, describing a short Aegean cruise under the enlightened conductorship of Dörpfeld, and visits to Ceos, Troy, Lesbos, Chios, Ithaca, and Leucas."—Nation

"Monotonous illustrations."

+ A L A Bkl 10:358 My '14

"If we allow ourselves a criticism, and an anticipation why the book may not last longer than its ephemeral brethren, it is this: it seems to have been composed at various times—piece-meal, so to say, and put together without careful welding."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup426 Mr 21 1150w

"The learned will find here much to add to his hoarded store; the reader who knows no Greek and who must here and there skip a line or a phrase, finds nevertheless, without these a connected tale of wandering 'where burning Sappho loved and sung,' much, very much to charm and not a little to instruct." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 1100w

"Every lover of Greece is placed deeply in his debt by the present volume." L: E. Lord

+ Class J 10:91 N '14 550w

"This is a timely book, and to those who know and, because they know, appreciate and love modern Greece, it will prove a helpful apologia."

+ Nation 98:301 Mr 19 '14 1250w

+ N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 40w

"It is a pity that his text has not had the advantage, as it should have had, of adequate illustration."

+ Outlook 107:47 My 2 '14 450w

"Dr. Manatt's book appeals to the reader who has historical sense, to one who loves a tale of adventure, and to those who believe with the author that Greece should mean far more to us than it does, considering that our culture is a direct descendant of Greek culture."

+ R of Rs 49:503 Ap '14 450w

"He is steeped in Greek memories, and his scholarly divagations make delightful reading."

+ Spec 112:488 Mr 21 '14 60w

MANGOLD, GEORGE BENJAMIN. Problems of child welfare. (Social science text-books) *$2 (1c) Macmillan 14-13209

When in social work the emphasis was shifted from remedial to preventive work, problems of child welfare assumed a place of first importance. As the author says, "We are beginning to realize that the more time and energy that are spent on the child, the more lasting and profitable is the investment." In this volume he treats his subject matter under six headings: The conservation of life; Health and physique; Training and education; Child labor; Juvenile delinquency; Problems of dependent children. There is a selected bibliography and an index.

"Statistics have been brought to date and the latest findings in science used."

+ A L A Bkl 11:84 O '14

"In spite of being condensed, is readable and interesting." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 57:335 N 1 '14 750w

Educ R 48:535 D '14 50w

"This is a scholarly and comprehensive volume dealing with the problems of childhood in practically every phase." J. Kantor

+ Int J Ethics 25:272 Ja '15 210w

"This volume gives an excellent exposition of the modern attempt to adjust the principles of constructive philanthropy to the needs of the child."

+ R of Rs 50:379 S '14 130w

"A learned and thoughtful volume."

+ Spec 113:432 S 26 '14 150w

Reviewed by H: W. Thurston

+ Survey 33:329 D 26 '14 650w

"Will serve many purposes in the average library."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:258 N '14 100w

MANN, J. J. Round the world in a motor car.
7 il *$3 Macmillan (Eng ed A14-2769)

The course of the journey made is via Egypt, India, Burma, to Singapore; thence to Australia and New Zealand; and home by the Pacific and Canada. "It is a fact that the author, beyond a brief introductory description of the simple contrivance for slinging and hoisting his car on board steamships (which figures in an introductory note), tells us little or nothing about his motoring, a good deal about the many ships which carried him over different stages of his journey, and much of his impressions of peoples and places visited." (Ath)

"Mr. Mann's book has a good deal of charm of a simple sort, and this is due in no small measure to his innocence, from a literary point of view, and the youthful freshness, not to say 'naïveté,' of his outlook upon men and things. Not all his information would pass the test of statistical examination."

+ — Ath 1914,1:822 Je 13 800w

"The book is interesting and readable; the author can see and describe; he can flavor information with humor; he has given us a book which will be a pleasure to the reader, and of service to the traveler, especially one who would like to take his motor car with him."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 27 '14 400w

"The information as to roads, routes, facilities for shipping cars, freight regulations, and so on, will save the purchaser many times the price of the book."

+ Sat R 117:511 Ap 18 '14 50w

"His experiences may be useful to motorists, but otherwise there is not much in his book beyond the ordinary observations of the globe-trotter."

+ — Spec 112:655 Ap 18 '14 90w

MANN, MRS. MARY E. (RACKHAM). Mrs.
4 Day's daughters. *$1.25 Doran 14-151

"The novel chronicles the experience of a family of the English middle class who, through the dishonesty of the father, lose home, money and social position. Early in the story, Mr. Day is eliminated, and Mrs. Day and her daughters—Bessie and Deleah—begin the struggle against unaccustomed poverty, hard work, and unfriendliness. . . . The story of the little family, used to every luxury, confined in the small rooms above the grocery shop Mrs. Day is forced to carry on, is one of homely detail, and of only mild incident. The character study is conscientious; conscientious also the construction of the little drama of domestic life—really the development of the love affairs of Bessie and of Deleah, the selfish and unselfish sisters, rewarded in the end, each after the most approved fashion of this class of novels."—Boston Transcript

"Tragedy—dreary, unromantic, terribly true to life, and developed in the relentless fashion usual with Mrs. Mann—is the dominant note of this powerful story. Though to a certain extent relieved by the author's excellent gifts of humour and characterization, the prevailing atmosphere is of pain and pain which sometimes, at least, seems to us gratuitous."

+ — Ath 1913,2:279 S 20 270w

"Devoid of literary style, and with no originality of plot, the little tale, with its mid-Victorian flavor, has nevertheless an ingenuousness and a friendliness that disarms criticism."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 F 28 '14 230w

"When it comes to the portrait of the two girls, Mrs. Mann errs a little on the side of exaggeration. Mrs. Mann's writing is throughout admirable," and her book worthy of the highest praise."

+ — Spec 111:828 N 15 '14 250w

MANNERS, J. HARTLEY. Happiness, and other plays. il *$1 Dodd 14-17120

Three one-act plays, written for Laurette Taylor and performed at a series of special matinees in New York city, make up the contents.

The plays are: Happiness, a study; Just as well, a twentieth-century romance; The day of dupes, an allegory.

"Into brief space is crowded in each characterization and philosophy. Of the three the best is made the title play of the volume, and in 'Happiness' we find the ideal combination of the play that is good reading and which we feel offers equal opportunities on the stage."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 160w

"Two of the little plays, 'Happiness' and 'Just as well,' do not, in their printed form, exhibit any special literary quality to entitle them to present consideration. Both have certain peculiarly theatrical merits, but the one is labored and unreal and the other an amusing but somewhat silly trifle. The third, and most ambitious, 'The day of dupes,' is well written, and, in a way, impressive, but perfectly incredible to human experience."

— + Nation 99:506 O 22 '14 370w

MANNERS, J. HARTLEY. Peg o' my heart. il
1 *$1.25 Dodd 13-23200

"Mr. Manners has founded a novel upon his gay little comedy of youth and love. While following in the main the lines of the play, he has introduced some new complications, very much extended the dialogue, and filled in with comment, narrative, and description until the play becomes a novel of nearly 400 pages. . . . In the book he sends Peg back to New York, where, helping her father upon his monumental book, she smooths down somewhat her rough edges and becomes a better mate for her lover, who soon follows her across the ocean. But she remains throughout the novel the same big-hearted, hoydenish, amusing girl that was won so many admirers on the stage."—N Y Times

"The dramatist has transformed his play into a smooth-running readable romance."

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 12 '13 250w

"Those who have enjoyed the stage presentation will approve the slightly different ending, in which, freed from the limitations of stage necessities, he has made a more logical and more convincing climax for his love story."

+ N Y Times 18:632 N 16 '13 160w

MANUCCI, NICCOLO. Pepsy of Mogul India.
8 1653-1708; tr. by W: Irvine. il *$3.50 Dutton
(Eng ed 14-4904)

"Miss Margaret Irvine has prepared a convenient and readable abridgment of her father's 'masterly edition' of Niccolao Manucci's 'Storia do Mogor.' In the year 1656 this Venetian wanderer, then a boy of seventeen, found himself a friendless stranger in India; but he was a resourceful youth, and resourcefulness often seems coupled with good fortune. At first he became an artilleryman; but by degrees he qualified himself to practise medicine, or, at any rate, to impress even the highest class natives with his powers of healing. One way or another he found himself intimately associated with the court life of the day; and his pictures of the daily farings and doings of princes and princesses form one of the most attractive features of the book."—Dial

Ath 1913,2:sup641 N 29 30w

"He is a writer, too, of excellent parts, assuming that the translation is literal, and the story is so smoothly set forth in the old time style that it is probable that the writer's work has been preserved as near its original form as possible." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 24 '14 1250w

"His wide-ranging and human-hearted pages almost justify Miss Irvine in adopting for him the conjuring name of the inimitable English diarist, although, of course, there is only one Pepsy. Manucci has long been a sort of mine for the scholar; and the present redaction will introduce him favorably to a wider public."

+ Dial 56:389 My 1 '14 250w

"It is a delightful story of a scrupulous adventurer, whose piety and dare-devilry combine to make fascinating his personal experiences, as his high position and the stirring times he lived in make his record of great historical value. But why should 'our Manuchy' be called a Peppy? He had few of Pepys's characteristics."

MANUCCI, NICCOLO—Continued.

+ — Nation 98:642 My 28 '14 250w

"There is very little of historical value in these pages, but they give a delightful glimpse of a bold and romantic freelance."

+ N Y Times 19:339 Ag 9 '14 700w

"Altogether, to the lover of the Far East and the leisurely reader of details of human interest this volume will offer some hours of real pleasure."

+ Outlook 106:505 F 28 '14 200w

"It seems ambitious to suggest that these translated 'Storia do Mogor,' are of the nature of Pepys' diaries. For they do not quite possess the quaint charm Pepys and Evelyn have for us."

+ — Sat R 116:690 N 29 '13 270w

"Nor is the book without interest for students of contemporary India. It may be that we take current problems too seriously, and forget that the Indian character contains a real vein of humour."

+ Spec 112:917 My 30 '14 780w

MARCHAND, ANNABELLA BRUCE. Dirk: a South African. *$1.35 Longmans

"Mrs. Marchand's South African romance tells of the evil wrought in a community of slow-witted Dutch farmers by a glib-tongued, unscrupulous man, who, beginning as a peddler, manages to gather to himself the possessions of the ignorant and confiding yokel, leaving ruin, heart-break, and death itself in his wake. The son of the most thoroughly devastated family loves the daughter of this villain, with the inevitable tragic result."—N Y Times

"Leisurely readers will find much to please them in this long and closely written book."

+ Ath 1913.2:sup642 N 29 170w

Cath World 98:682 F '14 180w

"No one can read it without being reminded of Thackeray, of Meredith, and most often, perhaps, of George Eliot. But it is in no sense imitative of anything but life."

+ Nation 97:618 D 25 '13 360w

"The author has dramatic power, the closing scene being especially tender and beautiful, but her story is too sombre. Its gloom is almost unrelieved."

+ — N Y Times 19:776 Ja 4 '14 190w

"There are many interesting studies of South African life in Miss Marchand's rather lengthy novel, and the dreary ending is written with real pathos."

+ — Spec 111:924 N 29 '13 20w

MARCHANT, WILLIAM HENRY. Wireless telegraphy: a handbook for the use of operators and students. il *$1.60 Macmillan

(Eng ed W14-29)

"This book has been written from a thoroughly practical viewpoint and contains much information of use to those experimenting with, operating and studying radiotelegraph apparatus. Though written to meet British radio conditions, the data and descriptions of the Poulsen, Telefunken, Lepel, Goldschmidt and Marconi apparatus, as well as the chapters on measurements and localization of faults, make the book of general interest."—Elec World

"As the book now stands it should fill the need of a simply worded and readable handbook of reasonably restricted scope."

+ Elec World 63:1507 Je 27 '14 180w

"Can be thoroughly recommended to those for whom it was written." D: Robertson

+ — Nature 94:143 O 8 '14 110w

"Hardly up to date."

+ — Pittsburgh 19:405 O '14 30w

MARDEN, ORISON SWETT. Hints for young writers. *75c (5c) Crowell 14-12855

A book of brief chapters of advice for the beginner in the art of writing. Contents: The writer to-day; Live, then write; The personality in your book; Fixed habit of work; Choosing the right word; Use simple language; Conciseness; Readability; Keep close to life; Observation and self-expression; The capacity for taking pains; Style and spirit; Commercialization of the literary profession; The reserve behind expression.

"Mr. Marden, while not succeeding in saying much that is new, puts certain common-sense principles in a new and convincing way. A young writer might go to a far worse guide than Dr. Marden." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:568 Ja '15 70w

MARK, HARRY THISELTON. For childhood and youth. *60c (1c) Pilgrim press

(Eng ed E13-1317)

The subtitle of this book, "Ideals of the modern Sunday school," indicates the nature of its contents. It is a book for Sunday school workers, and is written, its author says, "at a moment when the attention both of religious workers and of students of education is being drawn to the Sunday school." The introduction is a discussion of "The place of the Sunday school in the nation's life." The three parts into which the work is divided treat of: Aspects of Sunday school organization; The Sunday school curriculum; Aspects of Sunday school teaching.

Boston Transcript p23 Mr 4 '14 200w

MARKHAM, EDWIN. California the wonderful. il *$2.50 (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-22307

A work that is both historical and descriptive. The author, who is a Californian, writes with enthusiasm for his native state. He gives glimpses of early history, with an account of the geological background of the state; writes of the original Indian tribes; devotes one chapter to the old missions and their romance; and tells the story of the transformation brought about by the discovery of gold. Many chapters are descriptive of California's wonderful scenery, and her industries are not neglected. One chapter is devoted to The women of California; one to Intellectual California, and one to Oregon and Washington, her northern neighbors.

"Mr. Markham's book is history, but it is not so much history as it is a sweeping succession of grand and vivid pictures. On the whole, California, which affords just the sort of food for the poetic fancy, has not had a more vivid and exalted exposition than in this book. And certainly no historian of the Golden state has gone to his subject with a warmer, a more lucid or a more energetic imagination nor with a more patient hand to sift out the essential facts." Bailey Millard

+ N Y Times 20:14 Ja 10 '15 1900w

"The book contains much of the information that the traveler, starting for California in this year of expositions, will desire. Indeed, in the miscellaneous nature of its contents it somewhat resembles a scrap-book. It is of uneven merit, and there is a lack of continuity, especially noticeable in the early chapters." M. K. Reely

+ — Pub W 87:181 Ja 16 '15 600w

MARKHAM, EDWIN; LINDSEY, BENJAMIN BARR; and CREEL, GEORGE. Children in bondage; with introd. by Owen R. Lovejoy. il *$1.50 (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-13211

A book which cannot be read with complacency by any American. The authors write with fervor and passion and, with no mincing of the matter, tell what child labor means. They describe conditions in cotton mills, coal mines, canneries and sweat-shops, tell why children toil, and count the cost in vice, crime and disease. There are two final chapters on: Curing symptomatic evils, and Uprooting causes. A bibliography and an index complete the work.

A L A Bkl 11:155 D '14

Reviewed by T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 57:337 N 1 '14 60w

Lit D 49:748 O 17 '14 170w

"A very impressive presentation of the child-labor problem in America."

+ N Y Times 19:365 Ag 30 '14 100w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:258 N '14 110w

MARKINO, YOSHIO. Recollections and reflections of a Japanese artist. il *$2 Jacobs

14-127

"My recollections and reflections" tells of the toil and early struggles of a Japanese artist in London; it is full of Oriental parables and comparisons between Eastern and Western ideas." (Sat 10) "The author discusses post-impressionism, the drama—both in England and Japan—emotion, human insincerity, his new studio, and friendship. A fresh feature is that Markino has extended the range of his observation (and also his illustration) to the English countryside." (Ath)

"On the whole they lack something of the spontaneity and charm of his earlier books."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:115 N '14

Ath 1913,2:sup398 O 11 50w

"Mr. Markino tells us that an English lady is kind enough to read his proofs, and we think it unfortunate that she has not made more corrections. We do not find Mr. Markino's recollections very interesting or his reflections particularly profound. He has attempted to become a European, and we fear that he has fallen between two stools. It is difficult to judge of the original water-colours from the highly coloured reproductions of Mr. Markino's work which decorate the book. Here again the artist seems to stand between two traditions."

— Ath 1913,2:663 D 6 570w

"The same qualities which contributed so much to the success of 'A Japanese artist in London,' and 'When I was a child' are again in evidence in Mr. Markino's latest fragment of autobiography." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 13 '13 380w

+ Sat R 116:561 N 1 '13 270w

MARKS, JEANNETTE A. Leviathan. *$1.35 (1½c) Doran 13-2870

In this novel the author boldly attacks a vicious evil, and succeeds in producing at once both an impressive tract and a readable story. John Dean, a brilliant young professor, has become addicted to drugs, and tho he knows his own weakness and inability to cope with the evil alone, he believes with Margaret Richards that their love will be strong enough to conquer it. But love fails, and in the end it is scientific treatment, plus will power and plus devotion, that saves him. The author spares none of the details of struggle and suffering, but she treats this affliction as a disease and wins sympathy for the sufferer.

"We can find nothing to commend in the characteristics or style of the volume."

— Ath 1914,1:sup472 Mr 28 180w

"Something of the charm and humor of Miss Marks's Welsh books, 'Through Welsh doorways' and 'The end of a song,' is evident in 'Leviathan.' The portrayal of the wife, Margaret, deserves especial praise. Her struggle is a more subtle and complicated one than her husband's and of almost equal interest to the reader. There are minor characters in the background, and other stories than the main one are delicately woven into it."

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 28 '14 420w

"Tho hardly above average excellence as a novel, it is easily the best tract yet written against the drug evil. Would that it might have a million readers."

+ Ind 77:387 Mr 16 '14 70w

"This is not simply a story, it is a collection of vital facts that should arouse the attention of all thoughtful men and women of the United States."

+ Outlook 106:819 Ap 11 '14 110w

+ — Spec 113:25 Jl 4 '14 30w

"One wonders whether these lapses from the real art of the novelist into the efforts of the reformer were after all quite necessary; whether the lesson could not have been taught without any resort to obvious teaching. However, as it stands, the book is interesting and human, and living, and yet it fulfills its author's design as a vivid portrayal of the horrors of the drug habit and a plea for public regulations for its control." Alice Hamilton

+ — Survey 31:677 F 28 '14 220w

MAROT, HELEN. American labor unions. *$1.25 12 (2c) Ilolt 14-17226

The author is a labor union member and writes from a frankly partisan point of view. Her purpose is to present the labor point of view. Contents: Philanthropy and labor unions; American federation of labor; The railroad brotherhoods; Industrial workers of the world; Organization of women; Industrial and trade organization; Sympathetic strike action; Union recognition and the union shop; The union label; The boycott; Arbitration; Legislation and the unions; The conflict between labor and the courts; Violence; Strikes and violence; Sabotage; Limitation of output; Scientific management; Labor in politics; Direct action.

+ A L A Bkl 11:155 D '14

"The author has sacrificed scholarship to brevity without gaining either cogency or force."

+ — Ann Am Acad 57:335 Ja '15 250w

"Frank, simple and restrained."

+ Ind 80:26 O 5 '14 20w

"Helen Marot's book contains a good deal of information on labor organization generally as it exists in the United States and will be useful to those who have not already an intimate acquaintance with the subject."

+ Nation 99:633 N 26 '14 580w

"The defense of the boycott and the strike with violence, of sabotage and limitation of output, and the discontent of labor with capital and scientific management, is as good probably as can be made. The book has the fault of its merits. Being frankly partisan it lacks the point of view of those who must include in their consideration both labor and capital and both unionists and non-unionists."

+ — N Y Times 19:415 O 4 '14 1100w

"It is one of the most important of recent books on the labor question, largely from the very fact of its frank partisanship."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 1100w

MARQUIS, MRS. REINA (MELCHER). Torch bearer. *$1.30 Appleton 14-12212

"Can a woman be a wife and mother and at the same time be true to her art? is the question dwelt upon in 'The torch bearer.' The heroine too readily yields to her husband's wish that she shall not cultivate her talents despite the persistent call of genius. The husband (he is a newspaper man) seems abnormally dull in taking this stand. Perhaps he feared the questionable glory of being the husband of a celebrity. The heroine occasionally yields to the promptings of literary creation, but after her baby's grave illness, resulting, as she believes, from neglecting him to give time to this work, she resolutely gives the work up. For several years she clings to this determination, but on becoming convinced that her sacrifice was an unnecessary one she again attempts to write, only to find that her gift is gone."—Springfield Republican

"A welcome variant on the recently much overworked theme of the modern woman." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:97 S '14 750w

"The setting of the story—little, leafy, drowsy Shadyville—is charming, and visualized in deft and sure touches."

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Ag 1 '14 320w

Lit D 49:639 O 3 '14 230w

"The truth is, unless the reader is of the class which is moved to a thrill and an obeisance by the mere words Art and Artist, he is not likely to feel that the inspired Sheila's sufferings did matter very much, Eric or no Eric."

— Nation 99:307 S 10 '14 350w

"Can a woman serve two masters, one being her husband and the other her pen? Mrs. Marquis has written a pretty, appealing story about it, but, although her solution of the question is far-visions and exalting, her treatment fails to carry conviction."

+ — N Y Times 19:299 Jl 5 '14 370w

MARQUIS, REINA—Continued.

"However one may quarrel with her logic in directing the course of her theme, there is no denying that she endowed it with engaging qualities that speak well for her future work."

— + Springfield Republican p5 Jl 30 '14 400w

MARRIOTT, CHARLES. What a man wants
(Eng title, Subsoil). *$1.35 (1½c) Bobbs
13-24831

A novel of ideas rather than of deeds or problems. Hugh Sutherland, an English artist of note, finds himself dissatisfied with both his life and his art. He goes down into Cornwall to work things out by himself and finds that the new trend which his work is unconsciously taking is leading him away from conventional standards to those of the new school of painting that is looked upon as "queer" or "fantastic" or "mad" by the orthodox. Among the latter is Sylvia Bradley, to whom he has been engaged and from whom he drifts away when he can no longer share with her his ideals. To take her place in his life comes Loveday Rosewall, of the Cornish village. Yet the story comes to no conventional ending, for it is not in any sense an ordinary romance.

"Some subtlety of characterization alleviates the dullness of the narrative, but very little point or purpose appears."

— + Ath 1913,2:315 S 27 60w

"Whether he wishes to be here the novelist or the art critic one cannot feel quite sure, but the 'mixture' is undeniably interesting."

+ Int Studio 51:170 D '13 90w

Nation 98:698 Je 11 '14 350w

"A book full of insight and suggestion in its definition of the attitude of the artistic temperament towards nature and life."

+ Outlook 108:553 N 4 '14 70w

"The exceeding restraint and delicacy of Mr. Charles Marriott's literary manner almost disguises his revolutionary theories about art and marriage, indicated in his latest novel. The story of the book is slight."

+ — R of Rs 49:627 My '14 270w

"A significant and highly interesting contribution to the history of modern manners."

+ — Sat R 116:623 N 15 '13 330w

"The plot is exasperating, but the characters do carry interest as well as the subjects."

+ — Spec 112:235 F 7 '14 27w

"The story is made altogether too much of a sacrifice to the zeal of the propagandist."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 25 '14 600w

MARRIOTT, CRITTENDEN. Ward of Tecumseh. il *$1.25 Lippincott 14-17984

"Crittenden Marriott's 'The ward of Tecumseh' finds the reader transplanted to the scenes attendant upon the war of 1812. . . . At the death of the rich Count Telfair, daughter of the succession falls to Estelle Telfair, daughter of the count's brother, M. Delaroche, who settled early in Ohio and became a trader with and a close friend of, Tecumseh, chief of the Shawnee Indians. At her father's death, the girl is raised by the Indians, as Alagwa, without knowledge of her royal blood until she is seventeen, when Brito Telfair, an English representative of a branch of the Telfair family comes to Tecumseh and demands the girl."— Pub W

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 16 '14 370w

+ — N Y Times 19:505 N 15 '14 300w

Reviewed by N. W. Sheldon
Pub W 86:1289 O 17 '14 380w

MARRIOTT, JOHN ARTHUR RANSOME. England since Waterloo (1815-1900). il *$3 (1½c) Putnam (Eng ed 13-24460)

This is the final volume in a history of England in seven volumes that has been published under the editorship of Charles Oman. It covers the period from Waterloo to the death of Queen Victoria. The work is, says the author, "the fruit of prolonged study and reflection. I began the accumulation of materials more than twenty years ago; some few sections of the book were actually written fifteen years ago, and during the intervening period the subject—in one or other of its varied aspects—has been rarely absent from my mind." (Preface) The book is divided into three parts: 'The aftermath of war; The reign of the middle classes; Democracy and empire.'

A L A Bkl 10:314 Ap '14

"On the whole, Mr. Marriott has produced an excellent 'standard history' on the lines laid down for him by his editor, Prof. Oman, and brought an acceptable series of volumes to a worthy conclusion."

+ — Ath 1913,2:413 O 18 1000w

"We have all been attracted and charmed by Mr. McCarthy's 'History of our own times,' and with no intention to disparage that splendid work, in recommending this volume, we will say that Professor Marriott somewhat on the same lines has done in 'England since Waterloo,' a more authentic and valuable history of the same period."

+ Boston Transcript p11 N 21 '13 470w

"Mr. Marriott's book is heavy reading. It is impersonal to the verge of baldness; it does not take long views or broad views; it essays very little characterization. It would, however, be churlish not to recognize at the same time that 'England since Waterloo' is a model of accurate learning and investigation, eminently sane and fair, well written and comprehensive."

G. B. Hertz
+ — Eng Hist R 29:387 Ap '14 720w

"The plan and execution are equally admirable."

+ Lit D 48:917 Ap 18 '14 620w

"Mr. Marriott has a good brief bibliography at the close of his volume, but his maps are altogether inferior to the text, being neither artistic nor accurate, nor as clear as one has a right to expect when so much detail has been omitted."

+ — Nation 98:368 Ap 2 '14 320w

"Granting the limitation which he has probably found necessary to place upon his treatment owing to its wide extent, Mr. Marriott has fulfilled his task with conspicuous success."

Joseph Jacobs
+ — N Y Times 19:105 Mr 8 '14 830w

"As it stands, it is a useful if uninspiring record of the nineteenth century, carefully, and on the whole, impartially done, with no obvious party prejudice or rancour. It is on its colonial side that Mr. Marriott betrays his weakness."

+ — Sat R 116:553 N 1 '13 700w

"Mr. Marriott's treatment of his subject deserves real praise. He has his own opinions, and he does not conceal them. But a writer who had no opinions on matters so near his own day would have few readers, and Mr. Marriott, while he is not afraid to pass judgment on characters and events, is never loth to add that other workers in the same field have come to different conclusions. Occasionally, perhaps, he does not state the full case on the other side."

+ — Spec 112:sup158 Ja 31 '14 1800w

MARSHALL, ARCHIBALD. Greatest of these 10 (Eng title, Roding rectory). *$1.35 (1c) Dodd
14-9280

A quietly-moving story of life in an English country parish. It might be called a novel without a hero, for, while Dr. Merrow, the great nonconformist preacher who comes to Roding in search of rest and health, may have been intended by the author for that rôle, he does not dominate the story. Such plot as there is is centered about Mr. French, the rector, but one feels that it is George Barton, the curate, more than either of these who engages the author's affections. But if it has no hero, the book has a most delightful heroine in Lady Ruth French, the rector's wife. All in all it is a piece of worth-while fiction, by an author who can write of country life understandingly, one who knows that it is not the idyllic existence fancy sometimes paints it.

"Touches of observation and character in the book are abundant, but Mr. Marshall's deliberate methods are apt to clog his narrative and, perhaps, to leave him insufficient room to develop his material."

+ — Ath 1914,1:sup869 Je 20 220w

"One is almost tempted to say that it is the finest story that Mr. Marshall has yet produced. Altogether, a strong, clean, wholesome book, full of a gentle inspiration." P. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:168 O '14 1100w

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 21 '14 1200w

Nation 99:608 N 19 '14 110w

N Y Times 19:388 S 20 '14 300w

Reviewed by W. D. Howells

+ No Am 200:908 D '14 500w

"The latest story strikes a deeper note than its predecessors, and, without any undue pressure of ethical purpose, has an invigorating quality."

+ Outlook 108:390 O '14 '14 1700w

+ Sat R 117:679 My 23 '14 400w

MARSHALL, ARCHIBALD. Honour of the Clintons. *$1.35 Dodd 13-16651

"This is another story of the Clintons whom readers of Mr. Marshall's books have come across in 'The Squire's daughter' and 'The eldest son.' . . . In this novel Mr. Clinton is confronted with the fact that his daughter-in-law is a thief who has sheltered herself behind another woman's theft. The daughter-in-law dies conveniently, and the other woman is intimidated into holding her tongue."—Ath

"Mr. Marshall has considerable powers of characterization, but he seems to be almost devoid of a sense of humour."

+ — Ath 1913,1:649 Je 14 110w

"His latest story has real life and character in it, and it possesses a sufficient plot to keep active the curiosity of the reader. And even if the plot were not so good, its portrayal of real Englishmen and Englishwomen is sufficient."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 19 '13 160w

N Y Sun p3 N 29 '13 100w

Reviewed by W. D. Howells

+ No Am 200:908 D '14 100w

+ Spec 111:64 J1 12 '13 260w

MARSHALL, HENRIETTA ELIZABETH. Boy kings and girl queens. il *$1.75 Stokes A14-2974

The author tells the stories of fifteen boys and girls who became kings and queens at an early age. The stories are drawn from the history of England, France, and Germany.

"Will make interesting reading for the older boys and girls, as well as a good reference book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:178 D '14

"Is typical of the author's felicitous style, but the subject is necessarily scrappy."

+ — Ath 1913,2:sup678 D 6 110w

"This is a very excellent collection of historical sketches, which should have great appeal to young folks."

+ Ind 80:415 D 14 '14 50w

"Seems to us a delightful way of learning history."

+ Nation 99:666 D 3 '14 20w

N Y Times 19:571 D 13 '14 40w

MARSHALL, HENRIETTA ELIZABETH. History of Germany. il *$2.50 Doran A14-2778

A previous work on the history of France, written for children, is followed in this volume with the story of Germany. "This history begins with the legendary lore of Germany, and ends by introducing the present Emperor, William II." (Outlook)

"Of value because of its timeliness and the scarcity of books on the German empire for children."

+ A L A Bkl 11:128 N '14

"Rich in legends and romance, the 'History of Germany' will delight child readers and give pleasure to any grown-up person who may be requisitioned to read it aloud."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup473 O 25 140w

+ Outlook 106:321 F 7 '14 200w

+ — Spec 111:sup951 D 6 '13 130w

MARSHALL, LEON CARROLL; WRIGHT, CHESTER WHITNEY; and FIELD, JAMES ALFRED, eds. Materials for the study of elementary economics. il *$2.75 (½c) Univ. of Chicago press 13-21344

A book designed for supplementary reading in college classes in economics. "The materials collected are intended to acquaint the student with economic principles as they are manifested in the tangible facts of economic life. . . . For the most part the selections are not so much authoritative formulations of economic laws as concrete case-material embodying such laws, or affording a background of information which the systematic treatises on economics can hardly give." (Preface) A partial list of the headings under which the selections are grouped follows: Wants and means of their satisfaction; Natural resources as economic factors; Human beings as economic factors; The organization of industry; Markets and trading; Value; Money and prices; Credit and banking; Tariff policy; Rent; Wages; Labor problems.

"Even the economist who is widely read and of long experience in teaching will find much that is helpful and even fascinating in these selections. The compilers have rendered a great service to the teaching of economics." H. E. Mills

+ Am Econ R 4:111 Mr '14 880w

Reviewed by A. B. Wolfe

+ Am J Soc 20:423 N '14 530w

"Valuable to all those desirous of acquainting themselves with the subject historically or the aspects of present-day economic problems."

+ A L A Bkl 10:230 F '14 (Review of $4.50 ed)

A L A Bkl 10:276 Mr '14

"Barring minor criticisms, the selections, as a whole, are very well chosen, and the book admirably serves the purpose for which it was designed." Eliot Jones

+ — Ann Am Acad 51:281 Ja '14 350w

"It is a storehouse of invaluable information, presenting many phases and those not necessarily in accord. The student of economic questions can here find at hand theories and statistics otherwise scattered through many volumes. It is excellent for supplementary reading. There is no index, but a full table of contents measurably takes the place of one."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 13 '13 300w

"This volume is so valuable, both in what it contains and in what it suggests, to all teachers and students of economics, that their sincere gratitude is due to this trio of indefatigable and discriminating editors, who, after years of practical classroom testing, revising, rejecting, and selecting anew, have in this volume so acceptably arranged this wealth of illustrative economic material approved by their combined experienced judgments. They have made a very real contribution toward a more scientific, inductive study of economics wherever their volume may go." W. E. Clark

+ J Pol Econ 22:277 Mr '14 750w

+ Pol Sci Q 29:567 S '14 230w

MARSHALL, LOGAN. Story of the Panama canal. il *$1 (1c) Winston 13-24670

This volume, well supplied with pictures and maps, tells the story of the building of the canal. Contents: The American isthmus under Spain; Canal exploration; The Panama railroad; The Isthmian country; Colon and Panama; The French Panama canal company; The new Panama canal company; The American enterprise; The health problem; The labor problem; Plan and operation of the canal; Military and political aspects; The results of opening the canal. Appendices give interesting information concerning the great canals of the world.

MARSHALL, LOGAN—Continued.

"This book is especially valuable in that it discusses collateral subjects which increases one's appreciation of the greatness of the canal."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ap 22 '14 320w

N Y Times 19:283 Je 21 '14 160w

MARTIN, ALFRED WILHELM. Dawn of Christianity. $1.25 (3c) Appleton 14-19029

The lectures contained in this book are a continuation of the series published under the title "The life of Jesus in the light of higher criticism." "The purpose of this sequel is to carry the story of the origin of Christianity on from the death of Jesus to the birth of the new religion, noting the precise part played in this process by the genius of Paul and the unique contribution made by the author of the fourth gospel." (Introd.) Contents: Where did the New Testament come from? The reliability of the record; From the crucifixion of Jesus to the conversion of Paul; The primitive community in Jerusalem; A crisis in the evolution of Christianity; The "Shepherd" of Hermas or Adaptation to religious environment; The fourth gospel and the synoptics; The primitive Christian message in terms of Greek philosophy.

MARTIN, ALFRED WILHELM. Life of Jesus in the light of the higher criticism. $1.50 (2½c) Appleton 13-21332

"Dr. Martin writes from the viewpoint of a member of the Society for ethical culture. He is not hampered by tradition nor by a sense of loyalty to some hard and fast creed, but is free to say what he really thinks. Naturally, therefore, he denies the virgin birth theory, and the physical resurrection. But while denying the historicity of these things he highly exalts the character of Jesus and speaks with reverence of his teachings." (Boston Transcript) Contents: The higher criticism; The birth of Jesus; The temptation of Jesus; Miracles and the ministry of healing; Prerequisites for knowing what Jesus taught; The crucifixion; The resurrection; Jesus and Paul as founders of Christianity.

Reviewed by S. J. Case

Am J Theol 18:611 O '14 90w

"Popular and readable."

+ A L A Bkl 10:230 F '14

"The critical processes are skillfully conducted, in a reverent spirit, and with careful regard to the susceptibilities of the gentle reader, but they are not constructive." G. Hodges

+ Atlan 113:685 My '14 270w

"Among the many modern lives of Jesus which are secondary in rank, this book takes a respectable place."

+ Bib World 43:350 My '14 620w

"To readers with an open mind and a spiritual outlook the book is healthful and stimulating; while to believers in the infallibility of everything as it appears in the Bible today it will seem the acme of infidelity."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 24 '13 400w

"The book is reverent and founded on scholarly sources, but the resulting picture of Jesus is not very inspiring."

+ Ind 76:267 N 6 '13 70w

N Y Times 18:591 N 2 '13 140w

MARTIN, EDWARD SANDFORD. Poems. $1.50 2 Scribner 14-16572

Poems by the editor of "Life." Many of them are reprinted from that periodical. Others are verses of occasion, read at class dinners, written to commemorate "Life's" birthdays, etc.

"In his newly published 'poems' that accomplished maker of light verse, Mr. Edward Sandford Martin, proves that the occasional poem may be more than a graceful trifle; that it may, indeed, present strong emotion."

+ Lit D 49:800 O 24 '14 300w

"Mr. Martin's 'Poems' may be welcomed by that fairly large class of worthy Americans who want fun, demand transparency and decency in the vehicle, and are indulgent to variations in quality." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 100:13 Ja 7 '15 140w

MARTIN, EDWARD SANDFORD. War week by week, as seen from New York. $1 (4c) Dutton 14-21111

A book made up of Mr. Martin's editorials from "Life." Some of them are: Caught in a trap; German intelligence; How to manage a continent; How we feel and why; The dream of domination; The case of the Kaiser; The pathos of the Germans; German "kultur" and the Prussian idea; Dr. Münsterberg's appeal; A little more armament for Uncle Sam!

Ind 80:477 D 21 '14 60w

"Mr. Martin makes some sprightly and interesting observations. The book has the merit of novelty and is unlike other works which have appeared on the conflict."

+ N Y Times 19:552 D 6 '14 450w

MARTIN, GEOFFREY. Industrial and manufacturing chemistry, organic. il $6 Appleton (Eng ed 13-5482)

"The editor's aim has been 'to cover the whole range of subjects,' based on organic chemistry, with which the industrial chemist and the manufacturer are usually concerned. In pursuance of this aim the book is arranged with the intention of meeting 'the requirements of all business and practical men interested in chemical processes'; and the list of these given includes 'manufacturers, consulting chemists, chemical engineers, patent workers, inventors, technical lawyers, students in technical institutions, lecturers on technology, fire insurance inspectors, and others.' . . . The text is divided into twenty-three sections, each dealing with one branch of chemical industry—e. g. the sugar industry, the cellulose industry, and so on. . . . The editor, with which the industrial chemist and the editor in the production of the book, and contribute authoritative articles on their special subjects."—Nature

"Probably the best book of its kind."

+ A L A Bkl 10:144 D '13

"The high standard of Dr. Martin's previous books is well maintained in the present volume. The work is certainly one of the most important which have appeared on the subject in recent years."

+ Ath 1912,2:694 D 7 380w

"The impression gained on reading through a number of the sections is that a very good outline of the subject is presented, but one that would often want filling up. Very few slips of importance have been noted." C. S.

+ Nature 91:419 Je 26 '13 800w

MARTIN, GEORGE MADDEN (MRS. ATTWOOD R. MARTIN). Selina; her hopeful efforts and her livelier failures. il $1.30 Appleton 14-18501

"Like Miss Glasgow's Virginia, Selina is a young girl of the '80's, brought up in all the traditions and inadequacies of a southern city. Unlike Virginia, however, she does not follow in the footsteps of her elders, but, without at all realizing that she adumbrates a new era, she begins to look around her and to question the infallibility of the standards set by her forbears. She stands in the faint dawn of the revolt of woman against false ideals of education and of work, but she is not at all aware that she is one of those who are blazing the way for a new order of things."—N Y Times

A L A Bkl 11:175 D '14

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 40:553 Ja '15 100w

Ind 81:139 Ja 25 '15 70w

"In describing Selina and her little friends, the writer has also indulged an intense, almost voluptuous, feeling for the charms of young girlhood which has been noticeable in her earlier work."

+ Nation 99:774 D 31 '14 330w

"Selina is as wholesome, as original, and as delightful a book as 'Emmy Lou'—and we can't say fairer than that."

+ N Y Times 19:517 N 22 '14 220w

"In curious English, full of such expressions as 'right now' and 'stop by,' the simple annals of home and town life are written, and a vivid, real impression of character is made upon our minds."

+ Outlook 108:788 D 2 '14 130w

"Told with the author's inimitable humor, it is bound to make older girls think." H. L. Reed
+ Springfield Republican p5 D 19 '14 120w

MARTIN, HELEN REIMENSnyder. Barnabetta. *$1.30 (1½c) Century 14-5311

In Barnabetta Mrs. Martin has created another winsome "Pennsylvania Dutch" heroine. Barnabetta at thirteen is taken out of school to become a household drudge, for had not her father been obliged to "hire and pay wages" for thirteen years! For four years the little girl slaved for the selfish father and the two loutish brothers, then came a wonderful transformation with the advent of a stepmother who insisted on hiring a washwoman, using the parlor on week-days, buying Barnabetta new clothes, and finally on sending her away to school where a whole new world opened out to her.

"Somewhat of a made over 'Tillie' and not nearly as good."

+ A L A Bkl 10:413 Je '14

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 400w

+ Lit D 48:1119 My 9 '14 220w

"The appeal of the story lies in its straightforwardness. The style possesses a certain natural spontaneity, an innocence that gradually wins over the reader and makes the adventures of Barnabetta seem pleasantly true."

+ Nation 98:468 Ap 23 '14 230w

"Well worth reading."

+ N Y Times 19:131 Mr 22 '14 450w

"While the story of a Pennsylvania 'Dutch' girl and her phenomenally rapid development, when once her wings were unfolded, may provoke incredulous smiles, yet the underlying thoughts in Mrs. Martin's 'Barnabetta' are of great significance and distinctly current."

+ Outlook 106:819 Ap 11 '14 130w

MARTIN, PERCY FALCKE. Maximilian in Mexico. il *$5.25 Scribner A14-813

The author writes of Maximilian's career with a sympathetic pen. He sees in him a martyr, the dupe of Napoleon III. "Taking into account the history of Mexico, the nature of the Mexicans, and the make-up of Maximilian, Mr. Martin sees that the scheme devised by Napoleon was hopeless from the first. 'As well,' he remarks, 'have set up a timid mouse to rule over a kingdom of Kilkenny cats, or appoint an innocent lamb to settle the greedy disputes of a colony of ravening wolves!'" (N Y Times)

"We admire the author's industry, but cannot praise his style, and much of the book is in the nature of padding."

+ Ath 1914.1:263 F 21 900w

Reviewed by A. M. Chase

— Bookm 39:551 Jl '14 300w

"The story as told in this book is exhaustive."

E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 28 '14 1550w

"On every page Mr. Martin betrays his prejudices against the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, the Empress Eugénie of France, Pope Pius IX, Cardinal Antonelli, and Archbishop Labastida y Davalos of Mexico."

+ Cath World 99:687 Ag '14 500w

"A timely and interesting book of an historical nature."

+ Nation 98:472 Ap 23 '14 550w

"It seems that Mr. Martin is a much more strenuous apologist for the Austrian than anybody else has been, and a much fiercer denunciator of the Frenchman. It also appears that it is not necessary to go outside of his own painstaking and exhaustive survey to find refutation of his contention."

+ N Y Times 19:32 Ja 25 '14 880w

"Mr. Martin writes engagingly, but certain caustic criticisms will hardly make his work wholly acceptable to Roman Catholic readers."

+ Outlook 106:773 Ap 4 '14 200w

"Mr. Martin, in spite of an undistinguished style, deserves credit for being an industrious collector of material."

+ Spec 112:133 Ja 24 '14 1500w

MARVIN, FRANCIS SYDNEY. Living past: a sketch of western progress. *$1.15 Oxford A14-181

"Mr. Marvin's sketch of world-history in a dozen brief chapters aims at illustrating the advance in knowledge, power, and social organization which man has made since the stone age. The most novel feature of it is the stress laid on scientific discovery."—Ath

"It is a thoughtful book, compact, well written, well proportioned. Its sketches, even of scientific progress, reveal the subtle touch of style. The narrative runs along with a sort of energized placidity which allures but never unduly excites the reader." J. T. Shotwell

+ Am Hist R 19:580 Ap '14 930w

"Admirably written, optimistic and suggestive, within its limitations."

+ A L A Bkl 10:276 Mr '14

"It is a suggestive little book, despite its omissions and lack of balance."

+ Ath 1913.2:132 Ag 9 200w

Boston Transcript p18 Ag 20 '13 550w

Nation 98:548 My 7 '14 150w

"Well written as this book is, it presents no new historic evidence, no original speculations. Perhaps for those who have not read extensively in original or documentary history the book may contain some valuable information."

+ N Y Times 18:630 N 16 '13 100w

MARYON, HERBERT. Metalwork and enameling: a practical treatise on gold and silver-smiths' work and their allied crafts. il *$3 Scribner (Eng ed 14-5013)

"The author, who is instructor in these crafts at University college, Reading, has planned his exposition in such a way that the worker in metals and enamels is made familiar with the technical processes which he must master if he is to become an efficient craftsman, and in this respect his treatise is differentiated from most other books on the subject, which discuss these technicalities as incidental to the elaboration of particular objects. . . . The materials and tools required for these processes also receive much attention, and there are many recipes, tables of gauges, and workshop hints which the worker will find valuable. Diagrams abound throughout, and in addition there are reproductions of select examples of finished work which belong more especially to the concluding portions of the book, where design is touched upon briefly."—Int Studio

"An admirable treatise on gold- and silver-smith's work and their allied crafts, from the practical and technical rather than the artistic or historical viewpoint."

+ A L A Bkl 10:358 My '14

"It is evidently written less for expert workers than for the amateur, and it contains in consequence much fuller information and many more hints on method than ordinary textbooks. The chapters on soldering are especially valuable."

+ Ath 1912.2:737 D 14 140w

+ Int Studio 49:173 Ap '13 230w

"This book is an important addition to this class of technical literature, and will be of value not only to the student but to those already engaged in gold- and silver-smiths' work." E. A. Smith

+ Nature 91:210 My 1 '13 550w

"This is called a practical treatise, and it appears to be so. The author writes clearly and in considerable detail."

+ Spec 110:sup130 Ja 25 '13 80w

MASAKO, NAOICHI, ed. Japan to America. *$1.25 (2c) Putnam

A volume made up of papers by political leaders and representative Japanese citizens on conditions in Japan and on the relations between Japan and the United States. This American edition is issued under the auspices of the Japan society of America. Lindsay Russell, president of this society, says in his brief introduction: "We cordially commend this volume to all persons who desire to secure a trustworthy knowledge and correct understanding of the people of Japan and of their aims and ideals. These essays make clear the conviction on the part of the foremost thinkers of Japan that the best and lasting interests of their country lie in the preservation of the historic friendship with the United States."

MASAOKA, NAOICHI, ed.—Continued.

"In 'Japan to America' a notable message of friendliness comes to the United States from the land of the Mikado."

+ N Y Times 19:561 D 13 '14 1250w

"It is the purpose of this book to make Americans more familiar with Japanese sentiment and with the Japanese people. Those who have had the opportunity of studying the situation are of opinion that America is better known in Japan than Japan is in America. Such a book as this has therefore its obvious and important uses."

+ Outlook 107:563 J1 4 '14 250w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Philip the king, and other poems. il $1.25 Macmillan 14-19310

A one-act drama with Philip of Spain, waiting for news of the Armada, as its central figure, together with four shorter poems make up the contents of this new volume of Masefield's work. Two of the four, 'The Wanderer' and 'The river are tales of ships. August, 1914, inspired by the outbreak of the war, and 'Watching by a sick bed' are the other two.

A L A Bkl 11:211 Ja '15

"Philip the king, not necessarily phenomenal, is, at any rate, sound poetry, rising now and again to a notable level."

+ Ath 1914, 2:449 O 31 180w

"On first reading Mr. Masefield's 'Philip the king,' it seemed a very slight performance, despite the fact that much of the fibrous quality of his imagination gives the play a firm and beautiful texture. But what a king he makes of Philip. The very finest thing in this play, in this book, among all martial lyrics since Drayton's 'Battle of Agincourt,' is the Messenger's hallad of the Armada's defeat." W: S. Braithwaite

+ — Boston Transcript p8 D 5 '14 330w

+ Lit D 49:1290 D 26 '14 140w

+ Nation 100:122 Ja 28 '15 1100w

"Swift, vigorous, moving drama." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 20:33 Ja 31 '15 330w

+ No Am 201:100 Ja '15 750w

"There is nothing in this book of verse to add to Mr. Masefield's reputation. The poem which has pride of length and place is in general effect a complete failure. There are, however, better things than 'King Philip' in this volume. Mr. Masefield seems to need another sea-voyage. His last poems have some sounding lines; but there is no true note of song. They do not rise above competent rhetoric."

+ — Sat R 118:446 O 24 '14 200w

"Mr. Masefield's 'Philip the king and other poems,' will greatly enhance his reputation as a poet. His danger, if we may venture to speak quite plainly, is that he may grow too fastidious, and in passionately trying to avoid the commonplace may force himself into exaggerations which quite as surely as that which is banal are the grave of poetry."

+ — Spec 113:593 O 31 '14 1500w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Tragedy of Pompey the Great. il $1.25 (5½c) Macmillan 14-3134

This is a reissue of a play first copyrighted in 1910. Mr. Masefield's Pompey is a tragic figure, a man forced into the civil war with Caesar against his will, desiring peace rather than bloodshed, and putting the greater good of Rome before personal achievement.

"The play has very realistic modern touches and rises to a considerable height at times as a reading drama."

+ A L A Bkl 10:359 My '14

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

+ — Bookm 40:203 O '14 350w

"To one who reads Mr. Masefield's great play with a close understanding of his meaning there cannot be too high a praise with which to applaud the achievement. Though classical in theme and characters it is free from those blemishes of pedantry which usually attend such efforts by modern dramatists, and the reason is that Mr. Masefield is frankly concerned with a vital purpose in character that is neither ancient nor modern, and strengthens his purpose by using the same direct and vibrant prose that he uses in his English pastoral tragedy of 'Nan.'" W: S. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 800w

+ — Ind 79:73 J1 13 '14 180w

"An experiment in temperance (even of comparatively early date) on the part of a man who has gained renown by audacities, is full of literary interest, but the present play suggests that when Mr. Masefield forsakes his violence, he is forsaken by his strength. He may hold new surprises for us in his inkpot, but at the present hour he ranks with poets and impressionists rather than with thinkers or creators."

+ — Nation 98:610 My 21 '14 480w

"On the whole, one cannot help approving in a measure Mr. Masefield's naturalistic handling of a classic theme; yet surely there is a note of grandeur in human affairs for which Rome has proverbially stood, and in the 'Tragedy of Pompey the Great' much of this effect is lost in sentiment."

+ — No Am 199:947 Je '14 700w

R of Rs 49:502 Ap '14 150w

"The most pertinent comment can be put in a very few words. It consists of regret that this revised edition was not more revised."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 800w

MASON, ALFRED BISHOP. Tom Strong, boy-captain. il $1.25 (2c) Holt 13-17998

This tale is a sequel to "Tom Strong, Washington's scout." It gives a picture of the country from the close of the revolutionary war to the beginning of Washington's administration. A flat boat journey down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers gives Tom an opportunity to see pioneer life.

A L A Bkl 10:163 D '13

Reviewed by W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 26 '13 40w

MASON, ALFRED EDWARD WOODLEY. Witness for the defence. il $1.30 (1½c) Scribner 14-1420

A novel made from the play of the same name. The story divides itself into three scenes. The first is staged on the Sussex downs where Henry Thresk meets Stella Derrick, loves her, but goes away without telling his love because he has still a name to make for himself. The second shows the meeting between the two eight years later, when Stella after a life of misery with Stephen Ballantyne, whom she has married, is tried for his murder. She is acquitted and, for the final scene of the drama, returns to England to live in retirement in a quiet village. Here she wins the love of a straightforward manly young officer, and is on the eve of marriage when Henry Thresk reappears to demand, believing her guilty, that she tell the truth to the man she is to marry.

+ A L A Bkl 10:326 Ap '14 +

"The weakest spot in this volume by Mr. Mason is unquestionably his failure to make us sufficiently acquainted with the personalities of his characters." F: T. Cooper

— Bookm 39:79 Mr '14 880w

"The story is filled with numerous grotesqueries in which human emotions are exaggerated and even falsified. It bears every evidence of purporting to be a story of real life, but it is simply spun into a fantastic web out of the novelist's own fairylike imaginings." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p22 Ja 14 '14 900w

"The story is interesting, as a matter of course, and holds us in suspense until the end is neared, but it leaves an after taste that is not quite pleasant." W: M. Payne

+ — Dial 56:248 Mr 16 '14 500w

"A rather ordinary lady-in-distress novel."

— Ind 78:54 Ap 8 '14 40w

Nation 98:159 F 12 '14 430w

"When it has been admitted that the tale drags a bit at times and that its premises are not entirely convincing, there is much to be said in its favor. The style is clear, often vivid; there are many tense moments, and the last interview between Stella and Thresk is altogether admirable."

+ — N Y Times 19:18 Ja 18 '14 600w

"The novel is an absorbing piece of storytelling."

+ Outlook 106:504 F 28 '14 100w

"The story grips from the first page, and even the most jaded and sophisticated reader will find himself held. A melodrama of a high order."

+ Sat R 116:689 N 29 '13 400w

"The plot of the story is good, and Mr. Mason as ever exercises with great success his admirable gift of carrying his readers along with him."

+ — Spec 112:28 Ja 3 '14 270w

MASON, EDITH HUNTINGTON. Great plan. il *$1.25 (2c) McClurg 13-25053

A farcical tale of a young American girl's efforts to emancipate the German housefrau from the thralldom of kinder, kirche, and küche. Emma Daingerfeld, an ardent suffragist and the possessor of much money, buys Niedenfels, a castle on the Rhine, and organizes the Niedenfels Suffrage emigration society and the Berlin Boycott league. Both societies, especially the league, become immensely popular and the great plan promises to be a success, until two young American men and the German Kaiser take a hand in determining its fortunes.

"Throughout the novel, runs a thread of satire, relative to the modern feminist movement, as shrewd as it is friendly."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 19 '13 420w

+ Nation 98:83 Ja 22 '14 300w

"The story is intended for lively burlesque and is told in the right tone to the end."

+ N Y Sun p5 D 6 '13 100w

MASSON, DAVID. Shakespeare personally; ed. and arr. by Rosaline Masson. *$2 Dutton (Eng ed 14-30724)

"During a period of thirty years, from 1865 to 1895, Professor Masson taught and lectured at Edinburgh, and these lectures were continually under revision and addition, until in their form as now published they may fairly be said to represent his final judgment upon numerous literary problems. . . . Professor Masson invariably seeks the human aspect of the man and his work, and he says much that is new and shrewd in his commentary upon the plays and the poems. His chapters are successively entitled: On biography in general, and Shakespeare's in particular; Shakespeare from the external evidences, Chronology of the plays, Shakespeare through his writings, The progress in Shakespeare's moods: 'Recurrences and fervours,' and 'The sonnets.'—Boston Transcript

"A work of mature wisdom and scholarship."

+ A L A Bkl 11:69 O '14

"The best part of these lectures, to our mind, is the development of the theme that certain ideas are so frequently or so vividly insisted on in the plays that they must be regarded as an essential part of Shakespeare's philosophy. We are glad to see an index, which adds materially to the usefulness of the book. The notes are scanty, and might have given more hints of recent additions to Shakespearian knowledge."

+ — Ath 1914:1:614 My 2 900w

"The six chapters are really worth while even in the midst of much over-writing about Shakespeare." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p3 Je 13 '14 1000w

"A most interesting and valuable study."

+ Sat R 117:728 Je 6 '14 16w

MATHESON, ANNIE. Florence Nightingale. il *$1.25 (2c) Sully & Kleinteich

A biography of Florence Nightingale, based upon other works and on her own letters, arranged for young people. Besides following the events of her life, the author lays emphasis on her constructive work, saying that in addition to the work for which she is most widely known, she did three things: She broke down a "Chinese wall" of prejudice with regard to the occupations of women; she helped to reconstruct, on the lines of feminine common sense, the hygiene and the transport service of the English army; and she initiated the sanitary reform in India.

"The book, though obviously a labour of love, suffers in the matter of arrangement and compression."

+ — Ath 1913:2:sup678 D 6 80w

"On the whole this biography is well and graphically written. It includes just the right proportions of anecdote, personal letters and what may be called 'dry reading.' In fact, it is a vast improvement on the old-fashioned series of biographies of famous people, written 'down' to the younger generation."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 20 '15 220w

MATHEWS, FREDERIC. Taxation and the distribution of wealth. *$2.50 (2c) Doubleday 14-2369

In this work the author presents a series of "studies in the economic, ethical, and practical relations of fiscal systems to social organization." Part 1 is a study of Protection, discussed under two headings, The old protection, and The new protection. Part 2 takes up Taxation, with the sub-divisions, Indirect taxation and Direct taxation. Part 3, The natural tax, is a discussion of land values. Part 4, Progress, has four subheads: Progress and politics; Intellectual progress; Religion; Philosophy. Part 5, Politics, deals with the relation of the subjects previously discussed to present systems of government, taking up in turn, Political theory; Political practice and Practical politics.

"Not more than one half of the book deals, except in the most remote and indirect way, with what is generally understood as the subject of taxation in its relation to the important problem of wealth distribution. A large amount of space is given to philosophy and religion. It is to be regretted that Mr. Mathews did not review the single tax literature of the present day." J: E. Brindley

+ — Am Econ R 4:931 D '14 800w

Am Pol Sci R 8:293 My '14 90w

"The first three hundred pages are somewhat interesting. The latter part of the book is, to put it mildly, a misfit." E. M. Patterson

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:339 Jl '14 350w

"It touches upon political theory, upon the history of thought and opinion, and upon topics of contemporary political discussion. The treatment of these topics is not particularly well ordered and is often diffuse. We find, however, much keen thinking and helpful criticism in the pages of a book which ought not to be overlooked by students of social organization."

+ — Educ R 47:528 My '14 130w

"The book can hardly be recommended to serious students of public finance."

+ — J Pol Econ 22:507 My '14 300w

"Unhappily a little delving below the surface shows that all this array of learning has but one aim and end: the single tax. The propaganda of the single-taxers takes Protean forms, and ranges from the one-page leaflet to the ponderous pseudo-scientific treatise. This volume belongs to the latter class. Testing Mr. Mathews's reasoning and evidence here and there, we find him using glibly the most untrustworthy material and setting summarily the most intricate problems."

MATHEWS, FREDERIC—Continued.

— Nation 48:306 Mr 19 '14 370w

"Mr. Mathews is evidently a scholar but not a logician." T. H. Price

+ — Outlook 106:558 Mr 7 '14 350w

"It may be said that the work throughout bears a direct relation to human problems and to those efforts towards their solution that have commanded the attention of large numbers of men and women throughout the world."

+ R of Rs 49:379 Mr '14 130w

MATHEWSON, CHRISTOPHER. Pitcher Pollock. il $1.25 (1½c) Dodd 14-6794

A story for boys. Tom Pollock who comes in from the country to enter Amesville high-school finds an opening in a hardware store where he earns enough to pay for his board. He is forced to work his way thru school because a tight-fisted uncle who is perfectly able to help him refuses to do so, but he wins the respect of his employer, makes friends with Sidney Morris, does well in his studies and gets the better of Uncle Israel in a dicker over a pump. All this is very interesting, but boys will wonder when the game is going to begin. It begins with chapter eight, and after that as much attention is given to base-ball as any boy's heart could desire. It is a good story.

+ A L A Bkl 11:128 N '14

MATTHAY, TOBIAS AUGUSTUS. Musical interpretation: its laws and principles, and their application in teaching and performing. il $1.50 Boston music co. 14-925

The author, who is a teacher at the Royal academy of music, London, here presents in book form the principles which he has been enunciating in his lectures for many years. He says that, "while the work deals with the subject mainly from the pianist's point of view, nevertheless most of the principles here formulated apply with equal force to all other forms of musical performance."

"While dealing mainly with piano playing the principles apply equally well to any instrumental playing. Based on lectures, which have not been well worked over."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:65 O '14

"The author is well known as a pianoforte teacher, and this book shows that he has given much thought and time to the subject. But although he deals with it specially from the pianist's point of view, his principles apply with equal force to all other forms of musical interpretation."

+ — Ath 1914,1:698 My 16 670w

"For serious students of the pianoforte there is probably no more helpful book. There is one chapter in this book which cannot be as cordially endorsed as the others, although the author evidently is particularly proud of it. It is concerned with The element of rubato." H: T. Finck

+ — Nation 98:478 Ap 23 '14 600w

MATTHEWS, BRANDER. On acting. *75c (6c) 12 Scribner 14-16444

Professor Matthews writes of acting as an art, comparing it with the other arts, painting, poetry and sculpture. He talks of the actor's rewards and shows the obverse side of Jefferson's statement that the actor must get his reward in the applause of the public—or never, saying that as an actor can live only in memory, so is his fame secure. The poet's work and the painter's may be discredited and cast aside by a coming generation, but the great names of the stage will live. He analyzes the art of some of the famous actors of the past and present and discusses the developments in the technique of acting brought about by the change from the "platform-stage" to the "picture-frame" stage.

+ Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 10w

+ R of Rs 51:246 F '15 120w

"To write entertainingly and suggestively, without exhausting the psychology of his subject, has evidently been the aim of Prof. Brander Matthews' book, and it may be said at once that he has attained his aim. It is difficult to see just what class of playgoers will not find pleasure in this unpretentious little book."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 12 '14 1000w

MATTHEWS, NATHAN, jr. Municipal charters; a discussion of the essentials of a city charter, with forms or models for adoption. il $2 (3c) Harvard univ. press 15-394

A book based upon a course given in the department of government at Harvard university. The preface says: "The attention of the reader is particularly directed to the fact that the author's object has been to prepare a practical handbook of municipal legislation with special emphasis on administrative provisions, and that he regards the political mechanism of the city government as of relatively minor consequence." Part 1 of the book takes up The essentials of an American city charter; part 2, Charter drafts; part 3, Notes to the charter drafts.

"While James is for general students of the question, this is valuable for those actually engaged in charter-making."

+ A L A Bkl 11:290 Ja '15

"A work of great value to that increasing number of city officials and public spirited citizens who are addressing themselves to the task of charter making and revision."

+ Engin Rec 71:56 Ja 9 '15 280w

+ Nation 99:750 D 24 '14 60w

"Dr. Matthews' work is a mixture of strict New England political theory and sound administrative suggestion." H. R. Sands.

+ Survey 33:466 Ja 30 '15 430w

MAVOR, JAMES. Economic history of Russia. il 2v $10 Dutton 14-13194

"Professor Mavor has done a great service in giving English readers the result of his researches in Russian economic history—though the economic history of Russia has still to be written. . . . The title of the work is suggestive rather than exactly descriptive. The present work may be said to form a valuable supplement to Kluchevsky's brilliant course of Russian history, an English translation of which has lately been published, and should do much to dispel the hazy ideas in this and in other countries of the true facts of Russian history. The first volume of Professor Mavor's work is devoted to the rise and fall of bondage right, the second to industry and revolution."—Sat R

"A monumental work, scholarly and sound in its general theses, though often inaccurate in detail, and broader than its title implies. Supplements admirably Kluchevskii's political history"

+ — A L A Bkl 11:113 N '14

"We notice a few errors of dating. These, however, are trifles in a work which bears the obvious marks of painstaking research. We trust that its bulk will not deter those interested in Russian problems from reading it."

+ — Ath 1914,1:818 Je 13 800w

"It is a pity that so important and even portentous a work, one so valuable and unusual, should not be marked by greater accuracy and a more logical arrangement. In details, at least, it will have to be read with the greatest caution, even though its general thesis may be accepted and its lessons digested." N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 930w

+ Dial 57:344 N 1 '14 400w

"Rarely has there been written in the English tongue a complete history of Russian economic and political progress so dispassionate, so scholarly, so just." R. L. Wright

+ N Y Times 19:353 Ag 23 '14 1500w

"Professor Mavor's truly monumental work supplies English-speaking readers with an orderly and analytical view of the development of the Russian people from the earliest times down to the present."

+ No Am 200:474 S '14 1900w

"It is likely to stand for many years as the best economic and political history of the Russian empire that is accessible to English readers."

+ Outlook 108:102 S 9 '14 1750w

"Professor Mavor's book is not meant to while away an idle hour. It is monumental in scope and conception, and will richly repay the diligent student."

+ Sat R 118:178 Ag 8 '14 1250w

MAXWELL, DONALD. Adventures with a sketch book. il *$3 Lane

"In his latest book of adventures Mr. Maxwell tells of many experiences both by land and water. He turns over the leaves of his sketch-books, and gaily invites us to accompany him in his vagabond wanderings. . . . Of his adventures we like best those of 'The unseen sunrise,' the Canterbury pilgrimage, and the voyage by barge from Belgium to Germany. The last named, of course, claims one's sympathy at the present time, for it leads us through fair Lorraine, past Sedan and Toul and Verdun and Dinant. . . . There are over two hundred sketches in line and colour in the book, to say nothing of numerous plates in colour and monochrome. Mr. Maxwell has dipped into his portfolios with a liberal hand."—Ath

"Mr. Maxwell is original by nature; therefore we enjoy reading him."

+ Ath 1914,2:495 N 14 600w

"With the exception of this unintentional vagueness regarding towns and countries, Mr. Maxwell has written a most effective book."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 380w

"The book has considerable charm; not only are Mr. Maxwell's sketch-reminders of a dozen pleasant tours in half-a-dozen European countries attractive in themselves, but he accompanies them with a pleasant burbling of words which, if they do not attain literary distinction, are at least intimate and appropriate."

+ Nation 100:26 Ja 7 '15 200w

"Mr. Maxwell's beautiful book is a pleasure to read and to look at; it brings up interesting memories of places seen, and inspires stimulating thoughts of places one day to be visited; it is well seen, well written, and well published, and all this excellence was no accident."

+ N Y Times 19:526 N 29 '14 250w

MAXWELL, WILLIAM BABINGTON. Devil's garden. *$1.35 (1c) Bobbs 13-24321

William Dale, happily married to a wife whom he respects and adores, learns suddenly that she is not the woman he has thought her, that in her young girlhood she had been the object of an old man's guilty passion and that once since her marriage, in order to gain advancement for her husband, she had yielded herself again to the conscienceless libertine. In brutal rage Dale kills the man, Everard Baradine, a country gentleman of untarnished repute. Circumstances aid him in covering up the crime; a reconciliation with his wife is the beginning of a long and placid period of life. But in his own middle age he suffers a peculiar punishment. He falls under the witching spell of a young girl who has been a member of his household, and experiences all the promptings of guilty desire that must once have possessed the other man. Fighting against his passion, he is haunted by the face of his victim and seems always to hear his mocking voice. A sudden death that seems to be the meting out of poetic justice ends his conflict with self.

"Is merely a plodding, conscientious bit of work. Its psychology is well thought out, its constructive framework clever, but the persons fail to hold attention."

+ Ath 1913,2:228 S 6 100w

"Mr. Maxwell has taken certain liberties with his scheme of construction that do not wholly justify themselves, and the reader has a right to feel unfairly treated—and yet, by this means the author achieves effects which could have been gained in no other way." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 38:667 F '14 1300w

"In spite of all, 'The devil's garden' is a significant novel. Its faults will be buried by the reader beneath its many excellencies." E. F. E

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 1350w

Nation 98:60 Ja 15 '14 280w

"Frank it is in spots, unswervingly realistic throughout, but there never can be a question that the writer is working toward the fulfillment of a big and sincere purpose. There is no trace of pandering to indecency or immorality. If 'The devil's garden' is immoral Heaven help the average novel!"

+ N Y Times 19:17 Ja 18 '14 980w

"Where Mr. Maxwell misses greatness is in his lack of anything that can rightly be defined as inspiration. His books are, if anything, too well thought out, too intricate in detail, too studied. They somehow lack spontaneity, humanity and breadth of conception."

+ Sat R 116:305 S 6 '13 1150w

MAXWELL, WILLIAM MOREY. Salesmanship. 10 *$1 (2½c) Houghton 14-15794

A series of friendly and informal talks on the art of selling goods, reprinted, with some revisions, from Collier's Weekly. Contents: Rule-of-thumb science; Over-the-counter sales; "Anything else to-day?" Just looking; Buying; Getting your money; Credit-making; The management of traveling men.

"The human element enters largely into Mr. Maxwell's book on 'Salesmanship,' as it does into the thing he describes. Others have written of it, but few so entertainingly and with so clear an understanding of the best way to present their case. Mr. Maxwell has in fact written a book that will interest those who at first thought are not interested in salesmanship."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 7 '14 160w

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 90w

"The humor may be overdrawn and the treatment of the subject somewhat flippant, but there is no doubting the meaning, and the underlying principles are sound."

+ Nation 100:29 Ja 7 '15 480w

+ N Y Times 19:441 O 11 '14 50w

MAYNE, ETHEL COLBURN. Browning's heroines. il *$2 Pott (Eng ed A14-1032)

"The author's theme is Browning's woman—how Browning has thought and written of her as simple girl, as great lady, as radiant and victorious, as humble in eclipse, as happy in love and as unhappy, as lover and as wife. How many breathing creatures do these hold categories call up—Pippa and Pompilia, Balaustion, the last Duchess, the wife of James Lee—the list goes interminably forward, till we must think of Meredith or Thomas Hardy, or of Shakespeare himself, before we can by a single name start so many spirits into life."—Sat R

"It is greatly to Miss Mayne's credit that in her treatment of a subject on which so much has already been written she is nearly always interesting. Her enthusiasm for her subject has not impaired her critical faculty."

+ Ath 1913,2:616 N 29 930w

"An innocuous volume, tastefully printed and attractively bound, and the author has laboured with the zeal of a votary to retell, with generous quotations, the stories of the poet's many heroines. But, after all, one asks, what does it profit us, and what has the well-intentioned commentator given us that we could not have gotten more directly from the poet himself?" Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:566 Ja '15 130w

"This is the most excellent book of commentary upon Browning we have seen since Mr. G. K. Chesterton wrote upon this poet the best book of his life. The author of this book is a feminist, and she does not hesitate to claim that Browning, also, was a feminist. If we have a fault to find with this book, it is just this introduction of a foolish label, equally unjust to the author herself and to her subject."

MAYNE, ETHEL COLBURN—Continued.

+ — Sat R 116:685 N 29 '13 950w

MAYREDER, FRAU ROSA (OBERMAYER).

<sup>1</sup> Survey of the woman problem, from the German by Herman Scheffauer. *$1.50 Doran E13-1829

"Frau Mayreder's point of view is extremely individualistic. She brings her strongest arguments to bear against the force of custom which hinders the development of independence and personality in women. The effect of these forces she aptly describes as 'the tyranny of the norm.' On the positive side, she contends for the freedom of the feminine individuality to express and realize itself in a world of fact rather than in a fancied world of outworn ideals. On the whole, however, her method is analytical rather than argumentative. As she says in the preface, 'It is the recognition of ideas, not their propagation, for which I have striven.'"—Survey

+ A L A Bkl 10:145 D '13

"The book repays a careful reading, and is full of new suggestions for anyone seriously interested in the subject."

+ Ann Am Acad 55:282 S '14 200w

"Frau Mayreder remains lucid for pages at a time and even her encumbered passages are often worth stripping to the thought within, for it is a book of wide views, the product of a singularly honest intellect. It is too bad that a good many persons, stunned by her language, will be unable to find this out." F. M. Colby

+ — No Am 198:874 D '13 3050w

"A carefully developed philosophy of feminism." Katharine Anthony

+ Survey 30:645 Ag 23 '13 350w

"Its sanity and impartiality will commend it to all interested in the 'Woman problem,' but because of its frankness its purchase is not advised in small, conservative communities."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 10:86 Ap '14 50w

MEAD, EDWARD SHERWOOD. Careful invest-
<sup>2</sup> vestor. *$1.50 Lippincott 14-3587

"The average investor will get a good deal of sound advice from reading Prof. Edward Sherwood Mead's 'The careful investor.' The author differentiates between the various classes of investments, and describes the advantages of municipal bonds, farm mortgages, securities of public service corporations, and industrial bonds and stocks. The opening chapter is one of the best, since it describes the stages of speculation on margins and shows the losses which are certain to accrue from buying on 'tips' and taking a gambler's chance."—Nation

Boston Transcript p22 Ja 20 '15 270w

"It is not a book for the student or specialist. Rather, it is adapted to give the uninitiated a slight though helpful acquaintance with sane rules for the purchase of securities."

+ J Pol Econ 22:603 Je '14 170w

"The book contains a great deal of interesting information which is made accessible through the medium of an excellent index."

+ Nation 100:27 Ja 7 '15 300w

"The information and advice he gives will be useful to those desirous of buying sound and profitable securities."

+ N Y Times 19:222 My 3 '14 60w

MEAD, WILLIAM EDWARD. Grand tour in the
<sup>2</sup> eighteenth century. Il *$4 (3c) Houghton 14-22580

The author takes for his subject the "grand tour" of foreign countries for the sake of education, an English institution growing out of the revival of learning and continuing up to the nineteenth century. He confines himself largely to the latter half of the eighteenth century, and tries to reproduce conditions of travel at that time, describes places as they then appeared, and tells generally what the tourist saw. There are chapters on: Water travel; Roads; Carriages; Inns; The tourist and the tutor; The cost of travel, and on the different countries visited. There are interesting illustrations from old prints, notes, a bibliography and an index.

"A delightful book of 'fireside travels,' 'The grand tour' also has considerable historical interest."

+ Outlook 109:295 F 3 '15 80w

MEADER, JOHN RICHARD. Your pay enve-
<sup>2</sup> lope. *$1 (2½c) Devin-Adair 14-18068

In the form of letters to a working man the author examines the leading tenets of socialism from an anti-socialistic point of view. He admits in the beginning that most of the charges that the socialists bring against the present industrial system are true, but asserts that socialism is not the remedy. His own remedy outlined in his last chapter follows the lines of stronger labor organization, legislation, and education.

"While exposing minor Marxian fallacies, it is not itself entirely free from sophistry and argumentative pettiness. Its homely examples and lack of rancor, however, give a certain value to its consideration of socialism's more simple problems."

+ — Ind 81:102 Ja 18 '15 50w

MECKLIN, JOHN MOFFATT. Democracy and
<sup>2</sup> race friction. *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 14-7094

A study in social ethics which disclaims any pretensions towards a final solution of the race problem but which aims to indicate what the problem really involves. It is a study based upon social psychology which first analyzes the social process by which the individual "lives himself into the life of the group and at the same time attains mental and moral maturity," and, second, examines race traits with special reference to the negro to determine how far they "influence the process of becoming social and solid with one's fellows." The results are used to explain the negro's imperfect assimilation of the civilization of the white and to show why the color line must persist.

"This book will satisfy neither the believer in democracy nor the teacher of ethics. It presents neither democracy nor ethics as universals, but reduces them both to mere expedients of opportunism." C. H. Levermore

— Am Econ R 4:936 D '14 830w

"One of the most thoughtful and well-balanced discussions of the race question which have recently appeared."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:671 N '14 130w

"The volume is well written, in excellent spirit and is optimistic in tone."

+ Ann Am Acad 55:282 S '14 200w

J Pol Econ 23:97 Ja '15 500w

"Upon certain points he is illuminating, as that of the position of the educated mulatto, but the book, despite its scholarship, has an effect of superficiality."

— + Nation 99:412 O 1 '14 230w

"Repeatedly Professor Mecklin shrinks from the logic of his own conclusions; repeatedly his humanity interferes with his argument." O. G. Villard

— Nation 99:739 D 24 '14 900w

"Dr. Mecklin's book is logically firm and not lacking in sympathetic insight. It will repay reading."

+ No Am 200:299 Ag '14 650w

"If the reader does not agree with the views of the book, yet he will recognise its high value. Its discussion of the subject in the light of our present-day knowledge of sociology renders it an important contribution to the field it covers." Franklin Johnson, jr.

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:528 S '14 1150w

R of Rs 49:756 Je '14 150w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 9 '14 420w

MEDICAL research and education. (Science and <sup>10</sup> education, v. 2) *$3 Science press 14-356

"This volume comprises discussions on such topics as 'The experimental method: its influence on the teaching of medicine,' 'The interdependence of medicine and other sciences of nature,' 'The relation of the hospital to medical education and research,' 'The medical school as part of the university,' 'Liberty in medical education,' etc. The treatment of these various topics is in the form of lectures and addresses delivered from time to time by some of the distinguished leaders in American medical education and research.—R of Rs

"It brings together under a single cover a material which will prove of much interest to the general reader of thoughtful books, who desires to know the basis of present day medical practice. The medical man of several years' practice will find here much information that will supplement his own educational experience in training for his profession."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 31 '13 420w

"The book's elevated tone, its wise analyses of existing situations, its courageous presentation of what seems to its authors best, its constant insistence upon research, and its confident predictions of the course of future events all mark it as a notable contribution to medical education." F: S. Lee

+ Educ R 48:308 O '14 1350w

"The observer of tendencies in society and in education and the student interested in the advancement of science, no less than the practising physician, will find in this book valuable suggestions and inspiration."

+ Ind 79:348 S 7 '14 100w

R of Rs 49:248 F '14 190w

MEDWIN, THOMAS. Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley; new ed il *$5 Oxford 14-6010

Medwin's life of Shelley appeared in 1847. "At the time of his death in 1869 he had been meditating a second edition of his 'Life of Shelley,' and had made revisions and annotations in the margins of his printed copy of the book. This copy having passed into Mr. Buxton Forman's hands, he now gives us the long-delayed edition, introducing Medwin's corrections and second thoughts into the text, calling attention in numerous severe foot-notes to his trivial misrepresentations and inaccuracies, and prefacing the whole with a candid, if unimpressive estimate of the character of Medwin and the value of his work." (Ath)

"It is our impression, if we can convey it without ingratitude for a piece of work so conscientiously done, that the sum of Medwin's corrections of himself and Mr. Forman's corrections of Medwin are hardly such as to affect appreciably our perception of the figure either of the poet or of his biographer. The new edition supplants the old for special students. For the general reader Medwin's carelessnesses are relatively unimportant; the dreary clumsiness of his writing suffices to disqualify his book."

+ — Ath 1913.2:452 O 25 350w

"Students of Shelley will be especially grateful for the four appendices."

+ — Dial 56:147 F 16 '14 400w

+ — Nation 98:63 Ja 15 '14 350w

Spec 111:662 O 25 '13 100w

MEEHAN, WILLIAM EDWARD. Fish culture in ponds and other inland waters. il *$1 (1½c) Sturgis & Walton 13-25096

This book, published as one of the volumes in the "Farmer's practical library," gives full directions for the pond culture of black bass, cat fish, carp, trout, Atlantic salmon, pickerel, perch, and other fish. The volume is well illustrated.

A L A Bkl 10:359 My '14

+ Ind 77:279 F 23 '14 100w

Nation 98:551 My 7 '14 260w

+ N Y Times 19:80 F 15 '14 50w

MEGRUE, ROY COOPER. Under cover; novelized by Wyndham Martyn. il *$1.25 (1½c) Little 14-14915

The publishers send out with review copies of this book a printed slip which begs the reviewer to refrain from disclosing the plot and asks him especially to leave readers unenlightened as to the identities in the story. "a revelation of which would spoil a most enjoyable evening for many thousands." This is enough to show that it is a mystery story of the first order, based upon the play of the same name. The plot of both play and story is built around a clever smuggling scheme. The author of the story "follows closely the lines of the play and the familiar conversations flow along with the smoothness that has made it so popular. A few people and incidents are introduced to extend the story to proper book length, but no unnecessary descriptive or connecting matter is used for padding." (Boston Transcript)

"The fascination of the moving figures fails in some degree in the printed page, and yet the story has a remarkable plot, a well-sustained mystery and some very charming and very shrewd people."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 7 '14 200w

N Y Times 19:371 S 6 '14 80w

MELDOLA, RAPHAEL. Chemistry. (Home<sup>2</sup> univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 14-17865

A book designed for the general reader who recognizes the importance of scientific knowledge as a cultural influence, but who finds difficulty in keeping pace with the advances of scientific discovery. The author attempts to acquaint him with the existing state of knowledge in chemistry, recognizing at the same time that science never pauses in her onward march, that there is no "existing state." The author points out in his introduction the interrelation of all sciences and in the case of chemistry shows its encroachment on the field of biology.

"By explanation and illustration makes clear the main facts of the science as they are now held."

+ Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 30w

MELLOR, C. Airman. il *$1 Lane

"This little volume is a simple and direct account of its author's experiences while qualifying for a brevet in France. He elected to undergo his training as an airman in that country because the prestige of the French certificate is higher than that of England. In the meantime Captain Mellor's diary may be commended to those who have flying aspirations, for it relates in non-technical language the various stages in the instruction of an air pilot."—Boston Transcript

"The author writes with enthusiasm, and supplies many hints which should prove useful to beginners."

+ Ath 1913.2:133 Ag 9 70w

Reviewed by H: C. Shelley

Boston Transcript p7 Ag 16 '13 300w

"Should prove of more than usual interest to those who follow the progress of aeronautics."

+ Nation 97:596 D 18 '13 570w

N Y Times 18:720 D 7 '13 90w

MENCKEN, HENRY LOUIS, and others. Europe after 8:15. il *$1.25 (3¼c) Lane 14-10229

Night life in Vienna, Munich, Berlin, London and Paris is depicted here in all its Bohemian abandon and fascination. The reader is invited to look upon the world of 'amours and intrigues and subdued lights and dances and calzaretts and all-night orchestras and liquid jousting bouts and perfume and champagne and rouge and kohl.' Each of the five cities has its unique hidden corners and to each of them the frequenter is shown to react differently. The short, terse sentences of the writer are like the deft strokes of the chalk-talker who produces living, breathing, acting creatures and then adds atmosphere—the whole achieved in a moment.

N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 50w

MERCER, SAMUEL ALFRED BROWNE, ed. and tr. Extra-Biblical sources for Hebrew and Jewish history. il *$1.50 Longmans
13-23749

"Dr. Mercer has . . . supplied students of Hebrew and Jewish history down to the final catastrophe in the reign of the Emperor Hadrian with a highly important section of the 'apparatus criticus' that is required for a thorough handling of the subject." (Ath) "This book possesses one advantage over all other collections of a similar sort, in that it presents the more important inscriptions and documents from every field that bear upon the Bible. It thus includes Egyptian, Babylonian, Assyrian, Moabite, Aramaic, Greek and Latin sources." (Bib World)

"The work should prove a very useful handbook to the student of Hebrew and Jewish history."
+ Am J Theol 18:320 Ap '14 120w

"The young investigator is likely to find in Dr. Mercer's volume all—or nearly all—the data which he specially desires to have before him in a clear and convenient form. By way of criticism we would remark that it would have been better if Dr. Mercer had in all cases either confined himself strictly to an account of the data, or had, whenever offering his own opinion regarding them, also given alternate views held by other scholars."

+ — Ath 1914.1:388 Mr 7 650w

"Notwithstanding many shortcomings, Dr. Mercer's book, because of the wide range of its materials and their being here so ready of access, and because of the large number of chronological and dynastic tables which it includes, will be found a very convenient work for ready reference on the part of the student of history. It is so useful a book that we can but wish it were a better one."

+ — Bib World 43:139 F '14 530w

MERINGTON, MARGUERITE. Festival plays.
il *$1.25 Duffield 13-25313

A half dozen one-act plays for children, adapted to special occasions. The plays are: Father Time and his children (New Year's day); Tertulla's garden (Valentine's day); The seven sleepers of Ephesos (Easter); Princess Moss Rose (For every child's birthday); The testing of Sir Gawayne (Hallowe'en); A Christmas party (Christmas). A publisher's note says that a fee is charged for the stage use of any of the plays.

"Perhaps not needed for general circulation but will prove interesting and useful where play material for the older children is in great demand."

+ A L A Bkl 10:290 Mr '14

"They are of special interest to the young, and several of them, like 'Father Time' and 'Princess Moss-Rose,' are very cleverly constructed and phrased."

+ Ind 77:106 Ja 19 '14 70w

"The diction is exceedingly poetic."

+ R of Rs 49:247 F '14 90w

MERIWETHER, COLYER. Raphael Semmes. il
*$.125 (1½c) Jacobs 13-25649

An "American crisis" biography which sketches the life of a Confederate naval hero—the Paul Jones of the civil war. "The chief place, in any biography of Semmes, must, of course, be given to his career as commander of the Sumter and Alabama, and the account of these episodes is both readable and meritorious. For the rest, there is a good narrative of Semmes's service in the Mexican war, an elaborate summary, with becoming refutation, of his views on the constitutionality of secession, and a careful sketch of his life from 1865 until his death, in 1877." (Nation)

"It contains little that is new, its only merit being that it is a faithful, not unduly partisan account, which quotes Semmes freely and has a fair bibliography."

+ A L A Bkl 11:74 O '14

"The book is interesting as showing the advantage that the steam war-vessel had over the sailing ships that immediately preceded her."

+ Lit D 48:268 F 7 '14 350w

"Mr. Meriwether has not, apparently, unearthed much new material, and has naturally relied a good deal upon Semmes's own books, 'Service afloat' and the 'Cruise of the Alabama.' Of the available printed authorities, however, he has made industrious use."

+ — Nation 99:198 Ag 13 '14 180w

+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 40w

"Dr. Meriwether has performed a useful service in preparing this compact sketch."

+ R of Rs 49:249 F '14 80w

MERRICK, LEONARD. When love flies out o' the window. *$1.20 (1½c) Kennerley 14-11802

Struggling artists and their Grub street hardships are once more the ingredients of a Merrick story. And once more also something fine at the bottom of the natures of these folk, too far down to be reached by reverses and discouragement, keeps on asserting its power until the hero or heroine, or both, emerge at the half way of life bigger than circumstances and winners in a long fight with the imps of adversity that lurk in the byways of the invariable scene of such stories—London or Paris. It is a serious, vital treatment of real life.

"There is something rather tediously familiar both in the ground plan of the story and in the tissue of episodes from which it is woven." F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:680 Ag '14 420w

"As a whole the novel, is crowded full with real human motives and results, and the descriptions of the hardships of life in a world of artistic effort that is always close to the vulgar and the sordid are extremely faithful. Mr. Merrick is not a novelist of unbounded imagination, nor a philosophic commentator on life, but as a portrayal of the real he has few equals among modern story-tellers." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 900w

"Completely done—that is all," Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:107 Ag 16 '14 80w

Ind 79:72 Jl 13 '14 40w

"In less skilful hands the story might have been absurd or commonplace. It is not profoundly moving, as Mr. Merrick tells it. But it is gratefully lacking in the surface brilliancy which annoys the quiet reader in many current novels."

+ Nation 99:104 Jl 23 '14 350w

"'When love flies out o' the window' is beyond doubt one of the few really important novels of the year."

+ N Y Times 19:290 Je 28 '14 880w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 9 '14 370w

MERWIN, SAMUEL. Anthony the absolute. il
*$.135 (1½c) Century 14-4459

Anthony Ives Eckhart of this story is distantly related to Mr. Locke's Simple Septimus. He is a scientist who goes out to the China coast armed with a phonograph and twenty-two hundred cylinders on which he is to record examples of primitive music. On shipboard he falls in with a man who is following a runaway wife with intent to kill her. In Peking he meets a young and beautiful American woman, living alone, who sings for him the close interval scale—sings it into his phonograph, making ten perfect records, with which he is to astound the musical world. Then the pursuing husband appears, for of course she is the runaway wife; there are some melodramatic complications ending with the disposal of the husband and a happy adjustment in the lives of the two others.

+ Ath 1914.2:sup100 Jl 18 400w

"The book is brimming over with unexpected and refreshing paradoxes, and may be enjoyed simply as a clever piece of sheer, light-hearted fun and indulgent satire." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:206 Ap '14 850w

"Three technical claims to consideration are possessed by 'Anthony the absolute' plot interest, excellent character delineation and faithfulness of 'local color.'"

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 18 '14 420w

Nation 98:399 Ap 9 '14 230w

"Mr. Merwin has succeeded in doing what most novelists want to do—he has created a hero whose mind naturally runs in a delightfully psychologizing groove, he has sent him swiftly through an exciting experience, and he has allowed him to tell the story in his own words."

+ N Y Times 19:83 F 22 '14 530w

"Here is one of the few novels of the present season which can be cheerfully proclaimed as a source of unalloyed delight." Calvin Winter

+ Pub W 85:1349 Ap 18 '14 470w

R of Rs 49:629 My '14 60w

MERWIN, SAMUEL. Charmed life of Miss Austin. il $1.35 (1½c) Century 14-15744

Miss Austin was a young person, very simple and very beautiful, who discovered, on a trip along the China coast, that she had been handled all her life like a cloisonné vase and that she knew nothing of the world she had lived in, much less of this strange world of the Orient. The nine stories of this book tell of the adventures that befell her when she was able to elude the strict chaperonage of her aunt and uncle and to venture into those places where no "nice girl" would go. The stories are: Dinner at eight; The Peking pug; Charlie Snyder; Wanda of the mysteries; Behind the screen; The camel of Han; William of East Orange; Chinese for trouble; The ship to Singapore.

Nation 39:379 S 24 '14 330w

"The stories are all dramatic, with unexpected turns, thrilling moments, and occasional touches of that irony which so often lends an almost impish aspect to human affairs. Even were the central character a comparatively uninteresting one they would be worth reading—and the central character is that unusually life-like and attractive 'nice girl from home,' Edith Austin."

+ N Y Times 19:386 S 20 '14 470w

MEUMANN, ERNST. Psychology of learning: an experimental investigation of the economy and technique of memory; tr. by J. Wallace Baird. $2 Appleton 13-20770

"To those who wish to form at first hand an idea of the new science of 'experimental pedagogy' we recommend 'The psychology of learning' (in German 'The economy and technique of learning'), by Prof. E. Meumann, now of Hamburg, pioneer in the science. . . . First, however, we discover that 'experimental pedagogy' is but a new name for experimental psychology. Then that the learning in question is confined to verbatim memorizing."—Nation

"It constitutes a fairly complete psychology and pedagogy of memory."

+ A L A Bkl 10:230 F '14

"Prof. Meumann's book is a typically German example of honest work, thorough training, and painstaking completeness, and gives us a fair idea of the immense labor bestowed by others in this field as well as by himself."

+ Nation 98:542 My 7 '14 350w

MEYNELL, ALICE CHRISTINA (THOMPSON) (MRS. WILFRID MEYNELL). Childhood. (Fellowship books) *75c Dutton 13-26454

Mrs. Meynell writes of childhood from a somewhat new point of view, and questions some of the conventional beliefs concerning it. She considers the necessity for discipline, and points out the danger of making the child too happy. "The child over-amused is in peril of losing amusement itself within his own heart."

"It is of great interest because it is full of ideas, and the delicately painted scenes of reminiscence, which at first we admire for the art of their evocation, have their significance. The book is no practical manual, but is eminently suggestive."

+ Ath 1913:2:745 D 27 1450w

"Mrs. Meynell's discussion of childhood is fresh and free from commonplace perception and observation."

+ Outlook 106:95 Ja 10 '14 60w

MEYNELL, ALICE CHRISTINA (THOMPSON) (MRS. WILFRED MEYNELL). Essays. *$1.50 Scribner 14-30868

"The contents of the present volume are selected from Mrs. Meynell's well-known previous books, The rhythm of life, The color of life, The spirit of place, Children, and Ceres' runaway. Some new essays are herein collected for the first time, the papers on The seventeenth century, Prue, Mrs. Johnson and Madame Roland."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 11:111 N '14

"We are sure of sympathy, colour, and a rapid succession of images, and we sometimes forget the subject, or at least the original subject in the quick transition from thought to thought. After reading through a few essays we are left with an impression composed of such a variety of elements as almost to defy analysis. It is a feeling which only a distinguished few can convey."

+ Ath 1911:2:14 Jl 4 720w

+ Boston Transcript p21 S 9 '14 530w

"No lover of the best in modern prose, no lover of that now rare entity, the essay, and surely no lover of the most fastidious fruits of Catholic culture, can afford to be without this weighty little book."

+ Cath World 100:249 N '14 670w

+ Dial 57:261 O 1 '14 100w

"A volume to please the lover of pure literature, and no less the lover of good book-making."

+ Ind 79:415 S 21 '14 100w

+ Nation 99:473 O 15 '14 380w

+ R of Rs 50:763 D '14 90w

+ Sat R 118:201 Ag 15 '14 980w

"Every essay is worth reading several times over."

+ Spec 113:26 Jl 4 '14 100w

MEYNELL, EVERARD. Life of Francis Thompson. il $4.50 Scribner (Eng ed 14-545)

The author of this biography is the son of Alice and Wilfred Meynell, who were Thompson's friends. "He gives us the whole man—Thompson as child, boy, man, literary critic, lover, friend, and poet exultant. . . . There are many documents of exceeding interest to poets and poetasters included in Mr. Meynell's work—intimate scribbles from the poet to his friends, memories, interviews, and letters from Meredith, Wilde, Coventry, Patmore, Wilfred and Alice Meynell, and Lewis Hind. The chapter entitled 'Of words; of origins; of metres,' discusses Thompson's technique." (R of Rs)

+ A L A Bkl 10:230 F '14

"We could have spared both the numerous didactic passages and the lengthy quotations from newspapers, which might have been relegated to a bibliography of references, since they are all of recent date and accessible. One cannot but suspect here and there that some greater measure of fundamental sympathy would have enhanced all round the value of the work. Nevertheless, this is a book which has given us singular pleasure."

+ Ath 1913:2:552 N 15 2750w

Reviewed by T. Walsh

+ Bookm 38:674 F '14 2700w

"Will prove a serious competitor to the numerous other biographies for which the present season is most distinguished." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 15 '13 730w

"It were idle to pretend that this official 'life' is wholly satisfactory; it lacks form and construction, and the language is frequently involved and somewhat pretentious. It is kindly and gossipy, but one is tempted to believe that the deeper aspects of the poet's nature wholly escaped the understanding of his young friend."

MEYNELL, EVERARD — Continued.
 + — Cath World 98:389 D '13 880w

Reviewed by H. E. Cory
 + Dial 56:98 F 1 '14 4250w

"If Mr. Meynell has not avoided the reigning prolixity of the day, he has in other respects written a book which stands well out of the ruck by reason of its intimate knowledge and its vivid style."

+ — Nation 97:588 D 18 '13 950w

"A document of much interest and not a little value."

+ N Y Sun p11 D 13 '13 1450w

"Satisfying and exhaustive biography."

+ Outlook 106:17 Ja 3 '14 970w

+ Outlook 106:95 Ja 10 '14 160w

"It is the great desire to give his personality to wider knowledge and his poetry to more lucid understanding that renders 'The life of Francis Thompson,' by Everard Meynell, one of the most valuable additions to the literature of poetry in the past decade."

+ R of Rs 49:115 Ja '14 700w

"It is a very inartistic entangling of fact and legend. It has been written with a fatal eye on the legend. Above all, it lacks order and any sort of judgment altogether. In places it becomes a family matter. And excellent as many of the documents are, not a few should have been abridged or paraphrased, or, if the book was to be read, dissolved in the biographer's narrative. As it is, the quotations are so long and ill-arranged, the commentary so injudicious, that to master the book a reader has to go through all the pains of authorship."

+ — Sat R 116:619 N 15 '13 500w

"Both as biography and as criticism the book is inadequate."

— Spec 113:18 Jl 4 '14 1600w

MICHAEL, A. C. Artist in Spain. il *$5 Doran

"The illustrations are the chief attraction of this volume; but the text, though somewhat diffuse, is by no means without merit. . . . The writer had visited Spain before, and, if he has nothing very new to say about places as familiar as Salamanca, Madrid, and Granada, his good sense and good nature are unfailing. His digressions show that he has a very fair acquaintance with the language and literature of Spain."—Ath

+ — Ath 1914,2:673 D 26 450w

"His text is as zestful as his pictures, and each illumines the other." Algernon Tassin
 + Bookm 40:426 D '14 100w

"As his own illustrator he is also to be congratulated."

+ Int Studio 54:237 Ja '15 120w

"A. C. Michael is that rarity, a painter who really knows how to write."

+ N Y Times 19:579 1) 20 '14 40w

"This is a well-written and particularly well-illustrated book on the Peninsula."

+ Outlook 108:901 D '16 '14 50w

MIDDLETON, GEORGE. Nowadays; a contemporary comedy. *$1 (4c) Holt 14-3434

Mr. Middleton follows his two volumes of one-act plays with this three-act comedy, much like them in spirit. He says: "As in 'Embers' and 'Tradition,' I have sought in 'Nowadays' to reflect some spirit of the moment as expressed in the shifting standards of man and woman in relation to each other." It is a play of American domestic life with its dramatic action dependent on the clash of wills resulting from two different conceptions of the family and of the position of women in it.

"Though not a brilliant play, it is a worthy addition to the small field of printed American drama."

+ A L A Bkl 10:359 My '14

"A striking drama of the present moment."
 + Ind 77:420 Mr 23 '14 30w

"This is a simple tale, without a shock or thrill in it, but steadily interesting and entirely human. All the characters are depicted with fidelity and consistency; the dialogue is good, and the plot logical in its outcome."

+ Nation 98:310 Mr 19 '14 500w

"The theories propounded in the play are of current, if not of consuming, interest; its situations are reasonably dramatic, yet as a whole it lacks that mysterious something that gets a play 'over.' Perhaps the trouble is that it is too 'reasonably dramatic.'"

+ — N Y Times 19:335 Ag 2 '14 200w

"Logical in structure and convincing in characterization."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:162 Je '14 40w

MIDDLETON, RICHARD. Monologues. *$1.50 (3c) Kennerley

"This is the third collected volume of Richard Middleton's prose writings to be published, and consists of papers reprinted from various periodicals." (Spec) Some of the titles are: The decay of the essay; The tyranny of the ugly; Dreaming as an art; How to be a poet; The age of disenchantment; Why women fail in art; The new sex; Is England decadent? Commercial literature; A monologue on love songs; Conversational misers.

"His poetical temperament and fancy are attractive, but he is too obviously in search of verbal and mental surprises. The sturdier qualities of his criticism prevail over his little mannerisms and inconsistencies, which include an occasionally wilful misapprehension of facts."

+ — Ath 1913,2:419 O 18 60w

"Those who like Mr. Belloc and Mr. Chesterton should read Mr. Middleton also."

+ Nation 98:436 Ap 16 '14 230w

"The essays in this book are the work of a man who knew how to give to interesting thoughts exquisite expression." Joyce Kilmer

+ N Y Times 19:349 Ag 16 '14 1200w

"Though Middleton always wrote with care and distinction, it is perhaps permissible to doubt the wisdom of republishing work which is for the most part of an obviously ephemeral nature, and which can never receive any revision from its writer. It must be added, however, that Middleton's admirers will find much in these essays that is not unworthy of the author of 'The ghost ship.'"

+ — Spec 111:617 O 18 '13 300w

MILLER, ALICE (DUER). Burglar and the blizzard. il *50c (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-1'360

On the day before Christmas Geoffrey Holland goes up to take a look over his country place. A number of other houses in the neighborhood have been burglarized and he wants to know if his own has suffered a like fate. He finds the burglar in possession of his library, comfortably reading. A blizzard shuts the two in, and Holland is forced to entertain not only the thief but the man's sister as well. The girl, who has been staying in a nearby cottage, knows nothing of her brother's profession, and during the Christmas day that they spend together Holland, who falls in love with her, finds himself shielding the thief he had meant to prosecute and finally helps him to escape.

MILLER, ALICE (DUER). Things. *50c (9c) Scribner 14-7877

The story of a woman who was too capable and too efficient, who in her perfect control of the details of her home, unwittingly wore on the nerves of her family. She calls in a famous alienist to study the case of her daughter, and to her astonishment finds that it is for herself that he prescribes. He sends her away to a rest cure and when she returns it is to find that all members of her household have profited by their freedom from the tyranny of things.

"It has a very definite purpose which is clearly and artistically presented. The story has a very nice little moral lesson underneath its surface, and it leads the reader to think a little for himself."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 400w

"The little story is cleverly told and the chief character convincingly presented."

+ N Y Times 19:222 My 3 '14 300w

MILLER, CHARLES M. Kitecraft and kite tournaments. il $1 Manual arts press 14-30421

Clear, well illustrated information for boys and girls, likewise their teachers, in the construction and flying of kites. Kites from the simplest plain surface variety to the model aeroplane are included with detailed description of their construction. There is a distinct advantage in the annual tournament, the writer believes, to stimulate interest and to promote school spirit.

A L A Bkl 10:419 Je '14

+ School Arts Magazine 13:791 Je '14 50w

MILLER, HENRY RUSSELL. House of toys. il $1.25 (2½c) Bobbs 14-20367

The story of two young people who marry in poverty, believing that love will make up for all material lacks. Poverty at close range loses its touch of the romantic and a temporary separation, with Shirley and the little son living with wealthy relatives and David slaving at uncongenial work to pay off the debts, lengthens itself from weeks to months. Then David meets the other girl and Shirley fades into the background. Fortunately the other girl is of a noble type who can inspire him with some of her own courage, and when success in his profession is his, he can welcome his wife back and stand ready to give her what he can of affection, altho she, still living in her house of toys, never knows the value of the greater gift she has lost.

"Altogether there are good bits all through the book." P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 40:560 Ja '15 150w

"There is nothing particularly novel in the book's plot or in its philosophy. Its value lies in the realistic way in which a familiar theme is worked out, in the excellence of its character drawing, and in a certain fine courage which shines through it like a clear strong light. 'The house of toys' is well constructed and well written, never prosy, always interesting and decidedly worth reading."

+ N Y Times 19:540 N 29 '14 500w

MILLER, HUGH GORDON, and FREEHOFF, JOSEPH C. Panama canal tolls controversy; or, A statement of the reasons for the adoption and maintenance of the traditional American policy in the management of the Panama canal, with intrs. by W. J. Bryan, Oscar S. Straus, W. Hughes. $1.50 Chapple pub. 14-18073

"This is a source-book by virtue not only of its appendices, which contain the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, the Suez canal convention, the Hay-Pauncefote treaties of 1900 and 1901, and the treaty with Panama, but also of its free utilization of speeches by Senators who had a part in the framing of some of these arrangements. The authors do not conceal their opinion that the exemption clause of the Canal act should have been repealed, as President Wilson successfully insisted, but the mass of their pages is filled with quotations from the debates on the various aspects of the question."—Nation

"The book is not benefited by the introductions by William J. Bryan, Oscar S. Straus, and Senator Hughes, which merely delay a reader in getting to the essentials of the matter."

+ — Nation 99:780 D 31 '14 170w

N Y Times 19:508 N 15 '14 80w

MILLER, JAMES COLLINS. Rural schools in Canada; their organization, administration and supervision. tables $2 Teachers college 14-4896

This work represents an attempt to view Canada's educational problem from the point of view of the Dominion as a whole. The task set by the author was: "(1) to survey the educational systems of Canada in their relationship to rural education, (2) to present an intensive study of the inspection and supervision of Canadian rural schools, and (3) to discover and state facts and problems having a significant bearing upon future progress in rural education in Canada." The volume is published as one of the Columbia university contributions to education.

"A good study of rural schools, and the first that we have seen in its particular field. This book is particularly interesting as affording an opportunity to an American reader to compare the points of likeness and contrast with conditions in the United States."

+ Educ R 49:104 Ja '15 50w

MILLER, KELLY. Out of the house of bondage. $1.50 Neale 14-9358

"Professor Miller does not minimize the race's faults in this survey of its wonderful achievements, nor does he dwell long upon its progress as valued in material units. What he does ask is how far the negroes have acquired the capacity to become not merely recipients but part-takers of the life and spirit and power of that civilization of which they would constitute a part. . . . His is a cheerful, hopeful note throughout, whether dealing with the negro in politics, or his education, or the present-day weakness of his clergy. He has vision and faith and what few white writers possess—an appreciation of the fact that fifty years of liberty is too short a time in which to pass any final verdict upon a people."—Nation

"Dean Miller's essays . . . are written in a clear and decisive style with a comprehensive and convincing command of his subject. He neither denounces nor condemns, he analyzes and constructs possibilities upon the fundamental basis of human nature." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 29 '14 750w

"Always well written and full of interesting and valuable facts, Professor Miller's works place him in the small group of foremost colored writers of which the other two are Booker Washington and Du Bois. He speaks invariably with scientific calmness, and it would be difficult to find elsewhere so compact and judicial a story of the negro's rise from slavery as is contained in the essay which gives this volume its title." O. G. Villard

+ Nation 99:738 D 24 '14 350w

MILLER, LUCIUS HOPKINS. Our knowledge of Christ: an historical approach. $1 (6c) Holt 15-536

Four papers originally published in "Biblical World" make up the contents of this book. Their subjects are: The source of our information concerning Jesus; The life of Jesus; The teaching of Jesus; The divinity of Christ. The author addresses himself to those who have found the old statements of religious truth unsatisfactory. Many such, he says, "have turned their backs upon the church, and even upon all religion, because they have not been helped to a new view which would have shown them that such desertion is unnecessary, harmful and wrong." The view which he presents is the one which has enabled him to retain his faith.

MILLER, MARION MILLS, ed. Great debates in American history, from the debates in the British Parliament on the colonial Stamp act (1764-1765) to the debates in Congress at the close of the Taft administration (1912-1913). 14v il $42 Current literature pub. 13-23912

"These volumes do not contain a digest of any great question of any period in American history, but rather outline many such questions, 'through the verbatim reports of what great men said when public discussion turned its X-rays on every claim. Each volume covers a distinct range of topics, beginning with resistance to the Stamp act, in which lurked the germ of American independence, and ending with the repeal of the Sherman Silver purchase act. . . . As a foreword in each volume, an essay appears from the pen of some well-known authority—the last, upon Standardization of the dollar, being by Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale, and the first, upon the Constitution and its makers, by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. . . . The debates were upon colonial rights, the revolution, the constitution, foreign relations, slavery, and state-rights, department of government, civil rights, economic and social questions, revenue, tariff, taxation, and finance."—Lit D

MILLER, MARION MILLS, ed.—Continued.

A L A Bkl 10:401 Je '14

"The ends aimed at of readability and reference have been well secured."

+ Lit D 48:498 Mr 7 '14 350w

"The subjects are arranged for the investigator with conscientious intelligence. The volumes put at the disposal of the student a mass of material, much of which has hitherto been buried so deep to repel every one but the most persistent."

+ Nation 97:567 D 11 '13 530w

"A boon to high school debaters and to the argumentative courses in the colleges."

+ N Y Sun p4 15 '13 500w

"A work of great value to those who know how helpful contemporary discussions and opinions are to the understanding of historical movements and crises."

+ N Y Times 19:771 Ja 4 '14 600w

MINOT, CHARLES SEDGWICK. Modern problems of biology. il *$1.25 Blakiston 13-22764

"As Harvard exchange professor at the University of Berlin, Professor Minot was invited to give a series of lectures at Jena. These were delivered in German and so published; and later put into English by the author himself." (Ind) "Professor Minot chooses as headings for the modern problems of biology: (1) The new cell doctrine; (2) Cytomorphosis; (3) The doctrine of immortality; (4) The development of death; (5) The determination of sex, and (6) The notion of life." (Nation)

"This book throughout is marked by the distinction of manner and absolute precision and clearness of statement which are characteristic of its author."

+ Dial 56:469 Je 1 '14 400w

"Aside from the frequent references to their Excellences and Magnificences and Highnesses, and an occasional suggestion of a German form of expression, the book is good American reading. Although Prof. Minot has complete faith in the methods of science, he frequently lapses into a teleological form of expression. The book is well made and illustrated, but is marred by a number of typographical errors—some that may not be obvious to the lay reader."

+ Ind 78:213 My 4 '14 450w

"It is curious that Professor Minot should have omitted the one really modern series of problems in biology, viz., those which have resulted in the remarkable contributions of De Vries, Correns, Czermak, Johannsen, Bateson, Morgan, and a host of others on Mendelian inheritance and allied problems of heredity, which easily stand in the forefront of modern experimental biology, and which have been brilliantly illuminated by American biologists."

+ Nation 98:549 My 7 '14 350w

MIRON, E. L. Queens of Aragon. il *$3.75 Brentano's A14-1529

"As its title indicates, this book has a two-fold character. It is both biographical and historical. The lives of the twenty-six queens are closely involved with the history of the kingdom of Aragon during its existence as an independent state, from 1035 to 1468. . . . The period covered includes the closing centuries of the middle ages and the last supremacy of the feudal system. It was a stormy period. The queens, on the whole, bore an active part in the struggle between the Christian religion and the pretensions of the prophet."—Boston Transcript

"A volume of unusual interest."

+ Ath 1913,2:452 O 25 200w

"The lives of these sovereigns abounded in adventurous incident, and the story of them has much of romantic interest. It is all told with punctilious regard for rank and titles, and the pages of the book are filled with names so long and so numerous that the reader will find his mind confused with a multitude of personages who are occupying the stage at the same time."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 420w

"The book is an interesting contribution to the culture history of mediæval Spain."

+ Nation 8:730 Je 18 '14 270w

N Y Times 19:323 Jl 26 '14 80w

"The lover of fine books and the poetry of history will be delighted with this pretty book—prettily written, prettily illustrated, and marked by a sympathy with the romantic."

+ Sat R 116:561 N 1 '13 130w

MITCHELL, SILAS WEIR. Complete poems. 2 *$2 Century 14-18366

A prefatory note says: "The several volumes of Dr. Mitchell's poems have been gone over with care and certain unimportant omissions have been made from this book. It is believed that the present collection contains all that can be called thoroughly representative of the author's best productions." Three groups of poems make up the contents: Dramatic poems; Miscellaneous poems; Poems of occasion.

"His poems, while scholarly, have little inspiration. They show in places the influence of much reading of Browning and Rossetti and were evidently mere literary pastimes."

+ Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 70w

"He was an imaginative and accomplished poet whose talent was frequently called into play in that important and now generally neglected branch of his art, the composition of 'occasional' poems."

+ Lit D 50:111 Ja 16 '15 900w

MITCHELL, SYDNEY KNOX. Studies in taxation under John and Henry III. (Yale historical pub.) *$2 (1½c.) Yale univ. press 14-12901

"This work deals with the aids, scutages, tallages, and dona, constituting the extraordinary income of the English kings, during the period of transition from feudal to modern taxation. In a detailed account, the author describes the circumstances under which each tax was levied, the incidence, the assessment and collection, and the amount yielded. Other topics, not strictly financial but closely connected with the subject of taxation, are also discussed: for instance, the levy of scutage rendered necessary a consideration of the military service of the period; and the levy of aids and examination of the relation of the great council to taxation."—Pub. Note

"The book should receive a hearty welcome as a much needed and distinctly important addition to our literature." W. E. Lunt

+ Ann Am Acad 57:340 Ja '15 1350w

"We find it hard to excuse the present form of the book, which would almost seem to have been adopted in order to convince examiners of the thoroughness of the work accomplished. We do not wish to suggest that this book is without value; it has, indeed, considerable value—but chiefly as part of the material for a much better book, which we hope Dr. Mitchell will one day write."

+ Ath 1914,2:388 O 17 750w

"Numerous notes add to the value of the scholarly work which will illuminate many dark spots in the early history of modern taxation."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 350w

"Interesting information about the extraordinary incomes of English kings in the period during which the transition was taking place from feudal to modern taxation is set forth."

+ N Y Times 19:357 Ag 23 '14 100w

"A valuable contribution to the study of early English financial systems."

+ Spec 113:240 Ag 15 '14 20w

MITFORD, EUSTACE BRUCE. Japan's inheritance. il *$3 (3½c) Dodd 14-39363

The author agrees with Mr. Price Collier in saying that knowledge of things Japanese is of vital concern to the American people. For "with them in large measure, it rests to determine the manner of the meeting of East and West." Between the enthusiasm of the writer who is carried away by the charms of the country, and the prejudiced critic who finds in it nothing of good, he hopes that he has found a happy mean. The greater part of the book is descriptive, treating of landscape, climate, people and customs. More vital matters are taken up in the last chapters which discuss: Education and religion; The political fabric; Japan as a colonial power; Where East meets West; A peep into the future.

"Written with sympathy and full knowledge and in a readable style."

+ A L A Bkl 10:359 My '14

"This is a brightly written book, and it will be none the less welcome to the average reader because of the omission of dry details of mythology and early history, as well as matters relating to the modern transformation of Japan, matters with which books on that country are apt to be overburdened."

+ Ath 1914.1:129 Ja 24 650w

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 1150w

+ Dial 57:143 S 1 '14 400w

"Mr Mitford's book is a real contribution to our knowledge of Japanese geography."

+ Nation 98:604 My 21 '14 1400w

"He gives what seems to be a true account of the position of Japan among the nations, and of her ambitions. Travellers will find the book a useful addition to the books which give the impressions of the globe-trotter, but the author cannot be said to have made more than a superficial study of the social phenomena exhibited by Japan in the last forty-five years."

J. P.

+ Nature 92:367 N 27 '13 400w

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 170w

+ R of Rs 49:506 Ap '14 110w

"It may be cheerfully acknowledged that Mr. Mitford has much real knowledge of his subject, and ideas of his own, but we could well have spared much that he has borrowed from easily-accessible authorities."

+ Sat R 117:51 Ja 10 '14 730w

Reviewed by F. W. Williams

+ Yale R n s 4:403 Ja '15 550w

MITRA, S. M. Anglo-Indian studies. *$3.50 Longmans A14-693

"This volume of essays is valuable in that it enables English readers to regard Indian affairs from the point of view of the educated native. Politics are the author's strongest point and we are specially struck by his articles on 'British statesmen and Indian psychology' and 'The Indian princes.' Here Mr. Mitra does not hesitate to criticize freely some English methods of administration, but, unlike many critics, he does not confine himself to censure, but adds suggestions of his own such as the inclusion of Indian reigning princes in the House of Lords, and the creation of a special flag for India. . . . Besides politics, religion, and medicine, Mr. Mitra deals with commercial grievances and industrial development, and offers some brief biographies of English and Indian statesmen."

—Ath

"Their value is in showing the native attitude to certain British administrative and other problems in India."

+ Ann Am Acad 52:228 Mr '14 100w

"The book is one of exceptional interest, and deserves to be widely read."

+ Ath 1913.2:158 Ag 16 230w

"The volume forms an admirable supplement to the same author's 'Indian problems,' and is an important contribution to the literature of its subject." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 S 20 13 650w

Reviewed by F. B. R. Hellemes

+ — Dial 55:526 D 16 '13 780w

"The writer is best when he is most didactic, and abandons arguments and illustrations that he probably regards as concessions to the western mind." E. M. F.

+ — Int J Ethics 24:369 Ap '14 950w

"The book is a curious medley of valuable observations on present relations between the races in India and valueless observations in regard to the history of the Hindus. Verbosity and inaccuracy combine with the naïve self-complacency of the Hindu to produce some extraordinary 'Studies.'"

+ — Nation 99:140 J1 30 '14 280w

"For American readers, even for those who are students of things political, there is not much of direct interest in the volume. But yet those who care to read between the lines and are willing, for the sake of the problems that this country is likely sooner or later to face with regard to our own oversea possessions, to look into the experiences of another people may find a good deal in Mr. Mitra's book to think about."

+ — N Y Times 19:85 F 22 '14 1200w

"A valuable contribution to Indian literature, and will well repay perusal by all who are interested in the solution of existing Indian problems." C.

+ — Spec 111:313 Ag 30 '13 2050w

MITTON, GERALDINE EDITH. Round the wonderful world. il *$2.50 (2c) Putnam

A pleasant account of a trip around the world. The trip is made by way of the Mediterranean, and Spain, Egypt, and Palestine are visited by the way. Later there are descriptions of India, China, and Japan, and the way home takes the travelers across Canada, with a stop-over at Edmonton to visit a cattle ranch, and a trip on the Great Lakes. Then the voyage across the Atlantic makes the circle complete. There are twelve plates in color and numerous text illustrations.

"It will particularly appeal to young people."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 370w

"A pleasing and instructive story."

+ N Y Times 19:508 N 15 '14 80w

+ Spec 113:sup616 N 7 '14 100w

MODERWELL, HIRAM KELLY. Theatre of to-day. il *$1.50 (1½c) Lane 14-18449

The author covers his subject thoroughly, writing of recent stage theory, the mechanical devices of the modern stage, the modern drama and dramatists, and of the financial side of the theatre, with comparison between the purely commercial theatres of America and the subsidized theatres abroad. He is particularly concerned with the past ten years in stage history, saying that in that space of time the theatre has changed from "an institution of one art" to "an institution of all the arts." The change came gradually, but "the realization began to spread that the theatre was not merely an affair of spoken words and accompanying gestures. And suddenly almost overnight, the thinkers saw the possibilities of universality in the theatre and set out to develop them." (Chapter 1) There are thirty-two full-page illustrations.

"Extremely interesting book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:207 Ja '15 +

"It is a pleasant book to read, and equally a pleasure to recommend it to others." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:568 Ja '15 90w

"Scant attention to the developments of the American stage."

+ — Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 40w

Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 80w

"All persons interested in the modern stage and drama will find this an attractive and instructive book. The author is thoroughly well acquainted with every phase of his subject, writes in a compact and vivacious style, and exhibits an uncommon breadth of view in combination with much sound judgment."

+ — Nation 99:639 N 26 '14 1150w

MODERWELL, HIRAM KELLY—Continued.
+ R of Rs 50:756 D '14 70w

"Mr. Moderwell's book suffers from a too highly-organized scheme, which separates as often as it joins data that ought really to go together. But the author's keenness is apparent on every page."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 900w

MOFFATT, EDWARD STEWART. Desert and Mrs. Ajax. il $1.25 Moffat 14-9447

"A 'big-hearted miner ranchman,' Dick Holly, returning from the East, where he has sold a mine, comes upon a travelling circus, stranded and starving, in the great Nevada desert. . . . The generous Holly takes them all to his ranch and introduces them to his dazed foreman." (N Y Times) "The comedy runs an approved course with plenty of real humor, a considerable share of Wild West excitement, and the conventional 'sweet' love story." (Boston Transcript)

"An entertaining and not unoriginal comedy, peopled by a strange lot of characters. The editor of the book should cultivate enough respect for the intellect of its readers to understand that they can appreciate the force or humor of a saying without the continual medium of italics and of a type closely approaching 'scare-heads.'"

+ — Boston Transcript p10 My 2 '14 200w

"Our complaint would be that the writer has made too trifling use of his materials."

+ — Nation 99:45 J1 9 '14 280w

"It is full of fun and adventure, with a pretty love story running through it, and, as may be supposed, it furnishes many original types of 'human varrious.' The West was never more picturesquely presented than in this clever novel."

+ N Y Times 19:222 My 3 '14 190w

Reviewed by Doris Webb

+ Pub W 85:1340 Ap 18 '14 380w

MOFFATT, REV. JAMES. New translation of the New Testament. $1.50 Doran

"Dr. Moffatt uses for his translation the text of Von Soden of Berlin, adding alternations of his own in notes here and there at the bottom of the page." (Ath) "He says: 'My intention, therefore, has been to produce a version which will to some degree represent the gains of recent lexical research and also prove readable.'"

"The most impressive distinction between the King James version, the English revised version of 1881, and the Standard American version of 1900, on the one hand, and this version, on the other, is that one is that of men in touch with the life of the people, and the other is that of a student. Dr. Moffatt suppresses figures of speech as much as possible; or, at least, his tendency is to suppress them." (Boston Transcript)

"A fresh, vigorous, and pleasing rendering that will do much to give many passages, already meaningless through long familiarity, a new and truer significance."

+ Am J Theol 18:482 J1 '14 300w

"Dr. Moffatt is occasionally vigorous, but his version is not likely to satisfy those who keep a jealous eye on their mother-tongue."

+ — Ath 1914:1:270 F 21 300w

"Dr. Moffatt has brought his expert grammatical and lexical knowledge to his work in translating, and his translation is readable. But it is not a classic. One feels he is reading the translation of a commentator, and he is conscious of certain things that are peculiar to Dr. Moffatt."

+ — Boston Transcript p23 F 4 '14 630w

"Great advances in biblical scholarship and linguistic studies are here unobtrusively but clearly presented in their results upon the interpretation of the Scripture."

+ Ind 78:142 Ap 20 '14 70w

+ Outlook 107:878 Ag 8 '14 220w

MOFFETT, CLEVELAND (LANGSTON). Land of mystery. il $1.25 (1½c) Century 13-23214

An exciting adventure story for boys with scenes laid in Egypt and Palestine. On Harold Evans, a young American lad, falls the task of rescuing his missionary father and mother from Turkish captivity. He has the aid of his friend, Jack MacGregor, a boy of his own age who is interested in moving picture films, and together they succeed in foiling the plots of high Turkish officials and in rescuing the two courageous Americans who cannot be dissuaded from their chosen work by any disaster or threatened peril.

Reviewed by M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:447 D '13 80w

"An impossible but quite plausibly told story of modern Egypt."

+ — Ind 77:137 Ja 26 '14 30w

"The style is rather flippant for its subject, but its mysteries and excitement will hold the ordinary reader."

+ — Lit D 48:626 Mr 21 '14 200w

MONAHAN, MICHAEL. At the sign of the van. 7 $2 (2c) Kennerley 14-9985

Four groups of essays by the editor of the "Papyrus" which have grown out of the author's observations and reflections on phases of life in New York City, on men and manners, on places and customs, and on a variety of matters pertaining to the literary profession and related occupations. There are also papers on Shakespeare, Byron, Carlyle, Renan, Tolstoy, O. Henry and Kipling. For emphasizing the ubiquity of the Jew in New York the author makes half apology when he says that he is not a Jew-hater but numbers among that race some of his warmest friends.

+ — — Ath 1914,2:211 Ag 22 370w

"Volume of fascinating essays full of fun, sympathy, and an Elian flavor."

+ Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 30w

Nation 99:257 Ag 27 '14 150w

"I trust that I have so suggested the individual charm of Mr. Monahan's book, its ripeness, its gusto, its sense of comradeship, its humor and common sense and all its entertaining variety, that the reader will help it to fulfill the end for which every good book was brought into the world—first to be bought, then to be read. It is too good a book to be borrowed. It is emphatically a book to be bought." R: Le Gallienne

+ N Y Times 19:268 Je 14 '14 1900w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

Pub W 86:815 S 19 '14 650w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 J1 23 '14 450w

MONAHAN, MICHAEL. Nova Hibernia. $1.50 (3c) Kennerley 14-10410

A handful of Irish studies, sketches and lectures whose themes are poets and dramatists "of to-day and yesterday." In the galaxy are Yeats, Synge, Moore, James Clarence Mangan, Thomas Osborne Davis, Gerald Griffin, Callanan, Dr. Maginn, Father Prout and Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

Ath 1914,2:211 Ag 22 600w

"We like Mr. Monahan for his style, for a well-stored mind of literary opinions, and for that salty flavor which a frankness of utterance gives to the matter in hand." W. S. B.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 820w

Reviewed by R: Le Gallienne

+ N Y Times 19:268 Je 14 '14 30w

"It never would do as a school textbook on Irish literature, but as apparatus for older lovers and students of literature it is a volume to be reckoned with."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 23 '14 400w

MONCKTON, O. PAUL. Pastimes in times past. il $1.50 Lippincott A14-2536

"Mr. Monckton has gathered into a small volume a dozen brief essays on games once played and still played with modern modifications. The first gives a more or less conjectural history of 'Bridge' or, as it seems to have been first called 'Biritch' or Russian whist.

The next two chapters discuss less known sports, such as the cruel old game of bull-running, cock-throwing and duck-hunting, quinton and the like and the more refined 'kuting' or curling. The name Pall-Mall is the palæozoic remains of a game once played on the historic promenade. Football, bowls, and skittles, cricket and golf come in for historic derivation and there are additional details showing how lawn-tennis originated and giving an account of playing-cards, of billiards and croquet."—Boston Transcript

"He writes fluently, though not always grammatically, and introduces, perhaps, just as much detail as the average sportsman wants. He should get his book revised by a competent scholar, and add an index."

+ — Ath 1913,2:102 Ag 2 1950w

"He does not claim to have included much matter which may not be found stored away in a dark corner of some dusty shelf, but he says 'in most of the essays something hitherto unpublished may be found.' It has seven illustrations from quaint old manuscripts. Like its title it is bright and suggestive."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 450w

+ Sat R 116:118 J1 26 '13 180w

MONCRIEFF, ASCOTT ROBERT HOPE. Book about authors: reflections and recollections of a book-wright. *$3 Macmillan

(Eng ed 14-15441)

"A whole series of books in one, including 'A short history of authors' from Homer and the Sibyl to Dickens and Thackeray; a brief survey of publishing through the ages, from the days of the ancient upwards—with undue emphasis, perhaps, on the black sheep of that much-maligned flock; and separate chapters on the quarrels, anatomy, and trade of authors, which appear in the main to support Leslie Stephen's opinion that 'Literature is, in all cases, a demoralizing occupation,' on account of its inevitable publicity."—Ath

"Mr. Moncrieff's well-stored volume is pleasantly written like all his books."

+ Ath 1914,1:749 My 30 1400w

"That life and literature are inextricably entangled Mr. Moncrieff makes clear at every moment of his highly diverting excursion into the realm of books." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 10 '14 950w

+ — Nation 99:257 Ag 27 '14 250w

"His book, notwithstanding its manifest prejudices is both valuable and entertaining for its wealth of literary anecdote, and for the statistical information bearing on various practical phases of authorship."

+ N Y Times 19:284 Je 21 '14 350w

"To whom, beside its writer, will it appeal? First, to aspiring authors. Second, to those who have a curiosity about the career of letters, while not following it themselves."

+ Sat R 118:115 J1 25 '14 530w

MONKSWELL, ROBERT ALFRED HARD-<sup>10</sup> CASTLE COLLIER, 3d baron. Railways of Great Britain. il *$2 Dutton

(Eng ed A13-2552)

"Although the book from its chapter headings appears only to take up in order the railways of the different sections of Great Britain, and to treat them from the standpoint of traffic and operation, it contains much of generalization on the fundamental economic problems involved. . . . Government ownership and operation, a very present topic of discussion in England, is looked upon with disfavor, and it is insisted that continental conditions are not sufficiently analogous to make experience with them of much value."—Nation

"The volume is to be commended to those desiring a concise and first-hand account of the equipment, operating methods, service, charges, and finances of British railways."

+ Ann Am Acad 54:324 J1 '14 100w

"Altogether it is an informative and suggestive book, its simplicity of diction and engaging style making it thoroughly readable."

+ Ath 1913,2:555 N 15 320w

"It is informing to the general reader, and should be of great interest to the railroad manager and director."

+ Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 250w

"While written with the English reader primarily in mind, it has much that will attract students of transportation everywhere, particularly those who are actually engaged in the operation of railways."

+ Nation 99:285 S 3 '14 520w

"His arguments against nationalization are moderate and sound. The only fault we have to find with this interesting ad comprehensive survey is in the arrangement."

+ — Spec 112:1036 Je 20 '14 200w

MONROE, HARRIET. You and I. $1.25 Macmillan 14-18261

A collection of representative work by the editor of "Poetry." "She is an exponent of the immediate movement in modern art, which she holds to be 'the return to primitive sympathies between the artist and the audience which makes possible once more the assertion of primitive creative power.' . . . The turmoil, the sharp transitions of modern life, its furious exuberance of energy, are expressed in her verse." (R of Rs)

"Of Miss Monroe's volume much cannot be said except for its industrious quantity. Her experimentations in rhythm are quite uninspired with those cadenced mental and emotional images that give effective beauty and meaning to Miss Lowell's poems. She discloses a kind of attitude toward life that is narrow and unsympathetic, that is not redeemed by an artistic distinction of expression."

— Boston Transcript p6 N 28 '14 100w

"Her best accomplishment is in the vein of less ambassadorial utterance,—in personal poems where she subdues a smaller world more perfectly to the service of poetry." A. D. Ficke

+ — Dial 58:12 Ja 1 '15 600w

"As a whole, the collection is characterized by variety of theme, surety of technique, and amplitude of thought. One of the best is 'The turbine.'"

+ R of Rs 51:116 Ja '15 120w

MONROE, PAUL, ed. Cyclopedia of education. il 4 5v subs ea *$5 Macmillan (11-1511)

v 5 This concluding volume embraces titles from Pol to Zwi, and contains the general index. "In this index all of the articles of the 'Cyclopedia' are classified according to the general topic under which they come. Thus there is a section for history of education, for philosophy of education, psychology, etc." (El School T)

+ A L A Bkl 10:276 Mr '14 (Review of v 5)

Reviewed by C: DeGarmo

+ Ann Am Acad 53:337 My '14 520w (Review of v 5)

"Both the editor and contributors are to be congratulated on the performance of a great task, the first competent and really comprehensive conspectus of education in English. On our shelves it stands by the side of the seven volumes of the 'Teacher's encyclopedia,' edited by Dr. A. P. Laurie; but there is room for both of these, their scope and aim being different."

+ + Ath 1914,1:261 F 21 1250w (Review of v 5)

"As a work of reference the cyclopædia is simply invaluable."

+ + Boston Transcript p8 Ja 31 '14 250w (Review of v 5)

MONROE, PAUL, ed.—Continued.

"The work is one of the highest importance to all who are at all concerned with education." F. N. Freeman

+ El School T 14:297 F '14 450w (Review of v 5)

"As a reference book for facts in educational history and biography and concerning national and state systems of public instruction and educational institutions, the work fills a distinct want and is of unquestioned value. Consistency has not always been maintained."

+ Nation 98:244 Mr 5 '14 400w (Review of v 5)

"Masterly work."

+ Outlook 107:562 Jl 4 '14 140w (Review of v 5)

"The bibliographies which accompany the subjects treated make this encyclopedia an index to the best pedagogical and historical literature of the world."

+ School Arts Magazine 13:549 Mr '14 120w (Review of v 5)

Reviewed by Irving King

+ School R 23:138 F '15 180w (Review of v 5)

MONROE, PAUL, ed. Principles of secondary education. (Text-book ser. in education) forms $1.90 (1c) Macmillan 14-19053

The purpose of this book, to which many specialists contribute, is to furnish the prospective teacher and school administrator with a broad view of the field of secondary education. Several of the chapters are taken wholly or in part from the "Cyclopedia of education." The others were written especially for this volume. There are chapters on: The meaning and scope of secondary education; Historic sketch of secondary education; Secondary education in Europe; The high school systems of the United States; The organization of the high school; The private secondary school; Psychology and hygiene of adolescence; Moral and religious education, etc. Each chapter is provided with a list of topics for further study and reading references.

"This is the most important and valuable work upon its subject that has yet appeared. It is likely to hold its primacy till some consensus of opinion is reached."

+ Outlook 109:349 F 10 '15 170w

MONROE, WILL SEYMOUR. Bulgaria and her people: with an account of the Balkan wars, Macedonia, and the Macedonian Bulgars. il $3 (2½c) Page 14-16238

The foreword says: "This is the first general book of travel and description, treating of the rejuvenated Bulgarian kingdom, to be published in the English language." The author was in Bulgaria during the second Balkan war and he devotes considerable space to this and to the war which preceded it. He takes the position that "Bulgaria was betrayed, attacked, and traduced by her treacherous allies." She accomplished most and lost most in the Balkan wars." But his book is not all concerned with wars and international complication; he writes of the history, geography, religion, education and culture of the country and reproduces many photographs as an accompaniment to his descriptions.

"Useful for reference, as no other recent book in English covers the same ground."

+ A L A Bkl 11:115 N '14

"The principal objection to 'Bulgaria and her people'—and at the same time something of a recommendation, perhaps—is the fact that, instead of writing his own opinions, he has chosen to clip his data badly from official reports and the standard works of reference. As a result of such methods, he has prepared a work which is rather more authoritative than the usual travel-book, but he has paid a heavy price in loss of personal interest and first-hand observation."

+ Nation 99:693 D 10 '14 200w

"Naturally, the book is hardly more than an outline, a sketch. But it is of sufficient interest to give the reader anxious to correct a prejudiced view of a misunderstood people a desire for more." H. Dick

+ Pub W 86:1295 O 17 '14 520w

"The book is full of human interest, and the author deserves well of the people whom he has, on the whole, so carefully introduced to our reading public."

+ Springfield Republican p5 F 4 '15 800w

MONTAGU, VIOLETTE M. Napoleon and his adopted son. il $3.50 (3c) McBride, Nast & co. A14-2807

The author has written the life of Eugène de Beauharnais, son of Josephine and stepson of Napoleon. She writes with sympathy for her subject and answers some of the charges of Eugène's detractors. He was fully worthy, she feels, of the affection bestowed upon him by the emperor and was one of the few persons who exerted an influence over Napoleon. She calls her book "the biography of a good man."

"The author sees no fault in Eugène, being one of the intensest of partisans." E. W. H.

— Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 250w

MONTAGU-NATHAN, M. History of Russian music. il $1.75 Scribner A14-2358

"Mr. Montagu-Nathan notes as one of the developments since Rimsky Korsakoff a 'decline of nationalism' in Russian music. Glazounoff, Liadoff, Liapounoff, Arensky, his pupils and friends, all show a neglect of the native element in their works, and it may also be said that none of them are first-class men. As for Tschaiowsky, the author will not allow his music a trace of nationalism nor the composer a high and lasting place. . . . Scriabin and some of the less prominent of the composers, with Stravinsky, bring the book to a close. There is an appendix containing a series of short notices of composers not dealt with in the rest of the book."—N Y Times

"The volume as a whole . . . is a definite addition to musical history."

+ Boston Transcript p25 D 2 '14 700w

"It is convenient to have between the covers of an English book detailed information about [these musicians]. Rubinstein and Tchaikovsky are not treated as real Russian composers!" li: T. Finck

+ Nation 99:355 S 17 '14 770w

"Mr. Montagu-Nathan writes with something less of authority [than Mrs. Newmarch], with a less confidence in the use of original sources, and with apparently the necessity of resorting to translations and other second-hand information that she has no need of."

+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 300w

MONTAIGNE, MARIE, and others. How to be beautiful. il $1 (3½c) Harper 13-23391

A book of health and beauty hints. "So much profitless, and sometimes injurious, advice is advertised and given in matters of this kind that a book of simple, sound and practical counsel will, it is believed, be found of peculiar value." (Note) Contents: The care of the hair; Facial massage; Beautifying the eyes; The perfect nose; Beautifying the mouth; Care of the teeth; Beautifying the neck; Beautifying the arms; The care of the hands; The care of the feet; Hints on reducing flesh; Exercises for the stout woman; Simple exercises and diet for the thin; Beautifying the baby; Bernhardt's secrets of beauty.

MONTESSORI, MARIA. Dr. Montessori's own handbook. il $1 (4c) Stokes 14-10265

An authentic manual of the Montessori system written by Dr. Montessori herself as a guide to teachers and parents. It is a concisely written volume of little more than a hundred pages which contains a clear account of the method, and includes a description of the Montessori apparatus with instructions for its use. Forty-three illustrations accompany the text.

A L A Bkl 11:11 S '14

"Dr. Montessori's own handbook" contains much the same material as did "The Montessori method," but in a clearer form, although the translation is, as before, somewhat clumsy."

+ — Ath 1914.1:545 Ap 18 550w

"Dr. Montessori has performed a real service in preparing this guide to her method. The handbook will now proceed to take its place as the real exposition of the Montessori system."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 186w

"A full and clear account of the famous method of child education."

+ Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 30w

+ Nature 93:659 Ag 27 '14 350w

R of Rs 50:252 Ag '14 60w

Sat R 117:441 Ap 4 '14 800w

+ Spec 113:464 O 3 '14 200w

Reviewed by F. A. Manny

+ — Survey 33:338 D 26 '14 700w

MONTGOMERY, FLORENCE. Behind the scenes in the schoolroom. *$1.35 Macmillan

114-2121

An English story of old-fashioned flavor. It tells of "a young woman who suddenly and unexpectedly had to do something to support herself and decided to become a governess. She secured a position in the house of a certain lord whose wife was a social butterfly and who neglected her children. The beautiful little girls became very fond of their governess, as also did the eldest son. The father and mother both died, and in just two years from the time she entered the house, lonely and timid, she was herself wearing the title and the family jewels." (N Y Times)

"For what class of readers it is intended we find it difficult to decide. At first it appears to be written with a purpose—a warning to selfish society mothers, but the purpose is allowed to go adrift, and the characters are not lifelike enough to influence us. The plot is transparent, simply and sentimentally told; and the whole would seem immature but for the author's name. It has a certain degree of old-fashioned charm."

+ — Ath 1913.2:658 D 6 140w

"Occasionally an English novel comes across the water that illuminates the wide space still existing between British and American shores as vividly as did some of the early Victorian fiction. Among them is this story, which interests because of that illumination and also because of its character as a curious survival from an earlier and simpler age, before Lloyd George and Bernard Shaw and a hundred isms had begun to mess up the social scale."

+ N Y Times 19:48 F 1 '14 280w

"Her novel is addressed especially to parents, and although the love-story in it is crude, the book is worth reading for the study of child life."

+ — Sat R 117:246 F 21 '14 100w

Spec 112:444 Mr 14 '14 50w

MONYPENNY, WILLIAM FLAVELLE, and BUCKLE, GEORGE EARLE. Life of Benjamin Disraeli, earl of Beaconsfield. 4v v 3 il *$3 Macmillan (10-25373)

v 3 1846-1855.

"In a businesslike preface Mr. Buckle informs his readers that, with the exception of an admirable analysis of 'Tancred' by the lamented Mr. Monypenny, forming the basis of chap. 2, this volume is practically by his own hand. We shall take leave, therefore, to treat him as the author of this interesting study, covering nine momentous years in Disraeli's life. Mr. Buckle takes up Disraeli at the resignation of Peel, and leaves him at the moment when Derby's hesitations enabled Palmerston to become the inevitable and to form his first ministry. During this period the author of 'Tancred' contrived to shed the political adventurer and to get himself regarded as a serious statesman. But the process was slow, and the difficulties he had to surmount are strikingly set forth in these pages."—Ath

"Mr. Buckle's readers will be content to wait in sure hope that the future installments of this biography, however numerous, will reach the high standard he has set himself in succession to Mr. Monypenny."

+ Ath 1914.2:552 N 28 1600w

"A valuable contribution to the statesman's life." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 30 '14 1700w

+ Ind 81:139 Ja 25 '15 80w

+ — Nation 100:51 Ja 14 '15 1850w

"Mr. Buckle is just the kind of man, I think, that Disraeli would have chosen to write his biography. Heartily I congratulate Mr. Buckle on the ease with which he moves amidst a mass of documents; upon the skill of his selection; upon the sagacity of his comments on the short but stirring period covered by these pages."

A. A. Baumann

+ Sat R 118:584 D 5 '14 3100w

"The narrative goes smoothly forward, and is not too long for the interest of the materials."

+ Spec 113:748 N 28 '14 2450w

"It must be said that Mr. Buckle has done his work carefully and well, although it is not marked by as much freedom of historical estimate and summing up as were Mr. Monypenny's writings."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 21 '15 800w

MOORE, GEORGE. Hail and farewell. 3v v 3 *$1.75 (1½c) Appleton (11-30447)

v 3 Vale.

This volume completes the trilogy: Ave. Salve, Vale, that makes up George Moore's autobiographical "Hail and farewell." Aside from the personal confessions, which are very full and frank, this book is concerned with two groups of interesting people: the French impressionistic painters, Manet, Monet, Pissaro, and the others; and the Irish writers, Lady Gregory, Yeats, and Synge.

Boston Transcript p25 Ap 1 '14 630w

"It is, like the others in the famous 'trilogy'—packed full of good thought, good prose, good epigrams, and a lot of malice. It contains passages of a personal nature which, no matter how true they are, ought never to have been written." J. W. Smith

+ — Boston Transcript p9 Ap 11 '14 450w

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 1000w

+ Dial 56:471 Je 1 '14 350w

+ — Nation 99:109 Jl 23 '14 400w

"Never has George Moore, Kleinmeister, appeared so easily master of his art."

+ — New Republic 1:26 N 28 '14 1400w

"Moore possesses the rare and delightful power of laughing at himself, which is an added charm to a book that gives its readers many hours of pleasure and much of the stuff of life." Hildegarde Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:273 Je 14 '14 1050w

"That these volumes of autobiography may have a more enduring and important place in literature than any of his novels is in the range of likelihood, for Mr. Moore himself seems to count for more than anything he has written."

+ Sat R 117:310 Mr 7 '14 650w

"We regret to say that it combines some very interesting, and even beautiful, passages with many which only a total absence of good taste could permit any one to publish."

+ — Spec 112:sup1069 Je '27 14 120w

MOORE, GEORGE FOOT. History of religions. (International theological lib.) *$2.50 Scribner 13-25397

v 1 "This volume is packed with facts. We doubt whether there is any one in the United States so competent as the author of this book to prepare such a book as this. It is, in brief, a compact statement of the history of the religions of China, Japan, Egypt, Babylonia and Assyria, India, Zoroasterism, the religion of the Greeks and that of the Romans."—Outlook

MOORE, GEORGE FOOT —Continued.

"It combines abundant learning with philosophic breadth of view and both with sympathetic insight." H: P. Smith

+ Am J Theol 18:419 J1 '14 420w

+ A L A Bkl 10:401 Je '14

Reviewed by G. Hodges

Atlan 113:680 My '14 500w

"Of the admirable series of volumes of the International theological library edited by Professor Briggs and Salmond not one deserves higher praise than 'History of religions.' It is a compact, solid volume, and behind it is the authority of a scholar unsurpassed in the country in the breadth and accuracy of his knowledge of oriental language and literature."

+ Ind 78:140 Ap 20 '14 600w

+ — Nation 99:282 S 3 '14 1000w

"The author has condensed into a volume of moderate size all that the average man, even if he must speak from the pulpit, needs to know about the great religions of the world that are not bound up in Christianity, and has summarized the religions of China and Japan, of Egypt, Babylonia and Assyria, of India, of Persia and of Greece and Rome so lucidly that the lay reader can comprehend them easily."

+ N Y Sun p4 D 20 '13 200w

"This book will be indispensable to any one who wishes in brief form an account of the religions with which it deals and will be valuable as a book of reference."

+ Outlook 106:48 Ja 3 '14 180w

MOORE, LESLIE. Peacock feather. $1.25 Putnam 14-1660

The story of a young man who shields a friend who has committed a crime and endures imprisonment in his stead. "Dickens writes of one shut out from houses, but holding 'the key of the street.' The hero of this romance holds something better, the key of the open. Repudiated by his father and renounced by his betrothed, he takes to the road, and the reader is made to share with him its scents and sounds, its large freedom and invigorating breezes. The love that soon comes furnishes new proof that 'when half gods go, the gods arrive,' and all ends just as it should." (N Y Times)

A L A Bkl 11:123 N '14 +

"If the elements of the story are conventional, their treatment is subtle and full of humour, while the style of the book is easy, and refreshing in its simplicity."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup643 N 29 90w

"The story is told gracefully and somewhat whimsically, according to the approved methods of its type, but there is enough reality to keep it within the bounds of satisfactory common sense."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 27 '14 260w

Cath World 99:249 My '14 200w

"The story is full of interest, and is told with much brightness and charm."

+ N Y Times 19:101 Mr 1 '14 300w

MOORE, THOMAS STURGE. Sea is kind. $1.50 Houghton

"This collection, we believe, is the first by Mr. Moore to be presented to American readers with an American imprint, though he has issued many books of verse during the past fifteen years. The present volume is made up of selections from some of the poet's previous books, while a third of it is entirely new." (Boston Transcript) "There is little that is modern in Mr. Moore's work, if by 'modern' one means the representation of the externals of contemporary life, but modern feeling is recorded in richly beautiful forms. For the symbols of his emotions Mr. Moore uses Greek stories or myths, but it is the essential inner core of the mystery rather than the outer trapping that appeals to him." (Dial)

+ Ath 1914,1:577 Ap 25 350w

Reviewed by W. A. Bradley

+ — Bookm 40:204 O '14 430w

"The poems are full of dignity and strength, and in many subjects there is an originality of treatment that is interesting. But this note is one of reserve, almost coldness. He is an uninspired Matthew Arnold."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 S 16 '14 430w

"The formal beauty of Mr. Moore's verse is based upon close rhythmic and sound harmonies. It is hardly possible that he will be called upon to bear the burden of popularity, but his rare qualities will continue inevitably to attract the lover of poetry." A. C. Henderson

+ Dial 57:253 O 1 '14 270w

+ — Lit D 49:1290 D 26 '14 200w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 99:654 D 3 '14 550w

"Mr. Moore is a difficult poet. He has not even the great human appeal of Browning, which burns up, as it were, the masses of waste matter about it. He is not popular, here or in England, and it is not likely that he ever will be." Helen Bullis

+ — N Y Times 20:33 Ja 31 '15 400w

"We admire, but are not greatly moved by, 'The sea is kind.'"

+ — Sat R 117:478 Ap 11 '14 190w

+ Spec 113:58 J1 11 '14 100w

MOQUÉ, MRS. ALICE LEE (HORNOR). Delightful Dalmatia. il $2 (2c) Funk 14-18398

A very personal account of a summer cruise along the coast of Dalmatia. The author takes us into her confidence and tells us that this was her ninth annual wedding tour. Many little intimate details concerning herself and "John" and gossip about fellow travelers enliven the narrative, but on the whole, the book is full of information about the country and will serve as a guide to others who may be persuaded by it to visit this Adriatic paradise.

+ A L A Bkl 11:216 Ja '15

Dial 57:458 D 1 '14 180w

+ — Ind 81:214 F 8 '15 140w

+ Lit D 49:1188 D 12 '14 150w

"It speaks well for the author that, despite her provoking interpolations of personalities, she has contrived to convey some of this charm to the reader."

+ — Nation 100:27 Ja 7 '15 250w

"A vivacious narrative that gives an informing picture of the land so pleasing that it seems to merit the 'delightful' of the title."

+ N Y Times 19:531 N 29 '14 110w

+ — Outlook 109:295 F 3 '15 80w

MORDAUNT, ELINOR, pseud. (MRS. EVELYN M. [CLOWES] WIEHE). Bellamy. $1.35 (1c) Lane 14-16948

The author has no illusion about her hero, Walter Bonnet Bellamy, who was a charlatan and a trickster from boyhood. If she offers excuses for him at all it is by saying that he was never consciously immoral, he was simply non-moral. "Or, rather, he was like an actor who carries every detail of his art into his own life: with such completeness that often enough he was honestly unable to distinguish between the true and the false." Two people see thru Walter: Jane, the friend of his boyhood and mill days in Staffordshire; and Francis Gale, the derelict gentleman and scholar who becomes the companion of his London experience. For more than half of the story the scene is laid in Edge, a silk weaving village in the north of England; for the latter half it moves to London where new successes and failures await Bellamy, after which there is a final return to Edge and to Jane, who cares for him and very frankly asks herself why.

"A capable study of the base product which the self-made man of an industrial system may become."

+ — Ath 1914,2:353 O 10 270w

"Bellamy is an interesting character, but it is the clever, ironical tone of the author, and her power in handling her material, that makes the story what it is."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 350w

Ind 80:291 N 23 '14 60w

"'Lu of the ranges' is in many respects an excellent novel, but, 'Bellamy' is a far better one, better written and better constructed. Its sureness of touch, the ease with which it reads, reveal something of the conscientious labor which must have been expended upon it; nothing is slurred, nothing left unfinished. Unlike so many novels, 'Bellamy' is worth a careful and an attentive reading."

+ N Y Times 19:412 O 4 '14 670w

"There have been few bits of writing in recent fiction as good or as comprehensive as Miss Mordaunt's account of the workers' life in the silk factories of North Staffordshire."

+ Spec 113:720 N 21 '14 210w

MORECROFT, JOHN HAROLD. Continuous and alternating current machinery. il *$1.75 Wiley 14-3750

"This book is one of the Wiley technical series designed to meet the needs of vocational and industrial schools. It is, therefore, an elementary work, which, nevertheless, could well be used in engineering colleges for those courses in electrical machinery planned for civil engineering students. It is sufficiently complete to give an idea of the theory, purpose, construction and operation of the chief continuous and alternating-current machines."—Engin Rec

"As an elementary textbook for use in technical high schools and similar institutions this book has many excellent features. The matter is well arranged, the explanations are clear and the illustrations are good. Rather more space might perhaps have been given to an explanation of the physical meaning of reactance in alternating-current circuits."

+ — Elec W 64:41 Jl 4 '14 250w

"There is a preparatory chapter on alternating-current theory which shows care and ability in presenting concepts which are ordinarily grasped by younger students with difficulty."

+ Engin N 71:1392 Je 18 '14 450w

"The book, obviously, is also of value for practicing civil engineers for reference purposes."

+ Engin Rec 69:375 Mr 28 '14 150w

"Although the treatment is of an elementary kind and includes very few formulas, it is very thorough." D: Robertson

+ Nature 94:142 O 8 '14 280w

MOREY, CHARLES RUFUS. East Christian paintings in the Freer collection. (Univ. of Michigan studies. Humanistic ser., v. 12) il *$2.50 (9c) Macmillan 14-20409

A description of pictures from some of the valuable illustrated manuscripts in the collection of Charles L. Freer of Detroit. They are: Two miniatures from a manuscript of St. John Climacus; Eight miniatures from a manuscript of the gospels; and The painted covers of the Washington manuscript of the gospels.

"All of the illustrations under review bear the character of the age and school to which they belong, and most of them from the standpoint of art are crudely done; yet they are interesting and instructive in the interpretation and symbolism which they show."

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ja 7 '15 270w

"It is a book that any artist would prize." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 16 '15 550w

"The whole book is a delightful monument of both art and learning." E. J. G.

+ Class J 10:185 Ja '15 470w

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. Boy electrician. 12 il *$2 Lothrop 14-14613

A practical handbook for the boy of scientific and mechanical bent. The principles of electricity are explained in the early chapters; then there are directions for making electrical apparatus of every sort from the electric bell to wireless telephone and telegraph, an electric railway and a miniature lighting plant. The book is well supplied with the necessary illustrations and diagrams.

A L A Bkl 11:128 N '14

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:452 D '14 20w

"This is an admirably complete and explicit hand-book for young boys who fall under the spell of experimenting and 'tinkering' with electrical apparatus."

+ Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 120w

+ Ind 80:416 D 14 '14 50w

"A practical book."

+ N Y Times 19:417 O 4 '14 25w

MORGAN, BARBARA SPOFFORD. Backward child: a study of the psychology and treatment of backwardness; a practical manual for teachers and students; with an introd. by Elizabeth E. Farrell. *$1.25 (3c) Putnam 14-4897

The author treats of the backward child, i. e., the child who stands on the border-line between the normal and feeble-minded, and proposes a series of tests by means of which the nature of this deficiency may be determined. "In the make-up of every backward child a specific cause lies at the root of his retardation," she says, making it evident that the first step must be the determination of the specific cause. "The direct way to make such a determination is by mental analysis. . . . The scheme of mental analysis set forth in the following pages equips the teacher with the means to find out where a child's mind is at fault. While it uses some of the classic Binet and Simon tests, the point of departure is entirely different." (Chapter 1)

"Semi-popular, suggestive to student and teacher."

+ A L A Bkl 11:11 S '14

"The book deserves the careful consideration of all who have any responsibility for the education of children."

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 350w

Cath World 99:549 Jl '14 150w

"Both the psychology and the pedagogy of the volume are casual; and many of the analyses are given with an assurance that finds slight support in sound principle; nor are the available finds of psychology adequately utilized. Measured by the standards of recent contributions, the volume deserves a prominent place in the teacher's library."

+ Dial 57:25 Jl 1 '14 300w

School R 22:567 O '14 90w

"The book is commended to the teachers of backward children. We should like to see its study made obligatory on every teacher, principal, and school superintendent." Alexander Johnson

+ Survey 32:436 Jl 25 '14 670w

MORGAN, REV. J. VYRNWY. Philosophy of Welsh history. *$4 Lane

"The question of home rule for Wales, already peeping over the horizon of English politics, gets much consideration in 'The philosophy of Welsh history.' The book takes up certain important historical events, but concerns itself chiefly with their sociological and religious import, and is specially interested in the chauvinistic tendencies of some present-day Welshmen."—N Y Times

"Contains little history and perhaps less philosophy." T. F. T.

— Eng Hist R 29:622 Jl '14 70w

N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 100w

"The historical portions of Dr. Morgan's book are excellently written, and there is a very useful chronological table."

+ Sat R 117:806 Je 20 '14 250w

MORGAN, THOMAS HUNT. Heredity and sex. 3 il *$1.75 (3½c) Columbia univ. press 13-24756

"In this volume Dr. Morgan unites two lines of scientific research which have long been working in comparative independence of each other—the study of the cell in its relation to problems of heredity, and the study of heredity as bearing on the analysis of germinal materials." (N Y Times) He discusses the evolution of sex, sex-determination, the Mendelian principles of heredity and their bearing on sex, and in his discussion of secondary sexual characteristics presents evidence that tends to con-ute Darwin's theory of sexual selection.

MORGAN, THOMAS HUNT—Continued.

"It is a fascinating subject and is treated by the author in a most thorough and yet vivacious manner." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 20 '13 1100w

"The book measurably approaches the standards for the popularization of science set by such men as Tyndall, Clifford, and Huxley. A higher recommendation of the book to the reader could not be given." Raymond Pearl

+ Dial 56:145 F 16 '14 1090w

+ Educ R 47:532 My '14 40w

"The volume contains a great mass of interesting material."

+ Ind 78:256 My 11 '14 630w

+ Nation 99:667 D 3 '14 300w

+ Nature 93:347 Je 4 '14 300w

+ N Y Times 18:670 N 30 '13 300w

MORISON, SAMUEL ELIOT. Life and letters of Harrison Gray Otis, Federalist, 1765-1848. 2v il $36 Houghton 13-23631

"The career of Harrison Gray Otis covers the period during which Massachusetts Federalism played its part in our history and passed to its decay. It is described by Mr. Morison, a descendant of Otis, with fairness and ability. It may be said that the biographer does not overestimate the importance of his subject." (Nation) "Mr. Morison . . . has had access to large collections of family papers hitherto little used, including a number of private collections in the hands of Otis's friends or correspondents. Otis's own letters, principally to his wife, are used freely in the text; those appended to the several chapters, on the other hand, are chiefly those of his correspondents. Quite aside from their significance for Otis's own career, the volumes throw valuable light on the careers of some of his contemporaries." (Am Hist R)

"There need be little hesitation, I think, in greeting Mr. Morison's volumes as one of the most important contributions to American political biography that has lately appeared. In the range and accuracy of its scholarship, the judicial candor of its appraisals, and the general breadth of its historical view the work leaves little to be desired." W. MacDonald

+ Am Hist R 19:655 Ap '14 1900w

"A scholarly contribution to American political biography, but too expensive for any save large or special collections."

+ A L A Bkl 10:360 My '14

"The volumes contain a number of letters that are not without value to the student of early New England politics."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:291 My '14 80w

"Very readable and throws many illuminating sidelights upon American history during the first three decades of the constitutional period." E. R. Johnson

+ Ann Am Acad 52:257 Mr '14 330w

+ Ath 1914,2:304 S 26 1800w

"This biography may well stand as a model of its kind, although Professor Morison has been particularly favored in having access to unprinted material." G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 5 '13 1650w

+ Eng Hist R 29:799 O '14 320w

"Mr. Morison has done the difficult task of writing a good book about a small man in such a way that it will please the general reader and be useful to specialists."

+ Nation 98:184 F 19 '14 1450w

"It is not only as the biography of an important figure in public affairs, but also as a running commentary upon the social life of the early administrations, that this work arouses interest."

+ N Y Times 19:771 Ja 4 '14 1100w

"He has kept a true balance in showing the far-reaching effect of Otis's achievements and mistakes. Altogether he has given intense human interest to one of the most vigorous and fascinating figures of the constitutional group."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 300w

MORITZ, ROBERT ÉDOUARD. Memorabilia mathematica, or, The philomath's quotation-book. $3 (2½c) Macmillan 14-7324

This book is made up of "over one thousand more or less familiar passages pertaining to mathematics, by poets, philosophers, historians, statesmen, scientists and mathematicians." These quotations which are gathered from over three hundred authors, are grouped under such headings as: Definitions and object of mathematics; The nature of mathematics; Estimates of mathematics; The value of mathematics; The teaching of mathematics; etc. A carefully prepared index provides the needed key to the book's varied contents.

"Much information and no small entertainment can be had by turning over its pages."

+ Educ R 48:326 N '14 70w

"Careful compilation."

+ Ind 78:256 My 11 '14 20w

"It is difficult to imagine how any scholar, much less any student or teacher of mathematics, could fail to find delight and instruction in this admirable book."

+ Nation 99:320 S 10 '14 200w

+ Nature 94:144 O 8 '14 250w

"It is difficult to imagine that any teacher, student or scholar could fail to find instruction and delight in this book of gems." C. J. Keyser

+ Science n s 40:559 O 16 '14 400w

MORLEY, EDITH JULIA, ed. Women workers in seven professions. $2 Dutton 14-11163

"This is a survey of the economic conditions and prospects of women in various professions, prepared under the auspices of the Studies committee of the Fabian women's group. Professor Morley has enjoyed the co-operation of many women who are themselves earning a living in the way which they describe, so that it may be taken that the facts are accurate and up to date. The seven professions are teaching, medicine and dentistry, nursing, sanitary work, civil service, clerical and secretarial work, and acting." —Spec

"There can be no hesitation in recommending this book both to those who desire to investigate the conditions of women's public work in various directions and to those who are hesitating in their choice of a career."

+ Ath 1914,1:405 Mr 21 650w

+ Boston Transcript p21 S 2 '14 450w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:915 Jl '14 70w

Ind 79:30 Jl 6 '14 100w

"The book is well worth the consideration of all college and university officials who are undertaking to give vocational guidance to undergraduate students, and it would certainly furnish enlightenment to boards of trustees of colleges and universities and those who are responsible for the selection of capable civil servants." S. P. Breckinridge

+ J Pol Econ 22:808 O '14 970w

"The book is excellently documented, and reflects much credit upon the authors of the various essays—as upon the editor herself—for the calm and scientific spirit that it displays."

+ Nation 99:664 D 3 '14 270w

N Y Times 19:325 Jl 26 '14 150w

Spec 112:445 Mr 14 '14 120w

"The book is very exhaustive in detail of preparation, placement, duties, opportunities, and salaries. It is interesting and vivid in multiplied illustration of actual incidents and is vigorous and wise in comment and counsel." M. S. Snow

+ Survey 32:551 Ag 29 '14 200w

MORLEY, JOHN MORLEY, viscount. Notes<sup>2</sup> on politics and history. *$1 (3½c) Macmillan 14-1788

A lecture delivered at the University of Manchester served as the basis for this essay. In it Lord Morley points out some of the contrasts "between the past and the present, between radicalism and conservatism, between what certain extremely modern theorists are pleased to call the progressive and the reactionary outlook upon government. . . . It is as a series of discursive ideas and impressions, rather than as a coherent and constructive view of the theory of government that Lord Morley sends his little volume on its way around the world." (Boston Transcript)

+ Am Econ R 4:632 S '14 60w

Reviewed by W: R. Thayer

+ Am Hist R 19:839 Jl '14 800w

+ A L A Bkl 10:315 Ap '14

+ Ann Am Acad 55:283 S '14 100w

"It covers a wide field of reflection, and shows all Lord Morley's command of aphorism and quotation."

+ Ath 1913,2:657 D 6 50w

"Admirably balanced alike in style and thought, they represent the mind of the philosopher in politics, compared with whom the ordinary political hand, whether in Parliament or out of it, is a sophist in the ancient Greek sense."

+ Ath 1914,1:192 F 7 1500w

Reviewed by G: Middleton

+ Bookm 33:83 Mr '14 1280w

"A book that touches the acts and that sounds the conscience of mankind." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 7 '14 1600w

"Interesting but superficial essay."

+ Cath World 99:833 S '14 190w

"It is a small volume, but one that must be given a place among the well-prized acquisitions of the library." L. E. Robinson

+ Dial 56:459 Je 1 '14 1950w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:691 Ap '14 40w

+ Ind 78:493 Je 15 '14 100w

"No summary can do justice to Lord Morley's survey, because it cannot reproduce the mellowness of his temper, or his sagacity and breadth of view, or his clear style. It would be hard to name a modern book of similar weight and significance that is written so simply. We note two or three slips in proof-reading."

+ Nation 98:333 Mr 26 '14 680w

+ N Y Times 19:69 F 15 '14 750w

"A book well worth reading as an example of the author's forceful style."

+ R of Rs 49:376 Mr '14 100w

"Illuminating address." C.

+ Spec 112:60 Ja 10 '14 1650w

MORLEY, MARGARET WARNER. Will o' the wasps. Il $1.25 (4½c) McClurg 14-1475

Miss Morley who has written about the "Bee people" and the "Honey-makers," writes this book for children about the wasps. Uncle Will knew so much about wasps that his little nephew Theodore gave him the nickname of the title, and the boys and girls who read the story will learn a great deal, too, just as Theodore did.

"'Will o' the wasps,' as small Theodore calls his Uncle Will, tells their story in a delightful fashion, while the drawings which nearly every page holds make even clearer the curious habits of the little winged creatures of the white and blue and yellow 'jackets.'"

+ Boston Transcript p6 Jl 11 '14 350w

"The style is conversational, almost as tiresome to the grown-up reviewer as it must be to the child."

+ Nation 99:696 D 10 '14 70w

MORRIS, CHARLES. One hundred years of conflict between the nations of Europe: the causes and issues of the great war. Il $1.50 (1c) Winston 14-18093

Believing that the causes of the present war lie far back in history, the author has prepared a series of chapters that trace the history of the European nations from the outbreak of the Napoleonic wars to the present. This historic account is prefaced by four general chapters: All Europe plunged into war; Underlying causes of the great European war; Strength and resources of the warring powers; Pan-Slavism versus Pan-Germanism. In a final chapter, Methods in modern warfare, the author predicts the end of autocracy in Europe. The work is fully illustrated.

"For one, however, who wishes to go over the events of European history, especially of the last few months, and to study the statistics of the warring nations, this rather lengthy volume would serve adequately." G. G. Wyant

+ Bookm 30:317 N '14 110w

"This work should prove of value to those who desire to have instantly available a large amount of information concerning the various phases of the present European war."

+ N Y Times 19:410 O 4 '14 380w

MORRIS, GOUVERNEUR. Incandescent Lily, and other stories. *$1.25 (1½c) Scribner 14-9083

Ten short stories make up the contents of this book. They are: The incandescent Lily; The custody of the child; The championship; Tango taught in ten teachings; You can't get away with it; A perfect gentleman of Pelham Bay park; Legay Pelham's headache; The Bostonian; Legay Pelham's protégée; The back seat.

"The author has that somewhat elusive quality of knowing the exact point at which to end a story, and the ability to leave enough to pique the imagination of the reader. One of the best stories in the collection, with a strong note of pessimism, is 'You can't get away with it.'"

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 300w

+ Ind 79:29 Jl 6 '14 150w

"The stories are without exception interesting, finished in execution, unmarred by smartness, and undistinguished in final effect."

+ Nation 98:728 Je 18 '14 220w

"One rarely meets stories that glow with such delicate fancy and are at the same time instinct with vital meanings. Mr. Morris shows himself a past master of the difficult art of short-story writing."

+ N Y Times 19:235 My 17 '14 430w

MORRIS, WILLIAM. Collected works of William Morris; with introd. by his daughter, May Morris. 24v v 17-22 per set *$75 Longmans

v 17-22 "The four volumes [17-20] contain 'The wood beyond the world,' 'The well at the world's end,' 'The water of the wondrous isles,' and several of the shorter prose romances. They are part of the marvelous improvisation that went on in Morris's busy brain in the intervals between his socialist propaganda and his occupation with the Kelmscott press." (Nation) Volume 21 contains "The sundering flood" and several fragments of unfinished work. Volume 22 is made up of "Hopes and fears for art," and "Lectures on art and industry."

"Miss Morris's introductions to these volumes will have a special value for the students of the political and economic movements of the latter years of the nineteenth century."

+ Ath 1913,2:619 N 29 900w (Review of v 17-20)

+ Ath 1915,1:44 Ja 16 700w (Review of v 21 and 22)

+ Nation 98:189 F 19 '14 650w (Review of v 17-20)

MORRIS, WILLIAM—Continued.

+ Sat R 116:624 N 15 '13 180w (Review of v 17-29)

MORSE, SAMUEL FINLEY BREESE. Samuel F. B. Morse: his letters and journals, ed. and supplemented by his son Edward Lind Morse. 2v il *$7.50 (2½c) Houghton 14-20885

With the exception of a one volume "life" written shortly after Morse's death, we have had no authoritative biography of the inventor of the electric telegraph. This selection from his letters and journals, in two volumes, comes to fill the gap. Morse is revealed as a man of great versatility. It is not generally known that his early years were given to the study of painting and that he achieved some distinction as an artist. His son says, "He would have been an eminent man in his day had he never invented the telegraph; but it is of absorbing interest, in following his career, to note how he was forced to give up one ambition after another, to suffer blow after blow which would have overwhelmed a man of less indomitable perseverance, until all his great energies were impelled into the one channel which ultimately led to undying fame." (Preface)

+ — Ath 1915,1:52 Ja 16 1050w

"The story of the life of this remarkable man is told in a graphic manner, that will wholly absorb the attention of the reader." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p24 D 2 '14 1550w

Reviewed by J. J. Walsh

+ Cath World 100:625 F '15 4500w

"Of course it will be accepted as the final and authoritative life of the inventor, as it is also one of the most notable biographies of the year." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 57:447 D 1 '14 1900w

MOTHER in exile. *$1.35 (1c) Little 14-11529

She who tells her own pathetic story is a Frenchwoman, who in early girlhood married a Scotchman stationed in India. A few years of perfect happiness are followed by adverse fortunes, estrangement from her husband, and finally the loss of her children, who are taken from her by her husband's people to be brought up in Scotland. She writes the story for a daughter who has grown to womanhood without knowledge of her mother's tragedy.

"Such a record as that of the 'Mother in exile' cannot make any great appeal under its guise of fiction. As fiction pure and simple, a diary or a series of letters cannot well have a universal interest: the art employed must become too evident, must obscure the personal note which alone has weight."

+ — Ath 1914,1:791 Je 5 580w

"The most noticeable thing about the story, with the sole exception of the deep and abiding sense of tragedy, is the way in which it convinces us. We hear only one side of the story, and yet we feel thoroughly convinced."

+ — Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 400w

MOTT, JOHN RALEIGH, ed. Continuation committee conferences in Asia, 1912-13. $2 J: R. Mott, 124 E. 28th St., N. Y.

This Continuation committee was appointed at the world missionary conference held in Edinburgh in 1910. "Mr. Mott as chairman was requested 'to give a considerable portion of his time to the work of the committee, and its special committees; to visit mission fields; to acquaint missionaries and native leaders with the work and plans of the Continuation committee; to study how missionary bodies on the field and their committee may be brought into mutually helpful relations.' The chairman with his usual industry and efficiency has carried out the suggestion of his colleagues. Twenty-one conferences have been held and this volume of 488 pages contains an account of these conferences, together with their findings and lists of members. The subjects were: Occupation; Evangelization; The Christian church; Christian leadership; The training of missionaries; Christian education; Christian literature; Co-operation; Medical work; Women's work; Occasional topics." (Bib World)

"All Christians will rejoice at this indispensable step forward in the scientific study of the greatest of all subjects."

+ Bib World 43:350 My '14 300w

"To the educator or teacher who desires to see education accomplish its aims for the solution of the national problems of Asia, which may some day have a far more intimate concern for us than most of us at present realize, this book should be of special interest." T. H. P. Sailer

+ Educ R 47:305 Mr '14 1350w

"This volume is by no means easy reading, and will be valueless for the careless reader. It is a book for specialists who are eager to know the latest convictions concerning missionary methods and policies. Its catholicity attracts such readers."

+ Missionary R 27:159 F '14 570w

MOULTON, JAMES HOPE. Religions and religion: a study of the science of religion, pure and applied. *$1.25 Meth. bk.

(Eng ed A13-2376)

"Last year Dr. Moulton delivered in England the forty-third Fernley lecture, and he chose for his subject 'Religions and religion.' Under this title he discussed the relationship of comparative religion to modern missions." (Boston Transcript) "Professor Moulton's treatment of the missionary problem, as such, is based upon his knowledge of the dealings of Christianity with the ancient religions and is always illuminating as a commentary upon what might be called the philosophy of missions." (Bib World)

Reviewed by H: P. Smith

+ — Am J Theol 18:417 Jl '14 480w

+ Ath 1913,2:155 Ag 16 50w

"The volume shows something of the discursiveness of half extemporaneous writing, but it is none the less marked by solid scholarship and sanity."

+ — Bib World 43:208 Mr '14 170w

"The book is scholarly and convincing, and written in the best of spirits."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 16 '13 450w

MOWAT, ROBERT BALMAIN. Wars of the roses, 1377-1471. il *$2 Appleton

(Eng ed A14-2824)

"The period covered is from one point of view shorter, from another longer, than the dates on the title-page would suggest. Mr. Mowat has found it indispensable to give a short résumé of the history of the first two Lancastrian kings, and of the early part of Henry VI's reign, in order to make his subsequent story intelligible; and he even goes back to the family settlement of Edward III as the seed-plot of the civil strife of the next century. He gives the detailed sequence of events only from 1450 to 1471; but he also surveys the latter part of the reign of Edward IV, and (though less fully) the circumstances of the accession of the Tudor dynasty." —Ath

"In spite of poor organization of material and errors of various sorts, students of English history will be inclined to welcome Mr. Mowat's study on account of its general correctness of viewpoint, its comparative impartiality, and its convenient size, character, and make-up as a work of reference. The index is fairly adequate and the eight genealogical tables, though inadequately provided with life dates, are useful and interesting." N. M. Trenholme

+ — Am Hist R 20:141 O '14 930w

"While almost everything of importance can be found in the extended treatises of Stubbs and Ramsay, and the material is not very well organized, it is fuller than Gairdner in the 'Epochs of history' series and will have a place as a convenient, comparatively impartial, and generally reliable short work of reference."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:166 D '14

"Useful monograph. We are not sure that Mr. Mowat is on firm ground in contesting the unfavourable opinion of Edward as a ruler which was held by Hallam and Stubbs."

+ — Ath 1914,1:265 F 21 1150w

"Accepting Mr. Mowat's point of view, we have in this volume a good and readable sketch of the period from 1400 to 1480, for in spite of the title it extends thus far. The treatment of the principle characters is generally fair and discriminating, though perhaps too much influence is attributed to Queen Margaret during her first years in England, and the personal share of Henry VI in government a little exaggerated. A more serious defect is the method of the citation of authorities." C. L. Kingsford

+ — Eng Hist R 29:757 O '14 600w

"A convenient and trustworthy guide for those who desire a short history of this confusing period. While he does not differ materially in his account from Stubbs, Gairdner, Ramsay, and Oman, he has added numerous incidents to illustrate the spirit of the age and has given some especially good character sketches."

+ Nation 98:578 My 14 '14 500w

"This somewhat pedestrian narrative shows a careful study of the printed sources, and owes much to Stubbs and Ramsay."

+ — Spec 112:618 Ap 11 '14 20w

MUIR, RAMSAY. Britain's case against Germany; an examination of the historical background of the German action in 1914.

*$1 Longmans 15-112

"Prof. Muir seeks to show that the deeds of Germany in 1914 are due to a theory of international politics—the belief that brute force is dominant—which has gripped the nation's mind since the middle of last century; that this theory is the outcome of Prussia's success in following it . . . that the policy of the German empire for twenty-five years is the natural sequel of earlier Prussian action, 'and has found its inevitable culmination in the monstrous war of 1914.' Prof. Muir finds that Germany precipitated the war, that war had long been intended by Germany, that Germany has conducted the war barbarously, that the violation of Belgium is a 'piece of treachery without parallel in modern history.'"—N Y Times

Boston Transcript p22 Ja 6 '15 750w

+ Nation 100:175 F 11 '15 140w

"Well-written, interesting, and informative book."

+ N Y Times 20:9 Ja 10 '15 950w

MULFORD, CLARENCE EDWARD. Coming of Cassidy—and the others. il $1.35 (1½c) McClurg 13-22509

"The coming of Cassidy" is the first of a group of fifteen short stories. "The scene is the Southwest in the seventies and eighties, when life there was not only rough and adventurous, but dangerous, when the Indians often threatened, and no man had any higher court to protect him than his Colt, which he used with deadly nonchalance. The actors in the stories are the different men of gold and dross who made up the cowpunchers, herders, and settlers of the region." (Boston Transcript)

"Of course the stories are sensational after the western sort, packed with vivid, crude, incessant action; they are not to be read to one who likes delicate situations and faints at the smell of blood."

+ — Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '13 230w

"They are good stories of their kind and far more vigorous than most of the ranch literature that is turned out."

+ N Y Sun p3 N 29 '13 90w

"The stories 'go' with vitality and vigor. They are among the best of their kind, reminding one of Lincoln's immortal dictum: 'For those who like this sort of thing this is just the sort of thing they will like.'"

+ — N Y Times 19:37 Ja 25 '14 120w

MUMBY, FRANK ARTHUR. Elizabeth and Mary Stuart: the beginning of the feud. il $3 Houghton 14-12398

"A companion volume to 'The girlhood of Queen Elizabeth.' Told as far as possible in contemporary letters, the narrative traces the growth of the feud between the Queens, shows the marriage with Darnley in a new light, and reveals many intrigues, amorous and political, which marked the early years of Elizabeth's reign."—Ath

"Needed only in large collections."

+ A L A Bkl 11:22 S '14

Ath 1913,2:sup396 O 11 60w

"His book combines all the fascination of history with the charm of biography and good letters."

+ — Ath 1914,1:549 Ap 18 1050w

"The atmosphere of the age is recreated vividly in the personal utterance of men and women who made up the fabric of events." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 18 '14 720w

+ Nation 99:109 J1 23 '14 200w

N Y Times 19:323 J1 26 '14 160w

+ Outlook 107:503 Je 27 '14 130w

Sat R 117:276 F 28 '14 630w

"Mr. Mumby is not a great historian, but he is a sensible compiler, with an eye for the picturesque and the dramatic elements in history. He knows how to select the telling passages in a letter or a document of state, and he links these together with the modicum of narrative that is needed to make them into a connected story"

+ Spec 112:445 Mr 14 '14 200w

MUNDY, TALBOT. Rung ho! $1.35 (1½c) Scribner 14-5473

A story of India at the beginning of the mutiny of 1857. It is the story of the "licking into shape" of a young officer who comes out, untried, to India, where his father had met a hero's death. Here he is taken in charge by Mahommed Gunga, a Rajput who had served the father, but who wanted to prove the son's worth before giving him his allegiance. Young Cunningham stands all the tests and is delightfully acclaimed a true son of his father. There is one girl in the story, and she, in sheer daring, and devotion to duty, is quite worthy of the young officer with whom she joins fortunes.

A L A Bkl 10:372 My '14

Ath 1914,1:sup874 Je 20 200w

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:681 Ag '14 450w

"The author draws his native characters exceedingly well, and it is easy to believe his local color is as correctly as it is liberally applied."

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 15 '14 230w

"Mr. Kipling could hardly have done it better, and Mrs. Steel could not have done it less than three times the space." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:423 My 16 '14 330w

"A stirring and unusually well written story."

+ Ind 80:65 O 12 '14 80w

"Mr. Mundy is by no means an unworthy pupil [of Kipling]. 'Rung ho!' is full of color and of swift and varied action."

+ Nation 98:501 Ap 30 '14 250w

"Talbot Mundy seems to know his India well, and especially the men of Rajputana. His account of them is clear and vivid and made with bared head. His pictures of the seething, reeking city are intimate and brilliant, sparing nothing of its horrors, but touched all through with Eastern glamour."

+ N Y Times 19:144 Mr 29 '14 680w

+ — Sat R 117:743 Je 6 '14 250w

MUNRO, HECTOR H. (SAKI, pseud.). Beasts and super-beasts. $1.25 (2c) Lane 14-17930

A collection of short sketches reprinted from the pages of the "Westminster gazette" and other English papers. They are very brief, hardly long enough to be dignified with the title of short stories, but some of them are clever and some are whimsical, and in their endings there is sometimes that sudden, surprising turn of events that we learned to look for in the stories of O. Henry.

MUNRO, HECTOR H.—Continued.

"Altogether, the book is an amusing collection of pleasant improbabilities, and should make a most appropriate gift for unduly practical materialists."

+ Ath 1914.2:15 J1 4 150w

"Each of Mr. Munro's tales has the distinction of an excellent style, an ingenious imagination and some indisputably sound thinking."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 230w

"One and all, the sketches are 'smart'—which is obviously all that the author meant them to be."

+ N Y Times 19:188 N 8 '14 350w

"With very few exceptions the sketches bear the test of reprinting and re-reading surprisingly well. The vein of acidity is too constantly in evidence; the plain person cannot subsist on a diet of perpetual olives."

+ — Spec 113:60 J1 11 '14 1250w

MUNRO, HECTOR H. (SAKI, pseud.). When William came. *$1.25 Lane 14-4065

This is a story of "London under the Hohenzollerns." The William of the title is William of Germany, and the action of the story takes place after a supposed German conquest. "When Murrey Yeovil returned to England from a hunting trip in Russia, followed by a long illness which laid him up in Finland, it was to find the British Isles annexed to the German crown as a sort of Reichsland—an Alsace-Lorraine washed by the North Sea instead of the Rhine. The King had retired with his court to Delhi, with most of his overseas dominions still subject to his sway. Many of the Tory families had emigrated, while others were shut up in their country houses. . . . London has become a bilingual city, garrisoned by German troops, cosmopolitan in sentiment, in which the obliterating process of 'time and tact' has worked wonders on a society already sapped by a denationalized culture. The Jews have become the dominant race. . . . The story ends with a description of an Imperial triumph shorn of its full rites by the stirring of discontent among the younger generation, and thus holds out a faint hope that the era of ignoble acquiescence will one day pass away." (Spec)

Ath 1913.2:sup613 N 29 100w

"The moral does not spoil the story. On the contrary, the moral is so cleverly coated with sugar that its medicinal qualities are never obtrusive. The book is not so savage as Swift's 'Gulliver' but it belongs to that category of great satires." H. C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p10 D 6 '13 250w

"Brilliant satire. Parts of the book are indescribably funny, but a serious intent runs throughout."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Mr 4 '14 500w

"As a story the novel is disconnected and fragmentary; as a social study it is at once logical, clever, and very amusing. 'When William came' is worth reading for one's self."

+ — N Y Times 19:96 Mr 1 '14 300w

Outlook 106:867 Ap 18 '14 20w

+ R of Rs 49:626 My '14 300w

Sat R 117:21 Ja 3 '14 420w

"We might easily fill a page of the 'Spectator' with the good sayings and epigrams which enliven the pages of 'When William came,' but inasmuch as its main aim is serious, we have purposely refrained from discounting the intellectual exhilaration to be derived from the study of this brilliant if disquieting romance."

+ Spec 111:1088 D 20 '13 1450w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 25 '14 420w

MUNSON, ARLEY. Jungle days. il *$2.50 (4½c) 2 Appleton 13-21034

The author says that when asked what prompted her to go out to India as a medical missionary she is tempted to answer in the words of the native women: "Kismet! It was my destiny. How else would I find peace?" She felt the mission call in childhood, and her later education was ordered with a view to service in the foreign field. This book gives a record of five years spent in India, where she worked chiefly among the women and children. Her descriptions of native customs are graphic, and she makes a fervent plea for the amelioration of the condition of women.

A L A Bkl 10:190 Ja '14

"The book is a remarkable record, well worth reading."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 250w

"Decidedly above the average 'missionary' book in vividness and interest. The chapters on well-known places such as Agra and Benares are far from strong, and might have been omitted without loss; but when the author is dealing with her own daily life and work and observation, the pages are genuinely instructive." F. B. R. Hellemes

+ — Dial 55:525 D 16 '13 500w

"The record wins sympathetic interest, and adds another worthy volume to the brilliant modern literature of foreign missions."

+ Lit D 48:629 Mr 21 '14 330w

"If the reader can put aside Western ideas in reading these interesting experiences he may get some conception of what India is. The photographs are good."

+ N Y Sun p4 O 4 '13 120w

+ Spec 112:sup1068 Je 27 '14 80w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. Psychology and social sanity. *$1.25 (1½c) Doubleday 14-7269

The author treats in this volume of "psychology's possible service to social sanity." His aim is "to show that our social difficulties are ultimately dependent upon mental conditions which ought to be cleared up with the methods of modern psychology." (Preface) The following ten chapters make up the contents: Sex education; Socialism; The intellectual underworld; Thought transference; The mind of the jurymen; Efficiency on the farm; Social sins in advertising; The mind of the investor; Society and the dance; Naive psychology.

"On the whole, although there are valuable tentative experiments and suggestions recorded in this popular presentation of applied psychology, it is a dubious claim of the publishers that the book is a reliable guide to the clarification of social issues." E. L. Talbert

+ — Am J Soc 20:409 N '14 1650w

"A book for anyone to read and take to heart."

+ A L A Bkl 10:402 Je '14

+ — Ath 1914.1:819 Je 13 700w

Reviewed by Brian Hooker

+ — Bookm 39:454 Je '14 1720w

"From 'The intellectual underworld,' 'The mind of the jurymen,' 'The mind of the investor,' 'Thought transference,' among the papers in this volume we draw practical help." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 1350w

"A lenient judge would comment upon the volume as an interesting collection of studies in a psychological vein, reflecting the views of a fertile mind. A critical view of the volume by the professor of psychology in Harvard university would deplore not the popularisation, but the journalistic concessions of the presentations dominated by the approving presence of the magazine reader. The critic conversant with the evidences of the author's scholarly abilities in other volumes would regret the more than occasional lapses from good taste and modest restraint."

+ — Dial 56:426 My 16 '14 500w

N Y Times 19:304 J1 5 '14 600w

+ R of Rs 50:118 J1 '14 260w

"All that he says is well worth reading."

+ Spec 112:sup1068 Je 27 '14 130w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Ag 6 '14 850w

"Somewhat academic, but well balanced and containing much sound common sense."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:187 J1 '14 40w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. Psychology, general and applied. *$1.75 (1c) Appleton 14-15196

The preface to this work outlines some of the points in which it departs from the usual textbook on psychology. It includes applied psychology as well as the general psychology to which texts are usually confined. It takes into account social as well as individual psychology. And finally it is not confined to descriptions and explanations; it considers the meaning of acts of mind and treats of them in a section called Purposive psychology. A negative feature of the book is that it omits a description of the structure of the brain and sense organs. The book is made up in three parts: Causal psychology; Purposive psychology; Applied psychology.

A L A Bkl 11:152 D '14

"One might mention instances where the author is led by the theoretical positions he maintains to uphold views not warranted by the evidence. A writer who displays such characteristics must not complain if his work fails to carry conviction, in some directions, even to one who acknowledges its brilliancy and suggestiveness."

+ Nation 19:586 N 12 '14 1100w

"This textbook is richer by far than many of the somewhat brilliant but empty essays on various aspects of our modern life with which the Harvard professor has surfeited the public in the last ten years; it holds the kernel of his best thought, and the fruit of a continuous and genuine scientific research, that it should be swamped and overclouded by a vast number of unnecessary words is most deplorable."

+ N Y Times 19:477 N 1 '14 1050w

"His book is chiefly noteworthy by reason of its lucid exposition of the possibilities of applied psychology, and its clear restatement of the principles of that 'causal psychology' which to its author used to be the whole of psychology."

+ Outlook 108:733 N 25 '14 250w

"A textbook of rare individuality and vigor." M. W. Calkins

+ Psychol Bull 12:38 Ja 15 '15 1250w

MÜNSTERBERG, HUGO. War and America. " $1 (2½c) Appleton 14-16240

A hastily written work brought out at the beginning of the war for the avowed purpose of justifying the ways of Germany to America. Professor Münsterberg believes that "America is ordained to be the great mediator in this world struggle, as the one great nation which is not immediately involved," and for this reason it should be enlightened as to the true causes of the war. His general thesis is "that the war was started by Russia and France and that Germany was in no way responsible."

"Too bitterly partisan to have permanent value, and interesting only as giving an individual point of view."

+ A L A Bkl 11:113 N '14

"Professor Münsterberg has written an able book defending his country, and though it opens with some bitterness there is on the whole little vituperation to antagonise the impartial reader." G. G. Wyant

+ Bookm 40:315 N '14 1250w

Cath World 100:541 Ja '15 1050w

"It appears to have been written by a superman for supermen, with a view to proving that Germany is under no need to observe ordinary morality."

+ Dial 57:343 N 1 '14 600w

"Professor Münsterberg is not careful of his facts and frequently exposes himself to the charge of misrepresentation, and either disregard for truth or ignorance of it. He does little better in matters of consistency and logic."

+ Ind 80:26 O 5 '14 1100w

"His method of argument seems directed at a singularly untrained public. He illustrates pretty nearly all the fallacies he has analysed in his entertaining book on judicial evidence. His major premises he never takes the pains to substantiate."

+ Nation 99:470 O 15 '14 1100w

+ New Republic 1:27 N 28 '14 750w

"As dullness is a charge which can never be brought against the Cambridge scholar with much chance of success, the thought which he has expended on the presentation of his case is a guarantee that the volume makes lively reading."

+ N Y Times 19:385 S 20 '14 1450w

Outlook 108:816 D 3 '14 60w

"So impressionistic and so replete with errors and misrepresentations—of which, by actual count, there are at least twenty-nine—that it is likely to do the German cause more harm than good." Carlton Hayes

+ Pol Sci Q 29:702 D '14 70w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ Pub W 86:2019 D 12 '14 950w

"His statement of the case for Germany is well reasoned and entirely plausible, if the reader admits the four major premises of his argument to be true."

+ R of Rs 50:633 N '14 500w

MUNTZ, W. S. Rome, St. Paul and the early church. *$1.40 (4c) Young ch.

The subject of this book "is the influence of Roman law on St. Paul's teaching and phraseology, and on the development of the church. In the past writers confined themselves mainly to Judaism as the chief source of the Apostle's teaching, and the fact that he was a Roman citizen as well as a Jew was too much neglected. . . . In the last chapters of his book Dr. Muntz turns to the Roman rule and the conceptions derived from it which were favorable to the growth of the Papacy, and considers the Canon law as a rival to the imperial jurisprudence."—Ath

"A rather discursive and disjointed treatment." C. H. M.

+ Am J Theol 19:147 Ja '15 210w

+ Ath 1914.1:sup256 F 14 800w

+ Sat R 116:688 N 29 '13 350w

MURPHY, MICHAEL C. Athletic training; ed. by E. R. Bushnell, with an introd. by R. Tait McKenzie. il *$1 Scribner 14-4218

"Because of his success in turning out intercollegiate, Olympic and world-champion athletes, Michael C. Murphy has been regarded as dean of the coaching profession. It was he who did pioneer work in pointing out the relation between athletic success and diet, the value of rubbing, bathing, and, in general, the vital importance of an all-round system of training. The result of his thought and work is now brought out in this little book."—R of Rs

"Better for the school boy than Hjertberg because of the adaptation of distances and weights to the boy's undeveloped strength."

+ A L A Bkl 10:402 Je '14

"It is a book to be read with pleasure and profit by any one interested in athletics. Even the man who has no desire to participate in sports will find many suggestions that will make middle age more comfortable."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 230w

"There is just enough of the why and wherefore to make reasonableness directly apparent."

+ Ind 78:258 My 11 '14 80w

+ R of Rs 49:764 Je '14 100w

MURPHY, THOMAS DOWLER. On Old-world highways. il *$3 Page 14-6012

The author "describes a motor tour from Land's End to John O' Groats in Britain and from St. Malo to Munich on the continent. Besides pointing out the places of historic and literary interest and commenting on customs there is incidentally much information about the tours that will be useful to those who follow

MURPHY, THOMAS DOWLER—Continued.
in the author's tire-tracks. There are sixteen color plates and many other illustrations and maps."—Ind

+ — Boston Transcript p7 J1 25 '14 480w

"The narrative is told in a humdrum way reminiscent of the drone of the cicada. It is not altogether uninteresting, but it is far from setting the blood to racing."

+ — Chaut 72:695 My 2 '14 300w

"The automobile has introduced a new form of travel-book represented at its best by 'On Old-world highways.'"

+ Ind 78:171 Ap 27 '14 80w

"There are a few errors when the author employs terms in other languages than English, but the information in general is both correct and accurate." H. Dick

+ — Pub W 85:1349 Ap 18 '14 400w

MURRAY, GILBERT. Euripides and his age.
2 (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) *50c
(1c) Holt 14-260

A book that is far removed from the usual academic and scholastic treatment of a classic theme. Dr. Murray writes of Euripides and his message for our modern age, and finds analogies between the ancient Greek dramatist and the modern Ibsen. Like every man who possesses real vitality, Euripides, he points out, was the resultant of two forces. He was first a child of a particular age, of a tradition. He was secondly a rebel against that tradition. The tradition against which he rebelled, the Periclean, was in many ways similar to the Victorian against which present-day rebels now turn. The book is a study of the age in which Euripides lived, fifth century Athens; of his reaction against it; and of his use of the prevailing art form of the period, the tragic drama.

"While popular enough for the general reader, it affords the classical student an excellent perspective of Euripides' work as a whole and of the constructive ritual of Greek drama."

+ A L A Bkl 10:315 Ap '14

"Prof. Murray writes easily, with an attractive admixture of epigram, and should put the intelligent reader in the way of understanding the modern views of Euripides."

+ Ath 1913,2:504 N 1 60w

"A charming little study which worthily sustains the claim that the books of this library are written by recognized authorities. And Professor Murray is that rara avis, a scholar who can write to be understood of the people. He wears his vast learning lightly in this brilliant and seminal little book." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 8 '13 400w

"No one can fail to understand 'Euripides and his age' after reading it." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 7 '14 1500w

+ Chaut 72:573 Mr 21 '14 70w

"A highly stimulative study of the poet and his period. Professor Murray always writes freshly and with enthusiasm, and in going over ground which has often been trodden before he is never trite, but always suggestive and original." Lawrence Solomon

+ Hibbert J 12:466 Ja '14 1150w

"Brilliant and fascinating study."

+ Ind 78:142 Ap 20 '14 60w

+ Nation 99:48 J1 9 '14 170w

"The book is both authoritative and interesting."

+ Outlook 107:319 Je 6 '14 70w

"An excellent piece of work by a specialist on his special subject."

+ Sat R 116:658 N 22 '13 330w

"It proves to deserve a first place anywhere."

+ Spec 113:sup446 O 3 '14 220w

MURRAY, J. ALAN. Chemistry of cattle feeding and dairying. il *$1.75 Longmans A14-1133

"This book discusses briefly (1) the constituents of plants and animals, (2) the nutritive requirements of animals, (3) feeding stuffs and (4) dairy chemistry. The treatment is, in the main, elementary in character. The distinctive feature is an attempt to break away from the Wolff and the Kellner feeding standards, especially in recognition of the fact that the nutritive requirements of animals do not vary directly as the live weight."—Science

"Altogether the book is one that cannot fail to be useful." E. J. R.

+ — Nature 93:554 J1 30 '14 370w

"The point of view is rational, and the tentative formulae suggested for the separate computation of food requirements for maintenance, labor, milk production, growth and fattening constitute a notable step in a direction in which progress is much to be desired. The discussion of the chemistry of the subject is generally satisfactory. The author's statements regarding the functions of the mineral elements, and regarding other matters of physiology and histology, are frequently lacking in discrimination." E. B. Forbes

+ — Science n s 40:486 O 2 '14 700w

MURRAY, SIR JOHN. The ocean: a general account of the science of the sea. (Home univ. lib.) il *50c (1c) Holt 14-2947

The author was a member of the "Challenger" expedition, 1872-76, which made the first scientific deep-sea investigation. He has also been a member of later expeditions of like character, and he therefore writes of oceanography with authority. His chapters take up: Historic notes; methods and instruments of deep-sea research; The depth of the ocean; The waters of the ocean; salinity, temperature, compressibility, pressure, colour, etc.; Oceanic circulation; Life in the ocean; Marine deposits; The geospheres. A bibliography, a glossary, plates, maps, etc. are given in appendices.

"Terse, clear, authoritative and non-technical, for the general reader."

+ A L A Bkl 10:315 Ap '14

+ Ath 1913,2:531 N 8 30w

+ Boston Transcript p6 F 14 '14 180w

"Within the compass of 256 pages of thirty lines each we have perhaps the most concise and the most scientific account of this immense subject that has yet been written, set forth in language that the reader most unfamiliar with the subject can grasp with perfect facility."

+ Nature 93:586 Ag 6 '14 220w

+ Spec 112:sup1062 Je 27 '14 20w

MURSELL, WALTER A. Byways in bookland; 2 confessions and digressions. *$1.25 Houghton

"In his opening paper entitled 'The birth of a book-lover,' Walter A. Mursell tells us that the love for books and the reading of books was born in him. . . . 'I was born reading a book catalogue,' he writes in a mood of pardonable hyperbole, 'and life really began for me when I purchased my first book with my own money.' . . . Several of Mr. Mursell's chapters are given over one after another to the expression of his delight in certain writers. In 'The Greatheart of bookland,' he writes of Dickens, in 'The Peter Pan of bookland' of Stevenson, while a greater part of 'A recent byway' he gives to his admiration of the romantic fiction of Henry Seton Merriman."—Boston Transcript

"It admits us at once to that unaffiling fellowship of books which is a sure refuge in times of prolonged suspense."

+ Ath 1914,2:448 O 31 870w

Reviewed by Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:567 Ja '15 110w

"If we must read books about books, we can have none livelier or more inspiring than Mr. Mursell's." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 14 '14 830w

"Consists of a series of 'confessions and digressions,' informal and intimate and altogether delightful."

+ Dial 58:23 Ja 1 '15 270w

MUSSABINI, S. A., and RANSOM, CHARLES.
 "Complete athletic trainer. il $2 Dutton

"This work rightly claims to present 'the thousand and one little details which go to perfect runners of all grades and distances, walkers, hurdlers, jumpers, hammer-throwers, and shot-putters,' and, viewed from that standpoint, it is an admirable handbook." (Ath) "Mr. Mussabini, who is infinitely more British than his name, boldly says that no physical culture anywhere in the world surpasses or even equals the old-fashioned English training. His prescription for success in international competitions is simply to revive the days that have been." (Spec)

"For any one who possesses the ambition to become a 'Marathon winner' this is just the book."

+ Ath 1913.2:380 O 11 140w

"A clear and full exposition of the methods of the best English trainers."

+ N Y Times 19:147 Mr 29 '14 60w

Spec 111:920 N 29 '13 900w

MY wife's hidden life. *$1.25 Rand 13-26685

"The husband in the case is an everyday Englishman who falls in love with a rare type of woman. . . . The one discordant note in their life together is Maud Lacy, a bold, heartless young person whom he had previously courted, and who is slow in relinquishing her claims. . . . At first the husband rebels, then gradually succumbs to her demands, and in a short time is leading a double life. This is all told by the husband, and it is curious to observe his mental attitude as he becomes more and more entangled. His confessions end with the death of his wife, brought on by the shock of reading one of Maud's letters. The wife's hidden life of disillusionment, loneliness and sorrow are revealed in her diary."—Pub W

"It is well done, but one cannot help feeling that in real life these two persons, who were in no way vitally antagonistic, would have discussed the situation together, and not allowed minor misunderstandings to form a barrier between them."

+ — Ath 1913.2:381 O 11 70w

Ind 77:419 Mr 23 '14 60w

"There is an intimate and real quality about this book, which will make a direct appeal to all readers who like to get a glimpse of the human soul as it passes through the various phases of life and its problems." F. M. Holly

+ Pub W 85:1347 Ap 18 '14 280w

"Poor stuff."

— Sat R 116:497 O 18 '13 100w

MYERS, GUSTAVUS. History of Canadian wealth. 2v v 1 $1.50 Kerr 14-3274

v 1 "The first volume gives an account of the rise of the Hudson's Bay company and its long-continued dominance of the northwest, the period of railway promotion and building in Canada, and the appropriation of coal, timber, and other lands. Those who have cherished the fancy that concentration of wealth is a phenomenon peculiar to the United States should ponder well Mr. Myers's estimate that less than fifty men control more than one-third of Canada's wealth as expressed in railways, banks, factories, mines, land, and other properties and resources."—R of Rs

"Mr. Myers's work indicates great care and a large amount of very painstaking research. It is withal very interesting, particularly in its analysis of the reasons for many curious legal manners and customs peculiar to Canada."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 450w

"An excellent survey."

+ Nation 99:22 Jl 2 '14 250w

"Mr. Myers's books are recommended only to admirers of the muck-raking school, because only they believe that the masses are poor because of unwillingness to imitate the vices attributed to the rich. That doctrine is the root of much envy, hatred, and uncharitableness, and is noxious rather than meritorious in its effects. This is said without disparagement of the apparent effort of Mr. Myers to be accurate. His facts are not denied, but his inferences from them will not be admitted generally. All he says may be true, and yet there are other offsetting facts which compensate for the blemishes disclosed."

— + N Y Times 19:301 Jl 5 '14 950w

Reviewed by E. Porritt

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:522 S '14 530w

+ R of Rs 49:508 Ap '14 140w

N

NANSEN, FRIDTJOF. Through Siberia, the land of the future; tr. by Arthur G. Chater. il $5 (3½c) Stokes (Eng ed 14-30976)

The purpose of the expedition of which Dr. Nansen was a member was the investigation of a possible sea route between western Europe and central Siberia by way of the Kara sea and the Yenisei River. The resources of this country are wonderful but their development depends on transportation facilities. The author went as a guest of the leader of the expedition, Jonas Lied, and as his interests are not primarily related to business matters his book is not confined to the economic problem which engaged the other members of the party. Indeed he parted company with them after the journey up the Yenisei to continue eastward to Vladivostok. The book leaves an impression of the vastness and wonder of the country it describes. Some of the photographs are beautiful and many of them, showing native life, are of great value. There are three folding maps and an index.

"Nothing else on Siberia is so full and up to date."

+ A L A Bkl 11:216 Ja '15

"Best work on Siberia."

+ Ind 80:288 N 23 '14 40w

+ Outlook 109:347 F 10 '15 430w

+ R of Rs 50:760 D '14 130w

"Dr. Nansen has extracted the human interest out of his subject and has given us an enthralling story, written with glow and sparkle and illustrated by some uncommonly good photographs taken by his camera. His work throughout is characterised by thoroughness and accuracy. He loves his facts and he spares no pains in presenting them effectively."

+ Sat R 118:464 O 31 '14 1500w

Spec 113:599 O 31 '14 60w

"It is, upon the whole, the most significant of the year's books of so-called exploration and travel."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 670w

NAPIER, ROSAMOND. Tess Harcourt. *$1.30 (1½c) Doran (Eng ed 13-23027)

The author makes the "Nibelungen ring" of Wagner serve as a background for her story. Tess Harcourt and Michael St. Maur hear the "ring" cycle together. They are lovers, held apart by their sense of honor, for Michael is married and tied for life to a wife with whom he is hopelessly unhappy. During the nights together at the opera their emotions rise and fall with the music. They confess their love and are ready to yield to its importuning, but are lifted to a height of renunciation by the "Love's redemption" motif of the Götterdämmerung. That type of story in which it is necessary for one person, a husband or wife, to die before two others can be happy, has in it an element of ugliness. The author in this case manages the matter skilfully by ending her story before either of her two chief characters learns of the fate of Rose.

"Apart from the interest it may have for admirers of Wagner, the book has little to recommend it, being sentimental and floridly written."

— + Ath 1913.2:381 O 11 50w

NAPIER, ROSAMOND—Continued.

"The weak part of the story is that upon which author and publisher have apparently relied to lend freshness to it—the interweaving of Tess's love story with the cycle of the Nibelungen ring. Beautiful as are some of the descriptions, the association often seems more than a little forced. The author's style is good and the dialogue crisp and vivid, especially Tess's share of it, which tempts to frequent quotation. And, after all, Tess is the novel."

+ — N Y Times 19:401 S 27 '14 450w

"Readers, except those who are truly musical, will require the assistance of a piano in studying the book."

— Spec 111:1127 D 27 '13 30w

NEARING, SCOTT. Financing the wage-earner's family. tables $1.25 Huebsch 14-1497

This work is a complementary volume to the author's earlier study of "Wages in the United States." It recognizes that the question, "What are wages?" is only a step to the more fundamental question, "What will these wages buy?" It is primarily a study of family budgets. Contents: The financing of a working man's family; The standard of living; The cost of a standard of living; Income and standards of living; The American wage-earner and living standards; Individual family budgets.

"Impossible as it is to accept Dr. Nearing's reasoning, it is necessary to grant his main contention. The book possesses the additional value of serving to popularize the results of some of the most recent careful budgetary investigation." F. H. Straightoff

+ — Am Econ R 4:138 Je '14 1200w

"Thought-compelling information for the layman as well as for the student."

+ A L A Bkl 10:231 F '14

"The material furnished in this book is sure to cause serious reflection on the part of the reader."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '13 250w

"His book will be helpful to economists who desire to reach reliable conclusions as to the economic status of our wage-earners."

+ N Y Times 19:25 Ja 18 '14 70w

+ R of Rs 49:123 Ja '14 20w

NEARING, SCOTT. Reducing the cost of living. $1.25 (1½c) Jacobs 14-12445

"This book contains, first of all, a summary of the important facts bearing on the cost of living; second, an interrelation of these facts; and third, a series of suggestions regarding the lines along which any sane solution of the issues at stake must proceed." (Intro.) Among the remedial measures discussed by the author in the third section of the book are: a simplification of living; social education; more efficient food distribution; conservation; increased efficiency of labor; the reduction and elimination of monopoly profits, and a readjustment of taxation. Valuable tables are given in appendices.

"A useful all-around treatment, suggestive rather than original or convincing."

+ A L A Bkl 11:156 D '14

"A useful and suggestive discussion of facts and statistics."

+ Cleveland 6:82 O '14 109w

"Gives a convenient summary."

+ N Y Br Lib News 1:138 O '14 30w

"A scientific and useful contribution to a discussion in which the American people are greatly interested."

+ N Y Times 19:422 O 11 '14 370w

"If it only awakens an increased willingness to serve ourselves, we have already gained from this little book many times its cost value. And even at best, the present review has barely skimmed the surface of a volume whose best feature is its practicality, its avoidance of barren theorizing, its clear-eyed acceptance of conditions and steady and systematic search for ways of bettering them." F. T. Cooper

+ Pub W 86:1297 O 17 '14 1150w

"All the author's conclusions are based upon facts and are clearly and tersely put."

+ R of Rs 50:379 S '14 110w

NEARING, SCOTT. Social sanity. $1.25 Mof-fat 13-24332

"What is the north star of social progress? By what unit shall men measure the sanity of social action? These are the problems which Prof. Nearing has set himself to discuss in this admirable little book. For a working formula and a test he chooses the phrase 'social sanity,' which he defines as 'that state of the social mind which would assure the preservation and perpetuation of society.' With this statement for a starting point he proceeds to question how far our American society or American civilization may be regarded as sane."—N Y Times

"Dr. Nearing puts into his work an enthusiasm and freshness of style which in this book are more noteworthy than its profundity or originality." G. L. A.

+ Am Econ R 4:187 Mr '14 120w

+ A L A Bkl 10:315 Ap '14

"The book is strong and exceedingly suggestive."

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 28 '14 400w

"Those who are familiar with the larger books will find this one useful because it crystallizes so much, as well as for its author's interesting viewpoint and incisive style, while those who are just beginning to take an interest in modern social problems and lack either the courage or the time to grapple with the more technical and more formidable volumes should welcome it as excellently suited to their purpose."

+ N Y Times 19:35 Ja 25 '14 750w

+ R of Rs 49:123 Ja '14 30w

NEEDHAM, JAMES GEORGE. Natural history of the farm. il $1.50 Comstock pub. 14-10309

"A compact encyclopædia of information in regard to the original sources of farm products. The wild plants which can be used as food or utilized in other ways in our daily life and the improved varieties derived from these plants are here dealt with in an attractive manner. But the author does not stop at this point. He proceeds to trace the history of the wild and domesticated animals of the farm, and makes many excursions into the allied fields of biology."—Nation

"An interesting and suggestive book for teachers of grammar grades or high schools."

+ A L A Bkl 11:106 N '14

"Practically nothing has been omitted in this comprehensive survey, and yet the treatise has been so skilfully constructed that it is not at any point a wearisome enumeration of details. It is agreeable reading throughout."

+ Nation 99:329 S 10 '14 290w

+ Nature 94:222 O 29 '14 200w

NEESER, ROBERT WILDEN. Our many-sided navy. il $2.50 (5½c) Yale univ. press 14-12301

The writer thinks that the vital need of the navy of the United States to-day is to have the people of the United States know more about it and care more about it. He believes in the navy; he holds that it is a serious institution; he looks upon its service as earnest business; he states that upon its efficiency and well-being depends the national safety; and he thinks that an accurate inside view of its operations is necessary for every intelligent citizen. His volume, therefore, aims at information, and he discusses the organization of the ship, the blue-jacket's daily life, battleships as an educational institution, engineering competitions, athletics in the navy, the sailor as soldier, the work of torpedo flotillas, gunnery training, target practice, etc. The workmanship of the volume is excellent and the illustrations are good.

+ A L A Bkl 11:58 O '14

"Mr. Neeser seems to have enjoyed his voyages with the fleet, and his volume is an eloquent tribute to his shipmates and a striking memorial to the navy." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 920w

"If any landsman wishes to know the variety and profundity of his own ignorance in naval matters, and to correct a probable sufficiency of misconceptions, let him read Mr. Neeser's book."

+ Dial 57:145 S 1 '14 250w

"The book should be widely read, for it tends to correct many popular errors as to what our sailors are and what they are doing, and to justify to some extent the huge sums annually appropriated for their maintenance."

+ Nation 99:195 Ag 13 '14 750w

"Robert Wilder Neeser in this volume has humanized the navy and given a very readable answer to the taxpayer's entirely reasonable question, 'What is it good for?'"

+ N Y Times 19:352 Ag 16 '14 880w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 30 '14 450w

"An interesting and informing book."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:301 D '14 50w

"So good a book [should] find a place on the shelves of every home and every public library in the country."

+ Yale R n s 4:432 Ja '15 500w

NEIHARDT, JOHN GNEISENAU. Life's lure. 12 *$1.25 (1½c) Kennerley 14-17928

A story of the mining camps of the Black hills in a period of, perhaps, twenty-five years ago. Samuel Drake, who has never earned a dollar in his life, comes west hoping to retrieve a lost fortune. A pretty and luxury loving wife in the east demands money and he must have it to send her. Louis Devlin, whom he calls his friend, persuades him to make it in the King Nugget saloon rather than with pick and shovel. Then his wife comes out to the camp and the story follows the familiar and sorry tragedy of the faithless wife and the false friend.

"'Life's lure' is relentlessly ugly. Its bits of humor are grin things. Its portraits are heart-breaking when they are not ugly, too. It is one of the books that some readers will call 'depressing' and some 'realistic,' and that another group will denounce as 'morbid' because it deals so nakedly with brutal and tragic facts of a brutal and tragic kind of life. 'Morbid,' of course, it is not. But Mr. Neihardt knows the life of which he writes, and makes it live before us; and 'depressing' the book often is."

+ N Y Times 19:488 N 8 '14 600w

"The story is very interesting despite the cruel realism. It is true to life, no doubt, is vivid and earnestly narrated."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 7 '15 430w

NEIL, MARION HARRIS. Canning, preserving, and pickling. il *$1 (2c) McKay 14-11154

A timely help for the housekeeper. It is a practical guide to canning and preserving in their most economical form. The recipes have been tested in the author's school of cookery and will be found reliable in every respect.

+ A L A Bkl 11:106 N '14

"A useful book"

+ N Y Times 19:391 S 20 '14 40w

NELSON, WILLIAM ALLAN, and THORN. DIKE, ASHLEY HORACE. Facts about Shakespeare. il *60c (1c); Tudor Shakespeare, *35c (½c) Macmillan 13-22666

Two editions of this work, evidently printed from the same plates, are issued. One is uniform with the other volumes of "The Tudor Shakespeare," the other is printed on heavier paper with wider margins to make a standard sized 12 mo. volume. Contents: Shakespeare's England and London; Biographical facts and traditions; Shakespeare's reading; Chronology and development; The Elizabethan drama; The Elizabethan theater; The text of Shakespeare; Questions of authenticity; Shakespeare since 1616; Conclusion. Additional information and bibliographies are given in appendices.

+ A L A Bkl 10:231 F '14

"This volume is most interestingly written."

+ Chaut 72:431 Ja 31 '14 170w

"Substantially all that was known about Shakespeare the man, and Shakespeare the man of letters."

+ Educ R 47:534 My '14 40w

"It is an ideal handbook for the reader and student."

+ Ind 79:31 Jl 6 '14 80w

"Of its kind the Tudor Shakespeare is by far the most trustworthy edition in existence. Its special virtues are perhaps best illustrated, in the present volume, by the chapter on Biographical facts and traditions. In no other place have we seen so succinct and orderly an interpretation of the credible documents bearing on Shakespeare's life. In plan the book, though a work of collaboration, is thoroughly consistent and even."

+ Nation 98:67 Ja 15 '14 380w

"A remarkable amount of thoroughly sifted information will be found in the little volume."

+ N Y Sun p6 D 6 '13 140w

+ N Y Times 18:644 N 23 '13 260w

"We recommend it as the best handy Shakesperian text-book published."

+ R of Rs 49:251 F '14 100w

"A useful book for parallel readings when high-school classes are studying Shakespeare."

+ School R 22:211 Mr '14 30w

"A useful summary to supplement the shorter biographies."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:59 Mr '14 50w

NELAND, O. H. Crimson list. *$1.25 (2½c) Badger, R: G. 13-24806

A book designed to promote anti-militarist propaganda. The author's thesis is that all our education, in whatsoever country we may happen to live,—in home, school and church, tends to develop in us the warlike attributes. We are taught to glorify war and reverence the military type. The press and our form of government emphasize further this attitude. Altho he is an ardent advocate of peace, the author, as his last chapter shows, has little sympathy with the present peace societies.

"There is some biting sarcasm and a wide understanding of human nature evident throughout the volume, which is written in epigrammatic style that is at times very keen."

+ R of Rs 49:367 Mr '14 100w

NELSON, A. W. Yankee Swanson: chapters from a life at sea. il *$1.50 (1c) Sturgis & Walton 13-24328

The author, who has followed the sea for many years, gives in this volume an account of his first voyage taken some thirty-five years ago. This book, reconstructed from a diary kept on the voyage, gives a first-hand record of the old sailing days, now so rapidly becoming history.

"He writes with the natural skill of the sailor for making a good story out of minor incidents, and being inclined to tell the truth himself, he uses the cook to play the part of Ananias." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '13 230w

Dial 56:73 Ja 16 '14 180w

Lit D 48:922 Ap 18 '14 110w

"[His hero] is a piece of thoroughly Scandinavian realism, but the people stand out vividly among happenings that are often trivial."

+ N Y Sun p6 N 1 '13 170w

+ N Y Times 18:684 N 30 '13 180w

NEPEAN, EVELYN MAUD (REID) (MRS. EVAN NEPEAN). On the left of a throne: a personal study of James, Duke of Monmouth. il *$3 (5c) Lane 14-8599

"I do not claim for this book that it is in any way a complete biography of 'the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth.' I have not attempted to deal with his campaigns. . . . I have only touched upon his rebellion . . . and I have merely indicated his place in the politics and intrigues of his day. But he has been hitherto treated as nothing better than a pawn in the great game of history, without a personality of his own, and as I have never yet read a study of Monmouth the man, I have written one." (Preface) The foregoing defines the author's attitude toward her subject. She confesses further to a frank delight in Monmouth's good looks, and tells us that she has tried to see him thru the eyes of the two who loved him best, Charles II and Henrietta Wentworth. All this promises a very readable biography.

NEPEAN, EVELYN MAUD—Continued.

"We have spent a good many hours very pleasantly, with the frequent tribute of a respectful smile, in reading and re-reading these brightly written and attractively feminine pages."

+ — Ath 1914,1:518 Ap 11 1150w

Reviewed by Edward Fuller

+ — Bookm 39:448 Je '14 1050w

"The book contains a lot of interesting information, thirty-six illustrations and an excellent index." N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 My 29 '14 1050w

"Sympathetic as is this study, it steps from the sublime to the ridiculous when its author compares Monmouth with the repentant malefactor on the cross."

+ — Lit D 49:637 O 3 '14 580w

"Mrs. Nepean fills many feminine pages with gushing sentiment and exclamatory sentences."

+ — Nation 98:702 Je 11 '14 190w

"All that the author really needs to say might have been said, one would think, in smaller compass. At the same time, the book recreates for us the atmosphere of its period."

+ — Outlook 107:503 Je 27 '14 100w

+ R of Rs 50:117 Jl '14 60w

Sat R 117:sup6 Mr 21 '14 700w

"An eminently readable book. But we find difficulty in accepting the story that a certain Duke of Buccleuch found the marriage certificate of Charles II and Lucy Walter in the muniment room at Dalkeith, and deliberately destroyed it."

+ — Spec 112:sup681 Ap 25 '14 130w

Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 400w

NETTLETON, GEORGE HENRY. English drama of the restoration and eighteenth century (1642-1780). $1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 14-6008

A history of the drama covering the period "from the closing of the theatres in 1642 to the culmination of eighteenth century drama in Sheridan." A second volume is to continue the record thru the nineteenth century. Contents: Contrasts between Elizabethan and restoration drama; The dramatic interregnum, 1642-1660; The beginnings of restoration drama and opera; Dryden and the heroic drama; Etherege and Wycherley; Dryden, Lee and Otway; Aspects of minor restoration drama; Congreve, Vanbrugh, and Farquhar; The moral reawakening; Some aspects of Queen Anne drama; Pantomime and ballad opera; Voltaire's influence; Fielding and the licensing act; The Garrick era; The rise and height of sentimental drama; Goldsmith and the reaction in comedy; Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

"Invaluable to students, as it covers a period which has been so far only partly treated."

+ A L A Bkl 11:220 S '14

+ Ath 1914,2:160 Ag 1 450w

Reviewed by A. de Vivier

+ Bookm 39:449 Je '14 1000w

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ap 8 '14 450w

"Bibliographical notes, notes on the separate chapters and an index make the book most usable for reference and as a guide for study." C. E. Rhodes

+ Chaut 72:712 My 9 '14 300w

"The chief faults are sins of omission." H. E. Woodbridge

+ — Dial 57:50 Jl 16 '14 620w

"A very excellent book."

+ Educ R 49:103 Ja '15 50w

"A good text-book by an authority."

+ Ind 78:53 Ap 6 '14 33w

"In the presentation of his matter Mr. Nettleton is not infelicitous."

+ — Nation 99:112 Jl 23 '14 620w

"The reader will in general find him a safe guide and a sound critic."

+ Spec 113:101 Jl 18 '14 100w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 580w

"Both parts of the book are careful and thorough, forming a readable and scholarly survey of their periods and an excellent introduction for those who wish to probe farther into the history of the drama or the theatre." A. H. Thorndike

+ Yale R n s 4:422 Ja '15 1350w

NEVE, ARTHUR. Thirty years in Kashmir. il $3.50 Longmans (Eng ed 14-30267)

"The Kashmir of which Mr. Neve writes is not the Lotus land to which Anglo-Indians baked in the plains resort for repose, but the mountain region that surrounds the Maharajah's dominions. Chilas, Hunza, Ladak, the fringe of the Karakum, provided this medical missionary with a strenuous holiday ground during his long career of hospital work at Srinagar. The book should appeal mainly perhaps to the mountaineer. Mr. Neve has climbed where very few white men have ever passed, and can describe the Himalayas in terms that will touch a responsive chord in those who know the Alps."—Sat R

+ A L A Bkl 10:315 Ap '14

"The book is, perhaps of necessity, a little disjointed; even the author's journeys do not seem to follow the sequence of date; and ancient stories, such as the Sikh invasion of Ladak, are introduced. More care in proof-correcting should have been taken."

+ — Ath 1914,1:sup428 Mr 21 600w

"The merit of the book lies in the description, from intimate knowledge, of regions known to the world at large only as the scenes of occasional frontier campaigns."

+ Sat R 117:22 Ja 3 '14 150w

NEWBOLT, HENRY JOHN. Book of the blue sea. il $1.50 Longmans A14-3011

"Mr. Newbolt limits himself in these pages to the contemporaries of Nelson, and though all his incidents are historically true, he has successfully endeavoured to present them to his readers in the fresh non-historical light in which they struck the men who took part in them. In such a manner he tells the stories of such typical sailors as John Franklin, Edward Pellew, and David Farragut. He tells us, too, once again—and we shall never be tired of hearing it—the story of Trafalgar, making use in his narrative of the recent report of the Admiralty committee on the battle. Best of all perhaps are the chapters which trace the career of a midshipman, whom Mr. Newbolt calls 'Charles,' who first went to sea in 1805 and served till the end of the war. Charles's letters home to his parents bear the stamp of reality upon them, and give a vivid picture of his life at sea."—Spec

+ A L A Bkl 11:225 Ja '15 *

+ — Ath 1914,2:422 O 24 600w

+ N Y Times 19:528 N 29 '14 130w

"All through this little book we delight in the avoidance of fine writing. Mr. Newbolt tells a simple story, and allows it to work upon the imagination of his boys. He has compiled a book of deeds at which every energetic young imagination will spring."

+ Sat R 118:420 O 17 '14 1150w

"A better time could not have been chosen for the publication of this 'Book of the blue sea,' and no one could be better fitted for telling these stories than the author of 'Admirals all.'"
+ Spec 113:sup615 N 7 '14 210w

NEWMAN, ERNEST. Wagner as man and artist.
12 ist. *$3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-20604)

"Mr. Newman's book does not pretend to be an exhaustive biography; rather Mr. Newman assumes that we know the main incidents of Wagner's career in a general way, and he devotes himself to a laborious analysis of details. . . . The book, of course, falls into two main portions: the first, the longer, deals with the man; the second with the artist. In the second there was not much new to be done; but most readers will find the first nearly entirely fresh."
—Sat R

A L A Bkl 11:161 D '14

"Mr. Newman's book is ably written, and calculated to stimulate thought."
+ Ath 1914,1:901 Je 27 650w

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 9 '14 500w

"Whatever our views may be of Wagner and his work, we must take into account this book of Mr. Newman's. All the great questions in regard to Wagner's achievement are here considered with insight. No book on the subject will appeal to a larger circle of readers, nor give a more vivid conception of the whole movement."
+ Dial 58:21 Ja 1 '15 500w

"It is much to be regretted that Mr. Newman has so signally failed in his attempt to paint Wagner as Man, because his presentment of Wagner as Artist is one of the very best that has been made in any language." H: T. Finck
+ — Nation 99:478 O 15 '14 1300w

Reviewed by R: Aldrich

+ N Y Times 20:21 Ja 17 '15 920w

"He performs a real service in giving an estimate of Wagner which is fair and unprejudiced and free from sentimentalism."
+ Pittsburgh 19:428 O '14 40w

"The lists of dates, works, etc., which conclude the work are invaluable. We hail with pleasure this book of Mr. Newman's as one of the best contributions yet made to the Wagner literature. The writing is clear and easy, and the literary touch sure. And the work is satisfactory as showing that Mr. Newman is not entirely void of fads and prejudices—without which no book is worth reading and no man worth reading about."
+ Sat R 117:706 My 30 '14 1300w

NEWMAN, FANNY HODGES. Out of bondage.
10 *$2.50 Elder 14-147

"This book is one of the Fleur-de-lis edition, on Italian hand-made paper. The preface quotes Andrea del Sarto, and paraphrases him: 'The singer gives his songs because he loves them all, and each one is a meaning of himself. Nor would the counsel of his friends help him in the choosing, for there are as many likings and dislikings as there are folk to hear. He, singing from himself and to himself, is happy.' . . . Poems on the sea, on the country, on human brotherhood, on Marie Antoinette, on San Francisco, are included in the collection.'—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p24 Mr 25 '14 200w

"'Out of bondage' contains much better poems than might fairly be presupposed from the luxurious letter-press and the attitudinizing preface. The best of them lack neither intellectual and emotional substance nor imaginative force; somewhat austere, even grim at times, the writer shows a particular fitness for thoughtful and massive themes which finds an apt second in a command of grave and weighty measures."
+ Nation 99:249 Ag 27 '14 250w

"It marks a considerable advance upon its author's first volume, published three years ago. The shorter poems in particular speak with a strong, controlled utterance that is rare among women writers, yet are without that sham virility that most women fall into when some ill-advised person tells them that they 'think like a man.'" Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 19:333 Ag 2 '14 170w

NEWMARCH, ROSA. Russian opera. il *$1.75
12 Dutton 14-30799

"Berezovsky's division of the history of Russian music into four periods is adopted by Mrs. Newmarch. She gives interesting glimpses of the early times when music was looked upon as one of the seven deadly sins; of the different attitudes of rulers towards this art; of the quarrels between the national composers and the cosmopolitan, who had the whip hand. To Glinka and his operas no fewer than forty-seven pages are devoted, while thirty-four are given to Moussorgsky and his 'Boris Godounoff.' . . . The volume also gives a glimpse of the present condition of opera in Russia, of recent French influences, and of the breaking away of the younger men from the fetters of nationalism."
—Nation

"The book is valuable in its limited field."
+ A L A Bkl 11:63 O '14

+ Ath 1914,2:58 J1 11 1150w

"Treating, as it does, of a subject which has by no means had the consideration that belongs to it, the book belongs in every musical library."
+ — Dial 58:56 Ja 16 '15 500w

"Rosa Newmarch's book is more limited in scope than that of Montagu-Nathan, being concerned only with Russian operas; but of these it gives better analyses, while the lives of the composers are related in more entertaining fashion." H: T. Finck

+ Nation 99:355 S 17 '14 370w

"Her book on the whole affords a valuable addition to our knowledge of a musical development that has been described rather fragmentarily hitherto."
+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 600w

+ Sat R 117:710 My 30 '14 150w

"Mrs. Newmarch's volume is rich in curious and suggestive information." C. L. G.

+ Spec 112:1089 Je 27 '14 1550w

NEWMAYER, SOLOMON W. Medical and sanitary inspection of schools for the health officer, the physician, the nurse, and the teacher. il *$2.50 Lea 13-25614

"This volume by Dr. Newmayer is based largely on the author's experience with medical inspection in the schools of Philadelphia. It contains an introduction giving a brief survey of the history of medical inspection, and four parts treating of Administration; The school buildings and grounds; Infectious, contagious and communicable diseases; and Physical defects."—Survey

"A clear and practical treatment, written from the administrative standpoint."
+ A L A Bkl 10:361 My '14

"As a whole, Dr. Newmayer's book furnishes an excellent handbook for use of anyone interested in medical and sanitary inspection of schools." B. D. Mudgett

+ Ann Am Acad 54:340 J1 '14 270w

"With this book on her desk, an observant teacher ought to be able to detect the earliest signs of most of the contagious diseases of childhood."
+ Educ R 47:531 My '14 50w

"The chapter on infectious and communicable diseases is especially well done for such a condensed presentation. Although, then, this limited field of endeavor, as represented by Dr. Newmayer, is in itself praiseworthy, nevertheless it is somewhat disappointing to find this promising text following in the wake of its numerous predecessors of late, in failing to indicate the larger possibilities of such an undertaking by outlining a progressive program of practical work and instruction, and thereby bringing inspection and supervision of the physical condition of children more into line with the real

NEWMAYER, SOLOMON W.—Continued.
 "raison d'être" of education in school life." D.
 P. Macmillan

+ — El School T 14:400 Ap '14 620w

"The treatment is clear and as free as possible from unnecessary technical terms. A broader and fuller consideration of methods used in other cities than Philadelphia would have added much to the value of the book, but as it is, it will prove very helpful to health officers, physicians, nurses and teachers charged with the administration of medical inspection in the schools." G: L. Meylan

+ Survey 31:681 F 28 '14 530w

NEWTE, HORACE WYKEHAM CAN. Home of the seven devils. *$1.35 (1½c) Lane 13-23732

To Friar Anselm in the Franciscan monastery at Ypres comes word that thru the death of a cousin he has fallen heir to an English estate. Strangely enough his superiors decide that he can best serve the church by renouncing his vows and taking up the life of a man of the world, by marrying a good Catholic wife and rearing a family of pious Catholic offspring. He is warned particularly against beautiful women, for the heart of a fair woman, he is told, is the home of at least seven devils. Thus prepared he goes out to face the world. He meets many women, and first engages himself to one who seems to fulfil all the requirements, and then falls madly in love with another who has outward appearance at least of the type against which he has been warned.

"The revelation of the monk's character is the best thing in the book. The story is told mainly by conversations, which are curiously abrupt. Another curiosity is the constant use of the expression 'ever so' for 'very.'"

+ — Ath 1913,2:280 S 20 120w

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 270w

"A tiresome, immoral story. The author solemnly assures us that the monastic life is 'a cowardly shunning of the rough and tumble of the world, and that all religious houses are parasitic.'"

— Cath World 100:267 N '14 40w

"Mr. Newte shows a knowledge of human nature and a comprehensive understanding of the many-sided beings who people this world and carry on its thousandfold activities."

+ N Y Times 19:219 My 3 '14 500w

NEWTE, HORACE WYKEHAM CAN. Pillar of salt: a story of married life. *$1.35 (1½c)
 Lane 14-18461

An idle, vain and selfish wife who, while she does not love her husband, still demands constant devotion and adulation from him, even resenting his affection for their little daughter, falls under the fascination of an unsuccessful author who poses as a misunderstood genius. She leaves her home, and after divorce has freed her, marries him, to be utterly disillusioned. Then she looks back to her old life with regret and has the added misery of seeing her deserted husband quite happy with a woman of the domestic type.

"It is a story of London with none of the fascination we have learned to expect from London; nothing to laugh at, unless one takes to ridiculing the conversations between the heroine and her lover, which is easy—nothing much to think about, and no book people to make our friends."

— Boston Transcript p24 F 10 '15 220w

"Both moral and story would have profited by a little thought."

— Ind 81:215 F 8 '15 50w

"The pictures of the social life of Earl's court, where they both lived are mildly amusing; otherwise the book is dull."

— N Y Times 20:27 Ja 21 '15 400w

NEWTON, ARTHUR PERCIVAL. Colonising activities of the English Puritans; with an introd. by C: M. Andrews. (Yale hist. pub.
 Miscellany 1) il *$2.50 (2c) Yale univ. press
 14-6251

The last phase of the Elizabethan struggle with Spain. "Though dealing primarily with the colonising experiments of the English Puritans in the Caribbean, the author ranges over the larger field of English activity during the eventful years from 1604 to 1660 and gives us a point of view from which to observe the happenings in the new world. Thus to no small extent his work fills in the missing parts of our picture and renders intelligible aspects of the scene that had hitherto remained obscure. . . . At many points the narrative touches the 'original' colonies and throws needed light on details of their history. . . . Many passages in Winthrop's journal take on a new meaning, and the unity of Puritan activity, in England and New England and the Caribbean, manifests itself with striking significance. In short, we get glimpses of ourselves from the outside and an opportunity of comparison that cannot but be beneficial." (Introduction)

Reviewed by C. G. Calkins

+ — Am Hist R 20:146 O '14 1250w

"Scholarly, practically the first extended treatise in its own field."

+ A L A Bkl 10:102 Je '14

"This is a monograph of originality and importance, drawn from the very roots of the documents in half a dozen languages."

+ Ath 1914,2:46 J1 11 1100w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 500w

"Mr. Newton has supplied precisely the book that was required." H. E. Egerton

+ Eng Hist R 29:763 O '14 750w

"The book as a whole is gracefully and carefully written. It is refreshingly free from the political and religious bias which so often disfigures historical studies upon the period with which it deals. To the economist it will appear, perhaps, that Mr. Newton has underestimated the importance of economic factors involved in Puritan colonization. But no one will question the value of his contribution to the political and religious history of the seventeenth century both in America and in England." Conyers Read

+ — J Pol Econ 22:589 Je '14 1350w

"The English scholar has used manuscript sources which are still inaccessible to students in the United States, but he has not exhausted the printed materials bearing on his topic."

+ — Nation 99:472 O 15 '14 1300w

"The author has handled his sources with great skill, and we commend his instructive narrative to all who are interested in the early history of our empire."

+ Spec 112:654 Ap 18 '14 100w

NEWTON, HENRY. In far New Guinea: a stirring record of work and observation amongst the Wedaean people of New Guinea. il *$3.50
 Lippincott A14-2406

"This book on New Guinea is the record of a missionary's life in the island, and apart from its full account of evangelistic successes—and disappointments also, for Mr. Newton is more candid than some missionaries—it has chapters on native life, customs and occupations which have much new information." (Sat R) "Because of his interest in explaining the conditions in New Guinea travel as late as thirteen years ago, Mr. Newton devotes considerable space to a description of the difficulties and dangers of his journey." (Boston Transcript)

"The main purpose of Mr. Newton's interesting book, however, is not to aggrandize his calling—which he does, perhaps, for that very reason all the more effectually because unconsciously—but to draw a vivid picture of the conditions of native life in the south-east corner of British New Guinea. This he does with great skill and in an attractive fashion."

+ Ath 1914,1:193 F 7 1250w

"The book is so profusely illustrated that the too great length of the account is partly atoned for as we study the pictures." D. L. M.

+ — Boston Transcript p21 J1 22 '14 830w

+ Lit D 50:156 Ja 23 '15 140w

+ N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 50w

"The author is a careful observer with few of the prejudices that too often disfigure mission literature, and his book should rank beside Ellis's 'Polynesian researches' and Williams's 'Narrative' as one of the standard works of the South seas."

+ Sat R 117:150 Ja 31 '14 110w

"The book is written in an easy, capable style, and reveals the author as a good-humoured, broad-minded, and understanding man."

+ Spec 112:269 F 14 '14 1550w

NEWTON, THOMAS WODEHOUSE LEGH, 2d
baron. Lord Lyons: a record of British diplomacy. 2v il *$8.50 Longmans 12-24992

"Lord Lyons was British minister at Washington during the critical period from 1858 to 1865. Consequently the biography of the peer is of first importance for the student of the civil war era, and notably for the light it throws on the anxious days of the Trent case. . . . The seven years Lord Lyons spent at Washington were the most strenuous years of his life. . . . After a brief tenure of the embassy to Turkey, Lord Lyons was transferred to Paris in 1867, there to remain for some twenty years. Once more he had to watch the interests of his country during a period of war, and his despatches and letters relating to the Franco-German struggle form an important contribution to the history of that conflict."—Boston Transcript

"Both the general reader and the historian will find much in these chapters, that is worthy of their attention regarding the Eastern question, proposals for disarmament, the Franco-German war, and the beginning of the Third French republic." D: J. Hill

+ Am Hist R 19:629 Ap '14 1250w

"The volume is a distinct addition to the diplomatic history of the civil war." J: H. Latané

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:504 Ag '14 450w

"Lord Newton writes from experience, and with an evident knowledge of foreign affairs. His connecting passages are agreeably composed and always to the point; his anecdotes are amusing. He might have suppressed sundry flouts, however."

+ — Ath 1913:2445 O 25 1700w

"The narrative of the Trent case is absorbing reading, for line after line, despite his knowledge of what happened, the reader is expecting a terrible catastrophe." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 25 '13 780w

Reviewed by C: F. Adams

+ Nation 89:66: 97; 128; 159 Jl 16; 23; 30; Ag 6 '14 11000w

"While the term at Washington is of most interest to American readers of anything in the book, it occupies less than half of one of these two bulky volumes. What follows is of curious interest to specialists in modern European history. It is admirably edited by Lord Newton."

+ N Y Sun p7 D 6 '13 3300w

N Y Times 19:20 Ja 18 '14 1750w

"It is not often that we have to complain of self-suppression on the part of the author of a memoir, but we wish that there had been a little more of Lord Newton himself in these pages. He has given us a great biography."

+ Sat R 116:461; 493 O 11; 16 3600w

"Lord Newton has been unable to resist the temptation to which so many historians and biographers have succumbed, that, namely, of using the history of the past as a vehicle for presenting his own opinions on the affairs of the present. This blemish does not, however, detract from the debt of gratitude which the public, and more especially the political and diplomatic public, owe to Lord Newton for compiling a most interesting contribution to contemporary history and literature." Cromer

+ — Spec 111:566; 610 O 11; 18 '13 4800w

NEWTON, W. DOUGLAS. War. *$1.20 (2½c)
Dodd A14-2553

The threatened enormity of the present European struggle makes this war tale more timely than the author could possibly have anticipated. It is a picture of war stripped of traditional glamour and invested with the horror that modern war efficiency is responsible for. The writer pictures villages devastated, farmers shot down, food supplies destroyed, self-respect ruined, women outraged and children trampled down.

"There is much good writing—at times, perhaps, a little too strained artistically to achieve the desired effect. Despite this, however, the work gets near its intended destination, and few readers can fail—when, subsequently, they hear the glories of battle and the joys of conflict extolled—to remember that there is another and an ugly side to 'legalsized murder.'"

+ — Ath 1914:1:267 F 21 200w

"The book is absorbing reading if one is interested in following the details of modern warfare and it gives the reader some idea of the significance to the actual human beings involved of the present struggle in Europe." G. G. Wyant

+ Bookm 40:315 N '14 200w

"No aspect of the dreadful deeds done by invading hordes is overlooked by Mr. Newton. His style is vigorous, alert, graphic, unconventional, staccato; his words are chosen and arranged so that they drive home his meaning with a telling blow. The sensitive reader will shudder at the horrors he describes; the hardened reader cannot fail to be moved by them. In the literal meaning of the word, his novel is awful, because it is a masterly account of something that is worse than awful, of something that is incredibly atrocious. To read Mr. Newton's 'War' is to read of war as it actually is." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 19 '14 1150w

"A more artistic and therefore more telling arraignment than Lamszus' 'Human slaughterhouse.'"

+ Cleveland 6:38 O '14 50w

+ Ind 79:384 S 14 '14 370w

N Y Times 19:351 Ag 16 '14 600w

"The story is told in detail and with graphic skill. It gains in effectiveness by reason of its dispassionate tone."

+ Outlook 108:225 S 23 '14 220w

"It is to be feared that critics who do not share his views on the question of armaments will comment adversely on the magic ease with which he lands his invaders. But, from that point onwards, his work is sound. With the enemy once on our shore the rest follows naturally, and it is all described with a realism too grim to be sensational in the ordinary sense of the word."

+ — Sat R 117:279 F 28 '14 230w

NEXÖ, MARTIN ANDERSEN. Pelle the conqueror: apprenticeship; tr. by Bernard Miall. v 2 *$1.10 (1c) Holt 15-2002

As the first volume of "Pelle the conqueror" telling of his boyhood, gave a faithful picture of the hard life on a Danish farm, so this story of his years of apprenticeship gives a like reproduction of industrial conditions in a small provincial town. Pelle spends this second period of his life, five years, in a cobbler's shop in which the old relationship of master, journeyman and apprentice still exists. At the end of that time he finds himself graduated out into a trade which is doomed; the era of the machine has dawned. Undaunted, he starts out on the next stage, still resolved to conquer, and taking ship he leaves Bornholm, the island which had been his whole world up to now, for Copenhagen. Volume 3 will carry on his story.

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:556 Ja 15 250w

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 13 '15 450w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 58:53 Ja 16 '15 260w

+ Nation 100:21 Ja 7 '15 800w

NEXÖ, MARTIN ANDERSEN—Continued.

+ New Republic 1:28 D 19 '14 300w

"Persons, plot, the underlying theme are alike well and firmly handled; there is no haste, no slurring, but an excellent and vivid presentation of events, which must, one feels, have actually happened, and happened just as the author tells us they did. Martin Andersen Nexö is an artist." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times 19:556 D 6 '14 1200w

NEXÖ, MARTIN ANDERSEN. Pelle the conqueror: boyhood; tr. from the Danish by Jessie Muir. *$1.40 (1½c) Holt A14-588

In its absolute fidelity to the details of a coarse, crude life, lived close to the soil, this story by a Danish writer is akin to the work of the Russian novelists. The scene of the story is Stone farm on the island of Bornholm in the Baltic. Here comes Lasse Karlsson from Sweden with his little son Pelle, Lasse to act as herdsman, Pelle as errand boy, on the farm. Brutality, coarseness and a low grade of morality prevail at Stone farm, but in the midst of it the boy, devoted to his pathetic little father, alive, and awake to only the good, flourishes, and at the age of fourteen, goes courageously out into the world, eager to taste its pleasures and win its triumphs. At this point the story leaves him, for this is only part one of a work complete in four parts.

"Has much the same feeling but more hope than Frenssen's 'Jörn Uhl'."

+ A L A Bkl 10:287 Mr '14

"We must congratulate the translator on the admirable way in which she has performed her duty. Except in a few rare passages, the text reads as easily as if it had been written in English. We await with interest the remaining parts of the narrative."

+ — Ath 1913,1:696 Je 28 350w

Ind 77:355 Mr 9 '14 40w

"As the author's work has the sturdy human quality, which is of all qualities most likely to weather the risks of translation, we see no reason why he may not reach a world-wide audience."

+ Nation 97:564 D 11 '13 550w

+ New Republic 1:28 D 19 '14 300w

"In this volume there is plenty of very striking novelty for readers in this country."

+ N Y Sun p13 D 13 '13 1250w

"We leave the book anxious to know what sort of a man this boy will make, and certain that he will become one worth hearing about. Martin Andersen Nexö is not destined long to remain so far as the American reading public is concerned, an unknown author. All those who care for good work should and doubtless will hasten to make his acquaintance."

+ N Y Times 18:720 D 7 '13 1070w

"It is profoundly moving because of its deep and limpid sincerity."

+ Outlook 106:270 Ja 31 '14 170w

"Novel-readers in search of something out of the common will be grateful to the publishers and the very competent translator, Miss Jessie Muir, who give them access to the work of this Danish writer."

+ Spec 111:218 Ag 9 '13 250w

NEYSTROM, PAUL HENRY. Retail selling and store management. (Commercial education ser.) il *$1.50 (1½c) Appleton 14-17892

As the author points out in the preface, one of the most important occupations, from the standpoint of the number of people employed, is the business of retail distribution, yet very little in an educational way has been done for this body. The University of Wisconsin, that pioneer institution in bringing the university to the people, has made an effort to do so, and this book has been worked out in connection with courses in its extension division. Both employer and employee will find the text of interest. "It has been the aim throughout to present only such policies and practices as have been found of actual practical value in successful stores. To this end, the methods of a great number of stores have been drawn upon for illustrations." (Preface)

"One of the best books on the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 11:159 D '14

"For the man who is interested in the problems of retail selling, this book is pregnant with helpful suggestions. Despite the technical problems treated, the interest does not lag."

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 200w

"In common with the majority of business men and business treatises, Professor Neystrom's volume fails to emphasize sufficiently the importance of market study. In other words, the author deals mainly with customers, salesmen, and executives inside the store, and less with the relation of the store to the community upon which it is dependent."

+ — Nation 99:636 N 26 '14 400w

"The author deals with the every-day problems of the retail merchant and his clerks in a notably intelligent and practical fashion."

+ N Y Times 19:492 N 8 '14 70w

R of Rs 50:636 N '14 100w

NICHOLSON, MEREDITH. Poet. il *$1.30 (4c) Houghton 14-17167

Mr. Nicholson is a Hoosier author and he gives in this book a picture of the Hoosier poet who has "given to the purely local a touch that makes it universal." The poet is, of course, the friend of all children and when he finds five year old Majorie unhappy at a party he interests himself in her, and so it comes about that he has a part in straightening out the tangle in her parents' lives.

+ A L A Bkl 11:175 D '14

"Now everybody knows who the Poet is, but if they want to know him as a kind of Good Samaritan in a different way than they know him in his verses, they should read this charming idyl." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 7 '14 620w

"Marjorie's infant dialect is rather overdone and wearisome; otherwise the characters are wholly pleasing."

+ — Dial 57:462 D 1 '14 200w

"A neatly sketched little story."

+ Ind 80:63 O 12 '14 27w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:653 D 3 '14 40w

"Mr. Nicholson has done nothing better and few things as good as the delicately drawn portrait of this Poet. 'The poet' is not only a delightful story, but a very graceful tribute as well."

+ N Y Times 19:430 O 11 '14 420w

"It is a wholesome romance delightfully told."

+ Outlook 108:553 N 4 '14 180w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:263 N '14 60w

NICOLL, SIR WILLIAM ROBERTSON (CLAUDIUS CLEAR, pseud.). Bookman's letters. *$1.75 Doran (Eng ed 14-13564)

"This is the first collection Sir W. Robertson Nicoll has made of his Claudius Clear letters on literary subjects—earlier collections have dealt with life rather than literature. There are essays on various aspects of literature, also on such famous writers as Meredith, Carlyle, Emerson, Swinburne, Gissing, Mark Rutherford, Jane Austen, Lamb, Besant, Holmes, Ruskin, Lever, and Borrow. With several of the authors he writes about Sir William has enjoyed personal acquaintance."—Ath

+ Ath 1913,2:sup436 O 18 80w

"In the department of literary criticism Sir William is hampered, perhaps, by anxiety not to write above the heads of his audience or to wound their susceptibilities. A good deal of triteness mingles with his shrewd perception and sound common sense."

+ — Ath 1913,2:618 N 29 180w

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '14 2450w

"There is a rich store of good reading, especially for bookmen, in these 'Bookman's letters.'"

+ Dial 56:111 F 1 '14 300w

"Each of the forty-eight essays making up the volume is not only pleasant and informing but full of the culture of sympathy."

+ Ind 78:217 My 4 '14 90w

+ Nation 98:305 Mr 19 '14 280w

"Sir William Robertson Nicoll has not only laid down some sound and kindly principles of literary criticism, but he has lived up to them through the forty-odd chapters of his entertaining book."

+ N Y Times 19:106 Mr 8 '14 750w

"No more companionable book for bookmen has ever been published."

+ R of Rs 49:505 Ap '14 400w

"Our author writes always with sound judgment and unaffected lucidity. Now and then, it is true, his 'obiter dicta' seem a little ill-considered. In such papers as these literary gossip comes near to attaining a permanent historical value."

+ — Spec 112:232 F 7 '14 330w
NICOLLS, WILLIAM JASPER. Wild mustard:
a seven days chronicle. *$1.25 (2½c)
Lippincott 14-16481

An anti-suffrage story. Anne Forest goes from her happy, humble farm home in Pennsylvania to work for the "cause" in Philadelphia. She is welcomed by the "pettish, peevish old women" who lead the suffrage cause, for, as one of them puts it, "we need some pretty faces to attract the men." A "hike to Harrisburg" is planned and Anne is put in command as General Forest. The expedition fails because the lady marchers peter out one by one on the first day's march and because no one has had the forethought to provide provisions for the troops. Anne gives up the "cause" and goes home to be married.

"Much better arguments have been made in fewer words."

— Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 220w

Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 120w

"The characters are of that conventional type that was already hackneyed many years ago, and the author's style savors somewhat of youthful vivacity of the feminine brand."

— N Y Times 19:412 O 4 '14 150w

NIDA, WILLIAM LEWIS. Farm animals and farm crops. il $1.25 (1½c) Flanagan 14-1462

A book for the general farmer. It is divided into three parts. Part 1 takes up Farm animals; Part 2, Soils and farm crops; Part 3, an appendix, consists of questions and answers. The author's aim in this section of the book has been to condense into brief space a great amount of useful information. A good index provides a key to the volume.

NITCHIE, EDWARD B. Lip-reading: principles and practice. *5s Methuen, London

The first half of this book "is devoted to a general statement of the principles of lip-reading, and contains also some excellent words of advice to the friends of deaf people. The second half of the book contains a systematic course of study, accompanied by practical exercises for the development of the faculty. A good bibliography completes the volume."—Spec

"The hard-of-hearing will be able to study lip-reading from this book without the aid of a teacher, if such a course is found necessary."

+ Nature 92:422 O 11 '13 70w

+ Spec 111:924 N 29 '13 90w

NIXON, LEWIS. Canal tolls and American shipping. *$1.25 (1½c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-9792

An analysis of the text of all of the important acts and conventions relating to the Panama canal policy with a review of both sides of the controversy. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty is discussed and its various interpretations examined. The aim of the volumes is to furnish such information on the question of the right of the United States to exempt its coastwise shipping from canal tolls as is necessary to an intelligent understanding of its import to the future of our foreign commerce. An appendix contains the text of the canal treaties and acts, including the Treaty of New Granada, the Clayton-Bulwer convention, the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, the Hay-Bunau-Varilla treaty and the platform declarations of the political parties.

Nation 99:780 D 31 '14 50w

NOBLE, MARGARET E. (SISTER NIVEDITA). Studies from an Eastern home; with prefatory memoir by S. R. Ratcliffe. il *$1.20 Longmans A13-2061

"In 'Studies from an eastern home,' we have a collection of papers relating to India, written by the late Margaret E. Noble, who, as a member of the Indian Order of Ramakrishna, was known as Sister Nivedita. Miss Noble went out to India to work, under Swami Vivekananda, for the uplifting of the Hindu people, and throughout her residence in the country lived among the natives in Hindu fashion."—N Y Times

"These slight sketches reveal to the West some of the charm and mystery of India."

+ A L A Bkl 10:104 N '13

Ath 1913,2:126 Ag 9 1100w

Reviewed by F. B. R. Hellems

+ Dial 55:525 D 16 '13 500w

Nation 98:575 My 14 500w

N Y Times 19:25 Ja 18 '14 80w

NOBLE, MARGARET E. (SISTER NIVEDITA), and COOMARASWAMY, ANANDA K. Myths of the Hindus and Buddhists. il *$4.50 (3½c) Holt A14-1784

A work begun by Sister Nivedita, the "interpreter of India to Europe," and completed after her death in 1911 by Dr. Coomaraswamy. It is a collection of the best known Indian myths, those most commonly illustrated in Indian sculpture and painting, which not only reveal national ideals and religious faith but also many universal truths that reach out to the ends of the earth. The stories include much that is necessary to any foreigner who plans to cooperate with the Indian people for the attainment of their national and spiritual ideals. The illustrations are remarkable for the distinction given to the pervasive Hindu quality thru softening and spiritualizing it according to principles of modern art.

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 18 80w

"It is indeed a fairy book for grown-up children." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 29 '14 1400w

+ — Dial 57:81 Ag 1 '14 350w

Ind 78:289 My 18 14 '14w

+ Nation 99:717 D 17 '14 550w

"The book has its interest and importance, and the pictures are, in some cases, not without a real charm of inspiration. It may serve to explain how much the poet Rabindranath Tagore owes to his Western education, and in what real and salutary sense his remarkable talent has become, if we must use an ugly word, Europeanized."

+ — Spec 112:393 Mr 7 '14 930w

Reviewed by E. W. Hopkins

+ Yale R n s 4:408 Ja '15 900w

NORRIS, FRANK. Vandover and the brute. *$1.35 (1c) Doubleday 14-6799

This is Frank Norris's first story, written in 1894 and 1895. It was put aside for a revision that was never made, and the manuscript which was lost at the time of the San Francisco earthquake has been recently recovered. It is a powerful and relentless story of the fight between the god and the beast in man's nature. Vandover is a rich, motherless San Francisco youth who grows up without moral guidance and easily drifts into the loose way of living common to the young men he knows. He has the soul of an artist and dreams of the great things he is to accomplish, but his dreams come to naught, for gradually the brute, never held sufficiently in check, takes possession of the whole man, and Vandover is left at the end, a pitiable wreck.

NORRIS, FRANK—Continued.

— Ath 1914,1:886 Je 27 150w

— Atlan 114:525 O '14 50w

"It ought to have been issued for private circulation only and placed in the hands of the few who would have regarded it as a human document and nothing more." F. T. Cooper

— Bookm 39:444 Je '14 600w

"Apologies for 'Vandover and the brute' because it is a posthumous novel, a first novel, a youthful novel, and unrevised novel are unnecessary. It is a novel of which any writer might be proud, and it emphasizes strongly the great loss suffered by American imaginative letters in Mr. Norris's untimely death." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 1550w

— Ind 79:173 Ag 3 '14 210w

"Without revision, and with all its unpruned crudities, it is still above the average work of the literary aspirant."

— Lit D 48:1494 Je 20 '14 260w

"The unflinching moral conviction of the book lifts it to a place not far below 'McTeague' as a powerful private study."

— Nation 58:432 Ap 16 '14 580w

"The idea of the novel is so big, it stands so firmly upon the fundamental things in human nature, that we may well confine ourselves to a consideration of Mr. Norris's intent in the matter and let the details of its execution go."

— N Y Times 19:181 Ap 12 '14 1050w

"It is distinctly a story of ability and promise; it is also a story of the most unpleasant nature written in a most unpleasant style."

— Outlook 107:264 My 30 '14 350w

— R of Rs 49:761 Je '14 260w

"It has neither glamour nor the magic of vision, and it should only be read by those who know the later work of Frank Norris."

— Sat R 117:805 Je 20 '14 820w

"Judged as art, it is an achievement in realism."

— Springfield Republican p5 My 7 '14 450w

NORRIS, KATHLEEN. Saturday's child. il *$1.50
(1½c) Macmillan 14-14457

A sympathetic portrayal of the quest of a nominal girl, obscure and lonely, for the happiness of life. The story is as sincere and convincing as "Mother," but a more pretentious work. Susan Brown is the unadorned name of this Saturday's child, who with proverbial truth "works for a living." Thru three stages—poverty, wealth and service—she works out her creditable salvation. Each period has its lover; but, fortunate for Susan, she rejects the gold and silver caskets and finds her happiness locked up in the leaden one. The scene is the Pacific coast and the characters are real and entertaining.

"Will be popular with young girls."

— A L A Bkl 11:77 O '14 *

— Ath 1914,2:392 O 17 280w

"Does Mrs. Norris think it wise to hold up Susan as a model for her legion of girl readers?" L. G. Hubert, Jr.

— Bookm 40:559 Ja '15 450w

"Mrs. Norris's style and methods are those of a bygone age, when the serial fiction of the story-paper was all the vogue."

— Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 350w

"If the whole is a little overcharged with sentiment and morality, it is not really mawkish." Lucian Cary

— Dial 57:256 O 1 '14 200w

— Ind 80:105 O 19 '14 60w

"A novel much above the average."

— Nation 99:349 S 17 '14 220w

"A very pretty and pleasant though somewhat long-winded story. It is a more ambitious piece of work than any Mrs. Norris has before attempted, and it has the same qualities of sincerity and humor which have helped to make her former stories popular."

— N Y Times 19:362 Ag 30 '14 550w

Reviewed by W. D. Howells

— No Am 200:308 D '14 1100w

"The novel would gain by some condensation. No one can read one of Mrs. Norris's stories without thinking better of life."

— Outlook 108:224 S 23 '14 250w

"The book is a broad and significant study of American life as a girl stands upon its threshold, and it presents a remarkable psychological analysis of a girl's thoughts and feelings through the ups and downs of the first few years of being thrown upon her own responsibility."

— Springfield Republican p5 S 10 '14 1100w

NORRIS, KATHLEEN. The treasure. il *$1.2
(3½c) Macmillan 14-2353

A contribution to the literature of the servant problem. The treasure is Justine, graduate of the American school of domestic science, who follows a long procession of Lizzies and Katies and Tillies in the Salisbury kitchen. Where they have wasted Justine's savings; where they have squandered and mismanaged, Justine organizes; but where they have been content to be servants, Justine insists on being an independent working woman. It is the latter consideration that brings complications, for, with all the benefits accruing, Mrs. Salisbury, representative of the old school of hit and miss housekeeping, finds it difficult to accept the new order.

"A fairly readable but slight story."

— A L A Bkl 10:326 Ap '14

"This story of some two hundred pages should do much good—and this is quite aside from the author's natural charm and literary skill." G. Middleton

— Bookm 39:220 Ap '14 550w

"It may be that there is fact behind her story, but whether there is or not, it offers an extremely feasible and practical way out of a much vexed difficulty. Seldom is a story with a purpose to teach a lesson so emphatically also a story with a purpose to amuse."

— Boston Transcript p6 F 14 '14 200w

"We recommend this clever book to every woman struggling with the servant problem. Indeed we think the husbands, who have listened patiently to the complaints of their wives concerning the extravagant demands of the servants of the day, will also enjoy the book."

— Cath World 99:244 My '14 270w

"It all makes a sane and wholesome novel, well worth reading—especially by perplexed housewives."

— N Y Times 19:72 F 15 '14 270w

Outlook 106:819 Ap 11 '14 100w

Spec 112:795 My 9 '14 25w

NORTHEND, MARY HARROD. Historic homes of New England. il *$5 (9½c) Little 14-17489

Some of the houses described in this book, the House of seven gables, and the Longfellow house among them, have literary as well as historic associations. Most of those described however are private homes that have been selected as good examples of our colonial architecture. The pictures, from photographs of the houses and their interiors, are unusually interesting.

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

— Bookm 40:433 D '14 200w

"This timely book will be especially valued for reference and study by architects and collectors."

— Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 270w

"The historical and descriptive text gives evidence of care and thoroughness."

— Dial 57:461 D 1 '14 180w

"Readable and sympathetic description."

+ Ind 80:140 O 26 '14 26w

"Historic homes of New England" is not to be supposed, as its title might indicate, to be only of local interest, but should be regarded rather as a national document—as a precious heirloom or a priceless legacy turned over to us by its author for the edification and education of those of us who are able to appreciate its real value and significance."

+ Int Studio 54:sup62 D '14 500w

+ Lit D 49:1188 D 12 '14 140w

+ Outlook 108:441 O 21 '14 60w

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 850w

NORTON, GRACE FALLOW. Sister of the wind, and other poems. *$1.25 Houghton 11-11131

"There may be no autobiography in this slender volume of songs; there is certainly self-revelation—if not of outward experiences, certainly of moods, insights, contacts of spirit."—
Outlook

"If art alone made poetry great, then no praise would be too high for Miss Grace Fallow Norton's 'Sister of the wind.' For her verses are exquisitely made—not a word or a syllable is out of place. But the poet must be something more than an artist; he must have strong passion and deep sympathy."

+ — Lit D 49:26 J1 4 '14 300w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 100:13 Ja 7 '15 180w

"This is not a book of 'plain song'; its notation is simple enough, but its thought is elusive and demands not only attention but the mood which interprets other moods."

+ — Outlook 107:626 J1 11 '14 220w

"Her second book surpasses the first in its breadth of poetic conception, versatility and technical perfection. Whatever labor may have been spent upon the verses is not in evidence; they breathe the artless eloquence of nature's own voices."

+ R of Rs 50:246 Ag '11 200w

"A book containing a number of delightful pieces of verse."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 27 '14 450w

NORTON, OLIVER WILLCOX. Attack and defense of Little Round Top, Gettysburg, July 2, 1863. il *$2 Neale 13-3083

"The importance of this book lies in the fact that it corrects an error of many historians of the Battle of Gettysburg. The writer was a private soldier in that battle, and on service at Gen. Vincent's headquarters as a bugler. His account of this particular engagement shows that Vincent took his brigade to Round Top without orders from either Warren or Barnes and fixed his own position. . . . Lieut. Norton's account of what he saw and heard is confirmed in letters from Gen. Warren, nineteen of which, and all but one hitherto unpublished, appear in the book."—N Y Times

"A painstaking detailed account."

+ A L A Bkl 10:316 Ap '14

"It is a justified effort to correct some common misapprehensions about the defense of the critical position of the Union left at Gettysburg."

+ Ind 75:746 S 25 '13 200w

Nation 97:105 J1 31 '13 130w

"A very interesting volume, a model for all that enter into the polemics of the civil war."

+ N Y Sun p4 F' 22 '13 120w

+ N Y Times 19:198 Ap 19 '14 250w

R of Rs 48:756 D '13 150w

"An interesting addition to the literature called forth by the Gettysburg anniversary."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 21 '13 280w

NORTON, ROBERT DOUGLAS. Painting in East and West. *$1.40 Longmans (Eng ed A14-1064)

The author "treats the whole contrast of eastern and western art in a very general way.

Eastern art stops at suggestion and requires a definite effort of appreciation. Western art tends to imitation and requires only recognition. The defect of the western theory of imitation Mr. Norton finds in a principle of limits. Once imitation is attained, nothing but repetition remains for later artists. For example, Chardin, Manet and Cézanne may be said to have spoiled still life for their successors. The advantage of the eastern theory of art as interpretation or suggestion of the rhythm of the universe is that such interpretation may be various. . . . What western art lacks is worthy aims and a real public. Mr. Norton sees the remedy in an education in beauty such as Plato shadowed forth in the 'Republic.' The race must be made anew æsthetically in the schools."—Nation

A L A Bkl 10:361 My '14

"Throughout the author is confronted with problems, not only of aesthetics, but also of philosophy and metaphysics, education, and religion, and as his equipment for assuming an authoritative attitude in these several departments is none too evident, his conclusions are unconvincing. He is, however, tentative in his judgments, and relies largely on official authorities. In spite of his anxiety not to say the wrong thing, the views he expresses are more than once inconsistent with what he has said before."

+ — Ath 1913,2:533 N 8 180w

"Throughout the spirit of the book is winning, the style excellent, and the argument happily illustrated from both eastern and western literature. Grave and thoughtful study."

+ — Nation 97:575 D 11 '13 450w

NORTON, ROY. The boomers. il *$1.25 Watt 14-7566

"It is a jolly, rollicking story that Mr. Norton tells of a Tennessee Colonel who loses all his money at the age of sixty-five and goes into the far Northwest to grow up with the country and make his fortune. . . . At once he falls into the hands of a 'live one,' a capable and unscrupulous hustler who has no trouble at all in selling him a lot of worthless land that overhangs a pretty bay on the shore of Puget Sound. But the old man's innocence is so childlike and his trustfulness so complete that the hustler develops a conscience. The game has been too easy. He owes it both to himself and the Colonel to see the business through to success. So, instead of seeking new fields . . . he quickly solves a scheme, allies himself with several other men of varying intentions and, with a mighty campaign of booming and through sharp ups and downs they finally drive the scheme on to brilliant success."—N Y Times

"The story is ingenious and is told with such high good humor that it makes an entertaining book. It contains also some clean-cut and lively character drawing."

+ N Y Times 19:230 My 10 '14 300w

"The story has its full share of novelty and humor." Doris Webb

+ Pub W 85:1336 Ap 18 '14 800w

"Here is a story that falls only a little short of the famous 'Prodigal judge.'"

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 470w

NOTESTEIN, LUCY LILIAN, and DUNN, WALDO HILARY. Modern short-story. *$1 Barnes 14-2054

"In some important respects this work differs from texts on the subject which have hitherto appeared. Their treatment is based upon the method which Professor Dunn has used in teaching large classes in short-story writing. . . . As a former student in his classes, Miss Notestein did most of the actual work on the book under his general direction, and the two have been able therefore to combine points of view of both teacher and student. . . . After a preliminary chapter on the modern short-story as a distinct form of art, the text takes up in succession intelligent and suggestive studies of the germinal idea, the plot, structure, the end and the beginning, the title,

NOTESTEIN, L. L., and DUNN, W. H.—Cont. characterization, atmosphere, style, and the personality of the writer showing its importance as a factor in all literature."—Boston Transcript

+ — Ath 1914,2:196 Ag 15 650w

"It is absolutely clear in statement on many points which have hitherto been left vague or obscure. Although designed primarily as a college textbook the volume will be found equally valuable for private students, for teachers' reading classes, would-be writers, and in fact all who desire more than a casual acquaintance with the most modern, as well as the most artistic, form of fiction."

+ Boston Transcript p8 F 28 '14 450w

"The treatment shows some of the limitations which are usual in a book that is based on the instructional method of one teacher; and as a textbook it suffers somewhat from slight indistinctness of plan, which is made worse by the habit of printing illustrative extracts in the same type as the text. With all its minor defects it is, however, a pleasingly sane and judicious manual, full of sound theory and good illustrative criticism."

+ — Dial 56:346 Ap 16 '14 400w

"There is nothing that seems to us worthy of particular comment in 'The modern short story.'"

— Educ R 49:527 My '14 20w

"The little treatise is primarily a textbook to which the authors hope many college students will be exposed, but one may harbor the suspicion that the undergraduate mind, after encountering these numberless hurtling phases of current doctrines, will be left gasping in bewilderment rather than keyed up to a creative point. To the general reader, familiar with recent theorizing about short fiction, the volume is more likely to prove unintentionally entertaining."

— Nation 98:305 Mr 19 '14 250w

NOYES, ALFRED. Rada: a drama of war in one act. il *60c (17½c) Stokes 14-18743

Into this brief one-act play the author has compressed the horror and hell of war. The scene is a village home in the Balkans on Christmas eve. The characters are a mother who is forced to shoot her twelve-year old child and herself; two soldiers who would have saved them from the assaults of their brutalized companions if they could; and a half-witted old schoolmaster who babbles of the survival of the fittest.

Reviewed by W: S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 5 '14 280w

Ind 80:291 N 23 '14 50w

+ R of Rs 51:119 Ja '15 260w

NOYES, ALFRED. Wine-press, a tale of war. il *60c Stokes 13-25324

Alfred Noyes draws a picture of war as it is and tells the story of what it means to the young Balkan peasant who goes out to fight unquestioningly at the behest of the "five men in black tail-coats" to whom blood is only a word and who reckoned the cost of war "in little disks of gold." The dedication is addressed "To those who believe that Peace is the corrupter of nations."

A L A Bkl 10:361 My '14

+ Boston Transcript p6 Mr 7 '14 800w

+ Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 500w

+ Lit D 48:560 Mr 14 '14 450w

Reviewed by Helen Bullis

N Y Times 19:339 Ag 9 '14 1300w

"But no criticism could be right which doomed this striking poem to insignificance. Work of genius or not, the thing is big and thought-compelling."

+ No Am 199:785 My '14 650w

"The poem repels from its sheer brutality; but sober reflection will persuade the reader that it but slightly sketches the actual horrors of war."

+ — R of Rs 49:370 Mr '14 220w

"It seems to us that, in spite of many fine things, the total effect of the book is unsatisfactory; the drama hovers on the edge of melodrama, and the pictures have something of the crude rapidity of a cinematograph."

+ — Spec 112:sup675 Ap 25 '14 170w

"Nobly and passionately conceived, carefully wrought, the poem is indeed literature in a very real sense, and deliberate propaganda as well."

Florence Converse

+ Survey 32:200 My 16 '14 750w

Reviewed by E: B. Reed

+ — Yale R n s 4:182 O '14 570w

NOYES, MRS. ANNA BOGERT (GAUSMANN).

<sup>4</sup> How I kept my baby well. (Educational psychology monographs, no. 9) il $1.25 Warwick & York 13-13572

This book "contains an account of a fortunate little boy's first two years of life, written by his mother, who devoted to the details of his health the trained powers of observation and reason acquired in a college education and by the habit of teaching."—Ath

"To all parents—indeed, to all persons in charge of little children—her record will prove interesting, encouraging, and instructive."

+ Ath 1913,2:446 O 25 150w

"This book must be read to be appreciated. It ought to have a very wide circle of readers in this country and young mothers especially should read it for the valuable hints it contains on taking care of the baby." J. M. Greenwood

+ Educ R 48:399 N '14 970w

Reviewed by Cyril Burt

+ Nature 93:424 Je 25 '14 100w

+ N Y Times 18:486 S 21 '13 70w

"To mothers the book should be of value because it is full of practical well-reasoned out suggestions, but it is also valuable to the general public as showing a very rare thing, a book-learned woman who finds in the details of domestic life ample exercise for all her intellectual faculties." Alice Hamilton

+ Survey 31:677 F 28 '14 250w

NOYES, GEORGE RAPALL, and BACON, LEONARD, eds. and trs. Heroic ballads of Servia. *$1.25 Sherman, French & co. 14-69

Many of the ballads translated for this volume are old, dating back to the days of earliest written records; others are modern, for, as the editors point out, the ballad is still a living form of literature in Servia. They are still composed and sung by peasant poets. The contents of the volume are grouped as follows: A ballad of Servia before the Turkish conquest; Ballads of Kósovo field; Ballads of Marko Krályevich; Ballads of Servia under Turkish rule; A Montenegrin ballad; Ballads without historical foundation.

+ Ath 1913,2:697 D 13 130w

"The student of ballad literature will find the present work of substantial value, and even the general reader will appreciate the swing of the lines in their English dress."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 15 '13 260w

"The translations are, as a whole, well done."

+ Chaut 72:333 D 27 '13 140w

+ — Lit D 48:767 Ap 4 '14 680w

+ N Y Times 19:149 Mr 29 '14 1600w

"The ballad literature of Servia is among the finest in Europe."

+ Outlook 106:95 Ja 10 '14 100w

+ R of Rs 49:106 Ja '14 1000w

NOYES, WILLIAM. Design and construction in wood. il $1.50 Manual arts press 14-3917

"The purpose of the following studies is, (1) to give to beginners in wood-working an opportunity for the acquisition of skill in the handling of tools, and, (2) some practice in designing simple projects in wood." (Foreword) Two chapters on Wood and one on Equipment are followed by directions for making scrap baskets, mitred picture frames, candlesticks, taborets, trays, etc. The volume is generously supplied with illustrations from photographs and working drawings.

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

+ A L A Bkl 10:316 Ap '14 ✚

"The distinct contribution of the book lies in its clear presentation of the content of a course in woodworking and the suggestion of the author's method of presenting shop problems to his classes." Emery Filbey

+ El School T 14:145 My '14 130w

"The book by Mr. Noyes supplements admirably his previous volumes, 'Handwork in wood,' and 'Wood and forest.' Judged by their fruits Mr. Noyes' theories of design and construction must be vital and healthy."

+ School Arts Magazine 13:549 Mr '14 70w

O

O'BRIEN, HOWARD VINCENT. New men for old. *$1.25 (1½c) Kennerley 14-9766

The first novel of a recent Yale graduate. His scene is laid in Chicago in a large preserving plant. The hero is a dilettante who while dipping into philosophy and dabbling in art had spent his life in ease abroad. But when he is recalled from his life of idling by his father's death he finds himself not heir to a fortune, as he had every reason to suppose, but quite penniless. The story in which he figures is "a thoughtful consideration of present-day industrial problems and advocates altruism in dealing with labor as against the old theory of extorting the largest possible return for the lowest possible wage. It is only at rare intervals, however, that the author's sociological and economic beliefs appear undraped on the surface of his story. For he clothes them in a wholly absorbing romance." (Springfield Republican)

"An optimistic and vigorous story."

+ A L A Bkl 11:32 S '14 ✚

"With all its rawness of detail, the story is told with vigor and sincerity."

+ — Nation 18:728 Je 18 '14 300w

"'New men for old' is not much more original than its title, except in its use of up-to-date materials; it has no distinction of style and no 'atmosphere.' The reader reads nothing into it which is not there already, which shows that it lacks the quickening power of genius or even of trained talent. But it is a sane, wholesome story of how two men met a great social problem, and its lesson, that reforms are far more apt to come by the slow process of keeping on doing one's small best than by sudden and violent effort, is worth remembering."

+ — N Y Times 19:26 Je 14 '14 850w

"The author makes a convincing exhibition in favor of the new methods over the old and in so doing writes a book that is not only pleasant but entertaining."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 18 '14 350w

O'CONNOR, ELIZABETH (PASCHAL) (MRS. THOMAS POWER O'CONNOR). I myself, il *$2.50 (2c) Putnam

A book of personal reminiscences drawn from the author's store of memories of America, Ireland and England. As the wife of the Irish journalist, T. P. O'Connor, she met the most distinguished men and women of the modern English literary world and her book is full of interesting anecdotes and quotations from letters, among the latter, two letters from George Bernard Shaw, others from Barrie, Conan Doyle and George Meredith. Also there are interesting comparisons of England and America, of English and American men as husbands, etc.

"The fact is that the volume is so frank, so unveiled, so marked by the overmastering desire of the writer to sit down beside you and have one grand sentimental time over everything that ever happened to her, that it fairly piques you into reading page after page. She had so many friends, sensible people, distinguished men and women, and they were immensely fond of her. How could she have concealed so carefully in these pages the qualities which they valued in her?"

— Nation 99:554 N 5 '11 370w

N Y Times 20:47 F 7 '15 190w

O'CONNOR, ELIZABETH (PASCHAL) (MRS. THOMAS POWER O'CONNOR). My beloved South. il *$2.50 Putnam 13-25031

"In the preface Mrs. O'Connor explains that when she returned to her native land after many years of absence and found the new South standing in the midst of abundance she was filled with the desire to write 'an informing, practical, statistical book.' Instead of carrying out this plan, however, she has endeavored to make her book a series of glimpses of the real life and the real people of both the old South and the new, reaching her end mainly by means of stories and reminiscences. . . . Her book is a veritable treasure house of tales about all manner of people, white and black, famous and lowly, young and old, men and women. She begins with her own ancestors and with one graphic bit after another recreates much of the life of the old-time South."—N Y Times

"The delineation of the lighter side of life in Texas, Charleston, New Orleans, Maryland, the Suwanee river and elsewhere in the author's girlhood, and of the old-time 'darkey' and plantation life are true and full of humor if somewhat overlaid with sentiment."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:277 Mr '14

"Her humor is delicious and abundantly interspersed; she quotes poetry aptly. She is a true southerner, faithful to her lovely homeland, but not a word is found from cover to cover, of bitterness towards us of the North, nor, indeed to any of mankind. One will find no more thoroughly and charmingly readable book than this." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 11 '13 680w

+ — Dial 56:347 Ap 16 '14 350w

+ Ind 78:53 Ap 6 '14 30w

"This is a volume for the eclectic reader, not for the consecutive pursuer of a logical theme."

+ — N Y Sun p10 D 6 '13 900w

"My beloved South' is an entertaining book and makes a charming companion for an odd half hour. It is also a contribution of value to that social history whose importance, in any land, as a vital factor in its political history, is coming to be generally recognized."

+ N Y Times 19:770 Ja 4 '14 450w

O'CONNOR, VINCENT CLARENCE SCOTT. Travels in the Pyrenees, including Andorra and the coast from Barcelona to Carassone. il *$3 Dodd (Eng ed A13-2104)

"While the Atlantic Pyrenees are well known to travellers, little is known of the Eastern Pyrenees, through whose magnificent gorges and grassy valleys foam and slip the rivers whose outlet is the Gulf of the Lion. And yet no country in Europe has scenery finer, a climate more invigorating, or historical associations more glowing with romance. To make this majestic mountain land better known, by allowing others to share what to the author was so vivid a pleasure is the purpose of this delightful record of travel. . . . He describes only the eastern section of the mountains, the home of the Catalan people—and particularly that portion of it called Les Pyrénées-Orientales."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:190 Ja '14

"The excellence of Mr. O'Connor's present work will add to his reputation, even though some may think that there is too much dry history in parts of it. The book is full of admirable pen-and-ink sketches and photographs; but the latter are ingeniously arranged in a way which places them as far as possible from the text to which they refer. We have noticed a few mistakes in names."

O'CONNOR, V. C. S. —Continued.

+ — Ath 1913.2:83 J1 26 550w

"He is not so content with his own impressions that he hesitates to venture upon a somewhat lengthy historical introduction and he scatters much readable history throughout the book." Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 38:387 D '13 330w

"Mr. Scott-O'Connor's love and intimate knowledge of his subject and his grace and charm of style not only make us see the Pyrenean lands and people, but recreate for us the splendid pageant of their past."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 8 '13 280w

"Mr. O'Connor's style of narration makes him eminently companionable both to the man who knows the Pyrenees and the man who knows them not. The illustrations are exceptionally beautiful."

+ N Y Times 19:15 Ja 11 '14 500w

"A very complete and a very delightful account of the eastern Pyrenees and of the adjoining coast."

+ Spec 111:145 J1 26 '13 520w

O'DONOVAN, GERALD. Father Ralph. *$1.40 12 (1c) Kennerley

A story of the apostasy of a young Irish priest, Ralph O'Brien was dedicated to the priesthood even before his birth. His mother, a narrow, devout woman, had prayed for a son whom she might give to the service of the church and she never doubted that Ralph was a direct answer to her prayer. He accepted his destiny unquestioningly, altho he knew that his father, a good Catholic, too, but a broad-minded man, disapproved. The story moves slowly and the stages in Ralph's progress are described in detail. His loss of faith came gradually not in a sudden cataclysm, altho an encyclical is the direct cause of his leaving the church. The author sees Ireland as a priest-ridden country but he writes, without venom and with respect for the spiritual as distinct from the religious life.

"In spite of its occasional harshness of judgment it is well worth reading."

+ — Ath 1913.1:522 My 10 130w

"This is an interesting story, and a serious study, by a deeply religious Irish Catholic, of the present condition of the Church in Ireland. Whatever degree of accuracy may belong to it as a picture of conditions, this is a book of extraordinary sincerity and force."

+ Nation 99:607 N 19 '14 530w

"It is enough to say that his novel is written with minute inside knowledge of the subject, that its honesty and earnestness are above suspicion, and that, so far from encouraging secularism, it never fails to exalt spirituality. It should be added as a notable feature of the story that, though it embraces many aspects of Irish life, it is free from political partisanship."

+ Spec 110:887 My 24 '13 1200w

OGDEN, HENRY ALEXANDER. Boys' book of famous regiments; with the collaboration of H. A. Hitchcock. il *$1.50 (3c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-20755

The author has told the story of some of the famous and picturesque regiments of different countries. Contents: The origin of the regiment; The valor of some British regiments; Regimental glories of Napoleon and France; Famous regiments of the United States; The regiments of Old Prussia and United Germany; The intrepid and picturesque Russians; Some regiments of the dual monarchy; The dashing Bersaglieri and other Italian regiments; Sweden's cavalry and the yellow regiment; The colonial regiments of Canada and India; The "ever victorious army" and other world famous regiments; Some regiments of Europe in the great war of 1914.

Ind 80:413 D 14 '14 80w

"There is not a boy who will fail to find something to interest him in the historical accounts of famous regiments that have helped to make history."

+ Lit D 49:1131 D 5 '14 130w

Nation 99:665 D 3 '14 50w

"Of particular interest today."

+ N Y Times 19:512 N 22 '14 100w

OGG, FREDERIC AUSTIN. Daniel Webster. il *$1.25 (1c) Jacobs 14-7002

Uniform with the "American crisis biographies" this volume of over four hundred pages is devoted principally to Webster's public activities with less emphasis upon the personal characteristics of the man. The author has made liberal use of the Curtis and the Lodge biographies, and of standard histories and monographs; but the chief source of data has been Webster's own writings and those of contemporaries. A complete classified bibliography shows the reader what material has been employed in the sketch.

"Differs from Lodge in certain of its judgments and is fuller, but is inferior in literary quality. Fisher is concerned more with the intimately human side of the man."

+ A L A Bkl 11:118 N '14

"No life of Webster the statesman could, in the same compass, well prove more satisfactory."

+ Dial 57:23 J1 '14 350w

"A commendable piece of work. It is comprehensive, well proportioned, and judicial."

+ Nation 99:353 S 17 '14 250w

+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 40w

"Fresh and stimulating treatment of the subject."

+ R of Rs 49:757 Je '14 150w

OGILVIE, WILLIAM. Early days on the Yukon and the story of its gold finds. il *$1.50 Lane 13-25653

"The author helped to mark out the boundary between the United States and Canada in 1887, he was the first governor of the territory, and in later years was Commissioner. He explored the country as a surveyor and, as an official, looked on the gold rush when it came. He begins with a historical sketch of exploration and settlement in Alaska and the Canadian north, and then describes things that came under his own observation or in which he took part. . . . It is with the eye of an administrator as well as an explorer that he regards the province, but he keeps breaking out unexpectedly with capital stories of the strange people he came across."—N Y Sun

"Mr. Ogilvie writes with a minute knowledge of this subject, and modestly makes little mention of his own work. Every point is treated in a simple and straightforward manner."

+ Ath 1913.2:452 O 25 150w

"His work, although it is brief, probably is closer to facts than many of the larger volumes."

+ Boston Transcript p7 D 20 '13 250w

+ N Y Sun p7 D 6 '13 150w

"Contains a great deal of interesting matter."

+ N Y Times 19:136 Mr 22 '14 80w

OGLEY, DANIEL H. Incandescent electric lamps and their application. (Longmans' technical handicraft ser.) il *$0c Longmans A14-1582

"This book treats in a simple and practical manner of illumination problems, with special reference to incandescent electric lamps. . . . The subjects covered include: Illumination and standard sources of light; photometry; distribution of light; the manufacture of incandescent lamps, and their characteristics; direct and indirect systems of lighting, with good photographic illustrations showing results obtained, and the methods of calculation for solving illumination problems."—Elec World

"The book is clearly written and is a valuable addition to the literature which is already available on this subject."

+ Elec W 61:143 J1 18 '14 120w
+ Engin N 71:1163 My 21 '14 200w

"We wish we could compel all architects, wiring contractors, shopkeepers, and users of electric light generally to read this little book."

D: Robertson

+ Nature 94:143 O 8 '14 80w

O'HIGGINS, HARVEY JERROLD. Silent Sam, and other stories of our day. *$1.25 (1c) Century 14-4460

The first is a story of political graft and of a man railroaded to jail to save the honor and dignity of men of high reputation. Most of those that follow are stories of the New York tenements and streets. The titles that follow the one that gives the book its name are: His mother; In the matter of art; Tammany's tithes; The clowns; The Devil's doings; The hired man; The honeymoon flat; The old woman's story; The hot-air harps; The reporter; The mother-in-law; In the museum; The exiles; During the war; In lovers' meeting; The two Mickeys; Larkin.

"His comradeship is as perfect as his observation is keen, and, because of that comradeship, his book can hardly fail to widen the sympathies of all who are fortunate enough to be among its readers."

+ N Y Times 19:113 Mr 8 '14 310w

"Mr. O'Higgins' mastery of technique makes the more or less cheerful poor whom he considers stand out clear cut before us."

+ R of Rs 49:629 My '14 60w

OKAKURA-YOSHISABURO. Life and thought of Japan. il *$1.25 Dutton A14-663

"A well-written description of Japan, her life, religion, and national customs, which has been reprinted, with modifications, from lectures given in Boston. The author wishes specially to emphasize the fact that, in spite of modern developments, the spirit of Japan remains much as it ever was."—Ath

A L A Bkl 10:361 My '11

"He is naturally well acquainted with his subject, and deals with it in a sympathetic and wide-minded way."

+ Ath 1913:2:491 N 1 60w

"One gains many new impressions of the Japanese people, their thoughts and their life, from this small volume."

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 10 '13 630w

"There is unfortunately no index to give the book unity and reference value."

+ Nation 99:194 Ag 13 '14 1050w

"A very charming and on the whole faithful picture of a good-class Japanese home is given in a book which contains much curious and interesting information."

+ Sat R 117:52 Ja 10 '14 210w

OLCOTT, CHARLES SUMNER. Lure of the camera. il *$3 (4½c) Houghton 14-16459

Photography with the author is an avocation. On journeys to various places, undertaken in the interests of more serious business, he has always carried a camera with him and has brought home pictures of interesting and beautiful places. In two previous books he has written of such visits to scenes associated with George Eliot and with Sir Walter Scott. In the present volume he describes journeys to places as widely separated as the Italian lakes and the Grand cañon. Among the chapters are: Literary rambles in Great Britain; A day in Wordsworth's country; Literary landmarks of New England; A day with John Burroughs, and Glimpses of the Yellowstone. Each is illustrated from photographs.

A L A Bkl 11:216 Ja '15

+ Dial 57:457 D 1 '14 210w

+ Ind 80:104 O 19 '14 160w

+ Lit D 49:1189 D 12 '14 160w

"The commentary is pleasant and readable, if not in any way striking."

+ Nation 100:148 F 4 '15 260w

"Admirers of photography will find book and pictures full of suggestion and interest. The chapters are written with easy friendliness, in an agreeable mingling of information and discursive charm. All in all, the book is pleasing to eye and mind alike."

+ Outlook 108:505 O 28 '14 170w

R of Rs 50:758 D '14 100w

"As a suggestion of the possibilities in travel, or as an entertaining book of reminiscent pleasures, it will appeal to a wide variety of readers."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 29 '14 570w

OLCOTT, FRANCES JENKINS, ed. Good stories for great holidays. il *$2 (2c) Houghton 14-19135

A collection of stories selected and arranged for story-telling and reading aloud and for the children's own reading. The preface says: "There are here collected one hundred and twenty stories for seventeen holidays—stories grave, gay, humorous, or fanciful; also some that are spiritual in feeling, and others that give the delicious thrill of horror so craved by boys and girls at Halloween time. . . . As far as possible the stories are presented in their original form. When, however, they are too long for inclusion, or too loose in structure for story-telling purposes, they are adapted." In addition to the major holidays, the special days for which stories are provided are St. Valentine's day, May day, Mother's day, Labor day, Arbor day, and Bird day. Reference lists, and subject, author, and title indexes complete the volume.

+ A L A Bkl 11:179 D '14 +

"A most useful book for the family library." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:447 D '14 20w

+ Ind 80:413 D 14 '14 80w

"It affords much material ready at hand for the teacher, the librarian, and the mother either too busy to look elsewhere or too ignorant of sources to look anywhere."

+ Lit D 49:1131 D 5 '14 200w

+ Nation 99:665 D 3 '14 30w

"A book thought out and arranged with much care."

+ N Y Times 19:501 N 15 '14 120w

+ Outlook 108:991 D 16 '14 70w

"A volume which must appeal strongly to every thoughtful and ambitious teacher of children, and which will win at once the unanimous vote of live boys and girls everywhere."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:145 F '15 110w

OLCOTT, WILLIAM TYLER. Sun lore of all ages: a collection of myths and legends concerning the sun and its worship. il *$2.50 (1c) Putnam 14-8216

This volume follows a similar work on "Star lore of all ages." It was while working on that volume that the author discovered a considerable amount of material on sun lore which had never been collected in book form. He says: "The literature of the subject is teeming with interest, linked as it is with the life-story of mankind from the cradle of the race to the present-day, for the solar myth lies at the very foundation of all mythology, and as such must forever claim preeminence." There are chapters on Ancient ideas of the sun and the moon; Solar folk-lore; Sun worship; Solar festivals, etc., and the illustrations, beginning with Guido Reni's "Aurora" as a frontispiece, show the influence of sun lore on art.

"An interesting and well made book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:106 N '14

"The author has reduced to systematic and connected treatment a huge amount of chaotic and disconnected material." M. J. V.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 16 '14 700w

"The work . . . must take instant place among the really significant books of the year."

+ Nation 99:229 Ag 20 '14 1350w

+ N Y Times 19:383 S 13 '14 60w

OLCOTT, WILLIAM TYLER—Continued.

"Much interesting material has been brought together and presented in attractive form."
+ Pittsburgh 19:380 O '14 60w

"We are pleased with the volume as a whole and congratulate the author on his work."
+ — Springfield Republican p5 J1 30 '14 600w

OLIN, WALTER HERBERT. American irrigation farming. il $1.50 McClurg 13-16603

The book "deals with raising crops under irrigation rather than with the application of water to growing crops but the latter is given considerable attention. The opening part deals with the 'history, times and principles of irrigation.' The body of the book is a detailed discussion of the several crops grown under irrigation and should be of great value to students young and old, in school and on the farm. At the close of the book there are some miscellaneous irrigation data, engineering and statistical."—Engin N

"Accurate, clear and practical."

+ A L A Bkl 10:191 Ja '14

Ann Am Acad 53:315 My '14 30w

"Appears to be a very satisfactory book for those not familiar with soil and crop problems under irrigation' but who have a desire to learn."

+ Engin N 70:1000 N 13 '13 170w

OLIVEIRA MARTINS, JOAQUIM PEDRO de.

Golden age of Prince Henry, the navigator; tr. with additions and annotations by James Johnston Abraham and W. E. Reynolds. il $3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-16965)

"This work has long been a classic, but it is now presented for the first time to English readers. Prince Henry was one of the half dozen Portuguese grandsons of John of Gaunt, through the marriage of Philippa of Lancaster to John of Aviz. They were all remarkable men and one of them, Prince Henry, a man of fiery energy, was mainly responsible for the outburst of colonizing energy which raised Portugal for a brief time into a commanding position among the nations of Europe."—N Y Times

"The short account by Beazley will suffice for smaller libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 11:119 N '14

"At once high praise may be awarded to the translators. The book reads like original matter; the language, serious and straightforward, suffers neither from archaic affectations nor from any ultra-modernity of phrase."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup362 Mr 7 1200w

"No book of fiction ever written is more dramatic than this history."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 400w

"The author shows a strong bias against the aristocratic element in Portuguese life and government, due, no doubt, to his political sympathies, which are those of a modern republican. Martins's history possesses a rare interest."

+ — Dial 57:295 S 16 '14 400w

"A brilliant and fascinating piece of historical writing."

+ N Y Times 19:323 J1 26 '14 260w

"Though the author is not a dispassionate historian—the translators have omitted various carping references to the house of Braganza due to his strong Republican bias—he has made a picturesque book, strong in drama."

+ — Sat R 117:476 Ap 11 '14 700w

"His book is well worth study, for not only does it present an uncommon point of view, but it reminds us that Prince Henry did not fill the whole picture, and that his brothers were also men of destiny. Senhor Martins is a picturesque writer, attaining strong dramatic effects after the manner of Michelet and theorizing eloquently, if often obscurely, on the moral of his tale. Indeed, we would rather have Senhor Martins with his gloomy disapproval than a more equable historian with less sense of drama, for the story is full of high lights and deep shadows."

+ Spec 112:648 Ap 18 '14 1500w

OLMSTED, MILLICENT. Harmony wins. il $1 (3c) Lothrop 14-1105

The story of a lonely little girl who lived in a queer old house, with a miserly grandfather and a querulous invalid mother. In spite of her unwholesome surroundings she keeps fresh and sweet, and the coming of a little half-old lady lodger to the house means a great change in her life and circumstances.

"The story is a sentimental trifle, pleasant but uninspired. There are several really delightful drawings." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:320 N '13 34w

ONE year of Pierrot. $1.35 (1c) Putnam 14-6286

The mother of Pierrot, a young French woman who is left widowed just before the birth of her little son, tells in this book the story of his one year of life. One would hardly think that a little life, scarce twelve months long, could be so crowded full of events, but it is so, for Pierrot had a way of attracting to him many friends, and their stories are interwoven with his. All who knew him loved him, from Monsieur Jack Martin, who is a great American artist, to Gaston Battaille, the thief; from surly Madame Lacroix, who has no children, to the Countess of Beauchamp who has lost a little child. And what Pierrot in turn did for each of them his mother here faithfully sets down.

+ A L A Bkl 10:414 Je '14 +

"It is a story that radiates joy, and even in the depths of its pathos it makes clear the fact that the retrospect of one year of happiness will abide forever in the heart of the mother to whom that happiness has come through the possession of a child. Whether it be fiction or biography—and the presumption is all in favor of its being a product of the imagination—it has every semblance of convincing reality. To read 'One year of Pierrot' is to take pleasure in a veritable literary triumph." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 1200w

+ Cath World 39:334 S '14 200w

"It is as impossible to analyze this book as it would be to analyze the perfume of a flower. It is written with utmost simplicity and a certain exquisite, indefinable gentleness, yet it is vibrant throughout with that passion of mother-love which in very truth 'endureth all things, hopeth all things.'"

+ N Y Times 19:167 Ap 5 '14 800w

O'NEILL, ELIZABETH. Story of the world: a simple history for boys and girls. il $2.50 (1½c) Putnam

The author handles her big subject in something over forty chapters, beginning with The coming of man, and ending with Our world today. In an introductory letter addressed to one of the young friends for whom the book is written she says: "I could not tell you all the things which have ever happened in the world, but I have tried to tell you shortly about all the most important things. . . . I have chosen the greatest men and women to tell you about, and in reading their stories I hope you will understand better something of what the times were like in which they lived."

"Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neill has attempted, and carried through with creditable success, the ambitious task of writing 'The story of the world' for young people. The illustrations are excellent as is the selective power: the author knows what to leave out. The book is a worthy successor to her charming 'Nursery history of England.'"

+ — Ath 1913.2:sup473 O 25 220w

"We are amazed not so much at what the author has left out as what she has got in, not so much that her work is a little disjointed and patchy sometimes, but that, seeing her subject, it is ever anything else. A word, too, for the illustrations, which are well chosen and clearly reproduced, and, as far as possible, from contemporary engravings. These add a value and a reality to the book."

+ — Sat R 116:sup12 N 29 '13 110w

— Spec 111:sup951 D 6 '13 250w

O'NEILL, ELIZABETH. War, 1914: a history<sup>2</sup> and an explanation for boys and girls. il *60c (2c) Stokes

This English work gives an illustrated account of the first two months of the war, with chapters on: How the war began; How wars are fought to-day; How Belgium saved Europe; The march of the Germans towards Paris; The war at sea; The onward march of the Russians; The battle of the trenches.

ONIONS, OLIVER. Gray youth (Eng ed in 2v, 7 Two kisses, and A crooked mile). *$1.50 (1c) Doran 14-30722

Really a story and its sequel; and because of that fact it appeared in England with a two-part title. It is a story whose arguments sound like an anti-suffrage volley. The author, against the modern woman movement, holds up to ridicule a pair of artists with "advanced" notions. They are zealous followers of the new morality that looks to the emancipation of women. The woman's failures in life, as she sinks into selfishness under theories that degenerate into a set of stock phrases, are intended as a blow to feminism. Side by side develops a young woman whose love of home and children makes her a veritable "Lysander, the good, who stands before you." The author's sincerity is commendable, yet one feels that he is dealing with the eccentricities of the woman cause rather than with the movement itself.

+ — Ath 1913,2:253 S 13 250w

+ Ath 1914,1:sup466 Mr 28 350w

"Mr. Onions is not only the cleverest, he is also the most advanced of the younger English novelists."

+ Atlan 114:532 O '14 120w

"It is a refreshing, delicious and fairly thorough 'reductio ad absurdum' of the main propositions of feminism and eugenics." Norman Bryce

+ Bookm 39:685 Ag '14 140w

Reviewed by H. C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p11 O 11 '13 130w

"In 'Gray youth' Mr. Onions's facility has played him false. He has made too much of a simple story and simple situation, and its brilliancy is lost in a mass of verbiage." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 1000w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ — Dial 57:20 J1 1 '14 170w

"The theme is handled with humor and restraint."

+ Ind 79:105 J1 20 '14 350w

— + Nation 99:105 J1 23 '14 380w

"The two kisses' will prove a very great disappointment to the admirers of that fine trilogy which opened with 'In accordance with the evidence.' Mr. Onions has endeavored to write a humorous, satirical comedy, with the result of proving conclusively that his gift is neither for humor, satire, nor comedy."

— + N Y Times 19:290 Je 23 '14 900w

"There is material for thought in the irony of the story, and it is clever in parts, but it is too diffuse and is not well knit together."

+ — Outlook 107:561 J1 4 '14 150w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

Pub W 86:550 Ag 22 '14 600w

"An amazing and brilliant novel."

+ — R of Rs 50:247 Ag '14 400w

+ Sat R 116:372 S 20 '13 70w

"Mr. Oliver Onions is one of the most brilliant of our younger novelists. There is more brain work in a book by him than in half-a-dozen average works of fiction."

+ Sat R 117:346 Mr 14 '14 500w

+ — Spec 113:61 J1 11 '14 380w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 300w

ONIONS, OLIVER. Story of Louie. *$1.25 1 Doran (Eng ed 13-16141)

"The story of Louie" is the third volume of a trilogy. "Louie Causton was a mere shadow in the first book, 'In accordance with the evidence,' which told how Jeffries deliberately murdered Archie Merridew in order to prevent him—a wastrel and diseased—from marrying Evie Soames, whom Jeffries himself loved. In 'The debit account' we learned that Louie throughout was in love with the murderer; and now in this book we have the full story of her career." (Sat R) "Like the two earlier books, this is a spiritual chronicle; it is less dramatic than its forerunner—there is no symbolism of flashing red and green light, light which was first an annoyance and later a matter of profound significance—but it, too, is exceptionally interesting. And because it is the history of an intense inner life nothing could more thoroughly misrepresent it than a bald statement of its mere outward occurrences." (N Y Times)

"This is a cleverly told but unpleasant story. The book is too hopeless and sordid."

— + Ath 1913,1:696 Je 28 130w

"In every way 'The story of Louie' in combination with the two novels that lead up to it, is a remarkably expert piece of fiction. While it is all that a story should be, it is much more. It is history and biography." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 21 '14 1600w

"An arresting romance built around an immoral woman."

+ Ind 77:387 Mr 16 '14 30w

"The style of the telling is on a much higher plane than the character of the story told."

+ Lit D 48:626 Mr 21 '14 140w

"If his inspiration has not quite sufficed to build a wonderful spiritual drama around this framework of repellent fact, at any rate the attempt comes near enough to success to compel rather respectful admiration."

+ Nation 98:159 F 12 '14 370w

"There are few of his sentences which seem especially noteworthy when taken from their context, and this is one of the ways in which he is so exceptionally individual in method, just as he is exceptionally original in thought—that his work is a living organism, from which nothing can be detached. A new novel from his pen is an event which no one who cares about literature should overlook."

+ N Y Times 19:19 Ja 18 '14 650w

"The book is very closely written and is full of graphic touches which betray a keen and sympathetic observer of human life."

+ Sat R 116:113 J1 26 '13 750w

"We think that Mr. Onions is to a considerable extent the victim of the method he has chosen, for no author is fully justified of his choice if any one volume of his series cannot be read as a self-contained unit."

+ — Spec 111:250 Ag 16 '13 1000w

ONIONS, MRS. OLIVER (BERTA RUCK). His<sup>2</sup> official fiancée. *$1.25 (1c) Dodd

A novel on a new theme, or, at least, a clever variation of an old theme. A man who finds it advisable for business reasons to appear to be engaged for a time, offers one of his typists the post of official fiancée for one year. He chooses her because she seems to be demure, self-effacing and "tractable." She accepts, family affairs prompting her, because the salary offered is enticing, and because she looks on him as a mere machine, quite devoid of human emotions. Their agreement of course necessitates meetings outside of business hours and each one is let in for a number of startling revelations concerning the other. The novel is brightly written and altho the end is long foreseen, will probably hold the reader's interest.

"To take a subject which might well be thought threadbare, and to weave out of it a readable tale, is in itself no mean achievement, and that Mrs. Oliver Onions has done."

ONIONS, MRS. OLIVER —Continued.

+ Ath 1914.1:sup739 My 23 150w

"For though Mrs. Onions's book belongs to the very light, whipped-cream type of fiction, it is excellent cream, skillfully manipulated and flavored, so to speak, with a dash of sherry."

+ N Y Times 20:38 Ja 31 '15 400w

"An ingenious variant on a not very new plot. It is decidedly cheerful reading."

+ Spec 113:140 J1 25 '14 70w

OPDYCKE, JOHN BAKER. News, ads, and sales. il $1.25 Macmillan 14-11304

A work on commercial English, designed as a text-book in either the two final school years, or the first year of college. The author's aim, he says, "is not to make great newspaper men, advertisers, magazine writers, or salesmen of our pupils. It is rather to acquaint them with those most obvious forms of expression that are right at hand . . . in short, to make a place for home or local English in very much the same sense in which we have local history [and] local geography." Part one, which is devoted to The newspaper, consists of three parts: The newspaper field; Newspaper form and content; Newspaper values. Part two is given to a discussion of magazines, Advertising, Salesmanship. An appendix contains a valuable bibliography and lists of periodicals.

"We may say in all seriousness that Mr. Opdycke is most instructive, and, in all gratitude, that his instruction contains much amusement."

+ Ath 1914.2:226 Ag 29 650w

Ind 79:33 J1 6 '14 50w

"There is much to commend in the book."

+ Nation 99:332 S 10 '14 320w

"It is an experiment which seems well worth trying that Mr. Opdycke formulates in this book."

+ Outlook 108:225 S 23 '14 270w

"Any one looking forward to a journalistic career would do well to own and master [this work]."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 13 '14 100w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo. il $1.35 (1c) Little 15-1286

Representatives of Russia, Germany and France meet in Monte Carlo to consider plans for remaking the map of Europe. Working against their plots is Sir Henry Hunterleys, an English member of Parliament. Richard Lane, the American, gets into this international game by falling in love with the daughter of Mr. Grex, the Russian member of the trio. He seems at first an insignificant factor in the intrigue, but in the end it is he who turns the trick that foils the plotters. Then, with his Russian bride, he returns to America, determined to waken his country to the need of arming for self defence.

"Shows no lessening of the powers that have placed Mr. Oppenheim at the head of the sensational romancers of the day." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 1350w

"What with better, more plausible, and more smoothly running machinery in the story itself, as well as greater complication and variety of incident and interest, and what with the wide circulation and general attention that the views of certain of Germany's statesmen and philosophers have enjoyed in this country, the story is likely to make a quicker and more general appeal to American readers than any of his previous novels."

+ N Y Times 20:10 Ja 10 '15 500w

"Mr. Oppenheim brings the unique atmosphere of Monte Carlo very near us, and his easy, fluent, natural style, his power of narrative, bring the mysterious meetings in the Villa Mimosa well into the bounds of possibility." J. Marchand

+ Pub W 87:177 Ja 16 '15 280w

"The story is among Mr. Oppenheim's best and wholly absorbing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 14 '15 420w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. People's man. il $1.30 (1½c) Little 14-915

The hero of Mr. Oppenheim's tale is a labor leader who comes from America to England, hailed by English working men as their deliverer. On the night of his arrival he is invited to a conference with the prime minister and meets by chance Lady Elizabeth Landon. One isn't sure what Maraton's original plan for the saving of the country was but one feels that it must have been considerably modified by this meeting with Lady Elizabeth. In the end as a member of parliament, he looks forward to reforms effected thru legislation rather than by means of revolution.

"We are quite sure that the story itself is 'entirely imaginary,' and being so, it does credit once again to Mr. Oppenheim's marvellous imagination." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 7 '14 1000w

"The book shows Mr. Oppenheim's always striking skill in plot weaving and invention of incident, and, although the trail of the type-writer that has turned out so many tales to order is upon it in places, it is one of the strongest and most interesting stories its author has written and will probably have a much wider appeal than any of his previous novels."

+ N Y Times 19:776 Ja 4 '14 520w

"The outcome is not as dramatic or as clear cut as the beginning."

+ Outlook 106:96 Ja 10 '14 140w

"It is a clever satirical novel."

+ R of Rs 49:375 Mr '14 150w

OPPENHEIM, EDWARD PHILLIPS. Vanished messenger. il $1.30 (1½c) Little 14-14539

A characteristic Oppenheim novel based once more upon international intrigue. The theme is a conspiracy of the Powers against England to separate her from her colonies, while the plot grows up about a cripple who lives on the North sea coast and who uses his influence to throw England into war for the lust of bloodshed. His villainy takes the form of tampering with secret wireless messages whose information he divulges to another world power. He draws into the plot an American representative of The Hague whom he threatens with death unless an important secret is revealed. There is the usual love interest woven into the fabric of the tale.

"In 'The vanished messenger,' Mr. Oppenheim writes nothing new and strange, but at the same time he writes something lively and entertaining." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 700w

"A capital tale of international intrigue, and as the hurricane pace at which we are carried from one adventure to another discourages any unseemly prying into the probabilities of the situation, we are content to accept Mr. Oppenheim's word for them."

+ Nation 99:254 Ag 27 '14 300w

"The book has a curious timeliness, since its plot grows out of just such a sudden outburst of war over peaceful fields as is now convulsing Europe."

+ N Y Times 19:346 Ag 16 '14 550w

+ Outlook 107:943 Ag 15 '14 150w

"After all, who cares about literary values when he's reading Oppenheim!" Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 86:549 Ag 22 '14 520w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 520w

OPPENHEIM, JAMES. Idle wives. $1.30 (1½c) Century 14-7561

Mr. Oppenheim has utilized the plot of "The doll's house," but with the slamming of the door his story has only fairly begun. He adds Book 2 to tell what came after. Anne Wall is the idle wife, whose husband is utterly absorbed in business; whose servants are too efficient; whose nursery governess is too near perfection. Neither her husband, her house, nor her children need her. The break comes when she expresses her intention of recognizing her brother's socially undesirable wife. Her husband "forbids" her, and she leaves him, to go back to the work that had absorbed her time and talents before her marriage. The struggle is long and bitter, for the husband is hard-headed and the wife determined, but in the end he gains a new conception of her and of her value, and they are able to start over on a new basis.

+ — Ath 1911,2:197 Ag 15 '350w

"It is too improbable to make good reading except for the artless."

— Atlan 114:526 O '14 130w

"Technically it is a good piece of work, with the careful finish that we have learned to expect from him." F. T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 39:443 Je '14 '920w

Boston Transcript p10 My 2 '14 450w

"It is abominably written. No sense of the value of words restrains Mr. Oppenheim's attempts at poetizing."

— Dial 56:505 Je 16 '14 150w

"We wish the author could work out his story and be natural at the same time."

— Lit D 48:1495 Je 20 '14 200w

"For real characters and action are substituted a quasi-moral picture-show, much sentimental commentary, and not a little of that 'frank' speech about matters of sex."

— Nation 98:528 My 7 '14 250w

"Mr. Oppenheim's workmanship is excellent; he has told his story well; it holds scenes of unusual pathos, and he is terribly in earnest as to his thesis; but there are those who will contend that his view of duty is distorted. To abandon husband, children and home for a supposedly larger life and work is a strange perversion of both ethics and instinct."

+ — N Y Times 19:196 Ap 19 '14 '950w

"He does not look at the problem broadly and sanely and the book fails in consequence to bear any message of importance."

— Springfield Republican p5 Ap 30 '14 350w

OPPENHEIM, JAMES. Songs for the new age. 12 *$1.20 Century 14-15775

Mr. Oppenheim follows the modern tendency in attempting to break away from established traditions in poetry and to create new verse forms. "Polyrhythmical poetry" is the term he adopts to describe his "songs." Individualism is their keynote. He says:

"The real sin is in being divided against yourself; In wanting one thing and doing another."

"If there is one volume of verse published this year which I might safely recommend to every American man and woman who has not read poetry before, it is this book, where they will find their dreams and strivings sung and interpreted in a poetry that has the quality of greatness." W. S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p6 D 19 '14 730w

"In Mr. Oppenheim's poems one finds the outward form of Whitman without the essential kindling warmth of the inner spirit. His expression rarely exceeds statement, and statement may present correctly the modern intellectual attitude of revolt while failing utterly to arouse." A. C. Henderson

— + Dial 57:255 O 1 '14 250w

"'Songs': No one under Heaven could ever sing these! A song means melody and lilt and swing. These fragmentary revelations of human nature and semi-philosophical, semi-emotional observations of life are tersely exprest, rather nervous in style and sincere enough, but they pose under a misnomer."

— + Ind 80:214 N 16 '14 80w

"The best that can be said for its grandiosities is that they are shot with hyperboles which, in the mouth of a man who had proved to us that he loved truth and measure, might have been not wholly ineffective." O. W. Firkins

— Nation 100:13 Ja 7 '15 90w

"His prose work had hardly prepared us for the beauty and dignity of a number of these verses."

+ — N Y Times 19:498 N 15 '14 800w

R of Rs 51:116 Ja '15 150w

OPPENHEIMER, FRANZ. State, its history and development viewed sociologically; auth. tr. by J. M. Gitterman. *$1.25 Bobbs 14-3588

"This book is a study of the origin and development of the state from the sociological and economic viewpoint. Its material is drawn largely from Ratzel's writings, and in its theory that state origin results from conquest it follows Ratzel's and Gumplowicz. The economic interpretation of history is emphasized throughout." — Ann Am Acad

"Everyone who is trying to keep pace with sociological and economic thought must read this book. The publishers claim too much when they say: 'It is, indeed, nothing less than an entirely new theory of the origin and development of all state formations.' In fact there is nothing in the book on the process of civic evolution which has not been familiar for a long time to all well-informed sociologists. It is no new idea to the sociologists, but no one has before put it in such conclusive form, that the function of political control is virtually coordinate with physical cause and effect in shaping economic institutions. In the antithetic terms the 'economic means' and the 'political means,' Oppenheimer has not merely done a piece of phrase-making. He has invented a master key to sealed vaults in capitalistic theory." A. W. S.

+ — Am J Soc 19:852 My '14 500w

"The author keeps to proven historical facts and presents a book, stimulating to the student of sociology or political science, and to the thoughtful citizen."

+ A L A Bkl 10:316 Ap '14

"It might very well serve the purposes of syndicalists or members of the I. W. W. who desire to adopt a 'scientific' foundation for their ideas. For it is not a whit more fanciful or wrong-headed than other writings of the anarchist school." Ernest Bruncken

— Am Pol Sci R 8:496 Ag '14 900w

"While decidedly one-sided in its neglect of all factors save force in state origin and of all influences save the economic in state development, the book is a brilliant study of certain important phases of political evolution. The author errs in believing that the social-contact theory of state origin is still seriously held, and in considering the political and economic organizations of society as separable and antagonistic. The translation is unusually well done." R. G. Gettell

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:340 Ji '14 310w

Nation 99:582 N 12 '14 200w

ORAGE, ALFRED RICHARD, ed. National <sup>12</sup> guilds; an inquiry into the wage system and the way out. *$1.60 Macmillan (Eng ed A14-1838)

"The 'New age' writers—who have produced, under the editorship of Mr. Orage, the work before us on 'National guilds'—enter on a radical revision both of analytic and constructive economics, seeking the base of our social problems, and propounding a solution by means of Guilds of industry which, under the aegis of the state, shall yet be in the hands of the whole of those actually concerned in the necessary work of that industry, whether as managers, clerks, mechanics, labourers, &c. By this means it is proposed to eliminate rent, profit, interest, useless competition, and many other sources of waste, and to secure the ends generally aimed at by socialism. The first part of the book is devoted to an analysis of productive methods, which are found entirely uneconomic so far as they are based on the wage-system. . . . The eighteen chapters which constitute the second part of the book are devoted to the constructive side of the subject."—Ath

"The argument against the wage system is well made and strong. The plea for a gold system is not so conclusive." Scott Nearing

+ — Ann Am Acad 55:293 S '14 270w

+ Ath 1914,1:817 Je 13 1000w

ORAGE, ALFRED RICHARD, ed.—Continued.

"The whole represents a kind of fusion of syndicalism and state socialism, expounded with much vigour, cleverness, and originality." R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:914 J1 '14 120w

"Maddest of all the visions in this book is that of art and culture and beauty and emancipation springing into life at the touch of 'emancipated' democracy."

— Sat R 117:770 Je 13 '14 1400w

ORCZY, EMMUSKA, baroness. Laughing cavalier. *$1.35 (1c) Doran 14-14913

The author has chosen for her hero that laughing cavalier of whom Franz Hals painted a portrait in 1624, and she has chosen to look on him as an ancestor of her favorite character, the Scarlet Pimpernel. It is as a gay soldier of fortune with no money in his pocket that she presents him. As such he is quite ready to undertake the abduction of Gilda Berestein at the behest of her brother and her one-time lover, whose secret plots have been overheard by the girl. It so happens that the cavalier and Gilda have met once before, but of this he is unaware when he gives his word to bring about her capture. He carries out the plans of the plotters to the letter and then enters into another bargain with the girl's father to bring her back again.

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 40:558 Ja '15 250w

"A dashing tale which issues creditably withal from its inevitable comparison with 'The scarlet pimpernel.'"

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 21 '14 400w

+ Nation 99:499 O 22 '14 250w

"The Baroness Orczy tells a spirited story that well accords with the portrait."

+ N Y Times 19:448 O 18 '14 280w

"As we turn from the tragic news from day to day in the newspapers, we gladly welcome such a novel as 'The laughing cavalier,' for it is full of the very spirit of romantic adventure." F. M. Holly

+ Pub W 86:803 S 19 '14 470w

ORCZY, EMMUSKA, baroness. Unto Caesar. il *$1.35 (1½c) Doran 14-7730

This story of Rome in the days of the mad emperor Caligula opens with a vivid description of the slave market where there is the first clash of wills between Dea Flavia, favorite of the emperor, and Taurus Antinor, prefect of Rome. Later when there is a plot afoot against Caligula, Taurus Antinor sees the way to make himself emperor, but at one time, traveling in Judea, he had come under the influence of the Man of Nazareth, and this influence, which abides by him, determines his choice. Later he has his reward in the love of the once proud Dea Flavia.

"There is no need to take it seriously from the point of view of history. Here and there are whiffs of atmosphere, a real vision of a city, the sense of a crowd, but individual characterization, as well as incident, is blurred and lost in the misty outpourings of sentimentality."

— + Ath 1914,1:sup46 Mr 28 130w

"Here is an historical novel of an admirable type, absorbingly interesting without being melodramatic, and consistent without being didactic."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 350w

"It is a thrilling love-story, well balanced."

+ Lit D 48:1495 Je 20 '14 160w

"This is an unsuccessful example of the historico-romantic novel."

— Nation 98:698 Je 11 '14 150w

ORDWAY, EDITH BERTHA. Handbook of conundrums. *50c Sully & Kleinteich 13-17980

"The compiler of this little book defines a conundrum as 'a riddle in the form of a question, the answer to which involves a pun,' and few can resist the temptation to make puns, as this book shows. The compiler has brought together in this volume conundrums from such ancient literature as the Bible, from great historical epochs, and from the great masters of literature."—Boston Transcript

"Its special merit is in its topical arrangement, which will enable the hostess to find quickly riddles for special entertainments and individuals."

+ A L A Bkl 10:191 Ja '14

"The book will furnish amusement for all who appreciate flashes of wit."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 10 '13 150w

ORDWAY, EDITH BERTHA. Handbook of quotations; gleanings from the English and American fields of poetic literature. *50c Sully & Kleinteich 13-20815

A book of brief quotations arranged alphabetically by subjects with an author index at the end. The quotations are mainly from the familiar poets of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Pope, Byron, Browning, Tennyson, and others.

"Of decided appeal to literary workers."

+ Dial 56:192 Mr 1 '14 20w

"Within its restricted limits the selection made is good."

+ N Y Sun p7 D 6 '13 50w

"Would be useful in libraries which do not circulate their large quotation books, or in the little library where the demand does not justify a larger collection."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:55 Mr '14 40w

ORDWAY, EDITH BERTHA. Synonyms and antonyms. *$1 Sully & Kleinteich 13-21047

The author has arranged something over five thousand common words in alphabetical order, giving under each the words of similar and those of opposite meaning. She has aimed to compile a list that will be "concise yet full, and authoritative yet suggestive."

+ Dial 56:192 Mr 1, '14 20w

"It will serve the purposes of the majority of persons who are obliged to look up words in a hurry."

+ N Y Sun p5 N 15 '13 50w

"Her book, placed on the desk of the literary or business man, will give a good account of itself."

+ N Y Times 18:738 D 14 '13 60w

ORSI, PIETRO. Cavour and the making of modern Italy, 1810-1861. (Heroes of the nations, v. 49) il *$1.50 Putnam 14-3981

"The author has fully taken advantage of his biographical opportunities. He begins with the secular divisions of Italy in the eighteenth century, but reviews briefly the nation's history back to the times of the Roman empire. . . . As the volume is a history of Italy, as well as a biography of Cavour, many other men have part in it, and an interesting period is that during the reign of Victor Emmanuel II, when held several positions in the cabinet and finally was prime minister. The story of Cavour's career is the history of an important period in Europe and other nations besides Italy are involved."—Boston Transcript

"Count Orsi possesses unusual skill in condensation, and joined with this skill is a well-developed sense of perspective. A third quality which he possesses in no small measure is fairness. When we add that he has adequate knowledge of his subject, it will readily be seen why he has produced so good a compendium."

+ Am Hist R 20:204 O '14 470w

+ A L A Bkl 10:362 My '14

"Excellent little monograph. The title prepares us to find the author sinking the man in the movement, and his space, of course, is limited; but to our mind he has carried the process rather too far."

+ — Ath 1914,1:336 Mr 7 1450w

"The biography is written in readable and scholarly style, and the forty-eight illustrations, mainly portraits of contemporary heroes are of unusual excellence."

+ Boston Transcript p23 Mr 4 '14 300w

+ Dial 56:431 My 16 '14 120w
 Nation 98:665 Je 4 '14 40w

"Although one misses in Signor Orsi's book those human documents and intimate characterizations which lend spirit and movement to the lives of heroes, and with which the life of Cavour was amply filled, yet the author presents an excellent outline of 'The making of modern Italy, 1810-1861'—dispassionate, unprejudiced and straightforward—which forms an attractive introduction for more serious reading, either historical or biographical—particularly the latter."

+ — N Y Times 19:223 My 3 '14 1400w
 R of Rs 49:508 Ap '14 80w

"Brief but graphic biography." C.

+ Spec 112:389 Mr 7 '14 1750w

"Not needed by libraries having Thayer's work."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:190 Ji '14 40w

O'RYAN, JOHN F., and ANDERSON, W.
 12 D. A. Modern army in action: an exposition of the conduct of war. il $1.50 (2c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-20758

This work by two officers in the United States army is commended by Major-general Leonard Wood, who writes a foreword expressing the hope that the book will "cause the people of our country to devote serious attention to the general technique of war, and direct their thoughts toward the necessity for placing our country in a condition of preparedness." The book is made up of discussions on the following subjects: Genesis of strategy; On war; Preparation for war; German system: universal service; British system: volunteer armies; Mobilization and concentration; Transportation and supply; Principles of strategy; The strategic offensive; The strategic defensive; Infantry; Cavalry; Artillery; Auxiliary services; Security and information; Combined arms in action.

"A good elementary manual."

+ A L A Bkl 11:200 Ja '15

"In all these chapters is to be found much important information for the soldier, and they are equally interesting for the average citizen to whom war means merely the killing of many men."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '11 280w

"It is rare for expert writers to have so clear an idea of the needs of the lay reader as is here shown."

+ Ind 80:474 D 21 '14 200w

"Will give the average reader, ignorant of military matters, an excellent idea of many of the practical problems confronting the European armies in the field, and will enable him to have a clearer comprehension of what is going on and what those marching, battling millions mean."

+ N Y Times 19:552 D 6 '14 300w

OSBORNE, ALBERT B. As it is in England. 1 il $3 (4c); $1.25 (1½c) McBride, Nast & co. 13-24986

The author says: "I have not written an account of any one journey through England, nor have I made any attempt to describe the scenes along any one route. I have omitted London because it is too vast and varied a subject to be combined with any other. . . . I have gone where can best be found those places that give England her individuality, that are expressions of her difference from the rest of Europe in landscape, in tradition, and in ancient or modern life." (Preface) Contents: Cornwall and the Scilly isles; Some English villages; Poppy land and the English Holland; Two rivers of England; The channel islands; Two castles of the north; Some cathedral towns; Some English abbeys; Some English homes; Some inland resorts; Some seaside resorts; Oxford and Cambridge; In Sherwood forest; The English lakes; The Shakespeare country.

+ A L A Bkl 10:231 F '14

+ A L A Bkl 10:337 Ap '14 † (Review of cheaper ed)

"His sketches of the cathedral towns and English abbeys are especially interesting."

+ Boston Transcript p9 F 7 '14 500w

Dial 55:530 D 16 '13 230w

"No better volume could be selected to reveal the typical and attractive 'As it is in England' than the delightful survey of Mr. Osborne." C; E. Hesselgrave

+ Ind 76:509 D 11 '13 100w

+ Lit D 48:389 F 21 '14 570w

"Though the text is not distinguished, it forms pleasant reading."

+ Nation 97:534 D 4 '13 70w

"The book will be a help to those who have the leisure to visit England sensibly."

+ N Y Sun p3 D 6 '13 70w

+ N Y Times 18:701 N 30 '13 110w

OSBORNE, THOMAS MOTT. Within prison walls. $1.50 (1½c) Appleton 14-10204

In the spirit of scientific investigation Mr. Osborne, as chairman of the New York state commission on prison reform, spent a week in confinement in the Auburn prison as Thomas Brown, Auburn No. 33,333X. He put on prison regimentals, lived in a cell, worked in a basket factory, ate the prison food, spent a night in the punishment cells—it was Saturday night and he narrates his experiences under "A night in hell"—and in every way conformed to the life of the convicts during seven days. This volume of over three hundred pages gives in diary form his week's experiences, and has, in its faithfulness to facts, special value in connection with the publicity movement of the times.

"In view of the interest aroused by the experiment, the detailed, personal nature of the account, and its wholesome, sincere tone, the book, though not striking in any way, deserves wide reading."

+ A L A Bkl 11:11 S '14 †

"Changes in prison treatment are rapidly being made for the better and there are few books in the range of prison reform literature better calculated to further this reform. The book is fascinating reading,—the type that one desires to read through before laying it down." J. O. Lichtenberger

+ Ann Am Acad 55:293 S '14 370w

Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 40w

+ Ind 79:174 Ag 3 '14 200w

+ Nation 99:258 Ag 27 '14 620w

"This unique record—vivid, detailed, telling what he ate and smelt and thought, recounting how he washed and slept and saddened—creates for the reader the very atmosphere of the prison."

+ N Y Times 19:287 Je 21 '14 480w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

+ Pub W 86:818 S 19 '14 550w

"The striking thing about the book, however, is not the contribution that it makes to the science of penology, but the revelation that it gives of the essential goodness,—the divine element,—that persists in human nature even under the most adverse conditions."

+ R of Rs 50:121 Ji '14 330w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ji 23 '14 1250w

OSBORNE, WILLIAM HAMILTON. Blue buckle. 1 $1.25 (1c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-4261

This story of mystery and action opens on an Atlantic liner, where word is received by wireless that there are smugglers aboard having in their possession a valuable diamond necklace. In the course of the story's progress a number of people become involved in the mystery of the necklace, but strangely enough each of them seems less concerned with the fate of this priceless bauble than with the whereabouts of a seemingly insignificant blue buckle. The value of the buckle depends on an undecipherable inscription. It appears later that there are two buckles and that the inscription on the one is the key to that on the other.

Boston Transcript p8 Mr 14 '14 200w

OSBORNE, WILLIAM HAMILTON—Continued.

"Mr. Osborne rather overworks his complicated machinery some times, and it is surprising to find a novelist of as much ingenuity as he has usually shown adopting the time-worn expedient, so rare in real life and so common in fiction, of having two people look so much alike that they are mistaken for one another. But, notwithstanding these defects, 'The blue buckle' is a good, baffling story involving a certain amount of criminality and a great deal of detective energy which is spent in its unraveling."

+ — N Y Times 19:103 Mr 8 '14 500w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

Pub W 85:1346 Ap 18 '14 470w

OSMOND, PERCY H. Life of John Cosin, bishop of Durham, 1660-1672. il *$3.40 (3c) Young ch.

This is the first biography of Cosin. The author says in his introduction that the period covered by his life, 1595-1672, "was one the importance of which cannot be exaggerated. His was the age and the generation which completed the reformation of the English church." Cosin was rank from the beginning an Anglican, and should rank, his biographer thinks, as one of the most important ecclesiastics of the church.

"Mr. Osmond is so busy in telling us about the public activities of his hero that he forgets to draw the man as he was. There are in his book a few side-lights, touches on the canvas for a picture, but no full-faced portrait. We have one or two other faults to find with Mr. Osmond. He cannot know so much of the seventeenth century as a biographer of Cosin should. But, having said thus much, we must hasten to add that Mr. Osmond's book is none the less very good. It contains a clear summary of Cosin's life, public actions, and theology. It is written in an open-minded, student-like, candid, and accurate fashion. Hero-worship does not colour it unduly."

+ — Ath 1913,2:695 D 13 1650w

+ — Spec 112:223 F 7 '14 1150w

OSMUN, LEIGHTON GRAVES. Clutch of circumstance. *$1.25 (1½c) Sully & Kleinteich 14-916

The story of a young woman's struggle to earn a livelihood in New York. Ruth Lawson leaves behind her in the country village that has been her home an invalid husband and his mother. She goes to the city to look for work, hoping to earn enough for herself and her home folk. Her experience is the usual one—failure, despair and a break down in health. A chance friend, an actress, saves her, and when she is well again finds her an opening on the stage. Ruth wins a remarkable success but at the moment of her triumph finds that a price is demanded of her. For the sake of those at home she stands ready to pay it—but in the end is released from the demand. Her husband, however, cannot believe her story, and against the narrowness of his point of view stands out the generosity of Rudolf, the theatrical manager.

"The spiritual development of the girl in the face of difficulties . . . is graphically presented."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 31 '14 150w

"If this is a first book, as would seem to be the case, it is a decidedly promising one. The four leading characters are all well drawn, especially Lory and Benjamin Rudolf, and the story holds the reader's interest. Moreover, although it is principally concerned with one of the ugliest phases of our metropolitan life, it is clean and not sensational. Certain incidents, such as Ruth's first-night triumph, are rather far-fetched and her innocence appears at times almost supernatural. The novel, however, is written with so much sincerity and earnestness of purpose that we do not feel at all inclined to pick holes in it."

+ — N Y Times 19:64 F 8 '14 400w

OTIS, EDWARD OSGOOD. Tuberculosis: its cause, cure and prevention. il *$1.25 (2c) Crowell 14-5083

This book is a revision of "The great white plague," published some four years ago. "In this revision the form and substance of the book have been retained and only such changes and additions have been made as new data and increased experience and knowledge have rendered necessary to bring it up to date." (Preface)

Am Econ R 4:420 Je '14 70w

A L A Bkl 11:85 O '14

"Dr. Otis has given us a book, that should not only be in the hands of every consumptive, but should be read by every thinking person."

+ Chaut 72:743 My 23 '14 150w

"A capital treatment of tuberculosis."

+ Educ R 49:102 Ja '15 50w

OUR soldiers and sailors in war and peace. il *$3 Stokes

This is an English book and it tells the story of the British army and navy. Part I has chapters on The British army in its various branches; The making of a soldier; British cavalry regiments; The daily life of a soldier; The army in India, etc. Part 2 takes up in the same way the life of a sailor. Several of the chapters in both sections are in the form of short stories recounting deeds of heroism. There are many illustrations. Part 1 has been issued separately with the title The wonder book of soldiers for boys and girls.

OVERTON, FRANK. General hygiene. il *60c (½c) Am. bk. 13-23399

This is a text book to follow the work on "Personal hygiene." It is adapted for use in intermediate grades. "All the topics discussed have a practical application to everyday living. The subjects are presented from the point of view of a health officer on active duty among all classes of people, rather than that of a science teacher whose private activities are confined to a classroom." (Preface)

OVERTON, FRANK. Personal hygiene. il *40c (½c) Am. bk. 13-21547

"This textbook is designed to instruct pupils in the modern science of hygiene of sanitation. It is adapted to young pupils and its language has been carefully adjusted to their comprehension and interest. . . . It contains the essential facts of anatomy and physiology that are necessary for understanding the care of the body, but it places emphasis on the proper performance of voluntary acts rather than on a scientific observation of involuntary actions and hidden structures."—Preface

OVINGTON, MARY WHITE. Hazel. il *$1 (¾c) Crisis pub. co., 26 Vesey st., N. Y. 14-9527

The author, who has worked much with colored people, has written this story for her little colored friends, feeling that they must sometimes long for stories of their own people. Hazel is a little negro girl who leaves her home in Boston to spend a winter with her grandmother in Alabama. Here she makes new friends, joins in their fun, and teaches them to play the games she has learned in her northern school.

N Y Sun p6 D 13 '13 70w

OWEN, DAVID. Recent physical research. il *$1.50 Van Nostrand A14-2894

"The book seeks to present to those interested in physical research the more recent advances which have been made and which have not yet had time to filter into textbooks. The thirteen chapters of the book relate to the following topics: positive rays; Rutherford's work on the alpha particle; Curie's work on magnetism; the aurora; Brownian movements; the pressure of radiation; short electric waves; free electrons in metals, and magnetic bodies composed of non-magnetic elements."—Elec World

"These essays are accurate, if somewhat terse, and cover most of the work done in electricity within the last few years."

+ Ath 1913,2:563 N 15 70w

"The treatment of the subjects dealt with is very skilful. They are presented forcefully and clearly with the minimum of extraneous material or unnecessary mathematics. The result is very interesting reading to the interested physicist."

+ Elec World 63:166 Ja 17 '14 270w

"A publication dealing with some of the most important recent developments of physics is sure to be of use if written with sufficient knowledge and a pleasing style. This book has both those advantages. One could wish for rather fuller references, and for a fuller treatment of the modern radiation problem."

+ — Nature 92:422 D 11 '13 180w

+ Spec 112:sup161 Ja 31 '14 620w

OWEN, DOUGLAS. Ocean trade and shipping. (Cambridge naval and military ser.) il
*$3.25 Putnam 14-11579

"The book is an attempt to make clear the more important things in the large field covered by the comprehensive title 'trade and shipping.' Mr. Owen has evidently been trying to familiarize two quite different types of young men with this large field, namely, the prospective ship-owners or export traders, and the prospective naval officers, who, theoretically at least, will have to deal with captures and prize courts, neutrals, belligerents, and contraband. . . . The range of material covered is enormous, from dock management to general average, invoice, and the insurance of war risks. . . . As Mr. Owen divides it, there are five chapters: International trade; Ships, ownership and registration; Lloyd's; The export of merchandise; Merchandise and ships' papers in war."—Am Econ R

"The book seems to be well done, and is, I believe, the first attempt to bring the elements of the whole field into one volume. It is the first book to which one should turn to find out about some point on ocean traffic. The six-page discussion of rate agreements and rebates is most excellent." J. R. Smith

+ Am Econ R 4:897 D '14 500w

"This is a book of very wide interest."

+ Ath 1914,1:678 My 16 1600w

"This is a really valuable work, both for naval officers and for any others who are in any way concerned with the issue treated on."

+ Sat R 117:578 My 2 '14 370w

OXENHAM, JOHN. Maid of the mist. *$1.30 (1c)
10 Lane 14-11951

Never in tale of shipwreck has salvaged treasure been supplied with so lavish a hand as in this story of the graveyard of dead ships. Here Dr. Wulfrey Dale and Macro, the ship's mate, are washed ashore after the wreck of their vessel and here they live royally, finding at their command all the riches that have been collecting from the wrecks of a hundred years. Later another wreck brings ashore Avice Drummond, who is saved from the waves by Macro and restored to life by Dr. Dale. The presence of the beautiful girl causes trouble between the two men, for Macro covets her and the doctor constitutes himself her protector. The timely death of the mate puts an end to the struggle and the other two are left to work out their own destiny until, after five years, they are rescued.

+ A L A Bkl 11:221 Ja '15

"Among stories which might be roughly classified as 'Adam and Eve fiction' Mr. Oxenham's novel takes a fairly high place."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup735 My 23 230w

+ — Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 250w

+ Dial 57:390 N 16 '14 140w

"The story is interesting, and some of the descriptions of island life are not without charm. But there are two respects in which the charge of conventionality goes deeper and is more marked a fault, than in the mere desert-island romance of the plot."

+ — N Y Times 19:411 O 4 '14 400w

+ Outlook 108:333 O 14 '14 120w

+ Sat R 117:577 My 2 '14 220w

OXENHAM, JOHN. Red wrath. *$1.25 (1½c)
Lane 11-8242

The story opens on one of the isles of Chausey off the Breton coast, where two young people, Ronan Kerzec and Aliette Kerello, have recklessly fallen in love with one another in spite of the feud that separates their families. The second section of the story deals with the Franco-Prussian war and the Commune, Ronan, separated from his sweetheart, having gone to serve his country. He is captured and imprisoned in a fortress on one of his home islands, and the third part of the story tells of his escape and of the reunion with Aliette.

Ath 1913,2:454 O 25 60w

"It is a good, strong story, told with much skill, and it offers in its 400 and more pages a great variety of startling and exciting incident, brave deeds, and steady courage, and the free sweep of clean winds and rushing tides."

+ N Y Times 19:218 My 3 '14 500w

P

PACKARD, FRANK LUCIUS. Miracle man.
5 *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 14-1411

On the strength of a few local cures, a gentle-natured old man living in a Maine village is much advertised abroad as a faith healer. A party of crooks in New York, three men and a young woman, hear of him and cleverly scheme to exploit his supposed powers to their own advantage. The girl manages to establish herself in the "patriarch's" household; two of the men are miraculously cured; the fourth member of the gang acts as manager and advertising agent, and brings in the victims who, made to believe themselves bettered, leave generous donations. But the scheme does not turn out as they plan, for the influence of the old man is largely spiritual and each of the four is turned to a new way of life by contact with him.

"The story is ingeniously put together and pleasantly told."

+ Ath 1914,2:534 N 21 200w

"The author has a habit of exaggeration and a partiality for prolonging the agony, but when he avoids these faults he handles his scenes vividly."

+ — Ind 78:106 Ap 13 '14 70w

"An unusual story, with the feeling of the big, basic realities of life strong within it. Although Mr. Packard has sometimes yielded to the temptation to do 'fine writing' when a simpler style would have been more impressive, he has developed his theme with skill and with many dramatic situations."

+ — N Y Times 19:169 Ap 5 '14 550w

PAGE, ARTHUR. War and alien enemies. *5s
12 Stevens & sons, London 14-19714

"Mr. Page has hastily brought out a short account of the law affecting the personal and trading rights of alien enemies, with chapters on contraband of war and the capture of prizes at sea. His object is 'to enable alien enemies and those who have had business relations with them to understand the legal position in which they find themselves at the outbreak of war.'"

—Spec

"If taken with certain reservations, it will be found a useful manual."

+ — Sat R 118:299 S 12 '14 600w

"His object seems to be achieved in a fashion which will enable the non-legal reader to comprehend the state of affairs."

+ Spec 113:336 S 5 '14 170w

PAGE, EDWARD DAY. Trade morals: their origin, growth and province. *$1.50 (2c)
Yale Univ. press 14-15723

This book forms the sixth volume in the Page

PAGE, EDWARD DAY—Continued.

lecture series, made up of lectures delivered before the senior class of Sheffield scientific school. The object of the lectures "was to show in some consecutive form the growth of trade morals from the social and mental conditions which form the environment of business men, and to illustrate their meaning and purpose in such a way as to clarify if not to solve some difficulties by which the men of our time are perplexed. . . . My object, as I explained to the class in the impromptu introduction to the first lecture, was to paint with a broad brush, in bright colors and maybe with rough outlines, an impressionistic picture of the interrelations of society, morals and mind in their effect upon the conduct of the business man." (Preface) The author goes back to primitive folkways in tracing the origin and development of modern business customs.

"Eminently well worth reading, for the business man no less than the student of sociology or of ethics, while in it the reformer will find encouragement."

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 520w

J Pol Econ 23:100 Ja '15 170w

N Y Times 20:13 Ja 10 '15 140w

PAGÉ, VICTOR WILFRED. Modern gas tractor; its construction, utility, operation and repair. il $2 (2½c) Henley 13-25450

The author has prepared this treatise on the gas tractor as a guide for the average farmer or mechanic. "It is not presented as a technical or engineering exposition, yet endeavor has been made to present some principles of design in a simple manner so they may be readily understood by those without technical knowledge." (Preface) Contents: The scope, advantages and applications of power traction; Review of conditions on which tractor design is based; Design and construction of gas tractor power plants; Gas tractor power plant components; Making and exploding the gas; Cooling and lubricating the power plant; Functions and construction of clutch, gearset and differential; The tractor frame, wheels and axles; Driving and housing the traction engine; Traction engine troubles and their elimination; Miscellaneous rules and formulae.

"Specially helpful to the average mechanic operating traction engines and to the farmer who is his own mechanic."

+ A L A Bkl 11:106 N '14

PAGÉ, VICTOR WILFRED. Motorcycles, side-<sup>12</sup> cars and cyclecars. il $1.50 Henley 14-12638

"The present book is similar in style to the previous volumes [on the gasoline automobile and automobile design] but deals exclusively with motorcycles and their recent development into what are known as cycle cars. The book is somewhat more elementary in its treatment than the books relating to automobile work above referred to."—Engin N

"For the novice as well as for the experienced rider and dealer."

+ A L A Bkl 11:61 O '14

"Deserving of high commendation for the thoroughness and carefulness of the treatment given to the subject."

+ Engin N 72:422 Ag 20 '14 330w

"Deals thoroughly with motorcycle and its development."

+ Pittsburgh 19:557 D '14 70w

PAGÉ, VICTOR WILFRED. Questions and answers relating to modern automobile design, construction, driving and repair. il $1.50 Henley 13-26241

The book is described on the title-page as: "a practical treatise consisting of thirty-six lessons in the form of questions and answers written with special reference to the requirements of the non-technical reader desiring easily understood explanatory matter relating to all branches of automobilism." The book is fully illustrated with diagrams and reproductions from photographs.

"Cheaper and more elementary than the author's 'Modern gasoline automobile.'"

+ A L A Bkl 10:317 Ap '14 +

"The book 'before us is an excellent one to place in the hands of any chauffeur or garage repair man. We believe there are few such men, even among those of long experience, who will not find the book a useful aid in their work."

+ Engin N 71:159 Ja 15 '14 250w

PAHLOW, MRS. GERTRUDE. Gilded chrys-<sup>11</sup> alis. il $1.25 (1c) Duffield 14-14801

A story of life in faculty circles in a small college town. Cicely had been brought up in the home of an uncle, an American ambassador to European courts. She met Roger Ford abroad, married him and came to live in Cheltenham. The brilliant Cicely didn't at all fit into the simple circle to which her husband introduced her, and when she calls into play her diplomatic training in an attempt to place Roger at the head of his department she makes a sorry mess of things generally. But Cicely learns from her experiences, acquires a new sense of values and finds how to be happy in the little house she had once scorned.

"A story of more than ordinary interest."

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 350w

"Mrs. Pahlow labors under the disadvantage of having chosen for her protagonist such a fool of a girl that most of her book passes in the defence of her (in the reader's mind) from the charge of congenital idiocy."

— Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 150w

"Cicely's creator evidently thinks her delightful though erring, and it may be that feminine readers will be round to share the opinion."

— Nation 99:633 N 26 '14 220w

"Mrs. Pahlow's novel is the offering of a new author which shows, for a first attempt, many good qualities and a rather unusual promise. Since it is a first book it is not surprising to find a well-conceived story worked out by methods that are often amateurish and plausibility sacrificed to the necessities of plot. There is crudity also in the handling of the characters, with their constant tendency to become caricatures."

+ — N Y Times 19:387 S 20 '14 320w

PAIN, BARRY ERIC ODELL. One kind and<sup>2</sup> another. $1.25 (2c) Stokes (Eng ed 14-11531)

Two kinds of stories make up this collection. The "One kind" are serious tales; the other, lighter, and more humorous sketches. Among the latter are four detective stories grouped under the heading Detection without crime.

"The serious stories are ingenious and brightly written, but it must be added that they bear a suspicion of the magazine stamp. The author is decidedly happier when purveying lighter fare. Perhaps the best stories in the book are the four headed 'Detection without crime.'"

+ — Ath 1914.1:199 F 7 150w

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 60w

"Mr. Pain's stories are well constructed and they show knowledge of life. And—what is more important—they are interesting."

+ N Y Times 20:10 Ja 10 '15 300w

"There are two sketches in this book of great merit and excellent humour; otherwise, it is amusing enough, but by no means a worthy successor to the great 'Eliza.'"

+ Spec 112:357 F 28 '14 30w

PAIN, BARRY ERIC ODELL. Stories in grey.<sup>2</sup> $1.25 (1½c) Stokes

"These are stories of different phases of modern life, and though the scene of at least one is laid abroad they are all concerned with English people. Most of them, as the title indicates, are grey in colour, but every now and then, as in the story of 'The doll,' Mr. Barry Pain relents and leaves his readers in a cheerful mood at the end of the story."—Spec

"He is not entirely successful in this new rôle, because his irrepressible gaiety bursts its bonds, indifferent to congruity; his quiet facetiousness and irony cling round him, where the utmost artistic repression is required. The majority of the stories are of tragic intent, and many of them are highly ingenious in construction. They are told with a sure instinct for a story's sequence and rhythm, the mechanism is well oiled, and the touch upon the levers is light and flexible. His shortcomings in tragedy are obvious, in spite of some shrewd characterization."

+ — — Ath 1912,1:9 Ja 6 270w

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 60w

+ N Y Times 20:10 Ja 10 '15 300w

"To be successful in grey, you must produce the sense of repose or of stagnation, but Mr. Pain's pen is always raising our expectation, he induces the mood, fatal to greyness, of 'looking at the end.'"

+ — — Sat R 113:86 Ja 20 '12 530w

Spec 108:240 F 10 '12 70w

PAIN, BARRY ERIC ODELL. Stories without tears. *$1.25 (1c) Stokes

The author of these stories has gained a reputation in England as a humorist. This collection offers characteristic examples of his humor which is of a light, somewhat airy type. He gains his effects with deft brush stroke, not with the broad sweeps of exaggeration and caricature. "Once or twice he allows a glimpse of the underside, for laughter and tears are relative terms, or, at least, we should scarcely know the value of the one without some knowledge of the other." (Sat R)

"He is the most amiable and irresponsible of raconteurs, but at his best an accomplished craftsman."

+ — — Ath 1912,1:733 Je 2 170w

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 60w

"The especial welcome of these tales, some comic, some witty, others pathetic or tragic, however, is in their great simplicity."

+ Ind 80:506 D 28 '14 200w

"His stories are refined minute farces, somewhat amusing for the moment, but altogether mechanical—and as unproductive of real laughter as they are of tears."

+ — — Nation 99:746 D 24 '14 150w

"Stories without tears' will increase the number of those who, like Alfred Noyes, regard Barry Pain as 'a great and sane artist, with a real knowledge of life.'"

+ — — N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3 '15 370w

"Some of these tales, indeed, are mere nonsense—little bits of fluff to tickle those who laugh easily and without shame—yet here and there are passages and pages which suggest a man writing with the knowledge that the sigh and the smile are only the two sides of the same question."

+ Sat R 114:273 Ag 31 '12 630w

PAINE, PAUL MCCLARY, and STROUD, BENJAMIN KENDRICK. Oil production methods. il $3 (5c) Western engineering pub. co., 420 Market st., San Francisco 14-1346

This book has been prepared "in response to the demand for a work describing, in a manner that may be understood by the layman, how wells are drilled and oil produced." (Preface) The authors have described the methods with which they are most familiar—those of the Pacific coast, which, they say, are the most advanced methods in the industry. The final chapter on Accounting systems is contributed by W. F. and W. B. Sampson.

Engin N 72:422 Ag 20 '14 120w

"Contains material of value to the geologist and engineer."

+ Engin Rec 69:147 Ja 31 '14 120w

PAINE, RALPH DELAHAYE. Wall between. il *$1.35 (1½c) Scribner 14-14567

John Kendall, college graduate and member of a good family, is acting as quartermaster sergeant in the U. S. Marine corps, having worked up from the ranks. While on a visit to an old chum, Dave Barclay, a cheerful young millionaire, he meets Edith Ferris. Perhaps it wasn't love at first sight, on either side, but a keen interest in the other is aroused in each case, an interest which is deepened when the two find that they are neighbors in the navy yard, divided by the wall of caste that separates commissioned officer from enlisted man; for Edith is the Colonel's niece. Many exciting incidents and a Nicaraguan revolution intervene before Kendall is able to retire from the navy with honor, to take up his father's business and marry the girl who has never swerved in her loyalty to him.

"A readable but not very thrilling story."

+ A L A Bkl 11:78 O '14

"Is either an enjoyable or a keenly annoying volume, according as the reader finds himself in sympathy or not with the author's point of view." F: T. Cooper

+ — — Bookm 40:167 O '14 650w

"The story is written in Mr. Paine's customary virile style and it will be no less appreciated by all good Americans than by the Marines who are given a new glorification."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 550w

"This is a sort of tract."

+ — — Nation 99:499 O 22 '14 320w

"The author's style is spirited, though his dialogue is at times a bit stiff and awkward, a fault which a little care might easily remedy. He has, too, ideas of his own on the subjects of American intervention and 'dollar diplomacy,' and these he expresses with a freedom and emphasis which lend additional spice to an entertaining novel."

+ — — N Y Times 19:362 Ag 30 '14 770w

"Plot and incident are spirited, but much of the talk is weak and commonplace."

+ — — Outlook 108:104 S 9 '14 130w

"Mr. Paine has written more thrilling stories, but he has here mixed romance and adventure very cleverly."

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 3 '14 450w

PALMER, FREDERICK. Last shot. *$1.35 (1½c) Scribner 14-7876

Mr. Palmer, who has seen service as a correspondent in a number of wars, gives a picture of war not as it has been in the past or as it may be in some possible future, but as it actually would be if two first-class European nations turned their guns upon one another. "Methods and light and motive power," he says, "have not changed more rapidly in the forty-odd years since the last great European war than the soldier's weapons and his work." And yet people continue to think of war in the old symbols. The novelist's purpose is to familiarize the public with the new symbols of warfare and to show the effects of war in the new degree of modern organization and methods on a group of men and women. The scenes of the story are not localized and the two contending armies are known only as the Browns and the Grays.

"Interesting as a story and convincing as a plea for peace."

+ A L A Bkl 10:414 Je '14 *

+ Ath 1914,2:sup100 J 18 220w

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:559 J 1 '14 550w

Bookm 40:8 S '14 900w

"Each event is depicted in all its vivid and illuminating detail, as varied and human as are the characters which make it live. Mr. Palmer shows rare skill in making his narrative a story of human beings rather than of military movements, identifying each action with the impulses and emotions of the actors and showing it to us through their eyes. This is what gives the story its convincing atmosphere of truth and reality despite its epic breadth and sweep." R. T. P.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 1400w

"It is in the elaboration of his theme that his book gathers something of the permanent a value that pertains to what is known as 'a human document,' and it is as a picture of war rather than as a novel of plot and character, in which it is not particularly strong, that "The last shot" makes its appeal to the reader."

PALMER, FREDERICK—Continued.

+ N Y Times 19:205 Ap 26 '14 1350w

"The story has a special and timely interest just now. There are a love romance and character interest also in this stirring and dramatic war tale."

+ Outlook 107:214 My 23 '14 110w

+ R of Rs 50:122 Jl '14 216w

"The story is long, but it cannot fail to hold the interest at high pitch throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 28 '14 600w

PALMER, HOWARD. Mountaineering and exploration in the Selkirk: a record of pioneer work among the Canadian Alps, 1908-1912. il $5 Putnam 14-8250

"The interest in Mr. Palmer's book is wholly that of the geographer and the mountain climber. During the five summers here covered he ascended more than thirty peaks of the Selkirk group, fifteen of which had not previously been climbed. . . . Mr. Palmer's expeditions began as vacation rambles, but the opportunity for more serious work presented itself too forcibly to be disregarded, and the result is an important contribution to the geographical literature of British Columbia. The Geographic board of Canada has officially sanctioned more than forty local names which he has suggested, and the substance of certain chapters of his book has appeared in geographical periodicals of the highest standing, on both sides of the Atlantic."

—Nation

"The work accomplished by Mr. Palmer and his companions is a valuable contribution to the geography of this great range."

+ Ath 1914.2:215 Ag 22 1150w

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 22 '14 350w

"A most valuable and readable work." L. J. Burpee

+ Dial 57:141 S 1 '14 1050w

Ind 81:255 F 15 '15 110w

"It will readily be seen that the record involves a certain amount of inevitable monotony, but this is relieved by a profusion of remarkably successful photographic illustrations."

+ — Nation 99:76 Jl 16 '14 470w

"Mr. Palmer's record is entrancing, and often most exciting, reading."

+ N Y Times 19:200 Ap 19 '14 1050w

"The chart of the country which accompanies this volume will be necessary to the map-makers in their next editions, for it sets out for the first time some three hundred square miles of the northern Selkirks, but beyond that the book itself deserves the attention of every Alpinist."

+ Sat R 118:55 Jl 11 '14 170w

"A book which will prove of unflinching fascination to those for whom mountains and glaciers have any appeal whatever."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 28 '14 450w

PALMER, JOHN. Comedy of manners. il $3.25 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-2822)

"As his leading representatives of 'The comedy of manners' . . . John Palmer chooses Sir George Etherege, William Wycherley, William Congreve, Sir John Vanburgh and George Farquhar. Beginning with a chapter of 'Critical preliminaries,' and ending with a series of final 'Critical conclusions,' he summarizes successively their lives, their work and their influence."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:403 Je '14

"Mr. Palmer's case is daringly and epigrammatically stated, and his biographical chapters are brilliantly written, although his paradoxes, like his conclusions, are carried a little beyond credibility."

+ — Ath 1913.2:567 N 15 400w

Boston Transcript p23 D 21 '13 800w

"It is an excellent piece of 'literary-historical criticism'—if so clumsy a term may serve to designate a 'genre' essentially distinct from history of literature on the one hand and from pure criticism on the other." G. R. Elliott

+ Dial 56:415 My 16 '14 1950w

+ — Nation 18:468 Ap 9 '14 1700w

"A volume which displays wide reading and considerable freshness of thought." Edmund Gosse

+ Sat R 116:646 N 22 '13 1850w

"It is rather in the biographical than in the purely critical portions of his work that Mr. Palmer is at his best, for he succeeds in giving an admirably vivid idea of the personality of each of the dramatists, and perhaps the most delightful pages in the book are those which deal with Etherege's letters in the British museum. It is difficult to agree with Mr. Palmer in his theory that truthfulness and sincerity of representation (qualities possessed by every photograph) are the criteria of the moral value of a work of art. We may add, for the benefit of the casual reader, that Mr. Palmer deals rather frankly with the whole question."

+ — Spec 111:723 N 1 '13 400w

PANKHURST, MRS. EMMELINE. My own story. il $2 (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-18381

In the early chapters of her book Mrs. Pankhurst tells of the forces that shaped her course as a suffragist, impelling her toward militancy. She was born a suffragist, but influences that came into her life—her husband, Susan B. Anthony, her experience as a Poor law guardian and school board member, the treatment of the first women who ventured to question political candidates—helped fire her determination and fix her policy. The story is told in three parts: The making of a militant; Four years of peaceful militancy; The women's revolution; and there is a Foreword written as the European war was beginning. The book is illustrated with many photographs.

+ Dial 58:57 Ja 16 '15 420w

Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 100w

Lit D 49:1017 N 21 '14 350w

"Her whole argument is characterized by a quiet ignoring of obvious considerations and by a cat-like agility in shifting ground."

— Nation 99:688 D 10 '14 1500w

N Y Times 19:468 O 25 '14 920w

R of Rs 50:635 N 14 100w

PARDEE, LUCIUS CROCKER. Folk of the woods. il $2 Doubleday 13-23398

This book for children "consists of stories about woodfolk told by a wise old forest tree; and they are all reliable 'because no tree was ever known to tell anything but the strictest truth.'" (Bookm)

"We do not remember that anything of just this kind has been published before; but certainly it has the feel of the forest in it, and its illustrations are more than satisfying." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:444 D '13 100w

"The stories are told with the simplicity that interests, and reveal to children the mystery of nature's outdoors." W. S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 26 '13 50w

"Much information has been poetically utilized, and the text is full of poetic feeling."

+ Ind 77:243 F 16 '14 60w

"Very pleasant essays."

+ N Y Sun p7 N 1 '13 70w

"They are a little over-fanciful here and there, but the love for nature and its inner meaning are always evident."

+ — Outlook 105:598 N 15 '13 50w

+ R of Rs 48:763 D '13 50w

PARISH, JOHN CARL. Man with the iron hand. il $1.25 (2c) Houghton 13-21752

This book "is the first of a series of 'True tales of the great valley,' to be drawn in substance from the immense store of narrative left by the early French explorers of the Missisissippi valley. . . . The hero of the initial volume is Henry de Tonty, who was for a time the follower and friend of La Salle, and remained on the frontier in close relations with the natives long after his more famous leader's death."—Nation

"For the older children, it will make instructive reading, though a more connected tale may be expected from the title."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:204 Ja '14

"It makes an ideal combination of information and entertainment." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:446 D '13 100w

"Though the aim is to write history and not fiction, the form of title chosen is sure to whet the youthful appetite for a well-connected tale of stirring adventure, with De Tonty steadily in view as the chief figure. But the documents do not tell the story in quite that way, and a certain feeling of disappointment is almost inevitable."

+ — Nation 97:593 D 18 '13 180w

+ N Y Sun p5 N 8 '13 70w

"His narrative is vigorous and picturesque, and, carrying as it does, his assurance of strict accuracy, the book makes an interesting and valuable addition to the volumes that treat of the exploration and settlement of the Middle West."

+ N Y Times 19:136 Mr 22 '11 300w

PARK, JOHN EDGAR. Rejuvenation of Father
12 Christmas. il *50c (1c) Pilgrim press

Father Christmas comes to visit the earth on his annual round to find no welcome waiting him. The children of the rich have too much and the children of the poor have been taught to scorn charity. He is left with his automobile full of toys on his hands; nobody wants them. Father Christmas realizes that he has grown old, and he finds out what is wrong with himself; he has allowed Christmas day to be turned into a great commercial exchange, and the song of the angels into the motto: Shop early. He learns that if he is to be Father Christmas one day in the year he must be Brother Christmas all the other days, and he sets about instilling ideas of brotherliness.

Dial 57:509 D 16 '14 100w

N Y Times 19:501 N 15 '14 80w

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 19 '14 220w

PARK, PHILIP R. Poultry guide post. il $1 (3c)
10 Park & Pollard co., 45 Canal st., Boston 12-22050

A very practical book which starts out with the statement that it can increase the efficiency of the ordinary poultry yard from 10% to 50%. It goes with the poultry raiser around the calendar and makes suggestions for the care of the flock during each month of the year.

PARKER, DAVID W. Guide to the materials
6 for United States history in Canadian archives. pa $2 Carnegie inst. 13-25638

The final volume in this series of publications is given to a description of the American history source material contained in the archives of Ottawa. "Many subjects of great interest to American historians are dealt with in this collection, including the struggles and intrigues with the Western Indians; the War of 1812; the conduct of the federal government and of the border states during the Canadian rebellion of 1837-1838; the various boundary disputes, etc. . . . Descriptions are also given of the contents of the archives of the various provinces. Of these the most important for American students are those of Quebec, divided into the Provincial archives, the Judicial archives, and the Archives of the Archbishopric. . . . While the greater part of the book is the work of Mr. Parker, the portions dealing with the provincial archives, and with those of Newfoundland, are in the main the work of other scholars, such as Professor C. E. Fryer of McGill university and Mr. Waldo G. Leland, of the Carnegie institution." (Am Hist R)

"Mr. Parker and his fellow workers have performed their task with skill and thoroughness." W. L. Grant

+ Am Hist R 19:640 Ap '14 800w

Eng Hist R 29:204 Ja '14 400w

PARKER, SIR GILBERT. You never know your
7 luck. il *$1.25 (2c) Doran 14-14233

A prairie town on the pathway to the Rockies furnishes the setting for this stirring, colorful tale. Shiel Crozier, a young Irish baronet, with a betting strain in his make-up, stakes his all on a losing horse. Rather than live upon the bounty of his wife he quits Ireland and goes to Canada. The bigness of western life and the loyalty of its pioneers contrast strongly with his insular training. He has the right stuff of manhood in him, and an untutored girl, a pure product of the golden country that reared her, throbbed to the core, finds a solution of his trouble with his wife Mona, tho to do so cost her her own happiness. It is a story of lives that must be reordered for justice's sake; but whose reordering exacts heavy toll from an upright human being who can pay it but with tremendous renunciation of self.

"This story is frankly unworthy of Mr. Parker's usual high standard of fiction." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:677 Ag '14 630w

"From 'proem' to 'epilogue,' 'You never know your luck' is an example of what a novel by an eminent and popular novelist should not be." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p10 Je 6 '14 850w

"Told with all the vividness and color, but lacking some of the vitality that characterized 'The right of way' or 'The seats of the mighty.'"

+ — Ind 78:491 Je 15 '14 40w

"The book has movement and a sprightly wit that atones for a good deal."

+ — Nation 98:756 Je 25 '14 200w

"With the single exception of the 'young doctor' every one and every thing in the book fades into insignificance, becomes a mere background for Irish-Canadian Kitty Tynan, golden and true, big and wholesome and strong as the splendid grain of her birthplace, a heroine who would make a far less interesting novel than 'You never know your luck' well worth reading." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times 19:257 Je 7 '14 850w

"This is a characteristic Parker story, full of movement and passion."

+ R of Rs 50:248 Ag '14 60w

"As one would expect from former knowledge of its celebrated author, the story is well written and contains some interesting types of the varied human elements which make up the life of a pioneer community of the agricultural Canadian west. But, while it is a good story, the novel is little likely to make much stir, for it is neither especially thrilling in plot nor vividly psychological in its grip of the emotional forces which in times of stress sway human nature. The story seems alternately forced and listless, as if its author were riding a weary nag, not so bad a beast at that; if it only had a good rest before the journey began it might have carried him along at as good a pace as any. In short, to come down to brass tacks, Sir Gilbert was writing a pot boiler for a certain magazine, and the book shows it."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 18 '14 400w

PARKER, LOUIS NAPOLEON. Joseph and
4 his brethren. il *$1 Lane 13-21046

This is a reading edition of the pageant play produced in New York last year. The play is based on the Old Testament story of Joseph.

"The characters of the brothers are well contrasted, but the play needs the gorgeous stage trappings to make it effective, and will probably have only a passing interest."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:277 Mr '14

PARKER, LOUIS NAPOLEON—Continued.

"As a closet drama it possesses both dignity and a high degree of interest."

+ N Y Times 18:740 D 14 '13 130w

R of Rs 49:503 Ap '14 50w

PARKER, PHILIP à MORLEY. Control of water as applied to irrigation, power and town water supply purposes. il *$5 Van Nostrand (Eng ed 13-21766)

"This comprehensive and authoritative work contains a wealth of matter relating to practical hydraulics which one might seek in vain for in any other published book on the subject. In the preface the author tells us that the book is the product of actual engineering experience, and is mainly based on a collection of notes and formulæ accumulated in some eighteen years of professional work, during the major portion of which he was engaged in independent practice, and that therefore it must be regarded not as a text-book, but rather as a manual for engineers in active work."—Nature

"The work bears evidence of painstaking study of engineering literature from many lands. The references to well known publications will be easily followed, but there are innumerable references to publications from remote parts of the world that will not easily be secured. It is unfortunate that references to many of these publications are not given in greater detail, mentioning places and dates as well as author's names. Its use as a manual would be facilitated by some rearrangement, and by letter headings and indexing." Allen Hazen

+ Engin N 71:646 Mr 19 '14 1550w

"Judged as a whole the book is to be commended and deserves a place in every technical library."

+ Engin Rec 69:429 Ap 11 '14 770w

"The author is to be congratulated upon producing a work that will in all probability rank as high in connection with applied hydraulics as Bellasis's work on hydraulics does in connection with theoretical questions; in fact, Mr. Parker's encyclopædic work is the most notable book of the kind that has appeared for many years." H. J. S.

+ Nature 91:655 Ag 28 '13 570w

PARKINSON, RT. REV. HENRY. Primer of social science. *85c Devin-Adair co. A14-550

"This little volume was written for the Catholic social guild. . . . Its four parts are: 1, Introductory, in which such subjects as social science, sociology, the social point of view and social reform are explained and clearly distinguished from each other; 2, Elements of the social life, including a study of the individual, the family, the state and the church; 3, Economic relations, covering production, distribution and consumption; and 4, Social failures, personal and moral aspects and state assistance."—Am Ann Acad

Ann Am Acad 52:235 Mr '14 110w

"Monsignor Parkinson's work is characterized by brevity and conciseness; it is the work of a sound economic student and of an authoritative theologian. Every English-speaking layman should read it."

+ Cath World 97:835 S '13 250w

"By far the best compendious manual on the subject that has yet appeared in English. It is thoroughly abreast of the recent literature of the subject, and intimately conversant with what social workers are attempting in the British islands and on the Continent."

+ Hibbert J 12:208 O '13 100w

PARNELL, JOHN HOWARD. Charles Stewart Parnell: a memoir. il *$3 (1½c) Holt 14-21045

This memoir of Parnell is written by his brother. The two were very near together in age and the author writes intimately of their home life and boyhood. He says, in his opening chapter: "I may say at once that this book is intended rather as a memoir than a history of my late brother. The salient points of his striking career have often been recounted, and I shall pass over them very lightly, devoting attention more to the causes which inspired and directed them." The O'Shea divorce and Parnell's marriage with Mrs. O'Shea, dealt with so fully in another recently published book, are touched on but lightly here. The author takes the stand of his family, that the instigation of divorce proceedings was part of a political plot.

"The importance of Mr. John Howard Parnell's 'Memoir' lies chiefly in the earlier chapters which deal with the life of his eminent brother before he entered a public career; to our knowledge of Parnell's political character the author adds almost nothing." L. M. Larson

+ Dial 57:498 D 16 '14 700w

"It is of the Boswellian type, and is fairly packed with information concerning every phase of the leader's career."

+ Lit D 59:110 Ja 16 '15 200w

"A family memoir of a most engaging kind."

+ Nation 99:693 D 10 '14 300w

+ N Y Times 20:34 Ja 31 '15 1150w

PARNELL, KATHARINE (WOOD) (MRS. CHARLES STEWART PARNELL). Charles Stewart Parnell: his love story and political life. 2v il *$5 (2½c) Doran 14-13426

With no reservations the author tells the story of her relations with the Irish leader. The two met in 1880, were lovers in secret for ten years, and after Mrs. O'Shea's divorce, were married in 1891, the year of Parnell's death. The reason given in the preface for the publication of this intimate story is a wish to refute statements recently made to the effect that Parnell was "rather the victim than the destroyer of a happy home." The story is told so far as possible in the letters of Parnell.

"We have commented on the lack of dates, and their absence is made worse by the plan on which the book is arranged. One other defect is that here and there we stumble on names which are either wrong or need explanation."

+ Ath 1914.1:713 My 23 3250w

"The frankness of the narrative is more obvious than its good taste." E. Fuller

+ Bookm 40:320 N '14 700w

Reviewed by L. M. Larson

+ Dial 57:498 D 16 '14 1000w

+ Ind 80:26 O 5 '14 25w

Lit D 49:895 N 7 '14 1650w

"Botanizing on a mother's grave is nothing to this."

+ Nation 99:551 N 5 '14 1600w

New Republic 1:25 D 5 '14 1700w

"There is so much in the two volumes which she has written to compel attention that they have become one of the most notable additions to the literature of the day. A work of unusual standing among those which profess to describe the relations between man and woman."

+ N Y Times 19:468 O 25 '14 1100w

R of Rs 50:753 D '14 100w

"The story startles and compels attention. What the world will think of the author's discretion or taste in printing some of the love letters is a very different matter."

+ Sat R 117:675 My 23 '14 1550w

"Anything tending to show the inner working of the mind of this most remarkable man is interesting even at this date."

+ Spec 112:912; 953 My 30; Je 6 '14 3800w

PARRISH, RANDALL. Maid of the forest. il *$1.35 (1½c) McClurg 13-20574

Ohio in 1791, when white settlers lived under the shadow of pending Indian attacks and when the new American nation protected its frontier against English, French and Indian enemies, is the scene of this story. Joseph Hayward, an officer of General St. Clair's army, is sent north with a message of peace to the Wyandots. On his way he falls in with a young girl, René D'Auvray, of mixed French and Indian blood, who acts as missionary to her red kinsmen. Together the two face grave dangers and live thru perilous adventures. The story closes with a description of the defeat on the Wabash.

"There are few dull moments in the story."
+ Nation 97:590 D 18 '13 120w

"There is plenty of desperate fighting and astounding woodcraft, enjoyable stuff that we are glad to see used again."

+ N Y Sun p3 O 25 '13 100w

"Mr. Randall Parrish is always at his best when he lays the scene of the story on the frontier."

+ N Y Times 18:768 D 28 '13 220w

PARRISH, RANDALL. Red mist: a tale of civil strife. il $1.35 (1½c) McClurg 14-17088

A story of the civil war. Tom Wyatt, a young Confederate officer, is sent up to West Virginia to investigate the strength of Union support there. He goes in the uniform of a Union cavalryman and under an assumed name. He is plunged at once into adventure; in a deserted house he meets a girl he had known in childhood, and, altho he recognizes her at once, is obliged to live up to the assumption that he is Captain Raymond of the U. S. cavalry. It appears then that the girl, who is a Union sympathizer, knows the true Captain Raymond, and out of this situation develops an interesting romance.

"A story which, if not inspired, has at least a well-sustained interest."

+ Bookm 40:684 F '15 200w

"A thrilling romance."

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 270w

PARRISH, RANDALL. Shea of the Irish brigade. il $1.30 (1½c) McClurg 14-5425

A young Irish exile in the service of Louis XV tells this story of love and fighting. A turn of fortune offers him the privilege of serving Camille d'Enville, a lady of the court, in an hour of need. He goes on his way afterward carrying her image in his heart, but knowing that hope of winning her is not for him, for has he not killed her brother! But fate brings the two together again; again he fights in her service; and when it is discovered that the brother is not dead after all, it becomes evident that no evil destiny is to keep them apart.

"None of the traditional assets of romance are lacking—from ghosts to secret stairs—and the action of the story is swift, moving quickly to its climax and then stopping abruptly."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 8 '14 200w

+ N Y Times 19:188 Ap 12 '14 150w

PARRY, D. H. Victoria cross: its heroes and their valor. new and enl ed il $1.75 Funk (Eng ed 15-113)

"This is a history of the Victoria cross, Great Britain's famous decoration 'For valor,' whose intrinsic value is fourpence halfpenny, but which is coveted beyond price by the united services. Up to the time of the publication of this work, 522 of these decorations had been awarded. . . . The book consists of 42 chapters devoted to thrilling descriptive accounts of the campaigns or engagements in which these medals were won, to which are added the royal warrants creating the decoration and widening the field of its possible recipients. It concludes with biographies, in alphabetical order, of those upon whom the decoration has been conferred."—Lit D

"It is a book for every boy to have in his library, while as a work of reference it also has considerable value."

+ Ath 1913.2:sup474 O 25 90w

"Few books contain a collection of more exciting stories than this which records how each of the 522 crosses, which have been awarded up to date, have been won."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 11 '14 270w

Lit D 48:842 Ap 11 '14 200w

PARRY, EMMA LOUISE. Two great art epochs. il $2 McClurg 14-10381

"Miss Parry has given us in well-balanced proportions a thorough account of the two great art epochs of Greece and Italy. Beginning with Egypt she presents a survey of Greek art from the pre-historic age. . . . A chapter on 'Roman art,' and 'Greek and Roman painting,' leads her theme to early Christian and early Italian art. The Italian epoch begins with an account of the sculpture of the early renaissance with which is associated the painting of the Florentine, Umbrian and other schools; the high renaissance follows with the development and achievements of Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Raphael, and contemporaries in Florence, Sienna and Parma; next follows the Venetian school, the period ending with the later renaissance represented by the schools of Bologna and Naples."—Boston Transcript

"It takes no credit from the admirable accomplishment of the author in this volume to say that it owes its being to modern research in the field of art."

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 300w

"Undoubtedly a good deal of labor went into the making of the book, but it is a thoroly pedestrian, achievement with touches of sentimentality."

— Ind 80:173 N 2 '14 150w

"The drawbacks of the type are exemplified in inaccuracies in the accounts of Duccio, Masolino, and Perugino, in the choice of the worst Discobolus, that of the Vatican, for illustration, in the omission of the Hagias under Lysippus. Giorgione's name was not Barbarelli. On page 228 are three blunders in six lines. The present volume is clearly written, fully illustrated, and by no means bad of its sort."

+ — Nation 99:757 D 24 '14 120w

PARSONS, MRS. ELSIE WORTHINGTON (CLEWS) (JOHN MAIN, pseud.). Fear and conventionality. $1.50 (3½c) Putnam 15-165

"Fear of change is a part of the state of fear man has ever lived in but out of which he has begun to escape. What he now calls conventionality is that part of his system of protection against change he has begun to examine and, his fear lessening, even to forego." This is the sociological theory that the author presents, dwelling in general upon conventionalities that are based upon fear—the fear of the unlike for the unlike. Some of them are wariness of strangers, apprehensiveness of the unknown that besets travel, giving rise to elaborate good byes and ceremonious welcomes, the inflexibility of the caste system, and of rules governing hospitality, introductions, acquaintances, calling and entertaining. Mrs. Parsons further analyzes the conventionalities regulating sex, marriage and family relations. In closing she pictures a state of society after social barriers have been broken down in which "the gentleness we bestow on little children shall outlast their infancy and the pity for the dead spend itself on the pitiful among the living."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 800w

"If you read 'Fear and conventionality' through, you cannot help perceiving that she has put these odds and ends together so that they form a pattern. Her mosaic, when she has finished it, does give you, in spite of the overabundant details, a clear picture of that part of the past and the present which she set out to show you."

+ — New Republic 1:26 D 19 '14 1250w

"A book at once scholarly and entertaining."

+ N Y Times 19:587 D 27 '14 730w

"This is a decidedly interesting but curiously self-contradictory and inadequate book."

+ — Outlook 109:348 F 10 '15 280w

PARSONS, MRS. ELSIE WORTHINGTON (CLEWS) (JOHN MAIN, pseud.). Religious chastity: an ethnological study. $1.50 Macaulay co. 13-8304

"This work presents a particular phase of ethnology dealing with the treatment of widows, their sacrifices and hardships. The priestess-

PARSONS, ELSIE WORTHINGTON—Cont. wife of the countries in Asia, Africa and among the early American Indian tribes is dealt with at some length."—Ann Am Acad

"The work would have been given greater clarity and definiteness if the relation of the material presented to the principle of association of ideas or to the principle enunciated in the preface had been more consistently pointed out. The tone of the work is judicial. A most complete bibliography is appended." F. S. Chapin

+ — Am J Soc 19:693 Mr '14 750w

"The book is well written, full of references, and contains a splendid bibliography."

+ Ann Am Acad 51:270 Ja '14 60w

"A mass of information . . . scattered until now in hundreds of books and journals is gathered in this book and classified in an illuminating manner. The volume possesses, moreover, the distinction of a vivacious and often elegant style."

+ Psychol Bul 10:468 D 15 '13 750w

PARSONS, JOSEPH HEPBURN. Historical papers upon men and events of rare interest in the Napoleonic epoch. 2v il $5 Saalfeld 14-3973

"The years between 1785-1815 perhaps surpass in dramatic incident any other period of the world's history. Yet the necessary condensation, inherent to all historical narratives, excludes from that of the Napoleonic epoch, many of those smaller, more intimate details of facts, of letters of authentic anecdotes, which after all endow history with its more human interest." It was in order to throw a more concentrated light upon some of these that Mr. Parsons prepared this series of historical papers, in chronological order, less complete in their study of their subjects than a biography would be, but more so than the brief narrations of general histories and of encyclopedias. Appended to each paper is a list of books of reference."

—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p4 My 13 '14 330w

R of Rs 50:381 S '14 50w

"If one were to attempt a criticism in a few words it might be said that one volume would have been better than two. Mr. Parsons fails lamentably in attempting a comparison between this 'revolution' and that of the 18th century, and the conclusions which he draws on woman suffrage are ill-balanced and not brought out by argument. In style, too, there is much that might be bettered. Overlooking these faults, we find much in the two volumes to interest us, although perhaps there is nothing that is absolutely new. It is the casual reader and not the student of history, who will profit the most by a perusal."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 O 1 '14 680w

PATTERSON, CHARLES BRODIE. In the sunlight of health. $1.20 (1½c) Funk 13-21910

The author is an exponent of "New thought." He "separates himself from the Christian scientists and their denial of the existence of sin, pain and disease. The New thought admits that they exist, but simply because of lack of conformity to the laws of life." (Boston Transcript) The chapter titles of the book are: The living substance; Divine energy in motion; The coming race; The living way; Scientific living; Heredity, true and false; Conformity to ideals; States of consciousness; Cause and effect; Mind and body; Thought picturing; Regeneration; Habits; Mental and spiritual healing; Self-healing; Healing at a distance; Life's relationships; From mind to mind; From darkness to light.

Boston Transcript p13 D 2 '13 300w

"The book is well written. Serious, even religious in tone, it is sure to bring comfort and help to the illuminati."

+ Lit D 48:635 Mr 21 '14 200w

N Y Times 19:259 Je 7 '14 70w

PATTERSON, REV. ROBERT JAMES. Happy art of catching men: a story of good Samaritanism. $1 (1½c) Doran 14-8608

The author is an Irish temperance worker who believes in the personal touch in reform work. He has lectured in the United States and feels that we in America put too much stress on legislation and too little on moral suasion. He describes in this work the origin of his "Catch-my-pal" plan of campaign. He took the idea, he says, from the New Testament. "Our Lord caught Andrew and Andrew caught Peter. . . . Then He caught Philip and Philip caught Nathaniel." So every man who signs the pledge for Mr. Patterson agrees to go out and bring in a friend; and the plan works, as the experiences related in this book go to show.

"The book is racily written and is utterly devoid of cant or maudlin sentiment. It emanates from a mind thoroughly healthy and practical."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 8 '14 150w

+ Ind 78:283 My 18 '14 25w

+ N Y Times 19:392 S 20 '14 200w

PAULLIN, CHARLES OSCAR, and PAXSON, FREDERIC LOGAN. Guide to the materials in London archives for the history of the United States since 1783. (Pub. no. 9013) pa $4 Carnegie inst. 14-10535

A new addition to the series which is making accessible the materials of American history contained in foreign archives. "The 'Guide,' which extends in nearly all cases to 1860, covers the Foreign office, Home office, War office, Colonial office, Privy council, House of Lords, Admiralty, Audit office, Board of trade, Customs, General post office, High court of Admiralty, the Treasury, and the British museum manuscripts. Of the value of these documents it cannot be necessary to speak at length. The diplomatic despatches, for instance, were from men of ability close to the heart of things, exempt in many cases from the blinding passions of the participants and under a stringent obligation to observe carefully and write with scrupulous fidelity; and all the papers possess in their varying degrees and for their various purposes a substantial importance." (Am Hist R)

"The compilers merit hearty praise for the patient and scholarly work accomplished. To these remarks must be added strong appreciation of the introduction—which offers much essential preliminary information to the scholar wishing to consult these archives—and of the fine index." J. H. Smith

+ Am Hist R 20:171 O '14 650w

"As the authoritative character of these guides is so generally recognized, it may be worth mentioning that the statement quoted from Mr. Scargill-Bird's 'Guide to the various classes of documents preserved in the Public record office' does not seem to represent the facts with regard to the subject of loyalist claims." H. E. E.

+ Eng Hist R 29:807 O '14 380w

"The work throughout is admirably executed, the search has been painstaking and thorough."

+ Nation 100:27 Ja 7 '15 350w

PAWLOWSKA, YOI. Child went forth. il $1.50 Houghton A15-53

"This is the record of a child's life and impressions, written by one who has either vivid recollections of her own childhood or a fine gift for reading the heart and mind of a child. The tale opens with the birth of Anna, a little Hungarian girl, in a remote Hungarian village. . . . We read of life in a mountain village; the gipsy dances, fairs, and harvest festivals; visits to old women, and early days at school—all presented as they appear to a child of warm imagination and quick sympathies, with the superstition and legendary lore of a wild race at the back of her mind."—Ath

"It will find a very appreciative though limited circle of readers."

+ A L A Bkl 11:222 Ja '15

"Children will enjoy this story of a Hungarian child. They will not fail to appreciate the humanity of it, as well as the simplicity of its telling."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup871 Je 20 370w

"Its charm is not easy to define—chiefly the effect, it may be, of its apparent artlessness. The present little narrative is realistic in the best sense—faithful to the fact, but to the carefully chosen fact; and animated by a perfectly healthy and unforced sentiment."

+ Nation 99:746 D 24 '14 350w

"Like most naughty children, she is great fun."

+ N Y Times 20:10 Ja 10 '15 400w

"Picturesque, amusing, touching, and true are these evidently autobiographical recollections, and we welcome the perfection and beauty of the picture."

+ Outlook 108:788 D 2 '14 200w

"The story, as far it goes, is interesting, even valuable."

+ Sat R 118:54 Jl 11 '14 580w

PAYNE, ARTHUR FRANK. Art metalwork with inexpensive equipment, for the public schools and for the craftsman. il *$1.50
Manual arts press 14-13657

"The book deals only with the history of the raw material, and with the processes of working it. In his introduction the author says: 'It would have been a much easier matter to use as illustrations the best work of well known craftsmen, but it was felt that method would react unfavorably in that it might discourage some from attempting the work at all, and cause others to begin on designs or pieces that they would not be capable of accomplishing.'"—School Arts Magazine

"Useful Look for the amateur or for the teacher of manual training."

+ Pittsburgh 19:519 N '14 40w

"The book is really a treatise on the processes involved in the making of useful objects in copper. As such it is admirable. The presentation of the subject is faultlessly pedagogical, the information is reliable, the directions are clear and concise, and the illustrations illustrate."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:145 O '14 250w

PEABODY, FRANCIS GREENWOOD. Christian life in the modern world. *$1.25 (2c)
Macmillan 14-18755

A discussion that purposely steers between revolutionary ideas and old dogmas in applying Christianity, pure and simple, to present-day needs. An opening chapter on the practicability of the Christian life shows how "personality, character, spirituality, vision, and communion with God have in them a quality of timelessness and are capable of expansion, transmission, and utilization in all the varied conditions of a changing world." Other chapters show the application of this thought to the more definite problems of the modern family, modern business, the making of money, the uses of money, the modern state, and the Christian church.

Nation 100:85 Ja 21 '15 40w

PEABODY, JOSEPHINE PRESTON (MRS. LIONEL SIMEON MARKS). Wolf of Gubbio. *$1.10 Houghton 13-25910

This three act comedy in which Francis of Assisi is made the leading character is a Christmas miracle play. The little child who was to have represented the little Jesus in the Christmas eve nativity play is lost, and no diligence of search can find him, for he has been hidden in the cave of the dread wolf or Gubbio. It is thru the influence of Francis that the wolf is moved to return the child to the empty cradle at that hour when legend has it, all dumb brutes have power to speak.

"Will be interesting to lovers of poetry and students of modern drama."

+ A L A Bkl 10:232 F '14

"The genius of Mrs. Marks has again been manifested in this delicately charming play, by the way in which she presents the figure of St. Francis, and by the majestic humility and conviction which she has imparted to the character. She treads the delicate mazes of the old legend so surely that she imparts a new beauty to it." D. L. M.

+ Easton Transcript p10 My 2 '14 680w

"Mrs. Marks has given us a play that shows intimate knowledge of, and thorough sympathy with, her subject, a play that has caught the warmth of the Christmas spirit and the evangelical simplicity of God's Little Poor Man."

+ Cath World 100:401 D '14 380w

"The story in its kind is beautiful, and the carol of the crusaders, in act 3, is worth many volumes of contemporary verse."

+ Ind 79:32 Jl 6 '14 170w

+ Nation 98:218 F 26 '14 450w

"It is a Christmas miracle, done in Mrs. Marks's most delicate and appealing manner."

+ N Y Times 18:670 N 30 '13 350w

"Judged by the requirements of the playhouse 'The Wolf of Gubbio' lacks concentration and unity; judged as a piece of literature, it has dignity, sincerity, and vital interest."

+ — Outlook 107:135 My 16 '14 180w

R of Rs 49:215 F '14 280w

PEACOCK, WADHAM. Albania, the founding state of Europe. il *$2.50 Appleton 14-17944

"Mr. Peacock was formerly attached to the British Consulate-general in Scutari. He is thus able to give an account of everyday life in picturesque Albania before that country emerged into the arena of European politics. He adds some instructive chapters on Albanian history and prospects. Unless the new state is allowed to include the whole Albanian nationality within its boundary, he thinks that the story of the Macedonian risings will be repeated over again, and with greater justification. Hope for the little kingdom's prosperity lies in the fact that the Albanian, though a warrior and a man who prefers to go always armed, is, unlike the Montenegrin, a hard worker."—Spec

"An entertaining account by a sympathetic, well informed observer."

+ A L A Bkl 11:115 N '14

"The author writes with knowledge of his subject. His touch is light, but sure; he has a nicely developed sense of humour, and if he shows himself a frank pro-Albanian, that fact in no wise detracts from the charm of his book. The earlier chapters are marred, to some extent, by repetitions."

+ — Ath 1914.1:684 My 16 1650w

N Y Times 19:489 N 8 '14 350w

"A bright and readable account."

+ Spec 112:751 My 2 '14 120w

PEARSE, CECILIA MARIA. Kitchen garden and the cook: an alphabetical guide to the cultivation of vegetables with recipes for cooking them. *$1.50 Dutton 14-2424

"Mrs. Pearse has collected many recipes of vegetarian dishes, soups, salads, and drinks, and adds directions for cultivating the kitchen garden, and a few hints on cooking in paper bags."—Ath

Ath 1913.2:726 D 20 50w

"It should prove to be invaluable for the care of the kitchen garden."

+ Ind 79:175 Ag 3 '14 50w

Reviewed by H. T. Finck

+ Nation 99:384 S 24 '14 320w

"American housewives through study of this book will be able to place new and attractive dishes on their tables."

+ N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 70w

"Well arranged and pleasantly written."

+ Spec 112:sup165 Ja 31 '14 300w

PEARSON, EDMUND LESTER. Secret book. *$1.25 (3c) Macmillan 14-7510

A dozen chapters, some of which have been contributed to Mr. Pearson's column in the "Boston Transcript," make up the contents of this book. All of them are worthy of the discoverer of the "Old Librarian's almanack," and the index which completes the volume is in itself a delight. The chapters for the most part are concerned with the proceedings of a certain library club, or they present papers contributed by the members. The names of some of these members will have a familiar sound to librarians—Ryerson, Newberry, Tilden, Lenox and Crerar.

PEARSON, EDMUND LESTER—Continued.

+ A L A Bkl 10:403 Je '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 920w

"Excellent nonsense, with many a keen thrust at the foibles of our common human nature, is to be found between the covers of this brightly amusing book."

+ Dial 56:429 My 16 '14 350w

"A delicious string of facetiousness."

+ Ind 79:30 Jl 6 '14 150w

"Mr. Pearson's new book is to be read and enjoyed as an amusing and engaging commentary on all sorts of things bookish and human by a writer high-spirited enough to rejoice in his work and its rewards, major and minor."

+ Nation 98:730 Je 18 '14 250w

"The book will select its readers; they will be people who love books and who have a sense of humor—all others must be warned off the premises."

+ Outlook 107:265 My 30 '14 200w

"Altogether delightful volume."

+ R of Rs 49:763 Je '14 270w

PEARSON, KARL. Life, letters, and labours of Francis Galton. v 1 il $6.25 Putnam 14-22601

"When Galton died in 1911, at the age of eighty-nine, he left funds for the support of a professorship and laboratory in the University of London, dedicated to the cause of eugenics and the study of human heredity. The Galton professor, Dr. Karl Pearson, has considered it his duty and his pleasure to prepare an elaborate work on the life of Sir Francis Galton, giving all significant details obtainable concerning his ancestry and environment. The first volume, covering the years from birth to marriage (1853) is now before us. In 1909, Galton himself published a charming and interesting book, 'Memories of my life,' which sufficiently described the main facts of his career. The new work is far more detailed, and very profusely illustrated. It gives full particulars concerning the Galtons and their ancestors, and also much about the Darwin family."—Dial

"The 'indolent reader' will enjoy looking at the pictures, and if at all clever at skipping, will readily discover a large amount of generally interesting matter, mixed with materials which are printed mainly as matters of record, to be used by more serious students." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 57:249 O 1 '14 1550w

"Perhaps no summary can do justice to Professor Pearson's laborious pages, which all who take an interest in the study of heredity will wish to read at length."

+ Spec 113:sup614 N 7 '14 480w

PEARSON, PETER HENRY. Study of literature. $1.25 (2c) McClurg 13-22363

Without advising any radical revisions in the plan of conducting the classroom study of literature, the author presents comprehensively his tested methods for the guidance of teacher and student. Dealing first with such fundamentals as Interpretation; Appreciation; Structural elements; Literary elements; Methods of literary evaluation and Study of prose forms, the author then takes "Deserted village," "L'Allegro" and "King Lear" for the application of his methods. A concluding chapter discusses Literature in its reaction on life.

Boston Transcript p9 N 22 '13 120w

"The book is the work of a close student and a conscientious teacher."

+ Dial 56:149 F 16 '14 250w

"Doubtless, much of this is well enough in the touch-and-go of the classroom, but the attempt to formalize it in print is too apt to result in either a meticulous organization of sawdust or frantic graspings for a moonbeam."

— Nation 18:543 My 7 '14 60w

"A very excellent and suggestive little handbook."

+ N Y Times 18:620 N 9 '13 110w

PEASE, SIR ALFRED EDWARD. Book of the lion. il $3 Scribner (Eng ed 14-6572)

"Sir Alfred Pease is probably as well qualified as any man living to write a book on the lion, for his experience covers South, East, Central, and North Africa, and he has hunted with an active and retentive mind. His book is, indeed, much more than a sporting record, for he gives us an analysis of courage, a jeremiad about urban civilization, and a very eloquent confession of the wanderer's faith."—Spec

"There is in this book a great variety of useful information for one contemplating an expedition after lions."

+ Ath 1913,2:747 D 27 750w

"It is one of the best of books about big game, and it is especially valuable to those interested in the fiercest and most magnanimous of four-footed beasts."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 300w

"All that he tells his reader is full of interest and information and well worthy of the close attention of all sportsmen, especially those who are about to visit Africa for the first time, and who have as yet had no personal experience with lions." F. C. Selous

+ — Sat R 116:775 D 20 '13 2200w

"The book is a compendium of information upon the habits of the greatest of big game. It, as we should expect, is full of excellent stories."

+ Spec 112:95 Ja 17 '14 1150w

PEATTIE, ELIA WILKINSON (MRS. ROBERT BURNS PEATTIE). The precipice. il $1.35 (1c) Houghton 14-3107

The slow course of this novel follows the progress of the woman movement for the past ten years or so. Kate Barrington, the fine, upstanding heroine, graduates from the University of Chicago and goes back home to try to adapt herself to the little ways of a little community. The experiment fails, and when her mother dies she is left free to follow her own way. In Chicago she serves as probation officer and comes into active touch with modern movements. Contrasted with her are women of various types: the one who wastes her womanhood in a struggle for intellectual attainment; the one who is all feminine; the one who forsakes a career to sink herself in wifehood; the one who unsuccessfully seeks to combine the two. To Kate in the end comes the old choice between love and duty; between domestic life and a public career. She finds the way to a compromise.

"A realistic, sincere story, which will interest many readers even though they do not find in it a solution."

+ A L A Bkl 10:327 Ap '14

+ Atlan 114:527 O '14 350w

"It is not a book to be lightly dismissed, for it has a certain degree of strength, and considerable understanding of the peculiar problems which face the enlightened young woman of today." F. T. Cooper

+ — BookM 39:205 Ap '14 800w

"It is a pity that there is not something forceful and menacing in Mrs. Peattie's story. It is too placid, too calm, too lacking in the essential drama that is a part of all social movements such as Kate Barrington is engaged in. To put in mildly, 'The precipice' is somewhat conventional, somewhat timid, somewhat dull. It should invigorate and stimulate us. It lacks life, and what is a novel without the stir of life in it? We fear that it will arouse neither the enthusiasm of the feminist nor the antagonism of her opponent."

— Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 550w

N Y Times 19:82 F 22 '14 500w

PECK, ANNIE SMITH. South American tour.
 * il $2.50 Doran 14-306

"Previous volumes of travel have told of this lady's remarkable achievements as an explorer and mountain climber. . . . But in her present literary venture she essays to explore only such portions of the South American continent as are accessible to the average tourist on health and pleasure bent. . . . The route followed by Miss Peck is the one commonly known as the Grand tour of South America. The isthmus, the Pacific coast, the Trans-Andine railway and then the Atlantic coast to the West Indies form, roughly, the itinerary—with the variation for those who desire it of a sail through the Straits of Magellan, instead of the railroad journey across the Andes."—N Y Times

A L A Bkl 10:403 Je '14

"The volume will be valuable as a guide for it is arranged in convenient form for prompt reference and quick reading."

+ Boston Transcript p23 F 11 '14 250w

+ Ind 78:325 My 25 '14 240w

"Those who love books of travel will welcome this volume as a fresh and fascinating addition to their library."

+ Lit D 48:1124 My 9 '14 150w

"Although it has many of the faults which one finds in amateur guide-books, including the presence of time-tables, always subject to change, irregular and unsystematic arrangement of details, and an inadequate index, it is really a creditable performance. Numerous photographs add to its value and many of them, now appearing for the first time, are unusually interesting. The personality of the author does not obtrude itself unpleasantly. The book contains interesting brief historical paragraphs and a vast amount of detail, which testifies to care and diligence in the work of compilation, although there are a number of amusing mistakes, chiefly due to the author's unfamiliarity with the Spanish language."

+ — Nation 98:191 F 19 '14 370w

"A valuable compilation of miscellaneous and historical facts relating to the countries described."

+ N Y Times 19:78 F 15 '14 1150w

"This book has a distinct value to any one interested in South America, and especially to one who expects to go thither. Its text is immensely informative. Unfortunately, the accompanying map is on too small a scale for the detail necessary to such text."

+ — Outlook 106:650 Mr 21 '14 170w

"This volume is packed full of information. Especially valuable to American business men is the concluding chapter on trade actualities and possibilities in South America."

+ R of Rs 49:367 Mr '14 80w

+ Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 140w

"Unusually full and instructive."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:261 N '14 60w

PECK, ROBERT MORRIS. Wolf hunters: a story of the buffalo plains; ed. and arr. from the manuscript account, by G. Bird Grinnell. il $1.25 (1½c) Scribner 14-15753

The true story of a hunting expedition into the country beyond the Missouri river in the winter of 1861-62, taken from the manuscript record of a veteran plainsman. Wolf hunting was a profitable altho hazardous occupation in those days, and the three men who made up this expedition knew the perils they were facing, but were willing to take the risk. All three had seen frontier service in the United States army, and after their winter of adventure all re-enlisted to take part in the war then in progress, two as soldiers, one as a wagon-master.

"The book makes an interesting addition to the literature of the frontier."

+ N Y Times 19:387 S 20 '14 310w

"If the editor-author intended the book as a juvenile, he was shrewd, for not only boys, but their elders will take to it."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 28 '15 280w

PECK, THEODORA AGNES. White dawn: a legend of Ticonderoga. il $1.25 (1c) Revell 14-16199

A story of the French and Indian war. The heroine is Grace Stuart, a young girl of Scotch descent whose father, hating England, gives his allegiance to the French. She herself is loyal to the English and shortly after the capture of Ticonderoga makes a dangerous journey in company with her Indian foster brother, Flying Swallow, to carry a message of warning to Lord Howe. Later the two, Indian and white girl, are taken captive by the French and held prisoners at Quebec up to the time of its capture. A French officer sues for her love, ready to use any means, fair or foul, to win her, but she is true to her first lover, an officer of the Royal Americans.

Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 180w

N Y Times 19:379 S 13 '14 120w

PEEL, DOROTHY C. (BAYLIFF) (MRS. C. S. PEEL). Hat shop. $1.25 Lane 14-2302

"When Elizabeth Earl at twenty-eight was left a widow with a little girl and an income of £600 a year, she tried for a time to live as she had done during the more prosperous days before her husband's death. But the position of a poor woman amid a host of rich friends and relatives soon palled upon her and she decided to open a millinery establishment—the 'Hat shop' of the title. . . . The book relates her experiences with her customers, and with the working girls in whose lives she took an active interest."—N Y Times

"The story around which these vignettes of life among milliners are woven is quite unpretentious, though probably sufficient to entice readers who would refuse otherwise to learn of the industrial conditions under which, their finery is made. The book is evidently written by one who not only knows, but is also possessed of a sympathetic understanding, and we welcome it as another effort to probe the callous indifference of a large class of consumers."

+ Ath 1913:2:556 N 15 70w

"The humor of the story verges upon the improbable in the duke's children, and upon caricature in Rev. and Hon. Julius and his nieces; but 'Enery' 'Ermit is real and refreshing."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 180w

"There is some excellent material in the book, but unfortunately it is badly put together. Apparently this is a first novel, and it shows a gift of observation which leads us to entertain hopes for its author's future work."

+ — N Y Times 19:64 F 8 '14 200w

"The novel has few literary merits, but its descriptions of shop life have the certain ring of truth."

+ — Sat R 116:650 N 22 '13 40w

"The love story is neither very new nor very interesting but the business side of the story is both, and has all the air of having been written from experience."

+ — Spec 111:1031 D 13 '13 150w

PEERS, EDGAR ALLISON. Elizabethan drama and its mad folk. *3s 6d W. Heffer and sons, Cambridge

The author presents "a review of the maniacs and melancholics, the victims of delusions and the pretenders of madness who haunt our early drama." (Nation) "The mad folk of the Elizabethan drama make a lengthy list—probably there is no period of literature down to our own day which took so lively an interest in the matter. Mr. Peers classifies them under four heads: (1) The maniacs (King Lear and Ophelia); (2) imbecility (Lear's fool); (3) melancholy (Jacques and Antonio); (4) abnormal states (Macbeth). Hamlet falls into the category of pretenders." (Spec)

"We have no hesitation in saying that this is quite the best book yet written upon a subject which hitherto has not received the attention it deserves. Moreover, it is a book which should help the general reader to appreciate the plays of the Elizabethan dramatists, for in the arrangement of the subject and in its treatment there is no lack of interest."

PEERS, EDGAR ALLISON—Continued.

+ — Ath 1914.1:566 Ap 18 970w

+ Nation 98:503 Ap 30 '14 140w

"Mr. Peer's book is able and shrewd; his reading and enthusiasm not to be suspected."

+ Sat R 117:408 Mr 28 '14 200w

"Mr. Peers chose a subject full of possibilities, and he has handled it skilfully. The book is readable, though one might pick holes in it—if Antonio was mad, who was sane?"

+ — Spec 112:sup680 Ap 25 '14 150w

PENDER, HAROLD, ed. American handbook for electrical engineers. il *$5 Wiley

14-19037

"This book is a remarkable one in many respects. It is by far the largest electrical engineering hand-book yet published (at least in the English language). It is printed in the familiar 'pocket-book' style, on thin paper and small type (6 point leaded). It is a compilation of 260 articles, written by the editor-in-chief and associate editor, Harry F. Thomson, secretary of electrical engineering research laboratory, Massachusetts Institute of technology, and 25 assistant editors. . . . A departure has been made from the ordinary hand-book construction in arranging the articles alphabetically, as in an encyclopedia, instead of the systematic or logical order as in all the earlier pocket or hand-books."—Indust Engin

"After very carefully examining this new book, the reviewer has come to the conclusion that the vast expenditure of time and effort which has obviously been devoted to its preparation will probably be justified by results."

+ — Elec World 65:220 Ja 23 '15 600w

"The needs of the practical electrical engineer have been kept in view in most of the articles, and the style of writing is clear and condensed as it should be in a hand-book. There are trifling faults, however, in comparison with the general excellence of the book, which is really a splendid one, and one which will be indispensable to practicing engineers."

+ — Indust Engin 14:407 O '14 930w

PENDEXTER, HUGH. Young trappers. il *65c (1c) Small 13-21478

This the fourth volume in the "Camp and trail series," tells of the many adventures that the two partners, Stanley Malcolm and Robert Thomas, met while on a hunting trip in the Maine woods.

Reviewed by M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:446 D '13 50w

Ind 76:358 N 20 '13 60w

N Y Times 18:649 N 23 '13 100w

PENNELL, MRS. ALICE M. Pennell of the Afghan frontier. il *$3 Dutton 14-30912

"This book will interest many readers because it combines the fascinations of 'The Bible in Spain,' Capt. Burton's 'Pilgrimages,' and 'Kim' in the short but useful life of a medical missionary who lived and worked amongst the Pathans of the north-west frontier of India. It shows the value of medical missionary enterprise as a civilizing agent, and it teems with adventure."—Ath

+ A L A Bkl II:171 D '14

"The book is well written by his widow, who wisely allows him to tell his own story in his own way, and only adds enough to make a connected narrative."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup363 Mr 7 650w

"Many amusing incidents are narrated showing the conflict between Western medical practice and Eastern superstition, anecdotes that should prove valuable to the profession at large and the medical missionary in particular. Ethnological differences have been observed and recorded, and these, with the folklore, descriptions, and illustrations of a little-known region, present to the student, in an informal manner, the results of a trained and varied experience."

+ Nation 97:77 Jl 16 '14 770w

Sat R 117:sup10 Mr 21 '14 90w

Spec 112:228 F 7 '14 1450w

PENNELL, ELIZABETH (ROBINS). Our Philadelphia: with 150 lithographs by Joseph Pennell. il *$7.50 Lippincott 14-20572

"Mrs. Pennell's object in writing the book is to record mainly her own memories and impressions. She makes no apology for presenting them at this day when 'it is the American born in the Ghetto or Syria or some other remote part of the earth whose recollections are prized.' She is concerned with Philadelphia wholly from a personal standpoint, and gives her adventures among the beautiful things, the humorous things, the tragic things it contains in more than ample measure. She begins by trying to get at the psychological reason for Philadelphia's having acquired the reputation for drowsiness when 'the truth is, taking the sum of its achievements, no other American town has done so much hard work, no other has accomplished so much for the country.'"—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:431 D '14 500w

"It must be confessed that the drawings are very uneven in merit, though in some cases possibly those least pleasing are the most valuable as representing the vanishing past. Mrs. Pennell's recollections are random recollections of a keen observer and give an excellent picture or series of pictures of a wonderful town."

N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 1600w

"The hundred lithographs are uniformly charming." G: B. Donlin

+ Dial 57:453 D 1 '14 1250w

+ Int Studio 54:sup96 Ja '15 400w

"The time will come when antiquaries will set Mr. Pennell's sketches beside their extra-illustrated Stowe."

+ Nation 100:26 Ja 7 '15 430w

N Y Times 19:520 N 29 '14 120w

"The book has a compelling individual charm."

+ Outlook 108:900 D 16 '14 170w

"The unique value of the Pennells' book is that it records both the old Philadelphia that has already passed and the modern city that is even now passing."

+ R of Rs 50:758 D '14 120w

PENSON, THOMAS HENRY. Economics of everyday life; a first book of economic study. *$1 Putnam A13-2170

"This book is distinguished from most of its kind by the continuous translation of theory into terms of actuality." (Ath) "The method of treatment follows, on the whole, that of the modern school, of which Prof. Marshall may be regarded as the head, and exchange is treated before, and not after, distribution. The subjects of consumption, taxation, trade unions and cooperative societies are left to the second part of this book, which has yet to be published." (Nature)

"While the treatment follows accepted theory and particularly Professor Marshall's views, it is fresh. Examples and illustrations are new; diagrams are simple and seem helpful." H. E. Mills

+ Am Econ R 3:894 D '13 200w

"It might be of interest to teachers of the fundamental principles of economics, and may possibly be found useful to business men, who have only a limited opportunity to take up the study of economics. But even for this class of readers, it is, as indicated in the preface, to be regarded merely as a stepping stone to more advanced study."

+ — Ann Am Acad 49:247 S '13 100w

"It should enable any intelligent student to get a good idea of the problems of industrialism."

+ Ath 1913.1:306 Mr 15 30w

"It is surprising how difficult it apparently is to write a good short text-book of economics, but Mr. Penson has been eminently successful in doing so. He has fully grasped the fact that the first need for such a book is to be simple and elementary as well as short. Moreover, his definitions are nearly always both clear and adequate, those of demand and supply affording a good example." N. B. Dearle

+ Nature 91:187 Ap 21 '13 300w

"There is scarcely any history here and no politics. Absolute fairness is shown to Capital and Labour. The old economic truths, which really work together for good, but upset politicians so awkwardly, are set out clearly and illustrated by simple diagrams to help the beginner. On one point only we should like to see more definite writing—viz., on 'value' and 'price'."

+ Spec 112:481 Mr 21 '11 180w

PERRINS, MRS. LUCY FITCH. Eskimo twins. 2 il $1 (4c); 50c (2c) Houghton 14-39980

A companion volume to "The Irish twins," "The Dutch twins," etc. The everyday life of Menie and Monnie, Eskimo brother and sister, is described and charmingly illustrated by the author.

+ A L A Bkl 11:225 Ja '15 +

+ Lit D 49:1136 D 5 '14 40w

"A true story and a very charming one."

+ N Y Times 19:524 N 29 '14 230w

PERRIS, GEORGE HERBERT. Industrial history of modern England. $2 Holt 14-15155

"In his admirable review of the industry of the last 150 years Mr. Perris shows how the old England of the farmer has become 'the mother country of industrialism,' and how stupendous have been and are the achievements of England in the realm of the machine—achievements which have given her trade and wealth which may well enable her to make good the journalistic promise that the British bulldog will never relax under defeat."—N Y Times

+ Am Hist R 20:229 O '14 40w

"The author has handled his materials ably. Believing as we do that an historical background is essential to the understanding of modern social problems, we have great pleasure in recommending this book to our readers."

+ Ath 1914,2:142 Ag 1 450w

"A volume whose every chapter, set out in clear, vigorous English, proves that the author has given his subject intense thought, research in minute detail, brilliant analysis."

+ N Y Times 19:369 S 6 '14 2000w

"The book is pleasantly written, and gives a useful account of English industrial development with which we have no quarrel until it reaches, say, the year 1906."

+ Spec 113:675 N 14 '14 470w

PERRY, STELLA GEORGE STERN. Kind adventure. 12 il $1.25 (1½c) Stokes 14-15364

When Betty and her big brother Robert part company for the summer, he to go to the seashore, she to the mountains, they enter into an agreement. Each is to look for an adventure in which it will be possible to help some one else. Betty finds hers in making friends with a lonely little girl, Robert his in helping an old couple who have lost trace of their oldest son. Letters pass back and forth between the two and before the end each is able to take a part in the adventure of the other.

"Young girls entering upon their teens will find pleasure in this well-told tale."

+ N Y Times 19:468 O 25 '14 170w

PERRY, STELLA GEORGE STERN. When mother lets us act. il 75c Moffat 13-19896

This book is one of a series that tells children how to do pleasant things. "After chapters on 'What you must always do' and 'Things to act with,' there are full instructions and suggestions of how to act in statues, tableaux, shadow plays, shadow tableaux, pantomimes, masques, morality plays, acting story plays, acting stories for company, acting poems, garlands, original plays, studying real plays, songs, dance, instrumental music, revels, pageants and festivals." (Boston Transcript)

"Nothing too difficult for the children to do by themselves; helpful to teachers and kindergarten instructors."

+ A L A Bkl 10:163 D '13

Reviewed by M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:440 D '13 20w

"Delightful to children who carry out its suggestion, it is useful to those who have to provide amusement for them."

+ Boston Transcript p25 O 1 '13 250w

Lit D 47:1121 D 6 '13 40w

+ Nation 97:571 D 11 '13 40w

N Y Times 18:505 S 28 '13 60w

PERRY-AYSCOUGH, HENRY GEORGE CHARLES, and OTTER-BARRY, ROBERT BRUÈRE. With the Russians in Mongolia; with a preface by Sir Claude Macdonald. il $4.50 (6½c) Lane 14-6145

The two authors of this book write from personal experience. Captain Otter-Barry visited Mongolia just before the Chinese revolution when it was still under the dominion of the Ching dynasty. Mr. Perry-Ayscough traveled thru the country later after China had become a republic and Russia had assumed control of Mongolia. They are able therefore to make comparisons between the two periods. Their book is largely descriptive. They point out the natural advantages of the country and the opportunities it offers for commercial development, but their standpoint is always that of British imperialists. "From a British point of view," they say, "one cannot help seeing the danger of any Russian influence in Mongolia."

+ A L A Bkl 10:403 Je '14

"It has a claim to distinction in bringing the subject down to within about a month of the time of publication. It has, however, an unusual and far more permanent distinction in that it gives complete translations of various treaties and agreements made by Russia with Mongolia or with China in reference to Mongolia, and of the Mongol-Tibetan treaty of December 29th, 1912. The book is written with a feeling, or at least in a manner, friendly to the Russians, but at the same time with sufficient candour to enable the reader to form his own judgment."

+ Ath 1914,1:333 Mr 7 1050w

"A valuable volume." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 20 '14 750w

"The main interest of the writers is political, and the book is especially valuable in its analysis of the present political situation in Mongolia."

+ Dial 57:142 S 1 '14 300w

"The chief value of the book is in its clear treatment of the historical and political matter, by which it supplies the need of a really authoritative work."

+ Lit D 50:157 Ja 23 '15 150w

+ Nation 98:701 Je 11 '14 130w

+ N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 200w

"Its historical section is valuable for reference as well as for reading, as are also its commercial notes, while as a mere record of travel in a practically unknown region the volume is peculiarly interesting."

+ Outlook 107:214 My 23 '14 270w

"One of those very thorough descriptive books of travel which exhausts the subject, and in an authoritative way."

+ R of Rs 49:634 My '14 90w

"This book on Russo-China will interest many, for the theme is not common. It is not illumined by imagination; rather, it is crammed with statistics; but it achieves its object—it records fact."

+ Sat R 117:246 F 21 '14 280w

PERRY-AYSCOUGH, H. G. C.; and OTTER-BARRY, R. B.—Continued.

"The authors' account of their travels is very instructive and sometimes amusing."

+ Spec 112:351 F 28 '14 1200w

PETERSON, MARGARET. Blind eyes. *$1.30
12 (1½c) Browne & Howell (Eng ed 14-3295)

Under the care of a loving older sister, Cynthia Weston has grown up to the edge of womanhood knowing little about life. Mattie's halting endeavors to tell her something of the truth are not enlightening, and it is after she has entered into an engagement that she comes face to face with elemental facts, presented in a most ugly form. In a spirit of rebellion she goes off to London to make her own way in the world. Her friendship with Elsie Hart is the most potent influence in shaping her character. Elsie's is a vivid, eager soul and she gives all for love, sinking afterwards into the depth, but it is from her that Cynthia learns not to be afraid of life and its forces.

Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 550w

"Miss Peterson is still finding her way as a novelist, but she has interesting things to tell and she seems anxious to tell them as well as she can."

+ — Dial 57:342 N 1 '14 160w

Sat R 117:118 Ja 24 '14 70w

PETERSON, MARGARET. Lure of the little drum. il *$1.35 Putnam 13-22820

This is the novel that won in the Melrose prize competition in 1913. "The scene is laid in India, and the main theme of the plot is the almost hypnotic fascination which the native Prince, Ishat Khan, has for the beautiful white-and-gold young English girl, Esther Williams." (N Y Times) "The little drum of the title is his wedding gift to her, a toy which symbolizes the fascination upon which he relies." (Nation)

"The author is sufficiently sure of her characters and her surroundings to convince us of their reality without any apology in the way of analysis or description."

+ Ath 1913.2:228 S 6 150w

"It is an unpleasant book, a morbid book, and one that leaves a distinctly disagreeable aftertaste." F. T. Cooper

— Bookm 38:669 F '14 400w

"It cannot be denied that Miss Peterson has aimed to write a story of 'emotional power,' but she has provided so many other elements to fall back upon that her very natural failure to sound the depths is not hopelessly bad. The author has not succeeded in her tragic psychology, nor imparted a great deal of originality to her theme. The setting is better than the average Indian story."

+ — Boston Transcript p21 D 3 '13 430w

"It would need more profound insight into character, or a more potent suggestion of exoticism, to make the story memorable."

— Nation 98:35 Ja 8 '14 220w

"An interesting novel, and it makes one feel that its successors are likely to be still better."

+ — N Y Times 18:614 N 9 '13 330w

"Every one who has heard the throb of the native drum as it is fingered in the Indian dusk will be attracted to the story."

+ Outlook 105:859 D 20 '13 140w

"A rather unpleasant story of Indian life."

— Spec 111:574 O 11 '13 30w

PETERSON, MAUD HOWARD. Commodore.
2 il *$1.25 (2c) Lothrop 14-17287

In a series of stories the author follows the development of a boy from childhood up to the time of his graduation from Annapolis under the influence of the United States naval service and its ideals. He is the son of an officer, and from babyhood considers himself a member of the service. The stories, some of which, the author says, have appeared in various magazines under the signature of Anna E. Finn, are: The commodore; The fighting blood; The room of the trundle-bed; On the high seas; The sail and Siete Picos; When the game was played; The law's fulfillment.

+ A L A Bkl 11:222 Ja '15

"To the end of the story the 'Commodore' seems always to be rather too good to be true, whatever the scene in which he is placed."

+ — N Y Times 19:557 D 6 '14 300w

PETRE, FRANCIS LORAIN. Napoleon at bay, 1814. il *$2.50 (4c) Lane 14-6209

The fifth volume in the author's series of studies of the Napoleonic campaigns appears just one hundred years after the commencement of the campaign which it describes. Like the preceding volumes, "it deals only with the purely military side of the war, politics being referred to only in so far as they actually influence directly the course of military operations. Further, it is confined to the operations in which Napoleon was personally and directly engaged." (Preface) The numerous maps and plans that illuminate the text will be found on detached sheets in a pocket at the end of the book.

"Readers of Mr. Petre's previous Napoleonic studies will find in this his accustomed accuracy of statement, excellent military knowledge, and lucidity of presentation. The book should be widely useful. The maps are full and clear. We only regret that they are not printed upon stouter material."

+ — Ath 1914.1:372 Mr 14 880w

"Mr. Petre's account of this wonderful campaign is not marked by the same elaborate treatment he has given to other great episodes in Napoleon's military career."

+ — Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '14 550w

+ — Dial 57:111 Ag 16 '14 330w

+ Nation 18:731 Je 18 '14 320w

N Y Times 19:315 J1 19 '14 120w

"His narrative convinces, even though it does not charm. The chief defects are the lack of any account of the superhuman efforts whereby the Emperor summoned to the colours a new army, after the double losses of 1812 and 1813; also the omission of all reference to the psychological factors that played a large part in this campaign." J. H. Rose

+ — Sat R 117:495 Ap 18 '14 1000w

+ Spec 112:sup1064 Je 27 '14 830w

PETROVITCH, WOISLAV M. Hero tales and legends of the Serbians. il *10s 6d G: G. Harrap & co., London

"The first part of Mr. Petrovitch's book is given up to tales of the national heroes who flourished before the coming of the Turk, or at least before he had planted his foot firmly on the country: Kraljevitsh Marko, or Prince Marko of Philip, Tsar Doushan, Tsar Lazar, Banovitch Strahinya, and others. These tales have been selected from the third edition of Vouk Stephanovitch Karadgitch's great collection of the national ballads, and translated by the author. . . . A score of representative folk-tales follow the tales of the heroes, and finally we have some Serbian popular anecdotes, which show, here and there, a pretty wit."—Ath

"The illustrations are, for the most part, good, and the book is well printed, though mistakes in spelling are rather numerous. We are glad to see a useful map and index."

+ Ath 1914.2:277 S 19 1500w

+ Sat R 118:349 S 26 '14 1650w

"Those who have leisure to read M. Petrovitch's very entertaining description of Serbian popular customs, and his repertory of Serbian national legends and fairy-tales, will form a more just idea of his countrymen than their recent history has tended to produce."

+ Spec 113:241 Ag 15 '14 100w

"Regarded from the literary standpoint, and judged by people who cannot share in the patriotic feelings that they must rouse in Serbia, these ballads, it must be confessed, are not of very striking merit. They are spirited, romantic, and not a little barbarous; but they do not show much of the high imagination that vitalizes many other primitive ballads. The work of translation has been excellently performed by M. Petrovitch, who has also provided a useful introduction."

+ — Spec 113:398 S 19 '14 450w

PHELPS, WILLIAM LYON. Essays on books. *$1.50 (2c) Macmillan 14-18039

The first of these essays, Realism and reality in fiction, was read by the author at the 1912 meeting of the American academy of arts and letters. Most of the others are reprinted from the Century magazine, North American review, etc. The papers which follow the one already named are: Richardson; Jane Austen; Dickens; Carlyle's love-letters; Whittier; Notes on Mark Twain; Marlowe; The poet Herrick; Schopenhauer and Omar; Lessing as a creative critic; Schiller's personality and influence; Conversations with Paul Heyse.

+ A L A Bkl 11:211 Ja '15

+ — Ath 1914,2:668 D 26 800w

"Professor Phelps is always stimulating, even when we least agree with him, for he always has so refreshingly the courage of his convictions." Calvin Winter

+ — Bookm 40:563 Ja '15 200w

"All of it contains the intimate personal touch that gives life to literary essays and appreciations, and that makes them of permanent value." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 1300w

+ Dial 58:24 Ja 1 '15 170w

"Whatever the particular topic, book talk by Professor Phelps is usually entertaining and always interesting and suggestive."

+ Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 40w

"Sanity, the sound appreciation that comes of thorough acquaintance and of wide comparative knowledge—these rather than acumen or wit are the pre-eminent qualities in Professor Phelps's book."

+ No Am 201:97 Ja '15 750w

"These papers do not represent the usual cut-and-dried method of literary criticism. They are witty, pithy, intimate, and friendly—just the kind of work that awakens the mind and throws fresh zest into the study of the masters of literature."

+ R of Rs 50:763 D '14 80w

"A genial volume."

+ Spec 113:855 D 12 '14 15w

PHILIP, JAMES CHARLES. Wonders of modern chemistry. il '75c (2c) McKay

In this popular account of the wonders of chemistry the author has emphasized the part which chemical science plays in everyday life. Contents: The dawn of chemistry; Alchemy and the philosopher's stone; Nature's building material; Invisible substances, and how we know of their existence; Elements with a double identity; Metals, common and uncommon; Where two metals are better than one; Acids and alkalis; Natural waters; Chemical changes which produce light and heat; How fire is made; Nature's stores of fuel; More about fuel; Flame, what is it?

PHILLIPS, DUNCAN C., jr. Enchantment of art, as part of the enchantment of experience: essays. il $2.50 (2½c) Lane

"This is a book of frankly personal appreciations," says the author, who holds that art is a personal matter and that no act of the mind is more personal than criticism. In addition, the book is frankly persuasive; the author seeks to bring others to his way of thinking about art and life. "Briefly, the purpose of this book is the purpose of art itself; to stimulate the appreciation of life and to intensify the joy of living." He writes chiefly of painting and of books, and has chapters on: The impressionistic point of view; What impressionism in painting really means; Impressionism in prose; Impressionism in poetry; The decorative imagination; The spirit of romantic comedy, etc.

"A joyous and abounding book which is sensitive to its finger tips." Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:418 D '14 200w

"The book is full of keen estimates and genuine appreciations, but lacks in convincing power."

+ — Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 70w

"A book that is destined to be one of the great art books of the season, and many subsequent seasons."

+ Int Studio 54:sup97 Ja '15 230w

"With much youthful charm in his writing, Mr. Phillips's phrases often run away with him, and his enthusiasms, which are generally just, as yet lack any solid analytical basis. It is a volatile kind of criticism."

+ — Nation 100:62 Ja 14 '15 300w

"The pleasures of the artistic life are Mr. Phillips's true theme. A certain attitude or mood corresponding to that of the so-called 'intellectual life' is impressed upon us by his subtly composed and daintily worded essays. Though these are in spirit not at all didactic, they are thoroughly rational. The author makes his chief aim, indeed, the deepening through suggestion of the feeling for beauty, yet at the same time he outlines general ideas with sufficient clearness."

+ No Am 201:280 F '15 900w

"It is a book of frankly personal appreciations, and those who enjoy reading of another mind's adventures among masterpieces will greatly like it, though they may at times incline to resent the author's persistently didactic tone."

+ — R of Rs 50:755 D '14 80w

PHILLIPS, ULRICH BONNELL. Life of Robert Toombs. il $2 (2c) Macmillan 13-17129

"The subject of this monograph was an able and picturesque Georgian. He was born in 1810 and came to manhood just when his state was mad for State rights in connection with the Cherokee question. . . . He was mentioned for the Confederate presidency, became Secretary of State, and resigned his office to be a brigadier-general. After the war he refused to ask for amnesty and died an unpardoned Confederate." (Nation) The story of his life is told by the author in the following chapters: The country, the people, and the politics of middle Georgia; Toombs' early career; A southern Whig in congress; The proviso crisis and the compromise of 1850; The Georgia platform; A senator in the fifties; Toombs on the slaveholding régime; The election of 1860; The stroke for southern independence; The stress of war; An unreconstructed Georgian.

"This close study of a political stream of tendency—able and valuable as it is—lacks after all the real presentment of a personality." N. W. Stephenson

+ — Am Hist R 12:CC3 Ap '14 1100w

"No sentiment other than affection could have impelled the biographer of Georgia's most picturesque statesman to perform his task. But it was an affection which has not influenced his judicial vision."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 19 '13 820w

"His book seems to us an important contribution to American history, and we wish that some of its pages might be read by all who participate in public life."

+ — Ind 78:291 My 19 '14 250w

"The present work is of historic importance."

+ Lit D 48:270 F 7 '14 170w

"To write a satisfactory life of such a man demands wide knowledge and scholarship. Professor Phillips has shown himself well fitted for the task. He is an authority on Georgia history; he has the scientific spirit, and he has the touch of an able historian. The book is an agreeable and valuable contribution to the history of the great sectional controversy. Perhaps it would have been better if some careful balancing of good and bad characteristics had been made by the author."

+ — Nation 97:415 O 30 '13 500w

PHILLIPS, ULRICH BONNELL—Continued.

"He enables his readers to form a fair estimate of a man who has been misjudged perhaps more than any other southerner."

+ N Y Sun p5 S 27 '13 160w

"If it leaves Toombs himself a somewhat vague, elusive figure, it certainly enlarges our understanding of the principles he represented and the important events in which he was concerned."

+ Outlook 106:97 Ja 10 '14 200w

Reviewed by B: B. Kendrick

+ Pol Sci Q 29:491 S '11 2000w

"We now have, for the first time, a complete biography of one of the leaders of the Confederacy."

+ R of Rs 48:632 N '13 130w

"Though his book is not easy reading, it is worthy of study."

+ Spec 112:sup164 Ja 31 '14 180w

PHILLIPS, WALTER ALISON. Confederation of Europe. $2.50 Longmans 14-8401

"The author's purpose was 'to study the history of the European coalition which succeeded to Napoleon's dictatorship in Europe, from the point of view of an experiment in the international organization of peace,' so as to show what may and what may not be expected from modern projects with a similar aim. Mr. Phillips is not very hopeful. His searching analysis of the diplomacy of the allied powers from 1814 to 1822 proves that none of them was ready to subordinate national interests to the welfare of Europe as a whole."—Ath

Reviewed by W. S. Robertson

+ Am Hist R 20:153 O '14 700w

"An important contribution, not only to the history of the Holy Alliance, but also to current discussion of the peace movement."

+ Ath 1914,2:44 Jl 11 1150w

"The whole volume is a notable contribution to the study of a period in the intricacies of which the ordinary reader is apt to lose himself unless accompanied by a guide at once expert and trustworthy. Such a guide he will find in Mr. Phillips, who is at once lucid and scholarly."

+ Sat R 117:572 My 2 '14 950w

"Mr. Alison Phillips has unquestionably performed a most meritorious public service. He has afforded to the historical student a clue by the use of which he may guide his footsteps through an international maze of singular perplexity." C.

+ Spec 112:831 My 16 '14 1750w

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. Faith Tresilion. $1.35 (1c) Macmillan 14-11355

A dramatic story whose scene is laid in Daleham, a little fishing village on the Devonshire coast. The time is the year of Napoleon's return from Elba, and the central figures are free-traders. The heroine of the title belongs to a smuggling family while her lover is an excise-man. At the opening of the tale the father is killed in an encounter with the gauger of Daleham and the son becomes master of the Tresilion smuggling craft. Faith, a splendid, fearless young woman, forced into adventures that would try a soldier's courage, reaches the climax of her heroism in a fight with enemies while struggling against an angry sea, under fire, to rescue her brother's crew. The widow Tresilion whose bedridden bulk heaves emphasis to the sharp commands that no soul dare disobey, is a striking addition to Phillpotts's gallery of types. One could almost call her a female Falstaff who "drinks hollands and smokes birdseye," as she maintains, "to the glory of God."

+ A L A Bkl 11:33 S '14

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:93 S '14 250w

"Belonging to the type of 'The farm of the dagger' and 'The American prisoner,' rather than to the class of 'The secret woman,' and 'The thief of virtue,' 'Faith Tresilion' is nevertheless a thoroughly characteristic Phillpotts story. It is welcome for many reasons, chief among them its assurance that Mr. Phillpotts intends to continue to write of the scenes and people that have made him famous." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 8 '14 700w

"Mr. Phillpotts is an honest craftsman, if not an inspired one, whose novels are neither salt nor sweet." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:54 Jl 16 '14 150w

+ Lit D 49:639 O 3 '11 230w

"It is the Eden Phillpotts of 'Doubloons' rather than of 'The portreeve' or 'The secret woman' whom we meet in this new novel, and it would be difficult indeed to find a better companion with whom to spend a summer's day or a more entertaining tale than the one he has chosen to tell us."

+ N Y Times 19:289 Je 28 '14 970w

"This latest story is neither his worst nor his best."

+ Outlook 107:877 Ag S '14 120w

"In a broad sense it is a man's story, but no reader of taste can fail to extract a large measure of pleasure from it."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 16 '14 520w

PHILLPOTTS, EDEN. From the angle of seventeen. $1.20 (2½c) Little (Eng ed 12-19158)

"Life, from the angle of seventeen, is so dreadfully funny—seen from the angle of thirty-eight," says Corky's aunt when she has read the diary which is presented in this book. Corky, who has written only of serious and important things is a little hurt, but is man enough to attribute her peculiar point of view to the notorious feminine lack of humor. Other readers who are nearing, or have passed the angle of thirty-eight, and who are possessed of any kind of a sense of humor—feminine or otherwise—will find the book diverting. It is the record of Corky's wondrously important doings in the year between his seventeenth and eighteenth birthdays. A year spent in the Apollo fire insurance office in London doesn't seem to offer possibilities for thrilling experiences—but, you see, it is all seen from the angle of seventeen.

+ A L A Bkl 10:288 Mr '14

+ Ath 1912,2:118 Ag 3 150w

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:81 Mr '14 300w

"Interesting because it is something new for Mr. Phillpotts, the story is altogether too good to be true. Its 'angle of seventeen' is frequently too acute an angle for a youth of seventeen." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 780w

+ Ind 77:387 Mr 16 '14 40w

"From beginning to end there is no flaw in the delicious boy-style, with its artless slang and its equally artless pursuit of threadbare 'literary' phrases."

+ Nation 98:110 Ja 29 '14 370w

"If Mr. Phillpotts amused himself by writing it every reader with sympathy and a sense of humor will share his enjoyment."

+ N Y Times 19:770 Ja 4 '14 900w

"It may be that a certain relaxation is required from the strenuous characters of Devon, who hold such emancipated views about the Decalogue, and have for the most part the courage of their perceptions, so that perhaps one should regard Mr. Phillpotts' latest book rather in the light of a rest cure, but even that does not quite explain the curious sense of mental flabbiness which it seems to diffuse. There is no lack of amusing touches, and for many readers there may be a laugh in each; but so very few of them seem to belong, and really one would have to go back to the age of 'Sandford and Merton' to parallel the astounding simplicity with which this youth is endowed by his creator."

+ Sat R 114:401 S 28 '12 400w

PHYFE, WILLIAM HENRY PINKNEY. Eighteen thousand words often mispronounced. $1.50 Putnam 14-2400

This is an entirely revised edition of "12,000 words often mispronounced." All of the words in the previous edition have been retained, but have been carefully examined in the light of recent authorities, and in many cases pronunciation has been changed in accordance with present good usage. Six thousand new words have been added and the entire word list is arranged in one alphabet, with an accompanying key to the diacritical marks used.

- + A L A Bkl 10:337 Ap '14
Boston Transcript p6 Jl 18 '14 450w
Ind 77:355 Mr 9 '14 40w
+ Nation 98:543 My 7 '14 80w

"It should take its place with the dictionaries and other books on the reference shelves."
+ R of Rs 49:381 Mr '14 50w

PICKARD-CAMBRIDGE, ARTHUR WALLACE.
Demosthenes and the last days of Greek freedom, 384-322 B. C. (Heroes of the nations) il $1.50 (1½c) Putnam 14-15379

"The subject of this book is the last struggle of the Hellenes for liberty, and the part played in that struggle by Demosthenes." (Chapter I) Demosthenes is held worthy of a place among the "Heroes of the nations," not because he was in all points of conduct "admirable and blameless," but because he "represented worthily, throughout a most critical period, the highest traditions and instincts of his fellow-countrymen." The book is supplied with a chronological table, good illustrations, maps, and index, and is well annotated.

A L A Bkl 11:119 N '14

"A very sound and scholarly study. The only objection we have to make is that the author knows the details too well, and therefore gives too many of them for any general reader. For the student of Greek history the book is admirable."

+ Ath 1914,2:73 Jl 18 470w

"The author has written not only an excellent biography of Demosthenes, but a good history of the last days of Greek freedom."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 530w

"A book that is thoroughly sane and represents scholarship without pedantry."

+ Dial 57:305 O 16 '14 320w

"With respect to those matters of policy and conduct concerning which there always has been more or less controversy among students of Demosthenes's career, the author manifestly has formed impartial judgments and has reached conclusions that seem reasonable and consistent with opinions generally accepted by the historians."

+ N Y Times 19:375 S 6 '14 110w

"A valuable monograph."

+ Outlook 108:226 S 23 '14 250w

PICKTHALL, RUDOLF. Comic kingdom. il $1.50 (2c) Lane 14-8399

The comic kingdom is Elba, and in this book, with the subtitle, "Napoleon, the last phase but two," Mr. Pickthall reviews the events of the ten months sojourn of the emperor on the island. The genuine historical information which he, altho he appears in the narrative as an ordinary English tourist, seems to possess in plenty, is enlivened by the introduction of a spurious brand invented to suit the occasion by one Orestes, a guide, who gives it forth as "historical" fact.

"For those who, like Cecilia in this book, are 'dreadfully interested in Napoleon,' a visit to Elba in Mr. Pickthall's company is both exciting and instructive, and it has the additional merit of being a little off the beaten track without being too uncomfortable."

+ Ath 1914,1:267 F 21 550w

"It is a gay little volume, and gives an entertaining account of an interlude in Napoleon's career with which the casual reader does not usually have much acquaintance. It would also serve admirably as a guide book to any traveler wishing to visit the island."

+ N Y Times 19:197 Ap 19 '14 300w

Sat R 117:281 F 28 '14 180w

"The book would really have been better if it had not been dressed up as fiction, as the whole interest centres in the relics of Napoleon."

+ Spec 113:140 Jl 25 '14 40w

"A narrative that is not only very amusing, but which gives the essential details of Napoleon's 10-months stay on the island and his final escape."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 2 '14 500w

PIER, ARTHUR STANWOOD. Grannis of the 19th fifth. il $1.25 (2c) Houghton 14-15737

Mr. Pier's stories for boys are too well known to need recommendation. In this story of St. Timothy's two contrasted types of boyhood are introduced. One is Alfred Grannis, son of an old graduate, who comes to the school just after a railroad accident had taken from him both father and mother; the other is Daniel Todd, the spoiled son of rich parents, who has little conception of school spirit and whose one ambition is to achieve personal glory. The two boys are thrown together thruout a school year and in various ways help one another. Part of the story appeared in the "Youth's Companion" under the title "His father's son."

"The story is interesting."

+ A L A Bkl 11:225 Ja '15

PIER, ARTHUR STANWOOD. Women we marry. $1.35 (1c) Houghton 14-5475

That the women we marry may prove to be quite different persons from the women we thought we were marrying would seem to be the book's thesis. Rosamond, whom George Brandon has loved for years, turns from him to marry Graham Rappallo. George then marries Rosamond's friend, Dorothy. For a time the story promises two matrimonial failures but in each case disaster is averted, and a certain degree of happiness is attained. In the course of the story the two women develop along lines for which the reader is not prepared on first meeting them.

+ Atlan 114:527 O '14 100w

"Keen and incisive in character study, logical and life-like in plot invention and development, 'The women we marry,' is a novel that stands sturdily on its own merits. It is vigorous, frank and emotional in the best sense of that much-abused word, and there is little in it that is not faithfully representative of life. Although largely local in scene, it is no wise provincial. In fact, it is cosmopolitan in motive and in its entire outlook upon the human scheme of things." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 28 '14 1500w

"Written in notably good style, with much cleverness of both ideas and expression. Both his men and women are very real, human people."

+ N Y Times 19:182 Ap 12 '14 450w

— Outlook 107:265 My 30 '14 140w

"As a study of types 'The women we marry' is one of the best things that American fiction has recently produced."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 30 '14 580w

PIER, GARRETT CHATFIELD. Temple treasures of Japan. il $2.50 Sherman, F. F. 14-19065

"The temple treasures of Japan are still many and wonderful. Mr. Pier has made their acquaintance from end to end of the islands; has carefully studied the pictures, sculptures and carvings themselves; and has brought to the task an artistic appreciation and an extensive technical knowledge of the development of both Chinese and Japanese art."—Ind

"As a handbook for one making a first-hand study of the objects themselves, the book should be almost invaluable. It is unfortunate that the necessity for taking up the works temple by temple, and not chronologically, and the very small illustrations—valuable for little more than identification—should so far limit a treatise which contains a mass of valuable and suggestively handled information."

PIER, GARRETT CHATFIELD—Continued.

+ — Ind 81:137 Ja 25 '15 220w

"A useful work."

+ Int Studio 54:sup98 Ja '15 140w

PIGOU, ARTHUR CECIL. Unemployment. 5 (Home univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 14-30427

An economic analysis of the problem of unemployment. Among the conclusions arrived at are these: that some measure of unemployment must always result when a rigid wage scale is in force; that unemployment can be lessened by any device that renders wage rates more plastic; that among proposed remedies labor exchanges are of first importance; and that the most effective palliatives are organized short time in periods of depression, and unemployment insurance.

"Here we have speculative political economy at its best. But the fact that the book is one of the best of its kind, shows so much more strikingly the essential weakness of its method." W. M. Leiserson

+ — Am Econ R 4:918 D '14 850w

+ A L A Bkl 10:404 Je '14

"Prof. Pigou makes a thorough examination of the secondary causes of unemployment, but never reaches the primary one embedded in our present social system."

+ — Ath 1914,1:224 F '14 350w

+ Nation 99:49 J1 9 '14 160w

+ N Y Times 19:338 Ag 9 '14 306w

PILLSBURY, ALBERT ENOCH. Lincoln and slavery. *75c Houghton 13-20781

This work "is expanded from an address delivered at Howard university on the fiftieth anniversary of the Emancipation proclamation. The author aims to show, largely by means of liberal quotations from Lincoln's utterances, the continuity of his hostility to slavery, from the very beginning of his career and of his determination to destroy it."—Am Hist R

"This collection of evidences of Lincoln's attitude toward slavery is welcome, but the author's arguments sometimes go farther than even his own thesis demands."

+ — Am Hist R 19:438 Ja '14 130w

+ Ind 76:591 D 25 '13 50w

N Y Times 18:607 N 9 '13 60w

PILLSBURY, HERVEY GORHAM. Figures famed in fiction. *$1.25 (1c) Rand 14-5992

The author has endeavored "to present with few but vivid strokes a number of graphic delineations of noted figures in fiction. These outlines . . . are presented in the hope that they may direct attention to the larger works from which they have been derived and incite desire to become familiar with the originals." (Introductory note) The figures chosen are: Jean Valjean; John Halifax; Tom Brown; Donovan; Marcus Vinicius; Robert Falconer; Donald Marcy; Sheila Mackenzie; Sydney Carton; Clement Vaughn; Berault; Lorna Doone; Angela Messenger; Dr. Hopkins; Mr. Crupp of Barton.

"The compiler has shown skill in extracting the best and the most characteristic elements from these various works."

+ Dial 56:349 Ap 16 '14 180w

Ind 78:105 Ap 13 '14 70w

"The characters are all well described—so well, in fact, that the reader gets nearly as good an idea of them as he would had he gone to the novel itself."

+ Nation 99:108 J1 23 '14 160w

PINCHOT, GIFFORD. Training of a forester. il *$1 (4½c) Lippincott 14-3569

A monograph that answers for the young man looking to forestry as a profession such questions as What is forestry? Does it in fact offer the satisfying type of outdoor life which it appears to offer? What chance does it present for a successful career, for a career of genuine usefulness, and what is the chance to make a living? Is a young man fitted for it in character, mind and body? If so, what training does he need? Mr. Pinchot who is in a position to advise expertly believes that unless a young man has a compelling love for the forester's life he better keep out of it.

A L A Bkl 10:404 Je '14 +

"To anyone contemplating making forestry a profession, it is of the greatest value."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 450w

"Succinct and excellent handbook."

+ Dial 57:206 S 16 '14 300w

"It furnishes a summary, and a very interesting and illuminating summary, of the growth and present activity of forestry in the United States."

+ Nation 99:331 S 10 '14 280w

"A satisfactory book to put into the hands of boys and young men who are considering forestry as a profession."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:258 N '14 50w

PINKERTON, ROBERT EUGENE. Canoe. (Outing handbooks) il *70c Outing pub. 14-8074

"This volume on 'The canoe,' after considering more narrowly matters of selection, care, and handling, branches out into a number of chapters on the general requirements of a canoe outing trip, such as tents, clothing, bedding, cooking outfit, and camp-making."—Nation

"A practical little book for communities that need it."

+ A L A Bkl 11:161 D '14

Nation 99:228 Ag 20 '14 40w

"A very practical little guide."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:189 J1 '14 50w

PIOZZI, MRS. HESTER LYNCH (SALUS-BURY) THRALE. Intimate letters of Hester Piozzi and Penelope Pennington, 1788-1821; ed. by Oswald G. Knapp. il $4.50 Lane 13-25463

The writer of these letters is known to the present century thru association with Samuel Johnson. As Mrs. Thrale, wife of a London brewer, she was numbered among the great man's friends and her volume of "Anecdotes," published in 1786, roused the ire of Boswell, who felt that she had trespassed on his preserves. The present volume of letters adds little to Johnsoniana, but it gives an interesting picture of the time and introduces other famous figures, among them Mrs. Siddons.

"The letters are delightful reading, and place Mrs. Piozzi in a more favorable aspect than she has been usually viewed in hitherto."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup396 O 11 110w

+ — Ath 1913,2:616 N 29 550w

"Mr. Knapp arranges these letters carefully, but his method of supplying connecting matter is somewhat naïve. All that he does is to intersperse them with paragraphs describing the persons mentioned in them, thereby putting into the text no small amount of material that belongs in footnotes." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p7 D 20 '13 780w

"We notice in the editorial accompaniment two or three slips."

+ — Dial 56:387 My 1 '14 850w

+ Ind 77:212 F 9 '14 350w

+ — Lit D 48:842 Ap 11 '14 320w

"It cannot be said that we get any really new view of her character. Nor are they intrinsically interesting."

— Nation 98:215 F 26 '14 430w

"The writer of these present letters may have been verbose, possibly conceited and even meddlesome; not profound in her political observation or even accurate in all her records. But she is vivacious, she writes of interesting people, and she is certainly not afraid to voice her own opinions of people and other things."

+ N Y Sun p6 D 27 '13 2850w

+ N Y Times 19:286 Je 21 '14 320w

"The 'Letters,' while enabling us to judge their author with something of the lenience that understanding teaches, throw back a certain light upon the relations of Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Thrale. Moreover, to those who possess a flair for eighteenth-century life, manners, and style, these letters offer a fresh opportunity for analysis and amused reflection. If there sometimes supervenes a little of that weariness which naturally arises from reading letters not intended for one, curiosity concerning the friend of Dr. Johnson will carry us through." F. M. Colby

+ No Am 199:304 F '14 900w

"For the leisurely reader, seated before the fire, paper-cutter in hand, there will be many moments of quiet enjoyment."

+ Outlook 106:371 F '14 '14 320w

"After a century, she comes alive for us, bringing with her the atmosphere of the most exciting time that Europe has ever known."

+ Sat R 116:686 N 29 '13 680w

"The letters are mainly interesting as a running comment upon public events written by a woman well informed—in spite of Boswell's strictures on her inaccuracy—intelligent, and observant. They reveal her as a kindly, generous, enthusiastic woman, whose gift for gossip might easily be mistaken for wit."

+ Spec 112:sup161 Ja 31 '14 1000w

PIPER, CHARLES VANCOUVER. Forage plants and their culture. (Rural text-book ser.) il $1.75 (1c) Macmillan 14-14787

The diversity of climate and soil conditions thruout the United States calls for the introduction of forage crops suitable to different sections. Of recent years many such have been brought from all parts of the earth, soybeans, Japan clover, Bermuda-grass, Rhodes-grass, etc., but, the author points out, scientific knowledge concerning these crops compares unfavorably with that relating to other cereals, and little has been written on the subject. He has attempted in this book to set forth the present state of our knowledge with reference to each forage crop grown in America. The book is supplied with illustrations, tables, maps, and an index.

PLAISTED, LAURA L. Handwork and its place in early education. il $1.35 Oxford EL3-1666

"From a discussion of Froebel's 'gifts' and 'occupations,' Miss Plaisted proceeds to a review of the various forms of handwork which are suited to train the intelligence and develop the instincts of young children up to the age of ten. . . . Ample instruction is given for getting the full value out of modelling in paper and cardboard, light woodwork, paper cutting, needlework, modelling in clay, and so on; and two hundred excellent illustrations of work actually done by children are much to the point."—Ath

"For the young teacher or the one who has little material or who is shut off from the inspiration and suggestions of others."

+ A L A Bkl 10:192 Ja '14

"Every free library should acquire copies."

+ Ath 1913,2:5 Jl 5 520w

"A rather full and well-illustrated practical manual."

+ Nation 97:233 S 11 '13 20w

PLOWMAN, GEORGE TAYLOR. Etching and other graphic arts. il $1.50 (7c) Lane 14-18436

Part one of this book is devoted to the subjects which are necessary to a complete understanding of etching: Pencil drawing and composition; Pen drawing; Wood engraving; Lithography; Line engraving; Etching; Dry-point. Part two, taking up the more technical side of the subject, has chapters on: Materials for etching; Preparing the plate for acid; Drawing on the plate; Biting the plate; Reworking ground; Other methods; For a first experiment; Printing. The book is thus a manual for the student and workman, but the author believes that those who already enjoy the graphic arts will appreciate them more intelligently and derive additional pleasure by knowing this technical side. There are twenty-six illustrations and the author has added a list of places to buy materials and a short bibliography.

"Contains much valuable information for practised hands."

+ Int Studio 54:sup98 Ja '15 130w

"The only quarrel we have with Mr. Plowman [is] that he has tried to do too much. Over a third of his little volume is taken up with descriptions of graphic arts other than etching, for which there seems no real necessity."

+ Nation 190:151 F 4 '15 300w

"Interest in the graphic arts is increasing so rapidly in this country and practical works of this kind are so few that the book should meet with an enthusiastic welcome."

+ N Y Times 19:590 N 15 '11 149w

POGANY, NANDOR, comp. Hungarian fairy book. il $1.35 Stokes A13-2303

"The fairies have no country, and the present volume is the latest addition to a series which already contains collections of English, Welsh, Irish, Scottish, and Italian fairy tales. In many respects the Hungarians resemble the Irish, in character, but their fairy stories are based more on historical facts—wonderfully exaggerated, of course—and reflect to a greater degree the varied national life of the people. Many of them, indeed, appear to be fragments of a great epic (like the Finnish 'Kalevala') which has been lost in the passage of centuries. However that may be, these twenty-eight stories are unusually interesting, and they will for the most part be new to English readers."—Sat R

"Apparently authentic tales and epical fragments revealing the rich fancy and vivid imagination of the people. Contains several gruesome stories, perhaps better for students of folklore."

+ A L A Bkl 10:164 D '13

"The stories themselves are above the level of the average fairy-story in matter, but the manner of their narration is often bad."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup471 O 25 100w

"The pictures in the text and in the initial letters, in black and red, hit the right key and add to the weirdness of the tales."

+ N Y Sun 13 D 6 '13 120w

"Most interesting and attractive."

+ N Y Times 18:742 D 14 '13 100w

R of Rs 48:763 D '13 80w

+ Sat R 116:sup5 N 29 '13 180w

"It is high praise to say that they are somewhat like Grimm's tales."

+ Spec 111:sup691 N 1 '13 120w

POINCARÉ, HENRI. Foundations of science; auth. tr. by G. B. Halsted; with an introd. by Josiah Royce. $3 Science press 14-204

This is the first of a series of books to be published under the general title "Science and education." "In these pages will be found just that authoritative presentation and weighing of scientific views that educated people have needed in this period of independent thought and freer teaching, and when such strides have been made in scientific investigation. The book is made up of three parts: Part 1, Science and hypothesis, treating of Number and magnitude, Space, Force, Nature; Part 2, The value of science, treating of the Mathematical sciences, The physical sciences, The objective value of science; Part 3, Science and method." (Boston Transcript)

A L A Bkl 10:362 My '14

"It is, perhaps, in more abstract matters . . . that the breadth and penetration of Poincaré's outlook are most immediately apparent."

POINCARÉ, HENRI—Continued.

In spite of defects Dr. Halsted generally conveys the meaning of his author adequately, and in some cases with rare felicity."

+ — Ath 1911,1:206 F 7 820w

"It would be difficult to name another work on science that is of such comprehensive treatment as is presented here. Professor Halsted will have the thanks of American scholars for his excellent translation that could only have been successfully done by one thoroughly versed in the most advanced mathematical thought. This volume should form the basis of a new epoch in American science, both in the realization of what has been done and in the undertaking of original investigations." F. W.

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 20 '13 1500w

Reviewed by H. C. Brown

+ — J Philos 11:333 Je 4 '11 330w

Outlook 107:135 My 16 '14 220w

"American students are fortunate in having presented to them in English the work of this illustrious scholar."

+ R of Rs 49:248 F '14 130w

Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 300w

POINCARÉ, RAYMOND. How France is governed. *$2.25 (2½c) McBride, Nast & co. E14-1811

A translation of a work by the president of the French republic, written for the school children of France. The chapters take up the following subjects: Civic rights and duties; The commune; The department; The state; National sovereignty; The constitution; The president of the republic; The ministers; The chambers; Justice; Public education; The budget and taxation; Military service.

+ A L A Bkl 10:317 Ap '14

"An admirable account of the essential features of the French government and well-proportioned to the needs of the average intelligent reader." J. S. Schapho

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:318 My '14 450w

"It is a little curious that a book thought suitable for French children should be issued here (as its price and form suggest) for grown-up people; but it is full of information which can be read with benefit by English men and women who do not care to study English books which, if they give fuller details, require more thought. The facts in it, as might be expected from the distinguished author, are accurate."

+ — Ath 1913,2:199 Ag 30 850w

"M. Poincaré describes the static aspects of the French government admirably, but he has little or nothing to say of those not less important aspects which are dynamic." F: A. Ogg

+ — Dial 57:76 Ag 1 '14 750w

+ Lit D 49:520 S 19 '14 170w

"Unfortunately, the chapter on the military law is already out of date, and the very interesting treatment of the Wallon amendment has been entirely marred by a mistranslation complicated by a misprint."

+ — Nation 98:335 Mr 26 '14 550w

+ N Y Times 18:470 S 14 '13 170w

"In the political, social, and economic chronicles of France there is so much that is not only dramatic but also paradoxical that a book telling how these things come to pass should have a popular appeal. This is especially so when the author of the book is the president of the republic."

+ N Y Times 19:71 F 15 '14 1250w

+ — R of Rs 49:623 My '14 300w

"Needless to say the subject is treated logically and the literary form of the whole is excellent, and we are glad to say the translator has done his work satisfactorily."

+ Sat R 116:301 S 6 '13 1500w

"A book packed full of information not easily obtained elsewhere, and conveyed in language of remarkable and attractive simplicity."

+ Spec 111:312 Ag 30 '13 1550w

POINCARÉ, (RAYMOND): a sketch. il *5s 12 Duckworth & co., London

"We learn from the preface to this anonymous sketch that it was finished before the outbreak of the war, and owing to this fact some of the passages in it which deal with foreign relations have a somewhat lugubrious ring when we read them to-day. But the value of the greater part of the book is unaffected, and indeed present circumstances will make English readers all the keener to gain a more precise knowledge of President Poincaré's life and opinions. In the earlier chapters the President's career is traced through the mazes of the last thirty years of French politics, after which a fuller analysis is given of his chief political and economic views."

—Spec

"The book gives an agreeable sketch of M. Raymond Poincaré. The author is not moderate in his praise of his hero. He sees little to criticize, and he praises without reserve."

+ — Ath 1914,2:325 O 3 1250w

+ Spec 113:420 S 26 '14 470w

POLEY, ARTHUR PIERRE. Federal systems of the United States and the British empire. *$3.50 Little (Eng ed 13-26216)

The author "traces the history and compares the development of the constitutions of the United States, Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, and the Union of South Africa. . . . In his last chapter he suggests that a closer union of the Empire might be secured by the creation of an advisory imperial cabinet, including all the members of the cabinets of the empire, acting through the ministers for external affairs."—Spec

"Obviously, a book marred by errors so easily avoidable is not to be trusted very far in fundamentals. Several of the chapters on Canada, Australia, and South Africa are likely to be of some service to American students. They are, on the whole, less open to criticism than are those relating to the United States. But the conviction must be expressed that the task which Mr. Poley has undertaken remains to be performed by an abler hand." F: A. Ogg

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:140 F '14 900w

"His sketch of the American government embraces more than one-third of his treatise; and while it is not without value, it cannot be regarded as authoritative. Of more value to American students are his chapters on the Canadian, Australian, and South African federal systems, although these chapters too are more or less sketchy and elementary."

+ — Dial 56:112 F 1 '14 320w

"The volume makes dull reading and the author's logic is not always better than his style."

— Nation 99:79 J 16 '14 380w

"The book is to be judged on its meeting the proposal of its writer, and in that respect it is a laborious, learned, and useful performance, with text at times rising to eloquence and prophecy."

+ N Y Times 18:761 D 28 '13 1650w

"Without extended quotations it would be impossible to give a fair impression of the vagueness and inconsequence which pervade the book."

— Poi Sci Q 29:159 Mr '14 430w

+ — Sat R 116:19 J 15 '13 1100w

"Carefully compiled and should prove a valuable work of reference, though one could wish that the author had devoted more space to generalization."

+ — Spec 111:427 S 20 '13 120w

POLLAK, GUSTAV. International perspective 11 in criticism. il *$2 (2½c) Dodd 14-16929

The author has chosen four literary critics, each of whom possessed that sense of international perspective which he holds to be an essential to true criticism. The four men, "whose common lot it was to be accused of lack of patriotism," are Goethe, Grillparzer, Sainte-Beuve, and Lowell. Chapters on Goethe's universal interests; Grillparzer's originality as critic; Sainte-Beuve's unique place in literature; and Lowell, patriot and cosmopolitan are followed by selections from the critical works of the four. In a final chapter, Lessons from the masters, he has something to say of the "modern spirit" in literature and the danger that lies in rejection of standards of the past.

"The idea of this book will be thought a good one or not precisely as it satisfies the needs of the individual reader. The opportunity for easy comparison of these four men's minds and methods will doubtless be of value to some; others will commend this little larder of choice morsels chiefly because it may tempt to a wider table. The intention of the author in this rather pedestrian volume is in either case realized." Algernon Tassin

+ — Bookm 40:323 N '14 680w
Boston Transcript p21 S 23 '14 450w
Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 70w
+ Nation 99:555 N 5 '14 300w

"A suggestive and thought-provoking book, not the least valuable part of which is its author's own introductory and concluding comments." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 20:13 Ja 10 '15 1500w

POLLARD, ALBERT FREDERICK, ed. Reign of Henry VII from contemporary sources; sel. and arranged with an introd. (University of London historical ser.) 3v ea. *$3 Longmans 14-2967

"These selections from the contemporary sources for the history of Henry VII's reign are primarily intended for the use of students; but it is hoped that they will also prove serviceable for teachers and others interested in English history. Most of the documents have been printed before, but in collections that are generally out of print and inaccessible except in the great national libraries. . . . The sources from which these materials are drawn include not only statutes, treaties, and Patent rolls, Rolls of parliament, law reports, State papers, but also private letters, Privy purse expenses, political poems, and municipal records."—Ath

"Well calculated to meet the needs of those teachers and students of history who have not access to the original documents."

+ Am Hist R 19:420 Ja '14 40w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by W. E. Lunt

+ — Am Hist R 19:877 Jl '14 850w (Review of v 1-3)

Ath 1913,2:sup37 O 11 130w (Review of v 1-3)

Ath 1913,2:524 N S 30w (Review of v 1)

Ath 1914,1:sup109 Ja 17 50w (Review of v 2)

"Such a work meets the needs of undergraduate students, and it is for them that it has been compiled."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '13 300w (Review of v 1)

"The reputation of Mr. Pollard as well as the exactness of the work already assures the history of its place among the important histories of England."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 320w (Review of v 2)

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 420w (Review of v 3)

"This is very much more than an ordinary 'source-book.'" C. L. Kingsford

+ Eng Hist R 29:569 Jl '14 1000w ((Review of v 1-3)

"Mr. Pollard has not taken time or pains enough in the preparation of this last work. At his best he is exceedingly good; but when the slap-dash fit comes, he hurries and stumbles frequently; and the vigor, even dogmatism of his style aggravates his defects, just as, in his more careful work, it enhances his merits."

+ — Nation 98:607 My 21 '14 550w (Review of v 1-3)

Reviewed by Joseph Jacobs

+ N Y Times 19:309 Jl 12 '14 300w (Review of v 2 and 3)

"It is a pity that the volume before us does not include a table of contents scheduling the 219 excerpts here given. We could wish also that the editor had written a longer introduction."

+ — Sat R 117:53 Ja 10 '14 1450w (Review of v 1)

"No library used by students of history can afford to be without this book."

+ Spec 113:56 Jl 11 '14 1400w (Review of v 1-3)

FOND, OSCAR LEWIS. Treatise on the law of public utilities operating in cities and towns. 2d ed *$6 Bobbs 13-17460

"The early part of the volume contains chapters which consider in detail the legal powers of the municipalities, and discusses the legal questions connected with franchises and municipal contracts. Problems of taxation are also considered. The latter part of the book is concerned with problems of regulation of the services and charges of public service corporations. In the chapters upon municipal ownership, the author takes a conservative position, his view being that, 'with an efficient regulation and control of the service furnished by municipal public utilities and the rates charged for it, the necessity for municipal ownership as a means of regulation and control in the majority of cases at least would disappear.' The author, however, believes that each municipality should be in a position to adopt the policy of municipal ownership whenever conditions justify such a course."

—Ann Am Acad

"This work is excellent from both the legal and the economic standpoint. The chapters on rates are the most unsatisfactory and inconclusive, through no fault of the author's but due wholly to the present unhappy state of judicial opinion on this politico-economic-legal question. The author wisely gives in each chapter just enough subjective treatment to save the work from being absolutely colorless, a fault which many legal works have." J. E. Boyle

+ Am Econ R 4:394 Je '14 450w

"The reviewer has found little opportunity for a difference of opinion."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:136 F '14 300w

"A work of great merit that will be useful to practicing lawyers, state officials and members of public service commissions." E. R. Johnson

+ Ann Am Acad 54:341 Jl '14 300w

"The citations are numerous and evidently comprehensive. For that reason alone the book becomes of importance to the utility engineer."

+ — Engin N 71:1392 Je 18 '14 400w

"In spite of these occasional instances in which the author's general propositions or conclusions may be questioned, his work as a whole is a highly meritorious contribution to the literature of a most important and interesting branch of the law." H. L. McBain

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:123 Mr '14 1650w

PORTER, CHARLOTTE, and CLARKE, HELEN ARCHIBALD. Shakespeare study programs: the comedies. *$1 (3c) Badger, R: G 14-5831

An issue in book form of the Shakespeare study programs that appeared originally in "Poet lore." Schools, study clubs and individuals will find the volume and its companion, The tragedies, helpful for a comprehensive study of the dramas, covering sources, Shakespeare's departure from sources, plot development, characterization, ethics, and symbolism wherever it finds a place in a drama.

+ A L A Bkl 11:111 N '14 *

"The suggestions for discussion, the notes on construction, the items of historical interest concerning the plays are rich in helpfulness, and quite different from the scholarly annotations which make most editions of Shakespeare a source of woe to the layman."

+ Chaut 72:711 My 9 '14 80w (Review of 2v)

PORTER, C., and CLARKE, H. A.—Continued.
 "This and the following will be very useful for individual, school or club study."
 + Wis Lib Bull 10:189 J1 '14 100w

PORTER, CHARLOTTE, and CLARKE, HELEN
<sup>7</sup> ARCHIBALD. Shakespeare study programs: the tragedies. *$1 (2½c) Badger, R: G. 14-5830

An issue in book form of the Shakespeare study programs that appeared originally in "Poet lore." It is uniform with the comedies.

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:189 J1 '14 60w

PORTER, MRS. ELEANOR (HODGMAN). Miss Billy—married. il *$1.25 Page 14-2274

"Admirers of the spontaneous Miss Billy of Eleanor Porter's former novels, 'Miss Billy' and 'Miss Billy's decision,' will be glad to meet her again in her own home . . . and sympathetically to follow her struggles with calories and balanced rations for her household, the perplexities of an untrained housekeeper, and of an undisciplined but generous wife."—Ind

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 11 '14 500w

"The reader is bound to love Miss Billy. She is charming and human."

+ Chaut 72:637 Ap 11 '14 90w

+ Ind 77:387 Mr 16 '14 60w

"It is a pretty, engrossing, and amusing romance, well told."

+ Lit D 48:1495 Je 20 '14 140w

PORTER, HAROLD EVERETT (HOLWORTHY
<sup>8</sup> HALL, pseud.). Henry of Navarre, Ohio. *$1 (3c) Century 14-11044

A breezy novelette whose hero is a pure product of our American college. During his four years at Harvard his off moments are given over to athletics and love-making. And the author seems to choose the off moments with special attention to the love affairs. But college once over, the youth begins to display the qualities of good business sense that had made his father successful. He takes a position, makes goon, weds the girl of his maturer fancy, and returns with her to Navarre for a rousing home-coming in which the elite of the town heartily participate.

A L A Bkl 11:33 S '14 +

"Romantic exaggeration or perhaps sentimental nonsense describes 'Henry of Navarre, Ohio,' better than almost any other phrase."
 — + Boston Transcript p7 Ag 1 '14 200w

"Mr. Porter has a keen sense of humor and tells a story well." J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:405 D 14 '14 120w

"The author has written an entertaining little story, good enough to make the reader feel sure that he will write something much better a few years hence."

+ N Y Times 19:271 Je 14 '14 280w

"What Mr. Tarkington did for the boy in his 'Penrod' Mr. Porter in a measure does for the young man at college."

+ Outlook 107:562 J1 4 '14 50w

"The story is rightly characterized, '191 pages of joy.' Henry is a delight. His care-free slangy ways will make you laugh and his freedom from snobishness or mollycoddle tendencies is refreshing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 350w

PORTERFIELD, ALLEN WILSON. Outline of German romanticism, 1766-1866. il *$1 Ginn 14-10478

An outline prepared for the benefit of advanced students and those who teach advanced students. The author says: "Data are as important in literature as in science; fancy always starts from facts. But when a teacher of literature is giving facts, he is giving what can be derived from many other sources, he is being unoriginal. . . . Originality is as indispensable in the teaching of literature as in the writing of it. This outline contains the facts; the interpretation of the literature that grew out of these must come from him who uses the outline." Part 1 of the book is concerned with Literature, with chapters on: The writers of best sellers; Storm and stress; The classicists of Weimar; The fate dramatists, etc. Part 2 deals with Treatises on literature.

"So much spirit is pleasant to discover, and all the more so when it seems to have contributed to, rather than detracted from, the book's usefulness as a compilation of facts."

+ Dial 57:394 N 16 '14 70w

"Dr. Porterfield professes to have compiled rather than to have composed his volume. The merit of accuracy in the handling of multifarious details will hardly be denied him. But the grouping of these details leaves a good deal to be desired. The book may have its uses as a work of reference, hardly as a guide; and it would be more useful if it contained less."

+ — Nation 99:323 S 10 '14 240w

PORTOR, LAURA SPENCER. Greatest books in the world. *$1.25 Houghton 13-23637

"This book is a study of seven masterworks of literature: The Odyssey, The divine comedy, Faust, The Arabian nights, The pilgrim's progress, The book of Job, and Don Quixote. It includes an analysis of each plot, and an interpretation of the author's purpose and the relation of his work not only to the age that inspired it, but to all time and all classes of humanity. Following the studies of the books, are lists of books and articles for collateral reading and many helpful suggestions for further study."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:278 Mr '14

"It is a book original in plan, written from a mind well-stored with thought and knowledge; a book certain to prove a helpful, suggestive, and valuable possession. Miss Portor has a message for us which she has written with earnest effort; but she does not write with ease, nor has she an ear for the harmonies of prose, so that her sentences are often hard reading."

+ — Boston Transcript p11 D 15 '13 250w

"Miss Portor's studies do not go very deep and lack the snap and vigor necessary to give them wide popularity. They are, however, wholesome and helpful to the patient reader."

+ — Ind 78:175 Ap 27 '14 40w

"She shows neither originality with original sources where that alone might justify adding one more comment to the thousands that have been made on Homer, Dante, and Goethe, nor originality of thought, nor charm of style. There is much vagueness and dim speculation throughout, together with, as always in such cases, some unsupported positiveness. A wholly superfluous book."

— Nation 18:306 Mr 19 '14 150w

"An interesting and helpful work."

+ N Y Times 19:13 Ja 11 '14 70w

POTTER, DAVID (EDWARD BARRON, pseud.).
<sup>1</sup> The streak. il *$1.25 (1c) Lippincott 13-21029

A young southern girl, with all the race prejudice of her people, marries a man from the Philippines, goes with him to Manila, and learns there, to her horror, that he is a man of mixed blood. Richard Nelson, the Princeton student who had captivated Anne's fancy and won her heart, had been a most fascinating lover, but Richard Nelson, the husband, proved to be a man with traits of character less pleasing and admirable. The revelation of his wilful deception in keeping his parentage secret from her is to Anne only the final stage in a process of disillusionment. She has already begun to understand the meaning of true manliness thru her friendship with Major Alan Crittenden, and when Nelson meets his well-deserved fate, there is promise of a better future for her.

"It is to its pictures of Manila's social life that the book owes most of its interest." P. G. Hubert, Jr.

+ — Bookm 38:563 Ja '14 220w

"The author gives perhaps a little too much descriptive information about Manila and too many veiled 'diplomatic' manoeuvres for a novel, but the book cannot be said to drag."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 O 29 '13 210w

"The local color is very good, but the technique is rather poor. Even when we despise, we pity the race whose instincts and undesirable traits are ineradicable. Love, jealousy, intrigue, and loyalty combine to make this an exciting tale."

+ — Lit D 47:954 N 15 '13 120w

"It cannot be said to reach any great heights either in conception of plot or writing of dialogue."

— Sat R 118:87 J1 18 '14 80w

POWELL, E. ALEXANDER. End of the trail. 2 il *$3 (3c) Scribner 14-20566

The end of the trail comes with the Pacific ocean, which put an end to the westward progress of the Aryan race. The journey which the author describes was taken by motor car from the southern to almost the northern limit of the western empire that borders the ocean. The folding map at the end of the volume shows a trail that leads from El Paso, Texas, thru New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia, ending at Prince Rupert. "Most people believe," says the author, "that there is no longer any quarter of this continent that can properly be called the frontier, and that the pioneer is as extinct as the buffalo. To prove that they are wrong I have written this book." But along with the frontier conditions, which do exist, as he proves, are to be found many of the evidences of civilization at its best, and the book offers many interesting contrasts. The illustrations are excellent.

"A book of absorbing interest."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 160w

"There is a wealth of entertainment and information in his pages."

+ — Dial 58:58 F 1 '15 350w

"It is a good book to put into your collection if you are going to the Pacific coast next summer; and indispensable if you propose to extend your journey north of the international boundary."

+ Ind 80:380 D 7 '14 150w

"A book which reclothes our own country with some of the primitive charm, the glow, and fascination which enveloped the new world at the time of its discovery."

+ Lit D 49:1189 D 12 '14 200w

+ Outlook 108:901 D 16 '14 60w

POWELL, E. ALEXANDER. Fighting in Flanders. il *$1 (2c) Scribner 14-22578

The author describes his own experiences in Belgium up to the evacuation of Antwerp. It is a grim picture that he paints, sparing none of the horrors. He makes no indictment of the Germans, but lets facts speak for themselves. Contents: The war correspondents; The city of gloom; The death in the air; Under the German eagle; With the spiked helmets; On the Belgian battle-line; The coming of the British; The fall of Antwerp.

"One of the best 'War correspondence' books yet brought out."

+ Ath 1914,2:586 D 5 250w

"It is not for his entertaining story that we thank Mr. Powell; it is for the ease with which he convicts Germany out of her own deeds for one of the greatest crimes in world history—a crime against mankind as well as a crime against Belgium." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 1200w

N Y Times 19:586 D 27 '14 80w

"Unquestionably one of the most memorable books of first-hand description dealing with the war which have yet appeared. Fascinating book."

+ Spec 113:847 D 12 '14 2650w

POWICKE, FREDERICK MAURICE. Loss of Normandy (1189-1204). *$5 Longmans (Eng ed 13-17617)

"Although the events of the reigns of Richard and John occupy five chapters, the book is not so much a narrative of the separation of Normandy from England, as a series of studies concerning the Angevin empire, viewed as the most advanced and self-sufficient country in Europe during the early years of the thirteenth century, and as thus illustrating in an especial degree the characteristics of a mediæval state. There are here set forth for the first time, at least in English, the geographical basis of the wide-reaching empire of Henry II and his sons, the common elements in its administration, and the nature of the ducal government in Normandy, the empire's origin and centre."—Nation

"What seems in one respect a rather serious omission, not as affecting accuracy but as affecting completeness, and as regards pitfalls for the unwary, is that no account is given of the curia or of its place in the administrative and legislative systems. Scholars who are interested in any phase of English, as well as Norman history during the period, political, constitutional, genealogical, will find instruction and profit in Professor Powicke's book." G. B. Adams

+ — Am Hist R 19:342 Ja '14 2150w

"The slips one notes are trifling, and are mainly in names." J. H. Round

+ — Eng Hist R 28:768 O '13 1150w

"He sees his subject broadly, is abreast of recent investigation, both in France and England, and writes with point and vigor."

+ Nation 97:461 N 13 '13 1150w

"A work of fine and exact scholarship. Its load of learning is worn as lightly as may be, and the style is clear and lucid both in narrative and in exposition."

+ Spec 111:249 Ag 16 '13 470w

PRACTICE of Christianity, by the author of "Pro Christo et ecclesia." *$1.25 Macmillan

"The book is made up of three parts, which are happily named 'The commonwealth of God,' 'The city of destruction,' and 'The pilgrimage of the soul'; and each of these has several chapters for its unfolding. In the first section are discussed such subjects as godliness and tradition, repentance, the regulative virtue, the Christian revelation, and the new earth. . . . Under the curious but suggestive title 'The city of destruction' the author examines the penal system, warfare, thrift, poverty, competition, and material welfare. . . . The last part of the book, dealing with the soul's pilgrimage, discusses our relations to God, to the body, to the family, and to the world."—Ath

"There are books which, by their sustained and inexorable logic, determine our outlook on life; and there are books which, by their fresh and stimulating treatment, urge us to form this outlook for ourselves. Of this second and better class is 'The practice of Christianity.'"

+ Ath 1914,1:513 Ap 11 620w

"The book is written with the same persuasiveness as its predecessors, and its temper, if not all its argument, can be welcomed by thoughtful Christians; its ethics are stronger than its economics or its biblical criticism."

+ — Hibbert J 12:909 J1 '14 210w

"This book is interesting, original, suggestive, and vital, but it sometimes irritates the thoughtful reader by its unproved assumptions."

+ — Outlook 10:294 F 3 '15 60w

PRAEGER, ROBERT LLOYD. Weeds: simple lessons for children. (Cambridge nature study ser.) il *45c Putnam A14-2392

"The titles of the chapters suggest the contents: What weeds are; The life of a plant; On weeds in general; Seeds and their ways; The war against weeds; Some common weeds."—Bot Gaz

Bot Gaz 58:189 Ag '14 50w

"Its hundred pages are well written, well printed, and fairly well illustrated."

+ Nation 99:200 Ag 13 '14 80w

"The book is uncommonly well done, but it is for teachers—especially for teachers with a way with them. For children it is much too difficult; it is not in the right key."

PRAEGER, ROBERT LLOYD—Continued.
+ — Nature 93:451 J1 2 '14 180w

PRATT, AMBROSE. Real South Africa. il $2.50
5 (4c) Bobbs (Eng ed A14-596)

The author, and Australian who has spent some time in the country of which he writes, makes evident in this book the fact that South Africa is a black man's country. "It belongs of natural right to the negroid races. The white man is its over-lord, has been for centuries, but its owner and enduring occupant—no." He writes of The black man; The black menace; The effect of the native on the social and economic conditions of the white population; The Boer; The rulers of the country; Provincial centers; Rhodesia and the Victoria falls; Afrikaner literature and literacy; Municipal enterprise, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 11:26 S '14

"Mr. Pratt might have been more careful about his statistics and his spelling."

— + Ath 1913,2:86 J1 26 330w

"Something more than the usual travel book."

H: C. Shelby

+ Boston Transcript p5 Ag 2 '13 230w

Boston Transcript p1 My 20 '14 820w

"Subject to [some] reservations Mr. Pratt has written a book of great value, one that should be read with careful attention by all who are interested in the problems of the British empire, and one, too, that reflects infinite credit on the school of Australian journalism."

+ — Nation 98:636 My 28 '14 1550w

PRATT, HELEN MARSHALL. Westminster
2 abbey; its architecture, history and monuments. 2v il $4.50 (3c) Duffield 14-18586

In this two-volume work the author presents a history of Westminster abbey, a discussion of its architectural features and a selection of biographical matter concerning the great men who are buried there. She has given particular attention to Edward the confessor and his times and to the influences which shaped his determination to build the Norman abbey church, with due consideration to those who later contributed to its history, Henry III, Richard II, and later kings. In the discussion of its architectural aspects she emphasizes the English Gothic influence. The history of Westminster abbey," she says, "is almost an epitome of the nation's history and he who will pursue the history of England with the Abbey for a guide . . . will find himself at the close of his study, master of a large portion of English history."

"Presenting in a way convenient for the use of the general reader and of students of art and of architecture, the results of not only the author's careful and loving research of years, but that of the most famous of modern archaeologists."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 6 '15 320w

+ Ind 89:412 D 14 '14 50w

"In her work great faithfulness and patience in investigation of documents somewhat unused in this connection and of historical treatises are shown, and an amount of reading that would easily qualify for a chair in the history of England. And the result is so lit up with anecdote, allusion, and incident that the effect is pleasing and enticing."

+ Lit D 49:1190 D 12 '14 260w

N Y Times 20:42 F 7 '15 90w

"Perhaps Westminster abbey is the most interesting building in the world. It is fortunate that it has been so worthily and amply described."

+ Outlook 109:347 F 10 '15 350w

PRATT, LUCY. Ezekiel expands. il $1.25 (3c)
2 Houghton 11-3249

Some of these "Ezekiel" stories will be familiar to readers of the "Atlantic monthly" and the "Outlook." For the benefit of those who have not met him, it may be explained that Ezekiel is a little colored boy in a school for negro children in the South, with a wonderful sense of loyalty and quite amazing story-telling powers. The stories are: The little hopping frog; A leader of his people; The gentleman with the green tie; The beast of the deepest woods; The unacquainted one; Outside; The heirs of fate; The little number ones; The color line; Ezekiel refuses. The illustrations are by E. W. Kemble.

+ A L A Bkl 10:327 Ap '14

"Ezekiel is as true to the characteristics of his race as one small boy may be, and it is a hard heart indeed that can resist the unconscious appeal which he makes for a greater understanding of the impulses and emotions of the colored people."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 11 '14 220w

"There are valuable lessons here for a reading public which needs to have its sympathy aroused for a struggling race."

+ Nation 88:575 My 14 '14 230w

"The collection of stories about Ezekiel and his doings is deliciously funny, and is told with much skill, for it brings in nothing ex-taneous or irrelevant in the way of description or comment."

+ N Y Times 19:77 F 15 '14 200w

"The little book is both amusing and touching."

+ Outlook 106:603 Mr 14 '14 40w

PRAY, LEON LUTHER. Taxidermy. (Outing
4 handbooks) il 70c (4c) Outing pub 13-22268

This book is designed, not for professional taxidermists or for the student who expects to follow the profession, but for "the sportsman-amateur who desires personally to preserve trophies and specimens taken on days spent afield with gun or rod." There are chapters on: Tools and materials; Preparing and mounting a bird; Skinning, preparing, and mounting a small mammal; Preparing and mounting game fishes and small reptiles; Preparing and mounting a Virginia deer head; Preparing and mounting a coyote.

+ — Nation 99:228 Ag 20 '14 80w

PRESCOTT, SAMUEL CATE, and WINSLOW, 5 CHARLES EDWARD AMORY. Elements of water bacteriology with special reference to sanitary water analysis. 3d ed il $1.75
Wiley 13-18491

"This third edition has been entirely rewritten and very much enlarged. The authors state that the revision has been made necessary by the newer ideas on the effect of temperature upon the viability of bacteria in water, the new methods of isolation of specific pathogenic organisms, and the recent recommendations of the Committee on standard methods of water analysis of the American public health association."—Science

A L A Bkl 10:337 Ap '14

"The new edition gives evidence of careful revision to cover the developments of the last five years."

+ Engin N 70:1270 D 18 '13 100w

"It is without question the most useful work on the subject, and thoroughly represents present American practice." G: C. Whipple

+ Engin Rec 68:532 N 8 '13 150w

Nature 92:197 O 16 '13 100w

"The best known book on the subject in America, and it may also be added that it is the best book." G: C. Whipple

+ Science n s 38:856 D 12 '13 400w

PRÉVOST, MARCEL. Guardian angels. il
6 $1.25 (1½c) Macaulay 14-3900

The author disapproves strongly of the French practice of employing foreign governesses for the instruction of young girls. In this story he presents three young women, one English, one German, one Italian, who in various ways bring havoc into the homes to which they are admitted. The fourth member of a quartet of governances is a French girl whose morals are corrupted by association with the other three.

"In translation, at least, the book is thoroughly disagreeable and only moderately impressive. It is too much like a mere story to be a good tract, and too much like a tract to be an effective story."

— Nation 98:332 Mr 26 '14 300w

"'Guardian angels' is elegance and irony—and only for those youths who are dedicated to sex hygiene and eugenic lore."

— N Y Times 19:83 F 22 '14 650w

"Powerfully written novel."

+ R of Rs 49:627 My '14 70w

PRICE, HESTER, pseud. (MRS. JOHN DAWSON FOLLETT). Table decorations and delicacies. il *$2 (11c) Winston 14-10593

A complete handbook for the hostess. Part one, devoted to table decorations throughout the year, contains forty-eight illustrations of charmingly appointed tables for as many distinctive luncheons and dinners, with accompanying text describing the scheme, the decorations and menu. Part two, "Delicacies," includes an equal number of illustrations of tasteful dishes with instructions as to the exact working out of details.

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 120w

PRICE, JULIUS MENDES. My Bohemian days in Paris. il *$2.50 (4c) McKay

The author entered Gérôme's studio in Paris as a student in the eighties and in the book he offers a record of the lighter side of student life during that period. The nature of many of the reminiscences may be inferred from his statement at the end of the preface: "I have not attempted to gloss over or palliate any of my little indiscretions and 'aventures.' They are part and parcel of the life of the student in Paris; to have omitted recounting them would be like Hamlet without the ghost." The illustrations consist of a frontispiece portrait and forty sketches by the author.

"The glimpses of the Parisian underworld for the most part make unpleasant reading, but we find one or two good stories among the numerous trivial anecdotes."

— + Ath 1913,2:657 D 6 80w

"The volume has an individuality of its own, for no pair of eyes see exactly the same, and Mr. Price's eyes are unusually observing." H. C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 10 '14 200w

"Altogether the book is an attractive one."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 23 '15 160w
Sat R 116:720 D 6 '13 100w

PRICE, M. P., ed. Diplomatic history of the war. *$2.25 Scribner

"In a preliminary chapter the author runs lightly over the relations of the European powers, one with the other, during the last twenty years, in order to fix in the mind of the reader the state of affairs at the time the great crisis developed. Then follows an account of the course of negotiations, day by day, for the two weeks before the outbreak of hostilities. . . . From the material presented, the reader is able to see what was passing through the minds of the diplomats, and what efforts they made for peace; how daily they became more and more frightened and stamped by fear and distrust of each other, or by anxiety for their own personal prestige; and finally how the military party in each country, in the end, won its way to the saddle."—Boston Transcript

"The mass of material presented includes treaties, diplomatic exchanges, parliamentary speeches, translations of declarations by statesmen and leaders in the different countries, some of which have not appeared in any of the official publications, making altogether the most complete collection of records published to date."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 30 '15 480w

"For its lucidity, orderliness, and objectivity Mr. Price's book deserves all praise. It should find a place in the library of every scholar-publisher."

+ Nation 100:175 F 11 '15 400w

"The author's anti-patriotic bias has led him into misrepresentations which are so glaring that we are tempted to call them either stupid or dishonest."

— Spec 113:sup697 N 21 '14 230w

PRINCE, MORTON. The unconscious. *$2 (1½c) Macmillan 14-4590

"This work is designed to be an introduction to abnormal psychology. The problems considered, however, belong equally to normal psychology in that they are problems of psychophysiological functions and mechanisms." (Preface) The contents is made up of selected lectures from courses in abnormal psychology and of papers published in the "Journal of abnormal psychology," elaborated somewhat for the purposes of this book. The titles of the chapters are: Theory of memory as a process; Conservation of forgotten experiences (two chapters); Conservation a residuum of experiences; Neurograms; Subconscious processes; Subconscious intelligence; The unconscious; The organization of unconscious complexes; The meaning of ideas as determined by settings; Meaning, settings, and the fringe of consciousness; Settings of ideas as subconscious processes in obsessions; Two types of phobia; The physiological manifestations of emotion; Instincts, sentiments and conflicts; General phenomena resulting from emotional conflicts.

A L A Bk1 10:405 Je '14

"To those to whom these problems form a serious study, Dr. Prince's volume may be recommended as indispensable."

+ Dial 57:20 Jl 1 '11 450w

"While Dr. Prince's conception is broad, it is not deep enough; it does not take into complete consideration the profoundest wishes and desires of human personality. There is too much stress laid upon the unconscious as a distinctly neural process and not sufficient upon its psychic character,—too much upon the individual as a clear-cut entity, and too little upon the development of the individual, and the formation of adult characters from infantile mental processes." I. H. Coriat

+ J Philos 11:697 D 3 '14 570w

"The book is a contribution to the subject considered that is valuable alike to the physician and to the psychologist. The book is so admirable in many ways that it is a thankless task to dwell upon its shortcomings; but it is impossible to overlook them if for no other reason than that the author is so important a leader."

+ Nation 98:369 Ap 2 '14 1850w

"His book furnishes probably the best introduction which has been written to the study of the most vital part of the newer psychology."

+ No Am 19:788 My '14 1500w

"It is, to be sure, not nearly so interesting a book as his 'The dissociation of a personality.' But it is far more important, far more significant, to the average, workaday man than is that fascinating volume."

+ Outlook 107:819 Ag 1 '14 370w

R of Rs 50:118 Jl '14 350w

"In his effort at clarity, Dr. Prince reiterates and expounds almost to weariness, but this repetition is all devoted to essentials. To dwell on his book, annotate it, and depart from it for further reading, would be a liberal education to any serious-minded person, and the student would find himself amazed at the wealth of general relationships and richness of insight into his own personal nature, which would flow from the task." J. Collier

+ Survey 32:637 S 26 '14 1500w

PRIOR, EDWARD SCHRÖDER, and GARDNER, ARTHUR. Account of mediæval figure-sculpture in England. il *$20 Putnam 13-1943

"On the lowest ground this is an enchanting

PRIOR, E. S., and GARDNER, A.—Continued. picture-book, with its 855 photographs—many of them of masterpieces of sculpture—illustrating the often unnoticed wealth of Gothic art in this country. . . . The account falls into three books: the first, general in character, treats the materials and subjects of mediaeval sculpture and of the sculptor himself; the second, architectural figure-sculpture, period by period and style by style, from pre-conquest times to the fall of the monasteries; and the third, the sepulchral effigy from the beginning of the twelfth century to the middle of the seventeenth."—Ath

"A work on mediaeval figure-sculpture which will surely mark an epoch in the history of English art. We have read the book with so much interest in its subject that we almost failed to perceive a certain dryness of style that facile and more sensitive writers would have avoided. This is the work of men with a thorough knowledge and love of their subject, and it is incumbent on every lover of English Gothic art to familiarize himself with it."

+ — Ath 1912,2:630 N 23 1350w

"Exhaustive volume."

+ Boston Transcript p23 J1 1 '14 700w

"The joint authors of a book that, even without its deeply interesting text, must be a delight to all lovers of the noble art of decorative figure-sculpture, on account of the vast number and the beauty of its illustrations, go to the very root of the matter under discussion."

+ Int Studio 48:348 F '13 330w

"Their book becomes immediately a standard source of reference, and will hardly in our time be superseded."

+ Nation 99:357 S 17 '14 1400w

"Important work." W. R. Lethaby

+ Sat R 114:795 D 28 '12 1350w

PROCTER, HENRY RICHARDSON. Making of leather. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature.) II *40c (1c) Putnam 14-13242

The author has prepared a sketch of "a very ancient and important industry." A brief historical note is followed by chapters on Hides and skins, The structure of the skin, and The chemistry of the skin. Then beginning with soaking, unhairing, and other preliminary processes, the author follows the course of leather making up to the finishing of the product. There is a final chapter on The use and care of leather. The book is illustrated and there is a brief bibliography and a good index.

PROPERTY, its duties and rights: essays by * various writers; with introd. by Bishop of Oxford. *$1.50 Macmillan 14-8549

"The volume contains seven essays on historical, philosophical, and religious conceptions of property written by English university men, five of whom are professors or lecturers at Oxford. It is designed to create some background for a constructive ideal or principle of property among those who revolt from the accepted idea and use of private property in present-day organization. . . . The subjects treated are: The historical evolution of property, the philosophical theory, the principle of private property, the Biblical and early Christian idea of property, the theory of property in mediaeval theology, property and the reformation, property and personality."—Ann Am Acad

"While the book is popular and wide in its appeal, one feels the scientific spirit in it everywhere, but one also feels that the limitations of space are such that most of the reasoning and of the scholarship upon which conclusions rest is necessarily omitted or merely suggested." R: T. Ely

+ — Am Econ R 4:611 S '14 1450w

Ann Am Acad 54:325 J1 '14 160w

Ath 1913,2:sup397 O 11 100w

"We welcome the spirit in which Dr. Bartlett and the Bishop of Oxford have collaborated in issuing some literature of a popular kind about the duties and rights of property, and we are glad that the prelate did not follow many others and start the discussion before putting pertinent questions to himself. In fact, the introduction is eminently to the point, and has our whole-hearted commendation, if it is not quite what we expect from a spiritual teacher."

+ — Ath 1914,1:157 Ja 31 1300w

"Canon Scott Holland's concluding essay is a little vague; principally for the reason that he appears to be in favor of a socialistic solution to our present difficulties, but has hardly the courage to say so straight out. The Bishop of Oxford has written a most stimulating introduction, and the remaining essays of a more strictly philosophical or historical nature are suggestive, especially that of Mr. Hobhouse." W. E. Campbell

+ — Cath World 99:453 J1 '14 3300w

"This collection of essays is better in achievement than in the aim of its proposer." T. Whitaker

+ — Int J Ethics 24:470 J1 '14 1000w

"The writers are too socialistic in theory to be individualists, and too convinced of the excellence of individualism in practice to be socialists here and now."

+ — Sat R 117:442 Ap 4 '14 970w

"It may be seen that the book is full of useful history, though weighted unequally in one direction."

+ — Spec 113:sup693 N 21 '14 1100w

PROTHEROE, ERNEST. Railways of the world. * il *$2.50 Dutton A14-1487

"His study of the railways of the world is in two parts. In the first, devoted to British railways, are discussed the evolution of the 'Iron horse,' from its inception by Sir Isaac Newton in 1680, to the locomotives of the present day; the construction of the lines; the running of trains; passenger and goods traffic; the personnel of the railways; and the working of the various lines that traverse England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The second part studies the railways of the continents of Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America, Australia and New Zealand, and, in the concluding chapter that electric locomotion which makes possible 'an enormous speed quite eclipsing all record steam performances.' The book is thoroughly up to date, none of the statistics quoted being older than the end of the decade 1901-1910."—Boston Transcript

"Mr. Protheroe's book will appeal to very many others than those interested in the science of engineering. His method is admirable, clear and precise as to the arrangement of the mass of data the book contains, and vivified by his enthusiasm, and his desire to present his subject in the most agreeable as well as comprehensive manner."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 15 '14 300w

"The author has made no pretense of writing an essentially scientific work, but the abundance of material, aided by a multitude of interesting illustrations and an excellent index, gives the book considerable value as a work of reference."

+ J Pol Econ 22:1028 D '14 170w

"A trifle top-heavy with British information."

+ — Nation 99:285 S 3 '14 80w

"The information is sound, the illustrations good, and the general appearance excellent." N. J. L.

+ Nature 93:501 J1 16 '14 650w

"Entertaining and comprehensive book."

+ Spec 112:sup1068 Je 27 '14 70w

PUGH, EDWIN WILLIAM. Punch and Judy. * *$1.35 (1c) Bobbs A14-1505

Characters and events in Soho, London's literary and artistic Bohemia, furnish much of the material out of which Mr. Pugh has fashioned his tale. "The principal heroine is an artist's model, a virtuous Tribby of Soho; very lovely, very clever, very unconventional, her 'crooked eyebrows,' like the 'crooked smile' of Sir James Barrie's Grizel, rather too much insisted upon. Like Tribby, she runs away from the lover whose career she fears she will blight, but is found by a noble-minded rival, and is persuaded to reconsider her action. The author shows acute perception when he describes the effect upon her and upon her lover of transplanting her from her own milieu to his, and in seeing that the first requisite of happiness in marriage lies in observance of the law of 'like unto like.' The book is rich in discernment and in wisdom." (N Y Times)

"Mr. Pugh offers some shrewd criticism of present conditions in politics as well as journalism."

+ Ath 1913,1:404 Ap 12 80w

"Pleasant and, on the whole, optimistic little volume," Norman Bryce

+ Bookm 39:684 Ag '14 320w

"A well written romance."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 22 '14 200w

"With all its pathos and its tender sympathy, the book is everywhere penetrated with the saving salt of humor. Written with the leisurely charm characteristic of the best modern English novels, it deserves and will repay leisurely reading not only because it is a well-told story of unusual originality but because it is made vital with its 'veined humanity.'"

+ N Y Times 19:259 Je 7 '14 630w

PULVER, MARY BRECHT. Spring lady. il
10 *$1.25 (2½c) Bobbs 14-15561

A New York society woman grows suddenly tired of her empty, meaningless existence and runs away from a luxurious home and a generous husband to hide herself in a village in the Catskills. She lives close to nature thru the slowly awakening spring and is ready, after a variety of new and stimulating experiences, to rejoin her husband and start life again on a better and more sane footing. The author has been unusually successful in delineating her village characters and in arousing a deep interest on the part of the reader in a number of lightly sketched village tragedies and comedies.

"It is a pleasant, earnest little story, told with, now and then, much beauty of narrative."

+ N Y Times 19:389 S 20 '14 350w

PURDUM, CHARLES BENJAMIN. Garden city; a study in the development of a modern town. il *$3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-1913)

"This comprehensive account of the Garden city of Letchworth, which was begun ten years ago, deals with its growth and the ideas which caused its creation. The significance of the place and vital questions relating to its activities are discussed, and the book is well illustrated by photographs and plans." (Ath) "An idea of the development of the city can be gathered from the following: in 1904 it had thirty-six new houses valued at $60,000, containing 400 people; in 1912 its new buildings totaled 1,761, valued at $2,500,000, housing a population of 8,000." (N Y Times)

Ath 1913,2:698 D 13 50w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:636 Ap '14 40w

"The description is sufficiently detailed and practical to serve as a guide to any enterprising increasing community."

+ Ind 78:174 Ap 27 '14 50w

"It is a book which every person with progressive ideas and to whom modern developments in social and business life make appeals will find of real interest."

+ Lit D 48:1122 My 9 '14 210w

"Mr. Purdum's book is a veritable mine of information for those interested in the development of the town. It is written with a nice balance between statistics and idealistic paragraphs. One criticism is bound to arise in the reader's mind, viz.: Has Garden city no drawbacks? According to Mr. Purdum, it has not!"

+ N Y Times 19:189 Ap 12 '14 550w

Spec' 111:876 N 22 '13 120w

PURDUM, KATHERINE FRANCES. Folk of Purry farm. *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-8474

"It is not so much a novel as a loose collection of semi-detached short stories, over which old Michael Heffernan, in quest of a bride, presides like a choric emblem." (Ath) "The dramatic personae are all simple folk most of them poor; the entire action passes within a radius of a few miles from a country village; and only on one occasion and at second hand, do we catch so much as a glimpse of the 'quality.'" (Spec)

A L A Bkl 11:123 N '14

"Whatever its origins, Miss Purdon's book is delightful. If Miss Purdon's figures do not stand out brilliantly and vigorously from her pages, their delicately humorous language almost compensates for it."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup465 Mr 28 370w

+ Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 350w

+ Nation 99:435 O S '14 460w

N Y Times 19:370 S 6 '14 550w

"She has caught the imagination of Ireland, with all its pathos and bathos, as in a net."

+ Sat R 117:407 Mr 28 '14 150w

"Miss Purdon is much more than a collector or coiner of picturesque and humorous phrases. She has a keen eye for character, a genuine gift of description, and a vein of pure and unaffected sentiment."

+ Spec 112:443 Mr 14 '14 1800w

PUTNAM, EDMUND WHITMAN (EDWARD W. PRICE, pseud.). Essence of astronomy. il
*$1 Putnam 14-8589

"This book aims at explaining, in non-technical language, the 'things everyone should know' about the sun, moon, planets, and stars." (Spec) "It is a compilation, excellent in the main, not of original research publications, but of authoritative astronomical works, and illustrated by superior half-tones of photographs of the heavenly bodies taken with the principal instruments of the Lick and Yerkes observatories." (Nation)

"The omission of an index detracts greatly from the book's value as a manual for handy reference. The language is mainly untechnical, and the little volume will find a suitable niche along with greater works, its brevity and compactness helping towards its acceptance by beginners in sky lore."

+ Nation 99:111 Jl 23 '14 300w

N Y Times 19:375 S 6 '14 70w

"The book is well made mechanically, well printed, with clear and beautiful illustrations, but otherwise it is one of dozens of similar crude compilations." C. L. Poor

+ Science n s 41:248 F 12 '15 150w

"The author is far from being a Proctor or a Ball, and deals too much in figures to be very readable. But he seems to know his subject."

+ Spec 113:26 Jl 4 '14 40w

PUTNAM, GEORGE HAVEN. Memories of my youth, 1844-1865. il *$2 Putnam 14-7900

"A sequel to the more serious memoir of the writer's father, George Palmer Putnam. There is nothing in it that is of any particular value as historical material, but the volume, with its kindly, picturesque glimpses into the past, its easy pleasant style and its intimate connection with one of the great periods of United States history, will recommend itself to the reader who demands something a little more substantial than the last new novel or volume of short stories." (Ind) "Of chief interest in the book, and constituting the greater part of its contents, are pages describing the writer's boyhood home in and about New York, his student life at Göttingen and elsewhere in Europe, and his volunteer service in the great war that cut short his academic course in foreign lands." (Dial)

"Interesting recollections."

+ A L A Bkl 10:405 Je '14

"Dr. Putnam writes concisely, clearly, often with humour, and nearly always with accuracy."

+ Ath 1914,2:169 Ag 8 2000w

+ Boston Transcript p21 Jl 15 '14 600w

"Mr. Putnam has the gift of pleasing narration and suggestive comment, and also a store of

PUTNAM, GEORGE HAVEN—Continued. varied recollections well worth the narrating."
P. F. Bicknell

- + Dial 56:378 My 1 '14 1650w
- + Educ R 49:102 Ja '15 120w
- + Ind 78:495 Je 15 '14 90w
- + Lit D 49:357 Ag 29 '14 600w

"An absorbing narrative of lasting value."
+ Nation 98:699 Je 11 '14 400w

"These pages are written through with a pretty humor, so quiet that it is a little space before we are sensible of it."

- + N Y Times 19:183 Ap 19 '14 1100w

"Altogether it is a thoroughly readable and worth-while record of an active life."

- + Outlook 107:424 Je 20 '14 110w
- + R of Rs 50:117 Jl '14 210w

"The quiet of memory—its happy stillness and ease—is upon every page of this volume. He writes about himself simply and naturally. Above all, we are sure he writes about himself accurately. We trust these memories of Mr. Putnam as confidently as we would trust a formal and judicial record. Their unaffected candour and justice make of them more than a random notebook of reminiscences."

- + Sat R 117:709 My 30 '14 650w
- Spec 113:366 S 12 '14 1000w

"Aside from Mr. Putnam's charm as a personal historian, it is a particularly interesting record for several distinct reasons."

- + Springfield Republican p5 Je 4 '14 700w

PUTNAM, NINA WILCOX. Orthodoxy. *60c
" (1½c) Kennerley 14-22137

The scene of this one-act play is a small church on a Sunday morning with the congregation assembling. The characters carry out the conventional acts of a church service, but the dialog which we are permitted to read is made up of their thoughts.

"A delicious trifle of a play."

- + R of Rs 51:120 Ja '15 80w

PYCRAFT, WILLIAM PLAYNE. Courtship of animals. il *$1.75 (2c) Holt A14-995

It has been too commonly supposed, the author says, that facts such as those presented in this book have an interest only for those who have a liking for natural history. "This is a most unfortunate mistake. For such facts have a vitally important bearing on the very problems of social well-being which now loom so largely among us. Reform is in the air. Its protagonists are busy amongst us with schemes for our regeneration, among which 'sex problems' are made to occupy a very conspicuous place. But no good can come of their cogitation so long as they fail to realize the springs of behavior in this regard. The facts herein set down will, it is hoped, help much towards this end." (Preface) In his discussion of secondary sex characteristics Mr. Pycraft departs from the Darwinian theory of sexual selection.

"The work abounds in curious facts of natural history and makes many observations that are valuable and original, particularly on the subject of secondary sexual characters."

- + A L A Bkl 10:405 Je '14

"The book abounds in curious facts of natural history, but the suggested explanations are sometimes unsatisfying. Some of Mr. Pycraft's conclusions—based upon his studies of the animal world—are a little old-fashioned. A word of praise is deserved by the numerous illustrations, which are a great help to the understanding of the text."

- + — Ath 1914,1:17 Ja 3 1000w

"The book is not a collection of sentimental and amusing stories; it is a thorough piece of serious scientific work of real value."

- + Boston Transcript p9 Ap 25 '14 600w
- Dial 56:509 Je 16 '14 320w

"The book is rich in scientific information as well as picturesque romance and is entirely clear to the layman."

- + Ind 77:420 Mr 23 '14 50w
- + Lit D 48:123 My 9 '14 160w
- + — Nation 99:24 Jl 2 '14 750w
- + — Nature 94:141 O 8 '14 280w

"A great many interesting facts are brought out by Mr. Pycraft."

- + N Y Times 19:301 Jl 5 '14 300w
- + Outlook 106:774 Ap 4 '14 130w

Reviewed by K. S. Lashley

- + Psychol Bull 11:275 Ag 15 '14 100w

"We have noticed two or three erroneous statements, which are probably attributable to the book being written in a hurry. The subject is not a new one; though Mr. Pycraft has managed to say much on even the stalest parts of it that is fresh, stimulating, and original. His book is rather too long; that is to say, it would have been improved by careful revision and compression."

- + — Spec 112:sup159 Ja 31 '14 350w

"Interesting book."

- + Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 500w

PYLE, WILLIAM HENRY. Examination of school children; a manual of directions and norms. il *50c Macmillan 14-163

"The originality of this textbook lies in the fact that it applies certain well-known psychologic tests in a manner wholly different from that in which they were originally intended to be given. These tests have heretofore been used by trained experimenters, as painless surgical instruments for uncovering the very vitals of the individual mind. . . . This author so arranges ten such experiments that they can all be given in an hour or so, by any teacher, to any class en masse."—Chaut

"To those who believe in the possibility of helping individuals through rapid mass tests this book will be interesting; to those who hold the opposite belief it will be perhaps even more interesting as indicating a tendency at present noticeable in the educational world." E. H. Shaw

- + Chaut 72:663 Ap 25 '14 450w
- Educ R 47:101 Je '14 40w

"It is to be feared that ordinary teachers have not the necessary knowledge and experience to make trustworthy tests, but the hints given should prove of value to psychological and medical experts."

- + Nature 92:711 F 26 '14 90w

Q

QUAIFE, MILO MILTON. Chicago and the Old Northwest, 1673-1835. il *$4 (4½c) Univ. of Chicago press 13-22481

The sub-title describes this work as "a study of the evolution of the northwestern frontier with a history of Fort Dearborn." It is to the history of Fort Dearborn that the author has given most space. "To most readers the story of the old portage, of Chicago before Chicago was, will add a new element to their conception of the capital of the Great Lakes. The history of the fort, the personalities of the early settlers, the detailed notes of the Indian trade and missions and wars, and the bibliography of 160 items will give pleasure of a certain sort to readers of a certain sort, those whose hobby is the running down of dates and data." (N Y Sun)

- + Am Econ R 4:633 S '14 320w

"In controversial matters, he shows independence of judgment, and sureness in his use of documentary material needful to give authority to his views."

- + Am Hist R 19:647 Ap '14 1150w

"An unusually interesting and valuable work."

- + A L A Bkl 10:233 F '14

"A book which is of more than ordinary interest throughout, while in his study of Fort Dearborn and the Chicago massacre he has made a substantial and illuminating contribution to the history of the West." W: V. Pooley

+ Dial 56:341 Ap 16 '14 1850w

+ Eng Hist R 29:624 Jl '14 110w

"We have no hesitation in cordially commending Professor Quaife's scholarly volume."

+ Ind 76:266 N 6 '13 550w

"In this monograph we have one of the most careful studies in western history that have ever been made. It may be that Mr. Quaife's sketch is not entirely free from bias."

+ Nation 97:620 D 25 '13 1350w

"Prof. Quaife's book is more useful as a museum of antiquities than as a literary history."

+ N Y Sun p10 N 1 '13 1950w

"A careful and thorough study of original sources, written in a style so clear, simple and full of the color of the life that it makes very enjoyable reading. The book is a comprehensive study of the evolution of the northwestern frontier, with Chicago as its pivotal point."

+ N Y Times 18:634 N 16 '13 150w

QUIGLEY, MARGERY CLOSEY, and others,
comps. Index to kindergarten songs, including singing games and folk songs. $1.50
A. L. A. 15-2854

The 63 collections indexed by the librarian of the Divoll branch of the St. Louis public library include: (1) Books recommended by the kindergarten normal department of the St. Louis board of education; (2) Books of songs and games given in the A. L. A. catalog, its supplement and the A. L. A. booklist; (3) All other kindergarten-song books in the St. Louis public library. "The index is patterned on Granger so far as the form of entry is concerned. The entries, all in one alphabet, are by composer, first line, title and author of the words when he is at all important. There are no subject headings in the main index, although a separate list of songs for special days will be found at the end." (Preface)

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS
("Q" pseud.). East of the sun and west of the moon. Il by Kay Nielsen. *$5 Doran

A volume of old Norse folk tales with accompanying illustrations. "In these quaint old-wives' fables we find the familiar characters of the fairy-books—such as the Princess; the Prince disguised as a Beast . . . and, in so many of the legends, the simple youngest son (akin to the 'blameless fool' of Wagner's 'Parsifal') who alone by his innocence and guilelessness can succeed in the task of rescuing the lovely princesses laid captive by the spells of some wicked enchanter." (Int Studio)

"There is a brilliant and successful strangeness about these pictures. Finely and carefully drawn, keeping subordinate to the main scheme its passion for detail and massing its main effects simply, they both arrest the delighted attention at once and disclose new beauties of study." Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 49:430 D '14 160w

"These stories are delightful in themselves and interesting for the evidence they afford of the relationship which exists between the fairy tales of all lands."

+ Int Studio 54:236 Ja '15 330w

"Mr. Nielsen is a newcomer among illustrators, and he deserves a royal welcome, for his lines are beautiful, and he has a powerful imagination, a sense of the supernatural which makes him particularly successful as the interpreter of the curious old Norse folk tales which fill this sumptuous volume."

+ N Y Times 19:579 D 20 '14 100w

"Quite apart from the excellence of the pictures, the stories deserve great popularity, and Mr. Nielsen has interpreted their spirit with true sympathy."

+ Spec 113:853 D 12 '14 70w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS
("Q" pseud.). Hocken and Hunken. *$1.35
Appleton A13-1339

In this book "Q" tells another story of Cornwall. "Its locale is the seaport town with the classic name on the southwest coast of England already made famous in many previous stories, and its plot involves the numerous exploits of Cap'n Caius Hocken and Cap'n Tobias Hunken after they leave the sea and retire to the cultivation of garden plots in Cornish Troy." (Boston Transcript)

A L A Bk1 10:153 D '13

"Along with much that is pleasing the reader is also likely to come on periods of dullness and the story seems rather dragged out."

+ Ath 1912,2:553 N 9 60w

"A genial and jolly book. A book which will add even one more to the laurels of Professor Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 1 '13 250w

+ Sat R 114:808 D 28 '12 350w

"Altogether 'Q' has once more confirmed his claim to high rank in the limited class of novelists who fortify our optimism with hilarity."

+ Spec 110:67 Ja 11 '13 1050w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS
("Q" pseud.). In powder and crinoline: old fairy tales retold. Il *$5 Doran

A book of fairy stories selected to fit pictures by Kay Nielsen. "The book contains seven stories, and, as implied by the title-page, none of them are new, but they are probably most of them unfamiliar to the majority of English readers. 'Minon-Minette,' 'Felicia,' and 'The twelve dancing princesses' are from the French sources; 'Rosanie' is derived from Andrew Lang's 'Red fairy book.' These four represent the age of 'Powder.' Some difficulty was found in getting suitable stories appropriate to 'Crinoline' days, but the three stories which do service in that connection make delightful reading." (Int Studio)

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 18 100w

"Repulsive countenances, cadaverous complexions, and distorted bodies mark the princes and princesses of the artist's imagination, and he appears to think ugliness humorous. Presumably his model is Aubrey Beardsley, but his anatomical convention is rather that of 'Phiz.'"

+ Ath 1913,2:727 D 20 100w

+ Int Studio 51:247 Ja '14 200w

"To have the delicious wit of Quiller-Couch imparted to a book of fairy-tales is surely something beyond the ordinary, and then to have it illuminated and glorified by the highly imaginative paintings of Kay Nielsen makes a volume that is a delight. If the tales are intended to be read by, or to, children, under ten or twelve, the style is a little over their heads. It is better suited to the middle or later teens. And the further we go through the book, the more the style matures, till in the latter part it would be liked most by the grown-ups."

+ Lit D 48:636 Mr 21 '14 200w

"An exquisite book."

+ N Y Sun p27 N 29 '13 70w

"This volume also may appeal not only to children but even more to grown people."

+ Outlook 105:764 D 6 '13 40w

"It is a little difficult to know for whom this beautiful volume is intended. The stories incline one to the belief that the book is meant for children. On the other hand, it cannot honestly be said that the illustrations—clever, original, and beautiful as they are—are suitable for children, as Mr. Nielsen is apparently deeply under the influence of the style of the late Aubrey Beardsley."

+ Sat R 116:sup10 N 29 '13 150w

"We are not sure that children will appreciate all his subtleties, but some of the stories ought to please them highly. The pictures are wholly unsuitable for unsophisticated children."

+ Spec 111:sup691 N 1 '13 130w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS
 ("Q" pseud.). News from the duchy. *$1.35
 (12c) Badger, R: G. A14-1070

Stories and sketches of Cornwall and the outlying islands. "In one of his best stories—'Our Lady of Gwithian'—[the author] has gone back to the ancient days when there were yet saints in the land, and there is another, called 'Pilot Matthey's Christmas,' in which he touches the heart of a preaching fisherman of our own time. The two together bring us near to an understanding of at least one phase of the Cornish mind, and when, in 'The three necklaces,' he passes to the Bretons across the sea, he shows how in matters of the soul we may count the two Keltic peoples as one in all essentials." (Sat R)

"Will be enjoyed by readers who like 'The delectable duchy.'"

+ A L A Bkl 10:373 My '14

"His stories of the duchy are, indeed, a sort of glorified reporting—reports written by a poet and philosopher and story-teller who has also the newspaper man's capacity for seeing things clearly and describing them simply."

+ N Y Times 19:76 F 15 '14 400w

"In these studies he has gone deeper than is usual with the writer of short tales. He has dispensed with a great deal of possible embroidery, but by his simplicity he makes us believe in his depth."

+ Sat R 116:497 O 18 '13 320w

+ Spec 111:1127 D 27 '13 150w

QUILLER-COUCH, SIR ARTHUR THOMAS
 ("Q" pseud.). Poetry. (Fellowship bks.) *50c
 Dutton 14-14507

"Sir Quiller-Couch deliberately sets aside questions of technique and definition, and, beginning with Plato, warns the reader that he is going to be philosophic. He shows that poetry is 'an instrument for reconciling man's inward harmony with the great outer harmony of the universe,' and, on the whole, the best instrument in this imperfect world. The claims of music are discussed in an interesting passage, and several well-chosen quotations show what poetry is, or should be."—Ath

"The professor is witty, and occasionally, perhaps, led off his subject by his wit; but his little book is a success."

+ Ath 1914,1:521 Ap 11 140w

"The essay deserves a considerable vogue; though it demands concentration, it is eminently readable; though it does not accomplish much, so far as it goes, it is sound; though it is not a rhapsody on Poesie, it is written in a style that reflects an ardent illumination."

+ Nation 100:121 Ja 28 '15 160w

R of Rs 51:248 F '15 30w

QUINN, MARY JOSEPHINE. Planning and furnishing the home. il *$1 (2c) Harper 14-16955

A book of "practical and economical suggestions for the homemaker," issued as one of the volumes in "Harper's home economics" series. Contents: Building the house; Which house shall it be? Renting a house or an apartment; What we need for the house; Rugs and curtains; Chairs and tables of the past; Old English furniture; Old French furniture; American colonial furniture; Furniture of to-day; What to do for the halls; The family living-room; The dining-room; The bedrooms; The kitchen and laundry; Handy man's chapter; Some useful books; Index.

"An unusually suggestive book for the average homemaker."

+ A L A Bkl 11:110 N '14 +

"Many practical and economical suggestions for the homemaker will be found in it."

+ N Y Times 19:419 O 4 '14 50w

QUINT, WILDER DWIGHT (DWIGHT TILTON). Story of Dartmouth. il *$2 (6½c) Little 14-18555

From the time of its picturesque beginning as an Indian charity school, the author traces the history of Dartmouth college, devoting chapters to: The evolution; Getting under way; The reign of the crown prince; The great "case"; Dana and Tyler; Nathan Lord and his "young gentlemen"; The "Dartmouth roll of honor"; The first city president; The man of iron; The great awakening; "The old traditions"; "Dartmouth out-o'-doors"; What men do at Dartmouth; Why men go to Dartmouth.

"Both the educator and the general reader will enjoy Mr. Quint's book."

+ Dial 57:460 D 1 '14 250w

"A lively interest is sustained to the story's end."

+ Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 150w

"Of special interest are the chapters on the famous case in which Daniel Webster saved the college from the encroachments of the legislature."

+ Pittsburgh 20:15 Ja '15 30w

QUIRK, LESLIE W. Freshman eight. il *$1.20
 (2c) Little 13-20204

Baseball and rowing are the two activities that figure most prominently in this story of college life. The burning of the gymnasium deprives the freshman crew of its opportunity for winter practice, but with laudable pluck and perseverance, they keep in training, and come out victorious in the races at Poughkeepsie in the spring. The story is one of the "Wellworth college series." In "Wellworth" the author has described the University of Wisconsin.

"Is unusually jolly, though too full of adventures and episodes."

+ A L A Bkl 10:164 D '13 +

"A strong, exciting story." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:316 N '13 80w

N Y Times 18:520 O 5 '13 80w

"The ideas are of the best and the book is of the right type to put in the hands of boys of 12 to 16."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 16 '13 80w

R

RACKHAM, ARTHUR. Arthur Rackham's book of pictures; with an introd. by Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch. *$4 Century (Eng ed A14-2388)

In "Q's" brief introduction there is some comment on the pictures that make up this book, but the pictures themselves are unaccompanied by text. There are forty-four of them, reproduced in color, and representing for the most part the quaint fantasies of a fairy world.

"It is a book to prize and to share with children of all ages."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 250w

"A mine of delight to the imaginative. Windy skies, delicate coloring and an effect of line that is almost Japanese characterize most of the work."

+ Ind 77:420 Mr 23 '14 50w

"This book is quite characteristic of the versatility and humour of its gifted maker. It contains between forty and fifty of his most elaborate tinted drawings, and nothing that is not ingenious and skilful to an extraordinary degree. Many of the plates show the most admirable side of the artist's work."

+ Int Studio 51:333 F 14 80w

"Mr. Rackham's draughtsmanship is exquisite and his color schemes charming and restful."

+ Outlook 107:134 My 16 '14 320w

+ R of Rs 49:760 Je '14 300w

"Mr. Rackham very curiously wields a brush that draws, clear and clean, figures that vaguely lurk in our minds when we read of elves and little people."

+ Sat R 116:sup4 N 29 '13 220w

+ Spec 111:1090 D 20 '13 130w

RADZIWILL, CATHERINE, princess. Memories of forty years. il $3.75 Funk 15-3637

"The reminiscences of the Princess are in three groups and cover her experiences in the courts of England, Germany and Russia during the reigns of Queen Victoria, Edward VII and George V, William I, Frederick III and William II, Alexander III and Nicholas II. Kings, queens, scholars, statesmen, courtiers and soldiers, they pass in a stately procession before us at the call of the memory of this Russian princess, who recreates for a little the spell of their personalities and influence. . . . Although the author writes with admirable impartiality of the characteristics of the three leading European courts, it is to England that her memories cling with 'particular affection.' . . . The chapters relating to the court life of Germany have an added interest unforeseen when they were written."—Boston Transcript

"The Berlin chapters are the best in a rather superficial book."

+ — Ath 1914,2:667 D 26 750w

"Critical yet not uncharitable, witty yet not malicious, amusing yet not flippant, the statements of the Princess, especially her estimates of many of the historical characters who for years wove the fabric of European politics and diplomacy, are of vivid originality and illumination."

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 20 '15 780w

"It is upon the chapters which concern her native land that the brilliant author appears at her best."

+ Lit D 50:106 Ja 16 '15 720w

RAE, WALTER S. C. Public library administration. il *75c Dutton A14-175

This little book by the chief librarian of the Fulham libraries, London, "contains useful information and suggestions with regard to the administration of library departments, arrangement of rooms, and organization of lectures."—Ath

+ Ath 1913,2:593 N 22 20w

"Mr. Rae speaks with authority and deserves a respectful hearing."

+ Dial 56:192 Mr 1 '14 130w

"It is brief and graphic and full of suggestions to librarians and those who use libraries, which includes practically every one."

+ R of Rs 49:381 Mr '14 50w

RAFFETY, WILLIAM EDWARD. Brothering the boy. *75c (1½c) Am. Bapt. 14-943

The author describes this book as "an appeal for person, not proxy, in social service." He divides his book into four parts as follows: Being a brother to the boy; Brothering the normal boy; Brothering that other boy; Social helpers in brothering the boy. At the close he gives a list of one hundred best books for workers with boys.

N Y Times 19:148 Mr 29 '14 70w

RAINE, WILLIAM MACLEOD. Pirate of Panama: a tale of the fight for buried treasure. il $1.25 (2c) Dillingham 14-9410

Mr. Raine's story begins with a scrap of paper that is thrown from a second-story window. John Sedgwick picks it up. It is half a map. At about this point in the story the author pauses to say that those who find interest only in the conventional had better read no further. "For this true tale," he says, "runs red with the primal emotions of the old buccaneers. It is a story of love and hate, of heroism and cowardice, of treasure-trove and piracy on the high seas, of gaping wounds and foul murder." Needless to say, all who love thrills will read further, and they will be rewarded. It is a good yarn.

"The character-drawing is fair, except in the case of the hero: he is a most disappointing person."

— + Ath 1914,2:178 Ag 8 100w

"The tale offers little that is new as to plot, but it is well written and those who enjoy sanguinary pirate stories will find it quite worth reading, for the author has a stirring style and his characters are unusually lifelike."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 150w

"The book will interest those who care for a spirited narrative of 'something doing' on every page, and who are not over-particular as to whether the something could possibly be doing or not."

+ — N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 220w

RAISIN, JACOB SALMON. Haskalah movement in Russia. il $1.50 Jewish pub. 14-3322

"Dr. Raisin describes the rise and development of what may be called the Russo-Jewish renaissance of the past fifty years. This period, which in its entirety is practically unexplored, seems to furnish a paradox in the history of culture. That under the pressure of social and political ostracism, so active and varied an intellectual movement could thrive, is at any rate a rare occurrence. . . . The rapid growth of Russian literature doubtless had its influence on the Jew's intellectual life, despite his hapless position in the empire. His exceptional treatment, however, instead of crippling his energies and producing torpor, aroused more keenly his mental powers."—Nation

"The chapters which summarize the lives and chief tendencies of leading writers and scholars are told with sober discrimination and scholarly thoroughness. There is a refreshing absence of a certain exaggeration of which authors in this field are often guilty. The volume is of interest to the thoughtful few who realize the importance of Russia in art, music, science, and literature; to the author's own special community it is an authoritative and attractive book."

+ Nation 98:404 Ap 9 '14 220w

"All his statements are substantiated by references which are rather unfortunately placed at the end of the volume, and in every way he makes clear, even to the outside public, the wide extent of this intellectual awakening of the Russian Jews during the last half century."

+ — N Y Times 19:194 Ap 19 '14 500w

RAMBOUSEK, JOSEF. Industrial poisoning from fumes, gases and poisons of manufacturing processes; tr. and ed. by T. M. Legge. il $3.50 Longmans 13-35892

The author has made a study of those industries from which poisoning in various forms results as an occupational disease. He "gives an outline of the dangerous processes, then describes symptoms and treatment, and finally gives an account of the preventive measures hitherto adopted or suggested." (Nature)

Reviewed by C. R. Henderson

+ Am J Soc 19:693 Mr 14 55w

+ A L A Bkl 10:148 D '13

"The field is so wide that exhaustive discussion within the limits of one small volume is impracticable; but the large number of references supplied will help to remedy this defect."

+ — Nature 92:628 F 5 '14 150w

RAMSAY, SIR JAMES HENRY RAMSAY, 10th bart. Genesis of Lancaster; or, The three reigns of Edward II, Edward III, and Richard II, 1307-1399. (Scholar's history of England, v. 5-6) 2v il $10.50 Oxford A14-755

"Sir James Ramsay, an English baronet possessed of leisure and ample means, began his work nearly fifty years ago. . . . The first volume of the series, covering the last years of the Middle Ages, was issued in 1892. Four others, carrying the narrative from the foundations of England to the end of the reign of Edward I, were added in the decade from 1898 to 1908. Now the last gap has been filled, the period from 1307 to 1399, and the work stands complete, a history of England from the earliest times to the accession of Henry VII, in eight volumes, a monument of industry and critical skill, sober, accurate, and giving full references. . . . While intending to give the reader a picture of the time, and so following to a considerable degree the path that has been made plain by previous investigators. Sir James has laid particular stress upon two phases of his subject, military affairs and domestic finance."—Nation

RAMSAY, JAMES H:—Continued.

"The reluctant judgment of the reviewer is that the work falls of being a completely trustworthy and 'up-to-date' history of the period in question." J. W. Thompson

— + Am Hist R 19:871 J1 '14 1650w

A L A Bkl 11:23 S '14

"The volumes under notice display a flowing style, great clearness of presentation, a special gift for describing military operations, and in the main a judicial frame of mind, though Sir James sometimes loses patience with such pitiful failures as Edward II and Richard II. We are inclined to think that his method is too strictly chronological. The index is by no means satisfactory."

+ — — Ath 1913,2:584 N 22 1850w

"Sir James has made a notable contribution to the vast literature of English history." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ja 10 '14 500w

Reviewed by G. Baskerville

+ — Eng Hist R 30:130 Ja '15 1750w

"The scholar's history of England' is a thoroughly dry history. The author, with a kind of grim humor, has filled his pages and appendices with facts and figures that can be deemed interesting only by those who find pleasure in statistics. Nevertheless, the conclusions drawn are always valuable. The chief defect as a whole of the work lies, not so much in its annalistic or strictly chronological form of treatment, as in the entire omission of all reference to the life and activities of the people at large. The history is mainly concerned with the interests of the feudal and governing class."

+ — Nation 99:74 J1 16 '14 700w

"The book, as a whole, gains importance from its attention to topics generally neglected by historical writers. On the financial side, he has placed our knowledge on a new basis by his investigations into revenue and expenditure and by his treatment of the history of the customs."

+ Spec 112:365 F 21 '14 1450w

RANDALL, FREDERICK JOHN. Somebody's Luggage. $1.25 Lane 14-10524

"Circumstances give a favorable opportunity to a certain remarkable gentleman, Mr. Hopper by name, to impersonate the heir to an estate, whom he believes to have been drowned on the way from Calais to Dover. Mr. Hopper finds the luggage, a yellow tin trunk, belonging to the Fairfax heir, upon presentation of his claims is accepted by the lawyers, takes possession of the estate, and for a time fortune favors him. He is just growing accustomed to his new-found prosperity . . . when his sang froid is perturbed by the appearance of another claimant. After an unceremonious departure, extraordinary adventures befall Mr. Hopper—all caused by the yellow tin trunk."—Boston Transcript

"Mr. Randall has never displayed such amazing ingenuity in the construction of tangled situations, nor greater skill in getting everything straight at the last." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 31 '14 220w

"The characters are realistic, and though perhaps rather numerous, the clear and natural delineation of them saves the plot from any confusion which might otherwise arise. The narrative moves at a lively pace, and at the end the reader is quite satisfied that the chief actors of the comedy merit their lot."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 18 '14 400w

"An amusing farce."

+ Nation 98:501 Ap 30 '14 270w

"The tale is ingenious and the incidents many and varied, but the author's style lacks the lightness, the spirit, and humor absolutely necessary to carry a story of this kind."

— N Y Times 19:109 Mr 8 '14 400w

RANDOLPH, JOSEPH FITZ. Law of faith: with a lawyer's notes on the written law. $1.50 (2c) Putnam 14-18754

"The Bible is to the author the book of faith. . . . It gives no definitions or explanations, but it speaks, of faith by name more than a thousand times." He has studied both the Old and New Testaments carefully, and has collected and classified all the texts relating to faith, adding interpretative comments.

N Y Times 20:22 Ja 17 '15 70w

RANGER, HENRY WARD. Art-talks with Ranger, by Ralcy Husted Bell. $1.50 (4c) Putnam 14-18439

Mr. Bell reports a series of fifteen talks with Henry Ward Ranger, the American landscapist. Mr. Ranger's memory goes back over many years and while his talks are largely taken up with the theory of painting they are enlivened here and there by bits of biography and reminiscences of painters in America and abroad. Some of the subjects directly taken up in the talks are: Schools, Technics, The wisdom of copying as a means of education, New factors in the development of landscape painting, Personal methods, Restoration of pictures, Tonality, Past and present.

+ A L A Bkl 11:161 D '14

"The style of the book is free and easy, and all the technicalities are easily comprehended by the layman."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 270w

"The artist's experience, deductions, reminiscences, as well as his methods, are touched upon in a modest, generous and sane spirit, and the book is a worthy and enlightening contribution to the literature of the technic of painting."

+ Ind 80:259 N 23 '14 100w

+ N Y Times 19:500 N 15 '14 450w

"For those who paint the book contains a great deal which has a very definite bearing upon their craft; and for all interested in art and in art matters, there is much delightful reminiscence as well as many keen observations and conclusions which makes Mr. Ranger's talks worth while."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:304 D '14 400w

RAPEER, LOUIS WIN. School health administration. $2.15 Teachers college 13-25100

"Dr. Rapeer's object as stated in the preface is: 'To find what American cities are doing for national health and vitality through the agency of the public schools, and how this work may be made more efficient and socially useful in solving our individual and national health problems.' The book contains three parts. First, a compilation of facts and figures showing the national and school health losses from preventable illnesses and deaths; second, the results of an investigation of educational hygiene in twenty-five cities; third, a tentative standard plan for the administration of medical inspection."—Survey

A L A Bkl 11:101 N '14

"A thorough and complete treatment of the entire subject. We commend the book to those charged with the oversight of schools and school systems."

+ Educ R 47:531 My '14 80w

Reviewed by J. F. Bobbitt

School R 23:63 Ja '15 330w

"The book reveals a broad grasp of the larger significance of educational hygiene, and points clearly to the many dangers of misplaced emphasis in this new but promising field of child welfare. It should be studied especially by school superintendents, school doctors, school nurses and social welfare workers. The appearance of the book is somewhat marred by a rather unattractive make-up; and the author's style, while vigorous and interesting, is not always as direct and clear as one would like." L. M. Terman

+ — Science n s 39:725 My 15 '14 200w

"Dr. Rapeer's book should be in the hands of all who are in any way responsible for or interested in school health administration. The material is admirably arranged in tables and forms for easy reference, and the proposed plan of organization will prove exceedingly useful as a guide in organizing new systems of health administration or re-organizing present systems which are inefficient." G. L. Meylan

+ Survey 31:681 F 28 '14 420w

RAPSON, EDWARD JAMES. Ancient India, from the earliest times to the first century. A. D. il *75c Putnam 14-30913

"A story of twelve centuries is told by Prof. E. J. Rapson of the University of Cambridge, covering the period from 1200 B. C. down to the beginning of the Christian era. The story includes the history of the several Indian nations, so far as it has been recovered from the ancient literatures and monuments, and a sketch of the chief social and religious systems of the period." (N Y Times) "Professor Rapson's little book is an admirable forerunner of the great history of India which his university is preparing." (Spec)

"A brief, well proportioned, elementary history."

+ A L A Bkl 11:166 D '14

"Modest and comprehensive handbook."

+ Ath 1914.2:194 Ag 15 1100w

Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 400w

"The defects indicated can be easily remedied in a second edition, which is likely to be called for." V. A. S.

+ — Eng Hist R 30:174 Ja '15 180w.

+ — Nation 99:719 D 17 '14 320w

"So far as it goes the book forms an admirable introduction to work a knowledge of which has too long been confined to the specialist."

+ Nature 93:664 Ag 27 '14 250w

N Y Times 19:355 Ag 23 '14 100w

"To pack a thousand years of history into a hundred pages is highly skilled labour; to do this without taking a disproportionate survey of great men and great movements is something of an achievement. Professor Rapson's slight sketch of the India which modern scholarship has unveiled for us will be welcomed by those to whom the larger histories are closed."

+ Sat R 118:88 Jl 18 '14 220w

"Professor Rapson records facts, so far as they have been gleaned, and indulges in little comment. There are wide gaps in the tale. But never before has the story of the acquisitions of scientific scholarship in Indian history been told so fully, so clearly, or so convincingly. The book is indispensable to all who take an interest in ancient or modern India."

+ Spec 113:270 Ag 22 '14 420w

RASHDALL, REV. HASTINGS. Is conscience an emotion? (3 lectures on recent ethical theories. *$1 (3½c) Houghton 14-19173

The author attacks the problem of the nature of our moral judgments. "What is the real character and meaning of the mental act which takes place in our minds when we call this act right, and that one wrong?" To one school of thinkers a moral judgment is an act of reason; to another school, basing its conclusions on anthropological data concerning the origin of a moral sense, it is an act of emotion or feeling. The author belongs to the first school. The three lectures, delivered originally at Leland Stanford junior university as the "West lectures on immortality, human conduct, and human destiny," which comprise the contents are: Moral reason or moral sense? The morality of savages; Value or satisfaction?

+ — Nation 100:58 Ja 14 '15 270w

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 680w

RATH, EMIL. Æsthetic dancing. il *$1.50 Barnes 14-11265

"The author is the director of the Normal college of the North American gymnastic union at Indianapolis, and he has written this book, as he explains in his 'Foreword,' for the purpose of showing the teachers of girls' and women's classes how 'the fascinating and graceful rhythmic movements of classic and æsthetic dancing' may be made to play an important part in their physical education. Arm and foot positions and movements for each dance are carefully described, while a unique arrangement in two columns of the other parts of the body gives the teacher ample guidance for every movement. The chief poses are illustrated by a series of pictures from photographs. Musical accompaniments are added at the end of the book."—N Y Times

"This book should also prove valuable as a primer to interpretative dancing."

+ Nation 99:438 O 8 '14 50w

"A very practical guide to an artistic phase of physical education."

+ N Y Times 19:293 Je 28 '14 170w

RAUSCHENBUSCH, WALTER. Dare we be Christians? il *35c (5c) Pilgrim press 14-20391

Professor Rauschenbusch's essay starts out as a sermon with a text from the thirteenth chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels—" But we need, he says, a modern supplement to Paul's praise of love, written in the face of present-day problems, and he flings his challenge to present-day Christianity—Have we the courage to apply the law of love to our industrial situations, to business, to international relations?

Ind 81:102 Ja 18 '15 60w

RAWLINSON, HUGH GEORGE. Indian historical studies. il *$1.50 Longmans 14-30089

This book "contains a number of papers in part already published in India. The Western student of Oriental history will find in this book excellent though brief sketches of the lives of Buddha and Asoka, a good account of the Greek dynasties of the Punjab, an entertaining résumé of the travels of Chinese pilgrims in India, and a judicious estimate of the political importance of Akbar and Shivaji. The adventures of Robert Knox, an involuntary pilgrim in Ceylon, and those of the lively Ibn Batuta are related in an interesting manner. . . . The final chapter is devoted to the question of foreign influences in the civilization of ancient India."—Nation

"The worst that can be said is that it contributes nothing new." Franklin Edgerton

+ — Am Hist R 19:579 Ap '14 680w

"Readably written and calculated to awaken an interest in the subject."

+ A L A Bkl 10:234 F '14

+ Ath 1913.2:416 O 18 220w

"Ten sketches of important individuals or epochs in India are set forth in such scholarly style in this volume as to inspire a desire for more knowledge of the ancient empire, for it is obvious that there are still many interesting problems to be solved."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 4 '13 230w

"The professor's essays are the fruit of wide reading, nearly, if not quite, up to date, and are disfigured by few mistakes." V. A. S.

+ — Eng Hist R 29:411 Ap '14 350w

+ — Nation 98:164 F 12 '14 200w

+ N Y Times 18:722 D 7 '13 50w

"An extremely interesting and readable book."

+ — Spec 111:sup797 N 15 '13 550w

RAWNSLEY, REV. HARDWICKE DRUMMOND. Chapters at the English lakes. il *$1.75 Macmillan

Into his "chapters" the author "has gathered a miscellany of history, archæology, scenic description and literary biography. He writes of

RAWNSLEY, HARDWICKE D.—Continued.
 "The life and death of John Wordsworth," of 'Coleridge and the English lakes,' of 'Charles Dickens in Cumberland,' and of the novelist's associations with the Lake district, and he supplements this personalia with sketches of the past and present of Cumberland and Westmoreland." (Boston Transcript)

- + — Ath 1913,2:199 Ag 30 700w
- + Boston Transcript p8 O 25 '13 700w
- Dial 56:115 F 1 '14 120w
- + Nation 97:594 D 18 '13 180w

"The book, like all its predecessors, is eminently readable."

- + Outlook 106:97 Ja 10 '14 180w

"Canon Rawnsley does not revise his books sufficiently. A little more care and a little less sentiment would improve them."

- + — Sat R 116:335 S 13 '13 330w
- "Most agreeable little volume."
- + Spec 111:352 S 6 '13 260w

RAWNSLEY, WILLINGHAM FRANKLIN.
 "Highways and byways in Lincolnshire." *$2 Macmillan 14-20745

"'Highways and byways in Lincolnshire' is more faithful to the first part of its title than many another of the numerous 'highways and byways' books, for its author, Mr. Willingham Franklin Rawnsley, has travelled by motor-car the highways that he describes, and he confines himself closely enough to the broader and the narrower avenues which his book-title suggests."

... Old Boston, with its famous church and church-tower, the 'Boston stump,' figures rather prominently and very interestingly in the book. ... A folding map of the country, showing the main roads in red, and apparently all the towns, with the network of railways, follows the index, which is also a thorough piece of work." —Dial

"It is really astonishing how much varied information our author has contrived to pack within the limits of a handy volume."

- + Ath 1914,2:446 O 31 1200w
- + Boston Transcript p9 N 21 '14 850w

"History and tradition and anecdote combine with topographical description to make a variously attractive book."

- + Dial 57:506 D 16 '14 170w

"More a glorified guidebook than a description of personal experiences or emotions in Lincolnshire."

- + Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 60w
- Nation 100:120 Ja 28 '15 170w

"The book will appeal not only to Lincolnshire people, but also to all who love the English countryside."

- + Nature 94:226 O 29 '14 200w

- + — Outlook 108:789 D 2 '14 80w

"This whole book is full of good things charmingly expressed." Bishop Frodsham

- + Sat R 118:514 N 14 '14 1500w

"Maintains the high standard of the excellent series to which it belongs."

- + Spec 113:599 O 31 '14 40w

RAYMOND, WALTER. Wayfaring soul. *$1 Dutton A14-1785

"This wayfaring soul resembles Bunyan's pilgrim, in terms of modern life and with the complexities of present thought. His progress is through memories of the past, driven from the City of destruction by a spiritual hunger which leads him to the Interpreter's house, to the guidance of Wisdom, and the distant sight of the Delectable mountains. ... He catches a glimpse of the realm where Truth has set all things free. He understands that he must go back into the world and live what he had learned; that there is nothing but Life; that the Spirit of Life is Love; and that Love is God."—Boston Transcript

"There is abundance of smoothly pretty writing in the book, but it lacks logical force and mental inspiration."

- + Ath 1913,2:494 N 1 270w

Boston Transcript p22 Mr 4 '14 150w

"An attempt not without charm, to combine the methods of Maeterlinck and Bunyan in a mystical account of the soul's search after truth."

- + Spec 111:1031 D 13 '13 22w

READ, OPIE PERCIVAL. New Mr. Howerson. *$1.35 Reilly & B. 14-12629

"A life of failure and consequent poverty has made George Howerson an anarchist. At a meeting of the Executive committee of the 'Agents of Justice,' he is chosen, or, rather, is self-chosen, to kill a certain multi-millionaire, Calvin Whateley. Just as he is about to accomplish his mission the fascinating little grandson of the intended victim appears upon the scene, and then and there begins the regeneration of Howerson."—N Y Times

"Mr. Read is an incorrigible rhetorician, a man who can no more keep the flowers out of his speech than the humor out of his eye. There is a kindly wit on many a page. And there is ineptitude also. Neither is a substitute for the facts, the solid human stuff which is the essential material of novels." Lucian Cary

- + Dial 57:204 S 16 '14 250w

"The story is a long one, and sooth to say, is somewhat dull, the dullness accentuated by a stilted style."

- N Y Times 19:462 O 25 '14 170w

REAL Kaiser: an illuminating study. *$1 (2c) 12 Dodd 14-21607

An anonymous work that attempts to give a true picture of the many-sided Kaiser. A publisher's note says: "The author of the following pages has had exceptional opportunities to study his subject at close quarters, and he presents here an attempt at an all-round view of the Kaiser which shall enable an ordinary reader at least to understand the man who could have declared for peace and ensured it, and who in a fateful hour decreed war and is now struggling through seas of blood towards a goal that, day by day, is receding from him." There are chapters on the Kaiser as an orator, as a business man, The Kaiser at home, The vain Kaiser, The kultur-Kaiser, etc.

Ath 1914,2:496 N 14 280w

"It cannot be denied that here and there he has a shrewd interpretation and employs telling phrases. Inaccuracies are numerous, notably in the chapter in which an attempt is made to describe the structure and operation of the imperial governmental system; and the book is further marred by an occasional unnecessary expression of anti-German sentiment." F: A. Ogg

- + Dial 58:44 Ja 16 '15 130w
- + — Ind 81:99 Ja 18 '15 100w

N Y Times 19:574 D 20 '14 180w

Outlook 108:818 D 9 '14 60w

RE-BARTLETT, LUCY. Transition. *$1.35 Longmans

"The theme of the story is an intertwining of two subjects, the manner in which 'cosmic force' is finding new expression in the feminist movement, which she miscalls 'militancy,' and a subtle manifestation of spiritual understanding and power which she believes to be manifesting itself with such increasing frequency as to make those who possess it an important section of society. These two things, the feminist movement and the mystic sense that she thinks is becoming a part of our general biological development, are constantly intertwined in the course of the story, in the ideas, actions, and talk of its characters and in the working out of its romance."—N Y Times

"It is a book full of stimulating food for thought, which people of varying shades of opinion will find free from offence."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup870 Je 20 280w

"It is in the intellectual element of the story that we find the real interest, and it is those clear and enthusiastic expositions of ideas that we remember best."

+ Boston Transcript 1:8 Je 27 '14 480w

"This is a novel or series of dialogues strung together on a slight thread of plot."

— Nation 99:165 Ag 6 '14 400w

"This is Mrs. Re-Bartlett's first venture in the field of fiction. One cannot conscientiously advise her to make another. For the good qualities her story shows are the qualities that belong to the form of literary expression which she is accustomed to use, while of the qualities that belong to good fiction its measure is very slight. Nevertheless, the book will doubtless be read with enjoyment by those who take pleasure in the discussion of ideas. For its appeal is almost wholly to the intellect and scarcely at all to the emotions or the imagination."

— + N Y Times 19:290 Je 28 '14 480w

REED, EARL H. Etching: a practical treatise. il *$2.50 (7c) Putnam 14-20515

This book, designed primarily for the student, presents a very workmanlike description of the tools, materials, and processes used in etching. The author has aimed "to adapt and condense methodically the most reliable information and data now available on the subject of etching, as a means of line expression, for the benefit of the practical worker. To this have been added observations and other matter suggested by twenty-five years of practical experience." (introduction) A few examples of Mr. Reed's beautiful work are reproduced, together with more practical illustrations showing etching tools, etc.

"This is the first and last book of a man who knows his subject. It is a complete guide and manual, the result of twenty-five years of practical experience."

+ Int Studio 54:sup65 D '14 120w

+ — Nation 100:151 F 4 '15 300w

REED, HERBERT (RIGHT WING). Football for public and player. il *$1.50 (2c) Stokes 13-20804

With the design of making this popular sport of greater meaning to the spectator the author of this small volume explains not only the elements but also the strategy of the game, showing how the latter is determined by the coaching system in favor at a college, the plan for the season as modified by new rules and available material and the many factors in the individual's playing that may add to the science of the game. The work of the coach, captain, trainer and scout are discussed and interesting chapters are devoted to the development of team work, the genius of the game and its ethics. Photographs of actual games as well as diagrams of plays make up the illustrations.

"Comprehensive, written with enthusiasm, and shows wide knowledge and excellent judgment."

+ A L A Bkl 10:192 Ja '14

+ Ind 77:35 Ja 5 '14 50w

"After reading the book the ordinary spectator will find his enjoyment of the game increased many fold; the lover of the game will be impressed with the enthusiasm, wide knowledge, and excellent judgment of the author. In physical makeup the book may be criticised for its too frequent typographical errors and for its lack of an index."

+ — Nation 97:436 N 6 '13 1000w

"If the general public can learn anything about sports from books this one will teach it something about football."

+ N Y Sun p6 N 1 '13 120w

"Altogether, 'Right Wing' has done a needed thing excellently, and all who have an interest in the great American game, from coach to humblest spectator, owe him gratitude."

+ N Y Times 18:641 N 23 '13 820w

+ N Y Times 18:698 N 30 '13 80w

REED, JOHN. Insurgent Mexico. *$1.50 (2c) 10 Appleton 14-15375

A book of vivid impressionistic pictures of Mexico and its people at war and at play. Perhaps the most memorable of the pictures, certainly the most interesting, is that of Villa who says, "I am a fighter not a statesman. I am not educated enough to be president. . . . It would be bad for Mexico if an uneducated man were to be president," and whose ambition it is to spend his life on a little farm raising cattle and corn, and helping to make Mexico a "happy place." Mr. Reed was in Mexico as a newspaper correspondent, but his eyes were open to things other than battles and military movements. The contents of his book is made up of six parts: Desert war; Francisco Villa; Jimenez and points west; A people in arms; Carranza—an impression; Mexican nights.

"A readable, spontaneous sort of narrative that seems like a moving picture. His sentences are short and forceful. In the effort to show clearly the coarseness of these men with whom he was so closely associated he tells some unnecessarily indelicate anecdotes." F. L. W.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 670w

"A dramatic and colorful but essentially truthful picture."

+ Cleveland 6:89 O '14 60w

+ Dial 57:303 O 16 '14 420w

"The frenzied manner of the whole composition aims not so much at depicting sober truths as at shocking the reader by disgusting naturalism in describing an irregular assortment of horrors such as were to be found nowhere else in the world at the time Mr. Reed wrote."

— Nation 100:82 Ja 21 '15 650w

"After reading this book the reader is likely to find himself in possession of an entirely new idea of the inhabitants of the turbulent republic."

+ N Y Times 19:373 S 6 '14 1150w

"One feels at times that it is a rapid fire of snap-shots, but it bears the marks of truthful delineation and it is remarkably vivid."

+ Outlook 108:440 O 21 '14 230w

"It is a graphic and colorful picture of Mexico in rebellion that John Reed has presented."

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 24 '14 320w

REED, MYRTLE (MRS. JAMES SIDNEY McCULLOUGH). Woman's career: the excitements and the obstacles. *75c (11c) Putnam 14-19375

An essay found among the unpublished papers of the late Myrtle Reed. She writes with appreciative humor of the conditions under which women work, and finds that the many women of ability and ambition who fail in achievement do so because of lack of opportunity for concentration. "We women fritter ourselves away upon a thousand unnecessary things. We waste our creative energies and our inspired moments upon pursuits so ephemeral that they are forgotten to-morrow. . . . Let us simplify, let us concentrate, let us rid our lives of the unessential in one grand social rummage sale. Let us do one thing at a time and do it well, according to our talents, rather than do many things badly."

Boston Transcript p22 Ja 13 '15 200w

REED, VERNER ZEVOLA. Soul of Paris, and other essays. il *$2.50 Lane 13-25428

"Different places have different moods or temperaments, distinguishable to the visitor of fine sensibilities. Mr. Verner Z. Reed even affirms that they have souls, and his book seeks to portray this spiritual quality characteristic of the French capital and of other places with which he is familiar. Following the chapter that gives its name to the book are eight others, on various haunts of men and solitudes of nature, all treated with a reverent love and a deep sympathy that show the author to be no mere holiday tourist turning the jottings of his notebook to literary account. Mr.

REED, VERNER ZEVOLA—Continued.

Ernest Peixotto, whose art needs no appreciative comment from us, illustrates the book with nine beautiful drawings."—Dial

"His essays are charming in their spirit of repose and fulness of life as he sees it."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 f70w

+ Dial 56:115 F 1 '14 130w

"This traveler, unencumbered with self-consciousness, has taken with him on his journeys to unusual places the love of beauty, the sense of the spiritual, the joy in the ultimate good."

+ Lit D 48:1124 My 9 '14 150w

"He records his impressions of islands, deserts, cities and so on in a pleasant and readable manner, though his reflections are not especially profound or novel."

+ N Y Sun p5 D 13 '13 50w

"There seems no doubt that Mr. Reed is a good deal of a poet; one who, after knocking about among men for much of his life, has come to love nature and peace and solitude, mountain, desert and the sea, more than those 'goods and chattels' most men are so eager after. People of like mind will enjoy his book—and if their name be not legion yet they are no inconsiderable number."—Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:118 Mr 15 '14 800w

REEDER, ROBERT PATTERSON. Validity of rate regulations, state and federal. $5. Johns-on 14-3934

"The book is divided into nine chapters, taking up the commerce clause, the distribution of governmental powers among the three departments of government, the due process clauses of the fifth and fourteenth amendments, the just compensation, the impairment of contract equal protection provision, the requirement of clause, preferences to ports, and limitations upon the federal judicial power. . . . The most noteworthy feature of the book is to be found in the two chapters which are devoted to the due process clause of the constitution. . . . A feature of the arrangement of the book which especially commends itself is the statement of the law, separately from the discussion of the principles underlying the law. Those who wish to know the decisions on a given point find them clearly stated; those who desire to delve more deeply into fundamental questions of legal policy will find ample discussion of all important problems."—Ann Am Acad

"One of the most valuable treatises upon the constitutional aspects of government regulation that have been published in this country."—J. T. Young

+ Ann Am Acad 52:258 Mr '14 550w

"The chapters on the due-process clause are the best in the book."—R. L. Hale

+ Poi Sci Q 29:516 S '14 1500w

REELY, MARY KATHARINE, comp. World peace. (Debaters' handbook ser.) *$1 (1c) Wilson, H. W. 14-13690

The broad subject of peace between nations is dealt with in this volume, the arguments covering the three debatable questions of the desirability of entire elimination of war, compulsory arbitration and disarmament. Conforming to the usual plan in this series, the contents is made up of a brief, a bibliography divided into general, affirmative and negative references, and reprints of the best articles by representative advocates of the many possible points of view within the discussion. The appendix contains three tables giving usable figures on the cost of armies and navies, growth of military expenditures (1881-1911) and wars and their cost.

REEVE, ARTHUR BENJAMIN. Dream doctor. 7 il *$1.35 (1½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-7691

A book recording the new adventures of Craig Kennedy, scientific detective. The managing editor of the "Star" gives one of his reporters the assignment of following Kennedy for a month. He is to "take things just as they come, set them down just as they happen," and so bring in an intimate picture of the man and his work.

It is this record of the cases that come to the detective in one month and of his manner of solving them that makes up the present book.

"Professor Craig Kennedy hunts crime and finds the criminal, bringing to bear upon each case an amount of scientific knowledge that frequently confuses the reader and causes him to lose sight of the chain of reasoning by which the detective has reached his goal."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 9 '14 f80w

"If not already sated and not overcritical as to possibilities, the reader will accompany Craig Kennedy in these 'new adventures' with enough pleasurable excitement to make the book the agreeable companion of a few hours of leisure."

+ N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 220w

"As detective stories go this book is nearly unique. It is highly diverting, notwithstanding that Kennedy's methods when understood, tend to monotony. Mr. Reeve writes skillfully and gives his hero every opportunity to display the versatility of his talents."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 11 '14 350w

REEVE, ARTHUR BENJAMIN. Guy Garrick; an adventure with a scientific gunman. 12 il *$1 (1½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-17089

Guy Garrick, a detective who has made a scientific study of crime has been the hero of a number of earlier short stories. In the present novel he is engaged in tracking down a gang of motor bandits. "An expensive car has been stolen from New York, and one of the stool pigeons of the police has been mysteriously murdered with no trace of the bullet or weapon that killed her. The body is found in New Jersey, though the police believe that she must have been murdered in a ladies' pool room, which she was investigating. The police, the city detectives, the automobile detectives and Guy Garrick are all working on the problem, and the unravelling and subsequent glory of Garrick are very exciting."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 28 '14 350w

+ N Y Times 19:475 N 1 '14 300w

REEVES, AMBER. Lady and her husband. 5 il *$1.35 Putnam 14-7728

"The heroine is a woman of the mid-Victorian type, gentle, clinging, shy, and very lovable in her soft, appealing femininity. She has a happy, serene life in her comfortable home nest, adored by her husband and her children, and has never given a thought of the clangors and struggles of the world outside. It is her lovely young daughter . . . who opens the door and beguiles her to step outside. Rosemary . . . decides that her mother needs a new interest in life. So she inspires her to undertake an investigation of the condition of the girl employees in her father's business. The consequences that follow the introduction of this bit of dynamite into the household of Rosemary's mother and father are told by Miss Reeves with keen sensitiveness to the value of the spiritual drama she unfolds."—N Y Times

"Fairly interesting."

+ A L A Bkl 11:123 N '14

"Our pleasure in perusal is mixed with some disappointment because the author is a serious artist, and we feel that she might have done better with her subject, especially as we believe her eminently qualified to write on it."

+ Ath 1914,1:309 F 28 500w

"The author is obviously, not merely a social reformer, but a satirist with an abundant sense of humour."—F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 29:557 J1 '14 400w

"The book is commendably decent and as little morbid as a minute cross-sectioning can be. Artistically, on the other hand, the author has written the worst type of problem novel—a book so absorbed in its discussions, its 'motive,' that the fact of a specific situation to be worked out in specific terms is lost sight of."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 420w

+ Nation 98:756 Je 25 '14 330w

"The first thing to be noted of Miss Reeves's novel is its modernity. A piece of fiction could hardly be more thoroughly up to date in both tone and matter. And the next is the striking truth and vitality of its characterization. Miss Reeves's method is not of the best for the extended psychological analysis that she employs and the long narrative of self-examination and mental argument through which she takes her people are likely to be found wearisome by all people except those readers, never too numerous, who feel genuine interest in character dissection."

+ — N Y Times 19:208 Ap 26 '14 600w

"The novel is well worth reading, as, apart from the interest of the actual story, it is full of entertaining and epigrammatic touches. Just a touch of kindness of heart and generosity would have made the book notably human. As it is, it is only extremely clever—a very different thing."

+ — Spec 112:616 Ap 11 '14 200w

REEVES, EDITH GERTRUDE. Care and education of crippled children in the United States; introd. by Hastings H. Hart. Il $2 (4c) Survey associates 14-18706

The care of crippled children is one of the newer forms of social welfare work. For the benefit of those who are considering the question of organizing such work the author has collected the material presented in this book. She gives concrete information about thirty-seven institutions which are devoted wholly to the care of crippled children, supplying pictures, plans, and tables of statistics, with some additional notice to institutions and societies which devote a part of their efforts to this work.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 2 '15 380w

"Especially useful for those who are considering the organization of work for crippled children."

+ Pittsburgh 20:11 Ja '15 40w

"The book was carefully prepared and gives just the kind of information that a board of directors, planning to build, would like to secure. But it is much more than a directory and guide book. It is a revelation of cheer and hopefulness under most discouraging circumstances."

Alexander Johnson

+ Survey 33:464 Ja 30 '15 200w

REEVES, MAGDALEN STUART (ROBISON)
6 (MRS. W. PEMBER REEVES). Round about a pound a week. $*1 Macmillan (Eng ed A14-1285)

A committee of the Fabian women's group in London has been studying the effect on both mother and child of sufficient nourishment during the periods immediately preceding and following the child's birth. The thirty-five families chosen for the experiment were visited for about three months before the birth of the child and until it was a year old. As part of the investigation the women were asked to keep a budget of expenditures and on these figures and the intimate knowledge gained by frequent visits this book is based. . . . It is a word picture of the hopes with which the households are started, the ambitions which live on in spite of discouragements, the rigid economies, the dull monotony and loneliness which is the share in life of these women. The conclusion is a sober one, that the children in these and thousands of other homes are undernourished because of inadequate income and not because of lack of skill in household management."—Survey

Reviewed by Scott Nearing

Ann Am Acad 55:294 S '14 250w

+ Ath 1914,1:sup182 Ja 31 380w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

Hibbert J 12:446 Ja '14 60w

+ Spec 113:137 J1 25 '14 650w

"The book can be surely recommended to all who are trying in model flats or cooking classes or house visiting to help women meet their problems." M. F. Byington

+ Survey 32:98 Ap 25 '14 600w

REICH, EMIL. Germany's madness (Eng title, Germany's swelled head). $*1 (2c) Dodd 14-18587

This book, written in 1907 as a warning to the British people, was published at that time with the title, "Germany's swelled head." It attracted little attention, however, and is republished now that its lesson has been forced home by actual events. The author sums up the thesis of the book in two statements: "The Germans are afflicted with the severest attack of swelled-headedness known to modern history; and, The British are practically ignorant of this dangerous state of mind in their greatest rivals." To Dr. Reich's chapters an epilogue has been added in comment on the present war.

Ath 1914,2:298 S 26 90w

N Y Times 19:510 N 22 '14 550w

"Though there is in this book a levity of style which is not now in tune with the time, there is also much that is sound and even brilliant."

+ — Sat R 118:326 S 19 '14 180w

REID, JAMES SMITH. Municipalities of the Roman empire. $*3.75 Putnam 13-16817

"In 'The municipalities of the Roman empire' we have the outcome of a course of lectures delivered by Dr. J. S. Reid in the University of London, and before American audiences in Boston and in Columbia university. . . . The plan is to make 'a survey of the Roman empire regarded in one of its most important aspects, that of a vast federation of commonwealths, retaining many characteristics of the old so-called "city-state." We are taken over the whole field, province by province, and shown 'how the Roman rulers influenced the development and decay of the municipal organization in each.' As the result of reading the book we have been duly impressed with the idea which the author intends to leave with his readers—that 'the municipal bricks . . . are not the least important among those out of which the real edifice of Roman imperial history has to be constructed.'"—Ath

"A defect perhaps even more serious than obscure, misleading phraseology is the total absence of references to sources and authorities. If, however, Professor Reid will prepare a new edition in more precise and intelligible language and with full reference to his sources of information, he will do a great service to scholarship and to higher education in the field; otherwise the work will have to be done by someone else." G. W. Dotsford

+ — Am Hist R 19:235 Ja '14 950w

Ath 1913,1:590 My 31 50w

"The book is an important contribution to the history of the Roman empire from a point of view novel to the ordinary student, and at the same time it makes alluring reading, by reason both of the freshness and lucid arrangement of the subject-matter, and of the picturesque style in which the story is told."

+ Ath 1913,2:32 J1 12 1600w

"Upon the whole Dr. Reid has performed his difficult task with great success, and his work is a most welcome contribution to the literature of ancient history." F. B. Marsh

+ Class J 10:88 N '14 750w

Reviewed by Tenney Frank

+ — Class Philol 9:451 O '14 500w

"The chapter on Roman Africa may be singled out as especially instructive and replete with detail, much of which will assuredly be unfamiliar to those into whose hands this book is likely to fall. The same chapter, however, furnishes an instance of an awkwardness of arrangement not easily to be avoided in a work cast in this form." H. S. Jones

+ — Eng Hist R 28:758 O '13 1050w

"One is sorry that material worked over three times for oral delivery should have been allowed to go to press and through the press in such shape as to require two pages of 'addenda and corrigenda.' The wealth of matter which the author has here brought together is really indispensable to any earnest student of Roman history."

REID, JAMES SMITH—Continued.

+ — Nation 99:166 Ag 6 '14 850w

"It is a book for scholars, rather than for the ordinary reader, but it presents in very convenient form the results of modern investigation in a matter unusually complicated."

+ N Y Sun p4 D 27 '13 180w

"As the style of this book is obscure and repellent and as the treatment lacks continuity, it can never become popular. But it has at least the merit of calling attention to the importance of the municipality as an element of the empire." G. W. Botsford

— + Pol Sci Q 29:132 Mr '14 540w

+ Sat R 116:114 Jl 26 '13 1100w

"Valuable and erudite work." C.

+ Spec 111:99 Jl 19 '13 2450w

REID, STUART J. John and Sarah, duke and duchess of Marlborough. il *$4 Scribner (Eng ed 15-26031)

"Mr. Stuart Reid for many years past has been given the full run of the hitherto unpublished letters and documents at Blenheim which bear upon the career of the great Duke and his great Duchess. The result of a study of these documents, he claims, is to show that, while Marlborough was a much more patriotic and much more sincerely religious man than he has been represented by the historians, the Duchess, though a family terragant, was much less of a mad woman than she is portrayed by the satirists. Finally, he pleads that no charge of personal corruption will stand against either the Duke or the Duchess."—Spec

"About the Duchess, we learn a good deal that is altogether fresh, and more that, though already known in substance, has the charm of novelty in detail."

+ — Ath 1914,2:415 O 24 1466w

"The book is in the nature of an 'apologia,' and it is much more candid and vastly better written than most of its kind. Although the book may contain little that is absolutely new, yet it presents, in compact form, certain facts, well attested by contemporary evidence, that go far to set a great national hero right in the eyes of his countrymen, at a time when new national heroes are in the making. It is distinctly worth reading by any one interested in the political history of the times, and in the life and character of the dominant figure in a critical period of the annals of England."

+ Nation 99:693 D 10 '14 520w

"This book is sure to be called a 'whitewashing' work, and so in one sense it is, but in our opinion it is none the worse for that."

+ Spec 113:635 N 7 '11 1750w

REID, WHITELAW. American and English studies. 2v *$4 (2½c) Scribner 13-24804

Two volumes of occasional addresses delivered by Mr. Reid at various places in America and abroad during his long career as journalist, publicist, and diplomat. Those presented in volume one all bear on government and education; volume two contains the studies in biography and history and essays on journalism. Contents: v 1, The rise of the United States; Organization in American life; The danger-point in immigration; The diplomatic point of view; Some international questions; Problems flowing from the Spanish war; Territorial expansion; Our duty in the Philippines; How the United States faces its educational problem; University tendencies in America; Education in England; In an old Ohio town. v 2, Abraham Lincoln; Thomas Jefferson; Edmund Burke; The Scot in America and the Ulster Scot; Talleyrand; Byron; An editor's reflections.

Reviewed by G. H. Haynes

+ Am Hist R 19:907 Jl '14 620w

+ Ath 1914,2:260 S 12 1900w

"The sketches impress us not so much by their varied scope, as by his unimpeachably profound knowledge of each subject. Aside from the value of the sketches themselves, it is a privilege as well as a revelation to come in contact with the gifted mind and the admirable purpose which created them." M. J. V.

+ Boston Transcript p27 D 10 '13 1050w

+ Dial 56:146 F 16 '14 400w

Lit D 48:922 Ap 18 '14 230w

"If 'studies' is a rather large word for articles and addresses, they show, on the other hand, a thoughtfulness and insight that one is not accustomed to find in such collections."

+ — Nation 98:38 Ja 8 '14 570w

+ Outlook 106:425 F 21 '14 380w

"The writings of the late Ambassador Reid covered a wide range of literary and political topics, and display not only excellence of style, but a shrewd knowledge of the world's affairs in more than one domain."

+ R of Rs 49:253 F '14 100w

REISNER, CHRISTIAN FICHTHORNE. Church publicity; the modern way to compel men to come in *$1.50 Meth. bk. 13-26168

"The modern way to compel people to come to church according to Dr. Reisner, is to advertise. He speaks out of his own experience, for he has tried this method, and all who know of his work must admit that he gets people to come to church. He has succeeded so well in filling his own church that he has put his methods in book form, believing that others can fill their churches by practising the same methods. . . . He has written a book having all churches in mind, and each pastor may take what he believes will work in his particular parish."—Boston Transcript

"The book is a valuable discussion of methods of church work. The reader must allow this, although he may find himself vigorously dissenting from some things commended by the author."

+ Boston Transcript p27 D 17 '13 620w

+ Ind 78:495 Je 15 '14 50w

N Y Times 19:404 S 27 '14 220w

RENWICK, GEORGE. Luxembourg; the grand duchy and its people. il *$3 Scribner A14-697

"If one's leisurely travel in Europe does not include this tiny country tucked away in a corner between Belgium, France and Germany, he misses the inspiration to be gained, as the author believes, of a 'land of infinite charms and endless romance.'" (Boston Transcript) "The author has certainly given us a thorough account of the various places of interest, and has put himself to considerable trouble to write what is more than a serviceable guide-book." (Ath)

"The author combines history, description, well-told anecdotes, and practical directions for travelers in a pleasantly written account, plentifully illustrated with good reproductions from photographs."

+ A L A Bkl 10:362 My '14

"In a chapter devoted to the North country we come on the surprising statement that the English belt of the grand duchy is situated there. But this is the only sensational feature in an otherwise very thorough inquiry into the life and country of the Luxembourgers."

+ — Ath 1913,2:750 D 27 190w

"The author has given his wander-fancy freest rein in his travels over the country and to the traveller contemplating a visit his story will serve as a guide-book."

+ Boston Transcript p11 N 25 '13 480w

+ — Nation 99:440 O 8 '14 220w

REYES, RAFAEL. Two Americas; tr. from the Spanish with added notes by Leopold Grathame. il *$2.50 Stokes 14-4604

"It is, in fact, for its summary view of the activities of the various South American republics, their progress in the arts of civilization, their gradual abandonment of the political uncertainties that gave to their preliminary attempts at self-government a disagreeable savor of instability that this book by Gen. Reyes will recommend itself to the student interested in the future of American institutions. Nor are the author's observations confined to his travels in South America. The first three chapters of his book are devoted to an account of what he saw during a sojourn first in Europe and then in the United States."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 10:405 Je '14
+ Cath World 99:539 Jl '14 350w

"Not the least interesting portions of the book deal with General Reyes' early explorations in the Amazonian jungles, where the Roosevelt party has lately been."

+ Ind 78:324 My 25 '14 250w
+ Nation 98:638 My 28 '14 800w

"We could wish that the latter had found room in his pages for a more detailed account of his own country, the Republic of Colombia, than he has seen fit to give, and that he had not omitted Venezuela altogether from his series of descriptions. On the whole the present volume, which has been translated from the Spanish by Leopold Grahame gives a sympathetic and fairly comprehensive bird's-eye view of its subject and forms a welcome addition to the growing literature intended to familiarize the republic of the North with its sisters of the South."

+ — N Y Times 19:107 Mr S '14 1050w
+ — Pol Sci Q 29:550 S '14 230w

"His attitude and entire point of view are sane and reasonable."

+ R of Rs 50:115 Jl '14 300w
Sat R 118:55 Jl 11 '14 60w
Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 100w

REYNOLDS, ELDRID. Whispering dust; with an introd. by F. T. Cooper. *$1.10 (1½c) Stokes 14-1908

"The 'whispering dust' is the dust of Egypt, with its 'warm, sad sort of smell.' Into this dust comes an imaginative woman, 'a curate's orphan and a curate's niece,' whose life had been lived 'among grime and turnip fields,' and filled with small parochial duties. Now, at the age of thirty-three, with the shadow of heart failure hovering over her, she begins to live, ardently, romantically. . . . Filled with her new richness of life; dreaming dreams, and seeing visions, yet always under the shadow, she writes as she journeys a series of letters to an unknown 'You,' whom she supposes to be simply an Idea that came to her in Marseilles in the dim old Church of Notre Dame de la Garde. To this 'You' she reveals her inmost self, her aspirations, her sensitive shrinkings, her philosophy of life; with clever sketches of her traveling companions, and descriptions of the strange, weird land, the fascination of which has entered into her blood."—N Y Times

"The apostrophes to 'You' are tiresome, and the book is full of sentiment and introspection."

— Ath 1913,2:556 N 15 150w

"Many a more pretentious novel has failed to bring to us that 'mystery' which is 'Egypt'—its indescribable color and perfume and strange, weird sounds; its turquoise skies, over which, at times, sail 'English' clouds, above all, its 'all-pervasive, ever-present dust.'"

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 11 '14 250w

"To come upon a book so entirely 'sui generis' is to have an experience rare and delicious. No one who cares to have a few enchanted hours can afford to miss this wistful, pathetic, joyous little book; so shrewd in its estimates of character, so alive to the world of the present and the associations of the past—all crowned and interpreted by Mr. Cooper's very lovely introductory appreciation."

+ N Y Times 19:64 F 8 '14 400w

"The descriptive part makes Egypt real, and the character-drawing is good. The message of the book is clearly that it is better to give than to try to get, especially if one wants to stay young."

+ Outlook 106:424 F 21 '14 250w

"Her sentimental outpourings contain little which can be of interest to the public, and her extravagant use of capital letters tries a reader's eyes."

— Sat R 116:659 N 22 '13 40w

REYNOLDS, GERTRUDE M. (ROBINS) (MRS. LOUIS BAILLIE REYNOLDS). Cost of a promise. *$1.25 (1c) Doran 14-15174

The promise is exacted from Germaine Damien in her early childhood, and follows the perpetration of a rather dreadful act. Convinced that her benefactor, Miles Burnside, is a tyrant, "grinding the faces of the poor" and keeping her beloved uncle, Rémy Damien, from happiness, Germaine, inspired by the example of Charlotte Corday, attempts murder. During the convalescence of her victim the two make friends and Miles insists that the secret must be kept between them. Germaine's life thereafter is made up of two distinct periods; in the first she lives with her mother in respectable poverty, working for her living and fighting valiantly with the militants for the good of her sex; in the second she has a taste of wealth and luxury in her grandfather's home. It is in this second period, after she has become engaged to a rising young politician, that the promise given in childhood bears fruit. The fiancé bears the story indirectly, the engagement is broken, and Germaine, turning to Miles for sympathy and understanding finds that he is the man who holds her heart.

"Mrs. Baillie Reynolds shows her usual aptitude in presenting us with a readable tale, though she surprises us by her hackneyed methods in bringing about the happy conclusion."

+ — Ath 1914,2:283 S 19 280w

Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 250w

"There are some very respectable characters in the book who might have been exercised to better advantage." H. W. Boynton

+ — Nation 99:462 O 15 '14 170w

N Y Times 19:447 O 18 '14 250w

REYNOLDS, GERTRUDE M. (ROBINS) (MRS. LOUIS BAILLIE REYNOLDS). Doubtful character. *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 13-25055

A young girl, traveling in Switzerland with an aunt who is her only living relative, is left wholly bereft by one of those Alpine tragedies in which the mountains demand their toll for human daring. A man who has been a member of the party asks her to marry him, altho he has known her only for a few days. Then on learning that there are distant kinsfolk in England who will look after her he mysteriously disappears leaving a note which says he is not free to marry. Later it develops that he has served a prison sentence for murder. A chain of circumstances puts the girl in possession of the facts that prove him to have been innocent and another happy chance brings about a meeting at which all misunderstandings are cleared away.

"The story moves swiftly, and the characterization, though not remarkable, is natural."

+ Ath 1913,2:381 O 11 100w

"The characters are well drawn."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 250w

"The whole book is well calculated to hold the reader's interest—if the latter is not too insistent on the presentation, at all cost, of the probabilities in the series of events narrated. A well-written story, full of incident of a cumulative kind of interest, and with an unguessed mystery solved at the end in a way that brings satisfaction to every one."

+ — N Y Times 19:119 Mr 15 '14 700w

"Has the merit of good chapters at the start, and the book will please those who prefer a clear story to intricate and subtle thought."

+ Sat R 116:531 O 25 '13 50w

RHEAD, GEORGE WOOLLISCROFT. Principles of design: a text-book for teachers, students and craftsmen. 2d ed rev il $*3 Scribner (Eng ed A13-1809)

This work is "intended especially for students preparing for the examinations held by the Board of education in the United Kingdom. To bring the book into line with the recent changes decreed by the Board in these examinations, the author has added short chapters on the elementary principles of light and shade, the laws of colour harmony and contrast, and the treatment of drapery."—Int Studio

+ A L A Bkl 10:337 Ap '14
Ath 1913,1:549 My 17 100w
Int Studio 50:251 S '13 100w

RHODES, EUGENE MANLOVE. Bransford in Arcadia; or, The little eohippus. il $*1.20 (2c) Holt 14-2899

This book is an enlargement of the author's story, "The little eohippus," which appeared as a serial last year. Its hero, Jeff Bransford, will be recognized as one of the characters in the author's "Good men and true." The little eohippus, it may be remembered, was the prehistoric animal that decided to be a horse. Its scornful contemporaries, according to Mrs. Gilman's poem, said it couldn't be done. Jeff Bransford had a way of quoting these verses, or rather of singing them to a tune of his own, when facing a like situation—when they told him it couldn't be done. He faced such a situation when he was accused of bank robbery, and again when he fell in love with an eastern girl, but in each case he persisted, and like the prehistoric eohippus succeeded in accomplishing his purpose.

"Very entertaining, quite exciting in the climaxes, with much humor."

+ A L A Bkl 10:327 Ap '14 +

"The chapters of his new novel are held together by some slender strands of plot, which the reader will care very little about. He will be much more interested in the personality of Jeff Bransford and that interesting person's exploits. Mr. Rhodes's cowboys are highly entertaining, much more entertaining, indeed, than they would have been had he drawn them without accentuating their peculiarities or without giving them credit for keener wit and quicker intelligence than can be claimed by most of their tribe. The narrative is charged with the fascination of the Southwest."

+ — N Y Times 19:49 F 1 '14 830w

"The writer confesses himself to be in that unregenerate minority of novel readers who is rather bored than otherwise by cowboy novels. All the greater praise then to Mr. Rhodes if in his latest story . . . he contrives to entice this reviewer, unobjecting, through to the last cover. He does it because of a real knack of narrative and an evident and genuine knowledge of his subject matter. To be sure 'Bransford in Arcadia' stretches every bond of credibility. It's all cleverly written." Fremont Rider

+ — Pub W 85:1066 Mr 21 '14 300w

RHYS, ERNEST, ed. New golden treasury of songs and lyrics. (Everyman's lib.) *25c Dutton

This volume "is meant to be a sequel to Palgrave's 'Golden treasury,' including short poems of a period earlier than those included by Palgrave, and also later. The average of quality is not equal to the earlier volume, but there are included a few dear Shakespeare lyrics and splendid verses from Tennyson, Browning, Rossetti, Stevenson, Swinburne, and coming down to Francis Thompson."—Ind

"Surely any one who owns Palgrave's 'Golden treasury'—and who does not?—can afford to buy this."

+ Ind 80:64 O 12 '14 100w

"Appears to be an exceedingly well selected anthology of songs and lyrics, and to exhibit a catholic taste."

+ Nation 100:147 F 4 '15 110w

RICCI, ELISA. Old Italian lace. 2v il $*30 Lip-
1 pincoff 14-11605

A two volume work translated from the Italian. "In the first volume the facile pen of the author leads one deftly through the intricate mazes of the historical side of her subject, treating of the birth and development of the art in her native land. . . . In the second volume the scene shifts and one is transported to an atmosphere less suggestive of the palace or of ecclesiastical circles. . . . The author vividly describes the natural setting of the peasant life, the isolated villages, where, after a day of toil beginning at sunrise, the Italian women turn to their lace pillows for rest and recreation. . . . The illustrations themselves, of which there are 760 in photogravure and color, represent an enormous amount of research, and offer a comprehensive history of the art in Italy from its earliest days to modern times." (N Y Times)

"It is a most thorough and instructive treatise, pleasantly written and printed in large, clear type. There are several misprints, besides those noted in the table of errata, mainly in the way of words misspelled." N. H. Dole

+ — Boston Transcript p4 N 29 '13 4250w

"Not since the production of Mrs. Bury Pal-liser's 'History of lace' has so important a volume been written on a subject dear to the heart of womankind, and all lace lovers owe a debt of gratitude to Signora Ricci for her scholarly work. One cannot but hope, however, that in future editions the publishers of this English version will give greater care to the revision of proof and the verification of dates, as in many instances there have been slips in the translation of the cinquecento and seicento, which are most unfortunate. An index also would add greatly to the value of the work." Frances Morris

+ — N Y Times 18:632 N 30 '13 2500w

"Lovers of Italy and of lace will find this book a source of real delight. It is written with ability and knowledge."

+ Spec 112:271 F 14 '14 400w

RICCI, SEYMOUR DE. Louis XVI furniture. 1 il $*7.50 Putnam 14-10056

This "is said to be the first entire volume devoted to the so-called 'antique' style, which in the later years of Louis XV abruptly supplanted the rococo manner, and which took its name from the succeeding monarch. The story of the evolution of the style is told in some 360 pictures, arranged in series so as first to show a number of complete interiors from Paris (including Versailles and Fontainebleau), the French provinces, Switzerland, and Germany; then isolated decorative panels, mantel pieces, and doors; and finally various individual pieces of furniture." (Nation) "More than 500 photographs are reproduced. . . . The reproductions are grouped according to kind, including ensembles and interiors, consoles, commodes, chairs, desks, and beds, and, when available, the brief history of each is given." (N Y Times)

"This informal bibliography and the collection of photographs form together an excellent foundation for a scientific study of this style of furniture. Mr. de Ricci is to be congratulated on a valuable contribution to the history of the applied arts."

+ Ath 1913,2:565 N 15 430w

"Art students and collectors will find the book of great value, and hardly anyone can turn its pages without enjoyment and instruction."

+ Dial 55:484 D 1 '13 250w

"Architects, designers, and interior decorators will welcome it. The book is not free from typographical errors."

+ Nation 97:628 D 25 '13 250w

"The author's brief introduction is a model of thoroughness and conciseness, but he does not neglect to give a useful bibliography of important books. It makes a very beautiful volume."

+ N Y Sun p5 O 25 '13 170w

"The mechanical production of the book has been a labor of love, and its refinement of finish renders it one of those rare joys forever."

+ N Y Times 18:611 N 9 '13 330w

RICE, ALICE CALDWELL (HEGAN). Honorable Percival. il *$1 (2½c) Century 14-18879

The events of a transpacific voyage of four weeks duration make up this story. The Honorable Percival Hascombe who came on board at San Francisco after a particularly boring journey across the continent is described as a "blighted being"; it is to heal a broken heart that he has traveled so far from England and Hascombe Hall. His heart is due, however, to receive another blow, for in the course of the voyage he falls in love, quite against his will, with Bobby Boynton who is as typically American as he is British. Bobby's affections however are firmly anchored in Wyoming, and altho the little romance ends in nothing, it no doubt leaves the Honorable Percival a wiser man.

+ A L A Bkl 11:175 D '14

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 28 '14 970w

"A merry and delightfully improbable tale."

+ Ind 80:291 N 23 '14 50w

Nation 99:552 N 5 '14 300w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:654 D 3 '14 50w

"A wholesome, vivacious, and thoroughly amusing story."

+ N Y Times 19:474 N 1 '14 680w

+ Spec 114:56 Ja 9 '15 20w

RICE, CALE YOUNG. At the world's heart. 2 *$1.25 Doubleday 14-2244

"It is with the belief that the poet of the future will come to be more conscious of his planetary, than of his merely national, existence, that I again put forth a volume of poems ranging through both East and West," says the author in a preface. The poems that make up the book owe their inspiration to many places—Hongkong, Honolulu, Sicily, India, Arabia; they were evidently written during world wanderings; a number of them are headed "At sea."

+ — Ath 1914,2:105 Jl 25 400w

"Belongs neither to his best nor to the poorest that Mr. Rice has written." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p22 S 16 '14 70w

"When his songs spring from and carry on a dramatic motive they are well worth singing; when they celebrate a hot day in India or the awakening of China they are, to speak frankly, a bore."

+ N Y Times 19:325 Jl 26 '14 260w

+ Outlook 106:651 Mr 21 '14 40w

RICE, WILLIAM GORHAM. Carillons of Belgium and Holland. il *$1.50 (4c) Lane 11-22629

The author has made a study of the bell towers and chimes of the Low Countries. He writes of the towers of Ghent, Bruges, Amsterdam, Brussels and other cities, brings together interesting incidents from their history and describes their bells. He writes of the primitive carillon and its development and of the men of the past and present who are associated with the development of bell music. In appendices he gives lists of carillons in Holland, Belgium and in other countries, the bells of St. Joseph's cathedral, Buffalo, and of Notre Dame university receiving notice in the United States. The book has interesting and attractive illustrations.

"Interesting because of the originality of the subject and its lack of treatment, and useful to clubs studying these countries."

+ A L A Bkl 11:208 Ja '15

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 6 '15 350w

"Well-planned and well-executed volume."

+ Dial 57:508 D 16 '14 220w

+ Ind 81:213 F 8 '15 120w

+ Nation 100:125 Ja 28 '15 220w

"Mr. Rice deals with a subject about which very little has been published hitherto and clothes it with great interest."

+ N Y Times 19:580 D 20 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 51:249 F '15 250w

RICH, GRACE ELLINGWOOD. When mother lets us make paper box furniture. il *75c Moffat 14-12640

"The tenth number in this always useful and suggestive series for children gives explicit directions to the little people for making all manner of attractive toy furniture out of paper boxes. Pictures at every step of the process in the making of each article bring it all within the easy compass of even the very little ones."—N Y Times

"A good and suggestive book as far as the diagrams and directions are concerned, but the written-down introductions and verses might well have been omitted."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:179 D '14

"The book has an educational value and is indicated for profitable use to teachers and social workers as well as to mothers' clubs."

+ Boston Transcript p21 D 23 '14 150w

+ N Y Times 19:299 Jl 5 '14 160w

"An excellent book for an elementary teacher to have at hand, and for the home library."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:305 D '14 80w

RICHARDS, FRANK. Compressed air practice. 3 il *$3 McGraw 13-25449

"This book is in effect an acknowledgment by the author of the wonderful advance in the use of compressed air since the publication some twenty years ago of a treatise by himself on a similar subject. In the opinion of the author the extended production and various uses of compressed air are of such importance as to warrant a careful discussion of them in text-book form. . . . There are twenty-eight chapters, taking up in order the principles underlying the production of compressed air, the devices for producing it, the distribution, the various uses to which it is put and miscellaneous matters such as tables for use in design and other problems. For the most part the questions relate to air under considerable pressure."—Engin Rec

"Those who are in search of details of air compressor machinery design will find very little on the subject in this book. It is difficult to see what the chapter on obtaining gasoline by compression of natural gas has to do with compressed air practice except that compressors are used in the work, as they are also, for example, in refrigerating machinery which is not mentioned. We believe the author would have done well to have followed the example of numerous recent writers and given liberal credit to the sources of his information, and also something of the history of the art he describes."

+ — Engin N 71:382 F 12 '14 600w

"Viewed broadly, the method of treatment, together with the nature of the information, makes this book of great value to the engineer as well as the student interested in this particular field, and to such it is strongly recommended."

+ Engin Rec 69:147 Ja 31 '14 120w

RICHARDSON, A. E. Monumental classic architecture in Great Britain and Ireland, during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. il *$33.50 Scribner (Eng ed 14-11606)

"Mr. Richardson's volume fits its subject in the monumental character of its appearance. It is illustrated by 60 plates and 135 text illustrations, which carry the reader along the course followed by English architecture from the time of Inigo Jones and the famous banqueting hall erected by him to the present moment, when the classic ideal is in bitter conflict with individualism and the many cross currents of modern civilization. The text provides a close analysis of the various stages of the development." (N Y Times) "The 136 illustrations are mostly from photographs, all of high quality; while the plans, elevations, and other diagrams are precisely such as are needed to elucidate the text and supplement the views. . . . London, Bath, Dublin, Edinburgh, and Liverpool supply most of the examples." (Nation)

RICHARDSON, A. E.—Continued.

"As a contribution to the history of art Mr. Richardson's work ranks high; the style is elevated, and the matter fills a gap; the system of classification and the careful research in dark or forgotten places are notable."

+ Ath 1914.1:636 My 16 850w

"The plates in the volume are numerous and magnificently done, while the measured drawings enable one to understand the details of each structure." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '14 1850w

Reviewed by S. F. Kimball

+ Dial 57:202 S 16 '14 950w

"The work is commended to architects, and should prove especially suggestive to students of our own 'Colonial' architecture."

+ Nation 99:174 Ag 6 '14 450w

+ N Y Times 19:331 Ag 2 '14 270w

+ Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 260w

RICHARDSON, ANNA STEESE. Better babies<sup>10</sup> and their care. *75c (1½c) Stokes 14-8857

The "better babies contest" idea originated at a live stock exhibition in Denver, but it has been largely thru the efforts of Mrs. Richardson and the "Woman's Home Companion" that the idea has spread to all parts of the country. While in attendance at these contests, Mrs. Richardson has learned what those things are that mothers most need to know about the care of children, and she writes of them in this book. There are chapters on Feeding; Cleanliness and health; Fresh air and sleep; Clothing; Defects and habits; Nursery emergencies, etc.

"Her instruction and advice are based on long and intelligent study."

+ N Y Times 19:375 S 6 '14 70w

RICHARDSON, ERNEST CUSHING. Beginnings<sup>5</sup> of libraries. il *$1 (4c) Princeton univ. press 14-4235

The essay printed in this small volume is developed from an address delivered before the library school of the New York public library. Some of the matters touched upon in the brief chapters are: Antediluvian libraries; Preadamite libraries; Prehistoric and historic libraries; The evolution of record keeping; Memory libraries; Pictorial object libraries; Ideographic records; Types of primitive libraries; The beginnings of library schools; The beginnings of library research.

"Scholarly and interesting to the general public."

+ A L A Bkl 10:363 My '14

"The method of the present book is that of the scholar who not only leaves no stone unturned, but takes up each pebble, grinds it to dust and examines each grain with maddening precision. A reader of 'The beginnings' may hope that henceforth his books will be written a little more in the manner of a man of the twentieth century and less in that of the mediæval scholastic."

+ Boston Transcript p23 F 18 '14 800w

"It shows scholarship and curious research, and is a fitting addition to the author's earlier studies on 'Antediluvian libraries,' 'Mediæval libraries,' 'Some old Egyptian libraries,' etc."

+ Dial 56:307 Ap 1 '14 250w

+ Educ R 48:419 N '14 20w

"Chapters about The administration of primitive libraries and The beginnings of library schools come near the close of the book, and indicate what can be done when a conscientious scholar tries his best to make a chapter out of nothing, and forgets to use his sense of the absurd."

+ Nation 98:337 Mr 26 '14 400w

"Though Mr. Richardson's book was written avowedly for librarians and library students, it contains many facts and opens up many avenues of speculation that will prove of interest to the layman."

+ N Y Times 19:193 Ap 19 '14 330w

"A little treatise compact with information by a man who writes not without authority."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 120w

RICHARDSON, ERNEST CUSHING. Biblical<sup>2</sup> libraries. il *$1.25 (3c) Princeton univ. press 14-19385

A book that follows the author's "Beginnings of libraries." That book presented a sketch of the records of the legendary prehistoric and primitive period, down to 3400 B. C. The present work takes up the subject at this point and carries it into the Christian era, to about 150 A. D. An introduction takes up the question What is a library? Following this are chapters on: The Babylonian period; The patriarchal period; The Egyptian period; The exodus; Palestine at the conquest; Period of the judges; Saul to the captivity; The Persian period; The Greek period; New Testament times in Palestine; Roman libraries in apostolical times; Post-apostolical Roman library buildings; The Bible itself a library.

"Aside from slight irritation due to its heavy style, it has its interest even for the layman." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:567 Ja '15 100w

"The work is well done."

+ Dial 58:57 Ja 16 '15 320w

"The subject matter with which Mr. Richardson deals is almost unknown to the average reader, and his treatment of it is quite fascinating."

+ Educ R 49:98 Ja '15 60w

"Useful book."

+ Nation 100:119 Ja 28 '15 350w

+ Spec 113:855 D 12 '14 20w

RICHARDSON, JOHN, comp. In the garden of<sup>4</sup> delight. *$1.35 Caldwell (Eng ed A13-1275)

A little book "filled with selections from prose and verse written in praise of nature, and especially in praise of gardens and the delight of them. Mr. Richardson's literary taste is catholic, the excerpts ranging from the classics to the prose and verse of our own day. . . . The selections are divided into groups, celebrating nature, pastoral scenes, birds, insects, and the four seasons of the year."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 10:279 Mr '14

"It is a pleasant little volume, in format and in content."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 11 '14 200w

+ Dial 55:534 D 16 '13 120w

"A book more ornamental than useful, and it is not excessively ornamental." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 18:578 O 26 '13 100w

RICHMOND, GRACE LOUISE. Twenty-fourth<sup>9</sup> of June: midsummer's day. il *$1.25 (1c) Doubleday 14-14574

Richard Kendrick, who has never known a real home, is introduced by chance into the Gray household. The Grays are fairly well-to-do, and happy, and industrious; Richard is merely rich and idle. The ideal home atmosphere makes him over into a new type of man, and after a period of probation, Roberta Gray, whom he loved at first sight, admits that she finds him worthy.

"Will be liked by young girls."

+ A L A Bkl 11:78 O '14

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, Jr.

+ Bookm 40:559 Ja '15 110w

"One unfortunate element enters the present book, in reality only an intensifying of what has been present in all of her earlier works, her tendency to make her home atmosphere so elevating in influence that her best characters appear as prigs."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 350w

"The natural criticism which the austere-minded will level against Mrs. Richmond is that, with all her emphasis upon 'wholesomeness,' a sweet sentimentality weakens the needed effect of vigor; and this holds true of style as well as general construction."

— Nation 99:283 S 3 '14 170w

N Y Times 19:412 O 4 '14 200w

"Though not without good points the story is so sentimental that only women and girls of that type will enjoy it."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 10:263 N '14 70w

RICHTER, EMIL HEINRICH. Prints; a brief review of their technique and history. il *$2 (10c) Houghton 14-20284

In his first three chapters the author tells how prints are made and writes of The origin of woodcut and The early days of engraving. Following these come chapters devoted to the development of prints in the following countries: Italy; Germany; the Netherlands; France; England, and the United States. A final chapter treats of The nineteenth century. The term "print" as the author uses it "applies to any design conveyed upon paper or any similar substance by means of pressure, usually in the printing-press." The book is well supplied with illustrations.

"Though the author is correct in saying that the illustrations cannot render the beauties of the originals, they add much to our interest in the volume."

+ Boston Transcript p24 D 2 '14 250w

+ — Nation 100:152 F 4 '15 220w

"Clear and discriminating review of the development of engraving processes from the early days of the art."

+ Pittsburgh 20:22 Ja '15 50w

"A serviceable introduction to the whole subject."

+ R of Rs 50:755 D '14 70w

RICHTER, LUISE MARIE (SCHWAAB) (MRS. J. PAUL RICHTER). Chantilly in history and art. il *$6 Scribner 14-12623

"The first part of the volume contains the history of Chantilly from its origin before the ninth century until it passed into the possession of the French nation, the gift of the late Duc d'Aumale. Numerous portraits illustrate this section. Part 2 deals with the museum, its art treasures and its manuscripts, with accounts of French artists of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and reproductions of their works collected at Chantilly by the Duke."—Ath

"Only for large or special art collections."

+ A L A Bkl 11:162 D '14

Ath 1913,2:601 N 22 80w

"The illustrations alone would make the volume valuable."

+ — Ath 1914,1:58 Ja 10 550w

"The proof reading of the book was unfortunately carelessly done; a list of errors is appended but it does not nearly cover the bill. But the illustrations and the general vivacity of the style (in spite of some needless repetitions) fill one with a desire to make a pilgrimage to the historic castle." N. H. D.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ap 11 '14 1050w

"The story is told in rapid, at times almost breathless style, but no important details are omitted."

+ — Ind 78:258 My 11 '14 50w

"Well arranged and excellently written book."

+ — Int Studio 51:332 F '14 300w

+ Nation 99:84 J1 16 '14 200w

"Mrs. Richter has given us the best description of the treasures of Chantilly in the language."

+ Sat R 116:784 D 20 '13 730w

"It is seldom that any such rare combination of historic and artistic interest receives so adequate treatment as is given to Chantilly by this large and handsome volume."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 1850w

RIDDLE, CARL BROWN, ed. College men without money. *$1 (1c) Crowell 14-12330

A guide book for those ambitious young men and women who would work their way thru college. Others who have done so tell them how in this volume. It is a book of personal experiences written by graduates and students of colleges and universities in all parts of the country, from Maine to Texas and from North Carolina to North Dakota.

RIDGE, WILLIAM PETT. Remington sentence. *$1.25 Doran

"There were four of the Remingtons—Geoffrey, Helen, Walter, and Taylor—nicknamed Snip—who tells the story. In the Hampshire village where they lived they were all four exceedingly unpopular, partly because of their constant quarreling, but principally on account of their 'high and haughty' manners. During his lifetime their father had paid scant attention to them, and they never dreamed that his will would be at all unusual. In it, however, was pronounced 'The Remington sentence,' viz: They must go up to London and there support themselves for five years, at the end of which time the Hampshire estate would become theirs. What happened to them during this probationary period supplies the material for the novel."—N Y Times

"It is difficult to say anything new about Mr. Pett Ridge's work; his warmest admirer could scarcely claim for him any beauty of style, but his severest critic would be unable to deny him a fund of genial humour and of knowledge of human nature, and these have assured his popularity. The book is distinctly better than 'Devoted Sparkes.'"

+ — Ath 1913,2:228 S 6 130w

"Many things are inadequately explained, few of the characters are firmly drawn, with the result that the impression of the whole work is vague in the extreme." L: Tucker

+ — Bookm 39:222 Ap '14 430w

"Its humor, and it possesses humor in abundance, alone restrains the reader from casting aside 'The Remington sentence' long before its final pages are reached. It makes no appeal to reason, asking nothing more of the reader than the pleasure of the ludicrous."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 F 21 '14 220w

"A quaint and quiet humor, the leisurely progress of an unaccented plot, stress placed on minor detail, and a wide range of characters—these are familiar characteristics of Mr. Ridge which his readers expect and which they find in the present volume."

+ — Nation 98:301 Mr 19 '14 330w

"The novel is thoroughly real and human, told with such a keen feeling for the humorous and whimsical in life and character, that we can forgive its dragging a bit at times. The character of the henpecked but loyal Clifford, and the lively courtship of irascible Saltmarsh and strong-willed Helen are of themselves enough to make this book well worth reading."

+ — N Y Times 19:72 F 15 '14 680w

"Another good example of Mr. Pett Ridge's clever characterization of young people and of his love of London."

+ Spec 111:617 O 18 '13 18w

RIDGER, A. LOTON. Wanderer's trail; being a faithful record of travel in many lands. il *$3 Holt 14-30725

"With a burning desire to see the world, and also with plenty of British pluck and tenacity, Mr. A. Loton Ridger, at the age of twenty-one, took passage on a tramp steamer for San Francisco by way of the Straits of Magellan (not 'round the Horn,' as he at first says), and for the next six years, with little interruption, he was extending his knowledge of geography in both hemispheres, until at last he became well qualified for membership in the Royal geographical society. . . . Both Americas, from Alaska to Patagonia, eastern and southern Asia, and various parts of Africa were visited by him; and his study of native manners and customs was the more thorough from the necessity he was under of working his way at every step."—Dial

RIDGER, A. LOTON—Continued.

+ A L A Bkl 11:26 S '14

"As a writer Mr. Ridger possesses the outstanding merits of simplicity, straightforwardness, sincerity and the desire to describe and record faithfully."

+ Ath 1914,1:851 Je 20 1500w

"Wherever he goes, Mr. Ridger is a close and sympathetic observer of men and affairs, a keen yet friendly critic, a careful student of the widely differing racial characteristics of the lands through which he journeys."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 22 '14 550w

+ Dial 57:56 J1 16 '14 300w

"Picturesquely told."

+ Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 20w

+ Nation 99:283 S 3 '14 820w

+ N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 150w

+ R of Rs 50:116 J1 '14 50w

"The charm of this volume is that Mr. Ridger saw things with the eyes of a cultivated and thoughtful man. Experiences which are usually shared only by those who have not the mind to reflect and compare fell in this case to one who could extract their full value. Mr. Ridger has an admirable gift of writing."

+ Spec 112:1095 Je 27 '14 550w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 11 '14 870w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:304 D '14 60w

RIES, HEINRICH, and WATSON, THOMAS
<sup>12</sup> LEONARD. Engineering geology. il $4
 Wiley 14-10192

"This book departs far from the usual treatment of text books on geology. The historical, stratigraphic and paleontologic phases of the subject are left out entirely, except for occasional incidental reference, and the physiographic side is not given separate treatment. This gives opportunity for extended elucidation of the structural, petrographic, economic and dynamic phases of the science and for the introduction of many illustrations and explanatory cases. Rock formations, physical conditions and changes, field relations and products of economic and practical utility are given special attention. Structural features and modifications, weathering and soils, the geology of waters, both surface and underground, landslides, coastal changes and glacial deposits, are all treated in a comprehensive manner and with many illustrations and suggestions of a practical nature."—Engin Rec

"A-book which treats of geology chiefly from an engineering viewpoint is, therefore, a most welcome addition to our engineering literature, especially when that book is so complete and authoritative as to serve not only for a college textbook, but to form a valuable reference work for any engineer's library."

+ Engin N 72:613 S 17 '14 690w

"This is a book that should be welcomed by all engineers and students of engineering whose work brings them in close touch with geologic conditions." C: P. Berkey

+ Engin Rec 70:141 Ag 1 '14 730w

"It is undoubtedly a useful addition to what has already been written on engineering geology. It is eminently practical, and its very direct application to a great variety of engineering problems should commend it, not only to students, but also to engineers in actual practice." C. G. C.

+ Nature 94:250 N 5 '14 380w

"This volume fills a special field in which it has no rival." W. H. Emmons

+ Science n s 40:898 D 18 '14 250w

RIHBANY, ABRAHAM MITRIE. Far journey.
<sup>12</sup> il $1.75 (2½c) Houghton 14-16962

The author, now pastor of the Church of the Disciples in Boston, tells the story of his life, beginning with his childhood in Syria. He came to America as a young man without money and with no knowledge of the English language. He served as literary editor of an Arabic newspaper in New York, learned to speak English and traveled thru the middle west lecturing on Palestine, entered Ohio Wesleyan university and prepared himself for the ministry. Chapters from his story have appeared in the "Atlantic monthly."

+ A L A Bkl 11:171 D '14 +

"A book that is as full of unusual incidents as a modern novel."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 700w

"It is a marvellous recital, this bridging of the thousands of years that separate Turkey and the United States, and one that every true American can read with almost as great a pride as the teller of the story must feel."

+ Dial 57:302 O 16 '14 450w

+ Lit D 49:1190 D 12 '14 200w

+ Nation 99:780 D 31 '14 300w

"His life-story is an unusual one, and it reveals a sufficient depth of thought and character to give it somewhat more than the interest of novelty."

+ No Am 200:792 N '14 830w

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 700w

RIIS, JACOB AUGUST. Neighbors: life stories
<sup>12</sup> of the other half. il $1.25 (4½c) Macmillan
 14-18679

A collection of nineteen short stories and sketches, some of which have appeared in the "Outlook." The author says: "These stories have come to me from many sources—some from my own experience, others from settlement workers, still others from the records of organized charity, that are never dry as some think, but alive with vital human interest."

... They have this in common, that they are true. For good reasons, names and places are changed, but they all happened as told here. I could not have invented them, had I tried; I should not have tried if I could." (Preface)

+ A L A Bkl 11:201 Ja '15

"The book has a mission, and few will read it unmoved."

+ Bib World 45:116 F '15 120w

+ Ind 80:383 D 7 '14 80w

+ N Y Times 19:552 D 6 '14 250w

"A collection of brief but touching narratives."

+ Spec 113:934 D 26 '14 60w

"It is a book which is interesting for the truth it contains."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 100w

Reviewed by J. E. Robbins

+ Survey 33:268 D 5 '14 500w

RILEY, JAMES WHITCOMB. Complete works.
<sup>3</sup> Biographical ed. 6v $12 Bobbs 13-26127

This complete edition "includes 220 poems which have never before appeared in book form, and many of which are here printed for the first time, as well as several heretofore unpublished prose sketches—these in addition to all of the author's works which have previously been published."—Nation

"A satisfactory edition."

+ A L A Bkl 10:255 F '14

+ Ath 1913,2:sup435 O 18 70w

+ Ath 1913,2:589 N 22 30w

+ Nation 97:363 O 16 '13 60w

RINEHART, MRS. MARY (ROBERTS). After
<sup>2</sup> house. il $1.25 (2½c) Houghton 14-2355

The action takes place on board a private yacht, the "Ella," on which Ralph Leslie, a young doctor just recovering from a siege of fever, has shipped as steward. Leslie tells the story. Four chapters are introductory, serving to introduce passengers and crew. In the fifth chapter is described the crime, the murder of three people, which furnishes the mystery that occupies all the remaining chapters. Every one on board falls under suspicion but no solution is found. The case is taken thru court but no decision is reached. Then unexpectedly, when every one else has failed, Mrs. Rinehart herself reveals the culprit.

"The chief virtues of 'The after house' are its conciseness, its brevity, the breeziness of its telling and the serio-comic atmosphere with which the novelist invests even its most tragic moments. While of no lasting importance, no one need fear that its reading will be a waste of time. Every moment of it will prove a relaxation to the fagged and weary mind that seeks the fleeting pleasures of passing fiction."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 24 '14 520w

"The solution of the matter is a sort of tour de force that surprises the reader so much it fails to be convincing, to be the inevitable thing that the solution of a mystery ought always to be. The story is much less amusing than have been Mrs. Rinehart's previous novels, for it has almost none of that sprightliness of manner and gayety of spirit that have marked them."

— N Y Times 19:38 Ja 25 '14 600w

RINEHART, MRS. MARY (ROBERTS). Street 10 of seven stars. *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 14-20856

In this story of Vienna Mrs. Rinehart departs from the type of fiction which has made her famous. Some of her old readers may be disappointed at finding that there is no sensational mystery connected with the Siebensternstrasse, but surely new readers will be won over by the charm of the little group of people who live there. They were Peter Byrne, an American doctor, very poor, Anna Gates, also an American doctor and also poor, and Harmony Wells, an American girl studying music, and vying with, if not surpassing, the other two in her poverty. Later Jimmy, a little sick boy from the hospital comes to make one of the family, and when Anna Gates is called home to America it is Jimmy's need of them both that holds Peter and Harmony together, until gossiping tongues drive them apart. But it is thru Jimmy again that the two are reunited.

"Pleasantly written, with considerable flavor in its atmosphere, very sentimental."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:176 D '14

"Undoubtedly 'The street of seven stars' in book form will win more laurels to add to those bestowed upon it as a serial novel."

+ Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 300w

"A book of unusual interest."

+ Dial 58:85 F 1 '15 160w

"Not without realistic strength, the story has withal a lively humor and a wholesome optimism."

+ Ind 80:141 O 26 '14 100w

+ Lit D 50:106 Ja 16 '15 140w

"'Delightful' is the word that sums it up best, after all—delightful in its pictures of student life, delightful in its character drawing, delightful in its humor and its gayety, its sweetness, and even in the little episodes that are sad."

+ N Y Times 19:429 O 11 '14 520w

"This is a good book to read as a story; it is also a book which ought to be put in the hands of many American parents who send their daughters abroad under the impression, apparently, that cities like Vienna, Paris, and Berlin are as safe for young girls as small American villages."

+ Outlook 108:439 O 21 '14 150w

"It is a wholesome story for those who are in danger of thinking that life is only another name for dull routine."

+ Outlook 108:552 N 4 '14 230w

"A wonderfully sweet story. Incidentally, it is far and away the best thing Mary Roberts Rinehart has yet done. One is tempted to call it delightful, but it is much stronger than that." Robert Lynd

+ Pub W 86:1283 O 17 '14 650w

"In this book the author seems to have found her true role."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 29 '14 400w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:263 N '14 30w

RIFLEY, WILLIAM ZEBINA, ed. Railway problems; rev. ed. (Selections and documents in economics) $2.50 Ginn 13-23193

"This collection of reprints is based on the admirable edition published in 1907. The editor has thoroughly recast the original work in response to two demands. The first is created by the swift progress of legislative and economic events which has rendered the old collection obsolete; the second arises from the rapid development of the various branches of railway economics. Some chapters which formerly had a place in a general volume have been transferred to special treatises in particular fields; others, like Taussig's classic theory of rates, are now embodied in the editor's 'Railroads: rates and regulation.' To take the place of these omissions the editor introduces in this edition the account of early American conditions from Pearson's 'American railroad builder,' . . . some recent decisive opinions of the Interstate commerce commission; and Theodore Brent's article on the intricacies of rate-making."—J Pol Econ

Am Econ R 4:136 Mr '14 170w

+ A L A Bkl 10:338 Ap '14

Ann Am Acad 51:272 Ja '14 90w

"We can again commend it to those who desire to study the economic relations of the railways and the public."

+ Engin N 70:1267 D 18 '13 300w

"In view of the growing popularity of the case-book method in various college courses in economics, this revised edition is assured of a favorable reception by students and teachers of transportation problems."

+ J Pol Econ 22:198 F '14 250w

"It is not easy to suggest any very important improvement upon Professor Ripley's selection, having in mind his purpose in making it."

+ Nation 98:37 Ja 8 '14 500w

"All in all the book provides a rich collection of fresh and valuable illustrative material."

+ Pol Sci Q 29:180 Mr '14 130w

RITCHIE, ANNE ISABELLA (THACKERAY) 2 LADY (MRS. RICHMOND RITCHIE). From the porch. il *$1.50 Scribner (Eng ed 14-30187)

A volume of Lady Ritchie's essays. "Whether entitled 'Divagations,' 'Monographs,' or 'Reminiscences,' her substance is largely the memories of other days. What a various experience has been hers. In 'A discourse on modern Sibyls' she gives personal recollections of George Eliot, Mrs. Gaskell, Charlotte Brontë, and Mrs. Oliphant, with the placidity of a knitter in the sun. A whole chapter is devoted to Charles Dickens and Browning, Carlyle, and Tennyson walk for us again in Kensington gardens." (Nation)

+ A L A Bkl 10:279 Mr '14

"Charming miscellany."

+ Ath 1913,2:651 D 6 1550w

+ Dial 56:72 Ja 16 '14 320w

+ Nation 98:190 F 19 '14 190w

"Lady Ritchie is always delightful, and never more so than in this volume of short, informal chapters about places and people."

+ Outlook 106:153 Ja 17 '14 180w

"It must be confessed that her new book is a bit disappointing. Perhaps it could not but be so; perhaps we expected too much; we ought not to have looked for more than a little passing gossip and conversation from the porch. The disappointment lies in this, that the leaven of Lady Ritchie's personal recollection is hardly sufficient to leaven the whole lump; and, grateful as we ought to be for any fresh memories at all of the great figures of the fading Victorian age, we feel that we have been given a rather unfair proportion of quotations and second-hand information and other people's memories."

+ — Spec 112:231 F 7 '14 450w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

RITCHIE, WALLACE. Advice to violin students; containing information of the utmost value to every violinist. *$1 Scribner 14-30193

"The author emphasizes his own discoveries and observations during a long experience as principal of a violin school in London. A chapter is given to the Sevcik method, which he considers 'by far the most complete and perfect system the world has yet seen.' . . . Among the other topics treated by Mr. Ritchie are the art of practicing to most advantage, the choice of teachers, and what ought to be taken into consideration in buying a violin."—Nation

"A suggestive and dependable guide."

+ A L A Bkl 10:279 Mr '14
+ Nation 98:584 My 14 '14 110w

RITTENHOUSE, JESSIE BELLE, comp. Little book of modern verse. *$1 Houghton 13-23639

An anthology of modern American poetry. "Miss Rittenhouse has grouped the selections with a special purpose in bringing out certain moods and feelings. This part of her work is admirably done. The collection is unified in the arrangement so that each poem sets the 'keynote to the next, or at least bears some relation to it in mood or theme.' The volume is neither wholly devoted to the works of living poets, nor merely to those who have only published volumes to their credit. The more elderly poets like James Whitcomb Riley, Edwin Markham, Lizette Woodworth Reese, and George Edward Woodberry, as well as the latest and younger poets like Orricks Johns, Louis Untermeyer, Shamas O'Sheel, and Edna St. Vincent Millay, are represented. No poet has more than four pieces included, while one and two strike the average number of selections." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bkl 10:234 F '14

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley
Bookm 39:197 Ap '14 800w

"Notwithstanding objections, Miss Rittenhouse has accomplished a piece of work in the 'Little book of modern verse,' that is very delightful, and full of awakening interests in the American poets and poetry of today. It deserves a wide and continuous success. It is certainly better than anything of its kind that has yet been attempted in American literature." W. S. B.

+ + — Boston Transcript p9 D 20 '13 700w

"Such names as Aldrich, Stedman, Stoddard, Bret Harte, Bunner, Sill, Eugene Field, Gilder, Lampman, Helen Hunt, Father Tabb, and a score of others who were easily contemporaneous with many she quotes, are omitted. As far as she does permit herself to range, her work has apparently been done with good judgment." C: L. Moore

+ — Dial 55:473 D 1 '13 1050w

"Miss Rittenhouse can pick poets better than she can pick poems."

+ — Ind 77:355 Mr 9 '14 210w
Lit D 48:71 Ja 10 '14 280w

"A competent selection of lyrics."
+ Nation 99:249 Ag 27 '14 150w

"A pleasing collection."
+ N Y Sun p27 N 29 '13 50w

"Miss Rittenhouse has raised anthology making to the level of the fine arts; she has really created a thing of beauty. But while the conscientious following of this plan has made 'The little book of American verse' a delight to all who love poetry, it is responsible for some exclusions that many readers will regret."

+ — N Y Times 18:711 N 30 '13 1200w

"The selections have been made with rare taste and a natural instinct for what is beautiful in poetry rather than a cold judgment regarding matters of technique."

+ R of Rs 49:116 Ja '14 170w

"A charming little anthology."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:162 Je '14 50w

RIVERSIDE PRESS, CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
Handbook of style in use at the Riverside press, Cambridge, Mass. *50c Houghton 14-1952

In this little volume the Riverside press offers to the public a handbook of the rules of style in force in that establishment. The contents includes: Suggestions to authors and editors, and rules for Abbreviations, Capitalization, Division of words, The use of figures, Footnotes, Italics, Punctuation, and Spelling.

N Y Times 19:78 F 15 '14 100w

ROBBINS, EDWIN CLYDE. Railway conductors: a study in organized labor. tables. *$2 (4c); pa *$1.50 (3c) Longmans 14-18386

The Order of railway conductors of America, with a history going back to 1868, is one of the strongest labor organizations in the country. Its membership takes in 90 per cent of all the men engaged in the occupation. Any study, then, of the history, organization and aims of this order must constitute a valuable contribution to our knowledge of trade unionism. Mr. Robbins has made such a study and it is now published as one of the "Columbia university studies in history, economics and public law." He treats his subject in three parts: History and government; Trade regulations and means of enforcement; Beneficiary features.

"As a 'recital of facts' this is an important and valuable book; rather singularly it is the first comprehensive study that has ever been published regarding a railway brotherhood." E. H. Sutherland

+ Am J Soc 20:553 Ja '15 350w

"As a trustworthy history of the order and a clear and accurate statement of its present activities and ambitions, this volume is to be commended. But there are many indications that the author has been influenced by the winning personality of President Garretson. He looks at the problem largely from the point of view of the conductor. Hence he fails to bring out clearly some of the less favorable aspects of these great brotherhoods."

+ — Nation 99:751 D 24 '14 320w

ROBERTS, CHARLES GEORGE DOUGLAS.
Hoof and claw. il *$1.35 (2½c) Macmillan 14-15050

Most of these are stories of the untrammelled wild, altho in one or two of them civilization in the guise of a hunter or trapper or early settler appears. Many if not all of them have had magazine publication. Contents: The bear that thought he was a dog; The trail of the vanishing herds; A master of supply; The white wolf; Up a tree; The eyes in the bush; The runners of the high peaks; The pool; The shadows and John Hatch; The fisher in the chutes; The assault of wings; The cabin door; A basket of fish; Brannigan's Mary.

"His animals have more individuality and humour, and are represented with greater love and care than the people, delightful though these are, who appear in his pages."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup677 D 6 60w

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:445 D '14 120w

"The present sketches are builded according to an apparently infallible recipe: two parts animal characteristic and habit, one part 'nature,' or background, and one part 'pathetic fallacy.'"

+ — Nation 99:659 D 3 '14 430w

"Several of the stories are little masterpieces of dramatic and pictorial effect."

+ N Y Times 19:430 O 11 '14 300w

"Will especially interest boys and young men. Paul Branson's drawings have life and truth to animal types."

+ Outlook 108:440 O 21 '14 70w

"In 'Hoof and Claw' we have a number of tales written with the same restrained power, the same capacity for selecting the right word, and the same apparently intimate knowledge of the backwoods as before."

+ Spec 111:sup949 D 6 '13 180w

"Every page is of careful workmanship, and carries the real 'scent' of the woods to the most habitual city dweller."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 5 '14 200w

ROBERTS, HELEN C. Free hand. $1.35 Dutton

"A country lad [is] destined to succeed as proprietor of his father's shop in a small town near Brighton. But his fond and ambitious mother with fifteen hundred pounds as a weapon foils destiny and Ridley Courage becomes a dentist. He goes out into the world; he fails in everything, love, life and liberty; he marries an actress, who has no objection to him but favors a free hand and therefore opposes marriage. He had wanted a free hand in the old days of country life; but he, perhaps, discovers that there is no such thing. One always is bound by something, and so he is bound to his frivolous wife. But even the marriage tie is not strong; she goes back to the stage leaving their daughter with him. This seems to be his first bit of good luck since he started from home with the fifteen hundred pounds and a free hand. But more good fortune follows, his wife does him the favor to annex another man; Ridley divorces her and marries a real woman."—Boston Transcript

— + Ath 1914.1:sup469 Mr 28 170w

"In the latter stages of the story it moves with sufficient rapidity to be interesting, but its best feature is the clever character drawing."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 250w

"Miss Roberts's novel is an excellent one." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:19 Jl 1 '14 250w

"This is a solid piece of work that ought to win a wide audience."

+ Nation 98:756 Je 25 '14 270w

"As exquisitely fine, complete, and distinguished as an etching, as so many English novels are, Miss Roberts's has the added merit which so many English novels lack, of a wide outlook upon life, an attempt to understand its significance and to reduce, at least by implication, some part of its muddled pattern to an understandable figure. The author has a striking gift for the depiction of character. The story is one of those large, full, satisfying English novels that those readers enjoy who care more for literary art and intellectual interest in fiction than they do for complicated plot, breathless action, and sugary sentiment."

+ N Y Times 19:250 My 31 '14 400w

"It is a book to remember, a fine study of the development of a character. Miss Roberts's novel does not belong to the 'unnecessary' books."

+ Sat R 117:609 My 9 '14 280w

"She acquired the art of striking the happy mean between imaginative writing and that modern realism which is far more real than Life."

+ Spec 112:794 My 9 '14 250w

"Much above the average novel in its natural, unforced style and interesting characterization."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:306 D '14 40w

ROBERTS, ISAAC. Looking forward: a study in social justice looking to co-operation as offering the solution of difficulties. $1 Roberts & co., Phila. 12-13157

"The purpose of 'Looking forward' is stated to be to bring to the attention of average men and women the advantage offered by co-operation. It consists of eight 'conferences'—brief expositions of the principles of woman suffrage, public education, welfare work, co-operation and applied Christian ethics, woven together by means of a slight narrative presented almost invariably in the form of dialogue."—Survey

"It is a valuable work."

+ Ann Am Acad 50:268 N '13 50w

"He is, naturally, too much in earnest to keep his story from didacticism and yet there is story enough to make it interesting to those who demand everything sugar-coated. Perhaps the strongest feature of the book is the arrangement of the banking business as now conducted, apparently under sanction of a government which claims to be warring upon the trusts. The author has evidently given much thought to the subject and presents it clearly and forcibly."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 1 '13 230w

"A sincere and thoughtful contribution to the discussion as to how the manifold difficulties of the present economic and social organization may be met."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 31 '13 550w

"The book offers no contribution to the subject. It unfortunately perpetuates the old American error of using the term 'co-operation' in a loose, general sense. The book may be of value, however, in interesting untrained minds in a few of the live issues of our times." James Ford

+ Survey 32:100 Ap 25 '14 120w

ROBERTS, KATE LOUISE, comp. Club woman's handybook of programs and club management. *75c Funk 14-6997

This useful little volume begins with a preface on club work in general. This is followed by a list of suggested subjects for study, and by several pages of suggested outlines. The main body of the book is made up of outline programs with accompanying reading lists. In conclusion there are chapters on: How to form a club, Parliamentary definitions, and How and where to get help. An index to the book lists in the volume, and a general index bring the work to a close.

"Contains less material than Burrell but more on topics of current interest. Programs are not so closely analyzed but have more original suggestions; bibliographies are fuller but not so closely related to topics."

+ A L A Bkl 11:11 S '14 *

"Miss Roberts has performed a distinct service."

+ Lit D 50:159 Ja 23 '15 100w

"On the whole, more useful than Benton's 'Work and programs for women's clubs.'"

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:187 Jl '14 50w

ROBERTS, MORLEY. Time and Thomas Waring: a study of a man. $1.35 (1c) Putnam (Eng ed 14-10502)

The book opens with a description of a surgical operation, with an analysis of the sensations of Thomas Waring in experiencing anesthesia. He lives thru many eons of time and comes back to consciousness with a changed conception of human life and with any sense of loyalty which he may have held for conventional morality quite obliterated. The story that follows is of his altered relationship with several people, his wife, his mistress, his son and daughter.

"However harrowing the story, there is nothing over-pressed in it, nothing needless or inartistic. The mere writing of the book is masterly."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup471 Mr 28 630w

"This whole study of a series of difficult relations is conducted with skill and discretion."

+ Nation 99:689 D 10 '14 450w

"A big book; with all its revolutionary morals, an essentially clean-minded book, and an infinitely sad book."

+ N Y Times 19:459 O 25 '14 650w

"No one who does not like surgical and medical details should attempt to read Mr. Morley Robert's new novel. The character-drawing of the book is cleverly accomplished, though it naturally follows from the circumstances of the plot that all the personages of the drama are seen from a rather morbid standpoint."

+ Spec 112:794 My 9 '11 480w

ROBERTS, MORLEY—Continued.

"Mr. Roberts is an engaging writer of the Wells type, and the present novel not only induces the reader to think, but also holds his closest interest throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 520w

ROBERTS, MYRTLE GLENN. Foot of the rainbow. Bow. *$1 (12½c) Elder 14-6000

A little allegorical drama in three short acts. While the Man of the play follows the rainbow to find the treasure that will make him a prince, it is the Woman who stays behind, spending her life in loyal waiting for his return and in service of loving-kindness to others, who finds the true treasure.

"It is a parable in dramatic form hardly suited for the professional stage, from a business point of view, but well fitted for recital or amateur acting."

+ Dial 57:463 D 1 '14 130w

ROBERTS, THEODORE GOODRIDGE. Jess of the river. *$1.25 (2c) Dillingham 14-13261

A lively tale of the Canadian woods and of a spirited girl and a plucky young lumber boss. First Jessie Morgan helps Archie MacElroy break a log jam, then Archie pulls Jessie Morgan out of the river; and the story is on. There is enmity between Jessie's fierce old uncle and the young lumberman, and Archie's father, with his shady sense of honor, introduces a complication early in the tale by intercepting, and cashing the check that the old man sends Archie in payment for the rescue of his niece—but the ending of the story is all the happier because of the chapters of conflict that intervene.

"A thoroughly human story."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 250w

"A lively yarn with which to while away a lazy hour."

+ N Y Times 19:343 Ag 9 '14 330w

"Wholly entertaining story."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 13 '14 400w

ROBERTS, THEODORE GOODRIDGE. The wasp. il *$1.25 (1½c) Dillingham 14-2354

A stirring tale of piracy in the seventeenth century. A scape grace young Englishman sent out to the West Indies by his family, falls into ways more dissolute than those which had characterized his career at home. Loss of money and a duel again set him adrift; he falls in with a band of pirates; is made one of their number and thereafter follows a venturesome course on the high seas. In the end he returns to England, enlists under an assumed name in his country's service, and in a measure, expiates his earlier sins.

"The plot, of course, contains many familiar components; but there are also some new ideas of pirate yarns set forth in a new way."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 18 '14 250w

"Needless to say, the tale is packed with adventure. It is told in dashing style befitting its subject, but it can hardly be commended as wholesome reading for the age to which it will naturally make the strongest appeal. Piracy and bloodshed may glance off harmlessly enough, but not the debauchery and the cheating."

— N Y Times 19:64 F 8 '14 160w

"A rattling, roaring story."

+ — R of Rs 49:376 Mr '14 30w

ROBERTSON, JOHN MACKINNON. Elizabethan literature. *50c (1c) Holt 14-15144

In this volume of the "Home university library" Mr. Robertson presents a survey of the entire field of Elizabethan literature in chapters as follows: A bird's-eye view; Prose before Sidney; Poetry before Spenser; Spenser; The pre-Shakespearean drama; The great prose; Poetry after Spenser; Shakespeare; Prose fiction; The later dramatists.

"A good brief treatment by a scholar, compact yet readable, and finds space for ample quotation."

+ A L A Bkl 11:164 D '14

"The student of Elizabethan literature will find much enlightenment in Mr. Robertson's little volume, especially if his acquaintance with the subject is something more than elementary."

E. F. E.
+ Boston Transcript p23 N 18 '14 350w

+ — Dial 58:24 Ja 1 '15 250w

+ Ind 81:138 Ja 25 '15 100w

+ Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 80w

+ N Y Times 19:479 N 1 '14 500w

"Useful survey, containing much scholarly detail in concise form."

+ Pittsburgh 19:521 N '14 20w

+ Sat R 118:176 Ag 8 '14 1450w

ROBERTSON, THORBURN BRAILSFORD.

<sup>2</sup> Universe and the mayonnaise, and other stories for children. il *$1 (4c) Lane 14-19084

Taking the mixing of mayonnaise as his point of departure, the author goes on to consider the structure of the universe. The table of contents reads as follows: The universe and the mayonnaise; The man and the dust; Rocked in the cradle of the deep; Children of the sun; Once upon a time; The girl who got inside herself; Greater than the hero; My friend the ant.

"The young readers will delight in it as they would delight in a box of good candy." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:452 D '14 50w

"There are some clever thumb-nail sketches, but the color pages are mediocre."

+ — Lit D 49:1136 D 5 '14 110w

"One may prefer the fount of knowledge undeveloped, but Mr. Robertson's treatment is decidedly ingenious."

+ Nation 99:695 D 10 '14 100w

"Some of his ideas are extremely ingenious, and he is rarely dull; notwithstanding the expression 'dry as dust,' he contrives to arouse interest even when discussing the good and bad points of dust. The illustrations help him much."

+ — Sat R 116:sup12 N 29 '13 200w

"These papers will attract and hold the attention of the thoughtful, imaginative child, and will be welcome to those of us who are not afraid of admitting the fallibility of grown-up knowledge on such a subject as the beginning and the end of the universe."

+ Spec 111:1091 D 20 '13 140w

ROBINSON, EDWIN ARLINGTON. Van Zorn; a comedy in three acts. *$1.25 Macmillan 14-16447

If this drama is a little puzzling to the reader it will be because the character of Van Zorn is somewhat hazy and indistinct. The other people in the play are human enough and the plot is simple. Villa Vannevar has become engaged to Weldon Farnham, a successful artist who has painted her portrait, while she loves George Lucas. Lucas is a failure who is drowning his disappointment in drink. Into the lives of these three Van Zorn, who has uncanny powers of reading people's secrets, enters as a potent influence, saves Lucas from suicide, persuades Villa to break her engagement, and induces Farnham to accept the situation philosophically.

"Mr. Robinson gives us a tenuous but nevertheless a real story. But he brings into the American drama today a thing it sadly lacks, and that is character." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 14 '14 1250w

Reviewed by H. E. Woodbridge

Dial 58:48 Ja 16 '15 180w

— Ind 80:141 O 26 '14 80w

"Van Zorn" lacks substance not because it is trivial but because—literally—it is not all there."

+ N Y Times 19:499 N 15 '14 250w

ROBINSON, HENRY WHEELER. Religious ideas of the Old Testament. (Studies in theology) *75c Scribner A13-2581

"It is his aim in this book to present the leading religious views of the Hebrews in their historical setting, and to give some indication of their theological and philosophical value, as well as their significance for Christianity. . . . Three chapters deal respectively with the ideas of religion, God, and man; two treat of the 'Approach of God to man' and the 'Approach of men to God'; the problems of sin and suffering, and the national hope, occupy further sections; while the whole is completed by a discussion of the permanent value of the Old Testament."—Ath

"The discussions are lucid, concise, and as comprehensive as the compass of the volume will allow. The views are modern and sane. The sources, or material used, are the latest in biblical thought." I. M. P.

+ Am J Theol 19:143 Ja '15 170w

"It is on the whole a clear statement of these ideas from the modern, critical point of view, is within the range of the general reader, and will prove helpful for reference."

+ A L A Bkl 11:51 O '14

"There is always room for fresh treatment of results, and Mr. Robinson in 'The religious ideas of the Old Testament' is happy in his selection and arrangement of relevant ideas. The scheme of the book is good. The book is supplied with copious notes, which not only illustrate the argument, but also reveal an exact and wide scholarship."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup251 F 14 450w

"It is a small volume, but it would not be easy to find in so brief a compass a more thoughtful and adequate treatment of the fundamental religious ideas which underlie the Old Testament literature." James Moffatt

+ Hibbert J 12:435 Ja '14 50w

"A brief, clear and scholarly manual."

+ Ind 78:216 My 4 '14 60w

ROBINSON, JOHN HENRY. Our domestic birds: elementary lessons in aviculture. il $1.35 (1½c) Ginn 13-22293

The book is intended for use as a text-book in high schools. The author says: "the object is to tell in plain language the things that everyone ought to know about poultry, pigeons and cage birds; to teach fundamental facts in such a way that they will be fixed in the mind; to excite interest in the subject where none existed; and to direct enthusiasm along right lines." (Preface) The larger part of the book is given up to the common fowls, but there are also chapters devoted to guineas, peafowls, pheasants, ostriches, pigeons, etc.

+ A L A Bkl 10:317 Ap '14 †

"As regards the care of domestic birds and a very popular account of the numerous breeds, it covers the ground fairly well. But the moment this restricted field is left, the author comes to grief. There are literally scores, if not hundreds, of actual errors in the discussion of the most elementary phases of bird structure and life. The pupils who spend a period a week for forty weeks studying this book will accumulate an enormous mass of false information in regard to birds in general."

— + Nation 98:550 My 7 '14 300w

"Very competent book. Before a second edition is printed, the author should get some zoological friend to read over the general introduction, which is not without blemish."

+ — Nature 94:112 O 1 '14 530w

ROCKWELL, FREDERICK FRYE. Gardener's pocket manual. il *75c (3½c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-7553

Just as the only practical cook-book is one so made and so bound as to be useable in the kitchen, so a garden manual ought to be fitted for use in the garden. This is such a book, one that can be slipped into the pocket and carried out of doors, to be referred to when the need arises. Among the subjects covered are: Cold frames and hot beds; Manures and fertilizers; Handling the soil; Tools; Irrigation; Weeds; Grafting; Tree repairs; Insects and diseases. There are tables for planting, rules for spraying, etc.

"It gives in briefest possible fashion an abundance of data about the growing of flowers, vegetables and fruits, its ninety pages containing in little about everything that will come to the need of the amateur cultivator of the soil." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 9 '14 70w

"An efficient guide and useful reference book even to an old hand."

+ Ind 78:212 My 4 '14 160w

"It is a useful book, by an expert." H: T. Finck

+ Nation 99:384 S 24 '14 80w

ROCKWELL, FREDERICK FRYE. Making a garden of small fruits. (House and garden making) il *50c (4½c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-4971

This little manual tells the home gardener what can be done in a limited space with small fruits. Contents: Planting the fruit garden; Planting; The cane fruits; The bush fruits; Strawberries; Grapes; Dwarf and trained fruits; General care—pruning and spraying.

+ Ind 77:421 Mr 23 '14 50w

+ Nation 98:460 Ap 23 '14 180w

ROE, FREDERICK WILLIAM, and ELLIOTT, GEORGE ROY, eds. English prose. *$1.50 Longmans 13-23174

"A volume 'designed primarily for the discussion and practice in college classes of the art of composition.' Its contents are representative examples of the best English prose writing, arranged in nine related groups. Some of the groups are 'The personal life,' 'Public affairs,' 'Education,' and 'Literature and art.' —Dial

"The book provides the best reading, quite aside from its purpose for the technical instruction of students."

+ Dial 56:74 Ja 16 '14 100w

"It would not be easy to improve the selections that have been made by the editors."

+ Educ R 47:100 Ja '14 60w

"Designed for college use, but a good collection for a library."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:162 Je '14 60w

ROE, VINGIE E. Primal lure: a romance of Fort Lu Cerne. il $1.30 (1½c) Dodd 14-4463

A Hudson Bay company trading post is the scene of this story of the far north. When Angus McConnell, the factor, finds Lois Le Moyne in his private office, he at once concludes that it is she who has stolen the company's account book, and he subjects her to public disgrace. The girl refuses to defend herself and will not explain her presence in the office; neither will she forgive McConnell. Her well-planned and relentlessly carried out vengeance is taken out of her hands with the coming of a pestilence, known in the north as the "great sickness," and by an Indian attack. It is only after she has risked her own life in saving McConnell's that the girl finds herself able to forgive.

"There are improbable situations but there is a dramatic quality about them that holds the interest, and the characters are better picked out than in many books of this type."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:327 Ap '14

"A simple and poignant love story, worked to a pathetic and satisfactory conclusion." Norman Bryce

+ Bookm 39:686 Ag '14 300w

"A good deal of fault might be found with the credibility of the details. These objections will, probably, not occur to the reader until he has closed the book, for the story has an impetuous sweep that will take him along with it. It is well worth reading, a vigorous, clear-cut portrayal of both characters and events, showing a marked advance over the author's former work."

ROE, VINGIE E.—Continued.

+ — N Y Times 19:112 Mr 8 '14 300w

ROGERS, MARGARET DOUGLAS. The gift.
* $1 (1½c) Stewart & Kidd 14-724

In a two act drama in blank verse Mrs. Rogers tells the story of Epimetheus and Pandora. She adds little to the familiar classic story but she tells it effectively.

"There is not an artistic lapse in the entire play. We welcome such a contribution to modern poetry."

+ Chaut 72:493 F 21 '14 100w

ROGERS, WALTER T. Dictionary of abbreviations; being citations of those terms used in the professions, sport, and trades. *$2 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-5798)

The book is made up of a list of the abbreviations in everyday and professional use. The definitions are given, and usually, the derivations. The general list is supplemented by a list of legal abbreviations.

Ind 77:355 Mr 9 '14 30w

"A useful companion to the collection of words frequently mispronounced."

+ R of Rs 49:381 Mr '14 30w

ROLLAND, ROMAIN. Musicians of to-day; tr. by Mary Baiklock; with an introd. by Claude Landi. (Musician's bookshelf) *$1.25 (1½c) Holt

This collection of essays on modern music and musicians was published in France in 1908. The appearance in America since that date of the author's musical novel "Jean Christophe" has prepared readers for this translation of his critical work. There are chapters on: Berlioz; Wagner; Camille Saint-Saëns; Vincent d'Indy; Richard Strauss; Hugo Wolf; Don Lorenzo Perosi; French and German music; Claude Debussy, with a final section called The awakening; a sketch of the musical movement in Paris since 1870.

"The personal feeling of a writer who is keenly sensitive to spiritual and intellectual impressions pervades these essays. They are impressions in the full meaning of that much-abused word." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p21 D 23 '14 730w

"There is not a page of the book without arresting thought or insight; there is the enthusiasm of the genuine lover of his art; there is no, unreasoning admiration, but the analytical tendency of the modern critic. Coming from such a source, the book is, of course, authoritative, and to those who love music it will prove an opportunity to gain not only pleasure but an outlook fine and high." L. J. Block

+ Dial 59:82 F 1 '15 1150w

+ Ind 81:254 F 15 '15 100w

"While M. Rolland's failure to comprehend what is really French in music is most surprising, it does not prevent his chapters from being informative in many directions." H. T. Finck

+ — Nation 100:32 Ja 7 '15 930w

"It is a collection of papers,—keenly critical, but glowing, fervent, and frequently rhapsodical,—of absorbing interest and quite unusual value."

+ R of Rs 51:121 Ja '15 210w

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Boy with the U. S. explorers. (U. S. service ser.) il $1.50 (1½c) Lothrop 14-19848

On its story side this book tells how William Sturdie, the young son of a college professor, took hold of a run-down Kansas farm and, with the help of the bureau of agriculture, made it pay; how he won in a corn growing contest and was given a trip around the world as a prize. On its educational side it shows what the department of agriculture, the agricultural colleges and experiment stations are doing for the American farmer.

Ind 80:417 D 14 '14 30w

"This is the book to appeal to a boy in these days when experiments in agriculture are attracting much attention."

+ N Y Times 19:524 N 29 '14 100w

ROLT-WHEELER, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Boy with the U. S. Indians. (U. S. service ser.) il $1.50 (1½c) Lothrop 13-25375

All the books of this series have been written with a serious purpose in mind. In the present case the author has aimed "to portray, as far as possible, the virility and continuity of the several Indian stocks, to make us thrill with pride as truly in our forerunners as in our ancestry, to win for every boy a sense of the splendid unity of American life and ideals, and to establish a kinship of brave spirits between the redskin and the white." The search of an Indian boy, who has been brought up in a white family, for his own tribe and people furnishes the thread of narrative. The illustrations are excellent.

"Full of authoritative information, as it passed the censorship of the Bureau of ethnology and Office of Indian affairs. For the older children."

+ A L A Bkl 10:205 Ja '14

"The narrative carries a large supply of information with it."

+ Ind 80:417 D 14 '14 30w

"An exceedingly interesting Indian story."

+ N Y Times 18:756 D 21 '13 60w

ROMAINS, JULES. Death of a nobody; tr. by Desmond MacCarthy and Sydney Waterlow. *$1.25 (3c) Huebsch A15-131

The nobody, Jacques Godard, a retired railway employee living on a pension, dies, and the story the author has to tell begins. For it is his purpose to trace the influence of this obscure person, who left neither money nor friends, and to show the effects of his death on certain people, the porter who found his body, the little girls who carried around a subscription paper to the other tenants, the women who went together to buy a wreath for his coffin, and a chance young man who attended his funeral.

"The point of view is morbid perhaps, but interesting as vivifying those small, obscure corners of the mind on which light is shed now and again by some uncanny agency of sense-stimulus."

+ — Ath 1914.1:sup740 My 23 400w

"He shows us individuals as no more significant, one by one, than single words, and shows us how they gain significance, and live a common and intenser life, when they are united in rhythm."

+ New Republic 1:27 D 12 '14 1100w

"The death of a nobody" is remarkable for more than its inspiration. It is a tour de force as a transcription of the indescribable; of those dim ideas and emotions which are buried beneath the stratum of words, things without material form and color, yet which bring a sense of everlasting actuality, as of what belongs not only to you and to your friend, but to everybody, even those dead too long to have left a trace in the world. The book is one that should be read by all who are curious as to new ideas and forms of art and who delight in what is delicately and finely done." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:538 N 29 '14 980w

"A most adequate translation has been given to this brilliant study in 'atmospheres.'"

+ Spec 113:140 Jl 25 '14 20w

ROOSES, MAXIMILIAN. Art in Flanders. (Ars una ser.) il *$1.50 Scribner (Eng ed 14-30418)

"In this handbook M. Max Roose traces the development of Flemish art from its beginnings to the end of the nineteenth century. M. Roose, who is Director of the Plantin-Moretus museum in Antwerp, has great knowledge of his subject, and has made his record most comprehensive; he treats not only of painting and the kindred arts of illumination and tapestry-designing, but also of architecture and sculpture. There are, moreover, excellent bibliographies appended to each chapter, and 600 illustrations."—Ath

+ A L A Bkl 10:406 Je '14

"The whole book is written in a scholarly and concise manner, and is extremely readable." + Ath 1914.1:386 Mr 14 700w

"Admirable little handbook. For an understanding of the racial conventions that are worked out before the great individualities of art can appear, this small book furnishes excellent material." + Dial 56:431 My 16 '14 150w

+ Ind 77:386 Mr 16 '14 30w

"The six hundred odd illustrations accompanying his exposition, though small, are wonderfully clear and constitute an excellent panorama of the art history of the country." + Int Studio 54:79 N '14 200w

"The little volume is densely packed with information, yet written with enthusiasm and very readable. Few readers perhaps will share Mr. Roosevelt's admiration for certain of the Antwerp Romanists. There are minor blemishes in an excellent and useful work." + Nation 98:509 Ap 30 '14 170w

+ Outlook 107:502 Je 27 '14 270w

+ R of Rs 50:252 Ag '14 40w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:193 Jl '14 50w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE. Through the Brazilian wilderness. il $3.50 (3c) Scribner 14-19126

Mr. Roosevelt's two works on Africa are followed by this account of his more recent experiences in South America. He left the United States with the intention of combining a lecture tour to some of the cities of Brazil and Argentina with an expedition of exploration in the interests of the American museum of natural history. His plans were somewhat changed and the scope of the expedition enlarged at the request of the Brazilian government. The result was the exploration into the unknown regions of western Brazil and the descent of the much-talked-of "River of Doubt." The book is fully supplied with photographic illustrations and there are two maps, appendices giving information relative to outfitting a South American expedition, etc., and an index.

+ A L A Bkl 11:217 Ja '15

+ Ath 1914.2:664 D 26 870w

"It obviously is of scientific value, and at the same time the lay reader will find it an exceedingly fascinating story of adventure. It is the best story, the most readable and interesting that the many-sided former president of the United States has produced." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 1400w

"A book more entertaining than the most exciting novel." + Cath World 100:689 F '15 450w

"It has just the right admixture of narrative, observation, and reflection." T. D. A. Cockerell + Dial 57:449 D 1 '14 1100w

"The maps, appendices, and index are a delight in their thoroughness and lucidity." + Nation 99:748 D 24 '14 780w

"Col. Roosevelt has been able to add one more excellent volume to a list which is already a praiseworthy record." + N Y Times 19:497 N 15 '14 1800w

"A very successful book." + Spec 113:890 D 9 '14 2250w

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 550w

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE, and HELLER, ED-<sup>6</sup> MUND. Life-histories of African game animals. 2v il $10 (3½c) Scribner 14-8541

The preface states the part which each author has taken in the joint production of this work: "Colonel Roosevelt has written the first draughts of the life-history account under each species, and of the introductory chapters on Game preserves and on Concealing coloration.

Mr. Heller has prepared the first draughts of the other introductory chapters, and of the technical descriptions (including the nomenclature used, the coloration, and the faunal maps showing the range of each species). But each has reviewed, added to and assented to the work of the other." The other introductory chapters referred to include one on The country and its history, and two general chapters devoted to the fauna and flora. Forty maps, photographs, and drawings by Philip R. Goodwin illustrate the volume, and it is supplied with a bibliography and an index.

+ A L A Bkl 11:15 S '14

"Though the technical scientific side is kept steadily in mind, there is enough of vital description to make the eighteen chapters intensely interesting as well as informing. Colonel Roosevelt and his partner have really added to the sum of human knowledge a vast amount which will be useful to students in days to come." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 2150w

+ Cath World 100:103 O '14 300w

"The scientific character and quality of the present work is marked." + Lit D 49:1015 N 21 '14 500w

+ Nation 98:733 Je 18 '14 800w

"In the main portion of the book, that which treats of the life histories of the animals which Col. Roosevelt has studied first hand on the African plains, the treatment is especially direct and lucid, and the vast amount of information which he has gathered first hand will prove not only of interest to the general reader, but of inestimable service to our all too small fund of knowledge of animal psychology." + N Y Times 19:245 My 24 '14 800w

+ Outlook 107:369 Je 13 '14 270w

+ R of Rs 50:116 Jl '14 180w

"A painstaking and elaborately published work of natural history which cannot fail to appeal to any reader for whom natural history has the slightest interest. Its distinguishing quality is that its joint authorship has made it not only reliable from a scientific standpoint, but that it is fascinating with all of Col. Roosevelt's insatiable curiosity as to the ways and habits of wild beasts, and his fondness for introducing exciting stories of the hunt, which serve to illustrate and emphasize the points which he wishes to make." + Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 1350w

ROOT, RALPH RODNEY, and KELLEY,<sup>2</sup> CHARLES FABENS. Design in landscape gardening. il $2 (5½c) Century 14-20686

The authors have felt that there is a real need for "a book which will sum up, in a compact way, the most definite principles of design as applied to landscape gardening," and they have prepared this book with a view to meeting that need. It is based largely upon lectures offered in the department of landscape gardening at the University of Illinois. Contents: Elements of landscape design; Design; Color; Planting; Problems (considering Cooperative landscape gardening; Small places; School grounds; etc.); Garden design. The book is well supplied with illustrations and plans.

Boston Transcript p23 D 30 '14 300w

+ Ind 81:255 F 15 '15 80w

"Because of their special familiarity with this theoretical side, the chapters on design and color are perhaps the most valuable in the book. In a publication that contains so much that is admirable, it is regrettable that more care was not taken in the revision of the manuscript, which is at times distressingly involved." + Nation 100:62 Ja 14 '15 280w

ROSE, ELISE WHITLOCK. Cathedrals and cloisters of northern France. 2v il $5 (5½c) Putnam 14-18295

With these two volumes author and illustrator bring to its completion a work that has taken the labor of ten years. Earlier volumes have described the cathedrals of southern and midland France and of the Isle de France; these two cover northern France and Alsace-Lorraine. Volume one is made up of chapters on: Alsace-Lorraine; Champagne; The Nivernais; Maine, Anjou; and Laval. Volume two is devoted to French Flanders, Normandy and Brittany. The illustrations from photographs by Miss Francis are admirable.

ROSE, ELISE WHITLOCK—Continued.

+ A L A Bk1 11:162 D '14

+ — Ath 1914,2:537 N 21 630w

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:426 D '14 259w

"An admirable piece of work one hardly knows which to commend most highly—the text, a charming mosaic of architectural details and well-presented description—or Miss Francis's extremely beautiful photographs."

+ Boston Transcript 16 Ja 23 '15 500w

+ Ind 89:140 O 26 '14 280w

+ N Y Times 19:531 N 29 '14 300w

"The present volumes strike a happy combination of carefully gathered and skillfully imparted information with readable description."

+ Outlook 108:441 O 21 '14 230w

ROSE, HENRY. Henrik Ibsen, poet, mystic and moralist. *$1 Dodd (Eng ed A13-1108)

"Mr. Rose outlines the stages in the development of Ibsen's thought, dividing the work of Ibsen into three successive periods, the historical and religious, the social, and the psychological. In Ibsen's earliest plays, which we may regard as belonging to an introductory stage preceding these main divisions, the ideal, as Mr. Rose notes, was merely 'interestingness.' He sought to please and entertain, but had no didactic purpose. Then he began to realize that he could be a teacher as well as a dramatist."

"To illustrate his points, Mr. Rose gives very interesting outlines and interpretations of the plays; and he concludes his discussion by explaining Ibsen's view of 'art for the sake of life,' and by showing that Ibsen was a mystic as well as a poet and a moralist."—Chaut

"Delightful volume of criticism and appreciation."

+ Chaut 72:302 D 13 '13 220w

"We have no wish to ridicule ideals some of which have earned the respect of mankind by undoubted contributions to its welfare, but merely to indicate the bias which has gone far to frustrate the excellent intentions of Mr. Rose in his conscientious and carefully written book. He ignores or discredits or re-interprets whatever disagrees with his personal conviction, and is aided in the task of self-beguilement by a singular courage to which a constitutional mildness serves both as mitigant and support. The reasoner in Mr. Rose is much ahead of the critic; he has patience, order, and coolness, and, where the intellectual demands are not too heavy, he can reason justly, even happily."

+ — Nation 98:41 Ja 8 '14 500w

ROSE, URIAH M. Addresses of U. M. Rose with a brief memoir; ed. by G. B. Rose, il *$3 (2½c) G: I. Jones, 202 S. Clark st., Chicago 14-11539

Judge U. M. Rose of Little Rock, Arkansas, was widely known as a lawyer of note and a brilliant orator. In this book, a brief sketch of his life is followed by a selection of a dozen or more speeches, among them addresses on: The rise of constitutional law; Abraham Lincoln; Jefferson Davis; Confederate dead; Trial by jury in France; Strikes and trusts. A speech on Immunity from capture of private property at sea in time of war, delivered at the second Hague conference, is also included.

"The present volume shows us Judge Rose's extraordinary felicity of diction."

+ Outlook 107:1018 Ag 22 '14 450w

ROSENAU, MILTON JOSEPH. Preventive medicine and hygiene. il. *$6 Appleton 13-13182

"The modern spirit of health-protective work is reflected in both the title of this admirable book and in the order of presentation of its two grand divisions. That is to say, the author first takes up the prevention of specific diseases, particularly those which are communicable. This done he considers environment in relation to health and disease." (Engin N) Prof. Rosenau's work is supplemented by three additional chapters as follows: Sewage and garbage, by G. C. Whipple; Vital statistics, by Cressy L. Wilbur; and The prevention of mental diseases, by T. W. Salmon.

"Such questions as we have raised are not designed to belittle the value of Dr. Rosenau's monumental work. If he set himself a huge task than some think to have been necessary, no one can deny that he planned and executed it most admirably and that he deserves high credit both for the magnitude and character of his accomplishment."

+ Engin N 72:166 J1 16 '14 800w

"There are, of course, many pages of Professor Rosenau's book which appeal only to the professional sanitarian. On the other hand, it may perhaps be regretted that he does not include chapters dealing specifically with two of the greatest practical problems of our day—the organization of campaigns against tuberculosis and infant mortality. The general tendencies and conclusions of modern public health science are here presented, however, in compact and well balanced form." C.-E. A. Winslow

+ — Survey 31:201 N 22 '13 709w

ROSENFELD, MORRIS. Songs of labor, and other poems; tr. by Rose Pastor Stokes and Helena Frank. il *75c Badger, R: G

In this small volume the work of an American Yiddish poet is made accessible for the first time in English verse. Prose translations of some of his poems have appeared before. The author speaks for his race, and at the same time for his class.

ROSS, EDWARD ALSWORTH. Old world in the New; the significance of past and present immigration to the American people. il *$2.40 (4c) Century 14-17155

The papers on immigration contributed by Professor Ross to the "Century magazine" have been collected to make up the contents of this volume. In the first of them he considers The original make-up of the American people. This is followed by chapters devoted to the separate races that now go to make up our population, the Germans, the Scandinavians, the Italians, etc. The concluding chapters present Professor Ross's conclusions on: Economic consequences of immigration; Social effects of immigration; Immigrants in politics; American blood and immigrant blood. His conclusion, in general, is decidedly to the effect that the present tide of immigration must be checked if American ideals and institutions are to be preserved.

"While he advances no constructive policy and his generalizations on racial psychology are inclined to be over-hasty and biased, the book is an interesting presentation of one point of view."

+ — A L A Bk1 11:101 N '14

"It is a book which should be read." Wallace Rice

+ Dial 57:337 N 1 '14 1650w

"In summing up the value and special contribution of this book it may be said that it lies not so much in any new facts brought to light, or any new arguments adduced or conclusions reached, as in its out-spoken and impressive emphasis on certain important aspects of the situation which are all too frequently neglected, or handled with diffidence, by writers on the subject." H: P. Fairchild

+ J Pol Econ 22:1015 D '14 600w

"Prof. Ross's prejudice against the open door policy is frank and apparent, a prejudice amounting almost to a bitterness which only a brilliant and readable style can conceal."

+ — N Y Times 19:477 N 1 '14 880w

"Of authoritative books favoring the restriction of immigration to America this . . . is perhaps the most readable and the most striking both in its descriptive style and in its graphic representations of statistical facts."

+ No Am 201:99 Ja '15 480w

"The significance of past and present immigration in the nation is dealt with interestingly, if not in all ways soundly."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 680w

Reviewed by K. H. Claghorn

+ — Survey 33:265 D 5 '14 1750w

ROSS, GEORGE ALEXANDER JOHNSTON.
God we trust. *$1.25 Revell 14-1990

"Dr. Ross holds that the present-day reduction of homiletic and theological emphasis to one or two very simple truths and appeals deprives many religious persons of that 'plan,' or 'system,' which they crave in their desire to square with all the facts of life. To meet this contemporary spiritual hunger, he would employ the Apostles' creed as a devotional symbol for a systematic faith in which we associate ourselves with the church of the past while holding ourselves free from the tyranny of words and phrases."—Bib World

Bib World 43:280 Ap '14 110w

"The book is a scholarly and devotional commentary upon the Apostles' creed, and will be welcomed as a helpful contribution to the subject."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 16 '13 400w

ROSTAND, EDMOND EUGENE ALEXIS. Story of Chanticleer. il *$1.50 Stokes 13-22822

Miss Hann has made a free prose adaptation of Rostand's play. She has told the story as a fable for children. Pictures by J. A. Shepherd accompany the text.

"J. A. Shepherd is the artist, and he combines a splendid skill in massing colours with a propensity for drawing that reveals all the shades of Rostand's satire. If one feels any disappointment at all it is in some of the conceptions of Chanticleer himself. We must hasten to pay tribute to Miss Hann's beautiful interpretation." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:438 D '13 320w

"This 'child's' book might profitably be read by grown-ups."

+ Ind 76:557 D 18 '13 70w

"The adapter of Rostand's play has justified her work by the freshness and delicacy of her accomplishment."

+ Lit D 47:1125 D 6 '13 120w

"On its own merit the book deserves success."

+ Nation 97:543 D 4 '13 110w

N Y Times 18:694 N 30 '13 90w

"This adaptation is excellent free English prose. From it the English reader can agreeably gather the matter and some of the spirit of Rostand's dramatic poem."

+ Sat R 116:sup5 N 29 '13 90w

+ Spec 111:1090 D 20 '13 60w

ROWE, JOHN G. Romance of Irish history. il
*$1.50 Longmans A14-1016

In this history of Ireland "Mr. Rowe seeks to emphasize especially the romantic, as opposed to the melancholy or tragic, element which has usually been made prominent by writers on Ireland. He treats a great variety of men and events from the earlier legendary period down to the ministry of Mr. Asquith, and as a result of covering so much time he has had to reduce his account of many episodes to the merest superficial sketch."—Nation

+ — A L A Bkl 11:23 S '14

+ — Nation 99:439 O 8 '14 120w

"In spite of certain instances where Mr. Rowe has missed a fine chance to draw upon the romantic elements in his narrative, the book is a very serviceable one for the casual reader."

+ — N Y Times 19:238 My 17 '14 500w

ROWLAND, HENRY COTTRELL. Sultana. il
*$1.25 (1½c) Dodd 14-7875

The action of this lively romance in which things happen and happen quickly, takes place in France and involves two young Americans, an Austrian baron, a Russian count, an American opera singer, and a marvelous blue diamond, known as the Sultana. Of the two Americans, Tom Mills, recently graduated from a medical school, has a weakness for the roulette wheel; Peter Fulton, his companion, has a failing for pretty faces. It is Fulton who discovers Virginia Lowndes playing goose-girl by the wayside, and who interrupts a motor journey that he may see more of her, but in the events that follow, and in which the stealing, losing, and finding again of the blue diamond play a part, it is Mills who turns out to be the hero and who is rewarded with the hand of the fair lady.

"If the reader is not insistent that plots shall be plausible, incidents rational and characters sensibly human, he will find much enjoyment in the course of events as they are unfolded by the novelist."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 My 9 '14 180w

"It is a decidedly amusing yarn."

+ N Y Times 19:182 Ap 12 '14 380w

ROYCE, JOSIAH. War and insurance: an address. *$1 (4c) Macmillan 14-18379

An essay voicing the tentative proposal of a system of international insurance whereby wars would be rendered less liable to recurrence or, at least, "less destructive and less willful." The proposal is in reality an application of Professor Royce's favorite philosophy of loyalty. "Personal honor," he says, "is always the correlative of some practical form of loyalty, and of some recognition of an obligation." If what is called national honor is often capricious and unreasonable it is because "nations are not as yet self-conscious human beings." They have not learned what mutual loyalty is.

"Not always convincing as to details, but the novel theory is one worth the attention of all advocates of peace."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:197 Ja '15

"Whatever exceptions we may take to the concrete content of Professor Royce's project, or to the analysis on which it proximately depends, it remains true that he has contributed an idea of extreme importance to the cause of peace."

+ — New Republic 1:26 N 14 '14 1400w

"He brings to his task the acumen, the lucidity of reflection and of statement, and, above all, the pure and charming spirit of humanity which his readers long since learned to admire and to love. And it is not too much to say that if they are not convinced that his suggested scheme is feasible they cannot dismiss it as merely utopian."

+ N Y Times 19:535 N 29 '14 1300w

+ Outlook 108:817 D 9 '14 70w

R of Rs 50:763 D '14 100w

RUBINOW, ISAAC MAX. Social insurance.
*$3 (1½c) Holt 14-54

This work grew out of a series of lectures delivered by the author at the New York School of philanthropy in 1912. It has been his object "to give within the compass of one book,—not too large for general use,—both the main facts as to the development of various forms of social insurance up to date, and also the social theories underlying it and the main problems arising out of the movement. . . . It goes without saying that the book is a summary, not an original investigation." (Preface) Part 1, consisting of three introductory chapters, is followed by: Part 2, Insurance against industrial accidents; Part 3, Insurance against sickness; Part 4, Insurance against old age, invalidity, and death; Part 5, Insurance against unemployment.

RUBINOW, ISAAC MAX—Continued.

"The most comprehensive treatment of the subject in English, by an authority."

+ A L A Bkl 10:280 Mr '14

Am Pol Sci R 8:295 My '14 200w

"This study is a valuable contribution to the subject of social insurance. With the present growing interest in these subjects, there will be an increasing demand for this clear, systematic presentation of both problems and solutions." Alexander Fleisher

+ Ann Am Acad 53:338 My '14 650w

"The author has made his book a concrete presentation of the subject which can be easily understood by the general reader. The employer of labor will find the information of interest in connection with the various laws and ordinances which protect the workman. Too much space is given to the European condition, however, to prevent a feeling of disappointment regarding the fullness of details concerning the practical operation of recent innovations in this country."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Ja 14 '14 250w

"The book will be welcomed by the trained economist as the most competent treatment of the subject in English—and the most convenient treatment in any language. The general reader should welcome it still more warmly as the one work that provides him with all the elements necessary for a rational opinion on this important subject." A. S. Johnson

+ Dial 56:57 Ja 16 '14 2850w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:916 Ji '14 120w

"The book will be found useful by teacher or citizen who wishes to have a reliable, clearly written, untechnical work covering all aspects of the problem." C. R. Henderson

+ J Pol Econ 22:504 My '14 220w

"As a brief for state action, and as a guide to intelligent thinking, the book is a most important contribution to American literature on social insurance."

+ Lit D 48:1262 My 23 '14 350w

+ — Nature 93:294 My 21 '14 300w

"A thorough and clear exposition of a subject which has suddenly become of great importance in America. To all students of the many and various problems of social insurance Mr. Rubinow's treatise will be helpful."

+ N Y Times 19:10 Ja 11 '14 1000w

"A scholarly and comprehensive study."

+ R of Rs 49:250 F '14 130w

RUFFIN, MRS. MARGARET ELLEN (HENRY).

* Shield of silence. *$1.35 (1½c) Benziger

14-6567

A story of sin and retribution. A dying confession puts Father Marion in possession of a secret which years and pressure fail to wrest from him. A detective who suspects the truth hounds the priest, but is never able to gain the evidence that would prove his case. In the meantime, the woman who committed the crime spends a lifetime in evading its consequences. But a well-spent life of charity and good works and sincere repentance do not stay the hand of justice. She pays the price many times over. The scenes of the story are laid in America and Spain.

"The writer wishes to give a better understanding of the Latin countries and their ideals, and in attempting this she weakens her story, which is otherwise very thrilling."

+ — Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 150w

"The author sustains the interest throughout, but why did she not relieve the gloom by a little glimpse of joy at the end?"

+ — Cath World 100:687 F '15 100w

"The construction is loose and ill-jointed and the style amateurish."

+ — N Y Times 19:209 Ap 26 '14 300w

RUHL, ARTHUR BROWN. Second nights: people and ideas of the theatre to-day. *$1.50

Scribner

14-4178

"In this collection of papers, new and old,

Mr. Arthur Ruhl, well known as a writer of facile skill and humorous observation, records his impressions of various theatrical entertainments, ranging from Shakespearean tragedy to the lowest forms of burlesque, offered in New York during the last ten years."—Nation

A L A Bkl 10:363 My '14

"It will be seen that Mr. Ruhl is very much a man of observant ideas, and that he can commit them to the printed page in a manner that is continuously enlivening." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 13 '11 1000w

"There is an amazing amount of information about the theatre to be had from the pages of 'Second nights.'"

+ Dial 56:506 Je 16 '14 400w

"But if Mr. Ruhl is more often intent upon journalistic glitter than upon artistic proportion or sound analysis, he shows himself possessed of shrewd insight and ample information. And if his appreciations are apt to be over-enthusiastic, his summaries of plays and players are often marked by admirable discrimination."

+ — Nation 98:611 My 21 '14 650w

"Something of the freshness of the casual and unprofessional playgoer enlivens his observations without their being any the less discriminating."

+ N Y Times 19:194 Ap 19 '14 120w

"It is most entertaining and readable, solid criticism and good-natured satire given in a most simple and unaffected manner."

+ R of Rs 49:503 Ap '14 50w

RUNCIMAN, JOHN F. Richard Wagner, composer of operas. il *$3.25 Macmillan

(Eng ed 14-30364)

"According to John F. Runciman, the greatest personality amongst all the musicians—indeed, the 'greatest man who has yet lived'—was Handel. After him come Gluck and Beethoven; and, finally, Wagner, 'whose supreme genius and indomitable perseverance made him either an idol or a terror to all who came in contact with him.' . . . One would have supposed that one who so worships Handel would have been impressed above all things by the quasi-religious music of 'Parsifal,' which has often moved even agnostics to tears; but this music has 'no charm' for Mr. Runciman. . . . His admiration for 'Die Meistersinger,' both as a poem and a musical masterpiece, is unbounded, and equally great is his enthusiasm for the Nibelung operas as a whole." (Nation) The work is primarily a study of Wagner the composer. The events of his life are dealt with summarily.

+ A L A Bkl 10:363 My '14

"The book suffers from its length; the author apparently had not time to write a shorter one."

+ — Ath 1913,2:666 D 6 780w

"The last chapter is an unfortunate blot on what is otherwise an excellent book. By condensation Mr. Runciman succeeded in saving most of his 421 pages for analyses of the operas and comments thereon, which are among the very best that have been made, being intelligent and appreciative without ceasing to be critical."

+ — Nation 98:117 Ja 29 '14 750w

R of Rs 49:369 Mr '14 60w

"His vigorous affirmations and acute judgments make his book a notable one in the myriad literature of the subject." James Huneker

+ — Sat R 116:708 D 6 '13 1500w

"It contains much sound criticism and fresh appreciation; particularly excellent for instance, being the sensible protest against those who try to regard 'Tristan' as an essay in the metaphysic of Schopenhauer. The value of the greater part of the book makes us regret all the more that it should be marred by the extremely controversial views (to use no stronger word) upon 'Parsifal' with which it closes."

+ — Spec 111:1127 D 27 '13 130w

RUSSELL, BERTRAND ARTHUR WILLIAM.
 2 Our knowledge of the external world as a field for scientific method in philosophy. *$2 (4½c) Open ct.

These lectures, delivered as the Lowell lectures in Boston in 1914, "are an attempt to show, by means of examples, the nature, capacity, and limitations of the logical-analytic method in philosophy. . . . The central problem by which I have sought to illustrate method is the problem of the relation between the crude data of sense and the space, time, and matter of mathematical physics." (Preface) Contents: Current tendencies; Logic as the essence of philosophy; On our knowledge of the external world; The world of physics and the world of sense; The theory of continuity; The problem of infinity considered historically; The positive theory of infinity; On the notion of cause, with applications to the free-will problem.

"Mr. Russell is one of the many English academic writers who possess an enviable gift of expression. The lucidity, precision, and elegance of his style are so compelling that even the unphilosophically minded, will find no stumbling blocks in his exposition."

+ Dial 58:55 Ja 16 '15 650w

"The book is too technical for full examination here, but students and teachers of philosophy will not overlook it."

+ Educ R 49:97 Ja '15 80w

"Whatever may be thought, however, of his treatment of our knowledge of external things, every philosophical student will be grateful to Mr. Russell for his exceedingly valuable and lucid account of the modern mathematical theory of continuity and infinity, to the working out of which he himself has largely contributed." G. D. Hicks

+ — Hibbert J 13:417 Ja '15 1400w

"In some respects it seems to me to be the most important contribution that has been made to philosophy for a long time past. The whole book is of extreme interest; and it abounds with good sayings." C. D. Broad

+ Int J Ethics 25:259 Ja '15 1900w

"The appalling arrogance of the book, its easy disregard of all accepted interpretations both of logic and of fact, these, combined with a style of superb neatness and precision, and an appearance of complete sophistication, compel the reader to rub his eyes and wonder whether it is not all a huge joke. Either Mr. Russell is unfathomably deep or he is, after all, astonishingly naïve and uninformed. Our conclusion is that he is not unfathomably deep."

— Nation 100:83 Ja 21 '15 1400w

"The author maintains the fresh and brilliant yet easy style which always makes his writings a pleasure to read, and though, as he says, philosophy in becoming more scientific inevitably becomes less humanly interesting, it is likely to retain devotees as long as it has such exponents as Mr. Russell."

+ Nature 94:278 N 12 '14 250w

"A scientific method of reasoning that proclaims its indifference to the moral values of life bears on its forehead the brand of unreason."

— Outlook 109:295 F 3 '15 140w

Spec 113:497 O 10 '14 1400w

RUSSELL, CHARLES EDWARD. These shifting scenes. *$1.50 (1½c) Doran 14-7492

This book of reminiscences begins with a chapter on Old days with the tramp printers, a chapter drawn from the author's early experience on a local paper in one of the Mississippi river towns in the steamboat days. His later career as reporter and editor furnish the material for the chapters that follow. The Haymarket riot, the nomination of Harrison in 1888, the second nomination of Harrison, and the nomination of Cleveland are some of the events of which he writes. There is a final chapter on The art of reporting.

"The sketches, vivid and interesting, are well done and give some inside bits of political history."

+ A L A Bkl 10:406 Je '14

"These essays not only deal with their subjects thoroughly, but do so in the happy, easy style for which Mr. Russell is known."

+ Ann Am Acad 56:176 N '14 100w

"The little personal prejudices do not injure the entertaining qualities of Mr. Russell's book. In fact they add to its picturesqueness. Whether he is chasing a murder mystery, or relating the intrigues of a political convention, his pen makes an equally fascinating appeal. To be sure, he betrays the reportorial inclination to make two words do the duty of one, his style being frequently filled with an inflated eloquence, but these are the easily understood tricks of a trade that cannot be shaken off, and they are readily forgiven. Mr. Russell has all the enthusiasm of the born and trained newspaper man for his craft, and in more than one anecdote he reveals the romantic fascination that clings to it."

+ — Boston Transcript p10 My 2 '14 900w

"A collection of 'stories' such as will not be found in any newspaper, but will hardly be surpassed in interest by the products of the most alert and imaginative reporter's pen."

+ Dial 56:423 My 16 '14 350w

+ Ind 78:491 Je 15 '14 40w

"The book is most readable."

+ Nation 98:731 Je 18 '14 220w

+ R of Rs 49:758 Je '14 70w

RUSSELL, GEORGE WILLIAM ERSKINE, ed.
 9 Malcolm MacColl, memoirs and correspondence. il *$3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-11202)

"A reverend amateur in politics," the late Canon MacColl was once somewhat irreverently called. How much of truth there was in the characterization may be judged by a reading of the Memoirs and correspondence. Here are set down with exemplary fidelity, and without bias, the chief events in the Canon's life and his main titles to remembrance. He was not a man of first-class powers, but had a great gift for winning the confidence of first-class men and rendering himself serviceable to them. That a poor Scotch clergyman should have been a correspondent at the same time of Gladstone and Lord Salisbury was a remarkable proof of MacColl's versatility and, it may be added, usefulness."—Nation

"Mr. Russell, as we have said, has done his work well, and given us a very clear picture of his subject. He has, however, printed too many letters, and the chapter on Armenia is far too long and out of touch with present questions."

+ — Ath 1914:1:678 My 16 1000w

"It would be a long task to draw attention to even a part of the interesting phases of the life of the period that are to be found in the letters of MacColl and his numerous famous correspondents, but no reader can leave the book without the feeling that he has been very amply repaid for its perusal." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p19 Ag 12 '14 600w

+ Nation 99:138 Jl 30 '14 200w

"No one cares now for Canon MacColl or his works, but the political student will study with care his revelations of the private thoughts of the great men to whom he wrote."

+ N Y Times 19:537 N 29 '14 350w

"It would be unjust to end without expressing to Mr. Russell some appreciation of the skill with which he has edited this work. Its illuminating contents will be a mine of gold to students of the politics of the past forty years."

+ Sat R 117:640 My 16 '14 1100w

+ Spec 112:994 Je 13 '14 2000w

RUSSELL, HAROLD JOHN HASTINGS. The flea. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) il *40c Putnam 14-569

"It is only in recent years that the flea has, owing to its agency as a transmitter of plague, become the subject of wide and systematic scientific study. This agency seems now to be definitely established, and the pages in which

RUSSELL, HAROLD J: HASTINGS—Cont.

Mr. Russell describes the discovery are among the most interesting in a book which abounds in interesting matter."—Spec

+ N Y Times 19:185 Ap 12 '14 80w

"His readable little book should be in the hands of medical men and the public generally, especially in regions where fleas are abundant. We would venture to suggest that if another edition appears the exceedingly crude text-figures should be replaced by better ones; that on page 81, in particular, is really scandalous." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ — Science n s 40:381 S 11 '14 220w

"Fascinating little book. He has succeeded in the exceedingly difficult task of treating his subject clearly, simply, and without jocularity."

+ Spec 112:sup1061 Je 27 '14 200w

RUSSELL, WATERMAN S. C. Iceland; horse-<sup>9</sup> back tours in Saga land. il $2 (2c) Badger, R; G. 14-10532

The author who has traveled much in this little-known island writes of its marvelous scenery; its government, and of its proud, free people. The book is illustrated from photographs, and the reading of it may turn the attention of travelers to a new field of exploration.

"Rather commonplace style, but informing, and useful as the only recent popular travel account, Bisiker and Annandale being devoted more to scientific features."

+ A L A Bkl 11:170 D '14

"Is almost a Baedeker."

+ Ann Am Acad 55:284 S '14 170w

"The people of Iceland are even more worth hearing of than is the natural scenery, and Mr. Russell has lived much among them, so that his account of their lives is particularly valuable."

+ Boston Transcript p1 Ag 22 '14 400w

+ N Y Times 20:30 Ja 24 '15 100w

"Mr. Russell is fortunate in having found a corner of the world at once so picturesque and so little written of."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 23 '14 650w

RYAN, MRS. MARAH ELLIS (MARTIN). House of the dawn. il $1.35 (1c) McClurg 14-18881

A romance of Old Mexico. Under the care of a company of nuns Donna Sancha comes to the new world to find the lover to whom she had been betrothed in Spain. She had been but a child at the time, but letters, written, altho she does not know it, by another hand, have kept alive a devotion to Marco de Ordoño. She comes to Mexico to find the Marco of the letters—but such a Marco has never existed as she learns after many troubled days. And it is only after long and perilous adventures that take her far into the north in company with Tristan Rueda, the heretic painter, that she finds that it was he who had written the words that had lured her to New Spain. The author draws a brilliant picture of the corrupt, priest-ridden Spanish court, and contrasts with it the wonderful peace of the Navajo land in which Tristan and Sancha find sanctuary.

"This is a worthy successor to tales of romantic lands in Mexico and the California coast. Her love for the field in which she has found so much of charm is amply shown in all her tales and nowhere more than this."

+ Boston Transcript p20 D 23 '14 400w

+ N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3 '15 270w

RYLEY, ARTHUR BERESFORD. Old paste: a<sup>8</sup> monograph for art collectors. il $12.50 Doran (Eng ed 14-11288)

A history of the use of paste by jewelers, beginning with the Egyptian predynastic period. "Part of the interest of the volume lies in the presentation of the fact that during the greater part of its history paste was not associated with anything spurious, but received the same fine treatment at the hands of the ancient jeweller and goldsmith as did the most precious stones." (Ath)

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 18 90w

"The book is beautifully got up."

+ Ath 1913,2:565 N 15 40w

"Scholarly account. Except for the admirable colour reproduction of the 'Bonus eventus' panel in lapis lazuli paste in the British museum, which forms the frontispiece, the illustrations are somewhat disappointing, and far from being agreeably displayed upon the page, of the large size of which due advantage seems hardly to have been taken; and it is not easy therefore to fathom the reason for the adoption of such a big format for the volume and such a very large type for the text."

+ — Int Studio 52:339 Je '14 180w

S*SABATIER, PAUL. France to-day; its religious orientation; tr. from the 2d French ed. by H: B. Binns. $2 Dutton (Eng ed W13-77)

"It is not far wrong to say that what M. Sabatier attempts to set before us in this volume is the need, and the suggestions to fill that need, of an intellectual ideal of life that will supply for France today the repudiated authority of ecclesiasticism." (Boston Transcript) "It is a study of contemporary religion in France from a purely sociological point of view. The author takes neither Catholic, nor Protestant, nor atheistic ground in studying his fellow-countrymen. He is primarily French, looking with admirable perspective at the whole national life as that of an organism, or group, having a character and existence of its own, which transcends and envelopes Catholic, Protestant, and atheist alike." (Bib World)

A L A Bkl 10:149 D '13

"The translation is adequate, if uninspired, and we commend the book to the serious reader."

+ Ath 1913,2:85 Jl 26 170w

"A deeply interesting and informing essay, not merely stating facts, but weaving them into a sym pathetic treatment which gives a view of France at an angle not familiar to many outsiders."

+ Bib World 42:391 D '13 650w

"The reader will find M. Sabatier's book a profound and important contribution to the intellectual interests of France today."

+ Boston Transcript p6 O 8 '13 350w

"It would require a volume to point out all the inaccuracies of fact and of philosophical statement with which this book teems. On every page we realize how utterly out of sympathy the author is with the true 'ethos' and spirit of Catholicism."

— Cath World 98:682 F '14 1250w

"M. Paul Sabatier is wise, witty, 'readable,' eloquent and thoroughly human. He is neither clerically solemn, profoundly and drearily metaphysical, nor clownishly popular. A book in which breadth of vision does not blur detail."

+ N Y Sun p9 D 27 '13 1000w

N Y Times 18:513 O 5 '13 430w

N Y Times 18:677 N 30 '13 220w

"M. Sabatier is thoroughly inconsistent."

— Sat R 116:sup6 O 11 '13 750w

SABATINI, RAFAEL. Torquemada and the Spanish inquisition. 2d ed il $3.75 Bren-<sup>1</sup> tano's (Eng ed A14-814)

"The correct description of this book would be 'The inquisition in Spain down to the death of Torquemada,' for there is no mention either of its achievements in Spanish America or of the gradual decay of the Holy Office until its duties came to be, as they are to-day, confined to the searching out of printed heresies only. Mr. Sabatini bases the greater part of his book on Llorente's works." (Ath) "Disclaiming Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish interest, he claims to write dispassionately. Certainly he abstains from abuse as much as from eulogy, and if at times he seems rather to go out of his way to vindicate the Jew, it is probably because he feels that this side of the case has seldom been adequately stated for English readers." (Sat R)

"Mr. Sabatini's book contains evidence of considerable research; he is perhaps a little too ready to dwell on the horrors of his subject; but we can scarcely expect them to be overlooked, and he is conspicuously fair to Roman Catholics as a body."

+ — Ath 1913.2:251 S 13 300w

"He partially atones for ignorance of Lea by a very considerable acquaintance with the various Spanish writers, ancient and modern, on his subject."

+ — Nation 98:243 Mr 5 '14 350w

"While it is to be regretted that Mr. Sabatini has not made use of all the sources which were accessible, and especially of Lea's classic researches, he has written a book of considerable interest, and so far as it goes, of sufficient reliability as regards the main facts of the early history of the Inquisition in Spain." Joseph Jacobs

+ — N Y Times 18:727 D 7 '13 1000w

"Mr. Sabatini gives a careful and interesting account of the main incidents in the life of Torquemada, while he also contributes a remarkable character study of the man. He gives, too, a vivid description of the expedients employed by the inquisitors for producing acute physical anguish, and he spares us little of their horror and gruesomeness."

+ — Sat R 116:372 S 20 '13 380w

SABEN, MOWRY. Spirit of life. *$1.50 (2c) Kennerley 14-14506

A volume containing essays on: Nature; Society and solitude; Heroes and hero-worship; Morals; Sex; Literature and democracy; The superstition of heredity; The loneliness of life; Conservatism and reform. While the author holds much in common with the group of younger writers who have the right, for the present moment, to call themselves "modern," he does not break ties with the older generation. He quotes Walter Pater to the effect that "those who undergo the shock of spiritual or intellectual change sometimes fail to recognize their debt to the deserted cause." He himself is not ashamed to acknowledge, by liberal quotation, his debt to Emerson, Carlyle, Tennyson, and even the Quaker Whittier.

"These are the essays of a student of philosophy rather than of a newspaper man. But they are the work of a consciously 'modern' thinker, a person a little impatient with the inefficient past and defiant of the smug present."

+ — Nation 99:664 D 3 '14 530w

"He does not quite prove his case either as an idealist or as a skeptic, but says a good deal that is true, if not necessarily new, about each. In the later chapters there is an outspoken vein of psychological meditation that is evidently meant to be startling in its lack of reticence, and in a number of pages is both morbid and indelicate. Perhaps it is fair to say that the metaphysical portions of the book show a sounder preparation for the interpretation of 'experience' than the social portions do."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 S 17 '14 330w

SABIN, EDWIN LEGRAND. Kit Carson days (1809-1868). il *$3 McClurg 14-11336

"It is a vanished America that Edwin L. Sabin tells us of in 'Kit Carson days,' an America of trappers and Indians, of boundless forests and unlimited and uninhabited plains. . . . In every instance where it is possible the author has gone to contemporary writers for his data. He has interviewed practically every living man who was in any way associated with Kit Carson, and then has woven together this information in a manner only possible to such a man as Mr. Sabin, who, besides being a born story writer, knows his west. His illustrations, too, are taken in large part from contemporary woodcuts or engravings of a little later period."

—Springfield Republican

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 370w

"Mr. Sabin has chosen an excellent subject, and treated it admirably."

+ Dial 57:343 N 1 '14 480w

+ N Y Times 20:18 Ja 17 '15 160w

"We have a great mass of literature about our old west, but there is perhaps no single volume which the author has gone to more pains to make authentic and valuable, not only for one reading, but as a reference book. To those who love bona fide stories of the west that has passed, 'Kit Carson days' can hardly be too strongly recommended."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 15 '14 370w

SADLER, WILLIAM SAMUEL. Worry and nervousness; or, The science of self-mastery. il *$1.50 (1c) McClurg 14-19396

Part 1 of this book is made up of a careful study of nervous states; part 2 takes up methods of treatment. The author makes a classification of seven sorts of nervousness, based on his own study of the cases that have come under his care. As methods of treatments he advocates: The study or substitution cure; The rest or play cure; The work or occupation cure; The social service cure; etc. There are also interesting chapters on Educational therapeutics; Decision development; and The relief of repressed emotions.

"It discusses every phase of nervousness and its hygiene and treatment; and the discussion throughout is presented in a clear, graceful style." M. V. O'Shea

+ Dial 58:50 Ja 16 '15 1000w

SAINT, LAWRENCE B. Knight of the cross. il *$1.50 (5c) Jacobs 14-18106

An allegory that invites comparison with Bunyan. It recounts the journey of Christian from the Lodge of spiritual service to the King's city in Emanuel's land. It tells of his meeting with various persons, Light Heart, Indifference, and so on; of his temptations and adventures. The book is illustrated with seven pictures in color by the author.

Dial 57:511 D 16 '14 130w

ST. MARS, F. On nature's trail il *$2 Doran A15-128

"These tales, which have already appeared in various magazines, are written in a vivid style reminiscent of Mr. Kipling's 'Jungle books.'" (Ath) Mr. St. Mars "dwells on the bloody and cruel character of animal life. But his beasts are strong and happy beasts. It was an original notion to make a half-tame puma escape in a deer forest, to introduce a mongoose into a larch wood, and to turn a wolverine loose to plague McTavish, the gamekeeper." (Spec)

"Should prove popular with lovers of animal stories. The illustrations, by Mr. Ernest Aris, are excellent, and artistically mounted."

+ Ath 1912.2:310 S 21 40w

Nation 98:164 F 12 '14 150w

+ N Y Sun p4 N 29 '13 40w

"One of the most fascinating of the nature books of the season."

+ N Y Times 18:756 D 21 '13 100w

"Read at short intervals each story seems excellent."

+ Spec 109:sup782 N 16 '12 150w

SALAMAN, MALCOLM CHARLES. French color prints of the 18th century. il *$12 Lippincott

"Mr. Salaman has brought together a typical series of fifty examples of old colour-prints. . . . In his entertaining and illuminating essay he sketches the history of the French colour print of the eighteenth century from the mezzotint process invented by the unfortunate Le Blon, who is represented by two examples, to the later stages when the aquatint process became general."—Int Studio

"The author of the essay has wit and knowledge; but he occasionally indulges in erratic

SALAMAN, MALCOLM CHARLES—Continued. English. A noble volume and will be treasured by many collectors and lovers of art."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '14 570w

"A volume of great and permanent interest."

+ Int Studio 51:246 Ja '14 400w

"The book is valuable as an art contribution. It makes available and accessible in compact form a good representation of the work of the best men of the eighteenth century in this particular field, and is well worth the attention of the student of the French art of the period."

+ Int Studio 51:sup174 Ja '14 300w

"His text is a most illuminative help not only to an esthetic understanding of the subjects presented, but to an appreciation of the processes employed in the production of such suavely gradated tones."

+ Lit D 48:28 Ja 3 '14 300w

"One must welcome the present book, even though some of the half-tone plates are rather flat in modelling and color."

+ — Nation 98:312 Mr 19 '14 850w

SALAMAN, MALCOLM CHARLES. Great painter-etchers from Rembrandt to Whistler; ed. by C. Holme. il $3 Lane 14-2883

This volume, which was issued as the special winter number of the "International studio" "is devoted to etchers from Rembrandt, who died in 1669, to Legros, who died in 1911. Though the list is a very long one, the text gives some vivid indication of each man's peculiar place in the art of etching. There are upwards of two hundred illustrations." (Outlook)

A L A Bkl 11:66 O '14

"This volume is acceptable as a succinct account of one of the minor arts from the modern point of view, accompanied by some 200 illustrations well printed, and, as a rule, well selected."

+ — Ath 1913,2:630 N 29 300w

"Such a book could hardly fail to stimulate a vivid interest in this noble art."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 180w

"The tone of the book and the selection of etchers to be included indicate a critical spirit joined to catholicity—a combination ever welcome."

+ Nation 98:736 Je 18 '14 320w

+ Outlook 106:650 Mr 21 '14 80w

"The beauty and charm of this collection illuminated by the vivacious and inspiring text, can only be estimated by an actual survey of the number."

+ R of Rs 49:378 Mr '14 60w

"The 'International studio' is to be congratulated upon this collection of reproductions of some of the finest etchings ever executed, and the admirable notes which accompany them."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 30 '14 550w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:193 Jl '14 60w

SALEEBY, CALEB WILLIAMS. Progress of eugenics. il $1.50 Funk 14-12903

"Dr. Saleeby divides eugenics into natural or primary and natural or secondary. Natural eugenics is further sub-divided into positive, negative, and preventive. Few eugenists would support him in classing as eugenics much that he includes under the heading 'natural,' yet they would agree with him in general as to the desirability of making as favourable as possible the external conditions which influence nurture before and after birth, and of making education a real preparation for all that is important in life, including parenthood. Positive eugenics means 'the encouragement of worthy parenthood,' negative eugenics 'the discouragement of unworthy parenthood,' and preventive eugenics, the combating of 'racial poisons,' venereal diseases, alcohol, and lead."—Nature

"The subject is fairly well covered in a diffuse and rather pompous style."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:106 N '14

"Dr. Saleeby's book is primarily suitable for the interested inquirer, and forms a good introductory manual, giving a plain interpretation of common-sense eugenics."

+ — Ath 1914,1:820 Je 13 950w

"He would have succeeded better if he had himself maintained a more scientific attitude. Nevertheless, there is much contained in the book that is sensible and is presented with considerable force and literary skill, and this circumstance makes its faults all the more regrettable."

+ — Nature 93:527 Jl 23 '14 330w

+ R of Rs 50:637 N '14 50w

"A comprehensive and trustworthy statement."

+ Spec 112:795 My 9 '14 70w

SALMON, PERCY R. (RICHARD PENLAKE, pseud.). Book of modern Palestine for boys and girls. il $2 (2c) Sully & Kleinteich

"The purpose of this volume is to put before the young reader, in very simple language, an account of the present condition of Palestine from an unsectarian point of view, and without any attempt to discuss the controversial matters connected with the country." (Preface) A long residence in Palestine—where he lives and dresses like a native—has qualified the author to write of the country. He has arranged his material as tho he were describing a single tour thru the country—but the book is actually based on many journeys. There are sixteen colored plates and many small drawings scattered thru the text.

"The book is brimful of pleasant travel talk which throws light on many a Biblical incident and scene. The illustrations, too, are most helpful."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup678 D 6 150w

SALZMANN, LOUIS FRANCIS. English industries of the middle ages. *$2 Houghton 13-35968

"The author takes up the important mediaeval industries, one by one, and shows where they were centred, to what extent they were developed, and the methods which were employed in them. He deals with mining, quarrying, and several kinds of manufacturing, and at the end of his book gives an instructive chapter on the ways in which mediaeval industries were controlled."—N Y Times

"The book is extremely useful. A good index of 20 pages makes it easy to use this collection of facts. The lapses, such as omission of references are relatively few." D. C. Munro

+ — Am Econ R 4:364 Je 14 500w

"A volume that contains much recondite knowledge, to which students of English industrial life will often gladly refer." Howard Gray

+ Am Hist R 20:136 O '14 530w

+ A L A Bkl 10:193 Ja '14

"Each of his interesting chapters would bear expansion into a volume."

+ Ath 1913,2:272 S 20 800w

"The book is authoritative, precise, based upon careful study of documentary evidence, and is surprisingly comprehensive. There is no lack of specific facts and figures, yet these are all presented in an engagingly lucid style, entirely free from any tendency to apotheosize statistics."

+ Dial 56:28 Ja 1 '14 350w

"Perhaps the most pleasing feature about the book is its absolute freedom from any form of pedantry." Conyers Read

+ J Pol Econ 22:708 Jl '14 600w

"From it one may get a very good conception of conditions prevailing in the pre-Elizabethan days."

+ N Y Times 18:599 N 2 '13 100w

"It must be admitted that the volume is not excitingly interesting to any but one already rather deep in the subject." J. T. Shotwell

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:343 Je '14 320w

"Such a book as this, a morning star in the cultural literature of industry (yet to appear) is of extraordinary value just now."

+ School Arts Magazine 13:102 Ja '14 180w

Spec 113:753 N 28 '14 200w

SALZMANN, LOUIS FRANCIS. Henry II. (Kings and queens of England) il $2.50
Houghton 14-22014

"What Mr. Salzmann has given us is a succinct and straightforward narrative of the events of Henry's reign, with three concluding chapters on legal and constitutional matters, finance, and the English nation under Henry II." The limits of the volume offer small space for fresh material, but the author has used the fundamental sources well and has drawn to excellent purpose upon that inexhaustible mine of information for the twelfth century, the Pipe rolls.—Am Hist R

"Less vivid than Mrs. Green's little volume on the same subject, Mr. Salzmann's is still not dull, and both in research and in point of view it reflects the advance of historical study in twenty-five years." C. H. H.

+ Am Hist R 20:190 O '14 220w

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 15 '14 550w

"It is the sort of book that students of English mediæval history have long felt the need of."

+ Dial 57:258 O 1 '14 320w

+ Educ R 49:96 Ja '15 100w

SALZMANN, LOUIS FRANCIS. Mediæval byways. il $1.75 Houghton 14-30090

"Mr. Salzmann has followed up his 'English industries of the middle ages' by an even more engaging volume. Busied in researches at the Record office, he has stepped aside to collect 'any strange or unusual entry,' and has thus accumulated a store of little facts that illuminate vividly the lives of our mediæval ancestors—their travels, their cargoes of imports and exports, their consultations with physicians and with wizards, and their frequently insolent demeanour towards their neighbors and towards persons set in authority."—Ath

"If one does not take this little book too seriously—no more so than the author—he will find it to afford a few hours of entertaining reading." H. L. C.

+ Am Hist R 19:680 Ap '14 210w

"Quaint and scholarly essays. Rather expensive except for large collections."

+ A L A Bkl 10:235 F '14

"Amusing and instructive chronicle."

+ Ath 1913.2:692 D 13 550w

"Mr. George E. Kruger's drawings show careful study from the life of the time and his work adds greatly to the charm of the book."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 11 '13 350w

+ Dial 56:254 Mr 16 '14 280w

Nation 98:437 Ap 16 '14 110w

"We shall be surprised if anyone who takes up this book does not read it through at a sitting—so good and gay-hearted it is."

+ Spec 112:274 F 14 '14 130w

SAMPSON, ALDEN. Studies in Milton and an essay on poetry. il $2.12 Moffat 13-26432

The three essays that make up the contents of this book are: From Lycidas to Paradise lost; Milton's confession of faith; and Certain aspects of the poetic genius. The first essay "is devoted to a study of the sonnets, but it is so discursive and inclusive in its methods of treatment that it brings out much of the charm of the youthful poet of 'Comus,' much of the grandeur of the blind epic bard," and not a little of the strenuous nobility of the Milton of the prose period. . . . The second essay, 'Milton's confession of faith,' is something of a 'tour de force' through a protracted parallel drawn between Milton and George Fox. . . . In the concluding essay Plato shares with Milton our author's allegiance, with Wordsworth and Emerson almost admitted to the inner circle." (Nation)

"Discursive studies written by a careful Milton scholar in a spirit of enthusiastic appreciation for the pure quality of poetry, as far as possible removed from ordinary dry-as-dust criticism."

+ A L A Bkl 10:317 Ap '14

+ Dial 57:108 Ag 16 '14 500w

"Mr. Sampson, in our judgment, has safely made his way between the sand hills of aridity and the bogs of fatuity. He knows his Milton thoroughly, but he loves him even more thoroughly. He writes with the public in view, yet he never descends, either in style or in substance, to a presentation of his great theme that suggests thinness or smartness. On the contrary, fulness of reading and depth of loving meditation are evident on almost every page."

+ Nation 98:266 Mr 12 '14 1150w

"Timely book—admirably written, stimulating, and necessary."

+ Sat R 117:769 Je 13 '14 2000w

"Those who already know Milton will find Mr. Sampson's criticism just a little commonplace."

— Spec 112:1000 Je 13 '14 120w

SAMPSON, RALPH ALLEN. The sun. (Cambridge bridge manuals of science and literature) il $40c (1c) Putnam 11-13234

The author's aim in preparing this Cambridge manual has been to provide the general reader with "something like a report upon the present position of fact and theory relating to the sun." The chapters take up: Science and the sun; The sun's output of heat; The sun as a mechanical centre of the world; The spectroscope; Description of the sun's surface; Periodicity of the sun; Eclipses of the sun; The sun as a star. There are a number of diagrams and illustrations from photographs. A bibliography is provided and the book is indexed.

"Sums up admirably for the general reader the present position of fact and theory about the sun."

+ A L A Bkl 11:159 D '14 †

"The style and weight of this discussion fits it very well for the high-school library."

+ School R 23:67 Ja '15 140w

SAMUEL, ELIZABETH IDA. Story of iron. il $75c (2c) Penn 14-14568

A volume in a series for young readers in which the inner workings of great industries are described in story form. Billy Bradford takes a position as office boy in an iron foundry. Billy is ambitious and wants to learn all about iron from the beginning, where it comes from, how it is mined, melted and moulded, and how its finished products are turned out.

SAMUEL, HORACE B. Modernities. $2.50
Dutton

"The group of men that Mr. Samuel has included as moderns and has chosen to study for their light upon the problems of the era have one great attribute in common—they are all thinkers and philosophers after their kind. Stendhal, Heine, Disraeli, Nietzsche, Strindberg, Marie Corelli, Wedekind, Arthur Schnitzler, Emile Verhaeren and Marinetti offer a large field of study to the scholar. Of these ten essays, only those on Marie Corelli and Wedekind are published here for the first time. Most of the others have already appeared in the 'Fortnightly review.' The essays are in part biographical and in part critical."—Boston Transcript

"Mr. Samuel is a student and a critic and his summaries show intimate knowledge of the author's works. In the main his opinions stick rather closely to those of his predecessors in the field."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ap 11 '14 700w

"This book is clever, impertinent, sacrilegious, salacious." Archibald Henderson

— + Dial 57:201 S 16 '14 850w

— Ind 79:217 Ag 10 '14 100w

SAMUEL, HORACE B.—Continued.

"As a matter of fact, Mr. Samuel had written a number of acute, and sometimes ironical, studies of writers who interested him. He thought he should like to put them between book covers. This he has done—and a well-informed book is the result."

+ Nation 98:505 Ap 30 '14 180w

"His book is the worst example of journalese we have seen of late years. He has no simplicity and no repose. He revels in periphrases and disguises the simplest thought in a mass of ungainly words. Perhaps the most successful essay in the book is 'The psychology of Disraeli,' which contains some criticism of Disraeli's detractors and shows real insight into the mind of a complex character."

— + Sat R 117:87 Ja 17 '14 350w

SANCHEZ, NELLIE VAN DE GRIFT. Spanish and Indian place names of California. il $2 (2c) Robertson 14-18059

A useful handbook for the visitor to California and a book of interest to all who care for the early history of our country, for in the place names of a state much of its history is crystallized. The author takes the name of California itself; the names of its well known cities, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Monterey; the names of lesser places, Alamitos, Calabazas, Casa Blanca, and gives their meanings and something of their origin and history. The book has illustrations which will give it added attractiveness in the eyes of the traveler.

"There are minor defects in a very useful, attractive, and well-written book." C: A. Kofoid

+ Dial 57:497 D 16 '14 430w

"Unlike other books of reference, this one can be read through with pleasure from beginning to end."

+ Nation 99:714 D 17 '14 200w

SANDERS, ELLA K. Vincent de Paul, priest and philanthropist, 1576-1660. il $4 Longmans (Eng ed A14-698)

"This book is a record of the life and times and work of St. Vincent de Paul. The author, who is not a Catholic, has chosen to treat rather of the work of the Saint than of the Saint himself. Her attitude is always one of impartiality and detachment. She dwells, therefore, for the most part on those features of St. Vincent's work and character which meet the common approval of mankind. She sees the splendid temporal results of so sanctified a life, and, indeed, she goes far in her apprehension of the secret which made that holy life so obviously effective."—Cath World

Ath 1913,2:251 S 13 70w

"To write a life of a great saint so as to preserve at once his supernatural force and his natural weakness, the mystic glow with the earthly environment, is an uncommon and admirable feat, which Miss Sanders has performed more than once."

+ Ath 1913,2:341 O 4 1050w

"We see the willing attempt on the author's part to weave both sides of this remarkable man's life into this account of his career. But she loses the end of one as she works the pattern of the other into the turbulent period in which the man lived and labored." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 21 '14 1100w

"Thorough piece of biography."

+ Cath World 98:537 Ja '14 1450w

"It is an excellent, edifying biography, worthy of its subject."

+ Nation 98:305 Mr 19 '14 450w

"This is an interesting book, well written."

H: A. Brann

+ N Y Times 19:123 Mr 15 '14 1050w

"Miss Sanders has given us a singularly attractive and discriminating biography of a really noble character."

+ Sat R 116:341 S 13 '13 330w

"Miss Sanders has not only written a clear and thoughtful biography of that hero of religious charity, St. Vincent de Paul, based on the most trustworthy French foundations, but she has succeeded in painting an effective picture of the strange world, with its contrast of darkness and light, in which he lived and laboured for eighty-four years."

+ Spec 111:sup688 N 1 '13 1450w

SANDERS, FREDERIC WILLIAM. Religio doctoris. $1.25 (2½c) Badger, R: G. 14-2358

These "meditations upon life and thought, by a retired college president" are published anonymously with an introduction by G. Stanley Hall. The essays were written, Dr. Hall tells us, while the author, still a young man, was in a state of health presaging an early death. "In this condition he sought to fortify his own soul by formulating his personal convictions, in non-technical terms, concerning the supreme problems of human life." Since his recovery he has consented to their publication. The first of these problems is The relation of philosophy to every-day life. Our most crying need today, he says, is, not necessarily a true philosophy of life, but the perception that such a philosophy is a fundamental desideratum. The second essay, on The nature of explanation, is an interpretation of the principle of cause and effect. The next takes up The problem of evil, and the last, Happiness and morality.

"The little book is a good book, and it will do good."

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 130w

"There is a lightness of touch with all the seriousness of these discussions, so that what might be anticipated as heavy reading is discovered to be quite within the range of an average intellect and much to be enjoyed by anyone in philosophic mood."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 16 '14 320w

SANDIFORD, PETER. Mental and physical life of school children. il $1.35 Longmans

A13-2043

"This book may be divided into three sections. The first deals with the physical characteristics of the child. It reports the investigations which have been made on growth and it contains also a full account of the nervous system. Following this is a section dealing with general psychology. This section contains the usual topics that are discussed in psychology, such as instinct, habit, association, memory, attention, etc. Finally, the last division of the book, which is relatively short, gives an account of school activities, beginning with a discussion of the different periods of school life and concluding with a discussion of the psychology of all the fundamental school processes. The book is intended to be used as a general textbook and to this end summarizes a large part of the recent technical literature on these various subjects."—El School J

A L A Bkl 11:156 D '14

"Too much has been attempted in this book for one volume, and hence there is some discontinuity and some lack of finish, while there is no bringing out of synthetic, basic conclusions for the help of young teachers."

— + Ath 1913,2:309 S 27 660w

"It is as comprehensive a book as has lately appeared on these subjects. On the whole, the book may be described as the best elementary review of this material now at hand. The book ought to take the place that was filled for a time by Kirkpatrick's 'Fundamentals of child study.' It is more up to date than any summary of the child-study movement and contains the new material on the psychology of reading, spelling, arithmetic, and other school subjects."

+ El School J 15:12 S '14 420w

SAROLEA, CHARLES. Anglo-American problem. il $1 Nelson 13-7540

"Dr. Sarolea is well equipped both by birth and cosmopolitan training to analyse the question of the aggression of Germany and her lust for world-power. He does not deal in dreams and illusions; he deals in fact and logical deduction. . . . Dr. Sarolea's examination of the problem is candid and impartial. There are, as he says, two Germanys. There is the peace-loving 'bürgerliche' Germany, nurtured on the glorious music of Wagner and Beethoven, the philosophy of Kant, the poetry of Goethe and Schiller. . . . There is the militarist Germany, Prussianised to a rigid perfection, a colossal mechanism based on Bismarck, without soul, without sentiment, bent only on expansion and militarism—a mechanism that will back and hew its way and reap centuries of suffering to gain its end. This Frankenstein has taken control of Germany, as we see in the Kaiser and his counsellors, and the result is a war in which she has not a single true friend. . . . The problem after all is simple, and Dr. Sarolea solves it simply. Germany, like her ruler, is suffering from megalomania—the malady of the parvenu, and Germany is a parvenu. . . . Whilst Dr. Sarolea's book is mainly an investigation of Germany's home and military policy directed towards the long preconceived dream of world empire, he does not altogether forget the human side of the picture, as in his review of the Koepenick episode and in his striking character study of the German Kaiser."—Sat R

A L A Bkl 11:201 Ja '15

+ Ath 1912.2:724 D 14 680w

"A most readable and illuminating book."

+ Outlook 108:815 D 9 '14 70w

"His book, 'The Anglo-German problem,' should be read and studied by all who wish to piece together bit by bit the story that has led up to this European situation. Here is, indeed, a book of the hour. We heartily recommend the book as a most readable and intelligent study."

+ Sat R 118:225 Ag 22 '14 800w

"The only thing we regret in this candid yet generally polite book is a rather too cavalier treatment of the German Emperor. For the rest the book is a delightful and romantic study of the psychology of a powerful but angular people trying to win their way through to success in a difficult world."

+ — Spec 109:1064 D 21 '12 1700w

SATCHELL, WILLIAM. Greenstone door. *$1.25
Macmillan

"This is a readable story of adventure, the scene of which is laid in New Zealand. The childhood and youth of the hero are passed in a Maori village, and the story deals entirely with native life until he is sent among his own people. . . . There are plenty of exciting moments and adventures, with two love themes to supply the emotion."—Ath

"There is a considerable amount of descriptive writing in the first part of the book, which, though interesting itself, and showing a sympathetic understanding of the subject, somewhat weakens the grip of the story. But with the introduction of the hero into white society, the plot is allowed full swing, and the interest grows steadily until the end."

+ — Ath 1914.2:sup96 Jl 18 200w

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 400w

"In action it lags a little, but by way of compensation it abounds in striking and brilliant description."

+ — Nation 99:469 O 15 '14 400w

"The book puts into entertaining story form a reasonably complete account of an interesting phase of human development that has passed away forever. It shows much understanding of the human heart, both savage and civilized."

+ N Y Times 19:346 Ag 16 '14 400w

"In style the book is a little old-fashioned, but it has enough of action and of novelty to make it well worth reading. Towards the end it becomes disagreeably—and, we think, unnecessarily—tragic, and the horror is not quite compensated for by the conventional happy ending."

+ — Outlook 107:1017 Ag 22 '14 150w

"Frankly romantic, the story does not suffer on this account; indeed, it is a relief after much fiction to be able to turn to such a novel as Mr. Satchell has given us."

+ Sat R 118:87 Jl 18 '14 130w

"It puts into story form a vanishing phase of human development that by many will be found highly interesting."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 27 '14 400w

SAUNDERS, CHARLES FRANCIS. With the flowers and trees in California. il *$2.50
(4c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-16592

A popular account of the tree and plant life of California. The author says that he has attempted "to touch in an informal sort of way upon certain characteristic features that enlist the interest of those travelers to whom the state's wonderful floral and arboreal life, indigenous and exotic, makes any appeal at all." (Preface) Contents: In the footsteps of early collectors; Trees of the California wayside and where they come from; Plant immigrants in the golden state; Tree hunting on a California desert; Spring on the mesa; Indian uses of California plants; The Sequoia and its adventures in search of a name; A chat about California ferns; Gardens of the Spanish-Californians; On certain California specialties and rarities; Bible plants in California; Blossom time in the orchards; Some characteristic garden flowers and shrubs. The book is plentifully illustrated, with four color plates, and is supplied with an index.

"A series of charming essays." C: A. Kofoid

+ Dial 57:496 D 16 '14 450w

+ Nation 99:714 D 17 '14 200w

"The book is informative, and it is also readable."

+ Outlook 108:393 O 14 '14 45w

SAUNDERS, GEORGE. Builder and blunderer.
*$1 (3c) Dutton 14-21770

"Builder and blunderer" is the author's characterization of William II of Germany, and the book is a study of the Kaiser's character and foreign policy. The author's conclusions are based upon twenty years of observation as a resident of Berlin. Contents: Germany at the Emperor's accession; Accession of William II; William II and foreign policy; William II and German world-policy; William II and world-policy: checks and disasters; The last stage.

Reviewed by F. A. Ogg

+ — Dial 58:45 Ja 16 '15 160w

Ind 81:99 Ja 18 '15 100w

"Written since the present war began, the book is a frank, fair summing up of the German ruler as he has impressed Mr. Saunders, the work showing everywhere the author's expert knowledge of German affairs."

+ N Y Times 19:573 D 20 '14 1450w

"A shrewd and well-informed analysis of the German Kaiser's career."

+ R of Rs 51:123 Ja '15 80w

+ — Springfield Republican p5 F 11 '15 1400w

SAVAGE, WILLIAM GEORGE. Bacteriological examination of food and water. (Cambridge public health ser.) il *$2.25 Putnam

Ag14-1441

"Dr. Savage has prepared this volume of 170 pages as 'a practical manual' dealing with the bacteriology of water, milk and other food products and air. It begins with two introductory chapters dealing in particular with the significance of colon bacilli, streptococci and anaerobic spore formers as 'indicator organisms.' Then follow chapters on Water, Soil and sewage, Shellfish, Milk, Modified milk and milk products, Bacteriology of meat and meat products, Air and the determination of antiseptic and germicidal power."—Science

"Dr. Savage has brought together into one volume a mass of valuable data." R. T. Hewlett

+ Nature 94:277 N 12 '14 120w

Sat R 117:680 My 23 '14 130w

"From an American standpoint the most serious defect in this work is the almost complete lack of acquaintance with the progress which has been made along these lines on this side of the water." C.-E. A. Winslow

+ — Science n s 40:715 N 13 '14 350w

SAVAGE, WILLIAM GEORGE—Continued.

"Fills a widely felt want, by providing a really practical manual of a subject of immense usefulness in the daily life of the medical officer."
+ Spec 112:supl968 Je 27 '14 50w

SAWYER, JOSEPH DILLAWAY. How to make a country place: an account of the successes and the mistakes of an amateur in thirty-five years of farming, building, and development. il *$3 Judd 14-12586

"Thirty-five years ago Mr. Sawyer bought seventy-two acres of farm land in Connecticut and later he increased it to 250 acres 'bordering a swiftly coursing river.' There was included in the purchase a small wooden house with an L. His book relates with minute particularity the operations whereby this modest beginning gradually assumed the proportions of a great landed estate, the cost of which aggregated a million dollars. No detail seems too insignificant for due entry; many of them might, as he shows, at small expense be incorporated in the building plans of houses costing as little as $2500, to the great advantage and comfort of their occupants."—Boston Transcript.

"It is confined exclusively to American experiences, and appeals most directly to readers who wish to acquire country homes within a short journey from New York. In its breezy fashion the book is interesting."
+ Ath 1914.2:172 Ag 8 530w

"No one, intending to build, could fail to find much help and possibility of saving in Mr. Sawyer's eminently readable and practical book."
+ Boston Transcript p22 S 16 '14 370w

"The book is crammed with all sorts of material, all being treated in an amateurish fashion."
— Nation 99:416 O 1 '14 180w

+ N Y Times 19:451 O 18 '14 170w

+ R of Rs 50:637 N '14 70w

SAXBY, CHESTER LEIGH. Captain of the King. *$1 (4c) Sherman, French & Co. 14-19280

The story of a young boy of Palestine who is fired by the stories he hears of the new King. He sets out alone for Nazareth to find him and offer him his services. It is not till after many days that he realizes his dream, but in the trials that he meets his ideal sustains him and he proves himself to be a true captain of the King.

"A unique and affecting little story." G. I. Colbron
+ Bookm 40:452 D '14 150w

SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN. Joyful heart. *$1.25 (3c) Houghton 14-18286

A book of essays on the enjoyment of life. The author describes the book in his foreword as "a guide-book to joy," and again as "a manual of enthusiasm." In his first essay "A defense of joy" he answers certain critics and even makes reply to Stevenson who said "to travel hopefully is better than to arrive." The essays which follow this are: The brimming cup; Enthusiasm; A chapter on enthusiasms; The auto-comrade; Vim and vision; Printed joy; The joyful heart for poets; The joyous mission of mechanical music; Masters by proxy.

A L A Bkl 11:164 D '14

"It is a blithe little book, brimming over with spontaneous optimism." Calvin Winter
+ Bookm 40:566 Ja '15 120w

+ Dial 57:510 D 16 '14 200w

"It is a book of enthusiasms."
+ — Nation 99:779 D 31 '14 600w

+ — N Y Times 19:489 N 8 '14 850w

+ Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 60w

SCHELL, HERMANN. New ideals in the gospel. il *$3.50 Dutton

"The author's point of view is that of one who believes Jesus was something more than a mere child of His own day and that He established a religion that will be good for all time." (N Y Times) "After a consideration of 'Questions concerning Christ,' and a dissertation on 'Jesus and His gospel in the gospels,' he examines the distinctive messages of the four gospels, and shows us Christ as portrayed in each of them. In Mark he finds especially the kingdom of God and the religion of the inner life, and in John the religion of true life. Further chapters of the book are devoted to subjects such as the gospel and asceticism, culture, work and property in the gospel, Christ and property, Christ and work, and Christ and the church." (Ath)

"Prof. Schell's method is worthy of praise for its simplicity and directness, and his treatment of his subject deserves credit for its spiritual appreciation, though his verbal style is sometimes rhetorical rather than scientific. His conclusions are not likely, one and all, to secure assent."
+ — Ath 1913.2:306 S 27 1250w

"Schell's handling of these problems is never quite complete, systematic, or vigorous enough; but his views are generally just, farseeing, suggestive, and stimulating. His work is really, though not explicitly, intended as an answer and rival to Harnack's 'What is Christianity?' And though the author has not the clear, succinct, trenchant style, which Harnack often employs, he is a better exegete, and gives a far truer idea of the gospel. The book is profusely illustrated, but we admire neither the taste in the selection nor the execution."
+ — Cath World 99:101 Ap '14 1000w

"A scholarly discussion."
+ N Y Times 19:197 Ap 19 '14 90w

SCHELLING, FELIX EMMANUEL. English drama. (Channels of English literature) *$1.50 Dutton 14-18042

"The author tells the story of the making of the English theatre from the days of the miracle and morality plays down to the time of the production of Sheridan's farce, 'The critic,' in 1779, supplementing it with a chapter of twenty-five pages in which he outlines the course of the drama since then until the present moment. . . . After his introductory chapter discussing the nature, origins and relations of the drama, Professor Schelling, in his series of twelve chapters, outlines its progress through its successive stages as exemplified in the work of Lyly, Marlowe, Shakespeare, Webster, Ben Jonson, Beaumont and Fletcher, Dryden, Steele, Rowe and Sheridan."—Boston Transcript

"New life is given by Professor Schelling to an old and much-written story." E. F. E.
+ Boston Transcript p27 D 9 '14 850w

"A comprehensive and detailed study."
+ Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 50w

"An invaluable history and commentary on English drama."
+ R of Rs 51:246 F '15 120w

SCHIFF, SYDNEY. Concessions. *$1.25 Lane 14-5274

"A rather unusual story about artists. . . . Of the two women who play prominent parts in it one is a singer, the other a famous pianist. Both are modern, independent, clear-sighted persons, who act with commendable decision and firmness in a very difficult situation. They are stronger by far than any of the men, with the possible exception of Dr. Paoli—who, after all, is only a subordinate character. No wonder they take control, not only of Douglas Mackenzie, the neuroathenic genius who is as unfit to cope with life as any infant, but also of the very normal Peter Blake, the man through whose eyes the reader sees most of the events unfold themselves."—N Y Times

"This tantalizing book begins well, continues indifferently, and ends badly."
— Ath 1913.2:280 S 20 120w

"This story is exceedingly well written, but is handicapped by a double start. That is to say, the reader, after having been interested at the start by one set of persons, is suddenly switched off to another set." H: C. Shelley

+ — Boston Transcript p11 O 11 '13 70w

"The story is readable, even if it often perplexes."

+ — N Y Sun p3 D 27 '13 150w

"A novel which is interesting, though a little too long."

+ — N Y Times 19:40 Ja 25 '14 200w

+ R of Rs 49:375 Mr '14 40w

"A good story."

+ Spec 111:987 D 6 '13 30w

SCHOULER, JAMES. History of the reconstruction period, 1865-1877. *$2 Dodd (2-4002)

"Thirty-three years have passed since Mr. James Schouler, a Boston lawyer in active practice, published the first volume of his 'History of the United States of America under the Constitution.' It was completed in 1891, in five volumes. But the author thought best to add a sixth in 1899, and we now have a seventh, which, in spite of its distinctive title, is a consistent part of the whole." (Nation) "The narrative of the Johnson administration, in this present volume, is developed from a recent course of university lectures which attracted attention at the time because he took the ground that President Johnson had been much maligned. The narrative is a vindication of Johnson's personality and of his course as president." (N Y Times)

"The whole book is a well-balanced story of twelve momentous years. The index to the seven volumes is poor." H: B. Learned

+ — Am Hist R 19:665 Ap '14 1000w

+ A L A Bkl 10:235 F '14 +

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:290 My '14 150w

"He brings to the work an earnest spirit and a familiarity with the many previous essays, historical and biographical in this attractive and prolific field." H. S. K.

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 19 '13 1250w

"Mr. Schouler has handled this most complicated period of the whole history of our country with a delicacy that must win for him the respect of every fair-minded American on both sides of the Mason and Dixon line."

+ Chaut 72:382 Ja 10 '14 80w

"Taken as a whole this volume is a fitting close to a work which has already found a permanent place in American historical literature." D: Y. Thomas

+ — Dial 56:180 Mr 1 '14 750w

+ — Ind 77:315 Mr 2 '14 280w

"His entertaining and admirable work [is] perhaps the most readable and useful of all the many histories of the United States."

+ Lit D 48:273 F 7 '14 250w

"If he has not written scientific history, he has at least appreciated its spirit, and he has made use of several of the large manuscript collections that have of late been opened to students. Despite his earnest effort to be modern, Mr. Schouler is an historian of the old school."

+ — Nation 98:84 Ja 22 '14 850w

+ N Y Sun p6 N 15 '13 750w

+ N Y Times 18:675 N 30 '13 300w

"A work which throws fresh light upon one of the most difficult periods of our history. That it embodies a special plea distinctly adds to its interest for the general reader. It is safe to say that this volume will be considered in future by all students of the period."

+ N Y Times 19:769 Ja 4 '14 1450w

+ Outlook 106:865 Ap 18 '14 250w

SCHULTZ, JAMES WILLARD (AP-I-KUN-I). "On the warpath. il *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 14-20776

This story follows others by Mr. Schultz that tell of the adventures of a young white lad and his Indian friend in the lands beyond the Missouri in the early days. In this book are described the adventures and successful battles against enemies which led the Small Robes, a band of Blackfeet, to make Pitamakan their chief.

"As a story it contains many incidents that will thrill young readers. For older ones it will be valuable as a study of Indian mental and spiritual life." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:450 D '14 70w

SCHULZE, JOHN WILLIAM. American office, its organization, management and records. il $3 Key pub. co., 21 Astor place, N. Y. 14-3276

The author considers the principles of scientific management as applied to office routine. His book is designed, he says, for the use of three groups of people: the office worker; the student who looks forward to a business career; the executive who has charge of the management of an office. The work is divided into three parts, part 1 dealing with Office organization; part 2 with Office management; part 3 with Office records and systems.

Am Econ R 4:154 Mr '14 60w

"Interesting and suggestive both to office employee and manager."

+ A L A Bkl 11:86 O '14 (Review of 2d ed)

"In general it seems a pity that a book which has so much of value in it should be marred by so many poor illustrations." H. L. Gantt

+ — Engin N 70:1270 D 18 '13 730w

"These facts are too heterogeneous in character to form the basis of a systematic treatise, since mere connection with the physical office is too weak a cord upon which to string so many different kinds of beads. As a reference work it is too meager in its outlines and too deficient in solid substance to furnish a satisfactory guide to the business man."

— J Pol Econ 22:604 Je '14 100w

"He must be a dull person who cannot find here many practical suggestions, as well as a general spirit of enthusiasm likely to increase his interest in his own work."

+ Nation 98:63 Ja 15 '14 300w

"Mr. Schulze's book is well arranged, and the information it contains is lucidly and attractively exhibited."

+ N Y Times 19:20 Ja 18 '14 80w

SCHURMAN, JACOB GOULD. Balkan wars, 1912-1913. (Stafford Little lectures for 1914) il $1 (4½c) Princeton univ. press 14-11321

A concise, thoroly informing discussion first of the preliminary conditions between the Balkan states and Turkey that led to war and, second, of the war between the allies. "The little book should help anyone, whether learned or unlearned, better to appreciate not only the wars which have just taken place, but also those conditions in the Balkans which may, alas! invite another war." (Outlook)

"A concise and very clear review of the whole Balkan situation, with special attention to the historical background of the war."

+ A L A Bkl 11:23 S '14 +

"In his discussion of the preliminary conditions that made war between the Balkan states and Turkey inevitable, Dr. Schurman shows a thorough grasp of the whole subject."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 29 '14 330w

Boston Transcript p22 D 30 '14 280w (Review of 2d ed)

+ Educ R 49:97 Ja '15 70w

Ind 80:63 O 12 '14 30w

N Y Times 19:407 S 27 '14 80w

"Every page is packed with information. The author's style is terse and free from repetition or from the use of unnecessary adjectives. He knows well how to give us a great deal in a few words. Especially admirable are his rapid sketches of past history."

+ Outlook 107:627 Jl 11 '14 120w

"A highly satisfactory manual of one of the latter phases of the vexed Eastern question."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 27 '14 200w

SCOTT, GERTRUDE FISHER. Jean Cabot In cap and gown. il *$1 (1½c) Lothrop 14-14544

This story of Jean Cabot's final year at Ash-ton shows the college girl as interested in things really worth while. College comes first with Jean and her friends, then class, and then society. There is plenty of fun in the story, too, and at the class day exercises at the end, the popular heroine, with five other girls, follows custom and announces her engagement.

"It is a straightforward sincere book, with a wholesome tang of life to it, and much less sentimentality than is usually plastered through books dealing with girls' college years." G. I. Colborn

+ Bookm 40:449 D '14 130w

"The book is likely to be helpful as well as entertaining to the girl looking forward to college for herself." H. L. Reed

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 120w

SCOTT, JOHN REED. Duke of Oblivion. il 19 *$1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 14-16473

A party of Americans cruising on a private yacht in West Indian waters, pass thru a dense fog and discover on the other side of it an uncharted island. Filled with the spirit of adventure, they go ashore to make explorations and find there a primitive community, descendants of an English duke who with his family and retainers had settled there in the eighteenth century. They learn that according to an ancient law any stranger landing on Oblivion must be put to death and are at a loss to account for their own hospitable reception until they are informed that they are to be retained and made members of the community. Rosalind Brinsmade is to marry the degenerate heir to the dukedom; Mrs. Leighton, her chaperon, is to be bestowed upon an elderly counselor. The two young men of the party are to fare better, for the girls picked out for them are very charming, but they prefer to fight their way to safety, rescuing their own party and taking the two girls of Oblivion back with them to civilization.

"Brightly written story."

+ Ath 1914,2:534 N 21 250w

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 21 '14 370w

N Y Times 19:400 S 27 '14 280w

"Warranted snappy enough to tickle the most jaded of palates." R. D. Moore

+ Pub W 86:810 S 19 '14 750w

"Although Mr. Scott is of the school of Anthony Hope, his romance is somehow unconvincing and economical of thrills."

— Spec 114:56 Ja 9 '15 20w

SCOTT, JOHN REED. Red emerald. il *$1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 14-3247

The crown jewels of France, missing since the revolution, were supposed to be hidden in a Virginia cave, and part of the action of this story is taken up with an effort to find them. Aside from this, its interest lies in the career of its heroine, a beautiful divorcee. In the end, with the red emerald, one of the crown jewels, on her finger, she decides to bestow her hand on its finder, a young American diplomat.

"Again Mr. Scott gives us a novel of superficial charm. Its characters are of the well-bred leisured class, its setting their usual environment, its conversation lightly amusing. It holds some pertinent and illuminating comment about our government's policy toward her ambassadors to foreign countries, and the real character of our turbulent neighbors—'patriots' and 'rebels'—in Mexico."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 230w

"Altogether Mr. Scott gets a good deal of action and incident into his story, although he manages it in such an unusual way that the book seems to be mostly made up of conversation."

+ N Y Times 19:48 F 1 '14 280w

SCOTT, LEROY. No. 13 Washington Square. il 7 *$1.35 (2c) Houghton 14-11356

The great Mrs. De Peyster, an envied social leader of New York, is on the point of departure for Europe when she suffers a series of shocks culminating in the announcement that the railroads providing her income have decided to pass dividends for the quarter. Her ingenuity hits upon the scheme of remaining in her boarded up home with only a faithful servant aware of her presence. Her son whom she disinherits because he wanted to give up the life of an idler and become a civil engineer and, too, because he insists upon marrying the girl of his choice rather than the one of his mother's falls upon the same plan, also for financial reasons, of living behind the shutters with his bride for the summer while he pegs away at his engineering work at Columbia. Complications, funny and exciting, follow in quick succession which serve to make the scales fall from the eyes of the proud, dignified, blue-blooded Mrs. De Peyster.

A L A Bkl 11:33 S '14

Reviewed by Norman Bryce

+ — Bookm 39:683 Ag '14 300w

"Mr. Scott succeeds in maintaining the humorous aspect of the tale from beginning to end."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 15 '14 400w

"Such a plot finds its best use on the stage. The let-down at the end—since the more elaborate the scheme the more disappointing the final solution—is inevitable." Lucian Cary

+ — Dial 57:107 Ag 16 '14 150w

"One of the best of summer farces."

+ Ind 79:72 Jl 13 '14 30w

"There are no dull moments."

+ Lit D 49:748 O 17 '14 200w

"This rollicking story is as entertaining a yarn as any one need want for an hour's amusement."

+ N Y Times 19:290 Je 28 '14 300w

"It is one of the season's most diverting light novels."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 16 '14 430w

SCOTT, ROBERT, and GILMORE, GEORGE WILLIAM, eds. Church, the people and the age; analysis and summary by Clarence Augustine Beckwith. il *$3 (2c) Funk 14-6599

A symposium which considers the three-fold problem: Why are so many people indifferent to the claims of the church? Should persons be asked to subscribe to statements dealing with debated and controversial matters? What should be the basis and direction of a fundamental theology of the church as related to the literary, scientific, and philosophical certainties of our times? Sharing in answers to these queries are a hundred and five eminent thinkers of Europe and America. Eucken who writes a brief introduction believes that if the churches cannot find the courage and strength to lay aside formulas which, by becoming obsolete or of minor importance, can no longer be regarded as eternal and indispensable, they will find themselves becoming more and more estranged from mankind.

"Such a volume as this not only makes manifest the feeling that the divisions of the church are absurd, but wicked and dangerous. At the same time, it makes valuable suggestions for a basis of genuine unity, though not formal union."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '14 400w

"The large volume is encyclopedic in its array of the facts of creedal history."

+ Lit D 48:1442 Je 13 '14 550w

+ Nation 99:138 Jl 30 '14 180w

"Quite practical in its relation to the place of religion in present day life."

+ N Y Times 19:215 Ap 26 '14 250w

"A valuable service has been performed by the editors of this volume. A matter of common belief has been put into precise and authoritative statements in place of a general impression more or less indefinite."

+ Outlook 108:284 S 30 '14 380w

SCOTT, ROBERT FALCON. Scott's last expedition; ed. by Leonard Huxley; with a preface by Sir Clements R. Markham. 2v il *$10 Dodd 13-25345

"The first of these two volumes contains entire the journals of Capt. R. F. Scott, written on his last eventful Antarctic expedition. The story of that expedition, especially its last tragic chapters has become well known to the world; in these two volumes the full and complete account is given in Capt. Scott's own words, an entry for nearly every day of that long time from November, 1910, to March, 1912. . . . The second volume contains material not so well known, being the reports of the journeys and the scientific work undertaken by Dr. E. A. Wilson and the surviving members of the expedition. . . . This volume contains the reports which sum up the expedition's contributions to the world of science."
—N Y Times

"Readers who are not specially interested in the books as records of exploration will take them for their human interest."

+ A L A Bkl 10:194 Ja '14

"Mr. Leonard Huxley has shown excellent judgment in the extracts which he has been permitted to make from Scott's home letters; for these always add something of value to the context in which they are placed. The art of illustrating a book of travel may be said to have reached perfection in this work."

+ Ath 1913:2597 N 22 3550w

Boston Transcript p6 N 22 '13 2300w

"The two-volume edition will have a wide circulation, and thanks to the public libraries, will be available to thousands who could not afford to purchase so large a work. Parents and teachers should make themselves familiar with the facts, and the story should be told to successive generations of young people for many years to come." T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 55:518 D 16 '13 2100w

"The notebook contributes an imperishable page to English literature, more valuable than any of the manuscripts of poetry and fiction treasured in the British museum, for it reveals the very heart of a noble man, written in his dire extremity and defeat, yet courageous, patriotic, uncomplaining, unselfish, sincere."

+ Ind 76:408 N 27 '13 1550w

+ Lit D 48:1259 My 23 '14 800w

"The index is surprisingly weak at important points. In all this tale of tragedy the one thing that grips the mind most powerfully is the strong manhood and lovable personality of Capt. Scott."

+ — Nation 98:34 Ja 8 '14 2400w

Nature 92:373 N 27 '13 1950w

N Y Times 18:680 N 30 '13 420w

"The journal will be read with intense interest by thousands of people, and will unfold, at nearly every page, the traits of a very noble character."

+ Sat R 116:581 N 8 '13 1650w

"The editorial supervision must have been hasty, for there are many slips and the text is overburdened—detracting from the dignity of the narrative. The main map is most unsatisfactory." A. W. Greeley

+ Science n s 39:100 Ja 16 '14 1950w

"The finest of modern tales of heroism in exploration has been produced in a manner worthy of the men concerned in it and the deeds they performed. Infinite care has been lavished on the preparation of the two noble volumes before us."

+ Spec 111:822 N 15 '13 1700w

SCOTT, WILLIAM AMASA. Money. *50c (2c) McClurg 13-25066

The author, a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, designs this little book for the general reader rather than for the expert or student. It is published as one of the "National social science series." Contents: The standard of value; The medium of exchange; The forms and sources of money; Commercial banking and the medium of exchange; The value of gold and prices; The money of the United States.

"A clear statement for the general reader."

+ Am Econ R 4:412 Je '14 50w

A L A Bkl 10:318 Ap '14

Ann Am Acad 52:236 Mr '14 40w

"It would be hard to find another so small a volume which contains so much direct and valuable information upon the general subject of money."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 250w

"The book should be valuable to those who do not have the time to devote to a more complete study of the subject."

+ J Pol Econ 22:292 Mr '14 80w

SCOTT, WILLIAM BERRYMAN. History of land mammals in the western hemisphere. il *$5 (2/2c) Macmillan 13-24760

The author's aim has been to make this scientific account both intelligible and interesting to the layman. His first two chapters are concerned with method, serving to give the uninitiated an idea of the means by which the facts set forth in the pages that follow are established. The chapters from the third to the seventh, inclusive, take up: Classification of the mammalia; The skeleton and teeth of mammals; The geographical development of the Americas in Cenozoic times; The geographical distribution of mammals; The successive mammalian faunas of North and South America. Following these are ten chapters dealing with the history of the various mammalian groups. Thirty-two plates and numerous drawings by Bruce Horsfall accompany the text.

"A comprehensive and authoritative study."

+ A L A Bkl 10:235 F '14

+ Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '13 280w

"Abundant and excellent illustrations, logical development of the subject, clear-cut and critical presentation of the data, and breadth of view characterize this standard work of reference on American mammalian paleontology."

+ Dial 56:69 Ja 16 '14 550w

+ Ind 80:63 O 12 '14 250w

"Altogether the book is a useful and satisfactory accession to the library of the general student of science."

+ Lit D 48:274 F 7 '14 400w

"The writing is clear, forceful, and devoid of all suggestion of padding. The development of the thesis is logical and takes for granted only fundamental knowledge, but demands keen interest on the part of the reader. In view of the tremendous field covered and the myriad of facts which are detailed, the text is remarkably free from error."

+ — Nation 98:16 Ja 1 '14 1750w

"This important work is, perhaps, the most successful attempt that has yet been made to bring within the reach of the lay reader a general account of the past history of the mammalia, a history for the reconstruction of which a vast amount of material is now available." C. W. A.

+ Nature 93:553 Jl 30 '14 630w

"Any one endowed with that scientific imagination which can clothe simply presented facts, which can grasp the tremendous significance of a change in molar pattern, for instance, will find Dr. Scott's work intensely interesting. In addition, the numerous illustrations and diagrams make the book a most interesting document, even to those not well versed in the science on which it is based."

+ N Y Times 18:690 N 30 '13 1900w

"This is a thorough and complete treatment of a large scientific subject."

+ Outlook 105:934 D 27 '13 190w

+ R of Rs 49:125 Ja '14 70w

"In the production of this work Professor Scott has done a lasting service to the serious student of paleontology, as well as to the lay reader, and it is to be hoped that the admirably

SCOTT, WILLIAM BERRYMAN—Continued.
conceived and executed volume will have the appreciation it deserves." R: S. Lull
+ Science n s 39:615 Ap 24 '14 950w
+ Spec 112:sup1063 Je 27 '14 420w

SCOTT-MONCRIEFF, PHILIP DAVID. Paganism and Christianity in Egypt. il $2 Putnam
13-18963

"This book deals with some of the more obscure phases of early Christian history in Egypt. Two preliminary chapters describe the Egyptian religion at the close of the Ptolemaic era and at the beginning of the third century.
... To this are added a chapter on archaeological evidence, another on early Christian iconography, two chapters on gnostic developments, and a final discussion of the rise of asceticism and monasticism." (Am J Theol)
"At the time of Mr. Scott-Moncrieff's death, at the early age of 29, the present work was all but completed, though the final corrections had not been made. This task was undertaken by Mr. L. W. King and Mr. H. R. Hall, who have also supplied a summary of the author's other work during his service in the Department of Egyptian and Assyrian antiquities at the British museum." (Ath)

"These pages contain much that is interesting and valuable, but unfortunately they do not deal with the New Testament period and they overlook Hermeticism as a possible factor in the Egyptian world prior to Christianity's appearance."

+ — Am J Theol 18:482 Jl '14 150w

"Apart from its value as a handbook, this volume possesses a special interest, owing to the novel way in which the subject is treated."

+ Ath 1913,1:574 My 24 100w

"The book was well worth publishing in its present form." A. S. H.

+ — Eng Hist R 29:181 Ja '14 450w

"The excellence of Mr. Scott-Moncrieff's book makes it the more regrettable that it was left unfinished. Here and there, moreover, we miss the revising hand of the author."

+ — Sat R 116:559 N 1 '13 1050w

SCULL, E. MARSHALL. Hunting in the Arctic and Alaska. il $2.50 (3c) Winston 14-17273

The route of this hunting trip ran north by the inland route over the White pass to the head of the Yukon, down the river, thru Dawson and the Klondike to Nome, thence by steamer across to Siberia and north to Wrangell island in the Arctic, and back to southwestern Alaska and to Seattle by the south coast. As the author says: "It would have been hard to plan a more thorough tour of this part of the world for so short a time as we had." The object of the expedition was big game hunting and adventure, and the party were successful in obtaining both. There are many illustrations from photographs.

"There are eleven maps and plans of varying merit."

+ — Ath 1914,2:628 D 12 1000w

+ N Y Times 14:441 O 11 '14 70w

"An informal but agreeable and sometimes vivacious account."

+ Outlook 107:943 Ag 15 '14 50w

SEARS, FRED COLEMAN. Productive or-charding: modern methods of growing and marketing fruit. (Lippincott's farm manuals) il $1.50 Lippincott 14-12405

"The whole subject of orcharding is covered by the book, both its agricultural and business aspects being treated in detail. The author evidently has had in mind orcharding in New England and other sections of the country having a similar climate, and his book is devoted principally to those fruits which can be grown in the north temperate zone. Naturally, we find a predominant place given to apples which are the great staple of the northern fruit grower.
There are 155 illustrations, nearly all half-tones, showing every detail of the industry from farmlands and trees to types of fruit processes of culture and methods of packing."—Springfield Republican

"A book conservative in tone, based on intimate knowledge, and one to be commended to the student and, equally, to the man who is in daily contact with orchard problems."

+ A L A Bkl 11:160 D '14 +

"The book is thoroughly readable, and impresses one with the fact that the author has not only gained experience worth passing on to others, but, to use his own phrase, 'he has got the fun out of the fruit business that he ought.'"

+ Nation 99:331 S 10 '14 140w

"Excellent book on handling of young and old orchards."

+ Pittsburgh 19:557 D '14 20w

"The author evidently had the class-room first in mind in the preparation and arrangement of his book, but he has also presented a volume which would be a helpful manual for anyone in the business of fruit raising."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 8 '14 630w

SEARS, LORENZO. John Hay, author and statesman. il $1 (4½c) Dodd 14-17826

This brief biography of John Hay is made up of five chapters: Early years; Formative influences; Literary labours; Diplomacy; and Impressions and conclusions. The author's aim has been to write "a sketch which shall not be too long for the busy reader nor too tiresome for one who is not attracted by the intricacies of statecraft, but who may be glad to know the main features of a life whose value to the nation and the world should be more widely understood and whose example in private and in public deserves study and imitation." (Preface)

"Written mostly from second-hand sources, with no attempt at completeness; yet readable and has its place as the only biography."

+ A L A Bkl 11:218 Ja '15

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 1000w

"Mr. Sears has made a short, sympathetic study of the friend of Lincoln as an author and a statesman, in very readable, simple style."

+ Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 40w

"We do not imply that much of this idealization was not justified; we merely wish that the eulogist had had more acquaintance with the inside facts of Hay's life and work so that he could have made a more solid memorial of him."

+ — Nation 99:719 D 17 '14 130w

"Mr. Sears has written a very interesting, though rather summary, biography."

+ N Y Times 19:555 D 6 '14 1100w

"For the reader whose needs are satisfied with a short account, Mr. Sears's book is adequate."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 19 '14 430w

SEASHORE, CARL EMIL. Psychology in daily life. il $1.50 (2½c) Appleton 13-25709

This volume is a contribution to the "Conduct of the mind series." Joseph Jastrow, the editor of the series writes an introduction in which he says that it follows the general plan,
"which is to interpret selected areas of the mental domain, and to bring the relevant principles to bear upon popular interests and practical concerns." The chapters in which the author considers some of the practical applications of psychology are: Play; Serviceable memory; Mental efficiency; Mental health; Mental law; Law in illusion; Mental measurement.

"It is more cautious than the usual 'success' and 'how to be happy' books and might prove a corrective to the ordinary 'mental health' treatises. It is much written down and is of value only as a popularization."

+ A L A Bkl 10:236 F '14

+ Ann Am Acad 54:325 Jl '14 230w

"Clergymen will find this book of importance in many ways."

+ Bib World 44:64 Jl '14 160w

"It is a book that will not only help a person to regulate his practical affairs, but will give one much pleasure in the mental experiments."

+ Boston Transcript p10 D 22 '13 420w

"It is popular yet thoroughly authoritative; it is non-technical yet scientifically conservative. Teachers, business men, ministers, professional men, in fact all intelligent readers, will find the book at once interesting and profitable. It will tend to give the reader a more balanced insight into the motives and a more rational control of conduct."

+ Dial 56:348 Ap 16 '14 300w

+ Nation 98:549 My 7 '14 230w

"Prof. Seashore has an unusual faculty for putting the results of technical mental investigation into, simple, direct, and interesting language. From his book the man in the street, the woman in the home, and even the youngster in school or college can readily perceive what applied psychology can do in the way of making him a more efficient, successful, and happy human being."

+ N Y Times 19:36 Ja 25 '14 320w

"Professor Seashore has relied to a great extent upon his excellent common sense. Throughout the book there is a strong ethical note."

H. S. Langfeld

+ Psychol Bull 11:263 Jl 15 '14 400w

SEAWELL, MOLLY ELLIOT. Betty's Virginia Christmas. il $1.50 Lippincott 14-18075

"A very pretty, very sentimental little love story with a charming brave-hearted, twenty-year-old coquette for its heroine and a rich and 'dashing young officer' of the United States army to play the part of the hero. . . . It is at Christmas time that Betty Beverley, once of stately Rosehill, now of humble Holly lodge, first meets Lieut. John Hope Fortescue, son of the wealthy northerner, who bought Rosehill when the mortgage was foreclosed. . . . Naturally, the course of true love does not run entirely smooth; a quarrel comes and a parting, and more than one Christmas elapses before Betty does the honors at the Rosehill ball, but everything turns out all right in the end, as was to be expected."—N Y Times

"It is a good, wholesome Christmas tale."

+ Dial 57:462 D 1 '14 160w

"All the ingredients of the standard southern love-story are here employed, skilfully enough for the purpose."

+ Nation 99:774 D 31 '14 270w

"Charmingly written, gay little romance."

+ N Y Times 19:476 N 1 '14 330w

SEDGWICK, ANNE DOUGLAS (MRS. BASIL DE SELINCOURT). Encounter. $1.30 (1½c) Century 14-18113

Some discerning readers will identify the leading character in this story by his philosophy, others by the big moustache which Mrs. Fennamy disliked because it led her to suspect concealed weakness. In any case there can be little doubt that in Ludwig Wehlitz the author has presented a study of Nietzsche. The other characters are imaginary, and there are but five of them, Persis Fennamy and her mother, Conrad Sachs and the Count von Lüdenstein, two disciples of the philosopher, and Eleanora Zardo, his friend who pretends not to understand his books, because she really does understand and detest them.

+ A L A Bkl 11:176 D '14

"A brilliant conception of the interplay of temperaments such as has ever been the theme of real novelists."

+ Ath 1914:2:392 O 17 800w

"As an exposition of Nietzsche's philosophy, as an exposure of his weaknesses of mind and body, as an interpretation of his life, 'The encounter' is masterly in its compactness and brevity. It sums up the man and his ideas in the episodes of a few weeks. The novelist has written in 'The encounter' a novel that is brilliant, a novel that grows all the greater in retrospect." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 10 '14 2200w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:340 N 1 '14 850w

"Told with all the subtle psychology and exquisite workmanship that marked 'Tante.'"

+ Ind 80:102 O 19 '14 30w

Reviewed by J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:404 D 14 '14 150w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

Nation 99:653 D 3 '14 200w

"It is a novel of distinction, not quite pleasant to read, perhaps, except for the exquisite art with which it is written. Although it lacks the strong central interest of the dominating character in 'Tante,' it is able to hold the reader's attention by reason of the interest of the characters and of the emotional tangle in which they are embroiled."

+ N Y Times 19:446 O 18 '14 620w

"There is undoubted strength and novelty in Miss Sedgwick's portrayal. Scattered through her pages are valuable condensations of Nietzsche's doctrines—and perhaps this offers as satisfactory a way as any to become familiar with his bitter code of blood and iron."

+ N Y Times 19:450 O 18 '14 140w

+ Outlook 108:552 N 4 '14 250w

+ Spec 113:854 D 12 '14 220w

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 12 '14 400w

SELBORNE, WILLIAM WALDEGRAVE PALMER, 2d earl of. State and the citizen. (Imperial lib.) *50c (1c) Warne 14-2848

A description of constitutional government in England in which the two-chamber system is defended. Contents: The House of lords at the time of Oliver Cromwell; Foreign second chambers; Colonial second chambers; The powers of second chambers and the provisions for avoiding parliamentary deadlocks; General recognition of the value of the double-chamber system; The nature of the peril of the single chamber system; The parliament act and the single-chamber system; The absence of constitutional safeguards; The referendum.

"The author allows his case to degenerate into a party pamphlet."

— Ath 1913:2:492 N 1 80w

N Y Times 19:137 Mr 22 '14 80w

R of Rs 49:370 Mr '14 70w

"To abridge his thesis would give quite a wrong idea of the book, whose charm is in a lucidity and a logical cohesion of thought which any attempt at abridgment would destroy."

+ Sat R 116:594 N 8 '13 200w

"Lord Selborne has accomplished a useful work in his little book."

+ Spec 111:869 N 22 '13 1450w

SELDEN, CHARLES ALBERT. Everyman's garden, every week. $1.25 (1½c) Dodd 14-4969

This handbook for the home gardener opens with eight general chapters devoted to: Cold weather planning and reading; Saving the family purse; Garden soils, good and bad; Tools that are essential; Garden eugenics; Water whenever needed; Garden mistakes of various sorts; Taking planting cues from nature. Following these come the chapters devoted to the garden calendar, beginning with the starting of a strawberry patch for the first week in April, and ending with the storing of bulbs and roots in November. The final chapter, on Indoor work, considers experimentation for new varieties, the making of mushroom beds, etc.

"The book is readable, containing much humor and wisdom."

+ A L A Bkl 11:15 S '14

"Mr. Selden obviously understands thoroughly his subject and his knowledge is clearly imparted to every man, that he, too, may have a profitable garden, and some new experience in the joy of living."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 350w

SELDEN, CHARLES ALBERT—Continued.

"A book full of garden wisdom, set down in a strong, simple style. Mr. Selden's work is packed with interesting and valuable information, and is provided with a good index to make that information accessible."

+ Nation 98:460 Ad 23 '14 370w

SELECT bibliography for the study, sources, and literature of English mediæval economic history. *6s P. S. King & co., London

"A helpful handbook which originated in connection with Mr. Hubert Hall's lectures at the London school of economics on the theory of historical bibliography and the distribution of historical sources." (Nation) The work is complete in three parts, the third of which is given up to modern works.

Reviewed by Clive Day

+ — Am Econ R 4:620 S '14 1100w

"This bibliography is on the whole the most valuable work in its field since the appearance of Gross's 'Sources and literature of English history,' and every student of English history must be grateful for its appearance. It would certainly have been conducive to clearness and have made this work more valuable to students to have restricted it more rigorously to its announced field and not to have attempted to treat of history so widely." E. P. Cheyney

+ — Am Hist R 20:134 O '14 630w

"The book before us will lighten the labours of those concerned with such studies. Nor will its appeal be limited to students of economic history, for the largest section of the book (Part 2) gives in a hundred pages an excellent, though necessarily brief, survey of the records of England, her sister kingdoms, and her continental neighbours; considerable space in Part 1 is also devoted to records. It is, perhaps, inevitable in works of this kind that there should be one or two strange omissions, and that the classification should at times puzzle us."

+ — Ath 1914.1:649 My 9 380w

+ — Eng Hist R 30:187 Ja '15 300w

"In spite of its amateurish character and its manifest limitations, this bibliography will be of great convenience to the student." J. W. Thompson

+ — J Pol Econ 22:709 Jl '14 470w

"It has the virtues and defects of its origin. It is more valuable as a sort of textbook for a course in the literature of mediæval economic history and as a guide to beginners than as an exhaustive bibliographical repertory like that of Gross, Molinier, or Dahlmann-Waitz, to which students must still have recourse."

+ — Nation 98:547 My 7 '14 270w

+ — Nation 99:326 S 10 '14 170w

SETON, ERNEST THOMPSON. Wild animals<sup>1</sup> at home. il *$1.50 (3c) Doubleday 13-23400

The studies recorded in this book were made, for the most part, in Yellowstone national park, where the animals, protected from their arch enemy, man, cease to be fearful and are ready to yield to friendly advances. His adventures with animals, the author says, have all been small ones, "thrillers are few and far between." He has aimed to show "something of the little aspects of the creatures' lives." His chapters are: The cute coyote; The prairie-dog and its kin; Famous furbearers; Horns and hoofs and legs of speed; Bats in the Devil's kitchen; The well-meaning skunk; Old Silver-grizzle the badger; The squirrel and his jerky-tail brothers; The rabbits and their habits; Ghosts of the campfire; Sneak-cats, big and small; Bears of high and low degree.

+ A L A Bkl 10:236 F '14

+ Ath 1913.2:627 N 29 50w

+ Ath 1913.2:758 D 27 330w

"Outstanding among the season's books about animals." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:443 D '13 230w

"Humor of a choice kind speaks in both the printed page and in the accompanying marginal sketches, while the half-tone plates have the soberer excellences of such products of the illustrator's art."

+ Dial 55:484 D 1 '13 200w

"Fascinating animal stories."

+ Ind 77:137 Ja 26 '14 60w

+ — Nation 98:140 F 5 '14 330w

"The arrangement and illustration of the book are most attractive."

+ Outlook 105:711 N 29 '13 110w

+ Spec 112:sup1062 Je 27 '14 280w

SEYMOUR, ST. JOHN DRELINCOURT. Irish witchcraft and demonology. $1.50 (3c) Norman, Remington & co. (Eng ed 13-24475)

The author seeks in this book to dispel the notion that a belief in witchcraft never prevailed in Ireland. The delusion never had the hold in Ireland that it did in England and Scotland and persecution of witches was rare, but that the belief existed is attested by the stories told here of Dame Alice Kyteler, the sorceress of Kilkenny; Florence Newton, the witch of Youghal, and others.

"The book should prove of value to the student of folk-lore, and is written in such a lively manner that it should secure a wider public."

+ Ath 1914.1:305 F 28 580w

+ Nation 99:413 O 1 '14 430w

"The general subject is a fascinating one to folk-lore students, and this book is a valuable contribution, with queer tales-a-plenty."

+ Outlook 106:866 Ap 13 '14 100w

SHACKFORD, MARTHA HALE, ed. Legends and satires from mediæval literature. il $1.25 Ginn 13-25071

"Prof. Shackford adds one more to the lengthening list of mediæval texts in modern dress. The title is not to be strictly interpreted, for the volume contains, in addition to legends like the 'Purgatory of St. Patrick' and the 'Life of St. Margaret,' and to satires like the 'Land of Cockayne' (somewhat abridged), such various matters as the 'Amorous contention of Phillis and Flora,' a twelfth-century debate, in the Elizabethan translation of Chapman; extracts from the 'Bestiary' and the 'Lapidaries'; and the romance of 'Sir Orfeo' in its Middle English form."—Nation

"Dr. Shackford has attained a very fair measure of success. The bibliography which accompanies the notes on each piece is an exceedingly valuable and scholarly addition."

+ — Dial 56:147 F 16 '14 400w

"There is sufficient variety of matter and of manner to extend to the reader an agreeable invitation to explore further in the byways of mediæval literature, among which the notes point the way."

+ Nation 99:227 Ag 20 '14 130w

SHACKLETON, ROBERT. Unvisited places of old Europe. il *$2.50 Penn 13-25366

"Mr. Shackleton has a positive genius for seeking out places never before visited by the ordinary traveller and for picking out picturesque bits for illustration. He finds such bits in the Forest of Arden, at Luxembourg, in Moresnet, over in Holland, among the Alps, in the Dolomites, in the streets of Naples and along the Brenta. To all those unfamiliar places he takes us, tells us their stories, shows us their pictures."—Boston Transcript

"A delightful and suggestive book. The unvisited places are really unknown to most travelers and the author's fresh, enthusiastic point of view gives charm to his account. He has the seeing eye with reading and cultivation to aid his interpretation. Beautiful illustrations."

+ A L A Bkl 10:236 F '14 +

"He tells these stories very well indeed and lays the pictures before us so that one longs to follow in his trail and see these places which he has seen and talk with these people with whom he has talked."

- + Boston Transcript p23 F 25 '14 630w
- + Dial 56:306 Ap 1 '14 350w
- + Nation 99:23 J1 2 '14 250w
- + N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 140w
- + Outlook 106:603 Mr 14 '14 50w

"He has a delightful literary style; his chapters make reading a joy for his facile English, aside from the subject matter, which is of itself of great interest."

- + Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 350w

SHACKLETON, ROBERT, and SHACKLETON, MRS. ELIZABETH (FLEMING). Charm of the antique. il *$2.50 (3c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-13255

The two authors discourse pleasantly on the subject that is near their hearts. The amateur in collecting will glean some information about styles and periods from the book, but he will gain more in the way of inspiration. Some excellent advice on the danger of overcrowding is given, and the fine points of ethics in the pursuit of the antique are touched upon. There are some things to which, we learn, no true collector will stoop. The illustrations constitute one of the book's charms.

"A very readable and attractive book."

- + A L A Bkl 11:66 O '14

"There are delightful glimpses into human life and character as revealed in searches for the antique, and these constitute not the least charm of the volume." G. H. S.

- + Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 1250w
- + Dial 57:459 D 1 '14 180w

"Its literary merit and human touch will appeal to all collectors."

- + Ind 80:174 N 2 '14 30w

"The book is full of good and helpful advice."

- + Lit D 49:901 N 7 '14 140w

"The talk of collectors almost invariably is good talk, and the gossip of the Shackletons is no exception to the rule."

- + N Y Times 19:355 Ag 23 '14 300w

"To the amateur collector this book will prove a guide and an inspiration. The illustrations alone are enough to arouse one's intense desire to possess beautiful things."

- + Outlook 107:877 Ag 8 '14 170w

"The publishers have done their part in making an attractive volume."

- + Springfield Republican p5 Ag 27 '14 900w

SHAFER, DONALD CAMERON. Harper's beginning electricity il *$1 (1½c) Harper 13-23520

"This book explains electricity very simply in connection with experiments which any boy can do and devices which any boy can make. This introduction to electricity has been written with the feeling that electricity is a friend and playmate with whom we can easily become intimate." (Foreword) Batteries and how to make them, The electric circuit, Magnetism, The Induction-coil, The telegraph, The telephone, The electric motor, Electricity and light—these are some of the chapter headings. A "little history of electricity" is given in an appendix, followed by a dictionary of electrical terms.

"A good book for those making a beginning study."

- + A L A Bkl 10:248 F '14 +

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

- + Bookm 40:452 D '14 20w
- + Ind 76:557 D 18 '13 50w
- + Nation 97:571 D 11 '13 50w

"It is a book that may be read also with profit by grown up people who are not content with taking electric conveniences for granted, but wish to know why, without much trouble."

- + N Y Sun p4 N 8 '13 110w
- + N Y Times 18:649 N 23 '13 90w

SHAFER, DONALD CAMERON. Harper's every-day electricity il *$1 Harper 14-17870

A book for boys published as one of Harper's "Tell me how" books. It gives directions for making and using familiar electrical apparatus, the electric bell, incandescent lamp, electric heating devices, etc. There are many illustrations and diagrams, and the volume is brought to a close with a glossary of technical terms and an index.

"Useful in almost any household."

- + Ind 80:102 O 19 '14 30w

"A practical, helpful book."

- + N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 20w

SHAFTESBURY, ANTHONY ASHLEY COOPER, 3d earl of. Second characters; or, The language of forms. il *$2.50 Putnam A14-2516

"In 1913 Dr. Benjamin Rand, head of the Robbins philosophical library of Harvard university, discovered among the papers in the Record office in London Shaftesbury's 'Second characteristics,' and published them at the University press, Cambridge. The book consists of four treatises, of which the first two, 'A letter concerning design' and 'A notion of the historical draught of Hercules,' had been previously printed. The third, or rather a translation of a Greek passage on which it was to be based, and the fourth, 'Plastics,' are published for the first time. In addition Dr. Rand prints all the notes, directions for the title-page and the illustrations, a preface, and an 'idea of the work,' in which Shaftesbury laid down definite rules for his own guidance."—Nation

"All in all, there is probably no other book which reveals one of the great literary men of two hundred years ago so intimately at work as Dr. Rand's edition of the 'Second characters.' This fact alone would make the book valuable, but it sinks into insignificance before Shaftesbury's searching investigation into the true principles of art. Dr. Rand's introduction is a masterpiece of concise presentation of facts needed for an intelligent enjoyment of the book. His skilful editorship is everywhere apparent."

- + Nation 99:755 D 24 '14 2200w
- Spec 112:876 My 23 '14 450w

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM. Merchant of Venice; told by a popular novelist. (Novels from Shakespeare ser.) il *$1 (1c) Winston 14-2388

When Charles and Mary Lamb retold the plays of Shakespeare, they made them into short stories; the aim of the present series is to retell them in novel form, omitting none of the details of plot and counterplot. The present version of the "Merchant of Venice" begins with the well-remembered scene between Portia and Nerissa and follows carefully, thru some thirty chapters the familiar outlines of the play.

"It is certainly true that the novel is the popular form of literature in our day, and it may be that this method will create an appetite for the great work of Shakespeare. If so, the series will fully justify itself."

- + Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 220w

"Whoever 'Popular novelist' may be, he has shown his wisdom by remaining anonymous."

- N Y Times 19:188 Ap 12 '14 270w

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM. Shakespeare's principal plays; ed. with introd. and notes, by Tucker Brooke, J. W. Cunliffe, and H. Noble MacCracken. *$2 Century 14-15779

"The restriction of this volume to the twenty plays most commonly read and most frequently acted has permitted the use of a type of comfortable size and the inclusion of introductory and explanatory matter without which the plays can hardly be understood by the ordinary reader." (Prefatory note) Each play is preceded by an introduction, one of the interesting features of which is a brief summary of the stage history of the play. The twenty plays selected are: Midsummer night's dream; Romeo and

SHAKESPEARE, WILLIAM—Continued.

Juliet; Merchant of Venice; Richard II; Henry IV; Henry V; Much ado about nothing; As you like it; Twelfth night; Julius Caesar; Hamlet; Othello; King Lear; Macbeth; Antony and Cleopatra; Coriolanus; Cymbeline; Winter's tale; Tempest.

SHAND, ALEXANDER F. Foundations of character. *$3 Macmillan 14-30800

"The author begins with a statement of the law of organization, as it is disclosed in the mind, as his working hypothesis. 'The organization of the body and all its parts is reflected in the mind. If the mind did not tend to organize itself, how would its development have helped in the struggle for life.' . . . This inveterate tendency of the mind to organize its activity, then, is the fundamental psychological fact upon which a science of character must be built. But this science is new, and the general works on psychology could do but little in furnishing materials for the author. English poetry and French prose, the proverbs, fables, and maxims of the different peoples have furnished him with his materials. . . . The first section of the volume is a discussion in fifteen chapters of the conception of character. Book two is an examination in seventeen chapters of the tendencies of the primary emotions. . . . And finally the third part of the work is an exposition of the system of desire."—Boston Transcript

"Profoundly important as a scientific work of reference since material has been developed with elaborate care and thoroughness from original research, but difficult reading for any save trained students."

+ A L A Bkl 11:51 O '14

"The work is a fine expression of conscientious and patient labor. Mr. Shand has made a worthy contribution to psychology."

+ Boston Transcript p21 Ag 5 '14 630w

"No more important contribution to psychological literature has been made within recent years." G. D. Hicks

+ Hibbert J 12:906 Jl '14 350w

"Of problems which are at once baffling and alluring, Mr. Shand has propounded hundreds; and it is one of the outstanding merits of the book that he has not answered them dogmatically." M. B. Robinson

+ Hibbert J 12:928 Jl '14 1050w

"Mr. Shand's book should be in the hands of all teachers and especially of the young themselves. It has been welcomed in medical circles just as Darwin's 'Expression of the emotions' was. The literary references are exceedingly interesting, and the examples chosen from real life show shrewd and astute observation." E. S. P. Haynes

+ Int J Ethics 25:268 Ja '15 720w

"No one who studies this book with care can fail to appreciate the courage involved in undertaking so difficult a task as the author has set for himself; nor can one help admiring his skill, the conscientious care with which his statements are made, and withal the marked modesty he displays in the presentation of very original observations."

+ Nation 99:141 Jl 30 '14 2150w

SHARBER, MRS. KATE (TRIMBLE). Amazing Grace; who proves that virtue has its silver lining. il *$1 (2c) Bobbs 14-19618

A young southern woman who insisted on defying the traditions of her family by earning her own living is the heroine. By all the traditions of her family she should have married Guilford Blake, but instead she accepted a position as special writer for the Oldburgh Herald. In the course of duty she interviews Maitland Tait, a self-made young magnate of English birth, and that is the beginning of a love story that comes to its end in England with the old family servant revealing a well-kept secret by addressing the hero as "My lord."

Bookm 40:684 F '15 230w

"The story does not lend itself to serious criticism. It is just a sufficiently agreeable timefiller or time-killer, according to the age and mental calibre of its readers."

+ N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3, '15 220w

"The telling of the story is refreshingly free from triteness in every respect." Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 86:2015 D 12 '14 400w

SHARP, DALLAS LORE. Beyond the pasture bars. il *50c (2c) Century 14-2774

This book is published as the second volume in the "Wild life series of graded nature readers." Twelve attractive essays on out-of-door life make up the contents. Their titles are: Beyond the pasture bars; The crazy flicker; The wild geese; The wood-pussy; A house of many doors; Wild life in the farm-yard; A song of the winter woods; On the 'possum's trail; The dance in the alder swale; Chickaree the scold; A lesson in natural history; Calico and the kittens.

+ A L A Bkl 11:35 S '14

"An excellent little book for the child student of wild life, and not too juvenile for his elders."

+ Nation 99:329 S 10 '14 70w

+ N Y Times 19:343 Ag 9 '14 60w

"Get the book and enjoy it." H. T. B.

+ School Arts Magazine 13:715 My '14 170w

"Useful for school reading in grades fourth to sixth."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:165 Je '14 40w

SHARP, DALLAS LORE. Where rolls the Oregon. il *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 14-11164

The summer of 1912 in Oregon, spent in studying the wild life of the state, the fish and game, and especially the work of the Game warden in its educational aspects, has resulted in this volume. "It is not," the author writes, "a series of notes, but a group of impressions, deep, indelible impressions of the vast outdoors of Oregon." He describes and interprets the rugged grandeur of this country and imparts knowledge about living things not only informally but with a keen sympathy for all nature. Many illustrations from photographs are sprinkled thru the text.

"Well written and possessing the freshness, humor, and individual quality that distinguish the author's books."

+ A L A Bkl 11:15 S '14 +

"Where rolls the Oregon" is anything but a commonplace nature book. It is original, individual and imaginative, and the reader obtains from it a vivid impression of the impressions of its writer." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Je 27 '14 880w

"Characterized by humor, imagination and the individuality that always marks the author's books."

+ Cleveland 6:74 S '14 20w

+ Dial 57:82 Ag 1 '14 350w

+ N Y Times 19:393 S 20 '14 50w

"For refreshment, for genuine value, and for entertainment one may well read this book."

+ Outlook 107:820 Ag 1 '14 90w

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 10 '14 350w

SHARP, ROBERT FARQUHARSON. Makers of music. 4th ed, rev and enl il *$1.75 (3c) Scribner A14-403

A book made up of short sketches of the lives of the great composers with a chronological summary of the works of each. The author's endeavor has been "to convey an impression of the personality of each composer, rather than merely to furnish a collection of biographical detail."

"Useful for reference work with women's clubs."

+ A L A Bkl 10:256 F '14

SHAW, CHARLES GRAY. Ego and its place in the world. *$3.75 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-14183)

"The philosophy of 'The ego and its place in the world' is a romantic idealism after the fashion of Rudolf Eucken, but differs from the philosophy of Eucken in being more of a romantic individualism. . . . Mr. Shaw's philosophical drama begins in the world of appearance, from which the ego's first task is to escape, and in which it is then to find a place for itself. The second act is laid in the world of activity, where the ego asserts itself as immanent causality over against the apparently transient causality of the world. Here we see the meaning of Euckenian and Shavian 'activism.' But the independence of the ego is not made secure until, in the third act, in the world of reality, it reaches the full dimensions of selfhood, and, in gentlemanly Hegelian fashion, becomes reconciled to the world in discovering that the world is also a self."—Nation

"A more solid work than most of its school. Probably it will attract less attention than it deserves, for the egoistic movement has hitherto been literary and not philosophical, and it squares but ill with any of the dominant tendencies of abstract thought. Mr. Shaw's style does not recommend his work. It is pointed and forcible only on occasions; too often his phrasing is clumsy, and he is nearly as diffuse as Dr. Royce."

+ — Ath 1914.1:781 Je 6 630w

Boston Transcript p10 D 22 '13 470w

"Mr. Shaw's philosophy is not destitute of ideas, but, as becomes a romantic philosophy, the ideas are vague, and both the style and the reasoning are loose and superficial, while the attempt to be striking and original often leads him astray."

+ — Nation 98:702 Je 11 '14 330w

SHAW, GEORGE BERNARD. Misalliance, The<sup>12</sup> dark lady of the Sonnets, and Fanny's first play. $1.50 Brentano's 14-1044

In addition to the three plays named the volume contains one of the characteristic prefaces. In this one Mr. Shaw discusses a theme of universal interest, the relation of parents and children.

"All entertaining, specially 'Fanny's first play,' and thought provoking to anyone who likes Mr. Shaw."

+ A L A Bkl 11:111 N '14

"After a tremendous preface 'Misalliance' comes as an anticlimax. The characters are highly individualized, but their interplay results only in conversation. No pretence is made that they are to do anything but converse. 'Fanny's first play,' with its rollicking fun, its friendly skit at the expense of contemporary dramatic criticism, and its penetrating study of the inability of strict conventionality to withstand the shock of the entirely unexpected, is modestly described in the briefest of prefaces as 'a pot-boiler.' We wish that other artists were able to boil the pot in the same manner."

+ — Ath 1914.1:771 My 30 1350w

Reviewed by G. B. Donlin

Dial 57:74 Ag 1 '14 1700w

"Altogether Mr. Shaw is not at his best in his latest. As a rule when we cannot laugh with him we can at least laugh at him; but on this occasion he gives very few occasions for laughter, and the result is a natural feeling of disappointment. There are so few men now writing who can cheer us up with amusing situations or thoughts that one feels robbed of one's rights when Mr. Shaw fails to be amusing, as he does for the most part on this occasion." Joseph Jacobs

+ — N Y Times 19:536 N 29 '14 1550w

"Nearly half of the present volume is taken up with a charming and altogether unscrupulous treatise on 'Parents and children,' which any one who is inclined to believe in Shaw's 'philosophy' ought to read in order to rid himself for ever of the notion that Shaw has a single philosophic fiber in his composition." F. M. Colby

+ — No Am 200:147 Jl '14 2300w

"'Misalliance' is an amusing, rollicking, if slightly nauseous, farce; the preface to 'The dark lady of the Sonnets' is dull, and the play itself but mediocre; while 'Fanny's first play'— all but the critics' Induction and Epilogue, which are admirable—reads perhaps a trifle less well than it acts."

+ — Spec 112:1035 Je 20 '14 1150w

"Mr. Shaw has just brought out a new book and the view on which the present review is based, is that one-third of the book is reasonably true and that two-thirds of it is rot, often very amusingly phrased. Shaw is better as a playwright than as an essayist."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 25 '14 950w

SHAW, THOMAS. Management and feeding of<sup>2</sup> sheep. il $2 Judd 14-8587

"Mr. Shaw gives positive and direct information. If he does not exhaust his subject, his book comprehends it admirably. . . . He concentrates upon the task of explaining the best methods of rearing sheep with profit. . . . He has provided a useful index, besides a table of contents which is so exceptionally full as to serve the purpose of a rough index."—Ath

"Compares favorably with, but does not replace, any of the modern books, its only distinguishing quality being its completeness."

+ A L A Bkl 11:205 Ja '15

"Mr. Shaw gives positive and direct information. If he does not exhaust his subject, his book comprehends it admirably. A genuinely valuable book."

+ Ath 1914.2:183 Ag 8 290w

SHAW, WILLIAM WARREN. Lost vocal art<sup>2</sup> and its restoration, with practical exercises for the use of singers and teachers; with introd. by D. Bispham. il $1.50 Lippincott 14-5085

"W. Warren Shaw maintains with much show of reason that the 'Old Italian method' rested soundly on the science on which all really successful schools of voice culture must stand—the science of psychology, and not on the physiological principle which has obsessed many teachers since the discovery of the laryngoscope."—Ind

"Despite much repetition and little literary quality, the book will be useful, specially to ambitious students who may not always have the right teaching and need some basis of comparison to aid in selecting teachers."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:363 My '14

Ind 78:327 My 25 '14 60w

Reviewed by H. T. Flink

Nation 98:508 Ap 30 '14 420w

N Y Times 19:338 Ag 9 '14 200w

SHEALY, EDWARD MARVIN. Heat; prepared<sup>2</sup> in the Extension division of the University of Wisconsin. (Engineering education ser.) il $2 McGraw 14-9096

"The book is mainly prepared for students in the extension division of technical universities, and its first part deals with fundamental laws relating to the nature, generation, transfer and transformation of heat. The latter part deals with machinery built along the principle of using heat in one form or another as motive power."—Engin Rec

"This addition to the list maintains the degree of excellence attained by earlier volumes. Such a treatise should be of service to a great many engineers who years ago have forgotten the details of the physics of energy reactions, on account of their mental preoccupation in construction."

+ Engin N 72:166 Jl 16 '14 200w

Engin Rec 70:141 Ag 1 '14 80w

SHEEHAN, PERLEY POORE, and DAVIS,<sup>12</sup> ROBERT HOBART. "We are French!"<sup>2</sup> $50c (2c) Doran 14-18338

Two old soldiers of the French legion are the heroes of this little story. One of them is Anatole, a real hero in his day, who had once blown the Charge when commanded to sound the Retreat, carrying the troops on to victory. The other is Pierre his friend, who never wearies of telling the story to cronies in the village inn. The tale gets a wider hearing; it reaches Paris and Anatole is summoned to the capital to receive the cross of the Legion of honor. The two go together, dressed in their old Zouave uniforms, and it is Anatole who decrees that they shall go, not in state in a first-class carriage, but as soldiers should, on foot.

SHEEHAN, P. P., and DAVIS, R. H.—Cont.

"Very well told."

+ A L A Bkl 11:176 D '14

"Whatever defects may lie in the 'journalistic style,' it has clearness and vigor, which are essentials. Moreover there is material here that more famous writers would gladly have used. We doubt if they could have told the story better."

+ Boston Transcript p20 D 23 '14 300w

+ Nation 99:774 D 31 '14 300w

"This little story moves along swiftly with quite a stir and color of life in its pages, with sustained emotional intensity and many dramatic moments."

+ N Y Times 19:505 N 15 '14 200w

+ Outlook 108:845 D 9 '14 200w

SHEFFIELD, RENA CARY. Golden hollow. il
1 *$1 Lane 13-21258

"There is a plot in this story of a girl kept in the bondage of gratitude to an unworthy guardian, but there is a great deal more—a logical psychological development of the plucky little heroine; a few character sketches lightly drawn, yet distinct and inevitable; above all, a wealth of graceful, girlish imagining." (Chaut) "Barbara Kavarre is engaged to her cousin Mac, and after he has wasted his fortune, she continues to take care of his children in poverty. But she has satisfied her longing for sympathy by writing anonymous letters to an author of whom she says, 'I met you years ago in a story you had written.'" (Boston Transcript)

"This is one of the many books of the present time in which the heroine has a 'coming-on' disposition, but it is among the best of that type. The story has sometimes the rare charm of fitting expression for beautiful thought."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 8 '13 250w

"It is a tale instinct with a delicate charm. It is worth reading, and that more than once."

+ Chaut 72:363 Ja 3 '14 90w

"Here and there the tale is prettily written, but often the letters are too obviously for the purpose of giving information to the reader and not to Captain Calderwood. The 'kiddies,' are charming children; the account of their doings and remarks forms the best part of what is on the whole a pleasant little story."

+ N Y Times 18:614 N 9 '13 400w

SHEIP, STANLEY S., ed. Handbook of the 12 European war. (Handbook ser.) *$1 (1c)
Wilson, H. W. 14-30977

In the preparation of this handbook the vast amount of material bearing on the war now in progress has been sifted, and a selection of the most reliable and most significant is presented to the reader. The volume is meant to serve as a source book; it is "a book of fact and not an argument for any warring nation. The contentions of all are set forth without favor, as far as the material at hand permits." (Introduction) A chapter is allotted to each of the nations concerned, and to avoid the appearance of favoritism these are arranged in alphabetical order, beginning with Austria and ending with Turkey. Each chapter consists, first of an historical introduction by Mr. Sheip, then of reprinted articles, speeches, or documents setting forth the position of the country in the words of its own prominent men. A bibliography compiled by Miss Corinne Bacon completes the volume.

"Particularly useful compend for small, branch, or high-school library, giving all the main facts in form for quick reference. Good debating material."

+ A L A Bkl 11:213 Ja '15 +

"The volume will be very convenient for reference in school and public libraries."

+ Ind 80:475 D 21 '14 130w

N Y Times 19:586 D 27 '14 40w

SHELDON, CHARLES MONROE. "Jesus is 6 here!" *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 14-6234

This book continues the story of "In his steps," published in 1897; its action takes place seventeen years later than that of the first story. The author states his own purpose clearly in his preface: "It has not been my purpose to describe what is called the 'second coming' of Christ, but to picture another appearance of Jesus, and describe his action in a modern world. The world today is far different from the world into which the historical Jesus was born. . . . It has seemed to me that it was a fair and reverent question to ask what would be the attitude of Jesus as he faced the complex conditions of modern society." Accordingly Jesus, who in his own day in Nazareth lived the life of a common man among men, is shown in a like relationship to the people of today. The story opens in the town which was the scene of "In his steps," and then passes on to Washington and New York.

Ind 78:494 Je 15 '14 80w

"Mr. Sheldon presents his argument ingeniously and with an instinct for dramatic effect that some professional writers of fiction might envy. The book will doubtless find many eager readers among those who long for spiritual comfort and support, but are dissatisfied with present-day formal religion."

+ N Y Times 19:168 Ap 5 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 49:763 Je '14 170w

SHELDON, EDWARD BREWSTER. Romance.
12 il *$1.25 Macmillan 14-16446

A play in three acts with a prologue and epilogue. The prologue introduces the grandfather, a bishop, and the grandson who has just announced his engagement to a young actress. To show the boy that he understands the impetuosity of youth, and also to point out its folly, the old man tells the story of his own early love for the beautiful Rita Cavallini—and in the three acts of the play this love story is unfolded. The epilogue repeats the scene of the prologue with the boy and the old man by the fire. The story has had its effect, altho not the one desired. "I've been an ass," cries the young man, "to hesitate one single minute, Lucille and I are going to get married as soon as ever we can." "God bless my soul," exclaims the old one, "that isn't why I told it to you!"

"There is considerable humour in 'Romance,' and much excellent 'business' is suggested, but its supreme characteristic is its sentimentality."

+ Ath 1914:2:658 D 19 250w

"An old story movingly and convincingly retold."

+ Cleveland 6:87 O '14 100w

"Few successful dramas lend themselves more readily to enjoyable reading than this play."

+ Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 60w

"Mr. Davies has succeeded in transferring to his pages a good deal of the romantic charm which envelops Mr. Sheldon's play."

+ N Y Times 18:503 S 28 '13 140w

"It is a play marked not only by Mr. Sheldon's bold disposition to experiment, but by his fine imagination and his graceful utterance."

+ N Y Times 19:499 N 15 '14 470w

SHELFORD, VICTOR ERNEST. Animal communities in temperate America. il *$3 Univ. of Chicago press 13-23847

The author has made a study of certain animal groups found in the vicinity of Chicago. Chapters on Man and animals; The animal organism and its environmental relations; and a description of the general nature of the area studies, are followed by chapters devoted to animal communities of large lakes, of streams, small lakes, ponds, swamps, thickets, forests, and prairies. The book closes with a general discussion on the relation of the different communities to one another, the laws governing distribution, and the relations of ecology to broader geographic problems.

"Although Dr. Shelford has taken the college viewpoint and has made his work most appealing to higher students, yet throughout there is a readableness, a simplicity of style, and a suppression of technicality which puts the book well within the comprehension of the general reader or even of high-school pupils. Many nature students have long awaited such a work as this, for there is an ever-growing movement which reverts to Agassiz's outdoor laboratory for its material, its method, its inspiration. Dr. Shelford has furnished a text-manual for this work which can be appreciated only through first-hand perusal and by the nature-lovers who really want to know." H. B. S.

+ El School T 14:350 Mr '14 500w

"The esoteric terminology of it all is wondrous pitiful, and there is much dressing up of old plain truths in confusing folds of majestic language."

+ Nature 93:667 Ag 27 '14 270w

SHELLEY, HENRY CHARLES. Life and letters of Edward Young. il $4 (3½c) Little (Eng ed A15-39)

The subject of this biography is Edward Young, author of "Night thoughts," who lived from 1683 to 1765. Up to the present Young has had no biographer, and those who have undertaken to write of him, among them Rev. Sir Herbert Croft, who wrote a sketch for Johnson's "Lives" and George Eliot who made him the subject of an essay, have, says Mr. Shelley, been unsympathetic and unjust. This is partly explained by dearth of material for at Young's request all his own private papers were burned after his death. Of late years, however, a number of valuable letters have come to light, among them a series addressed to the Duchess of Portland. These, together with other unpublished documents found in the British museum and the Bodleian library, are utilized for the first time in this volume.

"Mr. Shelley has done his work with evident relish, and in that spirit of enthusiasm for his author that is so essential in a good biography. It is a pity that several misprints and a few lapses in grammar, in a book otherwise well written, should have been left to testify to insufficient care in reading the proof-sheets."

+ Ath 1914,2:45 Jl 11 800w

"As a portrait of the man Mr. Shelley's book is in many respects excellent. Apart from his inaccuracies as to fact his chief weakness is on the critical side." H. E. Woodbridge

+ Dial 58:81 F 1 '15 1000w

"It recalls the literary life of the eighteenth century, and is a welcome addition to the biographies of Young by Sir Herbert Croft and Sir Leslie Stephen."

+ N Y Times 19:300 Jl 5 '14 200w

"Mr. Shelley's excellent book is not only a biography, it is also a fairly compendious anthology of Dr. Young's less-known poems, a fact which adds greatly to its interest."

+ Spec 113:430 S 26 '14 1050w

SHELLEY, HENRY CHARLES. Shakespeare<sup>1</sup> and Stratford. il $1.25 Little A14-182

"A recent addition to the 'Literary shrine series,' which will be useful to tourists making a first visit to the Shakespearean country. It contains nothing new of course, but offers a convenient consecutive, and accurate epitome of the known facts and most of the legends relating to the poet, his family, and his neighbors. The author wisely refrains from theorizing on his own account and exhibits a judicious skepticism in dealing with the more or less plausible guesses of impressionable and credulous enthusiasts. He depends chiefly upon the researches of such qualified scholars as Halliwell-Phillipps and Sir Sidney Lee."—Nation

+ A L A Bkl 10:280 Mr '14

"Mr. Shelley rarely refers to the authors from whom he borrows, never gives any references, and provides no index; so his book can hardly be treated as a work for a scholar. Yet as showing the varied interests which centre in the little town, and the points over which discussion is waged concerning the poet's surroundings, it can be commended as a pleasant companion for Stratford visitors, and a pretty remembrance of their visit."

+ Ath 1913,2:202 Ag 30 1250w

"A charming volume, which the reviewer has read with never flagging interest. Ascertained fact and village legend are each given their due weight, and the result is a genuine representation of the atmosphere of Stratford."

E. L. P.

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 12 '13 1050w

"Useful volume."

+ Dial 55:482 D 1 '13 120w

Reviewed by C. E. Hesselgrave

+ Ind 76:509 D 11 '13 70w

+ Lit D 48:630 Mr 21 '14 70w

"An admirable guide-book and supplemented with some notes for tourists which will well repay observation."

+ Nation 98:91 Ja 22 '14 380w

"An excellent historical and topographical handbook."

+ N Y Sun p5 O 18 '13 100w

SHEPHERD, WILLIAM ROBERT. Latin America. (Home univ. lib.) il $50c (1c) Holt 14-5096

It was impossible in this small book, which is intended only as an introduction to the study of the republics of South and Central America, to treat each country separately. The author has chosen therefore to describe phases of civilization existent in the republics, drawing illustrations of similarities and differences from all. Part 1 of the book considers The colonies. Part 2, The republics. The chapters of each part take up: Industry; Commerce; Science; Literature; Fine arts; Social characteristics, etc.

"Excellent condensed treatise."

+ A L A Bkl 11:26 S '14

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:668 N '14 100w

"This is just the kind of book that will be read by large numbers of persons to whom the southern continent has hitherto been 'terra incognita.'"

+ Ann Am Acad 55:285 S '14 120w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 200w

"Mr. Shepherd's book is remarkably free from the prejudice which characterizes most protestant books on Latin America."

+ Cath World 93:549 Jl '14 400w

"Professor Shepherd knows how to generalize without being rash or lazy, and he can particularize without filling his pages with confusing figures and details."

+ Ind 78:324 My 25 '14 170w

"The result is the best volume, for the size, upon the subject. The index is inadequate."

+ Nation 99:48 Jl 9 '14 140w

+ N Y Times 19:283 Je 21 '14 160w

"A very compact and informing little volume."

+ R of Rs 49:506 Ap '14 230w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 4 '14 550w

SHERMAN, CHARLES. Wise son. il $1.25 (1½c) Bobbs 14-4588

The story opens with a meeting in Central park of two "drunks." One is Reginald Van de Water Boggs, young and very rich; the other is Timothy Payne, old, shabby, and very poor. Both are innate gentlemen, appearances to the contrary notwithstanding. Moved by the emotion of convivial sympathy, Reginald adopts Timothy as a father, and a lawyer is found who is willing to make out the necessary papers. When Reginald regains his normal senses he stands by his bargain and the two men proceed to reform one another. In the course of the narrative two love stories are developed.

SHERMAN, CHARLES—Continued.

"Seriously to consider the plot it must be said that it is utterly absurd; but with the probabilities or possibilities of life forgotten, it is a very clever story, running over with wit and bright epigrams and sharp satire aimed at the fads and foibles of the idle rich. The humor inevitable in Mr. Sherman's work is again prominent in his latest novel, but with it there is a pathos that makes it by far his best work."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Mr 14 '14 330w

"Most of the story is told with a twinkling humor that finds expression in the situations and in the talk of some of the people. The mother of young Boggs is an entertaining old lady, but it is rather difficult to accept her as real. The adopted 'father,' however, is skillfully drawn, with a good many subtle touches, and he is human and convincing. As much cannot be said for the heroine, who is more like a caricature than a real character."

+ — N Y Times 19:126 Mr 15 '14 350w

SHERMAN, HENRY CLAPP. Food products.
2 il *$2.25 Macmillan 14-18055

During the past few years great advances have been made in both food legislation and scientific investigation into food values. The results of these recent advances have been incorporated into this book. A chapter is devoted to each of the important food products, Milk, Cheese, Eggs, Meats, Grain products, etc., considering in the case of each methods of production and preparation for the market, composition and general food value, questions of sanitation and standards of purity, and special characteristics of digestibility, nutritive value, etc. Each chapter is concluded with a list of references, and interesting matter is given in appendices, including Rules and regulations for the enforcement of the food and drugs act, Food inspection decisions, and Methods and standards for the production and distribution of certified milk.

"A really excellent textbook and presentation of its subject."

+ Educ R 49:214 F '15 60w

"A scientific study of great value to dietists."

+ N Y Times 19:508 N 15 '14 140w

"He has rendered important service to his fellow teachers and to all who are interested in the scientific study of foods in putting into one book so much valuable material for reference. The arrangement of material, concerning which there is a great difference of opinion, is a very minor matter in comparison with the advantage of having at hand for reference so admirable a book." Isabel Bevier

+ — Science n s 41:134 Ja 22 '15 330w

SHIPMAN, LOUIS EVAN. True adventures of * a play. il *$1.50 (5c) Kennerley 14-10287

"The true adventures of a play,' is a romance of fact with a modern drama in four acts as its hero and hope deferred as the sentimental motive. The play in question is 'D'Arcy of the guards,' which Henry Miller finally produced after nearly a dozen other managers had turned it down for as many different reasons. How it fared at the hands of each and how it finally entered upon a successful career which is not yet ended—it was recently released in the 'movies'—is told in detail, with an occasional aside at modern 'inside' theater methods."—Springfield Republican

"This book is valuable to the playwright; and because of its charm and personal note is not uninteresting reading to the layman who would know of the things on the other side of the proscenium." J: Blakeslee

+ Bookm 39:565 Jl '14 330w

"It is a frank confession, with many flashes of keen wit, of sage advice and of well-founded criticism."

+ Ind 80:173 N 2 '14 50w

"A little book full of useful information and warning for inexperienced and sanguine young dramatists, although it offers little that will seem new or strange to the initiated."

+ Nation 99:51 Jl 9 '14 180w

Springfield Republican p5 Jl 23 '14 450w

SHORE, MRS. TEIGNMOUTH (PRISCILLA CRAVEN, pseud.). Circe's daughter. *$1.25
Duffield 13-12496

"Aside from the fact that the 'eternal triangle' is squared, so to speak, 'Circe's daughter' adheres rather too closely to the modern pattern of the marriage novel. Claudia Iverson, the daughter of a woman who has had post-nuptial 'affairs' marries Gilbert Currey, K. C., a hard-working, brilliant, unromantic man several years her senior. To her marriage had meant what it does to most idealistic women; to him it was an incident, the result of his one burst of passion. He neglects her with the refined brutality of the gentleman and she consequently begins a flirtation with an eloquent and plausible young artist. She learns of her mistake in time, however, and Colin Paton, the fourth side of the triangle, whom she should obviously have married in the first place, helps her to finally regain happiness."—Boston Transcript

"A clever and brightly written novel."

+ Ath 1913,1:466 Ap 26 90w

"Both in motive and in construction the plot is extremely ordinary, and neither the problem nor its solution is given any phase of originality. The dialogue and the setting, on the other hand, are clever, and the incidental characters, such as the vivid, pathetic 'Girle girl,' are well enough drawn to counteract some of its shortcomings."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 200w

"One drop thing about this narrative is that, despite its very 'modern' substance, its style is that of the gentle romancer, the William Black or the Mrs. de la Pasture of blameless memory."

+ Nation 98:59 Ja 15 '14 580w

"A novel such as 'Circe's daughter' is to be deprecated, not because it shows sin, but because it perilously blurs the boundaries between right and wrong."

+ — N Y Times 18:584 O 26 '13 470w

"This is a realistic study in fiction of certain problems of modern society; and though it offers no great surprise in plot or character-drawing, it yet has its claim on the reader of contemporary fiction in transcribing skillfully an important phase of modern life."

+ Outlook 105:329 O 11 '13 150w

SHORE, WILLIAM TEIGNMOUTH. John Woolman, his life and our times; being a study in applied Christianity. il *$1.50 Macmillan 14-30280

A study of Woolman's life based largely on the "Journal." "Matters discussed by the biographer are Woolman's arrangement of his own business, his efforts for the slaves, his later publication, 'A word of remembrance and caution to the rich,' his visit to the Indians, his visions, his voyage to England, and his death at York. At the end of the book is an Epilogue, and a map of the settlements in part of the eastern states of North America in 1750." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bkl 10:318 Ap '14

Ath 1914,1:127 Ja 24 1300w

"It is a pity that the comparison suggested by the title, 'His life and our times' has not been carried out, for the principles and circumstances of John Woolman furnish a standard with which to measure the present; but the author's references to our times are infrequent, short and sarcastic."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 11 '14 250w

"Mr. Shore misses the chance to present Woolman effectively as a prophet of our times."

+ Dial 56:303 Ap 1 '14 400w

"Mr. Shore manifests little talent for the religious and psychological analysis which Woolman so strongly invites."

+ Nation 99:79 Jl 16 '14 220w

Outlook 106:651 Mr 21 '14 200w

"Mr. Teignmouth Shore writes impartially, yet in sympathy with his subject. His work will be acceptable within and without the Society of Friends."

+ Sat R 116:820 D 27 '13 370w

SHORTER, CLEMENT KING. George Borrow and his circle. il *$3 (2c) Houghton

A14-750

In this volume the author has made use of a considerable amount of hitherto unpublished material which came into his hands thru the executors of Henrietta MacOubrey, Borrow's stepdaughter. Much of this new matter, consisting largely of letters from Borrow to members of his family, is reprinted here. The arrangement is only in part chronological. "This plan gives his work a discursiveness for which he apologizes, but it was probably chosen as providing a natural framework for a good many epistolary and other documents of secondary interest, which the exacting standards of a methodical biographer might have compelled him to disregard. . . . Summarizing the effect of the new material that Mr. Shorter offers, we should say that, while Borrow has become a more homely, he has not become in any sense a less baffling figure." (Ath)

"A useful work, and interesting from its wealth of information, some of it new. It is obviously a labor of love; but all save enthusiastic Borrowians will find it too lacking in arrangement and charm of style to be very entertaining reading."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:319 Ap '14

"Will be a treasure and a delight to admirers of Borrow. The arrangement of Mr. Shorter's volume is somewhat confusing. The fact that Mr. Shorter seems to miss this quality of remoteness in Borrow's personality makes him an unsympathetic biographer; but for the new treasure of which he now is and further is to be the vehicle, we can feel nothing but gratitude."

+ — Ath 1913,2:550 N 15 1050w

"As an entertaining and authoritative chronicle, Mr. Shorter's work, with its new material, adds something to our knowledge of Borrow. It is obviously what its writer calls it, a labor of love. Mr. Shorter's style, however, is not of the best. It needs clarifying, and a vigorous excision of such misused words and phrases as 'transpire' and 'allusion.'" E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p22 F 4 '14 1500w

Ind 77:387 Mr 16 '14 40w

"It is a book which bears the stamp of sincerity and painstaking earnestness, and it is a creditable addition to contemporary biography."

+ Lit D 48:834 Ap 11 '14 800w

"Withal we have to thank Mr. Shorter for an entertaining and informing book on a subject which ought to be dear to every lover of good literature."

+ — Nation 98:333 Mr 26 '14 1150w

"In this book on George Borrow, Mr. Shorter has not been able to divest himself of that patronizing, tut-tut-tut manner which so strongly characterizes his various works. One really should not quarrel with his book, which is full of all manner of entertaining matter and careful fact." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ — N Y Times 19:263 Je 7 '14 1250w

"Mr. Shorter gives us a picture of Borrow in which the portrait is spoiled by the labored brushmarks."

+ — Outlook 106:602 Mr 14 '14 800w

"It may be said unhesitatingly that this is a volume which no true Borrowian can afford to ignore." F. T. Cooper

+ Pub W 85:1350 Ap 18 '14 420w

R of Rs 49:368 Mr '14 100w

"Mr. Clement Shorter's book is entertaining, and in spite of carrying a load of unpublished letters there is movement and life in it."

+ Spec 111:1125 D 27 '13 350w

SHOTWELL, JAMES THOMSON. Religious revolution of to-day. *$1.10 Houghton

13-23245

The four lectures contained in this book were delivered as the initial course in the newly instituted series of William Brewster Clark memorial lectures at Amherst. "In the first address, entitled, 'Contrasts,' Dr. Shotwell discusses his basic problem, which is not to prove, he says, the existence of a religious revolution, since that is admitted by all who give the situation any thought, but 'to measure its importance and to see its setting in the history of the world.' . . . The second lecture, on 'Devolution or evolution?' sets forth the thesis that back of the religious revolution 'lies the tremendous process of social evolution, of emancipation from superstition and the awakening of reason.' The remaining addresses consider the significance of the vast contradictions and parallels between the new and the old attitudes of man toward the elements of religion." (N Y Times)

"An interesting and instructive work."

+ A L A Bkl 10:280 Mr '14

Reviewed by G. Hodges

Atlan 113:679 My '14 500w

Bib World 43:142 F '14 350w

"Much in these lectures is good and true, and needs to be said."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 400w

"We commend his volume both to the student and to the general reader, and could only wish that the publishers had provided it with an index."

+ — Educ R 47:311 Mr '14 80w

"The lectures make far better reading than such lectures usually do, for Professor Shotwell has a limpid style which carries his rich store of learning in solution instead of keeping it in turbid suspension or precipitating it as insoluble footnotes at the bottom of the page. Professor Shotwell's summary of the development of human thought is excellently stated, but it seems to us that the terms he uses are quite misleading."

+ — Ind 77:242 F 16 '14 730w

Nature 93:5 Mr 5 '14 90w

N Y Times 18:677 N 30 '13 300w

"The adverse criticisms I am inclined to make would all arise from what I consider an inadequate conception of religion." J. H. L.

+ — Psychol Bull 11:471 D 15 '14 770w

SHUBERT, ETHEL. Stories of the operas. 50c Penn 13-26261

The book contains "very brief epitomes of the operas which are commonly performed, such as might be printed on theatre programmes, with still briefer accounts of the composers. . . . The number of operas is 46, that of composers 24." — N Y Sun

Nation 97:600 D 18 '13 120w

N Y Sun p6 N 15 '13 50w

N Y Times 19:84 F 22 '14 120w

SHURTLIFF, FLAVEL, and OLMSTED, FREDERICK LAW. Carrying out the city plan: the practical application of American law in the execution of city plans. tables $2 (2c) Survey associates 14-13631

This work is concerned chiefly with the methods of acquiring land for public purposes employed in different parts of the country. In these methods the investigators found "an astonishing variation," and as they say, "mere variation in method would be of little more than academic interest in itself, but variations that result in obstructing the path of progress in one community and clearing it in another are of large practical importance." Contents: The public ownership of land; The acquisition of land; The distribution of the cost of land acquirement; Excess condemnation; The use of the police power in the execution of a city plan; The work of administrative agencies in the execution of a city plan. An outline of Legislation and decisions is given in an appendix; also extracts from a report on English and continental systems.

+ Engin N 73:263 F 11 '15 250w

Nation 99:750 D 24 '14 100w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

SHURTLEFF, F., and OLMSTED, F. L.—Cont.

"At a time when the intelligent public is becoming more and more attracted towards the ideal of a closer social control of city development, a book like Mr. Flavel Shurtleff's 'Carrying out the city plan' is highly important and encouraging." U. S. B.

+ New Republic 1:27 D 19 '14 1250w

SHUTE, HENRY AUGUSTUS. Misadventures of three good boys, that is to say, fairly good boys. il $1.25 (2c) Houghton 14-9084

Puppy, Beany and Pewt, three lively boys with zeal for money-making, employ their fertile imaginations to find a way to success without the usual dull, plodding, uninteresting toil. Anything prosaic, they eschew. There must be the glamour of adventure about their undertakings. "They are conspirators," as the author puts it, "in a well-intentioned but futile effort to throttle ambition and to divert industry from its accustomed channels." One of their cleverest "misadventures" is the publishing of a weekly sheet which they call "The lambaster" to indicate its policy of reform "in knockin' the everlastin' pea-green stuffin' outer folly, crime and foolishness." The same spirit of youth and fun that characterizes Judge Shute's other boyhood tales is found here at its best.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 330w

+ Ind 78:324 My 25 '14 30w

"It is a more important book, on the whole, for parents than for boys."

+ Ind 78:398 Je 1 '14 60w

"A boisterous, old-fashioned, ingenious book this certainly is, full of the spirit of mischief, with something of the character of a literary harlequinade."

+ N Y Times 19:244 My 21 '14 550w

SICHEL, EDITH HELEN. Renaissance. (Home univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 14-17310

The renaissance, in the author's words, "is a loose term which has served to cover many issues," but in the main it signified two things for western Europe, Emancipation and Expression. Her summary of the movement is presented in the following chapters: The Medici in Florence; The renaissance in Rome; Baldassare Castiglione and the women of the renaissance; The cynics and the swashbucklers of the renaissance; The fruits of the renaissance; The renaissance of the northern races; The thinkers of the northern races; The French renaissance; The English renaissance.

+ Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 60w

"Well up to the standard of the excellent series. As regards the women of the renaissance, one finds her a little strict, a little influenced by a later standard. The pages devoted to Rabelais, Montaigne, and Bacon are in themselves a real contribution to literary history."

+ N Y Times 19:403 S 27 '14 700w

"By its happy characterization and the glimpses it gives of the great men and women of the period it contrives within its small compass to impart the spirit and inspiration of the renaissance."

+ Pittsburgh 19:524 N '14 30w

"The little book is more than a splendid piece of writing,—it is an inspiring stimulus to the reader to further study in a fascinating period of human history."

+ R of Rs 51:249 F '15 250w

"A concise yet interesting account, fresh in spirit and treatment."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:261 N '14 40w

SIDGWICK, ETHEL. Lady of leisure. *$1.35 Small 14-5040

A story of English life. "The scene is at Glasswell rectory, in that lovely piece of country especially associated with the memory of Charles Dickens, where we are introduced to the rector, Arthur Gibbs, just as he has taken to himself a second wife, seven years after the decease of the first and in compliance with her farewell instructions. She had bestowed two daughters upon her husband, and the second Mrs. Gibbs brings a grown-up son with her, who might have been expected to appropriate one of them. But he falls in love with a girl named Violet Ashwin. . . . Violet Ashwin is the most vivid character in the book. The daughter of a physician, she finds her conventional life tedious, and seeks emancipation by going into partnership with a dressmaker at Battersea. This part of the story is undoubtedly the best."—Sat R

"Will appeal strongly to only a limited circle."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:176 D '14

+ Ath 1914,1:226 F 14 250w

"We put the book down rather stunned with as brilliant a piece of writing as we will find in any novel of the season, only to discover after the book is laid aside an almost blank recollection of what the four hundred and seventy-one pages have been about." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 1150w

"Miss Sidgwick's sure hand is here devoted to an all but thankless task, and one hardly worthy of it." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:257 O 1 '14 300w

+ Ind 80:290 N 23 '14 70w

"A book whose fine polish, whose careful finish, make it a novel of distinction."

+ N Y Times 19:399 S 27 '14 500w

"Brilliant conversation, delicate and allusive treatment of love situations, and wit mark the tale."

+ — Outlook 108:603 N 11 '14 100w

"Miss Sidgwick is in danger of falling a victim to a passion for overpolish. She is a little too elaborate in her methods, which tend to become monotonous. She neutralises her undoubted talent by her inability to let herself go—to be quite natural, simple and direct. She can write extremely well, and she has a sense of character. Her new novel has some good material in it, and is admirably true of life; but owing to Miss Sidgwick's horror of over-emphasis and distrust of emotion, the story falls rather flat and some parts of it border on dullness."

+ — Sat R 117:443 Ap 4 '14 250w

"Although it is doubtful whether a book of so little weight will do much either to make or to mar the author's reputation, it is a further and delightful proof of Miss Sidgwick's power as a writer of fiction."

+ Spec 112:574 Ap 4 '14 200w

SIEGFRIED, ANDRÉ. Democracy in New Zealand; tr. from the French by E. V. Burns, with an introd. by W. Downie Stewart. *$1.75 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-4530)

"Ten years ago M. Siegfried visited New Zealand and wrote his book. In spite of almost revolutionary changes during that decade its translation has been deemed advisable." (Boston Transcript) "A large section of the book deals with the political constitution in general and especially with the Seddon government and its numerous acts for the amelioration of labour. The author does not view with favor the Compulsory conciliation and arbitration act. Describing its working and results he is of opinion that the high estimation in which it is held by employees will probably diminish as soon as rulings go against them. The history of Old age pensions and the Land legislation is discussed, and the other laws dealing with the protection of employees are described in a manner that signifies disapproval of such 'State intervention.'" (Ath)

+ A L A Bkl 10:406 Je '14

Reviewed by R. C. McCrea

+ Ann Am Acad 55:296 S '14 320w

"His style of writing is journalistic, and his attitude shows but little sympathetic comprehension of the aims and tendencies of the democracy. But he has interesting chapters on the topography of New Zealand, and the historical account is clear and sufficiently detailed. When dealing with institutions, laws, geographical features, and historical facts M. Siegfried shows thoroughness and a capacity for forcible exposition; but he lacks the insight necessary to understand motives and the human soul."

+ — — Ath 1914.1:sup183 Ja 31 600w

"His book deserves to be read by all who are interested in modern questions. It is full of information and yet succinct." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 25 '14 1100w

+ Dial 56:508 Je 16 '14 370w

"When everything is said, time has not impaired the value of this work."

+ Nation 99:526 O 29 '14 1500w

"His book is neither a collection of irresponsible impressions nor a dry summary of statistics, but a true interpretation."

+ No Am 199:780 My '14 1100w

Sat R 117:312 Mr 7 '14 1700w

"A useful and impartial work."

+ Spec 113:528 O 17 '14 500w

"M. Siegfried's is for all, perhaps the most penetrating and surely the most brilliant of the many interpretations of New Zealand history and of the New Zealand point of view." Paul Kennaday

+ Survey 32:99 Ap 25 '14 550w

SIHLER, ERNEST GOTTLIEB. Cicero of Arpinum. *$2.50 (1c) Yale univ. press. 14-18468

A work that aims to be a full and comprehensive biography of Cicero. It is also described on the title page as "a contribution to the history of ancient civilization and a guide to the study of Cicero's writings." It is the result of long years of careful study, and the author says: "My chief aim has been to strive most earnestly, not for novelty, nor for fascination of my readers, but for this, that both the statements of fact as well as the judgments and valuations should be reliable." (Preface)

"In this full treatment of the orator and his surroundings Prof. Sihler has made a valuable contribution to Ciceronian literature. But though he knows the details of the political chicanery of the time perfectly, and gives us the squabbles and intrigues of Rome almost from day to day with amazing mastery, we cannot call his book an adequate handling of his great subject."

+ — Ath 1914.2:558 N 28 1250w

"It is always an unwelcome task to question the value of an extended work written by a conscientious scholar of mature years; but a dutiful reviewer is bound to ask what useful end can be served by 'Cicero of Arpinum.' A rigorous effort is necessary to hold oneself to the task of reading it, so dispiriting is the style even to the most loyal student, so painful to any reader with the least literary feeling. One finds average ability, unsparing toil, and meticulous scholarship."

+ Dial 58:22 Ja 1 '15 320w

"A literary and political biography which is in many respects most satisfactory. The style in which the book is written is anything but Ciceronian, for it is jerky and in spots, crabbed but the book is a sincere and scholarly contribution to the history and literature of Roman civilization."

+ — Educ R 48:533 D '14 100w

"A full, fair, and comprehensive biography."

+ N Y Times 20:45 F 7 '15 80w

SILBERRAD, UNA LUCY. Cuddy Yarborough's daughter. $1.25 (1½c) Doran 14-5194

"A sincere study of middle-class country life, well flavoured with gentle observation and unobtrusive satire. Its cardinal virtue is unpretentiousness. The plot is of the simplest—it is centred upon Countershell, the home of the Yarboroughs, and as soon as the daughter gets back there with an appropriate husband, after dolorous exile in other less agreeable places, the book sinks naturally to its close. Its atmosphere is one of kindness."—Ath

"Miss Silberrad has sufficient parts to have made her story more ambitious and less, if we may use the word, crepuscular. A bolder and more confident workmanship would have easily snapped those fetters of convention which, however lightly, she still wears. As it is, the book is a sort of grey monotone, charming in its way, but a little insignificant."

+ — Ath 1914.1:sup465 Mr 28 170w

+ — Boston Transcript p24 S 30 '14 160w

+ N Y Times 19:282 Je 21 '14 530w

"Miss Silberrad may have intended at first to write a novel which should have for its chief interest the career of Violet, daughter to Cuthbert Yarborough, but she has not followed out her original plan, for Violet is certainly dull and lacking in initiative; she has given us instead a delightful account of quite another person—Maud, cousin and quasi-sister of the said Cuthbert."

+ — Spec 112:356 F 28 '14 200w

"A diverting book."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 6 '14 500w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:264 N '14 60w

SIMONDS, FRANK HERBERT. Great war: the first phase [from the assassination of the archduke to the fall of Antwerp]. il *$1.25 (2½c) Kennerley 14-18946

Many of the chapters of this book appeared first as editorial articles in the New York "Sun." "They were intended to supply in some slight measure an answer to the question raised on all sides and concerning each separate incident in the European war: What does it mean? . . . They are then frankly and simply editorial comment on some but by no means all of the more considerable episodes of the first two months of the present world war written close to the event and here presented with a complete recognition of the limitations of such comment." (Preface) The articles are grouped under four headings: The crisis; First battles; From Brussels to the gates of Paris; From the Marne to the Aisne.

+ A L A Bkl 11:166 D '14

+ Ind 80:242 N 16 '14 90w

+ — New Republic 1:28 D 12 '14 $30w

"Mr. Simonds's book is a clearly written—in many places an illuminating—account of what he terms the first phase of the war."

+ N Y Times 19:492 N 8 '14 470w

+ Outlook 108:816 D 9 '14 60w

+ R of Rs 50:761 D '14 230w

SIMONS, THEODORE. Compressed air. il *$1.50 McGraw 14-9238

"This book is divided into four parts, taking up in more or less detail the following subjects: 'Production of compressed air,' 'Transmission of compressed air,' 'Use of compressed air' and 'Air compression and accessories.' As can be readily appreciated, only a rather short treatment of the various subjects indicated is permissible. The idea of the author is apparently to use this as a textbook and to give the student in a simple and concise way an insight into the laws and principles ordinarily met. Included in the treatment may be found quite a few problems illustrative of the methods used, in addition to figures which indicate prominent types of machinery."—Engin Rec

"A useful manual."

+ A L A Bkl 11:115 S '14

"Although the author has not given to the reader anything new, yet the information is well arranged for the student." H. F. Halladay

+ Engin N 71:1391 Je 18 '14 330w

"The book is very limited in its treatment and is adaptable principally as a textbook, but then only when supplemented to a great extent by lectures."

+ — Engin Rec 69:684 Je 13 '14 210w

SINCLAIR, BERTRAND WILLIAM. North of fifty-three. il *$1.30 (1½c) Little 14-6238

The story opens in a small manufacturing city of eastern Canada where the malice of her one-time employer leaves Hazel Weir with-

SINCLAIR, BERTRAND WILLIAM—Continued. out a position, and with a questionable reputation among the people who have known her all her life and who should have had faith in her. Jack Barrow, the man she was to marry, like her other friends, turns from her, and cutting herself off entirely from the life she has known, she goes out to Cariboo Meadow, B. C., to begin over again. Here the real story opens with her meeting with Roaring Bill Wagstaff, a man of a type she has never known. The author believes in the wild free life of the woods and loses no opportunity of contrasting it with a cramped, artificial existence in cities and towns.

+ Atlan 114:528 O '14 40w

"This is a rather big book, big with a sense of more than just the vision of what life can mean in the open."

+ Bookm 39:338 My '14 470w

"A readable and cheery little love story."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 15 '14 300w

"Mr. Sinclair has a definite point that he states clearly. His two characters are exceptionally well drawn and sympathetic. His style is robust and vigorous. His pictures of Canadian life are stimulating."

+ Natlon 93:468 Ap 23 '14 330w

N Y Times 19:168 Ap 5 '14 250w

"The story is well written. It is rich in strong situation, romance and heart-stirring scenes, both of the emotional and courage-stirring order. It ranks with the best of its type."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 350w

SINCLAIR, MAY. Return of the prodigal (Eng title, Judgment of Eve). *$1.35 (1c) Macmillan 14-10423

Here are eight stories varying in length from twenty pages to one hundred and forty which analyze the seemingly trivial happenings of life, set down ordinarily at the start as things to be overcome and unworthy of serious consideration, but which turn out to be enormously important in their influence and result. This is particularly well illustrated in "The fault" in which a man unhappily married and divorced is on the point of a second marriage when the altogether lovable woman in question indulges in a little trick of his first wife, that of loosening and untwisting a little tendlir of brown hair that hung over the left ear; and so intimately are his past miseries associated with that habit that he leaves her precipitately without an explanation, an address, or a good bye. Miss Sinclair's women vary from intangible, wraith-like creatures, like the Phoebe mentioned and Freda Farrar in "The gift," to the stupendous Philippa Tarrant whose presence had the magic effect of making every place a desert place "for the illusion of her somber and solitary beauty." The men furnish examples of "the incomplete, and the ill working of the masculine intellect."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup736 My 23 180w

+ Atlan 114:528 O '14 300w

"This volume gives new evidence of this author's fine artistry, deep insight and unwavering adherence to her own high standard." F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:678 Ag '14 630w

"If Miss Sinclair had collectively entitled her stories 'The follies of man' she would have hit the mark. They are of course, a woman's idea of what a man's intellectual shortcomings would be, but nevertheless it is doubtful if a man could have accurately brought them to life. Miss Sinclair has always had a most uncanny skill at the prying into hidden masculine secrets. It was apparent in 'The divine fire,' and it has been equally evident in everything else she has written since. It may be the product of observation, it may be simply the result of intuition, but whatever its origin it gives an extraordinarily piquant truthfulness to her novels and her short stories. No other woman writer in English, with the possible exception of Mrs. Wharton, possesses the same faculty." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 1150w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:20 J1 1 '14 200w

"The story from which this volume gets its title discloses, together with three or four others in the collection of eight, Miss Sinclair at her worst."

+ Nation 99:18 J1 2 '14 220w

"Taken altogether, it is an exceptionally worthwhile volume. A trifle too long and here and there, at time just a bit too fine-spun, too oversubtilized to be quite vital, these tales always have a strong intellectual interest, are unmistakably the products of an unusually keen and penetrating mind."

+ N Y Times 19:258 Je 7 '14 1050w

"It would be absurd to pretend that the eight stories which make up this volume are Miss Sinclair's best work. All are readable, but from the standpoint of the author's high achievement several are negligible."

+ Sat R 117:542 Ap 25 '14 430w

+ Spec 113:25 J1 4 '14 20w

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 800w

SINCLAIR, MAY. Three sisters. *$1.35 (1½c) Macmillan 14-18337

Miss Sinclair's latest story is a study in abnormal psychology—or a psychological study of the effects of abnormal conditions. The scene is laid in the north of England where James Cartaret has brought his family after certain innocent indiscretions on the part of his youngest daughter Alice have led him to abandon his parish in the south. The three girls live immured in the vicarage, cut off from friendship and youth, spending weary evenings in the society of one another, waiting for the one event of their day—family prayers. The life affects them differently. Mary takes to good works; Gwendra roams the moors alone at night; Alice pines and fades. Yet the mind of each is engaged all the time with one figure, Steven Rowcliffe, the young doctor. Mary thinks: "He will see that I am sweet and womanly"; Gwendra: "He will wonder who that strange girl is who is unafraid"; Alice: "I will make myself ill and he will come to see me." The outcome of this situation and the ultimate reaction of each as a result of it, is the substance of the story. Miss Sinclair employs her uncanny power of getting inside a man's mind, too, in the case of James Cartaret, the vicar.

"Gloomy and powerful story."

+ Ath 1914,2:424 O 24 230w

"Perhaps the strongest book of Miss Sinclair's later period." F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:556 Ja '15 250w

"It is because it gives so forthright and imaginative a conspectus of feminine character that its occasional indirections are bewildering."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 31 '14 1100w

"Almost inhuman at times in its penetration of its insight. Quite so in its distortion of essential facts of human passion."

+ Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 90w

Nation 99:632 N 26 '14 430w

"A powerful novel, written with both vigor and delicacy, dramatic, absorbingly interesting—and very painful."

+ N Y Times 19:485 N 8 '14 1150w

+ Outlook 108:844 D 9 '14 250w

"The book may be an artistic triumph, but it is a very sordid picture."

+ Sat R 119:18 Ja 2 '15 350w

"The novel is, in any case, grim and depressing; it would be tragical if its psychology were true to that of the majority of women."

+ Spec 113:854 D 12 '14 100w

"A strong, earnest book that deserves to rank among the few notable novels of the year."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 24 '14 630w

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Damaged goods; novelized with the approval of the author. *$1 (2½c) Winston 13-22819

A simple novelization of Brieux's "Les avariés" in which the spirit and feeling of the original have been followed as closely as possible. Mr. Sinclair has done his work in the interests of social purity, believing with Brieux that social evils are not to be cured by laws but by education, public enlightenment, and a franker recognition of conditions as they exist today.

SINCLAIR, UPTON BEALL. Sylvia's marriage. *$1.20 (1½c) Winston 14-17806

"Sylvia," Upton Sinclair's novel published last year, closed with certain broad hints to the reader as to the outcome of the brilliant marriage of its heroine. These hints are developed in the present story in which Mary Abbott tells of her meeting with Sylvia and the growth of their friendship. It is from this sturdy common-sense woman that Sylvia learns many of the ugly truths about life as it is lived, and when her own child is born blind she sees thru the lies told her by the doctors and her husband and acts accordingly. She is able later to save a younger sister from a like tragic marriage, and she creates something of a sensation in her native Castleman county by her frank teaching of sex truths to its young people.

"The book is inherently too insignificant to produce more than a momentary qualm."

— Nation 99:689 D 10 '14 250w

N Y Times 19:463 O 25 '14 230w

SINGER, DANIEL J. Big game fields of America, North and South. il *$2.25 (5c) Doran 14-21597

Hunting exploits between Alaska and the equator have furnished the material for this book. The author says: "In two chapters I have attempted to give with some exactitude the natural history of the black bear and the jaguar, the two animals which in captivity and the open I have most carefully studied, but in general my object is to present as clearly as possible the human side of the sport—the greatest sport in the world." (Preface) The book is illustrated with three drawings by Charles Livingston Bull and photographs by the author, some of them unusually good examples of animal photography.

"He writes one of the intimate, heart-to-heart sort of tales which makes readers imagine a friend is telling them a story." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p25 D 2 '14 820w

+ Outlook 109:294 F 3 '15 60w

SKEAT, WALTER WILLIAM, comp. Glossary of Tudor and Stuart words; ed. with additions by A. L. Mayhew. *$1.75 Oxford 14-7721

"Mr. Mayhew, of Wadham, Oxford, completed and edited this book, and has written a little appreciation of the great Anglo-Saxon scholar—that eager enthusiastic spirit—who at the time of his death had been working on and off for years on it. . . . Happily not a few fine old Tudor and Stuart words, now out of general use among educated people, still survive, if in a changed form, in village England; whilst others have become what we not always wisely call Americanisms. Others have gone altogether, which we deplore, and would restore." (Sat R) "The vocabulary remains much as the author left it, and consists in the main of words now obsolete or dialectal, or of current words bearing meanings no longer current, all being found in literature of the period indicated in the title." (Ath)

"The work constitutes a useful and handy aid to the study of a most important period of our literature; and owners of the 'New English dictionary' will be glad to supplement its lavish quotations with those provided by Mr. Mayhew's unselfish industry in adding them to Skeat's references or with the references left alone."

+ Ath 1914,1:307 F 23 880w

— Nation 99:109 J1 23 '14 220w

"It is a sterling piece of work, and we find it hard to take the book up without spending hours searching through its lists of words curious and sometimes beautiful. The 'Tudor and Stuart glossary' is a scholar's book, but it is more than that. We commend it to writers generally."

+ Sat R 117:376 Mr 21 '14 200w

"A book which will be of the greatest service to all students of our language."

+ Spec 112:274 F 14 '14 130w

SKINNER, ERNEST BROWN. Mathematical theory of investment. il $2.25 Glinn 13-23607

"This book contains a series of lectures given annually for the last five years to the students in the course of commerce at the University of Wisconsin. It has been written to provide a text book of mathematics adapted to meet the need of students trained for commercial careers and the public service. . . . It comprises several introductory chapters briefly reviewing those portions of algebra essential for later developments in the book and then takes up important applications of mathematics in financial problems, including the amortization of debts, the theory of bond values, sinking funds, depreciation, the valuation of mining properties, etc."—Indust Engin

Reviewed by H. L. Kletz

+ Am Econ R 4:387 Je '14 420w

"It is very complete."

+ Educ R 47:101 Ja '14 50w

+ Engin N 71:1163 My 21 '14 150w

"Engineers will be chiefly interested in the chapters on amortization, valuation of bonds, and on sinking funds and depreciation. For those concerned with problems under these heads the work should be useful for reference."

+ Engin Rec 69:346 Mr 21 '14 130w

"It offers a comprehensive treatment of the theory of long-time investment."

+ Indust Engin 14:169 Ap 14 150w

+ Pol Sci Q 29:177 Mr '14 110w

SKRINE, MRS. MARY JESSIE HAMMOND (TOOKE). Bedesman 4. il *$1 (2c) Century 14-7569

Neither he nor his parents dreamed that he was anything more than an ordinary child—only his sister Emily knew that he was the most wonderful person in the world—until the great man discovered him and sent him away to be educated. He is David Bold, son of a quarryman, and the story follows him thru his school days at the "Free schoole for all ye poore children of Compton," founded in the days of Henry VII, up to a fellowship at Oxford. There are four women characters in the story, Esther Bold, David's mother; his sister Emily; Bridget; and Gwen, who are well worth knowing.

+ A L A Bkl 10:414 Je '14

"The descriptions of the country-side and of school-life are picturesque and sympathetic, but the story as a whole is slight."

— Ath 1914,1:sup742 My 23 80w

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap 29 '14 310w

"Atmosphere is a much overworked word; nevertheless, it is the only one, which can be used to describe that quality wherein lies the especial charm of Mrs. Skrine's little book. Some very attractive people play important parts in the slight but interesting plot."

+ N Y Times 19:196 Ap 19 '14 400w

+ Outlook 107:370 Je 13 '14 200w

+ Spec 112:1040 Je 20 '14 220w

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 28 '14 220w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:129 My '14 40w

SLADEN, DOUGLAS BROOKE WHEELTON. How to see the Vatican. il *$2 Pott 14-11608

"The aim of the book is to give the ordinary reader some acquaintance with the history of the Vatican and to describe for him those parts of the palace which are least familiar to the average tourist." (Nation) The book takes the place of an earlier work by the author, "Secrets of the Vatican," now out of print.

SLADEN, DOUGLAS B. W.—Continued.

"Delightful book."

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 13 '14 280w

"As a plain workaday guide to the Vatican, covering some ground which is not covered elsewhere, this book should have its value."

+ Nation 98:731 Je 18 '14 150w

"This book is interestingly written and copiously illustrated."

+ N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 90w

SLADEN, DOUGLAS BROOKE WHEELTON.
"Queer things about Japan. 4th ed il *$2 Dutton

"Ten years have passed since the appearance of the first edition of Mr. Douglas Sladen's 'Queer things about Japan,' and the book has since been twice re-issued. Now a fourth edition comes out, with an added chapter on the life of the late Japanese Emperor. Native artists illustrate the volume." (Dial) "Mr. Sladen confesses that he is so fond of Japan that he would not think of criticising the Japanese seriously, so the story is all in good humour and generally humorous." (Boston Transcript)

"An entertaining book that is well worth more than one reading."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 23 '13 200w

"As a sketch-book of the humors and oddities of the people of Nippon, Mr. Sladen's volume is entertaining and apparently at the same time heedful of the truth."

+ Dial 55:531 D 16 '13 120w

SLADEN, DOUGLAS BROOKE WHEELTON.
"Real 'Truth about Germany'; facts about the war (Eng title, Germany's great lie). $1 Putnam 14-18726

At the outbreak of the war a pamphlet in English, "The truth about Germany," was published in Germany for distribution in the United States. The author has reprinted this pamphlet and has answered it paragraph by paragraph from the English point of view. The German statements are printed in Roman type, the English comment follows in bold-face. An appendix contains a discussion on Great Britain and the war by A. Maurice Low.

A L A Bk1 11:166 D '14

Ath 1914:2:347 O 10 400w

Reviewed by E. B. Krehbiel

Dial 57:379 N 16 '14 230w

Ind 80:242 N 16 '14 70w

+ N Y Times 19:492 N 8 '14 120w

— Outlook 108:817 D 9 '14 50w

Spec 113:503 O 10 '14 60w

SLATER, JOHN HERBERT. Robert Louis Stevenson: a bibliography of his complete works. (Bibliographers' handbooks) *75c Macmillan (Eng ed 14-11191)

This bibliography of the works of Robert Louis Stevenson is the first volume in a proposed series. "It is arranged in alphabetical order, and gives the current auction price of each item." (Spec)

Boston Transcript p11 My 2 '14 70w

Dial 56:431 My 16 '14 70w

Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 120w

SLATTERY, MARGARET. Girl and her religion. il $1 (1½c) Pilgrim press 13-24468

The author writes sympathetically of the girl and her problems. In part one, which opens with a wise chapter on "The rights of a girl," she considers the everyday problems of life and work and leisure. In part two she takes up the deeper problems of religion and the meaning of life.

"There is a strong, helpful chapter on religion and prayer as a matter of cultivation."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 16 '13 250w

"Her new volume abounds in incidents of personal experience in dealing with girls whose impulses, dangers and ideals she fully understands and interprets with the sure hand of a master."

+ Ind 78:142 Ap 20 '14 50w

+ N Y Times 19:341 Ag 9 '14 70w

SLATTERY, MARGARET. He took it upon himself. il *60c (6c) Pilgrim press 14-19174

A little essay in which the author pays tribute to the men and women who have voluntarily taken upon themselves the burdens of others. She urges upon her readers a like unselfishness in giving their time and thought to the social problems of our day.

+ Dial 57:511 D 16 '14 90w

N Y Times 19:589 D 27 '14 70w

SLAUSON, HAROLD WHITING. Gasoline motor. (Outing handbooks) *70c (2c) Outing pub. 13-11047

A little book explaining in detail the mechanism of the gasoline motor. The chapters are: Types of motors; Valves; Bearings; The ignition system; Magneto; Carburetors and their fuel; Lubrication; Cooling; Two cycle motors.

N Y Sun p12 Ap 19 '13 60w

+ N Y Times 18:317 My 25 '13 70w

SLINGERLAND, MARK VERNON, and CROSBY, CYRUS RICHARD. Manual of fruit insects. il *$2 Macmillan 14-13459

This work begun by the late Professor Slingerland of the Cornell experiment station has been completed by Mr. Crosby, and published as one of the "Rural manuals." The preface states: "We have attempted to treat only the more important insects injurious to deciduous fruits; many of the minor pests have been omitted altogether. In each case the aim has been to give, in as concise form as possible, the main facts relating to the distribution, life-history, and habits of the insect, the nature and extent of the injury inflicted, and the means of control—the last from the standpoint of the commercial fruit-grower." A few reading references are cited for each of the insects treated; the work is fully illustrated and there is an index.

"Scientifically accurate, yet shorn of technicalities, a useful and acceptable book for the producer, whether he grows for home consumption or the large markets."

+ A L A Bk1 11:205 Ja '15

"The work is complete, thorough, and accurate."

+ Dial 57:347 N 1 '14 220w

"To be commended as trustworthy."

+ Ind 79:385 S 14 '14 120w

+ Nation 99:414 O 1 '14 320w

"The few pages of 'general considerations' on the structure of insects are the weak part of the book." G. H. C.

+ Nature 94:446 D 24 '14 280w

"Thorough and accurate."

+ Pittsburgh 20:51 F '15 90w

Spec 113:470 O 3 '14 70w

SLOANE, WILLIAM MILLIGAN. Balkans: a laboratory of history. il *$1.50 Meth. bk. 14-6829

"Professor Sloane's account is something more than a narrative of the recent wars, altho these are fully treated; it is a study of the conditions and causes which have made their brilliant military achievements and their unspeakable atrocities alike possible. The confused ethnological problems of the Balkan states are made as clear as possible where there is so much to know and so little that is certainly known. The history of the little kingdoms is outlined, their attempts to reach constitutional government after the western fashion, their diplomacy 'degraded almost to the level of conspiracy' and their long laid plans for aggrandizing Macedonia."—Ind

"The book is an invaluable contribution to the literature of the Balkans."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 18 '14 500w

+ Ind 78:492 Je 15 '14 170w

+ Lit D 50:250 F 6 '15 140w

"Unfortunately, the descriptions are disfigured by a number of positive errors which might have been avoided by more careful reference to easily accessible authorities. Nor is Professor Sloane's observation of contemporary events more accurate."

+ Nation 99:136 J1 30 '14 850w

+ N Y Times 19:311 J1 12 '14 180w

Outlook 107:678 J1 18 '14 1050w

"An exhaustive treatment."

+ R of Rs 49:759 Je '14 90w

SLOANE, WILLIAM MILLIGAN. Party government in the United States of America. *$2 (2c) Harper 14-15153

The chapters of this book were first prepared and delivered as lectures in German before audiences at the universities of Berlin and Munich during the author's term as Roosevelt professor, 1912-13. They were published in German last year and this edition in English appears with some additions and revisions to bring it closer to date. The author's method is historical. He follows the history of parties, as shaped by changing political and economic conditions from the beginning of our life as a nation up to the Wilson administration. The growth of the powers of the presidency since 1850 is an interesting feature brought out in his development. This encroachment of the executive on the powers of the legislative body is looked on as an inevitable accompaniment of the extension of suffrage.

A L A Bkl 11:156 D '14

"We do not have any really comprehensive, penetrating, and well-balanced treatise on our party system as a whole. In a measure, Professor Sloane's book fills the gap; but only in a measure, for it is too brief to be more than a substantial outline of the subject, and highly important phases of present-day party machinery and action are scarcely touched upon in it. The book contains no bibliography; there are practically no foot-notes or other references to documents; and although there is an appendix, the reason for including in it some of its contents is not obvious." F: A. Ogg

+ Dial 57:296 O 16 '14 780w

"Misleading in its title and dry in its contents."

— Ind 80:210 N 9 '14 180w

+ Nation 99:694 D 10 '14 430w

+ N Y Times 19:473 N 1 '14 1450w

Reviewed by F. M. Colby

No Am 201:88 Ja '15 1950w

"He traces with thoroughness and skill the historical evolution of our party system."

+ Pittsburgh 19:549 D '14 80w

SLOSSON, EDWIN EMERY. Major prophets of to-day. il *$1.50 (2c) Little 14-16721

With a happy blending of biography, criticism and quotation the author introduces six of the men who in one way or another are today influencing the world's thought. He has visited each of the six and so is able to enliven the biographical paragraphs with a personal touch. The six men, chosen from among philosophers, men of science, and of letters, are: Maurice Maeterlinck; Henri Bergson; Henri Poincaré; Elie Metchnikoff; Wilhelm Ostwald; Ernst Haeckel.

+ A L A Bkl 11:171 D '14

"Aside from this question of the wisdom of Mr. Slosson's choice, the book deserves hearty commendation." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:565 Ja '15 160w

"Dr. Slosson has popularized in a very readable manner the views of certain of the foremost thinkers of the day. He has a gift for lucid exposition and the faculty of making his theme appear vital and human."

+ Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 620w

Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 35w

SLOSSON, PRESTON WILLIAM. Fated or free? a dialogue on destiny. *$1 (5c) Sherman, French & co. 14-21610

A little discussion, in the Platonic manner, of free will. Those who take parts in the dialog are: an indeterminist, a professor of logic, a professor of physics, a professor of sociology, a Presbyterian minister, a novelist, the warden of a penitentiary and a practical man. The author says: "There has been no thought of proving any thesis . . . . The aim has simply been to present as forcibly as possible the various objections which have been brought against the doctrine of free will from several different points of view and to see what answers a defender of the doctrine could offer."

"The arguments on both sides are presented with great fairness and in very readable style."

+ Ind 81:57 Ja 11 '15 70w

SMALL, ALBION WOODBURY. Between eras from capitalism to democracy. *$1.65 Intercollegiate press, Kansas City, Mo. 13-13084

A book which "recalls Bellamy's 'Looking backward,' in spite of differences in fundamental plan and outlook. Where Bellamy was a mere socialistic visionary, leaping far ahead of his own day, Small shows an intimate acquaintance with the technique of present society, and works in view of actual conditions. Instead of presenting a cut-and-dried scheme to take the place of our existing social order, he analyzes the prevailing system and suggests the point of least resistance where the régime of the future will make its inroad. The book is frankly described on its title-page as 'a cycle of conversations and discourses, with occasional side-lights upon the speakers.' In and around these 'conversations and discourses' is worked the thread of a story which revolves about an extraordinary strike against 'The Avery company,' a great manufacturing concern in Chicago."—Bib World

"Within its limitations this book is the cleverest, the most incisive, and the best equipped analysis of the capitalistic system of industrial production which has appeared within our time. No one can afford to pass it by. Besides that, you get your money's worth. It is a very bulky volume, handsomely printed, and there are enough ideas in it to equip half a dozen ordinary writers." Walter Rauschenbusch

+ Am J Soc 19:853 My '14 450w

+ A L A Bkl 10:151 D '13

"This volume is a notable addition to the goodly fellowship of books undertaking to inculcate truth by the use of fiction."

+ Bib World 42:177 S '13 350w

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 9 '13 450w

SMALL, WALTER HERBERT. Early New England schools; ed. by W. Holden Eddy. $2 (1½c) Ginn 14-20408

The author has collected an amount of valuable material relating to the early history of education in New England. This he has arranged in the logical order of the development of the schools thru their various transition periods. He has quoted freely from old records and gives extracts from the early statutes applying to education. There are chapters on: The New England grammar school to 1700; The New England grammar school after 1700; The moving school and school districts; The ancient schoolmaster; Schoolmasters' salaries; The dame school and the school dame; The support of schools; The early education of girls, etc.

"While written primarily for teachers and students of educational methods, it must prove of interest to all lovers of history, filled as it is with quaintly curious historical detail, and with anecdotes of famous schools and of famous masters."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 6 '15 430w

"Not history, but the materials from which history is made are to be had in W. H. Small's book, which is a relief from the frequently superficial compilations on life in the colonies."

SMALL, WALTER HERBERT—Continued.
+ Ind 81:215 F 8 '15 100w

"An exceedingly valuable contribution to the history of American education."
+ School R 23:140 F '15 130w

SMALLWOOD, JULIAN CHASE. Mechanical laboratory methods. il *$2.50 Van Nostrand 14-3261

"The first part of the book, devoted to the testing of instruments, gives methods of calibrating scales and spring balances, pressure and draft gages, tachometers, friction, fan and dynamometer brakes, steam engine indicators, planimeters, meters of various types, such as water meters, gas meters, weirs, nozzles, orifices, etc. It also includes notes on the calibration of thermometers and on steam calorimetry and sampling, together with notes on the determination of constants for oil testers and belt testers. Part 2 is entitled the analysis of combustion, and gives concise directions for the analysis of fuels, the calorimetry of fuels and the analysis of the products of combustion. Part 3 under the title of the testing of power plant units, contains detailed directions for the testing of steam engines, turbines, pumps, boilers, gas engines air machinery and water motors."—Indust Engin

"Throughout, the author's style is concise, clear and readable. This book has now and then a slip or a statement not made quite as well as the majority, but the points are few, minor, and so overshadowed by the general excellence of the work that they should not be detailed here."
+ Engin N 71:1165 My 21 '14 470w

"The book is well gotten up and is an extremely valuable and handy manual for any engineer who is required to maintain or test any of the apparatus usually found in the power plant or factory."
+ Indust Engin 14:169 Ap '14 250w

SMITH, ARTHUR LIONEL. Church and state in the middle ages: the Ford lectures delivered at Oxford in 1905. *$2.50 Oxford 14-12980

"This volume consists of six lectures devoted mainly to the relation of the papacy to England and English affairs during the thirteenth century. The first deals with papal influences, the second with the law of marriage as enunciated by the popes, the third with the temporal state such as the papacy was anxious to have, the fourth with the protests against the abuses growing out of papal interference in church affairs in England, the fifth with the aims of papal policy in the German empire, and the sixth with the policy of Innocent IV in particular."—Am Hist R

"The author has a delightful style and the book owes much of its readability to an easy use of words. He is so impartial in the presentation of his material that it is difficult to determine whether he is Catholic or Protestant—certainly a rare accomplishment even in these days of liberal-minded historians." James Sullivan

+ Am Hist R 19:346 Ja '14 500w

+ Ath 1913,2:198 Ag 30 700w

"Although we do not agree with Mr. Smith in his estimate of the duel between the papacy and the empire, we are grateful to him for his straightforward defence of the famous Bishop of Lincoln, and his perfect portrait of that unreliable chronicler, Matthew Paris, who so bitterly maligned him."
+ Cath World 99:113 Ap '14 1150w

"Most valuable volume. In addition to his learning and originality Mr. Smith has the gift of writing." J. N. Figgis

+ Eng Hist R 30:114 Ja '15 1500w

+ Nation 99:354 S 17 '14 430w

"The lectures are worthy of his reputation and of himself, and he has written a book which will rank with the best and finest historical work of recent years."
+ Spec 111:518 O 4 '13 1650w

SMITH, EDGAR FAHS. Chemistry in America. il *$2.50 (2½c) Appleton 14-5967

A compilation rather than a history of the progress of chemistry in America from 1768 to the present time. Some of the real treasures of the science in the form of addresses, reports of experiments, memoirs and historical matter relating to the founding of chemical societies are used to testify to the early spirit of inquiry into the science and to illustrate the stepping stones to its present advancement. Biographical information concerning the men who thus enriched the science is scattered thru the volume in connection with their contributions. There are twenty chapters, each complete in itself, and as a whole, covering every phase of the bearing of chemistry upon modern industry.

A L A Bkl 10:407 Je '14

"The history of achievement in this field could have no more suggestive outline and no more salient illustration than that afforded by Dr. Smith in this volume."

+ Ann Am Acad 54:326 Jl '14 50w

Engin N 72:164 Jl 16 '14 130w

+ Ind 80:245 N 16 '14 70w

"The historical chapters cover the ground pretty completely to the middle of the last century, and then tail off to a ragged conclusion."
+ Nation 100:29 Ja 7 '15 1200w

+ N Y Times 19:156 Ap 5 '14 350w

"All American chemists should be thankful to the author for the pains he has taken to collect this material and for placing it before us. It furnishes the basis for the history of chemistry in America which remains to be written." Ira Remsen

+ Science n s 39:942 Je 26 '14 1500w

Springfield Republican p5 S 17 '14 900w

SMITH, MRS. EMILY ANNA (JONES). Life and letters of Nathan Smith. il *$2.25 (4½c) Yale univ. press 14-12413

The volume is issued as a contribution to the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the opening of the "Medical institution of Yale college," of which Dr. Smith was one of the organizers and in which he held a professorship from 1813 to 1829. He was instrumental also in establishing three other medical schools, those of Dartmouth, Bowdoin, and the University of Vermont, and this volume, with its introduction by Dr. William H. Welch, makes clear the debt which medical education and medical science owe to his efforts.

"This appreciation of his work will be read with interest by medical men, everywhere, and especially by graduates of the Yale medical school."

+ Boston Transcript p21 Ag 5 '14 250w

"This memorial volume is an important contribution to American medical history."

+ Nation 100:59 Ja 14 '15 1100w

SMITH, FRANCIS HOPKINSON. In Dickens's London. il *$3.50 (9½c) Scribner 14-18262

A companion volume to "In Thackeray's London." Mr. Smith says it is not "another book about Mr. Dickens with illustrations by the author, but a book of illustrations with some explanatory extracts from the master's text, padded with some experiences of my own." (Introduction)

"More suitable for a gift-book than for average library use."

+ A L A Bkl 11:164 D '14

"Though not without a certain liveliness and geniality, the text is, for the most part, trivial and irrelevant, and not infrequently is wanting in good taste."

+ Ath 1914,2:556 N 28 1000w

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:422 D '14 200w

"F. Hopkinson Smith has put heart and soul and art and felicity into this delightful work. It is a delight to the eye, a pleasure to the mind, an inspiration to the heart, this beautiful volume." E. S. C.

- + Boston Transcript p8 N 7 '14 570w
- + Dial 57:457 D 1 '14 250w
- + Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 80w
- + Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 280w
- + N Y Times 19:529 N 29 '14 100w

"Mr. Smith has not only the eye and hand of the artist, but he is of the true Dickens cult."

- + Outlook 108:899 D 16 '14 580w

SMITH, HARRY EDWIN. United States federal internal tax history from 1861 to 1871. *$1.50 (2c) Houghton 14-7065

This Hart, Schaffner and Marx prize essay deals with the history of the internal revenue system of the United States in the decade following the outbreak of the civil war. The chapters take up: Direct tax; The income tax; Inheritance tax; Taxes on gross receipts and on banks; Stamp taxes; Licenses on special taxes; Taxes on spirituous and fermented liquors; Taxes on manufactured articles and products; Other internal taxes; Influence of internal taxes on the import duties; Administration. The volume is well supplied with tables and there is a bibliography and an index.

"It is a very valuable contribution to our economic history."

- + Am Hist R 20:176 O '14 800w

Reviewed by Horace Secrist

- + J Pol Econ 23:87 Ja '15 770w

"Exhaustive and scholarly."

- + N Y Br Lib News 1:84 Je '14 10w

"There is nothing distinctly new or startling in the work, which is a plain, unvarnished but trustworthy account of the facts. Very full bibliography."

- + Pol Sci Q 29:568 S '14 80w
- R of Rs 49:758 Je '14 150w

SMITH, HENRY PRESERVED. Religion of Israel: an historical study. *$2.50 Scribner 14-4233

"The entire history of the religion of Israel 'from the earliest discoverable' traces down to the Christian era is here divided into four stages, the two earlier ones being respectively styled nomadic and agricultural, and the later ones bearing the more familiar characterization of prophetism and legalism. . . . One of the most interesting chapters of the book is that entitled 'Moses and his work.' . . . Among the other sections to which—apart from those dealing with the work of the prophets—special attention may be drawn are the chapters headed 'The Messianic hope,' 'The spiritualization of the Messianic hope,' 'Apocalyptic development of the Messianic hope,' and 'The treasure of the humble' (dealing with the book of Psalms)."—Ath

"Since Professor Smith has not materially changed his views since the appearance of his 'History' in 1903, the student familiar with the latter will find relatively little that is new in the present work. But it is an admirable presentation of its author's views and represents also in the main the position of the majority of historical students of Hebrew religion at the present time."

- + Am J Theol 18:427 Jl '14 830w

"The best and most comprehensive work in English."

- + A L A Bkl 11:7 S '14

"Prof. Smith's new work deserves to be studied with attention. Its value lies in the freshness of mental atmosphere which pervades it throughout."

- + Ath 1914,2:389 O 17 1000w

"The non-specialist reader may gain from it a clear outline of the course of Israel's religious development, while it may serve as an admirable textbook in the hands of a competent teacher." W. G. Jordan

- + Bib World 43:416 Je '14 1000w

SMITH, JOSEPH RUSSELL. Industrial and commercial geography. il *$4 (1c) Holt 13-20156

Descriptive note in December, 1913.

"The author's wealth of information, clear statement, attractive style, and keen appreciation of fundamental causes, raise this book to a very high excellence in its special field. In places, the author has permitted his facile pen to betray him into the sacrifice of scientific accuracy to picturesqueness of statement. Here and there, also, misprints make it necessary to exercise a little caution in using the book." Lincoln Hutchinson

- + Am Econ R 4:122 Mr '14 1450w

"Valuable for reference because of its comprehensiveness and full index."

- + A L A Bkl 10:281 Mr '14

"Quite the best book that we have seen in its field."

- + Educ R 47:422 Ap '14 30w

"This book should therefore be welcomed by all who hold that economic geography is a social rather than a physical or natural science." E. V. Robinson

- + J Pol Econ 22:498 My '14 1050w

"His second part, 'Commercial geography,' deals with trade routes principally, and here perhaps, in comparison with other commercial geographies, this book has its chief value."

- + Nature 92:710 F 26 '14 480w

"The spirit of the author is so good, his interpretations so suggestive, that when a revision is made the book will stand as the best textbook presentation so far published in this country, of the complex and difficult field of industry and commerce, from the geographic viewpoint." J. P. Goode

- + Science n s 40:600 O 23 '14 900w

"A useful reference work, with good diagrams and index."

- + Wis Lib Bull 10:126 My '14 40w

SMITH, LAURA ROUNTREE. Sixty musical games and recreations for little musicians. 75c Ditson 14-8482

The author shows how the play impulse may be utilized in music teaching as it has been in other branches of teaching in lower grades. The first part of her book gives accounts of the games. The second part outlines a series of recitals.

"Some of the games have a distinct educational value." H. T. Fink

- + Nation 98:612 My 21 '14 50w

SMITH, MRS. MARY PRUDENCE (WELLS). Two in a bungalow. (Summer vacation ser.) il *$1.20 (2c) Little 14-17095

A story for boys and girls. The simple incidents of a summer spent in a bungalow in the mountains are described. The Strongs from Philadelphia, father, mother, and two boys, enter happily into the life of the little country community in which they are spending their summer. Their way of enjoying themselves is contrasted with that of the Van Allens, who hold themselves aloof from the people of the neighborhood and are consequently driven back to the city by boredom.

"A jolly story."

- + N Y Times 19:440 O 11 '14 40w

SMITH, SOLOMON CHARLES KAINES. Greek art and national life. il *$2.50 Scribner (Eng ed 14-17655)

"Mr. Smith's subject is well described in his title, which indicates its purpose to show the hitherto unknown phases of prehistoric Greek civilization, as disclosed in recent years through the comparatively new science of archaeology. . . . The various essays which comprise the different chapters of this book include a discussion of the always interesting topic of color as used in the early Greek sculpture."—Boston Transcript

SMITH, S. C. K.—Continued.

"The author is not infallibly accurate, and is often led away by his speculations, specially in the consideration of prehistoric art."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:17 S '14

"On the whole the book is both instructive and suggestive, and its style, if sometimes exuberant, is always fresh, and sometimes lofty in the truest sense."

+ — Ath 1913,2:509 N 1 1250w

"Mr. Smith, whose name has not hitherto been known among the writers upon archaeological topics, may perhaps be classed as a layman in this line of thought and study, nevertheless shows in this work a remarkable control of his subject and has entered with great boldness upon a comparatively little trodden field." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 4 '14 1300w

"It is the new point of view that is put forward in this book, with a scholar's conscientiousness and with imagination."

+ Int Studio 52:170 Ap '14 160w

"Mr. Smith is so responsive to what was best in Athenian art and patriotism that the reader may well indulge him in occasional excesses of pictorialism and in certain rather wild surmises on matters Mycenaean and Homeric."

+ — Nation 99:27 J1 2 '14 450w

"His chapter about the influence of climate on colour and form is interesting and scientific, and he often makes one think."

+ Sat R 116:sup12 O 11 '13 520w

+ Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 250w

SMITH, THEODORE CLARKE. Wars between England and America. *50c (1c) Holt

14-12913

This volume in the Home university library appears opportunely in the year which commemorates the hundred years of peace between our country and Great Britain. It covers the period between the Peace of Paris in 1763 and the Treaty of Ghent in 1815, and shows that this period was one of almost continuous antagonism between England and America. The two wars give their name to the book, not because of their importance, but because they mark "the outcome of successive years of unavailing efforts on the part of each country to avoid bloodshed."

+ A L A Bkl 11:167 D '14 +

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 250w

Ind 80:29 O 5 '14 200w

"One of the most interesting volumes of the rapidly growing series."

+ Nation 99:382 S 24 '14 280w

"It seems to be a fair and conscientious treatise, in which the author, in spite of his undoubted Americanism has weighed his facts and framed his conclusions without yielding to prejudice."

+ N Y Times 19:338 Ag 9 '14 70w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 21 '15 170w

SMITH, WILLIAM CADID. Business of farming. il *$2 (2½c) Stewart & Kidd 14-10550

By the author of "How to grow 100 bushels of corn per acre on worn soils," this volume records the knowledge about farming gathered from long experience, careful observation and years of study of the subjects treated. It deals in a simple and untechnical way with all matters pertaining to farming,—the debit side of the farming industry as well as the credit side; with matters bearing on all phases of farm management, care of soils, production of crops, care of by-products, conservation of equipment and human life, financing-methods and cost keeping, the relation of religion to farm life, etc.

+ Ath 1914,2:183 Ag 8 300w

Ind 78:495 Je 15 '14 80w

"What he has to say, excellent in itself, is said with a good deal of repetition and diffuseness; and a very large proportion of his pages are hortatory or lyrical."

+ — Nation 99:329 S 10 '14 800w

"Full of good reading for the man who lives by agricultural work."

+ N Y Times 19:355 Ag 23 '14 70w

SMITH, WILLIAM SPOONER. Travel notes of an octogenarian. il *$1.50 (2c) Badger, R: G. 14-9247

The preface states that "these random notes are printed not for their literary value but in the hope they may, in a way, act as an inspiration for the old." The author, at the age of eighty-seven, went as a delegate to an international church conference in Edinburgh. From there he continued on a journey around the world. This book is made up of extracts from letters written home from various points along the way.

"It has no special value as a book of travel, but as an instance of how intellectual interest can keep the spirit of youth alive in the aging human frame it comes near to being unique."

+ — N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 280w

R of Rs 50:116 J1 '14 40w

+ Spec 114:88 Ja 16 '15 120w

"This book deserves a unique place in literature, for its human-interest feature. But as a volume of travel notes the book is quite readable. The author is a keen observer and was alert to things worth while on his journey."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 13 '14 300w

SMYTH, REV. JOHN PATERSON. Bible in the making in the light of modern research. il *75c Pott 14-5073

"The author's view is that modern scholarship has in no way disturbed the foundations of Christianity, and that the Bible is still entitled to be regarded as a divinely inspired work and to be accepted as man's true guide for right living. There is nothing really disquieting in the criticism of the Bible which modern scholars have made. Dr. Smyth tells his readers. 'Nay, rather,' he adds, 'when we have got over the disturbance caused by shifting our point of view it should make the Bible for us a more living, throbbing, human presentation of God.'" —N Y Times

"All the essentials are gathered in this book in simple form and told in popular language."

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 16 '15 450w

+ N Y Times 19:189 Ap 12 '14 140w

"One who has read other books intended for ordinary readers interested to know how we got our Bible will not only find fresh interest in this, but may be inclined to pronounce it the best."

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 230w

SMYTH, NEWMAN. Constructive natural theology. *$1 Scribner 13-19088

This book is addressed to the increasing number of thoughtful persons "who desire to know in what state a full acceptance of the results of scientific research shall leave our cherished human faiths and hopes." Four lectures delivered at Yale university make up the contents. They are: Scientific materials for theology; The method and problems; Christ as final fact of nature; Scientific spirituality.

Reviewed by C. A. Beckwith

Am J Theol 18:306 Ap '14 220w

"A suggestive book for the serious reader."

+ A L A Bkl 10:281 Mr '14

"The book should have a wide circulation."

+ Bib World 42:391 D '13 190w

"The book is an excellent presentation of natural theology in the light of modern science."

+ Boston Transcript p23 O 15 '13 320w

Ind 78:49 Ap 6 '14 500w

N Y Times 18:505 S 28 '13 70w

Outlook 105:812 D 13 '13 150w

"Too much cannot be said in praise of a thinker who possesses the rare merit of combining an accurate and comprehensive knowledge of organic nature and the aptitude for making it accessible, even to a child. Newman Smyth does more than this."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 9 '13 160w

SNAITH, JOHN COLLIS. Anne Feversham
12 (Eng title, Great age). *$1.35 Appleton
14-18496

"In this new novel the author of 'Broke of Covenen' has turned away from the present time to the days of the great Elizabeth, and attempted about as difficult a feat as any writer could well try, to perform—he has striven to draw a portrait of Shakespeare. It is Shakespeare who is both the deus ex machina and the real hero of the book; it is he who befriends the hapless fugitives, Gervase Heriot and Anne Feversham, the one condemned to death and with a price upon his head, the other his rescuer and loyal comrade, and finally brings happiness to them."—N Y Times

"Readable and has distinction but lacks the strength of some and the individuality of others, of the author's books."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:176 D '14

"Not a great story, to be sure, but pleasingly told, with vividness and no little humour." F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:554 Ja '15 670w

"Nothing more and nothing less than a high-grade pot-boiler. If it is not also a 'best seller' the fault and the loss will be the public's and not Mr. Snaith's."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 330w

"Excellent melodrama."

+ Dial 58:85 F 1 '15 130w

"The plot is excellent, the expression meager."

+ — Ind 80:339 N 30 '14 110w

+ — Nation 100:52 Ja 14 '15 270w

"As a story 'Anne Feversham' is at once interesting and charming. It is well written, it moves briskly, and there are any number of exciting episodes. The book is bright, too, with the color of that rich and splendid age."

+ N Y Times 19:504 N 15 '14 670w

"While the story moves vivaciously, one is haunted by the feeling that it is written with deliberate effort—and effort that peeps through the worn places in the author's art."

+ — Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 70w

SNELL, JOHN FERGUSON. Elementary house-
8 hold chemistry. il *$1.25 (1½c) Macmillan
14-12159

An introductory textbook for students of home economics. It offers a practical course based upon only so much theoretical chemistry as is essential to an understanding of the application to household affairs. The first part of the volume aims to familiarize the student with the subject-matter, the elementary principles and the method of chemistry; the second part shows in what way this information may be used for health and economy in the home. The chemical constitution and functions of food stuffs are treated in detail, likewise the origin, nature and treatment of textile fibers, bleaching, blueing and dyeing. Several chapters are devoted to soaps and scouring powders. The appendices include tables of composition of foods, reagents and the metric system.

"The last chapters of the book, particularly those dealing with textile fibers, bleaching and dyeing, seem to be unusually well done."

+ Educ R 49:214 F '15 50w

"The book is well adapted to its purpose, giving much interesting and valuable information and a good elementary idea of chemical principles."

+ Nation 99:331 S 10 '14 280w

"Much valuable information."

+ Pratt 5:17 Ja '15 20w

"An excellent text-book of chemistry for students of domestic economy."

+ Spec 113:240 Ag 15 '14 40w

SNIDER, CHARLES H. J. In the wake of the 4 Eighteen-twelvvers. il *$1.50 Lane 14-9910

"Mr. Snider's book might be considered as a sort of forerunner of the coming celebration of the hundred years' peace. For it sings the arms and the men and the ships that fought upon our northern border a hundred years ago, with a very nearly impartial voice. It is not a history of all that occurred on the Great Lakes during that war, but a series of stories of the most important struggles. The author who is an Englishman, has taken all his facts from the logs and letters of the ships and the officers of whom he writes, but he has endeavored to clothe these in such a way as to give them a fresh, story interest."—N Y Times

Reviewed by H. C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 15 '13 100w

"There is so much excellent material, so well handled, in it that one wonders why it has not been launched before." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '13 200w

"The author has genuine narrative skill and an evidently congenial subject."

+ Nation 99:48 Jl 9 '14 70w

"The author writes with vigor and vivacity, and uses his historical material in a graphic and thrilling way."

+ N Y Times 19:89 F 22 '14 230w

+ Spec 111:1031 D 13 '13 60w

SOMERVILLE, H. B. Ashes of vengeance.
5 *$1.25 (1½c) McBride, Nast & co.

The story opens on the eve of the massacre of St. Bartholomew. Two young French noblemen, one a Huguenot, one a Catholic, fight a duel, and Rupert de Vrieac, victorious, gives his enemy his life, knowing that the memory of his generosity will rankle always in the other's heart. The next day, when Catholic is slaying Huguenot, Charles de Breux has his revenge; he offers to save Rupert and his betrothed, on condition that Rupert bind himself to serve the house of de Breux for five years. For the girl's sake Rupert gives his promise, and the story of that service follows. A highly romantic tale of adventure it is, for it tells of the faithlessness of the girl for whom Rupert made the sacrifice; of his new love for Yoceland, the proud sister of the man who is his master; of his gallant fighting for her sake, and of the final happy ending of the enmity between the two men.

"A stirring story of vendetta, which keeps the reader pleasantly thrilled from the first page to the last."

+ Ath 1913,2:253 S 13 30w

"It might seem at times that the love theme is somewhat long drawn out."

+ — Boston Transcript p10 My 16 '14 500w

Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 130w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Somerville should have yielded so often to the fascination of chasing the motives of his people through long paragraphs and pages of quite useless words. For neither people nor deeds are subtle enough to need explanation, but their motives are obvious. Otherwise, it is a brave and well-told tale, with its romance not so highly rouged as to make it look cheaply artificial. It has plenty of action and adventure, and those who like an old-fashioned story of romance about brave men and fair women and deeds of courage will find pleasure in its pages."

+ — N Y Times 19:142 Mr 20 '14 450w

Sat R 116:434 O 4 '14 40w

SONGS and sonnets for England in war time.
11 il *75c Lane 14-19648

A collection of poems written by English authors since the outbreak of the war. Among the authors represented are: G. K. Chesterton, Gilbert Cannan, Thomas Hardy, Rudyard Kipling, Justin Huntly McCarthy, and William collection of verse produced in Canada and the United States is to be issued.

SONGS and sonnets for England in war time —Continued.

"Pleasant reading for English folk and for sympathetic Americans." O. W. Firkins

+ Nation 100:140 F 4 '15 40w

Sat R 118:375 O 3 '14 300w

SOUTHARD, CHARLES ZIBEON. Trout fly-fishing in America. il *$7.50 Dutton 14-12409

"This latest book for the angler's library is a sumptuous work, elaborately illustrated and presenting an ambitious assembling of information about trout and trout fishing. For the ardent fisherman, that section of the book which discusses the methods of luring the gamy fish will prove of especial interest. . . . Mr. Southard is a warm advocate of the use of the wet fly."—N Y Times

Reviewed by W. H. Johnson

+ — Nation 99:99 JI 23 '14 1100w

"Mr. Southard's book will be an ornament to any angling library. The severest criticism that will be meted out to him probably, even by the dry-fly anglers whom he attacks, will be that he clings to many old-fashioned ideas about fly fishing, and that he has learned and practiced the art in wilderness waters and not in our New York and Pennsylvania streams, whose finny inhabitants are supposed to be 'educated' trout."

+ — N Y Times 19:321 JI 26 '14 1050w

SOUTHWORTH, MAY E. Great small cat, and others. il *$1.25 (4c) Elder 14-14692

Cat lovers will delight in this book with its attractive pictures. Seven stories, all about cats, make up the contents. They do not belong to the usual type of "animal" story in which beasts are endowed with the characteristics of humans; the cats are of the everyday house-pet class.

"The stories are written with much cleverness and skill in building up the incidents of the narrative and bringing out in its full value each dramatic situation."

+ N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3 '15 160w

SOWERS, DON CONGER. Financial history of New York state, from 1789 to 1912. *$3 Longmans 14-6033

"This work appears in the series of 'Studies in history, economics, and public law,' edited by the Faculty of political science at Columbia university. It is one of a series of studies prepared under the direction of the Carnegie institution of Washington, as a basis for writing the economic history of the United States. . . .

Professor Sowers traces the evolution of the methods employed by the state of New York in acquiring revenues, the purpose for which these revenues have been expended, and methods that have been employed in the management of the funds in the treasury. As the state has emerged from a sparsely settled farming community to a densely populated industrial commonwealth, these methods have passed through almost revolutionary changes. It has been the task of Professor Sowers to point out the significance of these changes in relation to financial policies."—R of Rs

"In the thoroughness of the investigation and the arrangement of material it is equaled by few, if any, similar historical studies." M. H. Hunter

+ — Am Econ R 4:675 S '14 480w

"The reader does not feel the growth of the state as a whole. This feeling is intensified by the lack of interpretation and vigorous criticism, the study being descriptive rather than analytical."

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:326 JI '14 80w

"It is regrettable that such a work and so worthy a series should be marred by frequent errors, both typographical and grammatical. Moreover, the study suffers from inadequate and inaccurate references, and a number of repetitions bear witness to carelessness in preparation. An index would have greatly increased the usefulness of the volume." O. C. Lockhart

— J Pol Econ 23:89 Ja '15 470w

"The book is indispensable to those in any way charged with duties or responsibilities in connection with the state's finances. It is an inexhaustible armory of weapons for those who think that governments blunder whenever they make business ventures."

+ N Y Times 19:315 JI 19 '14 1700w

"All this material is, of course, of great interest and value to other states, which have had to face similar problems and have undergone a similar development."

+ R of Rs 49:507 An '14 210w

SPAIGHT, J. M. Aircraft in war. *$2 (4½c) Macmillan War14-101

"This work was issued to a world at peace. Its author could not foresee its terrible pertinence. It tells us exactly what is the law—or, rather, what is not the law—for nations at battle in the air." (Sat R) Following an introductory chapter the author gives a clear statement of the existing provisions of conventions and declarations regarding aircraft, with a brief examination of some of the proposed codes. He then takes up the question of freedom or sovereignty of the air, and considers the rights of neutrals, distinguishing marks for aircraft, the treatment of private enemy aircraft in a belligerent's territory, aircraft and the "Alabama" rule, etc. A code for aircraft in war proposed by the author, and the articles of other proposed codes are given in appendices.

"[The] author writes with clear brevity and unclouded sense."

+ Sat R 118:201 Ag 15 '14 1200w

"Very interesting and timely work."

+ Spec 113:209 Ag 8 '14 70w

SPARGO, JOHN. Socialism and motherhood. il *60c (3c) Huebsch 14-12850

John Spargo's essay is written to allay the fears of those who see in socialism a menace to monogamic marriage and to private family life. What he sees in socialism is a promise that every child may realize its right to be well born, and that every mother may be assured freedom from poverty and toll and the evils of ignorant and unscientific care. The free-love theories of certain socialists, Bebel, Bax, and others, are shown to be anti-socialistic, and in no way representative of the beliefs of the socialist party in general.

"A very sane and wise book."

+ R of Rs 50:251 Ag '14 150w

SPENCE, LEWIS. Dictionary of medieval romance and romance writers. *$3 Dutton 14-6809

"The author deals intelligently and adequately with the men and matters in his field with respect to which desire for information is apt to arise; he does not offer his dictionary as a thoroughly exhaustive work, but is confident that no outstanding romance has been altogether neglected."—N Y Times

"The task of compiling such a work might well appall even the greatest living masters of mediæval literature. But a mere cursory examination of the book before us is sufficient to reveal the slenderness of Mr. Spence's qualifications for the enterprise."

— Nation 98:760 Je 25 '14 330w

"Literary students and workers will find this a very useful book."

+ N Y Times 19:306 JI 12 '14 90w

"Mr. Spence has produced a fascinating volume."

+ Sat R 116:558 N 1 '13 700w

SPENCE, LEWIS. Myths of the North American Indians. il *$3 (2½c) Crowell A14-3009

A book on Indian folk-lore prepared for English readers. Few books concerning the red race have been published in England, the author says, and knowledge concerning them is vague and unscientific. He says further: "The primary object of this volume is to furnish the reader with a general view of the mythologies of the red man of North America, accompanied by such historical and ethnological information as will assist him in gauging the real conditions under which this most interesting section of humanity existed." (Preface) Contents: Divisions, customs, and history of the race; The mythologies of the North American Indians; Algonquian myths and legends; Iroquois myths and legends; Sioux myths and legends; Wyths and legends of the Pawnees; Myths and legends of the northern and northwestern Indians. There is a bibliography and a combined glossary and index.

"Mr. Spence's present volume is not likely to be neglected, for it is an exceedingly interesting store of myth and legend, which no one who takes it up in an idle moment is likely to abandon before the last page is reached."

+ Spec 113:209 Ag 8 '14 80w

SPENS, ARCHIBALD B. Winter in India. il
" $*1.75 (2c) Dodd A14-3024

A book that gives "light impressions" of the cities, peoples and customs of India. The account is written up in the form of a diary kept on the journey and is supplemented by many photographs taken by the author. "Mr. Spens's tour was quite extensive, embracing most of the great cities in all sections of the country. His long stops were made in Bombay, Delhi, Cawnpore, Peshowar, Lahore, Simla, Amritsar, Agra, Lucknow, Benares, Gwalior, Jaipur, Amber, and Sikandra. The Khyber pass greatly interested him, and he gives considerable space in his book to an account of what he saw and learned in his passage through it." (N Y Times)

Ath 1913,2:sup436 O 18 70w

Ath 1913,2:622 N 29 40w

"A rich and fascinating book." Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:429 D '14 400w

+ — Nation 99:611 N 19 '14 250w

"It is well worth while to get a book of this sort about India; it offers an agreeable variation from the writings of the serious-minded persons who have deeply studied Indian history, ethnology and religion."

+ N Y Times 19:88 F 22 '14 300w

SPURGEON, CAROLINE FRANCES ELEA-
"NOR. Mysticism in English literature. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature)
*40c Putnam 13-15908

"The author's discussion is confined to that philosophical type of mysticism which concerns itself with questions of ultimate reality. Her aim has been to consider the subject in relation to great English writers, and she has been obliged therefore, although with reluctance, to exclude the literature of America altogether."—Ath

A L A Bkl 10:364 My '14

"She writes in a way which should make the book attractive to the general reader."

+ Ath 1913,1:619 Je 7 60w

— Cath World 100:679 F '15 180w

Ind 77:243 F 16 '14 30w

Nation 97:516 N 27 '13 70w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Children of
"the sea. il $*1.25 Duffield 13-25438

"Though Iceland forms the setting for the major part of this book, it is in the Sea of Japan, on board the cable ship, "President Girling," that the story opens. Erik Ericsson, its hero, an Icelander and ex-fisherman, is employed by a company whose business is the laying and repairing of deep-sea cables, and he sees in the little coast town where the Feast of the dead is celebrated and amid the strange Amazonian women of the fishing village a Japan which the author makes very real to one's imagination. It is in the little fishing village that the half-defiant, half-wicked, entirely foolish and entirely natural deed is done which later bears such terrible fruit. 'There's no such thing as bad luck. There's only bad steering,' declares one of the book's minor characters; and Ericsson's very 'bad steering' ends in worse than death." —N Y Times

"The story is told with the tragic simplicity and directness of some of the sagas."

+ A L A Bkl 10:414 Je '14

"The Icelandic atmosphere is alluring; moreover, the man and woman are moral descendants of the people in the sagas."

+ Ath 1913,2:349 O 4 70w

"The present story is not one to be classed as immoral or unclean by any one with a broad outlook upon life. The weakest spot in 'Children of the sea' is its looseness of construction, its failure to follow up the advantage gained." F: T. Cooper

— + Bookm 39:77 Mr '14 700w

"The reader who seeks the pleasure of the novel and the pleasure of learning of strange lands and strange peoples will find both in 'The children of the sea.' It loses the merit of neither fiction nor fact by its adept mingling of the two." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 Ja 31 '14 1200w

"Something of the spirit of the saga-writers has got possession of the author and controlled his pen. In its reduction of sentiment to a minimum, and in its clear-visioned presentation of the bare facts of life, it comes near to being a masterpiece." W: M. Payne

+ Dial 56:422 My 16 '14 350w

"Apart from its tragic theme, the story has interest for its picture of an Icelandic village community, and for its portraiture of the few persons directly concerned with the tale."

+ Nation 98:186 F 19 '14 480w

"Excellent as the descriptions of its rugged scenery are, the book would be better if there were not quite so many of them. An interesting, picturesque, admirably written book, well worth reading, and for more reasons than one."

+ — N Y Times 19:49 F 1 '14 470w

"Mr. de Vere Stacpoole's new book is of the school of Kipling; indeed, much of it, especially the first part, with its absorbing account of the laying of a deep-sea cable, is not unworthy to stand beside 'Captains courageous,' for Mr. Stacpoole has the courage to make an uncompromising and effective use of the technicalities of his subject. We would willingly dispense with all love-interest, with the inevitable young lady, and with the rather melodramatic episode of the leprosy."

+ — Spec 111:923 N 29 '13 300w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Molly Beamish. il $*1.25 (5c) Duffield 13-25439

A slight but merry tale of Tunbridge Wells in the days of its prime. Miss Molly Beamish is the daughter of an impoverished Irish lord who successfully wards off her father's creditors, flouts her own social enemies, shelters a fugitive highwayman, wins over a bailiff who had come with a warrant of arrest and turns him to account in her own interests.

"'Molly Beamish' is not only charming but very femininely human as well, and the triumph which comes to her is one in which every sympathetic reader will rejoice."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 19 '14 320w

"Mr. Stacpoole apparently set out to give us a light sketch of Irish eighteenth-century society, its wit and adventure. His success is doubtful."

— Nation 97:590 D 18 '13 280w

"A tale as light and dainty as a bit of swansdown."

+ N Y Times 19:775 Ja 4 '14 200w

"The story is written in consistent style with its eighteenth-century setting, but why it is told is a mystery."

+ Outlook 106:48 Ja 3 '14 60w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. New optimism. $*1 (5c) Lane 14-9788

A thought-provoking little volume which es-

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE—Continued. chews transcendental philosophy; exalts a faith in the essential goodness of the world; extols a religion whose miraculous qualities arise from the fundamental fact that it knows not individualism but is a simple recognition of a universal mind whose laws and spirit of good the individual mind accepts; looks upon the home as the foundation of the community; and stoutly maintains that men's and women's bodies and souls have been made of the same stuff and that the sex difference is so unfixed a quality that we find women who are to all intents and purposes men, and men women. The author's one purpose is to show the workings of the universal mind which is a product of the latest evolutionary progress.

"Written vigorously, with a fine sense of style, and in an atmosphere at once imaginative and practical."

+ A L A Bkl 11:157 D '14

"Interesting reading for serious minds, and might be suggested as an excellent book for a Sunday in the country."

+ N Y Times 19:344 Ag 9 '14 170w

"Wholesome but undistinguished reflections upon the world and our conduct in the world."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 380w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Poppyland, il
" $2 (4c) Lane 14-19362

A group of stories for children. The first, Feyshad, has an Arabian setting. The second, The little prince, is a story of Naples built on the good, old fairy-tale plan, with the prince and the beggar maid as hero and heroine. These two long stories are followed by five shorter sketches grouped under the heading Pierrette, and told in the off-hand manner, "just as they came into his head," of a father making up stories to meet the demands of a small daughter.

"The five little 'Pierrette' tales are the best in the book."

+ Ath 1914,2:514 N '14 250w

"Mr. Leighton Pearce's color illustrations are skillfully made and satisfactorily reproduced, but they show no special originality."

+ N Y Times 19:528 N 29 '14 100w

"Mr. de Vere Stacpoole is one of the most skilful of the modern fantasists. We have seen nothing in this kind so good as Mr. Stacpoole's story of the Queen of Hearts, or of the Pawn who was privileged nearly to sacrifice himself for the White Queen, since Lewis Carroll wrote. Mr. Stacpoole's work is fanciful and delicately finished."

+ Sat R 118:sup6 D 5 '14 130w

"Written in a pleasant conversational style, which makes no great demand on the reader's attention."

+ — Spec 113:853 D 12 '14 80w

STACPOOLE, HENRY DE VERE. Presentation (Eng title, Monsieur de Rochefort). il
" $1.30 (1c) Lane 14-15563

The presentation of Madame Dubarry at court is the event that starts the story on its way. Her presentation is bitterly opposed and her enemies as a last resort have planned to steal her carriage, her hairdresser and her gown. The plot is uncovered by Comte de Rochefort, who, altho he is not of the Dubarry faction, undertakes to frustrate it. He is moved partly by youth and love of adventure, partly by admiration for the beautiful Camille Fontrailles who is Dubarry's companion. The counterplot succeeds, the presentation is accomplished, but Rochefort has a price to pay for his part in it. Imprisonment and escape and other adventures fall to his lot.

"This historical romance is such a delightful entertainment that it is impossible to criticise it impartially."

+ Boston Transcript p25 D 2 '14 280w

"What is original about it is largely in the telling and in a certain daintiness of touch which Mr. Stacpoole has made peculiarly his own."

+ Nation 99:525 O 29 '14 280w

"Mr. Stacpoole's book is a rather unusual sort of historical novel, since, apparently, he has really tried to give a truthful picture of the time."

+ N Y Times 19:447 O 18 '14 350w

"The book is pleasant in its way, as was the 'Blue lagoon,' and as hard to put down before the end is reached."

+ Sat R 118:150 Ag 1 '14 330w

"It is an admirably told tale and cannot but be diverting to any reader."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 470w

STACPOOLE, MRS. MARGARET (ROBSON)
" (MRS. HENRY DE VERE STACPOOLE).
London, 1913. *$1.25 (1½c) Duffield
(Eng ed 14-3906)

London, 1913, is viewed thru the eyes of a young girl newly arrived from South Africa. Phyl Musgrave's father is a man of modest fortune, but since South Africa is associated with diamonds in many peoples' minds, rumor easily makes of him a diamond millionaire. A man whose life Musgrave had once saved introduces the two to London society and then neatly swindles them out of a prospective fortune. Incidentally there is a young journalist who falls in love with Phyl, and several minor characters. London is to the author a "centre of modern unrest and freedom for false thinking."

"The novel is not without a few rather clever bits, but it is injured by the author's habit of scolding, which would spoil a much better book."

+ N Y Times 19:462 O 25 '14 100w

"Mrs. Stacpoole gives life to her people, and enlivens her pages with clever bits of talk."

+ N Y Times 20:38 Ja 31 '15 300w

"Mrs. de Vere Stacpoole writes at the top of her voice. Seldom has so much successful villainy been packed within the covers of a novel. But it must be admitted that Mrs. Stacpoole's villains are more entertaining than the few immaculate characters whose pallid virtues have no chance against such black deeds. Mrs. de Vere Stacpoole should cultivate a sense of humour."

— Sat R 117:149 Ja 31 '14 280w

Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 36w

STACPOOLE, MRS. MARGARET (ROBSON)
" (MRS. HENRY DE VERE STACPOOLE).
Monte Carlo. *$1.25 Dodd (Eng ed 13-4995)

"The plot of 'Monte Carlo' is a curious one, because the story relates the welding together of a married couple—dissimilar in all their tastes and bringing up, and about to be definitely shipwrecked, by the far-famed tales that we are led to suppose have done far more to sunder husbands and wives. Julia Revel is a charmingly human little creature with a truly English love of respectability, who has been drawn by her romantic love for Jack Revel to leave the Deanery, her father's home, marry Jack secretly and live in the Bohemian part of Paris with him—while her innermost soul loathes everything which has to do with Bohemian life."—Boston Transcript

"When all the threads of tragedy are rather ostentatiously paraded, and it does not occur, there is apt to be a sense of flatness."

— Ath 1913,1:162 F 8 160w

"A story not too serious nor too frivolous, but just blithe enough and sensible enough to afford an hour or two of very pleasant entertainment." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 38:671 F '14 400w

"The book is a series of light humorous adventures that verge just near enough to serious things to make the reader willing to pursue them."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 4 '14 260w

"Apparently it is a first novel, and, although it does not equal the work of her husband, H.

de Vere Stacpoole, it shows some excellent and promising qualities and makes a very readable story."

+ — N Y Times 19:48 F 1 '14 550w

"An extremely clever sketch of the adventures of an English artist and his wife at Monte Carlo, and, surprising to note, the interest of the book, in spite of its subject, is in the drawing of the characters."

+ Spec 110:585 Ap 5 '13 230w

STALEY, JOHN EDGCUMBE. British painters; their story and their art. il *$1.75 Stokes

"John Edgcumbe Staley has written a 'popular' book on British painting in which he has sketched lightly the more salient features of the work of the artists of the last seven centuries. He has endeavored to bring into stronger light the painting glories of the earlier artists of Britain, to speak of those whose works are exhibited in the English public galleries, and to vindicate, to use his own words, the claim of Britain to be regarded as an ancient, consistent and renowned home of the fine arts."—Boston Transcript

"The author's work is neither sufficiently critical nor scientific to entitle it to consideration as a just estimate of the value of British art. His style, though not unpleasing, is somewhat pompous, and his treatment of outstanding figures is disappointing."

— Ath 1913:2:425 O 18 180w

"The feature of Mr. Staley's volume that commends itself at once to the reader is the series of twenty-four pictures in color, examples of the work of the painters whom he describes."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 N 14 '14 430w

"This constant unmodulated outpouring of professional enthusiasm grows very tiresome in the end, and it is hardly redeemed by the two dozen color plates of mediocre execution which the text enshrines."

— Nation 99:785 D 31 '14 70w

STALKER, REV. JAMES. How to read Shakespeare. il *$1.50 Doran (Eng ed A14-1275)

The author offers this book "as a Murray or Baedeker to Shakespeare's country, to let readers 'know how to get there and what there is to see.' He advises those who wish to read or study Shakespeare to begin with the ten 'English history' plays. . . . The six 'Ancient history' plays should follow, then the ten gayer comedies, next the six graver comedies, and after these the five tragedies and lastly the seven divisions of minor poems. The appendix contains an interesting chapter devoted to 'Shakespeare on music.'"—R of Rs

"It is doubtful whether this guide to the understanding of Shakespeare will be read with great interest, if it is read at all, by those for whom it is intended."

— + Ath 1913:2:495 N 1 180w

"It is extremely doubtful, however, if the hesitant reader of Shakespeare will find himself greatly enlightened by Mr. Stalker. He must be read with caution, and with judiciously copious omissions." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p9 D 6 '13 600w

"Dr. Stalker's treatment of his material is intimate and imbued with a close personal touch which holds the attention, and which should serve to afford many an acquaintance with the bard of Avon that will ripen into a most profitable friendship."

+ N Y Times 19:139 Mr 22 '14 180w

"A splendid book for the general reader of literary taste. A book that gives genuine delight for the enthusiasm of its style and the authority of its information."

+ R of Rs 49:251 F '14 170w

STALLARD, MRS. ARTHUR. House as home. 6 il *$2 Pott (Eng ed A14-1254)

"In her first chapters the author discusses such general subjects as 'peace and harmony' in the household, 'colour schemes,' 'hygiene,' and 'artificial lighting.' She then goes minutely into many details of everyday life, from the taking of a house to the arrangement of the flowers in it. She has much of interest to say on the bringing-up of children and on the wise and kind treatment of the maid-servants. . . . She also describes a way of making a town or suburban back-garden attractive, and has something to say about 'the wee flat' and 'a week-end cottage.' But perhaps the point of most value about the book is the importance the author attaches to simplicity."—Spec

"There is much to be learnt from her pages regarding comfort, artistic arrangement, and hygiene."

+ Ath 1913:1:622 Je 7 70w

"It is illustrated by twenty-four plates from photographs by the author, mainly views in her own home; but these as so commonplace as to detract from the book rather than add to it. The text is more convincing than the pictures."

A. B. McMahan

+ — Dial 56:239 Ap 1 '14 120w

"There is enough good taste and good sense in her hints to make her book helpful to those who care to pick out what is applicable."

+ — N Y Sun p7 N 8 '13 90w

"American housewives will find many valuable suggestions in her book."

+ N Y Times 18:609 N 9 '13 80w

"If experience could be bought in the shape of a book, Mrs. Stallard would have smoothed away most of the rough places of housekeeping for her readers. Every one who takes a real interest in the complicated mechanism of household management will read this book with profit, though it might not be difficult to make fun of some of its suggestions."

+ — Spec 111:25 Jl 5 '13 300w

STANHOPE, AUBREY. On the track of the great. 10 il *$2.50 (3½c) Lane 14-17194

The author is a "special correspondent" of long experience and his book of recollections is made up of anecdotes of the famous people with whom he has come in contact. Kings and emperors appear in his pages, among them, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the Czar, King Christian of Denmark, King Alexander of Serbia, and the Kaiser. Other famous persons of whom he writes are Pasteur, the scientist, Stanley, the explorer, and de Lesseps, of the French Panama canal.

"Mr. Stanhope has never learned to write the English language, so that his actual experiences gain nothing from his style, and inaccuracies do not tend to inspire confidence."

— N Y Times 19:468 O 25 '14 110w

"There is no high coloring, but the plain statement of a man following a truly exciting vocation."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 550w

STANHOPE, GHITA, and GOOCH, GEORGE
<sup>2</sup> PEABODY. Life of Charles, third earl of Stanhope; commenced by Ghita Stanhope; rev. and completed by G. P. Gooch. il *$3.50 Longmans 14-20560

"With just enough description to enable the general reader to understand the leading problems which the Earl attempted to solve, Lord Stanhope and his contemporaries are allowed to tell the story through copious extracts from letters, speeches, newspaper articles and pamphlets. This method of treatment, which renders the perusal somewhat dry, enhances the value of the work for the student of history. The biography is based upon the family papers at Chevening, unpublished material in the Record office and in the British museum, and the printed sources."—Nation

"Both of the authors are careless and inconsistent in their citations to authorities. There are instances also of carelessness or errors both in the use of language and the statement of fact." W: T. Laprade

+ — — Am Hist R 20:150 O '14 550w

"Able memoir."

+ Ath 1914:2:6 Jl 4 1450w

Boston Transcript p21 Jl 29 '14 600w

STANHOPE, G., and GOOCH, G. P.—Cont.

"This sufficient though rather lifeless memoir of him was well worth writing." W. Hunt
+ — Eng Hist R 30:136 Ja '15 900w

"It deserves the careful attention of all persons interested in early democratic reform and early scientific investigation."

+ Nation 99:581 N 12 '14 1350w

"It was worth while to place his whole character and achievement before the world, and this volume performs that work admirably. The chapters of both Miss Stanhope, whose death unhappily prevented the completion of her task, and of Mr. Gooch are excellent in method and style."

+ Sat R 118:sup8 O 24 '14 1100w

"All this has been excellently told by Miss Stanhope, and the chapters which unhappily she did not live to write have been well supplied by Mr. Gooch."

+ Spec 113:135 J1 25 '14 1300w

STANLEY, CAROLINE (ABBOT) (MRS. ELISHA STANLEY). Dr. Llewellyn and his friends. il *$1.25 (1½c) Revell 14-15790

Putney was an old-fashioned conventional Missouri town. Dr. Llewellyn was modern and progressive, and, altho he was Putney born and bred he had studied in the North and had come back with some "foolish Yankee notions about hygiene and sanitation." In the first of these stories he meets the city council in a combat on the question of a new water works system, and wins with the aid of circumstance. There are fourteen stories in all, some of them about the doctor himself, others about his friends, both white and black.

"The story is a human chronicle of engaging charm, through which Dr. Llewellyn and his friends become our own."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 120w

+ N Y Times 19:379 S 13 '14 100w

"A wholesome, pleasantly told story."

+ Outlook 108:105 S 9 '14 30w

STANLEY, CAROLINE (ABBOT) (MRS. ELISHA STANLEY). Keeper of the vineyard. il *$1.25 (1½c) Revell 13-35969

Eleanor Dinwoody, a Chicago school teacher, falls heir to a farm in the Ozark mountains and to four motherless children—a girl of eighteen and three boys of fourteen, twelve, and five. Her efforts to run the farm and support her family, the affairs of the neighborhood and her work of social service for her neighbors, the love affair of the young niece, are the matters that occupy her time, and incidentally, there are two men, a missionary preacher and a country doctor, who wish to make her concerns theirs. One of them succeeds. Some of the story is told in the form of letters to a friend in Chicago.

"A simple, homely, unoriginal tale enlivened by picturesque and amusing bits of character sketch and native talk."

+ A L A Bkl 10:202 Ja '14

Boston Transcript p22 D 24 '13 140w

"A pretty idyl."

+ N Y Sun p3 N 15 '13 170w

"As a picture of the Ozark people and country the story is not without merit."

+ — N Y Times 19:34 Ja 25 '14 550w

STANLEY, RUPERT. Text-book on wireless telegraphy. il *$2.25 Longmans

"The audience whom Prof. Stanley addresses in this textbook consists of students of this newest science who intend to become wireless operators, either as a means of livelihood or for the mere interest to be derived from a fascinating hobby. . . . The author is wise in employing the electron theory in all theoretical considerations, for it is the best adapted for mechanical and natural analogies, and therefore most easily grasped by those who have not had an electrical training. . . . The chapter on the 'Historical development of radio-telegraphy,' without which the book would have been incomplete, is commendably succinct, and contains little beyond mention of the definite steps made in the advancement of the science towards the achievements of to-day."—Ath

+ — Ath 1914,2:459 O 31 550w

"It is seldom that a reviewer has the privilege of examining a book which so well accomplishes its purposes as does this elementary text on radio telegraphy. The subject-matter is all useful, live material and is strictly up to date."

J. H. M.

+ — Science n s 40:936 D 25 '14 620w

"It is not very easy reading, but is up-to-date and scientific, and may be recommended to students. The illustrations are numerous and excellent."

+ Spec 113:504 O 10 '14 50w

STARR, FREDERICK. Mexico and the United States; a story of revolution, intervention and war. il *$3.50 Bible house 14-6449

"The author traces the history of Mexico down to the present disturbed state of affairs, and outlines the economic and social condition of the people. With respect to the present crisis, Professor Starr criticizes President Wilson's policy in some respects, but approves of his policy of non-intervention, on the ground that intervention means war."—Am Pol Sci R

Am Pol Sci R 8:290 My '14 70w

R of Rs 49:754 Je '14 150w

"His book suggests haste in preparation, and the proofreading has been execrable with regard to dates, but at bottom he probably knows more about Mexico than Mr. Fyfe and has more soundly formulated ideas than Messrs. Gutierrez de Lara and Pinchon."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 My 7 '14 700w

STEAD, ESTELLE W. My father: personal and spiritual reminiscences. il *$2.50 Doran 14-2957

"The life of William T. Stead was intensely active, and it was occupied with many public matters involving relationships with a large number of people. His daughter, Miss Estelle Stead, touches upon these public activities only in the lightest manner. . . . The volume is principally devoted to Mr. Stead's views and experiences as a spiritualist, and as respects these matters it is almost entirely compiled from his own published materials or his correspondence. . . . Miss Stead's compilation is sympathetic, and evidently touched with entire acceptance of her father's beliefs regarding communication with friends who have passed on to the other world. It is prepared with the full expectation on her part that her father's career as the most active and influential of recent English journalists would be presented in a biography written from a standpoint less personal and subjective than her own."—R of Rs

+ A L A Bkl 10:282 Mr '14

Ath 1913,2:347 O 4 100w

"The book furnishes good material for study of contemporary history, and should find its way to the attention of a considerable audience."

+ — Bib World 43:278 Ap '14 250w

"As a chronicle of Stead's activities, a history of the things he did, this biography is noticeably deficient. But as a picture of the kind of man he was, this life of Stead is excellent." A. M. Chase

+ — Bookm 38:548 Ja '14 2000w

+ Dial 56:71 Ja 16 '14 350w

+ Lit D 48:273 F 7 '14 250w

+ Nation 98:61 Ja 15 '14 1100w

+ N Y Times 19:16 Ja 11 '14 900w

R of Rs 49:121 Ja '14 210w

"Miss Estelle Stead has no other inspiration than that of filial piety, and she seems to have little realisation of the important things about her father. The subject of spiritualism is given an altogether disproportionate amount of space in the volume."

— Sat R 116:466 O 11 '13 160w

Spec 111:721 N 1 '13 800w

STEARNS, FRANK PRESTON. Life and genius of Nathaniel Hawthorne. il *$2 Badger, R: G.

In this biography of Hawthorne "the whole tone is personal rather than critical." (Bookm) "Some few minor errors of previous works are corrected. . . . [The work is] interesting on account of the author's comparison of the New England novelist to the great colorists of painting." (Ind)

"The sort of book that that one would like to browse over in the quiet of a winter evening, for it is full of intimate side-lights, and never ruffles with irritating dogmatism." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:566 Ja '15 150w

"Painstaking, readable biography."

+ Ind 81:177 F 1 '15 50w

STEBBINS, HOMER ADOLPH. Political history of the state of New York, 1865-1869. (Columbia univ. studies in history, economics and public law) *$4.50 Longmans 13-15791

"Dr. Stebbins has provided a close and detailed study of New York state politics during the period which followed the civil war. After discussing the position of party politics and the attitude of New York towards reconstruction during 1865, he deals in vivid fashion with the campaign of 1866, the senatorial election and conventions of 1867, and the Democratic reaction that followed. He then passes on to a survey of the year 1868 and its presidential campaign. Particularly interesting is the chapter on 'The alliance of Wall street and the legislature,' in which such names as Daniel Drew, Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Jay Gould figure largely." (Ath)

"To the rapid and lively narrative with which Congressman Alexander speeded through this same period in the third volume of his 'Political history of the state of New York' Dr. Stebbins has added much that is valuable in detailed statement and in amplified discussion. The bibliographical note is well done and the index is complete." C. H. L.

+ — Am Hist R 19:374 Ja '14 900w

"The book is another valuable contribution to American history."

+ Ath 1913.2:206 Ag 30 110w

+ Chaut 72:382 Ja 10 '14 140w

"Dr. Stebbins's monograph is as clear-cut as the nature of the subject permits."

+ No Am 198:575 O '13 550w

STECHER, GILBERT ERWIN. Cork: its origin and industrial uses. il *$1 (6c) Van Nostrand 14-17504

This monograph on the origin and industrial uses of cork represents an attempt "to set forth in as concise a manner as possible, the plain story of the corkwood stopper." In trying to acquaint himself with the facts about corkwood the author found information difficult to obtain and he has gathered the results of his research together in this book for the benefit of others. The volume is made up of chapters on: Cork; Its origin; The tree and growth; Diseases; Stripping; Botany and chemistry; Uses and application; Substitutes; Manufacture; Extent of the manufacturing industry.

A L A Bkl 11:160 D '14

"Popular work, affording a fuller discussion of the cork industry than is to be found elsewhere."

+ Pittsburgh 19:513 N '14 30w

STEED, HENRY WICKHAM. Hapsburg monarchy. *$2.50 Scribner 14-30189

"The author, who for ten years and until recently was correspondent to the 'Times,' in Austria-Hungary, records impressions of the Dual monarchy, and treats of it, not as a medley of contending races, but as a dynastic unity and organic polity. The volume deliberately avoids bewildering statistical and ethnographical details, and includes, besides an inroduction, chapters on the Monarch, the Army, the Police, and the Church; the People (with a survey of the Jewish question); Foreign policy as shown in the Triple alliance; the Annexation crises of 1908-9, and the recent Balkan war."—Ath

"An individualistic interpretation of some aspects of affairs and influences but on the whole useful for reference."

+ A L A Bkl 10:282 Mr '14

Ath 1913.2:sup397 O 11 90w

"A book on Austria has been written which is eminently readable, and at the same time gives first-hand information on the complex problems of the Hapsburg monarchy. Mr. Steed (who was lately correspondent of the 'Times' in Vienna) has written a work which bears on every page the stamp of authority, and shows unusual powers of observation."

+ Ath 1914.1:9 Ja 3 630w

"Henry Wickham Steed confines himself to a scholarly discussion of the Austrian question in its broad aspect, as it exists today. He comes to his subject with the advantages of a ten years' research on the ground, and it is evident that he has given liberally of his time to a close study of the perplexities of present conditions and what they imply as to the determining of the political future of Austria." S. A.

+ Boston Transcript p23 Ja 21 '14 750w

"With all its contradictions and marked prejudices, Mr. Steed's volume forms a valuable contribution to the study of present-day conditions in Austria-Hungary, and well repays careful reading."

+ — Nation 98:572 My 14 '14 1950w

"Mr. Steed's work has a unique and valuable quality which others who have discussed the Hapsburg monarchy have been unable to put into their writings."

+ N Y Times 19:304 Jl 5 '14 230w

R of Rs 49:367 Mr '14 180w

"This book would be altogether admirable but for its last chapter. It is a pity that these prejudiced pages have been allowed to mar so excellent a book. The best thing, where so much is good, is Mr. Steed's discussion of the Jewish question."

+ — Sat R 117:242 F 21 '14 1000w

"Certainly everyone will welcome this book from so able a writer and so well-known an authority on Austro-Hungarian life and politics as Mr. Steed. We think he over-emphasizes some of the influences at work in Austria-Hungary—notably the Jewish influence—but there is so much that is penetrating in this brilliant book that we can afford to put up with some prejudices (as we regard them) even though we may regret them. We have not space to mention all the admirable points in the book."

+ — Spec 111:761 N 8 '13 1800w

STEEDMAN, AMY. Legends and stories of Italy for children. il *$1.50 (3c) Putnam

Ten legends and six stories make up the contents of this book for children. The lives of the saints and the annals of the church have been drawn on for the tales in the first group. Those of the second, while more secular in nature, also have an ethical and moral bearing.

"The illustrations are pale in color and badly drawn, but a sweetness pervades the text, a simple spirituality that will appeal to imaginative children—all the more appealing when they have a tinge of sacred history about them. Moralists should find good material here for the story hour."

+ — Lit D 49:1136 D 5 '14 50w

"An unusual and interesting book."

+ N Y Times 19:480 N 1 '14 10w

STEEDMAN, AMY. When they were children. il *$1.50 Stokes

"Those who like a 'real' book will enjoy these historical sketches of the childhood of men and women whose names and whose doings are, or at any rate should be, familiar either in lesson-

STEEDMAN, AMY—Continued.

books or on the shelves and walls of their homes. . . . The children born to future greatness with whom we here make friends are a varied company—a few kings and queens such as Elizabeth and Frederick the Great, generals and explorers such as Wellington and Livingstone, wine artists, men of science, and great writers have their full share of space. . . . The last sketch is of Robert Louis Stevenson, and is particularly good."—Spec

"Amy Steedman tells the stories of the childhood of some half a hundred famous men and women with her customary happy choice of matter and manner."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup473 O 25 50w

"This is a rich volume dedicated to youthful days."

+ Ind 80:416 D 14 '14 70w

Nation 99:666 D 3 '14 40w

+ Spec 111:sup798 N 15 '13 230w

STEEL, MRS. FLORA ANNIE (WEBSTER).
2 Adventures of Akbar. il $1.35 (2½c) Stokes 13-22508

The author tells the story of the childhood of Akbar the great, a sixteenth century Indian emperor. It is really the story of his babyhood for his adventures began when he was but a little over a year old, when his father and mother were obliged to flee into the mountains for safety from their enemies. Mrs. Steel holds closely to historical facts, but to add interest a fictional black dog and white cat, devoted to the little prince, their master, are introduced.

"Indian customs and manners are vividly portrayed."

+ A L A Bkl 11:129 N '14

"Indian life and customs are vividly described; and the character of the young prince, his unusual dignity and bravery, and his love for his parents make excellent reading for little people of white race."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup474 O 25 170w

Reviewed by W. S. Braithwaite

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 26 '13 90w

"It gives a vivid purview of Indian manners and high life and will give children a fascinating glimpse of peoples, customs and places too little written about."

+ Ind 76:359 N 20 '13 60w

"A long story of deep interest among the wonder and adventure stories for children."

+ N Y Times 18:730 D 7 '13 580w

+ R of Rs 48:763 D '13 120w

"Mrs. Steel has written a delightful story, and Mr. Byam Shaw's full-page coloured illustrations are quite appropriate."

+ Sat R 116:sup10 N 29 '13 220w

+ Spec 111:sup955 D 6 '13 179w

STEEL, MRS. FLORA ANNIE (WEBSTER).
11 Merely of the Lord. $1.20 (1c) Doran A14-3013

A group of twenty and more stories, all Oriental in their setting. "Very brief, covering, most of them, scarcely more than a scant half-dozen pages, they furnish attractive peepholes through which one may glimpse sometimes a bit of the superimposed life of the army and the English sahib, sometimes a few of the strange, underlying currents of native existence, native religion, from the worship of the awful Kali to that of Vishnu, the Preserver, running steadily beneath." (N Y Times)

"The best of the stories—those dealing with Indian servants are all admirable—are first-rate, but some will be difficult for the ordinary reader to understand, and the critic will note that Mrs. Steel does not always work with that economy of material which the short story at its best demands."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup875 Je 20 250w

"The volume is worthy of its author's reputation."

+ N Y Times 19:401 S 27 '14 320w

+ Outlook 108:439 O 21 '14 90w

"Not all of the stories in this volume are her best work. Some are indifferent, but others are as good as anything she has done."

+ Sat R 117:709 My 30 '14 380w

"A delightful collection of short stories, longer than is usual, written with fluency, and planned with considerable ingenuity."

+ Spec 113:272 Ag 22 '14 18w

STEELE, WILBUR DANIEL. Storm il $1.35
4 (1½c) Harper 14-5167

This story by a new author has many elements that will insure its popularity. It has an American setting that is new in fiction—a Portuguese settlement on Cape Cod; it is a story of the sea and of the going and coming of ships; it tells an appealing love story, and it is rounded out and comes to its conclusion with a most glorious fight. Joseph Manta tells his own story from childhood up, beginning when he was only Tony Manta's boy, a little "ginny," while Allie Snow was the daughter of the one rich man of the town, and ending after he had attained manhood, when he fought for her with big Jock Crimson, and won.

+ A L A Bkl 10:373 My '14

Atlan 114:539 O '14 60w

"The book is worthy of note in so many ways that it is hard to choose the quality to praise first."

+ — Bookm 39:340 My '14 580w

"The story is written with a convincing truth that gives one the impression that Mr. Steele knows intimately the scenes, the life and the people of which he writes."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ap 25 '14 600w

"It is man's book, dealing with men of the primal sort, not in the least apologetic for the bare truth of their natures nor tempted to beruffle them with alien trimmings. There are pages in the book beyond which many a woman reader will never get, or which, with a shuddering of the heart, she will shut her eyes and skip. Mr. Steele has written a story of force, impressiveness and skill, which would be a notable achievement for a novelist who had already won his spurs."

+ — N Y Times 19:133 Mr 22 '14 600w

Outlook 107:46 My 2 '14 60w

+ — R of Rs 49:628 My '14 120w

STEENSTRUP, JOHANNES CHRISTOFFER
1 HAGEMANN REINHARDT. Medieval popular ballad; tr. from the Danish by E. Godfrey Cox. $1.75 (2c) Ginn 14-6630

A serious study which aims to get at a knowledge of what the genuine unalloyed ballad of the Middle ages was, stripped of all impurities in the shape of diction, metrical items, and ideas which had not originated before the sixteenth century. "The method used by Professor Steenstrup is both intensive and comparative. It lays bare in great detail the original conditions of production,—how ballads were sung to the accompaniment of dancing,—the nature and purpose of the refrain, and the structure of the rime, rhythm, and melody. It investigates the attitude of ballads toward questions of moral import, their feeling for religion, patriotism, and historical truth, and their use of nature. The comparisons with the Norse sagas and the ballads of Germany, together with the pteutouse use of extracts from the ballads of Denmark, all combine to set forth attractively the perplexing and fascinating question of ballad origins and distributions." (Publishers' note)

"One is impressed throughout with the frankness and earnestness displayed by this Danish scholar. The style of Professor Cox's translation is admirably lucid and forthright, and it is perfect in its idiom."

+ Dial 57:303 O 16 '14 370w

STEINER, EDWARD ALFRED. From alien to 11 citizen. il $1.50 (2c) Revell 14-30870

Professor Steiner, who has written books on the tide of immigration that comes yearly to our shores, tells in this book the life story of a single immigrant—himself. He came into America thru Ellis Island and is today a college professor. Between these two extremes lay many intermediate stages, the coal mines of Pennsylvania and the harvest fields of Minnesota. It is one of those inspiring personal narratives that Americans like to read because it justifies their faith in their country.

+ A L A Bkl 11:119 N '14 +

"The pictures which he draws are, many of them, too florid and too highly colored with emotion to be very palatable to a people, the reading section of which is still largely Teutonic, but it arrests the attention, if nothing more, and bears the stamp of sincerity."

+ — N Y Times 19:477 N 1 '14 230w

+ R of Rs 50:634 N '14 80w

"Remarkable volume of autobiography."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 700w

Reviewed by K. H. Claghorn

+ Survey 33:266 D 5 '14 350w

STEINHARDT, IRVING DAVID. Ten sex talks to boys (10 years and older). il $*1 (2c) Lippincott 14-11775

Plain, clear sex truths that boys should early understand are presented here in simple, unscientific terms. The information offered is intended to warn boys intelligently against unscrupulous and unclean ideas and to create a desire for pure, healthy bodies.

+ A L A Bkl 11:107 N '14

STEINHARDT, IRVING DAVID. Ten sex talks to girls (14 years and older). il $*1 (2c) Lippincott 14-3933

A series of ten talks to girls of fourteen and over. The author takes up questions of hygiene and ethics before marriage and after. His tone is "fatherly" and, some may feel, too sentimental. The ravages of social diseases are dealt with fully, with a picture added to make their horrors more vivid.

"They may be recommended unreservedly to parents and teachers and are suitable for the personal reading of older boys or girls and young men or women."

+ A L A Bkl 11:107 N '14

STEP, EDWARD. Messmates: a book of strange companionships in nature. il $*1.60 Stokes

"In this volume Mr. Step has compiled from the writings of competent authorities and observers a good digest of information relating to a phase of what is popularly called 'the romance of natural history.' Many cases of comradeship among animals which in no way represent parasitism are now classified under the terms mutualism and commensalism, and exhibit a constant companionship based on the principle of common advantage in the struggle for existence."—Ath

"Mr. Step, as a rule, is correct in his explanations, but we think he has erred in his estimate of the unpalatableness of the sea anemone and its consequent deterrent protection when it is attached to the shell in which a hermit crab has taken up its abode. The book is well illustrated, and is a good introduction to a fascinating aspect of animal life."

+ — Ath 1913:1:224 F 22 200w

"There is a certain want of coherence in the chapters, and of arrangement in the subject-matter, which suggests that Mr. Step's book on messmates is composed of a series of originally disconnected articles. If these had been properly welded together, the volume, which is well and interestingly written, and has the advantage of combining botanical as well as zoological instances of organic cooperative association, would with the addition of one or two important cases that are omitted, have held the field for a long time as a popular up-to-date exposition of the subject it deals with."

R. I. P.

+ — Nature 92:sup8 F 5 '14 250w

"Mr. Step has the happy power of writing a clear and simple account of this strange side of animal and plant life."

+ Spec 110:sup689 Ap 26 '13 550w

STEPHENS, JAMES. Demi-gods. *$1.30 (2½c) Macmillan 14-18807

Only in a book by Mr. Stephens could peasants and donkeys and angels dwell together so amicably, and withal so simply. Patsy Mac Cann and his daughter Mary are tramps of the road, taking good fortune or bad fortune as it comes, and the appearance of the arch-angel Finaun, the seraph Caeltia, and the cherub Art in no whit disturbs them. Burying their wings and celestial raiment under a tree, the three strangers don garments stolen for them by Patsy and join the wanderings and adventures of the vagabonds. But all adventures come to an end, and the time comes for the angels to depart. The heavenly apparel that has in the meantime been dug up and sold by Patsy Mac Cann is stolen back again and the arch-angel and the seraph take flight, but Art, the cherub, who had looked for too long a time across the fire into the eyes of Mary Mac Cann tears up his wings.

"Perhaps the peculiar attraction of this book can be best defined as a harmony between the sublime and the ridiculous, the esoteric and the simple. It is a book of obstinate liveliness and charm."

+ Ath 1914, 2:453 O 31 700w

"The demi-gods' is very like 'The crook of gold' in essence, but different of course in its characters and story." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 1600w

+ Nation 99:715 D 17 '14 420w

"To write 'The demi-gods,' Mr. Stephens has dipped again into the sparkling fountain of his apparently inexhaustible originality."

+ N Y Times 19:590 D 27 '14 350w

"It is in turns humorous, poetical, and mystical, but always whimsical."

+ Outlook 108:845 D 9 '14 100w

"Humour is the health of the mind," says Mr. Stephens, and he never forgets it. 'The demi-gods' is a book of miracles and at the same time a simple book. We have, in fact, but one complaint to make. The author allows Caeltia to tell a tale which he himself has told us before."

+ — Sat R 118:465 O 31 '14 650w

+ — Spec 113:719 N 21 '14 580w

STEPHENS, KATE. Greek spirit: phases of its progression in religion, polity, philosophy and art. $*1.50 (2½c) Sturgis & Walton 14-6013

This book represents an endeavor "to tell something of the message of Greek thought and action, of the lifting and broadening of the vision of human life associated with the social mind and will of the old-day Hellenes." (Preface) The author begins with a discussion of the gifts of the Greek spirit to our evolution, and follows this with chapters on: Aegean peoples; Heroic age of the Greeks; Burgeoning democracy; Fifty years of distinguished works; Decadence of the Greek spirit.

"There are interesting passages in the volume, but on the whole it must be described as chaotic."

+ — Dial 57:373 N 16 '14 250w

"Miss Stephens has performed a difficult task with very considerable skill. Unfortunately the book is without an index."

+ — Educ R 48:425 N '14 70w

"The book is the product of ripe scholarship and a thoughtful survey of the civilization of Greece."

+ — Ind 81:137 Ja 25 '15 80w

"In its matter it is a good little book. Her account of Orphism and the mystery of religions is particularly to be commended. But her sensible judgments are clothed in a style distractingly droll, especially in comparison with the laws of prose in vogue among the people she is speaking of."

+ — Nation 99:79 JI 16 '14 320w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

STEPHENS, KATE—Continued.

"The author evidently has lived so much in thought and feeling with the old Greeks that her knowledge of them has ceased to be a thing apart, but has become fused and vivid in her own mind. And this has enabled her to write of the development of their life and spirit with a peculiarly dramatic touch."

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 350w

STEPHENS, WINIFRED. La Trémoille family.
2 (Great families ser.) il $2.50 Houghton

"From the crusades to the revolution, the Trémoilles were typical French nobles. For centuries kinglets in their districts, they yielded perforce to the centralizing policy of Richelieu and Mazarin, sank to the estate of satellites of the dazzling sun at Versailles, and finally went a glimmering in the vast cataclysm of the revolution. Soldiers by necessity, through the centuries when the French noble was that or nothing, they lend themselves to anecdote. Of this the author takes full advantage, as also of the excursions and alarms incidental to the life of camp and castle."—Nation

"It is a pity that Miss Winifred Stephens begins her narrative with a split infinitive and continues it with almost every vice of style it is possible for a single writer to achieve; for she has a subject of the utmost interest." E: Fuller

+ Bookm 40:465 D '14 300w

"Her defence of Lathom House affords perhaps the most stirring of many stirring chapters in the present book."

+ Nation 99:474 O 15 '14 250w

"Miss Stephens has drawn from the byways of history a mass of interesting incidents which in their very detail often throw a new light on the events recorded in more formal works."

+ N Y Times 19:453 O 18 '14 400w

STEPHENSON, NATHANIEL WRIGHT. Spiral
2 drama in the life of Thackeray. $1.25
Doran 13-22846

The author makes "a defense of 'the most misunderstood man in English letters.' . . . The accusation generally brought against Thackeray of cynicism and bitterness, Mr. Stephenson says, is based on a single book, 'Vanity fair'; his other works reveal him as an artist who fought for faith and found that 'Life is right at the bottom.' Thackeray's greatest rival, Dickens, is quoted in his defense."

—R of Rs

Ath 1914.1:489 Ap 4 1650w

"He has filled it full of platitudes and commonplaces, and he seems to think it necessary to come to the defence of Thackeray against the 'charge' of misanthropy." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 13 '13 730w

"The book is a careful exposition of facts with comparisons of the author's development with the point of view in his writings. The reader will understand both books and writer more sympathetically after reading it."

+ Lit D 48:497 Mr 7 '14 300w

"Though Professor Stephenson displays on nearly every page a love passing that of the biographer, his handling of evidence reveals two fundamental misconceptions. The first regards Thackeray, the man. The second misconception regards Thackeray, the writer. Though Professor Stephenson has written an interesting book, it is with Mr. Whibley's conclusions that the student and the lover of Thackeray can the more easily agree."

+ — Nation 98:161 F 12 '14 870w

"Worthy and interesting monograph."

+ R of Rs 49:249 F '14 100w

STERLING, GEORGE. Beyond the breakers,
2 and other poems. $1.25 Robertson 14-22318

Mr. Sterling's fourth volume of verse contains several poems of distinction, his Ode on the centenary of the birth of Robert Browning; "Beyond the sunset"; In the market place; and a number of fine sonnets. War and battle form the theme of four poems worthy of note: "Tidal, king of the nations"; The last monster; Christmas under arms; and War.

Reviewed by A. D. Ficke

Dial 58:13 Ja 1 '15 300w

"Better than any of the three distinguished volumes that preceded it."

+ Lit D 49:903 N 7 '14 1000w

STERRETT, FRANCES ROBERTA. Jam girl.
2 il $1.25 (1½c) Appleton 14-2352

True love should not run too smoothly, yet the lovers that one wants to love should not defy fond fathers. Thus the children of former business partners who have later quarreled and established rival jam manufactories are first happy then unhappy in their courtship. Their meetings at tennis tournaments and social functions so inflame Judith's father that he banishes her from home, so unwittingly helping Cupid in his brave effort to unite his chosen hero and dainty heroine. It takes a forest fire with its dangers to teach the fathers that business rivalry and inherited feuds are less important than their children's safety and life-long happiness.

"A slight, harmless, entertaining story."

+ A L A Bkl 10:327 Ap '14

"Long ago an interesting romance was based upon the conflict between the Houses of Capulet and Montague, and since then a new novelist occasionally has ventured upon a similar plot. Few of these later stories have been better written than this."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 11 '14 300w

"A jolly little farce, with diverting incidents; it will amuse the reader."

+ Nation 98:211 F 26 '14 300w

"To Miss Sterrett must be given the credit of having produced one of the neatest and cleverest farce comedy novels of the year. The movement is sometimes rather slow and the conversations are apt to be somewhat stilted, but it is, on the whole, a cleverly constructed and amusingly told story."

+ — N Y Times 19:47 F 1 '14 350w

+ Spec 113:174 Ag 1 '14 220w

STEVENI, WILLIAM BARNES. Russian army
11 from within. $1 (3¼c) Doran 14-18507

A book brought out as soon as possible after the outbreak of war to supply information desired as to Russian military strength. The author says in his preface: "This little work, written in less than a fortnight, does not profess to be of a technical nature, but is simply an account of the Russian commanders and soldiers and the impression they made upon me during the twenty-seven years I resided in various parts of the empire."

+ Ath 1914.2:387 O 17 140w

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 120w

"Though written in the greatest haste, the book is readable and instructive." E: B. Krehbiel

+ Dial 57:379 N 16 '14 200w

"In his book Mr. Steveni sets down many interesting facts about this little-described army of the Czar."

+ N Y Times 19:445 O 18 '14 2600w

+ Outlook 108:815 D 9 '14 50w

"Interesting, though somewhat superficial because of its hasty preparation."

+ — Pittsburgh 19:548 D '14 30w

+ R of Rs 50:762 D '14 70w

"Superficial but interesting."

+ — Spec 113:503 O 10 '14 30w

STEVENI, WILLIAM BARNES. Things seen in
2 Sweden. (Things seen ser.) il $75c Dutton A14-2879

"The book, a compact duodecimo, is almost as rich in half-tone illustrations of much beauty and interest as it is in reading matter. Mr. Steveni emphasizes the charms of Sweden, too often overlooked by tourists in favor of the more familiar attractions of Norway or Switzerland, Denmark, Holland, or France."—Dial

"Geography, ethnology, climatology, with other matters having less learned names, have gone into the making of a good and useful book in this pocket handbook of Sweden."

+ Dial 57:507 D 16 '14 200w

+ Ind 80:413 D 14 '14 100w

"An entertaining description of a charming country and a picturesque people."

+ N Y Times 19:503 N 15 '14 30w

+ R of Rs 50:757 D '14 30w

STEVENS, ETHEL STEFANA. Sarah Eden. 10 *$1.35 (1c) Dodd 14-4585

A study of the religious temperament. Sarah Eden, as a girl in the Devonshire farm house was of a deeply reflective nature; in spite of health of body and sanity of mind she had little inclination toward the ordinary pursuits of youth. As she grew older, after her marriage with her cousin John Eden had proved a failure, she devoted herself to good works, and the religious side of her nature came to dominate her whole life. After her husband's death has left her free, she goes with a party of kindred spirits and followers to Jerusalem there to establish a celibate community and to await the second coming of Christ. Here in course of time her young daughter Helena grows to womanhood and when the inevitable happens and love claims the girl, the mother's faith in her cause is shaken only for a moment, and we leave her still the religious mystic looking forward to the fulfillment of her vision.

+ A L A Bkl 11:222 Ja '15

"It is not an exciting story, but it has some features. Its quiet, simple narrative is very well written, and the character of Sarah Eden is so firmly conceived and so well realized that she stands out alive and complete in every detail."

+ N Y Times 19:388 S 20 '14 320w

"There is a great deal of good work in this novel. As usual, Miss Stevens is at her best in her descriptions of the East. She has in the person of Sarah given us the most interesting and important human figure in any of her books."

+ Sat R 117:245 F 21 '14 280w

"The story reads almost as a biography, for the drawing of the chief characters, especially of Sarah herself, is admirable, and Miss Stevens makes good use of her gift for detailed observation in portraiture as well as in describing the city of Jerusalem. But we cannot help feeling that Mrs. Eden was more than a little neurotic in her visions and her Mother-Shipton-like prophecies; and the idea of a 'mixed monastery,' though delightfully worked out, is hardly convincing."

+ — Spec 112:311 F 21 '14 250w

STEVENS, FRANK LINCOLN. Fungi which cause plant disease. il *$4 Macmillan 13-23863

"In his new book, Stevens gives keys and descriptions of the fungi which cause plant diseases and also of such saprophytic forms as are obviously closely related to the parasitic forms. But he does more than give a taxonomic account of the parasitic forms, since he presents the results of cytological work, usually with the original figures, in all those groups in which extensive cytological studies have appeared. . . . Besides the Introduction, which treats of the nature of fungi and their relation to other thallophytes, the book comprises three divisions. The first division treats of Myxomycetes, the second of Schizomycetes. There follows a bibliography of 210 titles relating to the Introduction, Myxomycetes, and Schizomycetes. The third division of the book treats of Eumycetes."—Bot Gaz

"A valuable book to students of plant pathology, needed only in large collections."

+ A L A Bkl 10:364 My '14

"In several points Stevens helps to overcome inconsistencies which are common in works on parasitic fungi. Altogether this book, with its concise, clear keys of parasitic fungi, which aims to give at least one illustration as well as description of each genus of economic importance in the United States, and which has a comprehensive bibliography, must prove a stimulus to the student of plant pathology."

W. M. Pfeiffer

+ — Bot Gaz 57:154 F '14 800w

+ Nature 93:265 My 14 '14 250w

"The writer must express his surprise that any firm with the reputation of the publishers would permit a book containing so many errors to pass through their hands. They certainly owe to the author and American pathologists a speedy revision." F. D. Heald

+ — Science n s 40:168 Jl 31 '14 3100w

STEVENS, WILLIAM OLIVER. Messmates. il *$1.25 (1½c) Lippincott 13-21060

This story of midshipman Pewee Clinton's first cruise is a continuation of "Pewee Clinton, plebe." "The writer tells his tale from a first hand experience of naval life, and the book carries its heroes into England, France, and Germany. There is any amount of fun in the book, and a mad dog episode is exciting in many ways." (N Y Times)

"It is a rattling good yarn." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:447 D '13 30w

"All the lively boys mentioned in the attractive story are remarkably fine specimens, good models for boys to read about and the tale gives an excellent and accurate idea of the life of a lad in the navy. The story shows real knowledge of its subject and has enough of a plot to carry pleasant anticipations to the end."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '14 120w

"An excellent story."

+ N Y Times 18:649 N 23 '13 150w

STEVENS, WILLIAM OLIVER. Story of our navy. il *$1.50 (2c) Harper 14-18565

The purpose of this book is to give young readers a history of our navy from the modern point of view. The modern point of view pays attention to the matter of efficiency; it recognizes that victories come about, as a rule, not because "one side is so much braver or more patriotic than the other, but because one side does better thinking and better shooting." The work begins with a chapter on How we came to have a navy; and the growth of our navy up to the present time is then followed. The work is illustrated and it ends with a naval chronology and an index.

"The work is carefully done. Its results are commendable for general accuracy of statement, the few errors noted being unimportant."

+ — Nation 99:663 D 3 '14 250w

"Prof. Stevens's statements of fact are based on official records, and his expressions of opinion, as a rule, will command the approval of his readers."

+ — N Y Times 19:581 D 20 '14 100w

"The chief fault to be found with the book is that, necessarily brief in its references though it is, a few pages more should have been devoted to a fuller description of the navy as it is to-day."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 F 11 '15 1250w

STEVENSON, BURTON EGBERT. Charm of Ireland. il *$2.50 (2c) Dodd 14-19698

A personal account of journeys taken thru the length and breadth of Ireland by Mr. Stevenson and his wife, with descriptions of Irish town and country, reports of conversations with wayfaring men here and there, comments on Irish character and references to Irish problems. There are chapters on: Dublin's Saturday night; The art of ancient Erin; On the trail of the Shamrock; Adventures at Blarney; The shrine at St. Fin Barre; Round about Killarney; The ruins of Adare, etc. There are many good illustrations from photographs.

STEVENSON, BURTON EGBERT—Continued.
 "A fair, fat, and agreeable book is this."
 Algernon Tassin
 + Bookm 40:418 D '14 320w
 + Cath World 100:684 F '15 360w

"In the proper spirit did Mr. Stevenson journey to Ireland, and he took the right companion with him."

+ Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 90w

"Historical facts are not neglected, but history is so woven in with beautiful descriptions and chatty stories that we absorb it unconsciously. The author loses no opportunity to get the Irish point of view on the problems of the day."

+ Lit D 49:1190 D 12 '14 270w

"Mr. Stevenson, by story and picture—both of them unstudied but illuminative—makes Ireland seem abundantly worth while to the tourist."

+ Outlook 108:846 D 9 '14 90w

STEVENSON, FANNY (VAN DE GRIFT) OSBOURNE (MRS. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON). Cruise of the Janet Nichol among the South Sea islands: a diary. il $1.75 Scribner 14-17832

"The present record is modestly accounted for as 'originally only intended to be a collection of hints to help my husband's memory where his own diary had fallen in arrears.' Much of the material was rewritten by Stevenson, and the notes so developed have been here omitted, as well as numerous entries of a personal nature. A chief reason for printing what remains lay in the need of correcting various recent fabrications in connection with Stevenson's voyages. 'No one, outside of our immediate family,' says Mrs. Stevenson, 'sailed with us on any of our cruises. All the books "With Stevenson" here and "With Stevenson" there, are manufactured out of "such stuff as dreams are made on."'"—Nation

+ Boston Transcript p25 O 7 '14 630w

Ind 80:339 N 30 '14 140w

"It abounds in valuable and instructive information."

+ Lit D 50:157 Ja 23 '15 160w

"The details of the cruise are interesting, though they add nothing of moment to our impression of Stevenson."

+ Nation 99:584 N 12 '14 400w

"Pleasant narrative of unusual events."

+ Outlook 108:732 N 25 '14 90w

Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 550w

STEVENSON, GEORGE. Jenny Cartwright. <sup>10</sup> $1.25 (1c) Lane

The story begins with Jenny's childhood, when as a timid, shy little girl she holds her school-mates spellbound with tales of her "visions." A cloud settles down on Jenny's life early, for her father, a convict and a suicide, is, in the crude words of the people among whom she lives, doubly damned, and the responsibility for his soul weighs heavily on the child. Later she assumes a like responsibility for the soul of a wayward young cousin, and having become a "preacher-woman," she labors for the salvation of Oliver Barrington, feeling that in redeeming him she will have made atonement for the others' sins. And then, when her fanatical uncle has killed Oliver, she declares herself guilty and goes in her uncle's stead to the gallows. It is a gruesome tale in its outlines but the character of Jenny gives it dignity.

"This long novel, which runs to nearly 400 pages of close print, will pass a considerable amount of time in a sufficiently entertaining manner. There is some excellent portraiture, though the comparisons which the book suggests with classic work are hardly fortunate."

+ — Ath 1914:212 Ag 22 120w

"The narrative is well written, with a natural sequence of events that hold the reader's attention."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 180w

"The book has power and passion; in its minor characters it also has humor and human kindness in a marked degree. Its most trying defect to many readers will be the abrupt and matter-of-fact way with which incidents of almost unendurable horror are suddenly introduced."

+ — Outlook 108:393 O 14 '14 90w

"The writing is fine and clean, the characters remarkably well drawn; but the story itself is dreadful. Two murders and many deaths! Mr. Stevenson is a keen observer of human nature, and his minor characters, mostly country folk, are drawn with wit and humour."

+ — Sat R 118:227 Ag 22 '14 180w

"A careful interesting story which, in spite of a tendency to caricature, is capable of true pathos and humour."

+ — Spec 113:469 O 3 '14 20w

STEVENSON, ROBERT LOUIS BALFOUR. <sup>2</sup> Poems and ballads. il $2 Scribner 13-35732

This new edition of the complete poems of Stevenson contains Underwoods, Ballads, Songs of travel, and A child's garden of verses. It forms one of the series of "Modern poets," each complete in one volume.

A L A Bkl 10:83 O '13

"The type is a real pleasure to the eye."

+ Ath 1913:2489 N 1 60w

+ Dial 55:365 N 1 '13 50w

"An attractive and complete edition." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 18:578 O 26 '13 260w

Outlook 105:450 O 25 '13 220w

+ R of Rs 48:636 N '13 190w

Spec 111:769 N 8 '13 30w

STEWART, ALFRED WALTER. Chemistry and its borderland. il $1.50 Longmans A14-2926

"The scope of this book is best shown by giving the titles of the fifteen essays of which it consists. They are: The ramification of chemistry, The allies of chemistry among the sciences, The relations between Chemistry and industry, Immuno-chemistry and some kindred problems, Colloids and the ultra-microscope, The work of the spectroscope, Chemistry in space, The inert gases and their place among the elements, Radium, Niton, Transmutation, The nature of the elements, Chemical problems of the present and future, The methods of chemical research, and The organization of chemical research."—Science

"A delightful book. The book is as interesting as most novels, and the reader takes in instruction without knowing that he is being instructed."

+ Ath 1914:1561 Ap 18 630w

"It is difficult to imagine for what class of readers this book is intended."

— Nature 94:167 O 15 '14 190w

"The book is well written and comparatively free from errors, though exception might be taken to the accuracy of occasional statements." J. L. Howe

+ — Science n 50:639 O 30 '14 1000w

+ — Spec 112:sup678 Ap 25 '14 130w

STEWART, CHARLES D. Some textual difficulties in Shakespeare. $1.35 (2c) Yale univ. press 14-21066

Mr. Stewart offers an elucidation of some forty passages from Shakespeare over which scholars have argued and disagreed. Among them are "Runaway's eyes," from Romeo and Juliet; "Both to my God, and to my gracious king," from Hamlet; "But here, upon this bank and shoal of time," from Macbeth; "As those that fear they hope, and know they fear," from As you like it. His method of approaching these disputed phrases is indicated in his discussion of the mystery of Hamlet. He looks at the facts in each case as Shakespeare presents them. "In every case," he says, "Shakespeare will explain himself utterly, in every scene and passage, to entire consistency; it is only necessary for us to furnish the sympathetic insight and feeling."

"May we confess that we sat down to read this book with a mind prepared to scorn, and that within a few minutes of opening its pages and thereafter till the end we remained to admire and to praise. It is a Shakespearean book in ten thousand."

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 9 '14 1450w

STEWART, MRS. ELINORE (PRUITT). Letters of a woman homesteader. il *$1.25 (2c) Houghton 14-10884

Informal letters in clear, homely English that tell of the wonders to be lived out west in the homesteader's country. The writer was left a widow with a little child and no means to support. She sought work and it came to her in the form of keeping house for a homesteader at Burnt Cork, Wyoming. From housekeeper to landowner makes a fascinating story when told by an invincible woman who, guiltless of fear or feminine frailty, can run a mowing-machine or milk cows as easily as she can make butter or do the cooking and washing. She writes the letters to a former employer to whom she says: "Homesteading is the solution of all poverty's problems . . . but persons afraid of coyotes and work and loneliness better let ranching alone."

"Good to read aloud to the whole family."

+ A L A Bkl 11:26 S '14 +

"It is a hearty and wholesome book."

+ Dial 57:21 J1 1 '14 450w

"Spontaneity is the keynote of all the narration. The limitations are those natural to a humdrum, day-to-day chronicle, which sometimes drops into very small talk, indeed. All her sincerity is once or twice needed to redeem patches of gossip."

+ Nation 99:75 J1 16 '14 250w

"A readable little book, full of the tang of the prairies and of a delightful personality."

+ N Y Times 19:259 Je 7 '14 600w

"Mrs. Louderer, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, and Gavotte are as distinct literary creations as can be found in recent fiction."

+ Outlook 107:820 Ag 1 '14 100w

+ R of Rs 50:250 Ag '14 260w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:191 J1 '14 50w

STEWART, HUGH. Provincial Russia. il *$3 Macmillan

"Mr. Stewart knows Russia well, and describes the life in nearly every large district except Lithuania, Esthonia, Poland, and Finland. He can also quote from many of the best modern writers of the language or languages. He has studied closely the extraordinary mingling of Eastern, Western, and Northern races, especially to the south-east. Politics and government do not obtrude here because the peasant is generally ignorant of their heavy hand, which only reaches the towns with any force. There is description of scenery, but scarcely any natural history. . . . Mr. De Haenen's pictures are very pleasant representations of the people."—Spec

"So far as it goes it is admirably done; we note, however, several compositors' errors which have escaped observation."

+ Int Studio 51:247 Ja '14 150w

"The collaboration of writer and artist is not close."

+ Spec 111:sup950 D 6 '13 200w

STIGAND, CHAUNCY HUGH, and STIGAND, NANCY YULEE, comps. and trs. Black tales for white children. il *$1.50 (4c) Houghton

These tales come from the east coast of Africa. They are translated from the Swahili, a language derived partly from the Arabic and partly from several African Bantu tongues. They are written down as the author has heard them, for they are genuine folk tales, handed down by word of mouth; this is probably the first written record of them. The translator points out in an interesting preface that, just as the people themselves are a mixture of Arab and African, so do the stories show a curious combination of elements. "The finer and more witty points are generally of Arab origin, whilst the more homely and jungle scenes are drawn from Africa." The collection is made up of twenty-nine stories.

"The authors have made their book a treasure-trove of interest to children seeking exciting tales, and also to grown-ups interested in the study of savage or semi-savage races." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:446 D '14 130w

Ind 80:413 D 14 '14 40w

"The brutal element in them will not please the anxious parent. Our criticism is that they are generally of more interest to the student of folk-lore than to the child who should be kept at Andersen and Grimm until the countless treasures of these two are exhausted."

+ Lit D 49:1136 D 5 '14 100w

"It is all very well worth while."

+ N Y Times 19:493 N 8 '14 170w

"Not a few of the stories will appeal to students of folk-lore even more strongly than to the ordinary nursery readers. Mr. Hargrave's black and white sketches are an attractive feature of the book."

+ Sat R 118:sup8 D 5 '14 140w

"The illustrations are clever and full of life and fun. The puzzled faces of some of the excellent, but not otherwise, black people are in delightful contrast to the knowing expressions of many of the wild beasts."

+ Spec 113:sup779 D 5 '14 300w

STILL, ALFRED. Overhead electric power transmission. il *$3 McGraw 13-19181

This work "is a complement to 'Transmission line construction,' by R. A. Lundquist, issued by the same publishers last year, which treated the subject from the field-construction man's point of view, showing methods and costs of construction. The present volume treats the subject more particularly from the point of view of the office engineer who is called upon to calculate and design transmission systems." (Engin N) "The eight chapters deal with the following topics: Introductory, principles, economics, electrical calculations, lightning protection, continuous-current transmission, mechanical principles, supports. A series of seven valuable appendices follow on special and less simple detailed subjects." (Elec World) best account of that system in the English chapter on the Thury system gives perhaps the best account of that system in the English language which has yet appeared."

+ Elec World 63:57 Ja 3 '14 90w

"This book seems to fill a vacant place in the literature on the art of power transmission, and is neither too technical nor on the other hand too elementary for the average engineer who has problems of this kind to solve. In general, the subject matter of the book is good, well arranged, and with the exception of the points mentioned above, some of which are minor, the work is a valuable addition to the literature on electric power transmission." C. D. Gray

+ Engin N 70:996 N 13 '13 850w

"The book will prove useful not only to the practical designer but also to the engineering student specializing in power transmission."

+ Engin Rec 68:475 O 25 '13 320w

STIRLING, MRS. ANNA MARIA DIANA WILHELMINA (PICKERING). Macdonald of the Isles: a romance of the past and present. il *$4 (6c) Lane 14-9542

"This history of Clan Donald traces that ancient kith and kin from the dim ages of myth and fable, when Tara's halls still held the throne of the Irish kings and the lyre wailed through its embrasures, down to the present day. . . . It is a long story from 'Conn of a hundred fights,' that Ard Righ or Supreme king of Erin, down to the present 14th Baronet and 21st Chief of Sleat, Sir Alexander Macdonald of the Isles, but Mrs. Stirling accomplishes it creditably."—Sat R

Ath 1913,2:657 D 6 50w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

STIRLING, ANNA MARIA D. W.—Continued.
 "It is far from possible to quote, or even to allude to many of the anecdotes in which the Macdonalds are concerned, as here narrated. Suffice it to say that they are all delightful and delightfully told. Thoroughly attractive volume." E. J. C.

- + Boston Transcript p8 My 23 '14 780w
- + Nation 99:256 Ag 27 '14 750w
- + N Y Times 19:323 Jl 26 '14 70w
- + Sat R 116:753 D 13 '13 130w

"There is a little too much obvious moralizing of the 'Vanished-forever-are-the-doughty-warriors' type, which might have been omitted with profit, and surely at this time of day it is useless to get angry with Boswell and Dr. Johnson. But we can forgive much to a writer who enfers so readily into the spirit of old, unhappy, far-off things."

- + Spec 112:134 Ja 24 '14 1950w
- + Springfield Republican p5 Jl 16 '14 1200w

STOCKING, JANE. Via P. & O. *$1 (2½c)
 5 Dodd 14-6793

A story told in letters. They are written by a woman in Shanghai to her sister in England. The two women are Americans, but one is happily married to an Englishman, the other unhappily married to a German resident of the east. Breaking the silence of six years, the writer tells frankly the story of the failure of her marriage, but her letters are not unduly tinged with unhappiness. She writes entertainingly of the life of the East, and before her story comes to an end there are prospects of a brighter future for her.

"The book as a whole is not without interest, though slight in every respect."

- + Ath 1914,2:178 Ag 8 100w

"The book is very subtle, very real, and its shadows are deftly relieved by occasional lighter touches." Norman Bryce

- + Bookm 39:682 Ag '14 150w

"A pleasantly written story with which one may agreeably occupy an idle hour."

- + N Y Times 19:189 Ap 12 '14 250w

STOCKING, JAY THOMAS. Golden goblet, and 2 other stories. il *$1 (3½c) Pilgrim press

Nine stories for boys and girls, most of them based upon old legends. The stories are: The golden goblet; The spirits of spring; The white lily; The royal engine; The snowball that didn't melt; Boniface and Keep-it-all; Mrs. Gray's family; Much and more; Felix, the wise man.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

Bookm 40:447 D '14 30w

STOCKLEY, CYNTHIA. Wanderfoot (the 1 dream ship). il *$1.35 Putnam 13-22284

The marriage, after a six days' acquaintance, of a New York surgeon of international fame and a woman who, as a newspaper woman and adventuress, has been a wanderer over the earth, is the introductory incident in this story. Their housekeeping attempts in New York, where "Val" fails utterly in the managing of servants, their separation, Val's chicken raising experiments in Jersey isle, and their final reunion are the matters that fill the remainder of the book.

"This particularly intense variant of an old situation is new. But the manner of its working out is sorely disappointing; it is not worthy of the strength and skill of the author of such virile and compelling books as 'Poppy' and 'The spur.'" F. T. Cooper

- + Bookm 38:540 Ja '14 650w

"Despite its trivialities, the story has some strength."

- + Boston Transcript p11 D 19 '13 400w

"Admitting the probability of much to start with, the reader may get considerable pleasure out of Miss Stockley's new novel, for Miss Stockley knows how to tell a story."

- + N Y Times 18:702 N 30 '13 220w

"In construction and in artistic restraint this book is a marked advance over the writer's earlier work. In many ways the book is true to life and experience, and seems to have been written from a first-hand knowledge of many of the experiences and scenes it describes."

- + Outlook 105:598 N 15 '13 120w

STOCKLEY, CYNTHIA. Wild honey; stories of 2 South Africa. il *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-13375

"Who wears 'veld-schoens' will return to the veld," says the author in the first story, and "who tastes of Africa's perfumed honey can never again content him with the honey of pallid Europe." This is the theme of the story. A cynical and sophisticated English woman comes to the veld to taste its wild honey and to leave it never again. The stories that follow—all with an African setting—are: Common or garden earth; Watchers by the road; The molmelt of the mountain; On the way to Beira; Progress; The promise of life.

"Miss Stockley is prodigal with her colours, and tends to be sensational."

- + Ath 1914,2:232 Ag 29 170w

"Miss Stockley's gifts of invention and narrative are under no restraint. Her manner also, as well as her matter, runs riot with reason."

- + Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 250w

"Some of the tales are so amateurish and show so little of that grip upon the real world that makes Mrs. Stockley's chief strength that one guesses she has been resurrecting the very first tales she ever wrote, perhaps when she was in her early teens."

- + N Y Times 19:362 Ag 30 '14 400w

"This is not honey. Golden syrup is the word."

- + Sat R 118:227 Ag 22 '14 120w

STOCKTON, CHARLES HERBERT. Outlines 2 of international law. *$2.50 (1c) Scribner 14-20867

Many points of international law have come up for discussion in connection with the present war. The construction of the Panama canal, the introduction of aircraft into warfare, and the increase in the number of agreements and treaties between nations have all influenced international relations and called for new interpretations of international law. It is to meet these changed conditions that the present work has been prepared. In part 1, which is introductory, the author discusses the nature and scope of international law, its origin, and its development from the time of Grotius to the present. Part 2 takes up States in international law; part 3, Intercourse of states in time of peace; part 4, War-relations of belligerents; part 5, Relations between belligerents and neutrals.

"It is a safe, well-selected compilation of recognized authorities rather than interpretation of the trend of modern international relations."

- + Ind 81:30 Ja 4 '15 80w

"It may be said of this treatise that it is authoritative and well up to date and that in it will be found a clear and reliable exposition of the actually established rules and principles of international usage and well-considered and intelligent opinion respecting international questions that are still 'up in the air.'"

- + N Y Times 20:41 F 7 '15 140w
- + Outlook 109:105 Ja 13 '15 160w

STODDARD, THEODORE LOTHROP. French 2 revolution in San Domingo. il *$2 (2c) Houghton 14-21788

Popular knowledge concerning the historic event that is the subject of this book probably extends to a familiarity with the name of its leader, Toussaint Louverture. The author has told the complete story of the movement with which he was associated, relating it on the one hand, to the revolution in France, of which it was a part, and on the other to the struggle between the races, calling it "the first great shock between the ideals of white supremacy and race equality." The work is provided with notes and a bibliography, but lacks an index.

"Mr. Stoddard is to be congratulated upon the thoroughness with which he has gathered his material and the clearness with which he has reconstructed his picture."

+ Ind 81:212 F 8 '15 130w

"Mr. Stoddard's book is a most remarkable example of careful investigation and graphic writing. A more valuable contribution to the history of the conflict of races and to the literature of the checkered fortunes of modern colonial empire has not been written in a long time."

+ R of Rs 51:122 Ja '15 220w

"Dr. Stoddard has made the most of the extant documents, and his book is a trustworthy guide through an obscure byway of history."

+ Spec 114:88 Ja 16 '15 120w

STODDARD, WILLIAM OSBORN, jr. Captain of the Cat's-paw. il *$1 (2c) Harper

14-15177

Before entering on his senior year in high school Billy Strong determines to begin to put by money for his college course, and during the summer vacation makes use of his motor boat, the Cat's-paw, with that end in view. Two good friends go into business with him and the three boys run a passenger line. They find themselves in competition with the regular steamship line, which makes an attempt to force them out of business, but they triumph in the end and win the good will of their rivals.

"Must please any wide-awake girl or boy and many a parent too." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:451 D '14 160w

STOKES, REV. ANSON PHELPS, jr. Memorials of eminent Yale men. 2v il *$10 Yale univ. press

14-17212

"Here is a work that gives the family history of a university in the lives of its strong sons who have formed its traditions. The influence on the nation of men like Jonathan Edwards, Nathan Hale, John C. Calhoun, Eli Whitney, Samuel F. B. Morse, Fenimore Cooper, and William G. Sumner are well enough known, but the influence exerted on those men by the brotherhood of Yale, and the part they took in shaping the ideals of that historical university, were not told before this book appeared." (N Y Times) There are sketches of seventy-nine men grouped as Theologians, Educational leaders, Authors, Men of science, Statesmen, Inventors and artists, Lawyers and jurists, Patriots and soldiers.

"Although the book will be of most value to Yale graduates—to such, indeed, it will prove a useful and inspiring work—it ought to command a more general interest as well." Norman Foerster

+ Dial 57:339 N 1 '14 1000w

"Mr. Stokes has made a distinct contribution to American biography and has set an example that should be followed by some devoted alumnus in every historic university of America."

+ Ind 81:253 F 15 '15 220w

"It is all set forth simply and in illuminating fashion, not labored at all, though each individual history betrays a thoroughness of knowledge mastered by search through countless diaries, letters, biographies, and official records of the university."

+ N Y Times 19:452 O 18 '14 870w

"As good biographical reading and as reliable sources of information these two volumes may be rather specially recommended; for they represent not merely the perfunctory performance of a task, but earnest and skilful literary work expended upon a theme of great richness."

+ No Am 200:949 D '14 450w

+ Outlook 109:103 Ja 13 '15 2100w

STOKES, HUGH. Francisco Goya. il *$3.75 Putnam

14-30271

A biographical and critical study of Goya, the eighteenth century Spanish painter. "Without even mentioning his art, the life of Goya would be immensely interesting; his temperament in any case would reward analysis; and his art itself is so strongly personal that it leaves no opportunity for the 'dry-as-dust' method. Mr. Hugh Stokes does not allow the critical side of his book to suffer because the attractiveness of the human value of his subject's life appeals to him. With considerable success he adopts the only method in such a case, of regarding the art primarily as the mirror of the artist's personality." (Int Studio)

"The first attempt in English of a complete biography, but the small libraries need not buy because of the adequate short monograph by Calvert."

+ A L A Bkl 10:319 Ap '14

+ Ath 1914.1:140 Ja 24 700w

"A valuable handbook of reference for students of this remarkable master in many kinds of art."

+ Dial 56:469 Je 1 '14 420w

"We are sure that Mr. Stokes would not wish us to hail his book as a final one on the painter, but it most effectually brings our information about him up to date, while preserving the legend of his rare individuality."

+ Int Studio 52:84 Mr '14 300w

"A very entertaining but possibly too diffuse book." F. J. Mather, Jr.

+ Nation 99:444 O 8 '14 100w

"His book promises to remain for a long time the best account we shall have of the great and maimed genius, the last of the great masters of Spain." T. Walsh

+ N Y Times 19:253 My 31 '14 780w

R of Rs 49:369 Mr '14 90w

"Mr. Stokes only wrote his book because he felt the human interest of this career. He has the patience and accuracy so frequent in historians of art; he has taken great pains to ascertain the chronology of his facts, and he tries to see them in their concatenation. He is not by any means a bad writer either; beside negligences, he offers us many instances of original phrasing. Yet the book is disappointing. Perhaps it is because we feel it is not quite first hand—Mr. Stokes' is often only a reflection of Yriarte; more probably it is because he has not given sufficient background or atmosphere to his narrative, and because he has the amateur's fault of shirking a broad, full development of a view which may be complete in his mind. A life of Goya can only be the achievement of an expert psychologist and writer and Mr. Stokes is above all an erudite connoisseur."

+ Sat R 117:52 Ja 10 '14 820w

"When all has been said, we are doubtful whether it was worth while to write the life of Goya so fully, for although turbulent and passed in stormy times, it was not interesting. The learning and great industry of the author are both apparent throughout the book—the footnotes alone indicate a large amount of study, as does the full catalogue of Goya's works. Nevertheless, Mr. Calvert's volume, with its short biography and mass of illustrations, is the best book in which to study Goya."

+ Spec 112:191 Ja 31 '14 350w

STONE, HERBERT LAWRENCE. "America's" cup races. il $2 (3c) Outing pub.

14-10631

A thirty-three years' story of international racing for the cup. It begins with the year 1851 and the early conditions of yachting in this country. It tells of the building of the "America," the first vessel that entered a contest with England, and of each succeeding contest since. Thru the narratives may be traced the evolution of the sailing yacht in this country, for it was the cup races that stimulated the perfecting of this type of boat. There is also included the controversy over the terms of the various challenges which show human traits of people on both sides of the water. The volume is handsomely illustrated.

Ind 78:564 Je 29 '14 30w

"The book by its timeliness and its method of treatment will appeal equally to the yachtsman

STONE, HERBERT LAWRENCE—Continued, who wants to know the history of the races and the bearing they have on present-day boats, and to the layman, whose interest has always been keen in the human side of this great sporting event."

+ N Y Times 19:288 Je 21 '14 630w

"The most complete and useful contribution thus far made to the literature of the subject."

+ R of Rs 50:253 Ag '14 120w

STONE, HERBERT LAWRENCE, ed. Ice-boating. (Outing handbooks) il *70c (2½c) Outing pub. 13-11617

The editor has gathered together the latest opinions of the foremost authorities in America on the subject of ice-boats and ice-boating. H. Percy Ashley, Archibald Rogers, and W. M. Stanbrough are among the contributors, and all the important details of ice-boat construction and sailing are considered.

A L A Bkl 10:195 Ja '14

+ N Y Sun p5 N 15 '13 20w

N Y Times 19:10 Ja 11 '14 120w

STONE, JOHN HARRIS. Caravanning and camping-out. il *$3.75 (3½c) McBride, Nast & co. (Eng ed 13-17961)

A book that might be called the complete caravanner, since it tells all that one needs to know about the art and science of caravanning. There are chapters at the beginning on: The road and its fascination. The educational value of the caravan, in touch with nature, and so on. There are, later, more practical chapters that give instructions for building a caravan, hints as to its equipment, and points to be considered in choosing the caravan horse, etc., and the final chapter gives some cooking recipes for caravanners. The delights and comforts of caravanning are further set forth by means of pictures.

"Mr. Stone's book is both a companion and a guide."

+ Ath 1913,1:648 Je 14 230w

"It would be difficult to imagine a book more self-contained, while throughout it is written in an engaging style." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p1 J1 5 '13 750w

+ N Y Times 19:266 Je 14 '14 200w

"Mr. Stone's book deserves to find plenty of readers."

+ Spec 111:181 Ag 2 '13 450w

STONER, WINIFRED SACKVILLE. Natural education. (Childhood and youth ser.) *$1 (1½c) Bobbs 14-12491

Mrs. Stoner was asked to write for this series an account of the methods used in the training of her little daughter, who belongs to that small group of American children known as "precocious." As in other cases of the kind the precocity seems to result from thoughtful care and intelligent training in infancy and early childhood. Mrs. Stoner discusses: Notable examples of the early direction of tendencies or talents; Earliest development; Learning to talk; Learning through nature's nurse play; Music and spelling; Learning through stories, games and rhymes; The learning of foreign languages; Explorations in the realms of mathematics; Educational amusements; Cultivation of the imagination; Discipline; Punishment through natural consequences; Health first of all; Eugenics. She appends an interesting list of books that have helped her.

"An interesting book." H. T. C.

+ Boston Transcript p21 S 2 '14 450w

EI School J 15:14 S '14 430w

STOOTHOFF, ELLENOR, pseud. (MRS. ELLA STOOTHOFF (HULST) GREENSLET). Nightingale: a lark. *$1.25 (1½c) Houghton 14-18498

It was not in Hilda's nature really to enjoy ill-health, even the partial state of ill-health in which she found herself. She was an impulsive creature and when she decided that the only thing to do was to run away by herself and to stay away until she was perfectly well, she at once acted on the impulse and started for Europe, leaving husband and children behind her. The story follows her irresponsible wanderings about Europe in company with Suzetta, a young Italian girl adopted as maid and friend. An erratic motor car christened Bucephalus and two pet lambs figure in the adventure. The ostensible object of Hilda's search is a nightingale. She wants to hear one sing.

"Told with whimsical humor."

+ A L A Bkl 11:221 Ja '15 +

"It is all a tissue of blithe absurdities, with an undercurrent of tender and subtle seriousness." F: T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:675 F '15 520w

"Hilda's adventures are delightfully humorous and interesting, in spite of the occasionally strained style, and she becomes a kind of modern Pippa to those who cross her path."

+ Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 200w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:654 D 3 '14 80w

"Clever, original, and amusing book."

+ Outlook 108:554 N 1 '14 120w

+ Springfield Republican p5 F 11 '15 340w

STORR, VERNON FAITHFULL. Development of English theology in the nineteenth century, 1800-1860. *$3.50 Longmans 14-3371

"The period covered by the present volume is the first sixty years of the last century; a second volume is promised, carrying the history down to the end of the century. These sixty years were a time of extraordinary importance for the theological and religious history of England. The eighteenth century had, on the whole, solved the problem of existence to its own satisfaction. It was a constructive age. . . . The nineteenth century was inundated with new experiences and ideas, which it never quite assimilated. . . . We have reached a point from which it is possible to form a fair estimate of the two main influences affecting theology in the last century: and the chief value of Canon Storr's book lies in the clearness with which he describes these influences, and the definiteness with which he judges them."—Hibbert J

Cath World 99:689 Ag '14 330w

"The most marked quality of Canon Storr's learned and important work is its sense of proportion. The book is thoroughly historical. But it is the work of a man who is interested in the past for the sake of the present; and therefore its importance is not merely, or even mainly, historical. Its verdict on the past suggests an interpretation of the present, and a faith as regards the future." J. M. Thompson

+ Hibbert J 12:710 Ap '14 4750w

"This is a really able and informing work, based on extensive reading, but frankly written in the interests of religious liberalism."

+ Sat R 117:243 F 21 '14 1300w

STORY, JOSEPHINE. For the comfort of the family: a vacation experiment. il *$1 (6½c) Doran 14-18539

A book for housewives. The author tells of the devices which she used in simplifying the work of her servantless household. The first essential to the success of her plan was cooperation on the part of her family. After that it depended upon the use of a fireless cooker, bread mixer, paper bags for cookery, paper doilies, paper towels, etc.

STRAHAN, JAMES. Maréchale (Catherine Booth-Clibborn). il *$1.25 (2c) Doran 14-7081

This story of the life of the eldest of the four Booth daughters, is written by her son-in-law. Catherine Booth began public speaking at the age of thirteen, and in 1881, when she was little past twenty, she was sent to carry the work of the Salvation army into France. It was here that she won the title, the Maréchale, by which she is now generally known thruout the continent. She is also well known in America where she has lectured, and this story of her life will find many interested readers.

"There are many questions of a psychological character likely to be suggested to the mind of the thoughtful reader of the Maréchal's story. It offers more than exciting narrative and bold adventure."

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '14 230w

"A graphic pen picture of this remarkable woman is given by her son-in-law."

+ R of Rs 49:758 Je '14 120w

STRATTON, MARY. Bruges: a record and an impression. il *$2 Scribner

"The shrunken splendors of this old 'Venice of the north,' once the proud capital of Flanders, are here sympathetically set forth. Fortunately, altho occupied by the Germans, Bruges has not yet met the fate of Louvain or Dixmude." (Ind) "Of its mediæval architecture Mr. Charles Wade, a talented draughtsman with a marked genius for subjects of this kind, gives us many glimpses in his pen-drawings." (Int Studio)

+ — Ath 1914,2:483 N 7 770w

+ Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 40w

"Attractive volume. Entertaining letterpress."

+ Int Studio 54:158 D '14 170w

STREET, GEORGE EDMUND. Gothic architecture in Spain; ed. by Georgian Goddard King. 2v il *$2 Dutton A14-2927

"Fifty years ago Mr. Street wrote his studies of the Gothic architecture of Spain for the travellers in that country. So thorough was his work and so tireless did he run to ground all possible traces of an older art in Spain, that an editor at the present day finds little to change in his work. . . . Since Street and Baedeker are the two chief authorities for Spanish travel, the editor felt the necessity of correcting in this book wrong impressions that had received comment in the Baedeker, and to supply everything which the Baedeker lacked." —Boston Transcript

"Excellent though the editor has supplied corrections and additions to the accounts of places which Street visited, his omissions for the most part remain; he is to be read for what he saw, not for any general view of Spanish architecture. His book is most entertaining and vigorous, for he had something of the humour of Ford and something of the vigour of Freeman."

+ — Ath 1914,1:533 Ap 11 550w

"Mr. Street's books during fifty years have retained their same position among the requisite handbooks for Spanish travellers. The editor has sifted the immense mass of material which has been published in this period, and her inclusions made the volume entirely up-to-date."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 350w

+ Cath World 100:261 N '14 150w

"In its new form, Street's work belongs with Baedeker in the equipment of every art-loving tourist in Spain."

+ Dial 56:431 My 16 '14 140w

+ Nation 99:290 S 3 '14 330w

STREET, JULIAN LEONARD. Abroad at home: American ramblings, observations, and adventures. il *$2.50 (2c) Century 14-20789

The author, with Mr. Wallace Morgan the artist as his companion, set out from New York to visit the United States. Mr. Street has written about it, and Mr. Morgan has added pictures that illuminate Mr. Street's text. Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Kalamazoo, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, and San Francisco were visited and each is described and differentiated, for the two travelers found that each had characteristics and a personality of its own. They were interested chiefly in cities; the country is viewed largely from the train window. The chapters are arranged under the headings: Stepping westward; Michigan meanderings; Chicago; "In Mizzoura"; The beginning of the west; The mountains and the coast.

"Brisk and snappy in its style, the book shows keen powers of observation in its author and an enviable command of the American language."

+ Dial 57:505 D 16 '14 200w

+ Ind 80:380 D 7 '14 400w

"There is a lot of information in the book, but it is dressed in such a light and airy manner that we do not realize that we are learning anything." J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:405 D 14 '14 70w

"There is an extraordinary amount of solid and valuable information in the book. The book, take it all in all, is the most engaging, the most American, the most amusing and satisfactory and interesting record of a joyful pilgrimage imaginable. It is generously printed in a roomy volume with plenty of margin to the pages and fine clear type. Any one who wants to do something really worth while with $2.50 will expend it in acquiring a copy." Hildegarde Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:575 D 20 '14 1200w

"He has the reporter's gift of singling out what is likely to be of interest to the average reader, and in describing it so that the reader sees and thinks with him."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 530w

STREETER, BURNETT HILLMAN. Restatement and reunion; a study in first principles. *$1 Macmillan

This book "is an irenic, persuasive, and convincing statement by the Dean of Queen's college, Oxford, of what 'broad' churchmen think the Church of England should stand for, both as to theological restatement and as to the problem of reunion. In each of these lines the argument deserves consideration by all churches. It contends for the same liberty to interpret the creed symbolically in all its clauses that is allowed in some of them."—Outlook

"The broad and generous spirit of the book is a heartening symptom of modern thought." G. B. Smith

+ Am J Theol 19:140 Ja '15 500w

+ Cath World 100:395 D 14 400w

"Little but notable book."

+ Outlook 107:1018 Ag 22 '14 230w

+ Spec 113:204 Ag 8 '14 500w

STRICKLAND, WALTER G. Dictionary of Irish artists. 2v *30s Maunsell & co., Dublin 14-5840

"In publishing this exhaustive work Mr. Strickland has rendered a valuable service to the student, and has added considerably to our knowledge of the history and development of the arts in Ireland. . . . The most noteworthy characteristic of the dictionary is that, while the more famous painters are not neglected details are supplied for the first time of certain Irish painters and engravers of distinction about whom little has been known hitherto apart from their work. . . . Not the least interesting part of Mr. Strickland's book is the story of the foundation and development of the art institutions of Ireland, which is told in an appendix to the second volume."—Ath

"The book throughout exhibits the most careful research. As a book of reference [it] ought to find a place in the library of every student of the history of British art."

+ Ath 1914,1:321 F 28 880w

"This is the first and probably the last dictionary of Irish artists; for Mr. Strickland seems to have left nothing for a successor to do except to bring his volumes level with time as the years pass. To the expert and connoisseur the book is of immense value."

+ Sat R 117:212 F 14 '14 120w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. Confession of a fool; tr. by Ellie Schleussner. *$1.35 Small (Eng ed 13-15641)

"In 'The confession of a fool,' Strindberg

STRINDBERG, AUGUST—Continued.

gives his own version of his first marriage. How much of this version is true, how much based on a diseased imagination, it is difficult to say. . . . But whether true or not, he believed it to be true, and suffered from his imaginings as much as from the actual reality. The book was written in French, but a German translation appeared in 1893,—a year before the French original was printed. No authorized Swedish edition has ever been published, though a spurious one from the German appeared serially in a Stockholm weekly in spite of the author's protest. The book will, however, be included in Strindberg's collected works now in course of publication. —Dial

"This is a book which, both as a work of art and as a 'human document,' is likely for some time to be overrated. Yet, though not consistently life-like, the characterization is wonderful in its way, and worth some study."

— + Ath 1912,2:114 Ag 3 1850w

"No matter how revolting some parts of the story are, the book cannot fail to make a deep impression as explaining much that would otherwise seem puzzling in the author's writings, and it must awaken a deep sympathy for him. The book is written with a force which carries the reader away as does, perhaps, no other work by this author." A. G. S. Josephson

+ — Dial 56:301 Ap 1 '14 200w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. Fair haven and foul strand. *$1.25 (2½c) McBride, Nast & co.

A14-2917

The quarantine doctor and the village postmaster were friends and on Saturday nights when the two had settled down for their weekly visit the doctor used to draw on the experiences of his long life for stories that would illustrate his pessimistic philosophy. Three of these stories, all dealing with marital unhappiness, are told in this book.

Ath 1914,1:sup870 Je 20 430w

"The worst thing about the Scandinavian misogynist is that he occasionally says something that has an ugly resemblance to the truth."

— Ind 80:105 O 19 '14 60w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. Growth of a soul; tr. by Claud Field. *$1.25 (1½c) McBride, Nast & co.

A14-847

Another human document which takes its place beside "The confession of a fool," "Legends" and "The inferno." It traces Strindberg's experiences as a student at Upsala university, a private tutor, a doctor's assistant, an actor, a dramatist, a journalist and a landscape painter, through the course of which one is painfully aware of the temperamental revolt which his morbid nature only increased as the years went on.

Ath 1913,2:659 D 6 30w

"Has both psychological and biographical interest."

+ Outlook 107:561 Jl 4 '14 250w

"An interesting account of a divided soul."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 25 '14 330w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. On the seaboard; tr. by Elizabeth Clarke Westergren. *$1.25 (1½c) Stewart & Kidd

13-24786

A story of the East Skerry islands where Axel Borg, a man of vast scientific learning, is sent by the Academy of agriculture to make an investigation of the stromling fisheries. He lives here as an alien among the people who cannot understand him. He falls in love but feels himself degraded by association with one of an inferior sex. He could neither lift her up to his level nor sink himself to hers. Hence "it only remained for him to make himself double, split himself in two, create a personality, intelligible and easy of access to her, play the duped lover, learn to admire her inferiority, get used to a rôle as she liked to have it, and so in silence live the other half of his life in secret and to himself." The story ends when, in a mad frenzy, he sails out to sea in an open boat, to be heard of no more. A translation of this same work by Ellie Schleussner has been published with the title, "By the open sea."

"Powerful romance. Throughout the book the translator, in her straining after literalness, has overlooked English idiom and committed many grammatical errors and rhetorical faults."

+ — Chaut 72:638 Ap 11 '14 100w

Reviewed by A. G. S. Josephson
Dial 56:302 Ap 1 '14 250w

"The love element is treated with too great frankness."

+ — Outlook 106:423 F 21 '14 100w

"This version is characterized by the fortunate use of idiom, a delicacy in the choice of words, and great beauty in the rendering of descriptive passages, the translation itself often attaining the melody of poetry. As much of the mystery of the sea, of its curious life, its hidden treasures, its undiscovered secrets as was possible for a man to gather into words, the great Scandinavian genius has gathered within the pages of this singular book. You may read and re-read it and every reading will fascinate the mind from a fresh angle."

+ R of Rs 49:252 F '14 450w

STRINDBERG, AUGUST. Plays: Swanwhite, Advent, The storm; tr. by Edith and Warner Oland. II *$1.50 (3c) Luce, J. W.

Of the three plays by Strindberg that are included in this volume the translators say that they are representative of the "marvelously productive decade of 1897 to 1907 that followed his crushing mental and spiritual experiences and culminated in the breakdown in 1896." The first of the three, Swanwhite, is a fairy play, written under the influence of Maeterlinck. Advent is a mystery play imbued with Swedenborgian philosophy. The Storm is one of the so-called chamber plays, written for production at the Intimate theatre in Stockholm.

Reviewed by A. G. S. Josephson

+ Dial 56:303 Ap 1 '14 100w

"The translation is all too obviously selection, stiff and un-English. But the selection makes an interesting volume, showing the many-sidedness of Strindberg's strange genius."

+ — N Y Times 19:307 Jl 12 '14 130w

"These past months it has begun to seem rather dreadfully, that we are to have Strindberg, like the poor, always with us. One was glad at first to have made his acquaintance; but the suspicion of an ultimate boredom is creeping in." L. W. Dodd

+ — Yale R n s 3:597 Ap '14 150w

STRINGER, ARTHUR (JOHN ARBUTHNOTT). Open water. *$1 Lane

14-18364

Rhyme and exact metre have been abandoned in this volume of poems. For their effect they depend on rhythm alone. In a foreword the author defends his position, pointing out that the use of unrhymed cadences is but a return to more primitive forms, and offers an interesting contribution to the discussion of the technic of poetry.

"The introduction to 'Open water' is as important a piece of critical writing in English as I know upon the subject of which it treats, yet Mr. Stringer utterly fails to embody in reality of compelling conviction the elements of poetry which these delicate experiments in poetry undoubtedly contain. Set beside the best work in Amy Lowell's new volume 'Sword blades and poppy seed,' in which 'vers libre' is made exquisitely flexible and yet does not lose its firmness of texture, these poems make a poor showing." W. S. B.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ja 16 '15 200w

"Mr. Stringer's practice of 'vers libre' is not a convincing exemplification of the virtue of his theory." A. D. Ficke

— Dial 58:11 Ja 1 '15 930w

"While the verse in this little volume is, on the whole, unaffected in style, the ideas exprest are not especially original."

+ — Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 60w

"We have before us some sixty short lyrics, five or six of which blend horror with incisiveness; the rest are graceful, melancholy, uninteresting—brief, pretty phrases sifting down one by one like leaves or snowflakes, with a leisurely and desultory inconsequence. I should say that the unrhymed verse in these poems was perfectly legitimate, perfectly inoffensive, not markedly effectual, and the reverse of significant." O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 100:139 F 4 '15 250w

R of Rs 51:116 Ja '15 200w

STRONG, THERON GEORGE. Landmarks of a lawyer's lifetime. *$2.50 (2c) Dodd 14-5979

This record, says the author in an introductory note "consists of testimony relating to personages and events at the bar of the city of New York, during the past forty years, from the view-point of a casual observer. It does not profess to have the merit of biography nor accuracy of history, but is rather in the nature of freehand sketches of notable lawyers and interesting incidents, amid the passing show of the courts." Many of the chapters deal with interesting personalities, among them, Justice Field, William M. Evarts, George F. Comstock, and William F. Howe. Others describe Some old-time lawyers; The modern lawyer; The modern law office, etc.

Reviewed by F. T. Hill

+ Bookm 39:332 My '14 570w

"Mr. Strong's book holds much that is of practical suggestion to young lawyers and introduces several famous and unusual characters."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 8 '14 500w

"In a book so large as Mr. Strong's and presumably written rapidly in scant moments of leisure, errors of inadvertence are all but inevitable."

+ — Dial 56:304 Ap 1 '14 350w

"There is not among books known to us any giving legal reminiscences quite like it, or quite so readable."

+ Lit D 48:1119 My 9 '14 500w

"Mr. Strong writes in an easy and somewhat discursive style, not pretending to make a complete or searching analysis of the men on whom he touches, but glancing pleasantly at one trait after another. Some of his anecdotes are new, and he re-tells the old ones with un-failing zest. His personal chapters are agreeable reading, even if they do not add much to our knowledge of the men with whom he deals."

+ Nation 98:435 Ap 16 '14 530w

"His book, in a word, is a serious book, written with a light hand, concerning a very interesting profession and some of its most interesting practitioners."

+ Outlook 107:263 My 30 '14 1300w

+ R of Rs 49:632 My '14 40w

"A piece of interesting writing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 170w

STRUNSKY, ROSE. Abraham Lincoln. il 2 *$2.25 Macmillan (Eng ed 15-733)

"Eschewing the traditional view of Lincoln as the great emancipator of slaves and opponent of secession, the author seeks to explain the greatness of Lincoln and the continued worship of his memory by the fact that he embodied the spirit of a generation hungry for land, and consequently antagonistic to slavery because the large plantation blocked the way to the acquisition of small homesteads. . . . In the light of this theory, Lincoln becomes the opponent of monopoly. . . . And since, in the fifty years that have elapsed since the civil war, the country has become prevalingly capitalistic, the name of Lincoln is invoked to-day not for the things he did, but from love of the individual freedom for which he contended."—Nation

"As an illustration of the economic interpretation of history the book repays perusal, though it must be said that the interesting thesis which we have briefly summarized, while expounded at length in the introduction and in some concluding chapters, is not always clearly evident in the narrative itself."

+ — Nation 100:148 F 4 '15 270w

"Miss Strunsky claims that she has a new view of the President, and we may admit there is considerable originality in her presentation of his aims. Doubtless her theory has much truth in it, but it can only occupy a corner in the account of the causes which led up to the civil war."

+ — Sat R 118:540 N 21 '14 200w

STRUNSKY, SIMEON. Belshazzar court; or, Village life in New York city. *$1.25 (4c) Holt 14-20792

We have been called a nation of villagers, and Mr. Strunsky in these sketches discourses in a friendly way on some of our village characteristics. He writes from the point of view of the man who has an uptown apartment, with rent just a trifle higher than he can afford, in Belshazzar court, and who travels daily to his place of business in Park Row via the subway. Occasionally the point of view of Emmeline is called in by way of reinforcement or contrast. In general it is with the street, the show, the game, and the night life of the city that he is concerned, but now and again it is the young son Harold who offers a fruitful subject for meditation.

+ A L A Bkl 11:212 Ja '15

"His book has that quality which is becoming rare: it is companionable." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:567 Ja '15 140w

"By his very lightness of style and his gentle grace of humor he makes 'Belshazzar court' a genuine interpretation of a place, a people and a life whose spirit has been utterly missed by many an ultra serious and portentous analyst." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 14 '14 1250w

+ Dial 58:22 Ja 1 '15 420w

"Few have the power or the inclination to see in the complexities of modern city life the simplicity and kindness of human nature, essentially the same everywhere, but that is the chief charm of these essays."

+ Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 60w

Reviewed by J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:405 D 14 '14 80w

"The rare quality of the book is not so much the humor as the suggestive quality of the thought."

+ Nation 99:693 D 10 '14 270w

"Delightful essays about New York city."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:303 D '14 40w

STRUNSKY, SIMEON. Post-impressions; an irresponsible chronicle. *$1 (2c) Dodd 14-7255

A series of short essays on many and varied subjects. The author discourses lightly, but with insight and with humor, on The contemplative life; Summer reading; Education: Low-grade citizens; Academic freedom; Sheath-gowns; Brick and mortar; Realism; Art; and The pace of life.

"The sketches are slight and of uneven interest."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:20 S '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 220w

"Admirable fooling will be found in plenty between the two covers of Mr. Strunsky's little book."

+ Dial 56:389 My 1 '14 200w

+ — Ind 78:174 Ap 27 '14 70w

"What strikes this reviewer is the number of pieces that he has marked for reading and repeated re-reading aloud on occasions when the conversation of chance groups by his fireside falls a little flat.

STRUNSKY, SIMEON—Continued.

+ Nation 98:608 My 21 '14 300w

"Mr. Strunsky is seldom sufficiently acute to be called brilliant, but he is clever, deft and amusing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 25 '14 130w

STUBBS, MATTIE WILMA. How Europe was won for Christianity. il *$1.50 Revell 13-22498

"The author gives us a vivid description of how Christianity, bit by bit, conquered Europe through the patient efforts of these pioneers of the church. Avoiding as far as possible the traditional and miraculous, she has made her characters natural human beings, with the result that their lives of consecration and devotion form the greatest incentives to present day idealism. . . . She deals with many early missionaries whose names are not familiar to the general reader. Considerable attention is given to the conversion of England, Ireland, Scotland and Scandinavia, a work which is full of dramatic and picturesque events."

—Boston Transcript

"This passing of the twilight gods before the dawn of a new faith is a theme of absorbing interest; and in discussing it Miss Stubbs has proved equal to her opportunity. Her style is touched with a quiet enthusiasm which carries the reader's interest and awakens his deepest sympathies."

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 13 '13 250w

"It contains passages of unusual interest. Its facts are arranged in telling fashion. The book is a valuable addition to the rapidly enlarging modern library of missionary literature."

+ Chaut 72:302 D 13 '13 250w

"In substance accurate and in style not unpleasing."

+ Educ R 47:422 Ap '14 30w

N Y Sun p5 O 4 '13 100w

N Y Times 18:564 O 19 '13 90w

STUCK, REV. HUDSON. Ascent of Denali (Mount McKinley). il *$1.75 Scribner 14-3990

An account of the first ascent of the highest peak in North America. The man to accomplish this feat was not a practiced mountaineer or scientist, but a dignitary of the church, Archdeacon Stuck, who had served for ten years in the Yukon. "So well had Archdeacon Stuck planned his expedition that he avoided many of the mistakes and consequent hardships undergone by his predecessors. He met, of course, with the usual mishaps. . . . The earthquake, of which Belmore Browne speaks in his book on the Parker expedition, both helped and hindered. The story of the journey to the mountain and back furnishes the most interesting reading imaginable." (Boston Transcript)

"Excellent photographs, helpful to an understanding of the formation of the mountain, few scientific data; no index. Much less description of the country than in Browne's 'Conquest of Mount McKinley.'"

+ — A L A Bkl 10:319 Ap '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 21 '14 1450w

+ Dial 56:427 My 16 '14 350w

+ Lit D 48:742 Ap 11 '14 170w

+ Nation 98:435, Ap 16 '14 620w

+ N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 120w

"Modestly and with restraint Archdeacon Stuck tells the memorable story of his ascent of Mount McKinley."

+ — Outlook 106:504 F 28 '14 100w

"Taken altogether this is a work which cannot fail to take a permanent place on the shelf with the famous volumes of pioneer exploration, volumes that range from Dr. Kane's 'Arctic explorations' to Stanley and Sven Hedin and Shackleton." F: T. Cooper

+ Pub W 85:1351 Ap 18 '14 600w

+ R of Rs 49:505 Ap '14 200w

Reviewed by Dora Keen

+ Yale R n s 4:212 O '14 1400w

STUCK, REV. HUDSON. Ten thousand miles with a dog sled. il *$3.50 (3c) Scribner 14-9357

A record of sled journeys over the winter trails in the interior of Alaska, chiefly in the great valley of the Yukon and its tributaries. On one hand it is a skillfully drawn picture of ice-bound regions in all their silent majesty, with many an illustration to add concreteness to the physical attractions of the regions; on another, it is a testimonial to the strength of hardy and adventurous men and their dogs in meeting courageously the deprivations and hardships of unyielding cold and snow; while, thruout, it throws light upon the aboriginal population and the problems of civil government that need solution in order to put an end, for instance, to the violation of liquor laws which brings in its wake debauchery and crime.

+ A L A Bkl 11:27 S '14

"Admirable book, in which there is not a dull page."

+ Ath 1914,2:498 N 14 970w

"Bids fair to become a classic of mid-winter travel in the far north."

+ Dial 57:144 S 1 '14 400w

"Grippingly told story."

+ Ind 78:289 My 18 '14 30w

+ Lit D 49:1191 D 12 '14 100w

"It is to be hoped that this volume will be widely read, for it is desirable to keep in mind that there are other important interests in Alaska besides coal veins, gold mines, and the building of government railways."

+ Nation 99:76 Jl 16 '14 620w

"Whoever wants to learn the truth about conditions and prospects, social, industrial, commercial, as to both Indians and whites, in the Alaskan interior can be informed and at the same time well entertained by reading 'Ten thousand miles with a dog sled.'"

+ N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 320w

"This volume is even more readable than Dr. Stuck's 'Ascent of Denali.'"

+ Outlook 107:369 Je 13 '14 180w

"His book is well stored with information of a most practical and definite kind."

+ R of Rs 49:762 Je '14 230w

"It is not only an intensely interesting narrative of battling with the elements and of long journeys in the midst of the Alaskan winter, but it has the further value of giving both a sympathetic sketch of the Alaskan Indians and, beyond that, some highly important comments upon the future of Alaskan development."

—Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 1450w

STUDIES in southern history and politics; inscribed to William Archibald Dunning by his former pupils, the authors. *$2.50 (2c) Columbia univ. press 15-1494

These essays embody the results of historical research on the part of a number of scholars. A partial list of the subjects treated follows: Deportation and colonization; an attempted solution of the race problem; The literary movement for secession; The frontier and secession; The judicial interpretation of the Confederate constitution; Southern legislation in respect to freedmen, 1865-66; Carpet-baggers in the United States senate; Grant's southern policy; The Federal enforcement acts; Negro suffrage in the South; Some phases of educational history in the South since 1865.

STURGEON, MARY C. Women of the classics. 2 il *$2.50 Crowell

Six women from Homer, four from Æschylus, two from Sophocles, four from Euripides, and one from Virgil are treated in this book. In her introduction the author calls attention to the fact that love as we know it in modern literature, plays little or no part in the lives of these earlier heroines. In reading their stories, therefore, "we must be prepared for a change from a warmth and glow of romance to the tonic air of a more austere idealism." She treats each subject with dignity, and the illustrations, beautifully reproduced from paintings, are in keeping with the high character of the text.

"Miss Sturgeon presents her heroines and gives to each a personality and a history that make them more distinct and real than they have hitherto been in the minds of most readers."

+ Dial 57:464 D 1 '14 150w

"Merits attention for its full-page photogravures from originals."

+ Nation 99:695 D 10 '14 20w

N Y Times 20:11 Ja 10 '15 100w

"Pleasant book."

+ Spec 113:175 Ag 1 '14 40w

SUFFIELD, CHARLES HARBORD, 5th baron.

My memories, 1830-1913; ed. by Alys Louth. il *$4 Brentano's (Eng ed 14-4502)

"Lord Suffield's book of memories derives its distinction from the author's long and honorable association with the British royal family, and especially from his unique relationship with that member of the family who, upon the death of Queen Victoria, ascended the throne. The author's attachment to the court started in 1865, when he assumed the duties of Lord-in-waiting to Queen Victoria; four years later the Queen informed him, with tears in her eyes, that the Prince of Wales had asked for him and she had consented to give him up. . . . Then began a friendship and companionship that lasted until the parties to it were separated by King Edward's death. . . . The probability is that no other man was so close to Edward, and that no other knew him so well, and for this reason Suffield's estimate of Edward is extremely interesting."—N Y Times

+ Ath 1914.1:371 Mr 14 650w

"Fascinating volume." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 22 '13 400w

+ N Y Times 19:31 Ja 25 '14 1000w

"His 'Memories' breathe kindness, sincerity and loyalty."

+ R of Rs 49:369 Mr '14 80w

+ Sat R 116:718 D 6 '13 220w

SUKLOFF, MARIE. Life-story of a Russian exile; tr. by Gregory Yarros. il *$1.50 (3c) Century 14-19686

A gripping narrative of the experiences of a Russian peasant girl who at the age of thirteen, after a childhood of bitter poverty, becomes a wage earner and has her eyes opened to the wrongs of her people. She turns revolutionist and is exiled to Siberia; she escapes, is arrested again, and this time is sentenced to Siberia for life. Her chronicle tells of illness and suffering, of another escape, and how, after she finds herself well away from the scene of heartache and physical suffering, she is consumed with the desire to go back and throw herself again into the unequal struggle.

Boston Transcript p9 Ja 2 '15 350w

+ Dial 58:54 Ja 16 '15 650w

+ Ind 80:290 N 23 '14 60w

Nation 100:119 Ja 28 '15 120w

"It is well for Americans to read such books as these."

+ Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 80w

"One closes the book loving the woman." M. A. Hopkins

+ Pub W 87:182 Ja 16 '15 670w

"It is a remarkable story."

+ R of Rs 50:754 D '14 130w

"It is difficult to realize that this book is a translation. Mr. Yarros, himself a revolutionist, has given us the real Miss Sukloff. Together they have imparted much more than a sense of the author's sufferings. They have given us a glimpse of that strength of spirit that carried her through an unequal struggle and left her without bitterness or hate. This is Miss Sukloff's distinction." W. D. Lane

+ Survey 33:338 D 26 '14 620w

SULLIVAN, FRANCIS WILLIAM (ELWELL)
LAWRENCE, pseud.). Children of banishment. *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-15402

Of the many stories of the Canadian north-land this is one of the best, for its people are real and the elements of crude melodrama are not emphasized. When Dick Bream meets Allan and Eloise Mackenzie his first impression of them is that they are his own kind of people, people of education and refinement. During an enforced companionship of a fortnight, the impression is deepened; he is captivated by Mackenzie's charm of manner and by the sweet common-sense and simplicity of Eloise, Mackenzie's wife. The two men enter into a business partnership in a lumber deal, and the recognition on the part of Bream of Mackenzie's trickery comes together with the revelation of his love for Eloise. The story is played out to the end in an isolated lumber camp.

"The author reveals strong emotional power in this book."

+ Ath 1914.2:649 D 19 100w

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 150w

"He has written an interesting, dramatic story of a phase of life that heretofore has seldom fared as well as it deserved at the hands of the novelists."

+ N Y Times 19:371 S 6 '14 380w

SULLIVAN, JAMES WILLIAM. Markets for the people. *$1.25 (1½c) Macmillan 13-22312

As instruments for the reduction of the high cost of living, the author recommends the push cart and the public market. He has made a study of the problem as it presents itself in cities of America and of the attempts to solve it here and abroad, and while in proposing his remedy he is concerned chiefly with New York conditions, his conclusions have a broader application and can be adapted for use in any center of population. He advocates: "1, Ambulant street vending, free to all comers; 2, Open-air markets, to be held for a few hours semi-weekly or tri-weekly in street or park or other public space . . . free to all vendors either of foodstuffs or manufactured articles of household or personal use; 3, Existing public markets to be used to the fullest extent."

"He has produced a book that is a real contribution to the literature of the subject,—a literature, be it said, that is so singularly meager, scrappy, and inadequate, that every real contribution to it is welcome." E: M. Hartwell

+ Am Econ R 4:137 Mr '14 700w

A L A Bkl 10:320 Ap '14

Reviewed by C. L. King

Ann Am Acad '53:341 My '14 750w

"The book contains many references to the situation in Boston and other American cities, and its value is by no means limited to the metropolis. The style is direct and colloquial, and there are abundant references to documents of value to serious students of the subject."

+ Boston Transcript p11 N 18 '13 520w

Ind 78:44 Je 15 '14 60w

"He discusses his problem with rare intelligence and presents a scheme for its solution which, to say the very least, is practical and helpful."

+ N Y Times 19:61 F 8 '14 800w

"A thoughtful treatment of a vexed question from the consumer's standpoint is worth our attention. The author writes clearly and sensibly."

+ Outlook 106:320 F 7 '14 160w

R of Rs 49:379 Mr '14 140w

"Interesting and instructive volume." A. B. Hazard

+ Survey 32:437 J1 25 '14 320w

"A timely and useful book."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:57 Mr '14 60w

SULLIVAN, MARGARET DAVIES. Goddess of the dawn. il *$1.25 (1½c) Dillingham

14-2478

A fresh and charming young southern girl is the heroine of this story. She is introduced to us in her young girlhood, just as she is looking forward to four school years in one of the northern colleges for women. These college years are described with vivacity, as is Doris's entrance into society. Then follows an unfortunate marriage, widowhood, and with the remeeting with an old lover at the Mardi Gras ball, promise of the true marriage for which she was destined.

"The author's descriptions of life in New Orleans are her most convincing studies."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 370w

Nation 98:266 Mr 12 '14 190w

"A book of real appeal. 'Mammy Rose,' an ancient colored nurse, will prove to be a character not soon forgotten. Indeed, all Mrs. Sullivan's pictured people are virile and well drawn."

+ N Y Times 19:59 F 8 '14 450w

SUMICHRAST, FREDERICK CESAR JOHN
MARTIN SAMUEL ROUSSY DE. Americans and the Britons. *$1.75 (1½c) Appleton

14-19366

The author, an Englishman who for a number of years held a professorship at Harvard, gives his impressions of America. He writes of: Manners, Patriotism, Democracy and militarism, Government, Law, Marriage, Woman, Art, Education, etc., and thru all of his chapters there runs a critical examination of democracy. He believes in democracy, and looks on the United States as the foremost exponent of the democratic principle in practice, making no attempt however to gloss over weaknesses and failures. At times he is severely critical; the chapters in which he gives most whole-hearted praise to things American are those on Woman and Education.

"A dull book, of fair intent, but distinguished by no insight."

— Ind 80:381 D 7 '14 130w

"Safely written and carefully considered work."

+ N Y Times 19:573 D 20 '14 1650w

"Prof. de Sumichrast is able to pass beyond the stage of mere outward observation to that of inward questioning. He has learned many things which, on the surface, are utterly unlike, between the two countries, England and America, but which in reality are not far apart. He has also recognized that many other things whose purely external similarity has caused them to pass unnoticed, are in very essence antagonistic."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 650w

SUMNER, WILLIAM GRAHAM. Challenge of facts, and other essays; ed. by Albert Gallowsy Keller. il *$2.25 (2c) Yale univ. press

14-20793

Another large volume of the unpublished papers of the late Professor Sumner, is now issued in uniform binding with "War and other essays" and "Earth-hunger and other essays." The title paper in this collection is an essay on socialism. Among the others that follow are: Industrial war; The demand for men; What the "social question" is; Consequences of increased social power; What is the "proletariat"? Federal legislation on railroads; Legislation by clamor; The state as an "ethical person."

SUMNER, WILLIAM GRAHAM. Earth-hunger, and other essays; ed. by Albert Gallowsy Keller. il *$2.25 (2c) Yale univ. press

13-25918

The late William Graham Sumner was for many years professor of political and social sciences at Yale university. The essays and lectures that make up this volume were written at various times during his working years. Some of them have not before seen publication. While much of the substance of the book was written many years ago the editor says of it, that it "has not grown old, and is not destined to grow old." He says: "It has been impressed upon me, as I have become more familiar with his essays of twenty and thirty years ago that the issues which he treated, as he treated them, are always and everywhere with us. . . . It was given him to seize upon social issues in their essential and vital bearings; the blade of his insight never stuck in the husk of a matter." (Preface)

"Thought-provoking and representative of the author's sociological philosophy."

+ A L A Bkl 10:282 Mr '14

"No one can read these essays without being wiser."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:103 F '14 400w

"It is fitting that all the work of such a man be preserved in form accessible to future students. The editor is to be thanked therefore for the collection. He has done his part well."

+ Ann Am Acad 52:237 Mr '14 150w

"There is no need of questioning his meaning at any page in these essays, for he is close to the heart of his subject in each instance and speaks with the directness of one who knows his reasons and the best way to get them said."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 350w

+ Dial 56:349 Ap 16 '14 150w

"Stimulus to thought, and to clear thought, is found on almost every page. We earnestly commend this book to those who wish to sharpen their vision and to broaden their horizon in respect to current social problems."

+ Educ R 47:530 My '14 110w

"This book will set the reader thinking, and the very points at which the author's views challenge him most boldly will probably be where his thinking is most profitable."

+ Nation 98:14 Ja 1 '14 600w

"A collection of essays from such an intellect is like a strong wind—though it bites, it exhilarates."

+ Nation 99:136 Jl 30 '14 1350w

+ Pol Sci Q 29:551 S '14 250w

R of Rs 49:376 Mr '14 90w

"The book is controversial, but it is a model of controversial writing."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 500w

Reviewed by J. Q. Dealey

+ Yale R n s 4:194 O '14 1050w

SUTTNER, BERTHA FELICIE SOPHIE (KIN-SKY), freifrau von. When thoughts will soar; auth. tr. by Nathan Haskell Dole. *$1.50 (1c) Houghton

14-11353

A posthumous novel by the author of "Die waffen nieder" who was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1905. The spirit of her writings is anti-war and she had a large share in the international peace movement. "The whole plot, as well as the connecting links in the story, is to be found in the thread of a love story furnished by the poet Chlodwig Helmer, and the feminist Franka Garlett, both of them Austrians. Through this means, the author has the opportunity to speak very frankly in regard to her ideas upon the woman movement. They are refreshingly broad and inspiring, for she does not venture into the much-discussed realm of the suffrage and the profession. Through the mouth of Franka Garlett she urges women to learn to think, to cease to be parasites, to extend their interests till they embrace all the affairs that are of interest to men. When women are fully prepared, she believes that all gates will be ready to open to them." (Boston Transcript)

A L A Bkl 11:124 N '14

Ath 1914,2:348 O 10 200w

"In spite of the fact that so many serious ideas are embodied in this story, it succeeds in escaping the charge of being heavy because of its humorous picture of the old Austrian aristocracy." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 850w

"Her last novel, like her earlier ones, is bound to gain our respect; but as her vision is too far from the immediate present, so her story is too far from immediate reality to capture our interest spontaneously." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:203 S 16 '14 470w

"Whatever of literary merit the original may have had has been lost in the translation."

+ Ind 79:29 J1 6 '14 650w

+ Lit D 49:199 Ag 1 '14 270w

"In spite of the bombastic language, the sickly sentimental episodes, the childish delight in descriptions that add nothing to the story, there is a breath of that whole-souled idealism that pervaded the pleadings of the Baroness for international peace."

+ Nation 99:193 Ag 13 '14 370w

N Y Times 19:290 Je 28 '14 350w

"It is a wholesome love story, full of romance and elevated sentiment."

+ R of Rs 50:248 Ag '14 200w

Spec 113:598 O 31 '14 30w

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 23 '14 580w

SWANWICK, MRS. HELENA M. (SICKERT). Future of the women's movement; with an introd. by Mrs. Fawcett. *$1 Macmillan

E14-193

A book "presenting a sane, moderate view of what that movement means to the average suffragist. . . . Mrs. Swanwick would have done well to omit the word 'Future' from the title of her book, for only in one paragraph does she mention anything but the present, except when she traces the main causes of the awakening of women. These she deals with as education and the industrial revolution, both of which placed women in conditions similar to those of men. . . . The two things which Mrs. Swanwick names as being desired and striven after by women are 'knowledge and scope.'"—Ath

"Careful account of economic conditions from a very English viewpoint, but worth consideration elsewhere."

+ A L A Bkl 11:157 D '14

"The common sense of Mrs. Swanwick will appeal to the average reader. In fact this is her most characteristic quality. We deprecate the occasional want of dignity in dealing with the subject (due apparently to a retention of the platform style), and consider that the importance given to the mere suffrage is somewhat out of proportion."

+ Ath 1913,2:551 N 15 880w

"A sane, well-balanced, and cogent discussion of the subject from the constitutional standpoint. Five chapters dealing with the economic problem are admirable in their penetration, restraint, and foresight." R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:444 Ja '14 80w

"From time to time the author has remembered she has been asked to become one of a series of prophets, and consequently gives us somewhat dull visions of the lines along which the women's movement will develop." Nancy Catty

+ Int J Ethics 25:123 O '14 250w

SWEET, HENRY. Collected papers, arranged by H. C. Wyld. *$5.75 Oxford 13-26477

"The articles, generally well-known and substantial contributions to knowledge, have been divided into five sections: on the principles of the study of languages, the progress of linguistic study (with special reference to Germanic philology), the history of English, Shelley's nature-poetry, and phonetics and accounts of living tongues. Sweet was before all a phonologist, and the keynote of four sections is struck on p. 35: 'The living spoken form of every language should be made the foundation of its study,' with 'scientific phonetics as the indispensable foundation of all study of language.'"—Ath

Ath 1913,2:591 N 22 20w

"This collection of the miscellaneous papers of a great scholar testifies to his remarkably wide interests and erudition."

+ Ath 1914,2:70 J1 18 1050w

"Will accordingly be welcomed by students of this class of subjects. We know of no contribution to the study of language that within the same compass leaves such an impression of power as the paper entitled 'Words, logic, and grammar.'"

+ Nation 99:197 Ag 13 '14 250w

SWIFT, EDGAR JAMES. Learning and doing.<sup>10</sup> (Childhood and youth ser.) Il *$1 (2c) Bobbs 14-12490

The author believes that the principle of learning by doing should be applied to all school studies, not confined to a few, such as manual training and some of the sciences. "The instruction from teacher and books should accompany or follow the achievements of the pupils in the things they are trying to do. In this way instruction assumes its proper rôle, that of putting meaning into the work in which the pupils are engaged." (Preface) The chapters of the book take up: The revolt from monotony; Efficient teaching; Getting results; Progress in learning; Economy in learning; Habit in learning and achievement; New demands on the schools.

"Will have a wide appeal to laymen."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 20 '15 130w

"This book exhibits the virtues and at the same time the difficulties of a series of brief, popular treatises on education. Many of the author's opinions appear to be mere assertions of individual belief because in a volume of this compass it is necessary to leave out the evidence which lies back of these views. At the same time the statement of these views undoubtedly has some value in that it will call the attention of many readers to the changes that are going forward in modern education."

+ El School J 15:14 S '14 220w

SWIFT, JONATHAN. Correspondence of Jonathan Swift; ed. by F. Elrington Ball. v 4-6 ea *$3.50 Macmillan (11-5542)

In volumes 4 and 5 of Swift's correspondence some five hundred letters are added to those previously published. These cover the period from 1727 to 1737. Gay, Pope, Arbuthnot, and Bolingbroke are among the correspondents. Volume 6 brings the edition to a close.

A L A Bkl 10:195 Ja '14 (Review of v 4 and 5)

"Dr. Ball's annotation needs no further praise from us. It has established a reputation. Our ungrateful task is rather to see if there be any joints in his armour, but the chinks are scarcely perceptible."

+ Ath 1913,1:207 F 22 1350w (Review of v 4)

+ Nation 100:84 Ja 21 '15 370w (Review of v 6)

"Of a good thing there may be too much, and we confess that Dr. Ball is overdoing the dose, which his exasperating and unnecessary footnotes render more and more unpalatable. The dipper wants no footnotes; to the consecutive reader they are either an insult or mere teasing. There is a monotony about Swift's letters which will be found to harp on three strings, his health, his isolation and loss of influence, and the necessity of getting money for old age."

— Sat R 115:779 Je 21 '13 900w (Review of v 4)

+ Spec 110:618 Ap 12 '13 1750w (Review of v 4)

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR. On the staircase. *$1.25 (1c) Doran 14-8475

Mr. Swinnerton believes in family life and in the family as a unit. The characters in his story, the Amberleys and the Gretttons are seen always against a family background. Contrasted with these happily situated people is Adrian Velancourt who makes a wreck of his life by marrying his landlady's daughter just because he is alone and lonesome. The duel of wits and hearts between Joseph Amberley and Barbara Grettton gives the story its grain of plot. Barbara is a modern young woman who puts a high value on independence, and Joseph is a young man with some surviving Victorian ideals.

SWINNERTON, FRANK ARTHUR—Continued.

"The characters stand out from the first with admirable distinctness, although the author is inclined to play with the theme of repulsion as a prelude to attraction perhaps a little to excess"

+ — Ath 1914.1:sup472 Mr 28 250w

"A novel that clearly reveals Mr. Swinnerton's power to endow fiction with life and to visualize the human beings he puts into it."

E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 7 '14 130w

+ Nation 99:608 N 19 '14 200w

"He presents his philosophy and his story with courage and earnestness. But he is not unduly 'depressing.' And he is not afraid of amusing observation, and bright humor, and good cheer."

+ N Y Times 19:411 O 4 '14 500w

+ Outlook 108:603 N 11 '14 110w

"An exceedingly clever book, with moments in which we cease to think of his cleverness and find ourselves wholly engrossed in the fortunes of his characters. This is an experience for which readers and reviewers cannot be too grateful, to say nothing of the fact that 'The staircase' is a novel which deals honestly with life, and is yet entirely free from grime or slime."

+ Spec 112:616 Ap 11 '14 1000w

SWITZER, MAURICE. Letters of a self-made failure. il *$1 (4½c) Small 14-17626

A series of letters written to a younger brother who is just starting life in New York. After the variety of advice usually handed out to young men in that position, some of his admonitions are refreshing. The book is addressed to those who think "they have missed the shining mark." "It is not a guide to success, but rather a brief to prove that failure is often psychological; that every man has a place in the world, and that it is within his power and ability to ornament that place, provided he is not trying to be somebody else."

"Many young men will enjoy and may well profit by the commonsense views presented."

+ A L A Bkl 11:97 N '14

"Homely truths written in picturesque language, are excellent reading; and this little book ought to appeal to a large circle of business and professional men."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 300w

"The volume should have many readers."

+ N Y Times 19:430 O 11 '14 140w

SYMONS, ARTHUR. Knave of hearts, 1894-1908. *$1.50 Lane A14-1019

"When you read the work of Arthur Symons, the distinguished British poet, essayist, and critic, it is well to remember that he is a Cornishman, for this fact will explain in a measure the quality in his prose and poetry that differentiates it from the general type of British literary artistry. A Druid shadow hangs over him; a 'dream' has held him in thrall." His 'Knave of hearts,' poetry written between 1894 and 1908, contains original lyrics and translations from Paul Verlaine."—R of Rs

"Mr. Symons's chief contribution to poetry comes of the crowning touch of delicacy and surprise which he brings to his craftsmanship, of a command of gradations in the rendering of feeling so subtle that he is as much at his ease in translating Catullus or Verlaine as in expressing his own thought."

+ Ath 1913.2:620 N 29 400w

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

Bookm 39:194 Ap '14 30w

"Never in his whole career has he given us an individual volume so full of his distinguished qualities employed upon more acceptable themes than in 'Knave of hearts.'" W S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 300w

Reviewed by W: M. Payne

Dial 56:66 Ja 16 '14 150w

"No reader of Mr. Arthur Symons's 'Knave of hearts' can entertain a doubt of its author's rare poetic accomplishments, his possession of subtle melody, phrasal suggestiveness, and a vibrant sensibility which reaches the nerves, if not the hearts, of his hearers. The author uses and abuses the word 'dream,' and his poems suggest that half-waking state in which realities float dimly upon a surface of hallucinations."

+ — Nation 98:472 Ap 23 '14 370w

"Though there is decadent and hopeless poetry in 'Knave of hearts,' there is also noble poetry."

+ — N Y Times 19:325 Jl 26 '14 380w

"In his poems, as in Verlaine's, the reader finds the same vivid descriptive passages, the moments of intense sensuous emotion, the evocation of evanescent sounds and colors, the complete surrender to moods, and the simplicity and transparency of a mature mind that has rediscovered the wisdom of a child."

+ R of Rs 49:245 F '14 320w

+ Sat R 116:781 D 20 '13 950w

"Like many another poet of whom the merely sensuous side of beauty has made a lackey, Symons fails to attain heights of a more rarified atmosphere. In brooding on the passing sweetness of earth, he fails to perceive the abiding beauty of heaven."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 Jl 9 '14 420w

T

TAFT, HELEN (HERRON) (MRS. WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT). Recollections of full years. il *$3.50 (2½c) Dodd 14-19627

The first chapter of Mrs. Taft's volume of recollections is given up to a brief account of her girlhood in Cincinnati up to the time of her marriage. The titles of the chapters that follow—Cincinnati and Washington; To the Philippines; In Japan; First impressions of Manila, etc.—show how full of interest is the story she has to tell. The last four chapters of the book are devoted to Washington and the White House and the record comes to a close with Mr. Taft's retirement from the presidency.

"Too expensive for small libraries."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:218 Ja '15

"Her book will receive and deserve a wide reading. The author has an interesting story to tell and she knows how to tell it." J. T. W., Jr.

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 7 '14 1300w

"The whole book is delightful in its subject-matter and its treatment."

+ Lit D 49:1191 D 12 '14 300w

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD. Anti-trust act and the Supreme court. *$1.25 (4c) Harper 14-17508

A discussion of the Sherman law and the proposed amendments to it. His purpose, as stated by the author is "to set forth in a summary way the present legal status of trusts and combinations in this country." He attempts to "make clear the law against trusts and monopolies as it grew up under the common law, as it was changed by statute, as it has been enforced by the courts, and as it is to-day." (Chapter I)

"The book well deserves a careful reading by anyone who intends to have an opinion on the trust question."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 160w

Ind 80:63 O 12 '14 30w

"While the book will be read very widely and will exercise a wholesome influence, every admirer of Mr. Taft will regret that he did not subject to a more careful revision the papers which it contains."

+ — Nation 100:22 Ja 7 '15 860w

"His present discussion of the matter is the work of a lawyer, a judge, a statesman, and—happily for the general reader—a shrewd and often witty philosophic observer of the currents of affairs."

+ N Y Times 19:451 O 18 '14 1200w

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD. Popular government; its essence, its permanence, and its perils. $1.15 (2c) Yale univ. press 13-26212

The book contains a series of lectures delivered at Yale university during the spring term of 1913, shortly after Mr. Taft took up his duties as Kent Professor of Law. The preamble to the constitution serves as the text for the lectures which explain the meaning and significance of "We, the people," "To form a more perfect union," "To establish justice," etc. Under the discussion of the first, the initiative, referendum and recall are considered.

A L A Bkl 10:237 F '14

Am Pol Sci R 8:104 F '14 90w

"Sane, conservative discussions."

+ Cath World 99:541 J1 '14 100w

"Barring a certain evidence of impatience, not to say intolerance, with the views of those who advocate the extreme principles of the new democracy, Mr. Taft's treatment of the subject with which he deals should not be without value in an age when there is a widespread demand for radical changes in our governmental system and the introduction of expedients some of which are of doubtful practicability and utility."

+ — Dial 56:253 Mr 16 '14 380w

"These lectures throw light—in a way a new light—on Mr. Taft's mind and character, and a very pleasing one. They reveal the student as well as the statesman; the former thorough, careful and impartial; the latter sagacious, high minded, broad in vision and grounded in conviction."

+ N Y Times 19:117 Mr 15 '14 1000w

"This is a book whose dimensions make it easily and quickly read and whose sanity and well-reasoned forcefulness in presenting the less popular side of various moot questions should especially commend itself to those who aim at formulating views at once broad and sound."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 1050w

TAFT, WILLIAM HOWARD. United States and peace. $1 (3c) Scribner 14-10061

A notable contribution to peace literature made by Mr. Taft in four lectures given under the auspices of the New York Peace society. They previously had publication in the Independent. The first chapter deals with the Monroe doctrine which constitutes the most important foreign policy of the United States. The second chapter discusses the status of aliens under the conflicting jurisdiction of the federal and state governments. The third confutes the claim of the Senate that it has no power to consent to general arbitration treaties. The fourth makes clear the history and conception of a world federation.

A L A Bkl 11:12 S '14

"The most interesting and important chapter in Mr. Taft's book is the one on 'Experiments in federation for judicial settlement of international disputes.' In it Mr. Taft combines the skilled political theorist and the practical statesman; the result being a proposal that is prophetic in the sound and logical possibilities of universal peace." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 730w

"The entire book is written in a simple but forceful and scholarly style, that renders it pleasant as well as profitable reading."

+ Cath World 100:538 Ja '15 350w

"These lectures by Mr. Taft are so abundant in knowledge and so persuasive in expression and in argument that they ought to be widely circulated and widely read thruout the United States. We regret that this important book lacks an index."

+ — Educ R 48:420 N '14 100w

+ Nation 99:286 S 3 '14 150w

"The volume gives much in small compass. It is the fruit of careful study and clear thinking. We find especially useful the candid and deliberate discussion of 'The Monroe doctrine: its limitations and implications.' It derives much interest from the present situation as to Mexico and the effort at co-operation in the restoration of peace by the three chief South American republics. It is literally saturated with good sense, and may be read with profit by every one who cares to follow intelligently the development of that interesting enterprise."

+ N Y Times 19:249 My 31 '14 1000w

R of Rs 50:120 J1 '14 170w

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 10 '14 680w

TAGORE, RABINDRANATH (RAVINDRANATHA THAKURA). Chitra: a play in one act. $1 (14c) Macmillan (Eng ed 14-3773)

This is a prose translation of an early drama based on a story from the Mahabharata. Chitra, the daughter of a king, has been given a boy's training and is lacking in the ordinary feminine wiles and graces. When she falls in love with Arjuna, she asks the gods to give her beauty that she may win him. The boon of a perfect beauty that is to endure for one year is granted her. She wins her lord's love, but finds no joy in it, for she knows it is only her outward appearance, not her true self that has attracted him; yet before the end of the year comes he learns that beauty is but a cloak, that it is the real woman, with all her flaws and blemishes, who holds him.

"It has beautiful passages, but its appeal will be very limited."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:20 S '14

"Its stateliness of diction and movement commands admiration throughout, although the prevalence of more or less conventional imagery becomes to the Western mind at times distinctly cloying. Here, as in the 'Gitanjali,' Mr. Tagore stands forth as a poet in the full sense of the word."

+ — Ath 1914.1:99 Ja 17 650w

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley
Bookm 40:205 O '14 30w

"There are beautiful passages scattered throughout the little play, and though one realizes the ideal purposes of the poet, it does not seem to take hold of one's imagination."

+ — Boston Transcript p21 J1 29 '14 350w

+ Nation 93:611 My 21 '14 330w

"We did not look for an Oriental, even though a seer, to write a book (especially twenty-five years ago when this was written) that might serve as evangel to the most advanced among modern Occidental women—yet this is just what Rabindranath Tagore has done. Extended comment upon Mr. Tagore's play is unnecessary. It is at once as clear and as profound as a mountain pool."

+ N Y Times 19:129 Mr 22 '14 1250w

R of Rs 49:503 Ap '14 300w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 6 '14 500w

TAGORE, RABINDRANATH (RAVINDRANATHA THAKURA). King of the dark chamber; tr. into English by the author. $1.25 Macmillan 14-15819

This play is an allegory which the reader is left free to interpret for himself. The king never appears to his subjects. Even his queen knows only his voice. And there are those who say there is no king, and others who pay allegiance to false rulers, and others who say he is a cruel king since he permits suffering in his kingdom, and still others whose faith in him cannot be shaken and who are content to serve him without reward and to believe in him without certain knowledge.

"This is, we think, the least successful of the works with which Mr. Tagore has lately enriched us, and it even bears some signs of having seemed less interesting than the others in its author's eyes."

+ — — Ath 1914.2:128 J1 25 520w

TAGORE, RABINDRANATH—Continued.

"There is a good deal of the material of poetry floating around in a rather nebulous state." H. E. Woodbridge

+ — Dial 58:48 Ja 16 '15 150w

"Occasionally its detail may seem trivial to Western readers."

+ — Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 50w

"The present play seems to us to carry the 'théâtre de l'âme' to a point where it ceases to have any but the faintest interest for any but the faintest souls."

— Nation 99:585 N 12 '14 300w

"The king of the dark chamber' is an allegory, a form of which Tagore is the greatest living master; probably because he never submerges the artist in the preacher; the moral is not crammed down the reader's throat." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 20:49 F 14 '15 1400w

TAGORE, RABINDRANATH (RAVINDRANATHA THAKURA). Post office. *$1 (11c) Macmillan 14-7104

Add to the pathetic fancies of little Paul Dombey some of the mystic qualities of Algernon Blackwood's Jimbo and you have Tagore's Amal. He is an Indian peasant child shut away from the autumn wind and sunshine by Fate in the guise of the village doctor. From the window the child cries a halt to such passers-by as the curdman, the headman, the fakir, a little flower girl and the strong boys who sport in the open. His spirit seeks the big out-of-doors, and is only slightly content with the interest these folk take in him when they come under the spell of his imagination. He falls into his last sleep nursing the thought that the king will come and make him one of his postmen to carry letters from the wonderful new post office that rises across from his humble dwelling.

A L A Bkl 11:20 S '14

"The translation has the qualities of limpidity and evasiveness to which Mr. Tagore has accustomed us, and is perfectly adequate to the occasion."

+ Ath 1914.2:456 N 7 550w

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

+ Bookm 40:205 O '14 150w

"Beautiful and appealing piece of dramatic work."

+ Boston Transcript p21 Jl 29 '14 150w

"Wholly unornamented, artless as the actual speech of a sick child, the a b c of pathos, it yet leaves the reader with the sudden catch of the breath at its abrupt close, the suspense, and the quickened imagination that follow, like a wind, the passing of genius."

+ N Y Times 19:301 Jl 5 '14 650w

TAGORE, RABINDRANATH (RAVINDRANATHA THAKURA). Sadhana: the realization of life. *$1.25 (3½c) Macmillan 13-24809

Descriptive note in December, 1913.

"Anyone interested in metaphysics and the study of religions will read with attention."

+ A L A Bkl 10:234 F '14

"It is really the mystic note given to some of the highest thoughts in Mr. Tagore's writings, which places them so near the central developing point of our culture." J. W. Scott

+ Hibbert J 12:919 Jl '14 4000w

Ind 79:136 Jl 27 '14 200w

"Tagore's essays are an intellectual stimulus, a spiritual tonic."

+ Lit D 48:636 Mr 21 '14 100w

"Philosophy is the greatest of human wonders; Rabindranath Tagore leaves us with a sense of having listened to one who talks much and beautifully but without a convincing Q. E. D."

+ — N Y Sun p9 D 6 '13 1400w

Reviewed by Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 19:40 Ja 25 '14 1450w

Outlook 106:43 Ja 3 '14 60w

Outlook 106:817 Ap 11 '14 350w

"This book, with its simple and logical statements of spiritual truths, comes nearest to correlating the teachings of the Upanishads and Buddha with the dynamic Western gospel of Christianity of any so-called popular book yet published.

+ R of Rs 49:117 Ja '14 180w

+ Sat R 116:815 D 27 '13 700w

"We have no desire to belittle the greatness of Mr. Tagore's performance. It is so great as almost to excuse the facile enthusiasms of his European admirers. But there is a fatal flaw of insincerity in its most seemingly elevated utterances. It claims to be the unaided product of Vedic inspiration. It veils a hostility and excusable ingratitude to Western teaching. These even from a purely artistic point of view, are grave defects, and must sooner or later affect the thoughtlessly generous applause with which Mr. Tagore's writings have been welcomed by an indolent age which reads too much to read carefully."

+ — Spec 112:266 F 14 '14 1550w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 6 '14 500w

TALBOT, RT. REV. ETHELBERT. Bishop among his flock. il *$1 (3c) Harper 14-3986

"The following chapters have been written in those rare moments of leisure enjoyed now and then in the busy life of a bishop. They are supposed to be addressed to that large family of spiritual children young and old which makes up the household of faith in his own diocese. As the members of his flock differ greatly in spiritual attainment and religious knowledge, so their needs vary accordingly." (Preface) The nature of the contents can be inferred from some of the chapter titles: Has God spoken? Am I responsible? What shall I believe? Christ and the church; The claims of the ministry as a vocation; Religion and business; Christian education; The church and social service; The church's world-wide mission.

"The bishop reveals himself as broad-minded and sweet-spirited. The book will be welcomed by those for whom it was intended, and it can be read with profit by a much larger circle."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 270

+ Lit D 48:842 Ap 11 '14 130w

+ N Y Times 19:344 Ag 9 '14 450w

TALBOT, RT. REV. ETHELBERT. Tim: the autobiography of a dog. il *50c (4c) Harper 14-17810

The autobiography of a well-bred bull dog of Boston ancestry. Tim says that the human family and the dog family do not fully understand one another even though there exists between them a very strong affection. Perhaps this little book will promote a better understanding.

"A book of this kind is a perilous writing, but the author has carefully kept away from the shoals, and leaves us one of the most sympathetic dog stories to be found among American books."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 13 '15 220w

TALBOT, FREDERICK A. Lightships and lighthouses. il *$1.50 Lippincott A13-2451

The author describes "the various types of beacons over the sea, from the first one built to the magnificent towers of today. He writes of lightships, of unattended lights of all sorts, of construction, and of the progress toward perfection in all the many methods of lighting. In all this the author avoids technicalities as far as a complete and accurate account will allow and devotes most attention to the dangers of construction, which results in a story of adventure that would hardly be equalled for thrilling and daring experiences in any other field in the world."—Boston Transcript

"A readable, popular description. Does not supersede Hardy's 'Lighthouses' which covers less ground and goes more into chatty details of history."

+ A L A Bkl 10:237 F '14

"He writes a very comprehensive and attractive story." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '13 1050w

"A fairly good account of lighthouses and a little about lightships. His arrangement of descriptive and historical material is somewhat confusing, but he writes a pretty complete story of the chief British lighthouses, which is up to date, of the instruments, the way they are handled and so on."

+ N Y Sun p5 N 15 '13 130w

TALBOT, FREDERICK A. Practical cinematography and its applications. il *$1 Lippincott (Eng ed 14-13243)

A book for the motion picture photographer. Its main purpose "is to show what has been done in many different fields and the nature and cost of the apparatus which an amateur would be likely to use, rather than to give instruction in the details of the art. . . . The methods used for developing and printing are described." (Nature)

"The volume covers every phase of the subject. The book is interesting reading also to those who never expect to take moving-pictures."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 180w

"A useful book for school and public libraries."

+ Ind 77:317 Mr 2 '14 50w

"Mr. Talbot is to be congratulated on having produced a book which must appeal strongly to the interest of the general reader, even though he may have no intention whatever of becoming a 'kinematographer.'" C. V. Boys

+ Nature 93:60 Mr 19 '14 1000w

+ N Y Times 19:295 Je 28 '14 60w

TALBOT, L. A. Jehane of the forest. *$1.25 Lippincott

"A pleasing story, with plenty of tragedy in it, is this romance of English maids and fighting men of the time of King Henry the Second. Its scene is laid on the border between England and Wales, and some of its action grows out of an incursion of the wild and uncouth Welshmen into the forest of the Lord of Clec. The two pretty daughters of the forest warden of the latter are the chief characters in the story. One of them is gentle and softly feminine; the other, the Jehane of the title, is an adventurous spirit, who fears not to wander in the forest after the forbidden hour of early evening. Thus she finds young Lord Lambert, son and heir of the Earl, in sad plight because he had disobeyed his father's commands while in Normandy and is now afraid to go home. With understanding and courage and resources, she helps him on his way, and in time, after many turns of fate and many strange and perilous happenings, she becomes his wife."—N Y Times

"The whole thing is a well-intentioned echo of Mr. Hewlett's 'Forest lovers,' but the echo is sadly faint and much belated." Norman Bryce

— Bookm 39:686 Ag '14 220w

"Picturesque in its mediæval setting and wholesomely sweet in its ingenuous appeal."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 280w

"In many of the descriptions there is unusual beauty of imagery and atmosphere."

+ Ind 78:398 Je 1 '14 60w

"Notwithstanding the numberless romances of this kind that have been written the author has contrived to tell his tale with freshness and with much originality. Simplicity of style and unconventional treatment add to its charm, which is considerable."

+ N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 300w

TALBOT, RICHARD JAMES. Chainbreakers. il 10 $1.50 (1c) Roxburgh pub. 14-13575

A novel written in the interests of social and political reform. In the opening scene John Brown, pastor of a church in a middle western city, creates a sensation by refusing to accept a gift of tainted money. Public opinion forces him to resign from his church and he takes up mission work in a poor section of the city and enters politics. In spite of the opposition of moneyed interests, he forges ahead and is elected governor on a reform ticket. Thru all his struggles he has one loyal friend and supporter, Nina Van Pelton, a member of his first congregation and daughter of one of the town's aristocratic families. Minimum wage, woman suffrage, child labor reform, conservation and the regulation of business are among the measures which Brown champions.

Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 300w

"It would be no more unjust to Mr. Talbot to question its full and evident sincerity than it would be unfair to readers who may take up the book as a result of this review, to fail at the outset to make clear that, judged purely as a piece of fiction, the story has much crudeness."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 6 '14 1000w

TALLENTYRE, S. G., pseud. (MISS E. V. HALL). Matthew Hargraves. *$1.35 (1½c) Putnam 14-9881

The author has succeeded in investing a commonplace, uneventful tale with a compelling interest that more exciting stories often lack. And she holds the reader's attention to the old threadbare theme of the two women and one man, of the married man finding himself falling in love with another woman, and does so without ever bringing on a crisis or a climax, indeed without making anything happen at all. It is a story of the early nineteenth century and the author's exposition of social ideals at the beginning of Victoria's reign is the best thing about the book. Especially interesting is the contrast between the two girls. Charlotte trained to all the elegant accomplishments of the young person of her day and Patty whose father, understanding nothing of the "true delicacy of the female character," had given her the run of a small library and instructed her in the great literatures of the world and its philosophies.

+ A L A Bkl 11:173 D '14

"There are a few crudities of expression, but the effective characterization makes us forget them."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup738 My 23 350w

"A novel worth reading that should outlive the present day."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 300w

"Miss Talentyre constantly arouses the reader's admiration by the delicate strokes with which she conveys the sense of character, of growth and change, of momentous things that in another [hero] might mean disaster."

+ N Y Times 19:370 S 6 '14 430w

"The general effect of the story is quite fascinating, though it is difficult to say exactly wherein the charm lies."

+ Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 230w

TAPPAN, EVA MARCH. House with the silver door. il *$1 Houghton 13-19120

Three modern fairy stories make up the contents of this book. The two which follow the title story are: King Haensel the first, and The star princess.

"Told with some imagination and will be acceptable but not essential in a collection."

+ A L A Bkl 10:205 Ja '14

"Her new book may be unhesitatingly recommended for the child who has just learned to read for himself or to be read aloud to younger children." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:321 N '13 90w

"They are pretty little tales, told quite fluently and with convincing charm."

+ Lit D 47:829 N 1 '13 80w

"A very wonderful fairy story."

+ N Y Times 18:599 N 2 '13 300w

TAPPER, THOMAS, and GOETSCHUIS, PERCY. Essentials in music history. il *$2 Scribner 14-18081

"This is a compact and accurate summary of the main facts in the history of music, from the dawn of civilization down to the present day." (N Y Times) "Beginning with the antiquities of music, a clear outline is provided of what is known of the music of ancient nations and primitive peoples, and this is followed by a simple and naturally consecutive account of the rise and progress of artistic music from the old French school, the earliest school of contrapuntal art, to the present era; a brief final chapter being devoted to music in America." (R of Rs)

TAPPER, T., and GOETSCHUIS, P.—Cont.

"A text-book that should prove attractive and useful to many a 'general reader' as well as to students preparing for school examinations in this subject."

+ Ind 80:382 D 7 '14 120w

"It has one fault, which however it shares with virtually all the histories of this art. So much that is of interest is to be said of music in its early stages that the authors are tempted to give this period a disproportionate amount of space, with the result that too little is left for some of the later stages. Apart from this, the new history deserves the highest praise, especially for lucidity and usefulness." H. T. Finck

+ — Nation 99:613 N 19 '14 250w

"The summary is necessarily condensed, the statements are concise; but they are in the main adequate." R: Aldrich

+ N Y Times 20:47 F 7 '15 320w

"A concise and useful summary of the development of music."

+ R of Rs 51:121 Ja '15 120w

TARKINGTON, BOOTH. Penrod. il $1.25 (1½c)
Doubleday 14-5820

A study of the human boy, presented in a series of chapters that read like so many short stories. The incidents recorded all occur in the twelfth year of Penrod's misunderstood young life. Nobody did understand Penrod, unless it was his great-aunt Sarah Crim, who asked him to give back to his father the sling-shot she had taken from that worthy and dignified gentleman some thirty-five years before—and for some reason his father took the gift without a word and for once a promised punishment was withheld. Father has been reminded that he, too, had once been a human boy.

"Good to read aloud in chapters."

+ A L A Bkl 10:373 My '14 4

+ Ath 1914,2:197 Ag 15 150w

+ Atlan 114:528 O '14 50w

"The exploitation of Mr. Tarkington's Penrod Schofield as fit companion for Mark Twain's Tom Sawyer is to be regarded, not merely without resentment, but as a comparison that is, on the whole, exceedingly felicitous." B. W. Witherspoon

+ Bookm 39:335 My '14 330w

"Penrod" is wholeheartedly amusing especially to those who remember their own boyhood with a reminiscent smile." R. T. P.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 2 '14 700w

"Penrod" will prove a good medicine for the sick and sorry—so long as his eccentric orbit is bounded by covers of a book."

+ N Y Times 19:188 Ap 12 '14 280w

"Mr. Tarkington has written more ambitious stories, but never one more amusing."

+ Outlook 107:46 My 2 '14 90w

"Don't miss Penrod!" Doris Webb

+ Pub W 86:548 Ag 22 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 50:121 J1 '14 80w

"Penrod," while not an ambitious work of art, is certainly capital, not to say well-nigh perfect, of its sort."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 300w

TATHAM, GEOFFREY BULMER. Puritans in power. $2.50 Putnam 14-1740

"This is a study of the effect of the Puritan revolution 1640-1660 upon the Church of England and upon the universities as institutions closely connected with the church. . . . Mr. Tatham traces with scholarly care and accuracy the rise of Puritanism. We learn of the steps which led up to the abolition of the Book of common prayer, of the making illegal of the feasts of Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, of the Puritan visitations and regulation of Cambridge and Oxford universities, of the fate of the ejected clergy and of the disposal of church property. . . . Mr. Tatham points out that in England religious differences were so much the badges of political parties that no government dared to disregard them."—Sat R

"Not the least interesting part of his study is a determination of the old controversy between Macaulay and his critics regarding the status of the English clergy in the seventeenth century, in which he inclines to side with the great historian. In such matters, rather than in the broader and deeper questions inevitably raised in reading such a book, his work seems particularly valuable." W. C. Abbott

+ Am Hist R 20:198 O '14 550w

"The chief novelty of the book is an investigation, more careful and complete than has ever been given before, of the effects of the Puritan rule on the universities. This is an admirable piece of work, on which real research has been expended."

+ Ath 1914,1:85 Ja 17 800w

"The book is well furnished with references and skilful use is made by the author of his materials, so that it is not merely well authenticated, but also eminently readable and enjoyable." W. H. Frere

+ Eng Hist R 29:766 O '14 600w

"The book is written without bias."

+ Sat R 116:720 D 6 '13 300w

"Interesting monograph."

+ Spec 113:499 O 10 '14 1700w

TAUSSIG, FRANK WILLIAM. Tariff history of the United States. $1.75 (1½c) Putnam 14-4907

This sixth edition of Dr. Taussig's history contains for its new matter a chapter on the tariff of 1913. "The act of 1913 makes the greatest change in our tariff system since the civil war. It reduces very considerably the duties on almost all manufactures; it admits wool and sugar free of duty; on many articles it substitutes moderate ad valorem for high specific duties. It does not mean free trade; but it does mean a great lowering of protection." (Note to 6th ed.)

A L A Bkl 11:86 O '14

Ann Am Acad 54:326 J1 '14 90w

"Not the least remarkable feature of Professor Taussig's work is that it is good reading for any one, for it is written in clear, non-technical language, so far as possible, and it is obviously non-partisan and authentic."

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 15 '14 230w

Educ R 49:102 Ja '15 40w

TAYLOR, CHARLES KEEN. Character development. il $1 (2c) Winston 13-25613

This is a practical graded school course covering the years from six to fourteen, which correlates lessons in general morals, citizenship, domestic science, physical training, vocational guidance and recreation. A chapter is given to each school year. Each chapter is subdivided into topics and there is a discussion of each, with stories or other illustrative material to be used by the teacher. A reading list of books suitable for children at the various ages, and a chapter on health complete the book.

"Mr. Taylor's volume is planned on common-sense lines and can scarcely fail to be helpful in the schoolroom."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Mr 4 '14 220w

"This book seems to me sound in theory but as worked out crude and not wholly consistent with its own theory." H: W. Thurston

+ — Survey 32:641 S 26 '14 450w

TAYLOR, DAVID CLARK. Self help for singers. il $1 Gray, H. W. 14-3256

"A couple of years ago we noticed in these pages a remarkable new book on 'The psychology of singing,' by David C. Taylor, in which was set forth by the author a 'rational method of voice culture.' . . . He has now brought out another, a smaller one, entitled 'Self help for singers,' which is a sequel to the former, and is intended to be a manual for voice culture based on the old Italian method, which has been lost. There are exercises and other graphic aids to the student."—R of Rs

"Suggestive to both student and teacher."

+ A L A Bkl 11:110 N '14

"It is a most suggestive and valuable treatise, which no teacher or student can afford to ignore." H: T. Finck

+ Nation 98:508 Ap 30 '14 170w

N Y Times 19:338 Ag 9 '14 200w

R of Rs 49:371 Mr '14 110w

TAYLOR, GRAHAM. Religion in social action; with an introd. by Jane Addams. *$1.25
Dodd 13-25668

"In this series of essays, Dr. Taylor undertakes to show that individualism is impossible. Man cannot live alone; cannot even know himself except as he knows his neighbor; cannot do anything for his neighbor without improving his neighbor's surroundings; cannot be truly devout by himself, for Christ can be in the individual only as the individual recognizes himself as a member of society. It is the church, not the individual, which is the body of Christ; and the history of the family, of society, of industry, of the city, shows that social fellowship is essential to religion and religion is essential to true social fellowship."—
Outlook

"It is a book which ministers, social workers, and all others interested in the welfare and well-being of themselves and society—and this should not leave a rest—should read and study." G: H. Von Tüngeln

+ Am J Soc 19:672 Mr '14 750w

+ A L A Bkl 10:283 Mr '14

"In reality, it is the story of religion made social, a life made serviceable, an ideal made real, that characterizes the book. One who wishes to see if religion can express itself in life rather than in creed will find here convincing evidence. Few volumes better show the call to social service. It is a splendid story for any man or woman, young or old." Carl Kelsey

+ Ann Am Acad 52:260 Mr '14 280w

+ Bib World 44:364 N '14 100w

"This book is filled with good things. It is a welcome addition to the writings of the new order." L. P.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Mr 7 '14 750w

+ Dial 56:192 Mr 1 '14 120w

"Anything which Dr. Graham Taylor writes on social questions is worth hearing and heeding."

+ Outlook 105:858 D 20 '13 180w

+ R of Rs 49:123 Ja '14 170w

"So far as I know, this is his first book, and it should be valued accordingly. It gives us the deposit of a mature life, and balance and maturity are perhaps the most distinctive marks of the book. He has had time and opportunity to try out his convictions." Walter Rauschenbusch

+ Survey 31:527 Ja 31 '14 750w

TAYLOR, HENRY C., pseud. What an advertiser should know; a handbook for everyone who advertises. (Practical ser.) *75c (3c)
Browne & Howell 14-11754

This little book is published as a companion volume to "What a salesman should know," by the same author, who is described in the publishers' note as a member of a prominent firm who for business reasons does not care to disclose his identity. The chapters take up: General forms of advertising; The general construction of an advertisement; What an advertiser should know about printing; Advertising mediums; Form letters, circular distribution, etc.; Premiums, the retail merchant and his clerks; House organs; Catalog advertising; The retailer from a manufacturer's standpoint;

The advertising manager and the advertising agency.

+ N Y Times 19:311 J1 12 '14 70w

TAYLOR, JAMES MONROE. Before Vassar opened. il *$1.30 (2c) Houghton 14-8798

A contribution to the history of the movement for the higher education of women in America which began in 1819 and, evolving thru the seminary, proceeded towards the college idea. Little headway was made up to the time of the civil war. From that date there became apparent a demand for larger activities, larger public responsibilities and a more generous education for women. It was a little earlier than this date that Matthew Vassar turned his attention to the education of women. His interest was awakened by a niece; but it was fostered, encouraged and focused by Dr. Milo P. Jewett until it led to the founding of one of the foremost colleges for women in America. The volume is the first history of its kind and is full of information and inspiration.

"Useful for reference, but too insistent on non-essentials to hold the casual reader."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:12 S '14

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 27 '14 800w

+ Dial 57:55 J1 16 '14 370w

+ Educ R 48:427 N '14 370w

"A very interesting addition to the history of education."

+ Lit D 49:25 J1 4 '14 220w

+ N Y Times 19:407 S 27 '14 100w

+ R of Rs 50:113 J1 '14 600w

TAYLOR, JOSEPH SCHIMMEL. Handbook of vocational education. il *$1 Macmillan 14-16741

"The study presented in this volume is intended to show how foreign nations and certain American communities have solved or have tried to solve the problem of vocational education." (Preface) There is no one volume presenting a survey of the whole field, the author says, altho there is a vast amount of scattered material on the subject. His handbook offers a digest of some of the most important of this material. Contents: Introduction; Industrial education in Europe; Industrial vs. manual training; The intermediate school; Continuation schools; The training of vocational teachers; Vocational guidance; Apprenticeship and compulsory education; Conclusion; Topics for discussion and investigation. There is a bibliography and an index.

"His handbook is a good one."

+ Educ R 48:535 D '14 100w

"The virtue of the present book is that it puts the matter in very simple and concise form within the compass of 149 carefully printed pages."

+ El School J 15:294 F '15 230w

"We believe this to be a useful book for students of the subject of vocational education. It is informational in nature and is generally accurate, though, covering such a wide range as it does, it is at times superficial." F. M. Leavitt

+ — School R 23:139 F '15 230w

TAYLOR, WINIFRED LOUISE. Man behind the bars. *$1.50 Scribner 14-17509

"A tenderly sympathetic account of the friendships formed between convicts in the Joliet penitentiary and the woman who has spent her life in trying to help them. . . . Miss Taylor speaks from long experience and intimate knowledge of her subject, her sympathies are keen and her genuine humanity abundantly manifest, yet she does not advocate such drastic reforms of our penal system as does Mr. Hawthorne, who would abolish prisons entirely as useless and cruel anachronisms. . . . Miss Taylor writes enthusiastically of the new honor system of Colorado and Illinois prisons."—Ind

"Her stories of convicts' lives, told largely in their own words, are of a kind to bring about a more sympathetic understanding of the prisoners as men."

+ A L A Bkl 11:157 D '14 +

TAYLOR, WINIFRED LOUISE—Continued.

+ Ind 80:140 O 26 '14 150w

+ Nation 99:717 D 17 '14 400w

TCHEKHOV, ANTON PAVLOVITCH. Stories of Russian life; tr. by Marian Fell. *$1.35 (1½c) Scribner 14-10072

Twenty-four brief, dramatic stories of Russian life in each of which is developed but a single incident or character. "Tchekhoff is of the people, a son of a serf, and he reflects the crushed, lifeless spirit of the 80's and 90's when thought was buried alive by a censor, when men and the few books that were published proclaimed nothing more than the impotency of living. The only positive force is evil; Aksinia, for example, the energetic one of 'In the ravine,' with her sharp eyes and her whisking movements, cheats the peasants and sells vodka on the sly and finally kills a little child, and yet she comes out triumphant." (N Y Times)

"We wish that the translator had supplied explanatory foot-notes."

+ Ath 1914:2:664 D 26 250w

"In spite of his kindly humour and tender sympathies, there is something undeniably depressing about many of these stories, for they picture such narrow, joyless lives, borne with a spirit of hopeless resignation." F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:171 O '14 520w

"Imagine O. Henry a Russian writer and not yet disillusioned by the reaction to repression that followed 1880. Just such stories as these early ones of Tchekhof's he would have produced—light, graceful, in some cases almost gay, free from any deeper meaning, not especially intended to convey a moral, but always artistic, always ending at the dramatic, one might say the melodramatic moment. Several of the stories are rather slight and even crude, exaggerated (as in 'Champagne') and exotic (as in 'Agatha'); but the dramatic power is never failing and the element of surprise is a healthy tonic even in the shortest and slightest of them." N. H. D.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 1300w

"We have read Russian stories before, but few have given us more genuine pleasure than this series by the greatest of recent Russian writers, Tchekhoff."

+ Lit D 49:638 O 3 '14 150w

+ Nation 99:75 J1 16 '14 250w

+ N Y Times 19:258 Je 7 '14 1150w

"The book is wonderfully alive, and gains variety from its fresh and characteristic humor."

+ Outlook 107:502 Je 27 '14 90w

"The stories reveal not only the power and depth of feeling that this most popular of modern story tellers possesses, but his humor and sentiment."

+ R of Rs 50:248 Ag '14 70w

+ Spec 114:10 Ja 2 '15 300w

TEMPERLEY, GLADYS. Henry VII; with an introd. by James T. Shotwell. (Kings and queens of England) il *$2.50 Houghton

14-21772

"The author disagrees on some points with many biographers of Henry VII and declares that he was more human than he has been portrayed, less aloof, less mysterious and less impressive, and that too little has been said of Henry's efforts to spread an air of culture and refinement about his court. . . . The question whether Henry VII was a great king is discussed from various viewpoints of many authorities, and in conclusion the writer decides that he cannot be denied the title of great king."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p20 J1 15 '14 550w

+ Dial 57:258 O 1 '14 200w

+ Educ R 49:96 Ja '15 100w

TEN BROEKE, JAMES. Constructive basis for theology. *$3 Macmillan.

"The book consists of three parts. Part 1 deals with the origin and development of Christian theology till the reformation. Part 2 shows how acceptance of the principle of that reformation brought about both a new philosophy and a new theology, and is designed not so much for the philosopher or theologian as for those who have 'clung to the ancient Christian doctrines,' and now feel that the language of their creed is alien to the modern spirit. Part 3 treats of contemporary thought, and by a summary of the help which science and philosophy have afforded to theology appeals for the re-statement of the latter in modern and richer terms."—Ath

"Carefully written and scholarly book." G. B. Smith

+ Am J Theol 19:133 Ja '15 1800w

"Constructive basis for theology' will assure him a place amongst the foremost Christian apologists of to-day. Dr. Ten Broeke is an optimist, and his spirit and method are suited to the interpretation of theology."

+ Ath 1914:2:40 J1 11 1250w

"A solid contribution is this of Professor Ten Broeke to the groundwork on which many thinkers are now engaged."

+ Outlook 108:226 S 23 '14 300w

TERMAN, LEWIS MADISON. Hygiene of the school child. (Riverside textbooks in education) il *$1.65 (2c) Houghton 14-3407

A work designed as a textbook for use in normal schools, colleges and teachers' reading circles. "It has been shaped by the conviction that the primary concern of such a text should be the child itself,—the hygiene of physical and mental growth, rather than the details of school architecture and school equipment." (Preface) There are chapters on: The general laws of growth, Disorders of growth and the hygiene of posture; Malnutrition; Tuberculosis and the school; The teeth of school children, etc. The book is to be followed by a second volume, The hygiene of instruction.

"A reliable, up-to-date guide, for teachers, and serviceable also for parents. Less technical and detailed than Cornell and much fuller on the side of personal hygiene and diseases than Dresslar though its scope is more limited."

+ A L A Bkl 11:12 S '14 *

+ Educ R 48:212 S '14 60w

"Properly used, the study should prove exceedingly valuable in the hands of teachers and parents." G. L. Meylan

+ Survey 32:346 Ja 27 '14 400w

TERRY, ELLEN. Russian ballet. il *$1 Bobbs 13-24655

"It is a slim but very suggestive little volume that Ellen Terry writes on 'The Russian ballet,' and one which should be especially welcome in view of the enthusiastic reception accorded the Russian artists in this country. . . . The 'impressions' of Miss Terry give us glimpses of the various ballets and the dancers who appear in them—Nijinsky, the wonderful young god of the dance, Pavlova, with whom we are already familiar, and Karsavina. These impressions would not be complete, however, without the delightfully alluring drawings of Miss Pamela Colman Smith, with which the volume is freely illustrated."—N Y Times

+ A L A Bkl 10:283 Mr '14

"A delightful essay in criticism. The subjects chosen by Miss Smith dwell, perhaps, too exclusively on the much-dressed dances."

+ Ath 1913:1:228 F 22 150w

"A charming and artistic little book which will appeal strongly to the student and lover of the dance."

+ N Y Times 18:762 D 28 '13 700w

"A charming series of sketches."

+ R of Rs 48:760 D '13 40w

+ Spec 110:411 Mr 8 '13 100w

TERRY, THOMAS PHILIP. Mexico. il *75c (2c) Houghton 14-30917

Less than a hundred pages of compressed data taken from "Terry's guidebook to Mexico." It is an outline sketch of the country, its people and their history from the seventh century to the present time, and furnishes information concerning physiography, population, climate, government, history and races. A chronological table of the principal events in Mexican history is added to the text.

"Small type and cheap paper, but will serve the library that cannot afford the larger book. No index."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:167 D '14

"Terry's handbook of Mexico is a useful volume to have on the bookshelf in these days of civil war in the southern republic and it will be just as valuable when the war is over and reconstruction begins. No history is more romantic and more interesting than that of Mexico, and the author's stirring narration of it is not merely sustainably interesting; it is immensely valuable to those who would get at the heart of the Mexican history and country."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 22 '14 480w

+ N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 60w

TERRY, THOMAS PHILIP. Terry's Japanese empire, including Korea and Formosa. il *$5 Houghton 14-5129

This is a traveler's guidebook to Japan. It is well supplied with maps and gives the necessary information concerning routes, railways, steamships, and hotels, with chapters on Manchuria and the Trans-Siberian railway. In addition there are sections devoted to the language, religion, art, literature, etc., of the country.

A L A Bkl 10:407 Je '14

"It is a most interesting summary of data logically and attractively set forth—knowledge that one might have to go through many books to obtain. The value of the book does not wholly lie in its usefulness as a travellers' companion. It is equally valuable for the bookshelf for it gives such details of things Japanese as to constitute it a book of reference."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 28 '14 300w

"The best and most complete work of its kind in existence, indispensable for travelers, reference libraries and editors."

+ Ind 78:53 Ap 6 '14 30w

"A marvel of condensed information such as the tourist demands and appreciates. A few blunders crop out here and there."

+ — Nation 99:380 S 24 '14 570w

"Gives even more information than the average Baedeker guide. There are no subjects of importance which he has overlooked, and, although his treatment is condensed, he rarely misses being interesting."

+ Outlook 106:313 Ap 11 '14 250w

+ R of Rs 49:509 Ap '14 90w

+ Spec 112:sup1066 Je 27 '14 120w

"Its comprehensive introduction renders it a convenient work of reference for those who cannot use it as a traveller's vade mecum." F. W. Williams

+ Yale R n s 4:404 Ja '15 350w

THEY who question. *$1.35 (1½c) Macmillan 12 14-15366

If there be a good God how shall we account for the presence of evil in His world is the question the book sets out to answer. The question presents itself to Enid Malincourt in childhood when her heart is torn with pity for a suffering rabbit. In her later girlhood she loses sight of it in a passionate devotion to her religion. It is in womanhood when her child is born to a life of suffering that the question comes back to her demanding an answer. The author's own conclusion, presented in the form of a sermon at the end of the story is that all suffering and all pain are worth while for the qualities they produce.

"If this novel is not a 'best seller' it will not be from lack of merit. It is a superb and relentless story, with the realistic mingling of events, tragic and comic by turns, which sooner or later would the lives of all men and women."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 7 '14 450w

+ Nation 99:690 D 10 '14 300w

"Its sincerity and earnestness make this book interesting. It has, moreover, some excellent comments on various aspects of life. But it suffers from the fact that the saintly and altogether humorless Enid is never real, so that her suffering leaves the reader quite unmoved. There are one or two dramatic scenes, but too much repetition and a rather faulty construction. The problem overwhelms the author's artistry."

+ — N Y Times 19:398 S 27 '14 530w

"It is the work of a seasoned mind and a practised hand."

+ R of Rs 50:636 N '14 50w

THIIS, JENS. Leonardo da Vinci; the Florentine 12 years of Leonardo and Verrocchio; tr. by Jessie Muir. il *$12 Small

This study of the art of Leonardo da Vinci is concerned with his "Florentine period" which the author calls "the most prolific part of his life as an artist." It is also described as "the germinating period when the ideas for subsequent great works also began to germinate in his imagination, even if they did not ripen into development until much later." The author pleads for a more intellectual appreciation of art with less concern over questions of art and morality. Every art lover should endeavor to become in some measure a connoisseur. The first condition for an esthetic view of art is an understanding of technique. And the art of Leonardo offers, out of all the art of the world, perhaps the best opportunity for this kind of intellectual enjoyment. In his discussion he is particularly concerned with the separation of the "gold from the dross," in differentiating the true works of the master from those attributed to him. "Above all it has been the author's aim to differentiate between Leonardo and his great teacher and forerunner, Verrocchio." The work is illustrated with over 200 pictures, some printed in tints.

"The book is a serious study by a scholar who has at once great knowledge and a real artistic 'flair,' and Dr. Thiis's judgments and attributions will command respectful consideration."

+ Ath 1913,2:460 O 25 1250w

"Deeply interesting monograph, which has been admirably translated. The reproductions, especially of the numerous drawings, are irreplaceable."

+ Int Studio 51:167 D '13 550w

"The author of this study of Leonardo . . . has devoted to it immense industry and minute scholarship."

+ Spec 112:64 Ja 10 '14 500w

THILLY, FRANK. History of philosophy. $2.50 7 (1c) Holt 14-10614

True to the aim of the history of philosophy the author offers a study of the development of reasoned human thought from the earliest beginnings down to the present time. It is not a mere enumeration and exposition of philosophical theories, but a study of these in relation to one another, the times in which they were produced, and the thinkers by whom they were offered. Each world-view is inserted in its proper setting with no more of the personal element obtruding than justice to the historian's preconceptions demands. The three broad divisions of the study are: Greek philosophy; Philosophy of the Middle ages; Modern philosophy. The study is especially well tabulated and the treatment is concise, making the work desirable for text-book use.

"A practical and valuable contribution to the study of philosophy. Both the student and the general reader will find it useful in giving them a comprehensive and essential view of the development and tenets of philosophical thought and theory from the Greeks to James and Bergson."

+ Boston Transcript p21 Jl 8 '14 400w

"We wish that Professor Thilly had laid a little more stress upon the educational value of the embryology of human thought and so have given greater interest and vitality to the presentation of Greek philosophy."

THILLY, FRANK—Continued.

+ — Educ R 48:419 N '14 110w

"As a manual for college use it possesses two important advantages over any other work of available size: it is more encyclopaedic as a whole and more systematic and complete in its exposition of individual philosophical theories. But it suffers from the defects inevitable to so comprehensive a plan that the treatment of many minor writers is too summary to be very illuminating, while the greater philosophers, notably Plato and Aristotle, hardly receive adequate interpretation. There are some defects, also, that are not inevitable."

+ — Nation 99:528 O 29 '14 300w

+ Outlook 108:53 S 2 '14 250w

+ Spec 113:676 N 14 '14 30w

THOMAS, ALBERT ELLSWORTH. Her husband's wife. (Drama league ser. of plays)
*75c (3c) Doubleday 14-10286

A whimsical little play in which a brooding wife, thinking herself ill, in fact, at the point of death, selects a suitable successor for herself. She seeks the hand of a supposedly demure little creature, unattractive but eminently safe, who falls in with the plan. When her husband's future wife suddenly comes out of her obscure chrysalis and assumes attractive proportions the wife's jealousy is stirred and farcical complications ensue. The play is intended solely to be acted, and offers a couple of hours of good entertainment.

THOMAS, ALLEN CLAPP. History of England. il *$1.50 Heath 13-12242

"Prof. Allen C. Thomas of Haverford college, who has written school histories of our own county, is the latest reviewer of the history of the mother country, in a school textbook. Like most of the modern historians, Prof. Thomas puts more emphasis on the arts of peace than on the glitter of war, and while fighting bulks large in British annals he is more concerned with its results than its actual progress. The book is made convenient for comparative study by the inclusion of many sketch maps showing the progressive political changes on the map. Also for comparative work there is an appendix of 80 pages giving a brief history of continental Europe from the fourth century to 1648."—Springfield Republican

"Mr. Thomas has prepared a well-ordered book in which the life of the people is not smothered by politics and in which economics is not lost to sight in the smoke of battle."

+ Chaut 72:45 S 13 '13 140w

+ Dial 56:73 Ja 16 '14 70w

"Excellent of its kind."

+ Educ R 47:102 Ja '14 30w

"Ordinarily his sentences are short and clear-cut, and his words within the easy grasp of secondary school pupils; but occasionally the punctuation or the phrasing makes his meanings misleading or ambiguous. His maps are not always carefully drawn."

+ — Nation 98:547 My 7 '14 280w

R of Rs 48:756 D '13 70w

"As a whole the book is admirable and will commend itself to educators; it is also as likely as any text-book can be to appeal to the interest of pupils."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 S 25 '13 320w

THOMAS, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, and WATT, DAVID ALEXANDER. Improvement of rivers. il *$7.50 Wiley 13-13181

This is a revised edition of a work published in 1903. "The original book has been amplified and enlarged so that the contents of the revised work have, of necessity, been divided into two quarto volumes of over three hundred pages each, more than double the original size. The plates showing various examples of existing types of river improvement have been increased in number from 18 to 76, and the tales of the costs of construction at the ends of the various chapters have been materially added to, all of which enormously increases the value of the new edition." (Engin N)

A L A Bkl 10:256 F '14

"It may be a good ground for criticism, more particularly of the first volume, that more of our American practice was not used and descriptions given in more detail; perhaps with a corresponding reduction in number of foreign examples cited. The book, taken as a whole, is a very excellent textbook for students who are taking up this subject from the beginning, but for the more advanced engineer, it will be used rather as a book of reference from which he will be inclined to turn to those special papers of authors of more direct experience where greater detail is found, if he wishes to study, at all exhaustively, many of the works mentioned—especially in the first volume. The chapters on movable dams stand out far beyond the remainder of the book in point of excellence, and of themselves form a treatise that is exceptionally good from whatever point they may be viewed." W: W. Harts

+ — Engin N 70:577 S 18 '13 3050w

"The book is unusually complete. The well-chosen illustrations should make the book exceedingly valuable to designers in any line of hydraulics."

+ — Engin Rec 68:110 Jl 26 '13 520w

"These two volumes contain much useful information relating to the subject dealt with, and are well worth the study of engineers engaged in this class of work."

+ Nature 92:525 Ja 8 '14 250w

THOMAS, GEORGE CLIFFORD, jr. Practical book of outdoor rose growing for the home garden. il *$4 Lippincott 14-22154

"The author knows his field well; he has grown roses for fifteen years; he has kept notes of his own experiences; and he is familiar with the literature of his subject. At times he has had as many as 2,000 roses, and he has graded them as if in a college examination, A, B, C, D, and X, the latter for failure. . . . The book contains useful chapters on the preparation of a rose garden, on ordering, planting, pruning, cultivation, and such various information as comes from a long experience."—Nation

+ Ind 80:506 D 28 '14 70w

+ Dial 57:511 D 16 '14 110w

"The reason why every experienced rosarian will want to possess Mr. Thomas's book, and every tyro must, is briefly this: in no department of horticulture has the busy hybridizer wrought greater changes in a short time than among garden roses."

+ Nation 100:149 F 4 '15 850w

"The text is simple and embodies working rules learned from wide experience."

+ Outlook 108:1021 D 30 '14 70w

THOMAS, HARRY HIGGOTT, and EASLEA, WALTER. Rose book. il *$2 Funk 14-30269

An illustrated guide to the growing of roses, describing many varieties. "Rose-growing, no doubt, can no more stand still than other activities, and here is information as to the latest and newest kinds in the market." (Spec)

"An English book, better adapted to the expert gardener and to English conditions, but because of the interesting manner of presentation and its many beautiful illustrations, some colored, it will be enjoyed by all lovers of roses."

+ A L A Bkl 10:320 Ap '14

"Everybody loves a rose, and those who are fortunate enough to possess a garden will find this book not only a source of delight, but also a trustworthy guide to the cultivation of that flower."

+ Ath 1913,2:459 O 25 38w

+ Spec 112:104 Ja 17 '14 90w

THOMAS, ROWLAND. Felicidad. il *$1.25 (1½c) Little 14-6192

It was a little town hidden under the palms of a pacific island; its name meant Happiness. To it one day came by chance a wanderer whose business theretofore had been roaming over the seven seas of the world. He expected to go on tomorrow, but Felicidad was in a land of manana, and tomorrow drifted into another tomorrow until at last there was no more talk of going. He became a houseowner in Felicidad, and with the fascinating Pepita to hold him there, took up a permanent residence in the town of happiness.

"There is not much body to this little tale, but it fills the purpose of the author in that it is gracefully told in a light and pleasant manner." Robert Linton

+ Bookm 39:466 Je '14 300w

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 200w

"The romance is admirably written, with a quiet humor. The modern city dweller, weary of noise and tumult, will find a sojourn in Felicidad exceedingly refreshing."

+ N Y Times 19:167 Ap 5 '14 520w

"The spell of Felicidad is upon the reader as it was upon Don John."

+ Outlook 107:46 My 2 '14 90w

"The striking feature of 'Felicidad' is the extraordinary simplicity of the perfect happiness that permeates it."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 23 '14 330w

THOMPSON, ALEXANDER HAMILTON. English monasteries. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) il *40c Putnam 13-15765

"Within the limits of a small manual, Mr. Thompson has produced an interesting account of the rise of the religious orders, their coming to England, the types of building in which they were housed there, and the manner of life they followed. While his chief aim has been to describe the typical conventual buildings of the English monasteries, historical and social aspects are briefly treated."—Bib World

"Somewhat dry little treatise. Six pages of small print are devoted to a monastic bibliography, which is good as far as it goes, but distinctly insufficient."

+ — — Ath 1913:1:618 Je 7 350w

"The book is intelligently and sympathetically written."

+ Bib World 43:143 F '14 150w

"An excellent addition to the little series of 'Cambridge manuals.' It is remarkable how much that is unacknowledged the author has been able to tell, without wasting space on unimportant things." H.

+ — — Eng Hist R 29:205 Ja '14 100w

Nation 97:516 N 27 '13 40w

THOMPSON, CLARENCE BERTRAND, ed. Scientific management: a collection of the more significant articles describing the Taylor system of management. (Harvard business studies, v. 1) il *$4 Harvard univ. press 14-18357

"Not all of the literature presented is in favor of scientific management, for the book includes the attack made upon it by the employes of the Watertown arsenal in their petition to the Secretary of War in favor of the abandonment of the system, but the answer to this attack is given also in the reports on the subject by Gen. Crozier, the Chief of Ordnance. Nearly every phase of the subject seems to be included in this collection of papers. Many of the articles go into detail in a way that will be of assistance to the expert, for example, Mr. Hathaway's paper on The planning department, Mr. Gantt's paper on A graphical daily balance, and Mr. Thompson's paper on Classification and symbolization. A classified bibliography of scientific management is given at the end of the volume."—Indust Engin

"Will be useful in large collections to supplement the books by Taylor, and Gantt's 'Work, wages and profits.'"

+ A L A Bkl 11:205 Ja '15

"The editor has brought within one set of covers much valuable material. The chief criticisms must be against the work. First, it could have been considerably shortened without lessening its value. The second criticism is that little or no attention is given in the book to some of the work done by Harrington Emerson and his associates."

+ — Engin Rec 70:546 N 14 '14 630w

"The work will prove especially valuable to those who wish to have on their shelves in compact form a good selection of the best writings on the subject. For the man who wishes to make a systematic study of the literature of scientific management this bibliography will be helpful. While we cordially commend the book for its many merits, there is a serious and exasperating defect in its make up. At the top of every page, both left and right-hand appear only the words 'Scientific management' with nothing to indicate either the branch of the subject or the name of the author of the paper."

+ — Indust Engin 14:379 S '14 530w

"He has presented a library of the subject in 878 pages."

+ Nation 99:691 D 10 '14 980w

THOMPSON, ELBERT NEVIUS SEBRING. 2 Essays on Milton. *$1.35 (2½c) Yale univ. press 14-18375

Seven essays on Milton make up the contents. They were prepared, the author says, in the belief that some such help is needed either for a first study of Milton or for a serious reading of his poetry and prose. In the first of them, Milton, the last of the Elizabethans, the author seeks to show how Milton, standing aloof from the prevailing literary influences of his day, had more in common with the great Elizabethans. The remaining essays are: Milton's temperament and ideals; The true bearing of Milton's prose; Epic structure of Paradise lost; The sources of Paradise lost; The theme of Paradise lost; Milton's art.

"Students of Milton and his times will find Prof. Thompson's seven essays of material service in forming a just estimate of Milton's place in literature—his purpose and its scope. The author's Miltonic studies cannot take the place of other and more extended estimates of Milton's works, but they will prove excellent aids in preliminary examination of Milton's verse and prose."

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 200w

"A helpful volume."

+ Spec 113:855 D 12 '14 20w

THOMPSON, HAROLD STUART. Flowering plants of the Riviera. il *$3 Longmans Agr14-1362

"Of the many thousand visitors to the Riviera each season, a certain number are struck by the richness of the wild flora, and would like a book from which they can name the plants. Mr. H. Stuart Thompson's 'Flowering plants of the Riviera' goes some way towards supplying the want. It is not perfect, and does not profess to be complete. He calls it a descriptive account of eighteen hundred of the more interesting species. . . . Mr. Tansley contributes a readable and instructive general account of the Riviera vegetation."—Spec

"The reproductions of some excellent water-color paintings are successful in most cases, but they lack sorely some definite standards of measurement."

+ — Nation 99:170 Ag 6 '14 220w

N Y Times 19:383 S 13 '14 50w

"This is a book we have often wanted. We can heartily recommend it."

+ Sat R 117:609 My 9 '14 350w

"The author writes with local knowledge. There are many points that might be criticized."

+ — Spec 113:205 Ag 8 '14 200w

THOMPSON, MRS. JEANETTE MAY. Wild kindred of fur, feather, and fin. il *$1.25 (2c) Wilde 15-1990

A book for boys and girls made up of some two dozen animal stories. Some of them belong to that order of nature story in which the animals themselves are the sole actors. In others, human folk are introduced. It is to be hoped that one of these, The peril of the snowy egrets, will teach a needed lesson to girl readers of the book.

THOMPSON, JEANETTE MAY—Continued.

"We contend that for children such books instil a feeling for nature which is not to be found in the regulation natural history or botany."

+ Nation 99:696 D 10 '14 100w

THOMPSON, MARAVENE. Woman's law. il
* $1.25 (2c) Stokes 14-6792

The woman's law, according to the author, dictates that she protect her child, whatever may be the cost to others. In the present case, Gail Orcutt shields her husband, who has committed murder, and helps him to escape in order that her son may be spared the ignominy of a disgraced name. She finds a man who resembles her husband so closely that the servants mistake him for their master, and allows him to play the part of George Orcutt. As he is suffering from a temporary form of insanity that occasions loss of identity, he is sentenced to an asylum rather than to the electric chair. His later release, and the still later return of memory, create an awkward situation out of which the author contrives a satisfactory ending.

"There is no denying the popular elements in this novel, written as it is in good, rattling dialogue and wasting little time in its kaleidoscopic whirl."

+ Bookm 39:341 My '14 470w

"A story of well-sustained interest."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '14 400w

"An entertaining melodrama, cleverly worked out, and with some rather good character drawing. The interest, it is true, declines during the latter portion of the book, but this, though unfortunate, seems to have been unavoidable."

+ N Y Times 19:142 Mr 29 '14 380w

THOMPSON, ROBERT ELLIS. History of the dwelling-house and its future. *$1 (4½c) Lippincott 14-11548

The author touches on a fascinating theme in this little book, and goes back to the Saga literature of the north, to Chaucer and to early chronicles for information about the ancestors of our present dwelling places. In his chapters are discussions of: The old hall; From hall to house; The town-house; The later town-house; The house of to-day; The house that is to be; its organization; Its equipment; and The streets of the future. He looks forward to greater developments along cooperative lines.

"It is briefly and simply written."

+ Dial 57:261 O 1 '14 40w

+ Ind 78:494 Je 15 '14 90w

N Y Times 19:451 O 18 '14 160w

"A readable and useful little book. Most of his suggestions are both sensible and constructive, and his book deserves a wide reading."

+ R of Rs 51:250 F '15 120w

THOMPSON, WILLIAM GILMAN. Occupational diseases. il *$6 Appleton 14-10588

"Dr. Thompson's book is plentifully illustrated, and quotes many authorities. Symptoms, treatment, and prevention of a long list of diseases are treated in detail, and the hazards of various occupations clearly stated. The general pathology and etiology of the subject are followed by a chapter on general remedial measures, in which the section on prophylaxis is very complete and of great assistance to all workers in this field. The various appendices summarize a large part of the subject-matter of the book in tabulated form, as well as the main provisions of existing laws relative to the reporting of occupational diseases by physicians."—Nation

+ A L A Bkl 11:107 N '14

"A valuable and much needed reference book." Alexander Fleisher

+ Ann Am Acad 56:184 N '14 400w

"It is a timely work, comprehensive and thorough. It will be appreciated by the physician, the social worker and the legislator."

+ Boston Transcript p25 S 30 '14 550w

"The first comprehensive treatise on this subject by an American authority."

+ Nation 99:414 O 1 '14 150w

"There are a few minor inaccuracies in the descriptions of chemical and industrial processes, but in general the book is excellent."

+ Pittsburgh 20:18 Ja '15 70w

"The author is to be congratulated upon the completion of such an excellent treatise in a field in which so much of the material had to be gathered at first hand; and everyone interested in the promotion of industrial hygiene in the United States is to be congratulated on having the solid foundation for future efforts which this book provides." H: R. Seager.

+ Pol Sci Q 29:536 S '14 750w

THOMS, CRAIG S. Working man's Christ. *$1.25 (2c) Dodd 14-4751

The author takes the stand that "the relation between capital and labor is, not simply economic, nor wholly social nor governmental, but religious and ethical, for ethical democracy is the foundation of all human society. . . . Unless religion secures righteousness and produces brotherhood we must look for religion to be neglected." The book is made up of a discussion of the relation between the working man and his problems and the church, taken up in three parts. Part 1 deals with The church and the working man; Part 2, Christ and the working man; Part 3, Christ's programme.

"A stimulating book and one that provokes much thought. The treatment is practical and unimpassioned. Its short sections enable the reader to use it even in busy moments."

+ A L A Bkl 10:364 My '14

"There is a frankness and reasonableness about the volume that makes it very attractive. It is good reading for anyone, but we would especially commend it to workmen."

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 29 '14 380w

N Y Times 19:215 Ap 26 '14 60w

THOMSON, HENRY CHARLES. Patents, trademarks, design patents. il *$5 Bellevue pub. 13-25334

"Authentic information of value to the great majority of the inventors, investors and manufacturers of the country, so far as they may be interested in all matters pertaining to patents, is contained in this book. . . . The author discusses claims and disclaimers, infringement and injunctions, copyrights, prints and labels, damages and profits. He gives also in a few lines in each case the important points in pertinent court decisions. In order to make the work the more intelligible he has arranged it throughout in the question and answer form."—Boston Transcript

"The book is gotten up in flexible leather, has a business look and is made for utility. It has an excellent index. In general it seems to render the service which a shelf full of tomes heretofore has rendered and not so well."

+ Boston Transcript p27 D 10 '13 300w

"A valuable work of reference."

+ R of Rs 49:764 Je '14 60w

THOMSON, JOHN ARTHUR. Wonder of life. il *$3.50 (2c) Holt

"The aim of this book is to illustrate the ever-growing wonder of animated nature—with especial reference to animal life. It is an unconventional introduction to natural history and biology, taking broad views of the actual lives of living creatures and working inwards. It is therefore complementary to other books which begin with the minute analysis of the individual." (Preface) The book is divided into the following chapters: The drama of life; or, Vital motives. The haunts of life; or, The exploitation of the earth. The insurgence of life; or, The circumvention of space and the conquest of time. The ways of life; or, Modes of animal behavior. The web of life; or, The intricacy of inter-relations. The cycle of life; or, From birth through love to death. The wonder of life; or, The characteristics of living creatures. The book is illustrated with color plates and drawings.

"The whole book is most impressive and illuminating."

+ Ath 1914,2:654 D 19 1300w

"In all phases of 'Nature study' it must prove invaluable and teachers of zoölogy should recommend it to their scholars as an introduction to some of the problems for whose close discussion of the complex curricula of the schools and colleges of today leave little opportunity."

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 30 '14 680w

"A welcome book."

+ Ind 80:479 D 21 '14 60w

+ Outlook 109:105 Ja 13 '15 150w

"The material is presented with originality, piquancy and freshness."

+ R of Rs 51:250 F '15 100w

"No more readable introduction to biology could be desired."

+ Spec 113:896 D 19 '14 35w

THOMSON, JOHN STUART. China revolutionized. il *$2.50 Bobbs 13-9147

"Mr. Thomson writes of the myriad ramifications, the contradictory admixture of the old and the new out of which the young republic is striving to fashion a permanent power. A glimpse at his chapter heads indicates some of the many topics upon which he touches: Wit and humor in China, Business methods of foreigners in China, Railways, Shipping and water routes, America in China, International politics, The influence of Japan, The Manchu, China's army and navy, Modern education, Literature and language, Foreign cities of China, Religious and missionary China, Legal practice and crime, Chinese womanhood, Sociological China."—N Y Times.

"We notice many repetitions and blunders as to fact."

— Ath 1913,2:227 S 6 300w

Nation 97:266 S 18 '13 40w

"It is a handbook of useful information about the China that was, the China that is, and the China that shall be."

+ N Y Sun p12 N 1 '13 1450w

"A readable style, a touch of humor here and there, and a host of illustrations combine to make the book invaluable alike to men of capital, engineers, teachers, missionaries, sinologists, statesmen, literateurs and tourists."

+ N Y Times 19:34 Ja 25 '14 530w

"A very thorough study."

+ R of Rs 49:253 F '14 80w

+ Spec 112:830 My 16 '14 380w

THOMSON, SIR JOSEPH JOHN. Rays of positive electricity and their application to chemical analyses. (Monographs on physics) il *$1.40 Longmans 14-5029

The positive rays here described are the "canal rays" discovered in 1886 by Goldstein, a German scientist. "After a description of Goldstein's experiments, an account is given of Wien's discovery that these rays are deflectable by powerful magnetic fields. The theory of the deflection is shortly and clearly stated; and also the theory of the electrostatic deflection of a particle. Then follows an account of the author's first, experiments, made in 1906. . . . Finally Sir Joseph Thomson deals with continuous production of helium when certain substances are bombarded with kathode rays." (Nature)

"Extremely interesting monograph."

+ Ath 1913,2:757 D 27 1100w

"All physicists and chemists will welcome this account by the author of his wonderful series of researches." W. R.

+ — Nature 92:549 Ja 15 '14 1800w

"And if the whole Longmans series is as good as the first number, the publishers, the authors, the editors and the public may all congratulate themselves." R. A. Millikan

+ Science n s 40:174 J1 31 '14 550w

"Sir J. J. Thomson stands in the very front rank among the physicists of the world, and everything he publishes is of the greatest interest to those who watch the steady and sure advance in our knowledge of the fundamental entities which underlie matter and energy."

+ Spec 112:569 Ap 4 '14 700w

THORLEY, WILFRID CHARLES. Paul Verlaine. il *75c Houghton 14-30727

"Quite as much an impressionistic commentary on 'Paul Verlaine' as a sketch of the life of this 'Poet, wine-bibber and wastrel' is the little monograph that Wilfrid Thorley has written for the 'Modern biographies' series. It fills only ninety small pages, but is long enough, for Verlaine's story is one of the saddest in the history of French literature."—Ind

"A convenient and comprehensive condensation of the facts of Verlaine's life and writings. Written with discriminating judgment and sufficiently sympathetic to what is to be admired in him, but with a complete sense of the poet's degeneracy as well."

+ A L A Bkl 11:28 S '14

Ind 78:291 My 18 '14 90w

N Y Times 19:452 O 18 '14 230w

"The ravelled skein of Verlaine's life is set forth clearly in these pages. Mr. Thorley's translations of Verlaine's poems in the appendix are excellent."

+ Sat R 117:179 F 7 '14 370w

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE. Mental work and fatigue, and individual differences and their causes. il $2.50 (1½c) Teachers college (13-14278)

Volume three of Educational psychology presents the results of psychological studies of mental work and fatigue (in Part 1), and of individual differences and their causes (in Part 2). Part 2 is a revision of the author's Educational psychology which appeared in 1903, and, in revised form, in 1910. The topic of the first part is the temporary deterioration of mental functions due to exercise without rest—its amount, rate and changes in rate, the factors constituting it, the conditions by which it is influenced, and the effect of such deterioration in one function upon the efficiency of others. The topics treated in Part 2 are: The measurement of individual differences; The influence of sex; The influence of remote ancestry or race; The influence of immediate ancestry or family; The influence of maturity; The influence of the environment; The nature and amount of individual differences in single traits; The relations between the amounts of different traits in the same individual; The nature and amount of individual differences in combinations of traits.

A L A Bkl 11:7 S '14 (Review of v 1-3)

"The observations upon which the book is based are scientific and painstaking, but we remain unconvinced as to the value of the general conclusions drawn from statistical data of this type."

+ Educ R 48:428 N '14 60w

+ El School T 14:491 Je '14 600w (Review of v 1-3)

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE. Original nature of man. $2.50 Teachers college (13-14278)

"The original nature of man' is the first volume of a trilogy. It 'describes man's original mental equipment—the inherited foundations of intellect, morals, and skill.' Of its mates, 'The psychology of learning,' which is the second, has still to be written; while the third, on 'Individual differences and their causes,' was printed as long ago as 1903, under the title, 'Educational psychology. . . . Mr. Thorndike appears as a sort of American Socrates, applying the methods of the 'science' of psychology, in obedience to the maxim 'Know thyself.' His conclusion is no less Socratic—and triumphantly commonplace. There is a higher and a lower in human nature. For happiness and civilization it is necessary that the lower shall be controlled by the higher. The instrument of control is education. Plato said the same thing, not less eloquently, if more gracefully and convincingly, in the 'Republic' and elsewhere. But he wasn't so sure as Mr. Thorndike that the thing could be done: the American parts company with the Greek in his optimism."—Dial

THORNDIKE, EDWARD LEE—Continued.

"The book must by virtue of its robustious optimism no less than its sanity and fluency perforce appeal to all cultivated readers." H. M. Kallen

+ Dial 57:50 Jl 16 '14 800w

+ Ind 75:338 Ag 7 '13 230w

"This work on instincts represents without doubt the best and most accurate scientific thought to date about a problem or group of problems on which there has been more loose discussion in the name of science than upon any other phase of human nature." Irving King

+ Psychol Bull 10:420 O 15 '13 1100w

THORPE, SIR EDWARD, and others. Dictionary of applied chemistry; rev. ed. v 5 il *$13.50 Longmans (12-9914)

This is the concluding volume of the revised edition of this work, which has been expanded from three volumes to five. The subjects covered range from Sodium to Z.

A L A Bkl 10:340 Ap '14

"The last volume fully maintains the standard of the earlier parts of the work, most of the articles written by acknowledged authorities being models of concise and up-to-date knowledge."

+ Ath 1913,2:758 D 27 170w

"The dictionary, as a whole, reflects great credit on the wisdom and acumen of the editor, on the skilful and accurate condensations by the contributors, and on the enterprise and good taste of the publishers." J. W. Mellor

+ Nature 93:27 Mr 12 '14 380w

"It is clear that no other English work contains so much information of chemical nature." W. R. Whitney

+ Science n s 40:562 O 16 '14 900w

THREE modern plays from the French. *$1.50 (2c) Holt 14-18026

The three plays are: The prince D'Aurec, by Henri Lavedan; The pardon, by Jules Lemaitre; and The other danger, by Maurice Donnay. The first and second are translated by Barrett H. Clark, the third by Charlotte Tenney David. In addition the book contains a preface by Clayton Hamilton and introductory articles on the three French authors by Barrett H. Clark. In each of the plays, Mr. Hamilton points out in his preface, as in nearly all contemporary French dramas, the problem of illicit love comes up for analysis, but, he continues, "such plays as these are not immoral, though they exhibit immoral situations and analyze immoral people; for a sane and proper outlook upon life at large is consistently maintained by the aloof and dissociated reason of the authors."

"To give these plays in an English translation to American and English readers is a distinct service. The translation of all three is made into vigorous idiomatic English and in every way the volume is an addition to the rapidly growing library of printed plays."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 4 '14 270w

Reviewed by H. E. Woodbridge
Dial 58:43 Ja 16 '15 230w

"Each of them is a representative example of modern French drama, each of them is marked by notable literary and theatrical qualities, by skilful characterization and striking situations, and each of them is thoroughly well made. Nevertheless, there was no urgent necessity for their appearance in English form. They contain repellent situations, certainly, but there are other reasons why they would be unlikely to succeed on the English-speaking stage."

+ — Nation 100:30 Ja 7 '15 700w

THURSFIELD, JAMES RICHARD. Naval warfare; with an introd. by Sir C. L. Ottley. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) *40c Putnam 14-2010

"In this little book Mr. Thursfield sets forth with much clearness and precision the principles which should govern the conduct of war at sea. The theory presented is strictly orthodox. The phrases commonly used, such as 'command of the sea,' 'the fleet in being,' etc., are explained at length."—Spec

"A simple, condensed treatment of the principles of naval warfare, by an authority."

+ A L A Bkl 10:364 My '14

+ Sat R 118:327 S 19 '14 1100w

"The chapter on 'Invasion' is particularly happy in its treatment of a much disputed question, but that on 'Commerce in war' leaves much to be desired."

+ — Spec 112:100 Ja 17 '14 550w

THURSTON, ERNEST TEMPLE. Achievement. *$1.35 Appleton 14-17236

"This is the third and last of the series of novels wherein are related the history of Richard Furlong, the famous artist. It begins with the death of his wife, Constance, at the birth of their child, and traces the development of Dicky Furlong to his full growth and the final 'Achievement' which comes with the painting of his great picture, 'Romance.' Between these two events many things happened and more than one woman entered his life, for it is Mr. Thurston's theory that the woman is 'the father of the children of his'—i. e., man's—'brain.' Dicky Furlong worked 'under the influence of women all through his life,' and she who stimulated him to highest endeavor was by no means the worthiest of them all."—N Y Times

Ath 1914,2:328 O 3 500w

"The volume as a whole is an interesting piece of analysis." F. T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 40:439 D '14 450w

"Well written, but pagan and immoral to the core."

+ Cath World 100:685 F '15 140w

"It drops into melodrama at the end, but after much that is worthy of praise, for its sincerity and its belief in the power of man and woman alike to be unselfish to the last toward those unworthy of their supreme sacrifices."

+ — Ind 80:211 N 9 '14 70w

"The last leg of Richard Furlong's earthly journey is covered with a profound absence of levity, the chronicle being largely taken up with propounding the obvious and faithfully explaining it."

— Nation 99:689 D 10 '14 370w

"In the writing of his novel Mr. Thurston has attained to a style at once simple, clear, and poetic. Dramatic, too, at certain moments, devoid of mere verbiage."

+ N Y Times 19:504 N 15 '14 680w

"A serious, able, and unconventional novel."

+ Outlook 108:553 N 4 '14 130w

THURSTON, MRS. IDA TREADWELL (MAR-ION THORNE, pseud.). Torch bearer. il *$1 Revell 13-13541

"Mrs. Thurston, already a recognized authority on the boy mind, in this volume, 'The torch bearer,' turns her attention more specifically to girls—though it may be noted that a boy or two has crept in. The movement of the Boy scouts has aroused much interest, less known, though fully as worthy, is the development of the Camp fire girls, a similar organization, with the same ideals and requirements poured into more feminine moulds. In 'The torch bearer,' the ritual and customs of the Camp fire girls are woven into the story of the girl's life."—Boston Transcript

"Camp fire guardians will find the book suggestive."

+ A L A Bkl 10:164 D '13

"The form in which it is presented is a bit stilted."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 9 '13 120w

"In style and in spirit Mrs. Thurston succeeds admirably as a champion of the cause."

+ Lit D 47:1127 D 6 '13 110w

THWING, CHARLES FRANKLIN. American college, what it is, and what it may become. *$2 Platt & Peck 14-4072

"The president of Western Reserve university declares at the outset that the scholar plays a more important part in a prosperous democracy than the church. The community can never become finer and nobler except through the influence of the thinker." (Springfield Republican) "He is so old-fashioned, or so bold, as to think that the primary purpose of the ideal college is still to give a liberal education, a secondary purpose being to make men of efficiency."

He is equally calm in discussing athletics; concerning football, he offers some constructive criticism. Co-education draws from him the remark: 'We do not know enough about the intellect of women or about the intellect of men to say whether on the ground of sex the training should be the same or different.' (Nation)

"He has treated a number of interesting topics well and delightfully. We doubt the accuracy of some of the statistics quoted, especially as to salaries of some of the officers of instruction; but as these are taken from the usual sources the author is not to be blamed."

+ Educ R 48:212 S '14 90w

"This is clearly no book for the educational fanatic, although he sadly needs it, but others, whether parents, students, professors, trustees, or philanthropists, will enjoy the ripe wisdom in its pages."

+ Nation 98:668 Je 4 '14 220w

"The book, as a whole, suffers from a lack of definite 'attack' on the part of the author. It seems addressed to nobody in particular—or rather to different people at different times, students, parents, trustees, millionaires." F. P. Keppel

+ Science n s 40:383 S 11 '14 330w

Spec 113:397 S 19 '14 750w

"The manifold, complex problem of a liberal education receives an important contribution in 'The American college.'"

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 9 '14 580w

THWING, CHARLES FRANKLIN. Letters from a father to his daughter entering college. *50c Platt & Peck 13-13514

"Parts of these letters were read by President Thwing to his own college girls at the beginning of a college year. They are both paternal and academic. Almost all the problems a girl would have to face from the time she began to think of entering college until she said good bye at the close of the Commencement are discussed; and that very wisely, from the standpoint of a father as well as that of a college president. He begins with choosing a college, takes up the matter of location, of co-education and of peculiarities of particular colleges. Then follows the details of college life, even voice, handwriting and dress. And he finally has a very few but very sensible and very important words to say about religion."—Boston Transcript

"It is well worth while for any girl who is about to enter college to read this little book."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 27 '13 140w

"They are practical, sincere and direct."

+ Educ R 47:208 F '14 40w

TICKNOR, CAROLINE. Hawthorne and his publisher. il *$3 Houghton 13-25116

"Hawthorne is a name to conjure by, but in spite of the light Miss Ticknor flashes upon his unique and fascinating character the real protagonist of her dutiful dual presentation is her grandfather, William Davis Ticknor. His is a portrait well worthy of being added to the National gallery of fame. . . . Hitherto, by some strange fatality, the name of James T. Fields has seemed to hide from sight that of the senior partner of that world-famous firm of publishers. Miss Ticknor without in any way detracting from the services performed by the more conspicuous member, restores the right balance."—Boston Transcript

"Merely by the force of the truth, Miss Ticknor has put before the reader the picture of one of nature's noblemen. It is a charming piece of literary workmanship and well deserves the reward of extensive popularity. All admirers of America's greatest novelist will find much new material presented in gracious generosity; but, after all, the book stands as a memorial of lovely friendship."

+ Boston Transcript p7 N 15 '13 2800w

"Hawthorne, as we naturally expect, holds the hero's place in the narrative, and the light thrown upon him from this unusual angle is singularly effective. The author has done her work admirably; one notes, however, a strange preference for the use of 'penned' rather than the simpler 'wrote' or 'written'—an odd mannerism to be associated with an unusually pleasing and attractive style." W. E. Simonds

+ Dial 56:13 Ja 1 '14 3050w

"Perhaps it would have been better if we had been told more of Ticknor and less of Hawthorne."

+ Ind 77:278 F 23 '14 500w

+ Lit D 48:266 F 7 '14 350w

"This substantial and comely volume will be welcomed by every lover of our great American romancer."

+ Nation 98:165 F 12 '14 1000w

+ R of Rs 49:122 Ja '14 80w

TILBY, A. WYATT. South Africa, 1486-1913. *$1.50 (½c) Houghton (Eng ed 14-12894)

This sixth volume completes the first part of the author's work on "The English people overseas." The author expresses the hope that at some future date he may be able to complete the work with volumes on the English people in the United States, on Canada since 1867, and on India since 1828. "The six volumes now completed treat in the main of the founding of the English type of civilization; the remaining volumes will be engaged with the development of that type." (Preface) The work on South Africa covers the period between 1486 and 1913. The four books that make up the contents are entitled: To the Cape and beyond, 1486-1856; Towards the north, 1823-1900; Christianity and the empire; The union of South Africa.

"Probably—or internal evidence is at fault—Mr. Tilby has no 'great' first-hand knowledge of the country; but he has the 'authorities' evidently at his finger ends. We do not the less appreciate his chapters on the Union—the best in his book—because we remark on a tendency to smooth over old difficulties, and to present certain phases in a key of colour a little more brilliant than the truth."

+ Ath 1914.1:615 My 2 1250w

"Throughout the volume Mr. Tilby preserves a fine impartiality in his presentation of facts, Briton, Boar and aborigines being studied with a sympathy quick to discover the best qualities in the character of each and an insight into causes and motives as keen as it is discriminating. Cleanly and finely are the manifold strands of the history woven."

+ Boston Transcript p7 My 6 '14 700w

"Small slips do not detract from the value of Mr. Tilby's survey; on the larger issues he is sound. If values and relations are here and there a trifle faulty in his record of the last twenty years the blame is with the authorities rather than with Mr. Tilby."

+ Sat R 117:574 My 2 '14 630w

TILLMANS, J. Water purification and sewage disposal; tr. by Hugh S. Taylor. il *$2 Van Nostrand A14-12

"This translation of a book by a German author is about equally divided between the subjects of water purification and sewage disposal. Water purification is taken up under two headings: (a) Purification on a large scale; (b) purification on a small scale. Under the first head the municipal problem is considered, while under the second head the problems of household purification and purification for manufacturing plants are dealt with. . . . The sewage disposal is taken up under three main headings: (a) Disposal of domestic sewage; (b) disposal of industrial sewage; (c) disinfection of sewage."—Engin Rec

A L A Bkl 10:320 Ap '14
Ath 1913,2:42 JI 12 60w

"The subject is presented in a logical and readable way and the work of translation seems to have been well done, except for an occasional apparent unfamiliar term, perhaps due to a too literal translation."

+ — Engin N 70:1265 D 18 '13 220w

"The book is illustrated, well written, and of interest and value to the engineer who wishes to follow current practice in Germany in these subjects." W. E. Fuller

+ Engin Rec 68:504 N 1 '13 350w

TITTONI, TOMMASO. Italy's foreign and colonial policy; tr. by Baron Bernardo Quaranta di San Severino. il *$2.50 Putnam (Eng ed 15-4006)

"As the reader analyzes these utterances, he sees many indications that Italy has for years been leaning toward the nations now composing the Triple entente, and that she has been, if not edging away from the Triple alliance, at least not embracing it with whole-hearted or increasing fervor. Throughout the thirteen speeches on foreign relations, of which the first was delivered on Dec. 15, 1903, before the Chamber of deputies, and the last before the same body on Dec. 4, 1908, certain guideposts keep recurring, pointing the way toward the very inaction in the interests of the Triple alliance which Italy is now displaying."—N Y Times

"The translator has done his work adequately."

+ — Ath 1914,2:494 N 14 600w

"Those speeches in this book wherein international affairs are dealt with by Signor Tittoni, one of the ablest foreign ministers Italy has had, are of illuminating interest today because of the light which they throw on some of the reasons for Italy's attitude in the present war."

+ N Y Times 19:549 D 6 '14 1500w

+ — Spec 113:716 N 21 '14 1850w

TODD, ARTHUR JAMES. Primitive family as an educational agency. *$1.75 Putnam 13-16163

"The purpose of the book, as its title indicates, is inductive study of the primitive family in order to discover its function in education. A great variety of sources such as books of travel, ethnography, history, folklore, etc., are drawn upon for the data of primitive family life. In order to discover the real function of the family, the author has investigated its origin and development, its changing forms, its incidental customs and traditions. He has studied marital, parental and filial relations, ideas of kinship and relationship, the aim, content, methods and organization of primitive education." (Ann Am Acad) "The family is looked upon by Professor Todd as purely a social product; as an institution which has been molded by human experience for the satisfaction of human needs." (Am J Soc)

"Dr. Todd's monograph is a useful and thoroughly scientific piece of work. As a study of a particular function of the family, in the early stages of evolution, it marks an advance in this field of research. This excellent study is a welcome and timely contribution to sociological literature. It will help to win for the family and the related institutions a proper place in modern education." G. E. Howard

+ Am J Soc 19:558 Ja '14 1050w

"While many of his generalizations seem to be based upon insufficient data, and numerous conclusions are a bit dogmatic, the work is an exceedingly valuable one among inductive studies in education, especially at a time when foundations are being reexamined." J. P. Lightenberger

+ — Ann Am Acad 50:289 N '13 370w
Pol Sci Q 29:553 S '14 110w

"Dr. Todd is well-read; he writes clearly and arranges his facts to advantage. His book is susceptible of defence against those who do not accept his conclusions as a necessary protest against the large class of writers who regard the historic case for the family as proved."

+ — Sat R 116:753 D 13 '13 180w

"So sympathetic am I with Professor Todd's main undertaking, the cornering of the sentimentalism, and so much in agreement with his general contention that none-familial agencies may have been or may become much more efficient in education than the family that I am reluctant to criticize his method and regret having to question several of his minor arguments." E. C. Parsons

+ — Science n s 39:654 My 1 '14 1200w

TODD, BURBANK L. Hiram the young farmer; or, Making the soil pay. il *$1 (1½c) Sully & Kleinteich 14-7575

This is the first of a new series for boys to be known as "Back to the soil series." Hiram Strong, a country-bred lad, has spent two years in the city, and is just beginning to feel that he has made a mistake and that there is no future for him there, when an opportunity offers that will take him back to the land. His landlady, Mrs. Atterson, inherits an eighty-acre farm and doesn't know what to do with it. Hiram offers to manage the place for her, and tho he has big odds to work against, he makes it pay, and at the end of two years finds a bigger opportunity awaiting him.

TODD, MILLICENT. Peru, a land of contrasts. 12 il *$2 (3½c) Little 14-16581

"Any statement regarding Peru implies a contrary statement equally valid," says the author in her introduction. It is so she describes it, as a land of contrasts, of intense heat and bitter cold, of barren desert and tropic jungle. The book is divided into three parts, following the natural divisions of the country: The desert, The mountains, and The jungle. The illustrations are from photographs and old prints.

A L A Bkl 11:170 D '14

"The style is often eloquent, at times over-rhetorical."

+ — Boston Transcript p25 O 7 '14 400w

"In incisive and vivid language she gives us pictures with rarely a touch too much—scenes suggestive and dramatic."

+ Ind 80:141 O 26 '14 140w

+ N Y Times 19:433 O 11 '14 140w

R of Rs 50:758 D '14 40w

"Miss Todd has made a very wide and comprehensive study of Peruvian history, exploration, natural history, etc. She has an unusual gift for vivid description and an excellent style; yet while much real information is given through the medium of her brilliant sketches, it would not have detracted from the readability of the book had the proportion of practical information been higher."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 O 1 '14 330w

TOLSTOI, ILYA, count. Reminiscences of Tolstoy; tr. by G. Calderon. il *$2.50 (3½c) Century 14-30873

These reminiscences of Tolstoy by his son are of a very intimate character, beginning with a little boy's impressions of a father who was the cleverest man in the world. One chapter, on Anna Karénina, is devoted to Tolstoy's literary methods and his attitude toward his work; one treats of his relations with Turgényef, one is a summing up of his characteristics as a father, but most of them are made up of anecdotes and stories and incidents of home life. A letter written to his wife some years before his final leaving of home, and one written after his death by his sister, who seems to have understood him better than did any other who knew him, throw light on that strange occurrence.

A L A Bkl 11:120 N '14

+ — Ath 1915,1:26 Ja 9 600w

"It is merely necessary at the present time to emphasize the value of these intimate recollections both as records and as entertainment." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 10 '14 600w

"Extremely valuable material is contained in this volume for those interested primarily in Tolstoi's religious and economic opinions, and the genesis and development of these opinions becomes very natural as we observe the actual process." O. D. Wannamaker

+ Dial 57:387 N 16 '14 1550w

Ind 80:244 N 16 '14 60w

"This is a book which every admirer of Tolstoy will wish to read."

+ Lit D 49:1017 N 21 '14 250w

"With a filial piety carefully restrained in expression he blends reverence for his father's genius and a recognition of his faults and follies."

+ Nation 99:608 N 19 '14 1050w

"Hardly can one begin to know Tolstoy's character justly without reading Count Ilya's book."

+ No Am 200:945 D '14 200w

+ R of Rs 50:635 N '14 80w

+ Sat R 118:sup3 N 14 '14 1050w

"It is one of the most companionable books of recent issue, simply because of its intimate personal touch."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 3 '14 1300w

TOMLINSON, EVERETT TITSWORTH. Scouting with Daniel Boone. (Pioneer scout ser.) il *$1.20 (1½c) Doubleday 14-17985

The story opens in the year 1773 with a band of settlers from Yadkin, North Carolina on its way to Kentucky under the leadership of Daniel Boone. James Boone, the scout's eldest son, and a friend Peleg Barnes, are the two boys whose adventures are related.

+ A L A Bkl 11:179 D '14

"It is inartistically constructed, evidently written in haste and shows one of Dr. Tomlinson's great faults: a desire to be accurate results always in a final chapter where facts are crammed like raisins in one part of a badly mixt cake."

— Ind 80:417 D 14 '14 60w

"A bit of fiction with a smattering of historical and biographical truth. There is more scouting than there is Daniel Boone, and tho we gain an idea of the intrepidity of the back-woodsman, the chief center of interest is in the young hero who wins Boone's confidence and really out-Boones Boone."

— + Lit D 49:1132 D 5 '14 200w

Reviewed by H. L. Reed

Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 100w

TOMLINSON, EVERETT TITSWORTH. Young 1 sharpshooter. il $1.50 (1½c) Houghton 13-19336

This story, the first volume in a series dealing with the civil war, follows the events of McClellan's peninsular campaign in 1862. Two brothers, Frank and Noel Curtis, enlist together and are detailed as sharpshooters, as both are skilled riflemen. The two are separated and Noel believes his brother dead, but going home on furlough, he finds that Frank, who has been in prison, has reached there just before him, and the story comes to an end with this happy meeting.

"We have had a great many such stories, but probably none written in so human a fashion as Mr. Tomlinson's." M. C. Anderson

+ Bookm 38:319 N '13 100w

"The boys' adventures are numerous and thrilling at times, but the impression of army life and discipline which the young reader is likely to get is hardly in accord with accepted ideas on this subject."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 O 9 '13 120w

TOMLINSON, PAUL GREENE. To the land of 2 the caribou. il *$1 (2c) Scribner 14-15562

A boy's story, describing a trip to Labrador taken by four real boys. In his preface the author tells how it came about. A yawl had been purchased by a group of Princeton men for presentation to Dr. Grenfell, and four undergraduates, with a Newfoundland skipper, made up the crew that sailed her from New York to Labrador. The author was one of the four and in his story he has followed closely the incidents of the actual trip, touching them up slightly for dramatic effect.

"Every true lover of the woods and the open sea, will read with pleasure the story of the trip of the 'Spray.'"

+ Cath World 100:391 D '14 130w

Lit D 49:1137 D 5 '14 120w

"A good story of the sort boys love."

+ N Y Times 19:393 S 20 '14 80w

TOMPKINS, ELLEN WILKINS. Egotistical I. 1 *$1 Dutton 13-24452

This book 'is rather an uncommonly refreshing compound of personal memoirs, little nature-talks, and philosophic revery brought down to a very practical, homely level. The hero or narrator is a simple gentleman arrived at the youthful age of sixty years. . . . In his quaint old-gentlemanlike way, he tells of his acquaintances, the Imaginary Listener, the Youthful Pessimist, the Chance Acquaintance, the Young Doctor. His pursuits and the incidents of his life have their share of interest —his garden and his fowls, his summer trips, and his match-making."—Nation

"Good to read aloud."

+ A L A Bkl 10:245 F '14

+ Bookm 39:337 My '14 650w

"The genial, friendly, sympathetic character of Mr. Wilkes and his benevolent interest in all sorts and conditions of men attract us and draw us on from page to page. But unfortunately the book is injured by elementary errors in spelling, punctuation, the use of hyphens and capital letters, and in grammar, especially in the use of would and will."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 D 31 '13 250w

"The book contains many pleasing ideas expressed in clear terms of everyday life. Its charm lies in a simple flowing style and in the very ordinary nature of the incidents and reflections."

+ Nation 98:35 Ja 8 '14 220w

"A sunshiny, friendly little book."

+ N Y Times 18:659 N 30 '13 150w

"A pleasant little book of mild philosophy and simple romance."

+ Outlook 106:96 Ja 10 '14 50w

TOPHAM, ANNE. Memories of the Kaiser's 10 court. il *$3 (3½c) Dodd 14-17945

Miss Topham went to the Kaiser's court in 1902 as teacher of English to the little princess Victoria, then nine years old, and remained in that capacity up to the time of the girl's marriage. Her memories therefore are very recent, and are filled with interesting and illuminating anecdotes of the Kaiser and members of his family. The little princess herself, as her governess describes her, is very winning, light-hearted, a trifle spoiled, and something of a tom-boy in her early years, developing later into an attractive young woman. The reminiscences of the author are personal; she is little concerned with affairs of state; but she tells of one instance in which a German woman of rank begged her to reveal the secret of English success in colonization, confessing to a total German failure in Alsace-Lorraine. She gives a description, also, of a royal entry into Metz which is pregnant with significance.

TOPHAM, ANNE—Continued.

A L A Bk 11:167 D '14

"Miss Topham's [book] is far more trustworthy than most of its kind, and her anecdotes of the Kaiser and his family bear the stamp of sincerity. It is true that some of her stories are old, but their staleness may be forgiven in view of their humour. The whole book is full of interest."

+ Ath 1914.2:243 S 5 1350w

+ Nation 99:749 D 24 '14 250w

"She gives a view of the royal family life intimate yet discreet, candid yet entirely free from sensationalism—a view which, in the face of present events, must go far to balance in the public mind some natural misapprehensions of German character."

+ Outlook 108:657 N 18 '14 180w

"These reminiscences are written with much ability and a charming lightness of touch."

+ Spec 113:328 S 5 '14 2450w

"So well written as to have more interest than is ordinarily found in books of this type."

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:304 D '14 60w

TOUT, THOMAS FREDERICK. Place of the reign of Edward II in English history; based upon the Ford lectures delivered in the University of Oxford in 1913. (Manchester univ. pub.; historical ser.) $3.50 Longmans

"How mediæval society and mediæval institutions developed when left to themselves is the argument which Professor Tout has here elaborated. It has been the fashion to discount the place which Edward of Carnarvon fills in our history as unworthy of serious consideration.

To this popular conception of the period Professor Tout administers a just rebuke. He has no 'new revelation' nor, of course, does he hold a brief for Edward or his intimates. But he suggests a point of view which does very materially affect our judgment on the importance of the reign. Apart from the question of administrative reforms, to which he pays large attention, he finds that the 'very ineffectiveness of Edward's reign made permanent the constitutional machinery of Edward I,' and that the military and ecclesiastical history no less than the social and economic aspects of the reign are well deserving of study."—Sat R

"This suggestive and carefully written volume is a most important contribution to the history of the development of governmental machinery in England."

+ Ath 1914.2:192 Ag 15 800w

"It is a work of the soundest scholarship, and his treatment of documentary evidence is characteristic of the thoroughness of Professor Tout's historical method."

+ Sat R 118:228 Ag 22 '14 250w

"His whole book demands the most careful attention from historical students, and it is not easy to overrate its value and its importance."

+ Spec 113:sup444 O 3 '14 1200w

TOWER, CHARLEMAGNE. Essays, political and historical. il $1.50 (2½c) Lippincott 14-18488

The author, who represented the United States at the court of Russia from 1899 to 1902, and served as ambassador to Germany from 1902 to 1908, is admirably fitted to write upon the foreign relations of our country. Five of the seven essays in this collection are concerned with international problems; the remaining two are historical. Contents: The European attitude toward the Monroe doctrine; The treaty obligations of the United States relating to the Panama canal; Diplomacy as a profession; Some modern developments of international law; Lord Cornwallis in America; The relations of the United States to arbitration for the settlement of international disputes; General Howe's campaigns in the revolutionary war.

"The book will be found a welcome addition to the political or historical section of any library."

+ Cath World 100:546 Ja '15 470w

Ind 80:341 N 30 '14 60w

+ Nation 100:27 Ja 7 '15 170w

N Y Times 19:508 N 15 '14 90w

Spec 113:934 D 26 '14 80w

TOWNSEND, JOHN WILSON. Kentucky in American letters, 1784-1912; with an introd. by James Lane Allen. 2v $7 Torch press 13-23234

"The limitations of his subject are carefully observed by Mr. Townsend. A Kentucky book he defines as 'one written by a Kentuckian, about Kentucky or Kentuckians and printed in Kentucky . . . a book written by a Kentuckian upon any subject under the sun, and published in any clime,' or even 'one written in Kentucky by a citizen of any other state or country.' . . . The range of material is catholic in the extreme, including such diverse and contrasting products as those of Henry Clay, Zachary Taylor, Jefferson Davis, Henry Watterson, Oscar W. Underwood, John Fox, Jr., James Lane Allen, Alice Hegan Rice, Hallie Erminie Rives, and those of the old household favorite, Mary J. Holmes."—N Y Times

"Mr. Townsend's informational work is safer than his critical conclusions. The work, as a whole, although not systematically arranged, is not only a satisfactory compilation for students of literary effort and achievement in Kentucky, but is also a useful contribution to the history of letters in America." G. H. Clarke

+ Am Hist R 19:672 Ap '14 700w

"The editing has been well done."

+ Lit D 48:1124 My 9 '14 150w

"Kentucky has every reason to be proud of her literary roll of fame, and Mr. Townsend in compiling it has rendered a notable service to his native state and to American literature, which will be admired, and we trust emulated, by scholars in other sections of the country."

+ N Y Times 19:330 Ag 2 '14 770w

TOY, CRAWFORD HOWELL. Introduction to the history of religions. $3 Ginn 13-24168

"This is the fourth volume of 'Handbooks on the history of religions' edited by Morris Jastrow, jr. The author very clearly and concisely states why he wrote his book: 'The object of this volume is to describe the principal customs and ideas that underlie all public religion.' By public religion the author means external religion in distinction from individual religious emotional experience, which is what he terms internal religion. The latter, he says, hardly appears at all in the records of advanced culture. Both the external and the internal history of religion is important, but the former is the subject of this volume."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bk 10:407 Je '14

"This work is sure to take its place among the very best introductions to the history of religion that we have."

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 18 '13 730w

"Admirable and indispensable volume." S. A. Cook

+ Hibbert J 12:930 Jl '14 2100w

"It is a valuable and fundamental work for every student of religion."

+ Ind 80:245 N 16 '14 60w

"The value of Professor Toy's book consists in its comprehensiveness. Professor Toy's treatment of magic is perhaps the least satisfactory part of his work."

+ Nation 98:209 F 26 '14 1400w

"An outstanding feature of this instructive work is its attitude of detachment from every interest but that of an investigator as impartial as a visitor from Mars."

+ Outlook 107:319 Je 6 '14 350w

TOYNBEE, PAGET JACKSON. Concise dictionary of proper names and notable matters in the works of Dante. *$2.50 Oxford 14-12662

"Paget Toynbee's 'Dictionary of proper names and notable matters in the works of Dante' which has been out of print for some years, is now republished. The reduction in length indicated in the new name has been effected chiefly by the omission of controversial matter. The old articles have been revised and brought up to date, and a number of new ones have been added."—Nation

"While constrained to make small criticisms, we cordially welcome the book as containing, in a cheap and compact form, the greater part of the matter comprised in the larger work."

+ Ath 1914,1:823 Je 13 500w

"No student of Dante can afford to be without this invaluable handbook."

+ Cath World 100:553 Ja '15 60w

"The thoroughness and trustworthiness of the earlier form of the work are well known; the new and more convenient form will be very welcome to students of Dante."

+ Nation 98:701 Je 11 '14 100w

TRACY, LOUIS. Terms of surrender. *$1.25 Clode, E. J. 13-20824

"The course of action that will be taken by a strong man faced by severe misfortune is always an interesting study, and Mr. Tracy has made the most of this fact. Here we have in Derry Power a type of the best that is produced by a British public school, suddenly bereft by fraud of all that makes life worth living for him. At the same time he makes a discovery by means of which he becomes supremely wealthy—a fact for which he cares nothing in view of the other circumstance. . . . How he goes through the valley of the shadow, suffers all that a human heart can suffer, and eventually attains peace and happiness is told in Mr. Tracy's best style."—Ath

"The theme is, of course, well worn, but it is capable of being told and retold in such a manner as this, and if Mr. Tracy has touched no very great psychological depths, he has at least produced an excellent story."

+ Ath 1914,1:131 Ja 24 230w

"All the numerous sensations are entertaining."

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 18 '14 300w

"For all its varying scenes and complicated plot this book does not rank with Mr. Tracy's best work. It is not so interesting as certain other of his tales, it lacks spontaneity and the dénouement is so improbable that it becomes rather tame. Much of the book is entertaining, especially the first part, and it contains an abundance of incident."

+ N Y Times 19:83 F 22 '14 450w

TRACY, VIRGINIA. "Persons unknown." il 12 *$1.35 (1c) Century 14-18805

Sitting by his window on a hot night, Bryce Herrick watches the shadow of a woman on the window blind across the way. The shadow makes a strange and dramatic gesture, there is a pistol shot, and the lights go out. When the room is entered a man's dead body is found but there is no trace of the woman. Herrick, called in as a witness in the trial that follows, falls immediately in love with Christina Hope, the young actress who is suspected of the crime. Circumstantial evidence is not strong enough to hold her, but the suspicion remains. In the course of the story the mystery deepens, and new mysteries are added. After a successful first night in a new play, Christina disappears from view. A band of Camorrist enters into the plot, and the final clearing up depends on a new character, introduced into the final chapters.

"From this dramatic opening one is led to expect a story that will thrill and hold the reader. The final part of the story is too involved and too many characters are introduced, until one's head swims in trying to follow them."

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 370w

+ Nation 100:81 Ja 21 '15 200w

"Considering that it is a first novel, the author of this story of a mysterious crime deserves not a little commendation. For it shows remarkable fertility of invention, an active and nimble fancy, and a style whose imaginative quality gives promise of better things. The story suffers, indeed, from too luxuriant an abundance of these factors, or perhaps it would be better to say, too unbridled a use of them."

+ N Y Times 19:505 N 15 '14 300w

TRAUBEL, HORACE. With Walt Whitman in Camden. 8v v 3 il *$3 (1½c) Kennerley

The third volume of Traubel's talks with Whitman. As was mentioned in connection with the first volume, published in 1906, the author makes no claim to biographical completeness, but simply gives Whitman's words as they dropped from his lips during a period of close companionship. The conversations recorded in this volume occurred during 1888 and 1889 and their greatest value lies in their self revelation of Whitman, man, poet and philosopher.

+ Boston Transcript p5 Je 3 '14 820w

Boston Transcript p6 J1 18 '14 670w

"Whatever else may be said, there is material here, in abundance, for the future portrait-painter of an undeniably picturesque subject."

P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 56:493 Je 16 '14 1600w

+ Lit D 4 :888 N 7 '14 400w

"Mr. Traubel has adhered to his original plan to leave his story as he wrote it, taking nothing off, and with no attempt to improve it. The result is not altogether happy. About the occasional flashes in the talk of Whitman and the occasional good letter Mr. Traubel's record flows like a vast ocean of frothy commonplace, with reaches of positive vulgarity."

+ Nation 98:728 Je 18 '14 900w

"The advantage of this faithful phonographic sort of writing is that it gives us an immensely cumulative sense of the actual man, as he must have appeared to Traubel himself or any visiting friend. It also has its immense disadvantage, and that is that the utterly trivial things, which appear so plentifully in every life as we know it, and are forgotten while the salient points of character and speech are recalled, are by this method perpetuated and really inundate the important and characteristic things." Bliss Carman

+ N Y Times 19:265 Je 14 '14 1400w

R of Rs 50:117 J1 '14 50w

"The present volume furnishes a complete allegory of human life as it converges on this man, and will enjoy a kind of pre-eminence in curiosity that the original personality it depicts enjoys."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 450w

"It will be a pity if this life of Whitman does not become widely known in America."

J: Erskine

+ Yale R n s 4:415 Ja '15 1700w

TREITSCHKE, HEINRICH GOTTHARD VON. 12 Selections from Treitschke's Lectures on politics; tr. by Adam L. Gowans. *75c (3c) Stokes (Eng ed 15-189)

A book made up wholly of selections from the works of Treitschke, with only a brief introductory note by the translator. The lectures from which the selections were made were delivered at Berlin university and they are translated from an 1899-1900 edition of his works. Contents: The nature of the state; The social foundations of the state; The constitution of the state; The administration of the state; The state in international intercourse.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 520w

"The selections here given have the merit of following the original very closely, and they cover a range of topics sufficiently representative to enable the hurried reader to obtain from them a very fair idea of the trend of Treitschke's thought." F: A. Ogg

TREITSCHKE, H. G. VON—Continued.

+ Dial 58:44 Ja 16 '15 524w

Ind 80:504 D 28 '14 630w

N Y Times 19:551 D 6 '14 380w

Outlook 108:816 D 9 '14 30w

Spec 113:673 N 14 '14 630w

TREITSCHKE, HEINRICH GOTTHARD VON.

<sup>12</sup> Treitschke: his doctrine of German destiny and of international relations. il *$1.50 (1½c) Putnam 14-22289

Treitschke is the German historian who is said to have declared: "I write for Germans not for foreigners. Consequently 'foreigners' had known little of his work until events forced a recognition of its effects upon them. George Haven Putnam in his foreword to this volume says: 'The history of the French revolution could not be considered without analysis of Rousseau and his writings, and in like manner, the present action of Germany, which amounts to a revolution, in initiating the European war of 1914, will always be connected in history with the teachings of Treitschke.' This book is made up of a study of Treitschke's life and work, by Adolf Hausrath, followed by selections from his writings on: The army; International law; First attempts at German colonization; Two emperors; Germany and neutral states; Austria and the German empire; The alliance between Russia and Prussia; Freedom.

+ Boston Transcript p10 Ja 9 '15 300w

Reviewed by F: A. Ogg

+ — Dial 58:44 Ja 16 '15 130w

+ Ind 80:504 D 28 '14 130w

N Y Times 19:509 N 22 '14 930w

"A book of value to those who want to know about one of the chief sources of the war."

+ Outlook 108:816 D 9 '14 60w

"We can't help wishing part of the hundred and thirty-six pages given up to Treitschke's biography had been devoted to more of those timely and readable essays." Robert Lynd

+ — Pub W 86:2018 D 12 '14 750w

Spec 113:720 N 21 '14 130w

"Valuable as is this volume it is a distinct shortcoming that there is no orderly statement of the main prosaic facts of Treitschke's life."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 2200w

TREMLETT, MRS. HORACE. Curing Christopher. *$1.25 (1½c) Lane

Christopher Brown, a mild-natured and well-thought-of suburban dweller, with a nice little wife and two nice children, breaks a life-long record of sane living to fall madly in love with Leah Manisty, an actress. To her credit it must be said that she does nothing to encourage the infatuation, actively discourages it, indeed, as her affections are placed elsewhere, but Christopher is persistent, and in his ingenious efforts to deceive his wife, brings on the amusing complications of this tale. For she can explain his queer actions only in one way—he is mentally deranged. And in short order the family doctor, a nerve specialist, and a Christian scientist are all exerting themselves to bring about a cure.

"The theme of this story does not appear to us to possess any great interest. The author's workmanship is good and seems worthy of better material."

+ — Ath 1914,1:sup468 Mr 28 70w

"If only some one had had the inspiration to slap Christopher on the wrist early in the first chapter this story would probably never have been written."

+ — Nation 99:136 J1 30 '14 300w

"The story is a series of awkward situations, which always melt off into the ludicrous just when they seem ready to end in tragedy. The unexpected turns and complications are very neatly contrived and are amusing enough to furnish many a laugh for an idle hour."

+ N Y Times 19:238 My 17 '14 230w

TRESSALL, ROBERT. Ragged-trousered philanthropists. il *$1.25 (½c) Stokes 14-11528

Miss Jessie Pope, one of the editors of "Punch," who edits this volume, says in her preface: "A few months ago a friend asked me to look at the manuscript of a novel, the work of a socialistic house-painter, who wrote his book and died. I consented without enthusiasm, expecting to be neither interested nor amused—and found I had chanced upon a remarkable human document." This is the novel that is here printed—a grimly realistic picture of working-class life in England. The characters are a group of painters, plasterers and carpenters employed by a contracting firm, and their noon-hour discussions, which the author reproduces, throw light on the working-class view of life. Only one of their number, Frank Owen, a consumptive painter, is fully awake to the true meaning of their situation and the causes that underlie it; the others are stupidly and doltishly acquiescent in their lot.

+ A L A Bkl 11:157 D '14

"We wish that Miss Pope, into whose hands, we learn, the manuscript of the novel came, had bestowed more time and care on it. Repetition has not only escaped her pruning-knife, but there is also at least one apparent hiatus which, rightly or wrongly, we have debited her with. Nevertheless, we commend this work to the sociologist and the politician alike; while the general reader will find its pages a document of compelling interest and tragic stress. It is a book that by no means should be overlooked or ignored."

+ — Ath 1914,1:584 Ap 25 800w

"Too much of a special plea to leave the reader anything but cold."

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '14 850w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 56:504 Je 16 '14 300w

Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 40w

+ — Ind 79:136 J1 27 '14 630w

+ New Republic 1:25 N 14 '14 650w

"The one book with which the story can best be compared is Zola's 'Germinal.' It lacks, of course, the artistic instinct and the marvelous skill which make that compact, closely articulated picture of life among the French miner folk a masterly piece of fiction. But the method by which Robert Tressall was guided in his writing is very similar. With less of his preaching the story would have been both better as art and more moving as a human document."

+ — N Y Times 19:241 My 24 '14 1000w

+ Outlook 107:503 Je 27 '14 320w

+ R of Rs 50:125 J1 '14 720w

"His book is full of wrong-headed ideas and notions, unbalanced statements about landlordism and property and money, and is likely to do a great deal of harm if placed in the hands of uneducated or half-educated people. Yet with all its faults and crudities the book deserves a patient reading. It is fearless and as a record of experience it is true."

+ — Sat R 117:540 Ap 25 '14 500w

+ Spec 112:962 Je 6 '14 220w

Reviewed by M. R. Felix

+ — Survey 32:642 S 26 '14 350w

TREVELYAN, GEORGE MACAULAY. Clio, a muse, and other essays, literary and pedestrian. il *$1.50 Longmans 14-30076

"The eight essays in Mr. Trevelyan's collection are divided into two classes denominated by him 'literary' and 'pedestrian.' Of the first mentioned, his studies of George Meredith, of John Woolman the Quaker, and of 'Poetry and rebellion' are typical; in the other category he discusses 'Walking' and 'The Middle Marches.' The three remaining papers that make up the series, 'Clio, a muse,' 'Poor Muggleton and the classics,' and 'If Napoleon had won the battle of Waterloo,' are historical, semi-historical and pseudo-historical."—Boston Transcript

"Contains several essays of distinct historical interest."

+ Am Hist R 19:699 Ap '14 40w

"An addition to any library which needs good essays."

+ A L A Bkl 10:238 F '14

"Interesting volume."

+ Ath 1913.2:617 N 29 450w

"As those who have read Mr. Trevelyan's studies of John Bright and Garibaldi know, he is an exceedingly careful, exact and painstaking worker in the field of history and biography. He possesses, moreover, such an imaginative and allusive style that he may be read with a constant pleasure, not only by the student, but by the reader who is seeking merely a literary diversion." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p25 N 26 '13 1050w

"We read these charming essays with the most intense pleasure, although we found ourselves dissenting more than once from the author's cocksure statements of fact and theory."

+ Cath World 99:248 My '14 280w

"It need scarcely be said that all of the essays are charmingly written. The style is clear without being unpleasantly crisp and business-like; its leisurely urbanity and relaxing humor are most engaging." Carl Becker

+ Dial 56:336 Ap 16 '14 1100w

+ Ind 79:249 Ag 17 '14 450w

+ Nation 98:243 Mr 5 '14 350w

"Altogether, the volume is one of those likely to occupy a permanent place on the shelf of all who come to possess it, for it is both attractive and thought-provoking. The companionable book is all too rare, and should be given the heartiest kind of welcome when it appears." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:9 Ja 11 '14 1000w

+ Outlook 106:152 Ja 17 '14 500w

+ R of Rs 49:376 Mr '14 180w

"Mr. Trevelyan has often clear and original thought, and sometimes reaches a touch of vision; and the gift of saying what he wants to say effectively and pleasantly has come down to him unexhausted."

+ Sat R 117:21 Ja 3 '14 750w

"Mr. George Trevelyan's essays delight us with something of the same charm as his history: they are the expression of no barren patchwork soul, but of one stalwartly equipped with an individuality, a temper, a few prejudices and a serious and devoutly held philosophy. He writes out of an abounding interest in things, and whether he is discussing the theory of history or Border walks or the influence of Greece on Byron's poetry he infects the reader with his zest and compels him to keep pace with him."

+ Spec 111:918 N 29 '13 1550w

TREVELYAN, SIR GEORGE OTTO. George
12 the Third and Charles Fox. 2v v 2 il *$2.25
Longmans (12-2517)

"Sir George Trevelyan has long since enlarged 'The early history of Charles James Fox' into a general narrative of the American revolution. The present volume, covering the march of events from Burgoyne's surrender at Saratoga to the fall of Lord North and the beginnings of the Rockingham ministry, is planned on the same generous scale as its predecessors." (Ath)
"Sir George Trevelyan has laid aside his pen just as the history of this country and England separates. No American can close his pages without acknowledging the kindness, the justice, and the sympathy with which he has written of the beginnings of his own country and feeling that here is an Englishman indeed who is honestly glad that the revolution fell out as it did." (N Y Times)

+ A L A Bkl 11:167 D '14

"The story flows gracefully along; its current is never rapid; but the course kept is direct enough."

+ Ath 1914.2:322 O 3 1300w

"Whether the author's conclusions be accepted or rejected, all will admit that he has produced a work of singular charm; our only regret is that his style and his art have enshrined a mistaken view of American history." L. M. Larson

+ Dial 58:14 Ja 1 '15 1600w

+ Educ R 48:536 D '14 70w

Reviewed by H. E. Egerton

+ Eng Hist R 30:153 Ja '15 1700w

+ Lit D 50:249 F 6 '15 880w

"The judicious selection of material and the charm of presentation amply compensate for the few errors to be found."

+ Nation 99:631 N 26 '14 1300w

+ N Y Times 19:509 N 22 '14 1150w

"It is as fascinating a volume as any of its predecessors. There is the same urbanity, the same humour, the same quiet good spirits in the writing, the same polish, and an even greater sense of the full mind behind the full pen."

+ Spec 113:527 O 17 '14 2500w

TREVENA, JOHN. Granite. *$1.35 (1c) Kenner-
2 ley

Strange indeed is the influence of that austere Dartmoor landscape on those who attempt to write of it; and as this influence has colored the work of Hardy and Phillpotts, so has it affected in a like manner this work by John Trevena. It is a story of many threads, but in chief it is the story of Mark Yeo who attempted to pit his frail physical strength and resolute soul against the evils of drunkenness and debauchery that were eating up the manhood and womanhood of his native village, even as his father, Will Yeo, had spent a lifetime in an effort to overcome the granite boulders that cumber his field. The outward accomplishment of each is trifling—as the achievements of any one individual must be. Mr. Trevena has not only an understanding of man's infinitesimal place in nature; he has a remarkable sense of geologic time and of the momentary character of the life of man within it.

"Nothing in 'Granite' makes for hurried reading. Like its predecessors, it is written for the deep thought of many a leisure hour and for that sort of intellectual pleasure that absorbs itself in the innermost recesses of human evil and human good. It is a story of Dartmoor, but it is at the same time a story of the world at large." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 1150w

"What he has accomplished is a piece of work that, were it about Brown county, Indiana instead of Dartmoor, England, would be bound to interest many American readers." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:204 S 16 '14 200w

"Sharp characterization, analysis, and a gift of dramatic narrative—these things Mr. Trevena has."

+ Nation 99:349 S 17 '14 320w

"The book is well named; it is as severe, as uncompromising, as devoid of any touch of softness or pity as the stone which gives it its title—and as impressive. There is humor in it, but it is humor of a singularly bitter kind. Those readers who like a 'sweet story' will not care for 'Granite,' and, indeed, there are pages in it which will make even the strong-minded quail. Mr. Trevena spares his reader nothing."

+ N Y Times 19:357 Ag 23 '14 830w

TREVENA, JOHN. Sleeping waters. *$1.35 (1c)
2 Kennerley

The story opens in London where the young priest, John Anger, known as "Father Jack," has all but given his life in the service of his people. He has become a physical wreck and, with little hope of ever recovering health, goes to Dartmoor. Here he does find healing for his body, but his mind, overtaxed too, goes off on a series of strange and weird adventures of its own. It is these adventures, compounded from his actual experiences and from bits of folk-lore and neighborhood history with which a friend had filled him in the early days of his illness, that form the main part of the story. In this dream world he ceases to be a priest, even a Christian, to become a pagan. He loves Petronel, the spirit of the moors; hates his enemy, Curgenvin, with a fierce, primal hatred, and is finally driven to murder. Then gradually his mind comes back to its own world. But he finds that he is changed. The priesthood can no longer be his vocation, and he renounces it, to marry and lead the life of a common man.

TREVENA, JOHN—Continued.

"The story is fascinating in its complexity."

+ Ath 1913,1:251 Mr 1 40w

"Each transitory stage in the story is ingeniously made plausible, and its overwhelming influence upon the reader is one of the profoundest plausibility. 'Sleeping waters' is a unique novel, and it discloses still further and more emphatically the genius of John Trevena." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 13 '15 1400w

"Here Mr. Trevena is far more intelligible, as well as more agreeable, than in 'Wintering hay' or its immediate predecessors. It must be owned that there is something a little casual and off-hand, to the least Catholic of readers, in this conclusion of an interesting tale."

+ Nation 100:143 F 4 '15 500w

"It would be difficult to find a novel more unusual or more original. That it is beautifully written, full of poetic passages, and contains many fascinating descriptions of the moor which is said to have brought health to its author as to John Anser, will be regarded as a matter of course by those who have read any of the preceding books, and therefore know that John Trevena is unquestionably one of the most notable of living writers."

+ N Y Times 20:9 Ja 10 '15 1200w

TREVENA, JOHN. Wintering Hay. *$1.35 (½c)
12 Kennerley

In his early youth, just on the verge of manhood, Cyril Rossingall commits murder. The act is unintentional; the man he kills is worthless; there is little chance that his disappearance will ever be noted. Cyril buries him in the bracken and keeps his deed a secret from all but one person, and for the ten years of his life which the story follows, pays a price for its keeping. But by bitter irony the friend whom he tells, in order that his own mind may be somewhat relieved, pays a price that is greater than his own. It is a story of many characters and its plot is not easy to follow; nor has it a clearly defined "lesson" for the reader who will look for one in a story of this kind. For tho Cyril pays his price, he is left at the end in a state of peace, of peace won back from nature who, tho she is cruel, can be kind in that she heals her own scars.

"We may dislike what Trevena offers, we may disagree with his attitude toward life, he may often directly repel us, but we know that we have to do with a literary personality of undoubted power whom it is worth while to study and to comprehend." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:327 N '14 530w

"People in profusion throng Mr. Trevena's pages, many of them grotesque both in mind and body, incidents mingle so that the reader is frequently vexed to distraction, and so multitudinous are the happenings and so devious is the course of his story that it is impossible to describe or even to suggest a fragment of its contents. It is because Mr. Trevena is so much a problem, so much a mystery, that he looms large in the English fiction of the present moment, and that he bids fair to hold a high place in its future. No one can read him without being impressed by the force of his imagination, and no matter how much he may annoy and amaze us at times by his eccentricity, we cannot fail to see in him the genius that perhaps is all the greater because it is unregulated. He is a novelist to be read, to be studied and to be discussed." E. F. Edgett

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 17 '14 2100w

"The confused fanciful melancholy of 'Bracken,' its misdirected or undirected ardor of imagination, its moral impotence, are to be found again, if less repellently, in 'Wintering Hay.'"

— Nation 99:552 N 5 '14 550w

"A well-wrought novel of an excellent craftsmanship which stuns nothing, a novel which compels belief that the events which it relates really occurred, and occurred for the reasons it assigns."

+ N Y Times 19:459 O 25 '14 970w

TREVES, SIR FREDERICK. Country of "The ring and the book." il *$5 Funk 14-187

"Sir Frederick Treves divides his story of 'The country of the ring and the book' into three parts. First, he tells the tale as it was utilized by Browning for the plot of his poem; second, he pictures its scenes successively in various parts of Rome, at the inn in Merluzza, at Arezzo, and during the flight on the road to Rome; third, he describes the people of the story as they appear in the poem. . . . Sir Frederick's volume offers a series of views of the entire narrative, and it brings by means of photographs many of them directly before the eye of the reader."—Boston Transcript

Boston Transcript p9 Ja 24 '14 580w

"The topography of the gruesome tale is given in vivid detail, and with great charm of description."

+ Dial 56:189 Mr 1 '14 380w

"Exhaustive guide, to the country of 'The ring and the book.'"

+ Nation 98:405 Ap 9 '14 470w

+ N Y Times 19:303 Jl 5 '14 130w

"Sir Frederick Treves unrolls the tale with the first-rate reconstructive power of a skillful counsel. He has a gift for straightforward vivid narration and the faculty, where motives are concerned, of deciding that it was this and that one which counted, this and that which happened."

+ Spec 111:873 N 22 '13 800w

TREVOR, ROY. Montenegro: a land of warriors. (Peeps at many lands) il *55c Macmillan (Eng ed 14-57)

"Studiously avoiding the controversy of the nearer East, the author gives a concise sketch of Montenegro, and depicts the life and customs of its inhabitants of the present day."—Ath

"An interesting account."

+ A L A Bkl 10:420 Je '14

"There are some attractive coloured illustrations."

+ Ath 1913,2:87 Jl 26 30w

TREVOR-BATTYE, AUBYN BERNARD ROCH. FORT. Camping in Crete. il $4 Scribner (Eng ed A14-1067)

"A description of the scenery and natural features of the island of Crete. The author has added notes and observations on the animal and plant life, people, and industries of the island; and Miss Dorothea Bate has contributed a description of Cretan caves and their ancient deposits. The book is illustrated with photographs and a map."—Ath

+ A L A Bkl 10:365 My '14

Ath 1913,2:622 N 29 50w

"Mr. Trevor-Battye covers his ground most thoroughly." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 14 '14 900w

+ Nature 93:29 Mr 12 '14 300w

TRIGGS, HARRY INIGO. Garden craft in Europe. 1 rope. il *$15 Scribner 13-15735

"An able summary of the development of garden craft in Europe from the earliest times until the close of the eighteenth century. The book opens with a glance at the records of gardening as practised in ancient Greece and Rome, and then proceeds to describe the principal features of mediæval gardens, in regard to which the old illuminated manuscripts furnish interesting records. The Italian garden is next discussed, and there follows a lengthy account in three chapters of the gardens of France, after which those of the Netherlands are described. The succeeding chapters are reserved for the gardens of England, Germany, Austria, and Spain, the survey winding up with a chapter on the English landscape school and its influence on the Continent."—Int Studio

"Mr. Triggs has enhanced his reputation and should achieve the end he has in view—the end, we take it, of giving data upon which the garden designers of the present day can build, and others who would conserve the old gardens of which they are trustees can work, secure in the tradition of an art as old as civilization itself."

+ Ath 1913.1:676 Je 21 1050w
Dial 55:484 D 1 '13 180w

"Excellent bibliography."

+ Int Studio 50:165 Ag '13 250w

"The book gives a more general view of the whole field of garden design in Europe than is found in any other one volume. The illustrations are excellent, some of them are new."

+ Nation 97:600 D 18 '13 430w
+ Spec 111:390 S 13 '13 100w

TROTTER, T. H. YORKE. Making of musicians: the rhythmic method of teaching music. $1.50
Dutton

"Mr. Trotter is against the teaching of music as 'the giving of facts'—facts of notation and of technique. It should be directed to the development of the artistic nature of the pupil, the cultivation of instinct—first toward the feeling for music, later toward the intellectual side. He lays great stress on the teachings of rhythm from the beginning. Harmony should be used also from the beginning. He enters into detail as to the first steps in training, which he carries on in singing. The study of notation should come after the 'feeling for music' has been developed."—N Y Times

"Educators will find in this little book other hints worth pondering in regard to the first teaching of music, as well as the instruction of advanced pupils." H. T. Finck
+ Nation 99:614 N 19 '14 200w

Reviewed by R. Aldrich
N Y Times 20:47 F 7 '15 230w

TROUBETZKOY, AMÉLIE (RIVES) CHAN-
LER. World's-End. il $1.30 (1½c) Stokes
14-6988

The initial situation of this novel is unusual. Phoebe Nelson, a young Virginia girl, is betrayed and deserted by Richard Bryce. Owen Randolph, Richard's uncle, who knows her secret, marries her, not telling her that he knows but expecting that in time she will confess to him. The child that is born to her he accepts as his own and much of the story thereafter is taken up with Phoebe's remorse and with her efforts to tell him the sorry tale of which she thinks he knows nothing. An ironic touch is added to the story by the fact that Richard, who had expected to come into possession of his uncle's estate, World's-End, is disinherited in favor of his own child.

+ Ath 1914.2:178 Ag 8 250w

"In general, it is a vivid, well-written story of distinct originality. The characters are well drawn and they move through the pages with a human vivacity."

+ Boston Transcript p25 Ap 29 '14 570w
+ Ind 79:73 Jl 13 '14 350w

"It is impossible to leave the subject of 'World's-End' without a tribute to its wholly delightful humor."

+ N Y Times 19:206 Ap 26 '14 580w
+ R of Rs 49:761 Je '14 100w

"The poverty of recent fiction is materially relieved by the addition of 'World's-End' to the list of few notable novels of the year. It is a well-executed and thoughtful discussion of a subject on which people, generally, are all too intolerant."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 300w

TRUE Ophelia and other studies of Shakespeare's women, by an actress. $1.25 Putnam
A14-1331

The author, herself an actress, "gives her impressions, both from reading and from the sensible avouch of her own eyes as she has watched the procedure of the stage, of six characters more or less frequently acted, Ophelia, Juliet's mother, Queen Gertrude, Lady Macbeth, Portia and Katharine the Shrew."—Boston Transcript

+ Ath 1913.2:504 N 1 110w

"The author writes of the six characters with sympathy and understanding, drawing liberally upon the plays to illustrate her meaning, and viewing their thoughts and activities with a sentiment that is none the less appealing because it is so truly feminine. Common sense, so frequently absent from books of Shakespeare commentary, is conspicuous here by its presence. Agree or disagree as we may with 'An actress's conclusions we cannot hesitate to applaud her sound reasoning and the vivacity with which she makes of Shakespeare's women real human beings.' E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 4 '14 750w

"This is a very clever little book, and particularly interesting as the product of keen and original observation quickened by professional experience. The book is very good reading."

+ Nation 98:476 Ap 23 '14 900w

"Reading the chapters of this actress, we cannot help rather hoping that she is not too full of engagements just now. This book needs a successor, and we hope she will be able to find time for it."

+ Sat R 116:690 N 29 '13 400w

TRUMBULL, CHARLES GALLAUDET. Anthony Comstock, fighter. il $1.25 Revell
13-24440

The author has written the biography of a unique figure in American life. "'A lifetime of adventure in conflict with the powers of evil' is the apt phrase he employs to describe the career of 'Anthony Comstock.' . . . The moral and physical courage repeatedly shown by Mr. Comstock in his forty years' contest with the promoters of vice fully justifies the phrase." (R of Rs)

"There are few who will not profit by a careful reading of Mr. Trumbull's interestingly written story. Its chief value lies in its revelations of moral history in America during the last forty years. It is a 'source' of first-class rank and first-hand value, which future historians will use and appreciate. Not only so; but wholly aside from its moral and scientific value, the book is worth while merely as a pastime."

+ Bib World 43:63 Ja '14 160w

"An interesting biography."

+ Ind 77:420 Mr 23 '14 20w

+ Lit D 48:497 Mr 7 '14 200w

R of Rs 48:758 D '13 70w

TSANOFF, CORRINNE (STEPHENSON), and
TSANOFF, RADOSLAV ANDREA. Pawns of liberty: a story of fighting yesterdays in the Balkans. $1.35 (1½c) Outing pub. 14-17927

The authors have told a truly stirring tale of the Balkan struggle for freedom from Turkish oppression, a struggle which they represent as having gone on for five hundred years. The actors in the drama look back to the deeds of their fathers and of their fathers' fathers for inspiration. It is a story not of actual warfare but of the ceaseless little revolts and uprisings and massacres that preceded the outbreak of the Balkan war. One of the leaders of these uprisings is a girl whose home has been wrecked by Turkish brutality. She is wounded in a skirmish with Turks and finds shelter in a hermit's cave. The hermit is young and stalwart, but he had turned his back on the world to seek peace with God in the mountains. The coming of Adalena wakens him from his slumbers and, roused by her fire and patriotism he too goes out to fight for Macedonia. Another notable character in the story is Mihirmah, third wife of Murad Pasha, the Turkish tyrant.

TUCKER, GEORGE FOX. Income tax law of 1913 explained; with the regulations of the Treasury department to Oct. 31, 1913. *$1.50 Little 13-26144

The author "gives the law in full, shows how it differs from other American income tax law, discusses methods of procedure, and cites rulings and decisions upon the earlier laws which he thinks will be followed in the interpretation of the law now in force."—N Y Times

"For lawyers or those engaged in some connection requiring a knowledge of the law, the book would be valuable."

+ A L A Bkl 10:365 My '14

"Unfortunately for the taxpayer so large a number of later rulings have already appeared that he can not view this volume as a safe guide on any points upon which he is in doubt."

— + Ann Am Acad 53:316 My '14 120w

"A useful contribution toward the elucidation of a statute that is more or less of a puzzle to those with whom it deals."

+ N Y Times 19:107 Mr 8 '14 80w

TUPPER, SIR CHARLES. Recollections of sixty years. il *$5 Funk (Eng ed 14-10278)

"Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., now in his ninety-second year, presents the appearance of a man somewhere in the seventies. These recollections of Canadian life and politics and his own share in them cover the last sixty years, the period of Canada's great development. . . . The great part which Tupper played in railroad-building is described in detail. . . . We miss in Tupper's autobiography a personal element that might have made it more interesting. He gives us little insight into the Canada of his boyhood and early manhood. He writes rather as a statesman, for he is a statesman, to his finger-tips, and prefers to discuss political and fiscal questions in their relation to the growth and prosperity of Canada, rather than to give glimpses into his individual life."—Lit D

"Sir Charles Tupper's 'Recollections' take rank at once as political history."

+ Ath 1914.1:485 Ap 4 550w

"The book will be something monumental as a contribution to the history of England's important possession. We feel in laying it down that we have obtained a fuller and clearer grasp, not only of the political history, but also of the importance of our neighboring dominion. The style in which the book is written is clear and simple, and the illustrations, mostly portraits, add much to its value."

+ Lit D 48:914 Ap 18 '14 750w

"This volume is frankly and aboundingly egoistical. It is, moreover, quite as frankly partisan. And it is almost as frankly pagan." E: Porritt

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:523 S '14 700w

"In his reminiscences he tells the whole story of Canadian nationhood."

+ R of Rs 49:632 My '14 160w

"One real defect must be noted in this book. It is so exclusively political that it is rather the raw material for history than a biography. It gives us Sir Charles Tupper the statesman, but the man eludes us."

+ — Sat R 117:374 Mr 21 '14 800w

"It is a remarkable contribution to the history of empire-building, and we offer Sir Charles Tupper our congratulations on the completion of this worthy memorial to a life of constant public service."

+ Spec 112:sup681 Ap 25 '14 180w

— Spec 113:897 D 19 '14 50w

TUPPER, GEORGE WILLIAM. Foreign-born neighbors. il $1 Taylor press, 167 Tremont st., Boston 11-12527

"Dr. Tupper was appointed immigrant secretary for the Young men's Christian association of Massachusetts and Rhode Island five years ago. In this little book he tells the story of the work accomplished by his co-workers and himself. . . . Dr. Tupper went to the great emigrant ports of Europe and studied these would-be citizens of the new world as they left their native lands, and then he came back to America and began to put into practice some plans which his study of the emigrant suggested. . . . The book is a most encouraging one. It makes plain the fact that the immigrant who is eager to understand our language and institutions is not a dangerous addition to our population; he is not a liability, but an asset; he will not impoverish, but will enrich the land."—Boston Transcript

Am Econ R 4:939 D '14 30w

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 15 '14 400w

"It should be found useful by all who are engaged in immigrant work." K. H. Claghorn

+ Survey 33:267 D 5 '14 100w

TURBERVILLE, ARTHUR STANLEY. House of lords in the reign of William III. (Oxford historical and literary studies) *$2.90 Oxford 14-7505

"Mr. Turberville deals with the House of lords in one of the most interesting periods in its history, when it stood as the embodiment of a tradition of government which trenchanted upon numerous spheres." (Spec) "He draws largely on the House of lords' mss, recently printed, and thus supplements on many points the standard authorities for the period." (Ath)

"Altogether the volume is a contribution to the subject, and a worthy number of the series in which it stands." E: L. Turner

+ — Am Hist R 19:887 Jl 14 750w

"Mr. Turberville's little book is an indispensable supplement to Hallam and Macaulay and their modern successors. The bibliography appended is excellent."

+ Ath 1913.2:618 N 29 780w

"It is difficult to find any specially novel generalizations in Mr. A. S. Turberville's scholarly and most exhaustive book." G. B. H.

+ Eng Hist R 29:405 Ap '14 190w

"The least satisfactory chapter is that on the social position of the peerage." E: Porritt

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:718 D '14 650w

+ Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 150w

TÜRCK, HERMANN. Man of genius. *$4 Macmillan

"This is the first English edition of a work that has reached its seventh edition in Germany, where it has been highly praised as a work of critical and literary genius quite adequate to its subject." (Outlook) "For Dr. Türcck genius holds no mystery. Starting out with the aesthetic of Kant, he arrives at entire agreement with Schopenhauer that 'genius is simply the completest objectivity, i. e., the objective tendency of the mind, as opposed to the subjective, which is directed to one's own self.'" (Nation)

"The book as a whole is a powerful mental stimulant and the new interpretation of Hamlet's character has an unexpected fascination." Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 40:565 Ja '15 150w

Nation 99:750 D 24 '14 550w

Outlook 108:657 N 18 '14 250w

Sat R 118:250 Ag 29 '14 600w

TURNBULL, MARGARET. Looking after Sandy: a simple romance. il *$1.35 (1c) Harper 14-15367

Sandy was a little waif from the poor house, taken in and sheltered by a kindly spinster. When Miss Perkins's death left the little girl alone again, fear that she would be sent back to the institution prompted her to run away. She bought a ticket for New York, where she was sure some one could be found to look after her, but luckily for her she left the train before it reached the big city and so found her way to Egypt, New Jersey, and to the home of the Sandisons. With six children of their own, the Sandisons still found room for another, and Sandy grows up as one of their own. Troubles come later, and the sudden death of the father and mother leaves the children self dependent. Then Sandy proves that she is one of them indeed, taking a share in their burdens. The story leaves her a successful author and playwright, and about to be happily married.

"A simple and entertaining romance."

+ A L A Bkl 11:124 N '14 +

"Looking after Sandy" is a very pretty story and there isn't a doubt that it will be a decidedly popular one."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 31 '14 160w

"The big-hearted family that adopts the little founding makes life so merry that one resents the entrance of tragedy, especially since it tends to deaden the story's spontaneity, and the impetus that swept the author along in the first part seems to need a little prodding toward the end."

+ — Ind 80:174 N 2 '14 70w

"The story is readable and wholesome, told in a clear and easy style, and enlivened by humor. It deserves what it will no doubt obtain, as large a circle of friends as did its heroine."

+ N Y Times 19:462 O 25 '14 130w

"The author does some capital characterizations and tells a story distinguished by quiet development and humor rather than by anything thrilling or dramatic."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 7 '15 500w

TURNER, GEORGE KIBBE. Last Christian. il
12 $1.25 (1½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-17090

The story of a New England community and of the waning influence of the church. "Mark my words," cries one of the characters in the first chapter, "when we give up the Word of God as it is written, when the Smyths and Perkins make over our religion for us, the day of the last Christian has come." This "last Christian" of the old order, who accepted the Bible as inspired from cover to cover, whose personal God was as real to him as was the personal devil, is the pastor of the White Church. The pastor's daughter who stands staunchly by him, and the young man who tells the story, beginning with his own boyhood with its fear of hell-fire are the other chief characters who have a part in the story's slight action.

"A love episode in the last few pages, which seems to have been dragged in, without excuse or justification from anything that preceded it, must be adjudged a detraction from the merits of the story."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 O 24 '14 450w

Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 300w

"It is a book of genuine power, a faithful and sympathetic epitome of the passing of an ancient supremacy." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:653 D 3 '14 130w

"The whole story makes an interesting study of a local phase of social development."

+ N Y Times 19:475 N 1 '14 320w

"He has done a good piece of work in this book, delineating characters in their religious development with considerable psychological skill."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 N 26 '14 1100w

TURQUAN, JOSEPH. Love affairs of Napoleon;
7 tr. by J. Lewis May. il $1.25 (1c) Lane

While there are affairs of state and the din of war in the background of this narrative it is, as the title implies, Napoleon under the spell of little god Cupid rather than of the war god Mars who stalks through the pages. The author's revelations will serve as a severe jolt to blind hero-worshippers' deification of the compelling Bonaparte; while others who have condemned him for his infatuations and especially for his abandonment of his wife Josephine will find slight justification for his behavior, at the start, in the woman's own conduct at Malmaison in the early years of their married life. The author shows how Josephine wove about Napoleon a spider's web; and how he, "poor dotting dupe, had allowed himself to be entangled like the veriest fool alive." There is little comment upon the actions of Napoleon throughout the long series of attachments presented here. The author aims at recording the truth and the reader may draw his own conclusions.

TURQUAN, JOSEPH, and AURIAC, JULES
* EUGÈNE d'. Great adventuress; Lady Hamilton and the revolution in Naples, 1753-1815.
il $3.75 Brentano's (Eng ed 14-16577)

"The life of Lady Hamilton is told from her birth . . . her youth spent as a serving maid, through her numerous love affairs, her friendship with the Queen of Naples, to her final death after years, when she was poor and forgotten. . . . The two authors of the book are rather harsh critics of the personal character of the hero of Trafalgar, which is more easy to understand in that they are not Englishmen. They lay at his feet many serious charges, which are not wholly compensated for by the genius which did so much for British arms in the hour of England's desperate need."

—Boston Transcript

"In conclusion, we think the authors have been ill-advised in putting the book on the English market, not so much because it offends English sentiment as because it treats historical questions in a manner contrary to the critical canons accepted in England."

—Ath 1914,2:7 Jl 4 750w

"Combines in an unusual way the character of the popular account with that of the authoritative biography. In spite of the many opportunities offered to allow the love of the conjectural to predominate, the two authors furnish as nearly as possible adequate proof for every position they take in relating the lives of the characters of the book." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 700w

+ N Y Times 19:323 Jl 26 '14 170w

Sat R 117:646 My 16 '14 270w

Spec 112:sup1069 Je 27 '14 80w

TUTTLE, CHARLES RICHARD. Alaska: its
2 meaning to the world, its resources, its opportunities. il $2.50 F. Shuey & co., 563 Empire bldg., Seattle, Wash. 14-14352

"After explaining the territorial government of Alaska the author presents in some thirty-odd chapters the country from every point of view. Neither does he neglect the political aspects which have been debated in connection with the railroads and timber grants. The value of Alaska is dealt with in accounts of its gold, copper, coal; the wealth of Alaska in the fisheries, seals and furs, agriculture, grains, grasses, vegetables and fruits. Climates and resources, transportation issues, railway routes, and the national government's programme, are among the important topics studied. Scenic Alaska and Alaska as the land of the sportsman is also given particular attention."—Boston Transcript

"Of the number of books on Alaska this is certainly not the least exhaustive. Mr. Tuttle has produced a remarkable account of the country, its resources and opportunities."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 26 '14 400w

"An excellent compilation of available facts."

+ R of Rs 50:758 D '14 130w

TYRRELL, REV. GEORGE. Essays on faith
2 and immortality; ed. by Maude D. Petre.
*$1.40 Longmans A14-1156

"Father Tyrrell was excommunicated in 1908 for criticising—though with good Catholic precedents—the papal bull against modernism. His autobiography was published two years ago by Miss Petre, his literary executrix, with a memoir and supplementary documents—the story of a noble struggle for a free intellect and conscience. Further memoranda of that struggle appear in the present volume. Drawn and re-arranged mainly from Father Tyrrell's notebooks and journals, they give chief prominence to the subjects named in its title. The essays on Faith run largely on the line of the so-called new theology that is modernizing the old protestantism."—Outlook

+ Ath 1914,1:514 Ap 11 930w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

TYRRELL, GEORGE—Continued.

"The book will be especially interesting to those who have followed the career of this Roman ecclesiastic."

+ Bib World 45:119 F '15 40w

Reviewed by James Walker

+ Hibbert J 13:462 Ja '15 1050w

N Y Times 19:215 Ap 26 '14 70w

Outlook 108:52 S 2 '14 200w

U

ULFERS, S. Idylls of a Dutch village; tr. by R. Williamson-Napier. *$1.75 Dutton

"Some stray books of Dutch literature hold one with almost the same spell as the vivid colours and interiors, the fishwives and tavern scenes of the early Dutch masters. In 'Idylls of a Dutch village' one feels the rural peasant life. A village is always more apt to leave an epic impression than a town, because one can follow the entire web of the lives within it, while a city is a skein of tangled threads one loses. One can see Wiegen, the dreamer, a kind of Dutch Joseph, whose prophetic gifts were spoiled by his love for a maiden; by wine and the cares of a young family. And Ake, the mad woman of the village, and her vagabond son, also have the epic quality of peasant life."

—Sat R

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 320w
Ind 78:564 Je 29 '14 30w

"The sketches together make a clear picture, and a very human picture."

+ Nation 99:45 Jl 9 '14 250w

"The sketches are very uneven in quality. So far as it is possible to judge from a translation, the author's style seems to be simple and fairly direct. Both in matter and in manner he—or she!—is not at his best when attempting to be profound or psychological. Efforts in such directions show a conventionality and naïveté of outlook which is not impressive. There is nothing remarkable about Eastloorn or its presentation; nevertheless, one may spend a couple of hours there very comfortably."

+ — N Y Times 19:270 Je 14 '14 280w

"The book is excellently translated."

+ Sat R 117:119 Ja 24 '14 130w

"We should like to praise the delicacy of these idylls, and the care of Mr. Williamson-Napier's translation, but, to tell the truth, they are uninspired, and even dull."

— Spec 112:75 My 2 '14 30w

UTERMEYER, LOUIS. Challenge. *$1 Century 14-7716

"Mr. Utermeyer's second book of verse sends us back to the commonplace and the familiar to find the fullness of life. To him there is no great, no small if one has vision." (R of Rs)
"He is a radical, but an affirmative radical; he is angry at certain traditions, but (like all true poets) he knows the greatness of faith. Love and democracy are his favorite themes, and few living poets are worthier to sing them." (Lit D)

+ A L A Bkl 11:21 S '14

"In his own verse, brave and buoyant as much of it is, Mr. Utermeyer, who is interested primarily in ideas, aspires fatally to be the poet of a movement—all the movements. Hence too often in his little volume, 'Challenge,' the 'new poetry' seems synonymous with the old rhetoric, and he remains, on the whole, the poet of a single poem—that quaint conceit, 'Caliban in the coal mines.'" W. A. Bradley

+ Bookm 40:202 O '14 720w

"The importance of Mr. Utermeyer's volume is certain to grow as time goes on, more especially as the public will come to realize that with the most alluring artistic expression he has embodied the most significant prophetic ideals of today." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 26 '14 1100w

+ Lit D 48:1053 My 2 '14 850w

+ Nation 99:248 Ag 27 '14 250w

Reviewed by Helen Bollis

+ N Y Times 19:221 My 3 '14 700w

R of Rs 50:122 Jl '14 500w

"One of the most pleasing of recent contributions to American poetry."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 14 '15 520w

"No cunning craftsman in language, he is keenly sensitive to the beauty of words and phrases; he has the power and the ambition to reflect the life of our day; he has clear vision and imagination. Of such gifts is a poet made." E. B. Reed

+ Yale R n s 4:184 O '14 550w

URNER, MABEL HERBERT (MRS. LATHROP COLGATE HARPER). Woman alone. *$1.25 (2c) Harper [14-16947]

"A more contemptible creature than the hero—if hero he may be called—of Mrs. Urner's latest novel one cannot well conceive. He oscillates between wife and mistress, unable to be faithful to either, bound to the wife he detests by a cowardly awareness of her power to make herself supremely disagreeable more than by any other thing; and to the mistress, first, of course, by passion, then because he has forged a chain hard to break. . . . The story does, however, convey the lesson powerfully told in 'Anna Karénina,' repeated again and yet again, and always in vain, that, whenever there is guilty passion the woman pays, and 'the woman alone.'"—N Y Times

"In a physical and emotional sense the novel is surprisingly lacking in suggestiveness and entirely without the dangerous appeal of the ordinary sex novel. For this much does Mrs. Urner deserve fair commendation, even though her psychological revelations of her characters inflict upon us an agony of soul greater than that of the senses."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 250w

"Her story is well told, but it is filled with most unpleasant scenes, it has an ignominious and painful ending, and it leaves a distinctly bad taste in one's mouth."

+ — N Y Times 19:461 O 25 '14 160w

USHER, ABBOTT PAYSON. History of the grain trade in France, 1100-1710. (Harvard economic studies, v. 1) ii *$2 Harvard univ. press 14-1934

"The first and larger part of the book describes the development of the market organization, with especial regard to the ways by which Paris and Lyons secured their grain supply; part 2 covers the subject of public regulation; and the book closes with a table of measures, a glossary, a bibliography of manuscript and printed material, and index. Two maps, in black and white, illustrate market areas."—Am Econ R

"That the book is hard reading is due largely to the difficulty of the subject, and the character of the manuscript material on which it is mainly based. The author's meaning is sometimes obscured in the introductory chapter by vagueness in the use of technical economic terms, but is made clear in later chapters when illustrated by concrete facts." Clive Day

+ — Am Econ R 4:623 S '14 800w

"This volume is in every way in keeping with the character of the series of which it is a part. It is thorough and scholarly, is based on minute and extensive research in the manuscript records and, while not always indicating as complete an assimilation of the material as might be wished, there is ample evidence that the author has a good grasp of his subject. This does not, however, prevent the book from being difficult and dry."

+ — Am Hist R 19:874 Jl '14 850w

"It is the reluctant opinion of the reviewer that only the latter part of this work can be regarded as remotely satisfactory. Even there the limitations are glaring. As a whole the work is an amorphous combination of ill-digested material." J. W. Thompson

 — + Ann Am Acad 53:342 My '14 1050w

There is a certain lack of consecutiveness in Dr. Usher's treatment of the subject, no doubt due to its diversities. But he has clearly not spared himself in the production of this substantial chapter of the history of European trade."

+ — Ath 1914.1:618 My 2 450w

"So far as a layman can judge, the work of Dr. Usher has been thorough and exhaustive."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 29 '14 170w

"The book covers the period from 1400 to 1700 in a manner which is extensive in scope and intensive in research."

+ Ind 78:401 Je 1 '14 90w

"Exhaustive, scholarly monograph."

+ R of Rs 49:370 Mr '14 40w

USHER, ROLAND GREENE. Rise and fall of the High commission. $5 Oxford 14-2143

"In this important volume Dr. Usher deals with a subject which, in spite of its prominence in political controversy, has never been comprehensively and seldom impartially treated. . . . The commission is commonly regarded as a creation of the Elizabethan statute of 1559, and it is generally spoken of as a court pure and simple. . . . Dr. Usher shows, we think conclusively, that the commission was not a creation but an evolution, founded ultimately upon a long-established practice, and finding its more immediate origin in the letters patent issued to Cromwell in 1535. He shows, moreover, that the commission was at the beginning, and down almost to its end, not merely a court but an administrative body exercising most useful functions, while even as a court it performed duties both necessary and popular."—Spec

"The author has discussed his difficult theme impartially and his judgments seem warranted by the evidence which he is able to present." Williston Walker

+ Am Hist R 19:882 Jl '14 600w

"In general the author has used his materials with great modesty and effectiveness." J. M. Vincent

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:708 N '14 500w

Ath 1913.2:621 N 29 100w

"A most valuable addition to the history of English institutions." C. G. Bayne

+ — Eng Hist R 29:369 Ap '14 1100w

"A work definite in character, admirably compact, direct, and scholarly."

+ Nation 99:350 S 17 '14 1450w

"After all is said, however, Dr. Usher's volume remains a solid and valuable achievement in a field where accuracy and impartiality are unfortunately almost impossible."

+ — Spec 111:sup948 D 6 '13 830w

USHER, ROLAND GREENE. Rise of the American people. $2 (2c) Century 14-7507

In this "philosophical interpretation of American history" the author's aim has been "to give the reader a lucid account of results and not of processes; to explain briefly the meaning of the facts of national development, rather than to chronicle the mere sequence of events—for, from my point of view, the founding of colonies, the granting of charters, the battles, debates and constitutions are not in themselves history, but simply the material out of which history must be made. . . . I believe that the essential and elementary 'facts' in history are not the actual events but the more complex conclusions which are to be deduced from a series of such events." He sees in the history of the United States "the story of the assemblage of the crude materials for a great people and of the development in them of a national consciousness."

"The essay leaves a general impression of having afforded its author an amusing pastime in a field with which he is not sufficiently familiar. Professor Usher's results can be termed neither good philosophy nor careful history." H: B. Learned

— Am Hist R 20:161 O '14 800w

"Good for supplementary work in high school or college."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:23 S '14

"A more valuable book of its kind on American history has not been written." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 1000w

— Ind 79:174 Ag 3 '14 200w

"The only chapters that are distinctly inadequate are those dealing with the colonial period."

+ — Nation 100:85 Ja 21 '15 400w

+ N Y Times 19:365 Ag 30 '14 1200w

"Mr. Usher's book about the meaning of American history is extremely compact, readable, and enlightening—a book of the soundly and broadly instructive kind which is precisely suited to the needs of the thoughtful general reader who prizes intellectual grasp and lucidity above the niggling details of specialized learning."

+ No Am 200:298 Ag '14 750w

+ — Outlook 107:562 Jl 4 '14 200w

+ R of Rs 49:758 Je '14 100w

UTTER, ROBERT PALFREY. Guide to good English. $1.20 Harper 14-17840

This book, the author says, has been based on the experience of a number of years spent in handling manuscript, both in newspaper and publishing offices and in college classrooms. "It is not intended to be a compendium of all knowledge relating to our work, but merely a useful arrangement of the principles, and a few rules, which we must use every day, and which we must have either at our fingers' ends or at our elbows." (Introduction) Part 1, Workmanship, is given up to such matters as spelling, punctuation, paragraphing, etc. Part 2, Method, is concerned with collecting and organizing material; Part 3 takes up Prosody and grammar.

"An admirable course of instruction for those who wish to write well."

+ N Y Times 19:481 N 1 '14 80w

Springfield Republican p5 O 29 '14 110w

V

VACHÉE, COLONEL. Napoleon at work; tr. with a foreword by G. F. Lees. il $2 Macmillan

"'Napoleon at work' is the outcome of an effort made by a learned French soldier to reconstruct from documents, and by the aid of a strong historical imagination, the processes by which the greatest of all strategists prepared a general plan of campaign and carried out its most critical operations. Col. Vachée, moreover, is not content to stop short at historical reconstruction. He is anxious also to relate the past to the present, to discover in Napoleon's methods the elements of permanent value, and draw from such a campaign as that of Jena in 1806 lessons applicable to the enormous warfare of to-day."—Ath

"We are indulging in no commonplace of laudatory criticism when we say that Col. Vachée, has added to the vast library of Napoleonic literature a book indispensable to the military student, and of the highest interest to the general reader to-day. A second edition should correct the rather numerous misprints."

+ — Ath 1914.2:445 O 31 1550w

+ N Y Times 20:1 Ja 3 '15 900w

"Able and fascinating study."

+ Sat R 118:463 O 31 '14 1350w

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY. Loot, from the temple of fortune. $1.25 (2c) Doran

A14-1071

A volume of short stories for which the author, in explaining the title, apologizes unnecessarily

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY—Continued, since there are always readers who enjoy good short stories and are glad to see them rescued from oblivion in the pages of old magazines. The first three stories are united; all describing episodes at Gloriani's restaurant. Gloriani's is in London, and its proprietor rejoices in a double resemblance to Napoleon I and Caruso. A dozen or more unrelated stories follow.

+ A L A Bkl 10:373 My '14

"Lovers of short stories will welcome this collection, for the tales it contains are well written, and told with gaiety and skill."

+ Ath 1913,2:701 D 13 30w

"These short stories are simply not in the same class with his novels," F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 39:559 Jl '14 370w

"Each one of the stories is interesting and worthy of an English writer of some merit."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 25 '14 350w

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 60w

"Mr. Vachell need not be so mightily superior, nor write so slightly of these efforts of his imagination. We are not going to say that all the stories in this book are worth book form, but some are. Nearly all of Mr. Vachell's stories have a glad, gay note about them, and for this reason alone amid the mass of the morbid and the mawkish they deserve a welcome."

+ Sat R 116:689 N 29 '13 400w

"Although his sketches occasionally become almost too light, and leave but little substance in our grasp, Mr. Vachell has the deftness of touch necessary to such slender drawing, and a brilliant, inconsequent imagination."

+ Spec 112:138 Ja 24 '14 150w

VACHELL, HORACE ANNESLEY, Quinneys'.
12 *$1.25 (1½c) Doran 14-18460

The story opens on the day that Joe Quinney succeeds to his father's business. Quinney, senior, a second-hand and curio dealer, had delighted in quantity, his soul had exulted over the acquisition of miscellaneous job lots. His son, Quinney, junior, has an idea that it is quality that should count and starts business on that principle. The story follows the development of his ideas of quality and the causes of his sudden decision to deal only in genuine articles and "honest fakes." It follows too his domestic life and his relations with his wife and daughter. Quinneys' interest is primarily in things, his wife's in persons. Even his daughter is to him a choice gem, an item in his collection, until certain circumstances lead him to look on her as a personality.

+ A L A Bkl 11:177 D '14

+ Ath 1914,1:sup869 Je 20 380w

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

+ Bookm 40:560 Ja '15 250w

"It may be said without reflecting in the slightest degree upon Mr. Vachell's originality or suggesting for a moment that he is a mere imitator, that in 'Quinneys' he has done the Arnold Bennett sort of thing in the Arnold Bennett way. He has beaten, or at least he has equalled, the author of 'Henry the audacious' at his own game," E. F. El.

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 21 '14 1000w

+ Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 30w

"Mr. Vachell finds this dealer in antiques and his career both amusing and appealing, and the reader is entirely in accord with him."

+ N Y Times 19:474 N 1 '14 600w

"Quinney is a name that may live long as fiction as a real creation. Mr. Vachell has evidently studied very carefully the various dark and devious ways of the fakers and the traders in sham antiques, and, apart from its interest as a novel, his book should be useful to amateur collectors, who cannot fail to gain information from it."

+ Sat R 117:608 My 9 '14 550w

"The story displays Mr. Vachell's versatility as a novelist and is delightful throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 7 '15 500w

VAIZEY, JESSIE (BELL) (MRS. G. JE H. VAIZEY). Lady Cassandra (Eng title, Grizel married). *$1.35 (1c) Putnam 14-13260

As a minor character in this story Mrs. Vaizey brings in Grizel Dundas who played a minor rôle also in a previous story, "The unknown lover." But whatever the part assigned her Grizel has a way of holding the center of the stage whenever she appears on it, leaving Cassandra and the others to form a background. Lady Cassandra is a woman who has not found marriage and motherhood satisfying. Her husband is the good, solid type of Englishman who takes his wife for granted as he does his house and his position, and her one son is like his father. She is quite ready to fall in love with the other man who appears opportunely to offer her the admiration and affection she needs. It is Grizel who saves her from folly, just as it is Grizel who helps straighten out tangles in the lives of other of the story's characters.

+ A L A Bkl 11:222 Ja '15

"Lovers of sensation or intensified psychology will probably find little enough in the book, but those who have a taste for delicate and accurate workmanship will find it worth reading."

+ Ath 1914,1:823 Je 13 280w

"The episode of Mary Mallison seems needless, and is as nearly tiresome as Mrs. Vaizey knows how to be. Nor is the reader at all reconciled to the hero's 'putting up with' a stiff and unpleasant girl. As to his really falling in love with her, we flatly refuse to believe it, but these are things of small moment. Grizel and after her Cassandra are the characters that dominate a story of quite unusual interest, distinction, and charm."

+ N Y Times 19:401 S 27 '14 670w

"The book contains a good deal of entertainment, though it is not a serious work of art."

+ Spec 112:1097 Je 27 '14 120w

VALE, CHARLES, comp. Forum stories. *$1.50 (1½c) Kennerley 14-14460

Sixteen "Forum stories," all the work of American authors or of authors who are completely identified with America. They are as follows: A honeymoon Christmas; At the height; He came to Provies; Her child; His immortality; His own day; "I have borne my lord a son"; Judgment; "Little darling"; Soirée Kokimono; The brass candlestick; The difference; The little golden shoes; The pride of his calling; The rolling stone; The swimmers.

"When we have done with these lesser performances in the volume, we cannot but accept Mr. Vale's opinion unreservedly that some of the best short-story writing in America today is before us," W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 8 '14 900w

"All of these stories are well, some of them exceedingly well, written, and nearly all of them—as might be expected from work chosen by the author of 'John Ward, M. D.'—possess a psychological value which makes them more than mere closely knit, interesting narratives. That the contents of this volume stands high above the ordinary level of magazine fiction it is hardly necessary to say."

+ N Y Times 19:250 My 31 '14 700w

VALE, CHARLES. John Ward, M. D. *$1.25 (2c) Kennerley 13-26555

John Ward is a country doctor, living a simple, almost ascetic, life in one of the colliery districts of London. He is a man of remarkable sanity and with strength of character, but he recognizes that his blood is that of a degenerate race, for he is the grandson of Lord Daventry, a notorious profligate, and son of a man who was just saved from a similar career by early death. He recognizes latent in himself the tendencies with which these two and earlier forebears have endowed him, and when he finds that he loves a woman of like decadent race, he puts temptation away from him, believing that his line should not be perpetuated. The story is saved from morbidity by its minor characters, the humble folk of Dr. Ward's district, who by the example of their own stern, self-sacrificing lives, have an influence in determining his final decision.

"The book is so youthful in spots, and yet so powerful at times that it is decidedly interesting to the thoughtful critic. For it seems to give promise of a new talent with a future power of performance that may prove worth while." J. Marchand

+ — Bookm 38:688 F '14 600w

"Mr. Vale traverses the same ground over and over again, and his story would be much better, much stronger emotionally and spiritually, if it did not lay such stress upon Dr. Ward's struggle against the wiles of Lady Winter." E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '13 700w
Nation 98:59 Ja 15 '14 400w

"In endeavoring to treat a delicate subject with perfect cleanliness, Mr. Vale has occasionally stumbled into the slough of 'fine writing.' But these blemishes become small when contrasted with the excellence of much of the book and the high purpose with which it has evidently been written. Mr. Vale is a writer who has something to say, but has not yet achieved the power of saying it always in the best way. His style in the more realistic, everyday scenes is often excellent; it lacks the poetic quality which certain of the others demand, and occasionally becomes jerky and confused. Despite this deficiency, he seems one of those from whom good work may be expected. 'John Ward, M. D.' is an interesting and thought-stimulating book."

+ — N Y Times 18:737 D 14 '13 1100w

VALENTINER, WILHELM REINHOLD. Art of the Low Countries: studies; tr. by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer. il $2.50 (3½c) Doubleday 14-21134

A collection of essays on Dutch and Flemish art by a member of the staff of the Metropolitan museum. The following papers make up the contents: Linear composition in Dutch art; The church architecture of the Netherlands in the middle ages; The Haarlem school of painting in the fifteenth century; The satirical work of Quentin Metsys; The brothers Govert and Raphael Camphuysen; Dutch ceramic tiles; Rembrandt at the Latin school; Rembrandt's Blinding of Samson; Rembrandt's representations of Susanna; Works by Rubens in American collections; Works of van Dyck in American collections. The volume is fully illustrated.

"His present book has a rare value for both students and lovers of art, giving new meaning, as it does, to the masterpieces of Dutch and of Flemish painting."

+ Boston Transcript p11 Ja 9 '15 500w

"A collection of essays that combine a large measure of original research and minute erudition with fineness of taste and appreciation is something of a rarity. Such a book is W. R. Valentiner's."

+ Nation 100:89 Ja 21 '15 280w

"Throws new light on many of the treasures of American museums and private galleries."

+ R of Rs 51:121 Ja '15 200w

"It presents a scholarly, sympathetic review of the art of Holland and Belgium in fresh readable form."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:443 F '15 170w

VALLOIS, GRACE M. First steps in collecting. il $1.50 Lippincott A14-826

The author "tells how to collect old furniture, pottery and glass, the objects of the tea table and the flotsam and jetsam of old lumber rooms. To each of these departments of collecting she prefaces a bibliography of books which will give anyone interested a more profound insight into the subject taken up. The book is helpful by suggestion rather than by information."—Boston Transcript

+ — A L A Bk1 11:66 O '14

"Of superficial faults her pages are full; her grammar is negligent, her proofs have been ill-corrected, she has a marked habit of repetition, and she indulges in irrelevant general reflections. Yet, because she really loves old things, and has evidently always been noting their characteristics, her volume is alive and enticing, while many larger, more ambitious, and technically learned tomes are dead."

+ — Ath 1913.2:461 O 25 150w

"It gives an excellent idea of the different styles of furniture, of relative qualities of china and glass. Really helpful hints abound, and the historical information is accurate. The illustrations are excellent and the book is handsomely printed."

+ — Boston Transcript p12 D 8 '13 280w

+ Ind 77:212 F 9 '14 80w

"The book should prove decidedly helpful to those who are taking their first steps in collecting."

+ Int Studio 52:85 Mr '14 140w

"The work is essentially a compilation, showing no especially important results of research."

+ — Nation 98:143 F 5 '14 200w

+ N Y Times 19:330 Ag 2 '14 200w

VANCE, LOUIS JOSEPH. Lone Wolf; a melodrama. il $1.30 (1½c) Little 14-17926

Another novel with an engaging thief for a hero. Michael Lanyard, who spent his childhood as a drudge in a Paris hotel, learned to steal as readily as he learned to eat—as a means of self preservation. One day in his sixteenth year he purloined a gold piece from a man who was a cleverer thief than he and was taken in hand and trained in what was to be his profession. One valuable piece of advice given him by his teacher was to avoid friendship, above all the friendship of women. Lanyard, following this, travels alone and becomes the Lone Wolf. His solitary career is threatened from two sources. The "Pack" of the underworld of Paris insists that he become one of them, promising disclosure if he refuses; and he meets the girl who, of course, makes him forget that wise bit of advice.

"If in an idle hour you want simply to be amused with a tale of extravagant adventure, that does not suddenly jolt you out of your pleasant dream by an awkward blunder, a break in the pleasant continuity of conviction, you will get about what you really want in 'The Lone Wolf.'" F. T. Cooper.

+ Bookm 40:311 N '14 470w

"The story is different from anything that Mr. Vance has ever done previously and shows an even wider range of power than we have heretofore credited him with."

+ Boston Transcript p24 O 28 '14 220w

"It differs little from several of the earlier tales which he calls romances. Its general tone is of adventurous comedy. The fatal weakness of the tale as melodrama is that this gentleman of crime and mystery is from the outset simply that good-humored and athletic and harmless young gentleman who has figured as hero in so many of Mr. Vance's blithe yarns."

+ — Nation 99:525 O 29 '14 570w

"A clever, improbable Paris crime story."

+ — Outlook 108:846 D 9 '14 20w

VAN DENBURGH, MRS. ELIZABETH DOUGLAS (TURRILL). My voyage in the United States frigate Congress. il $2.50 FitzGerald 13-24657

"A seven-months' voyage around the Horn in 1845-6 is the subject of a book sure to find favor with those who like to read about old sailing days and old sailing ways. Mrs. Van Denburgh recounts her girlhood experience in accompanying her father and mother, sister and brother, from Oswego, N. Y., to Honolulu on the occasion of the appointment of her father, Joel Turrill, as Consul-general to the Sandwich Islands. . . . The narrative is in diary form, with the touch of vividness and reality that such a method of writing, while the events are still fresh in the mind, is likely to impart. The long voyage

VAN DENBURGH ELIZABETH D.—Cont.
was broken at Rio Janeiro, Valparaiso, and Lima,—places that the reader is permitted to see through the diarist's eyes; and the rigors of the passage around the Horn are well described."—Dial

"It is readable and contains a good picture of life aboard ship seventy years ago."

+ A L A Bkl 10:239 F '14

"She writes a novel account of a remarkable voyage." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 20 '13 380w

"The writer would have done wisely to break up her chronicle into chapters; a certain monotony results from its present arrangement, with no variation even of page-heading, and no sign-posts anywhere to catch the eye. Interesting illustrations are fortunately not lacking."

+ Dial 55:529 D 16 '13 220w

+ Nation 98:578 My 14 '14 170w

"It gives us a particularly vivid picture of the Sandwich islands in 1815 and 1846, and acquaints us with some of the amenities of travel on the Pacific in the middle years of the nineteenth century."

+ R of Rs 49:249 F '14 60w

VANDERCOOK, MARGARET O'BANNON (WOMACK). Loves of Ambrose. il $1 (2c)
Doubleday 14-4494

The author takes a much-married man for her hero, and divides her story into four parts, heading them frankly "First wife," "Second wife," and so on to the fourth. The story has a Kentucky background and it is saved from banality by the idyllic character of its setting and the old-time quaintness of its characters.

"There is much that is quaintly tender in this little story."

+ Bookm 39:342 My '14 520w

Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '14 500w

"A pleasant pastoral kind of story, with humor and a fine feeling for character. The author's style is strong and original and the incidents described have every semblance of reality. If this is a first book, it is indeed a commendable one."

+ N Y Times 19:100 Mr 1 '14 720w

"Ambrose's story has gentle charm and humor."

+ Outlook 106:773 Ap 4 '14 80w

VAN DE WATER, MRS. VIRGINIA BELLE (TERHUNE). In the web of life. il $1.25 (2c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-19284

In attempting to help his cousin Ralph out of a scrape, Tom Morton finds himself entangled in a mesh of suspicious circumstances. He misses train connections and fails to appear at the dinner at which his engagement to Edith Hale was to be announced, and Edith, piqued and ready to believe any charge against him, dismisses him and engages herself to Ralph Morton. Later she learns of Ralph's dishonesty, breaks with him and promises to marry a third man. There is assurance that this third agreement is to be carried out, and Tom in the meantime has had an opportunity to learn the worth of Constance Medford, Edith's cousin.

Boston Transcript p8 Ja 2 '15 260w

"Such a gay, deceitful villain, such a virtuous heroine, and a platitudinous or painstaking philosophy on almost every page of 'In the web of life!'"

+ Ind 80:478 D 21 '14 50w

"The tangling and the untangling are done with sufficient skill to command the reader's interest. The characters are well sustained."

+ N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3 '15 130w

VAN DE WATER, MRS. VIRGINIA BELLE (TERHUNE). Shears of Delilah. il $1.25 (1½c) Putnam 14-3248

Ten short stories of married life in which the author shows how big tragedies may grow from little beginnings. The stories, which are reprinted from various magazines, are: The shears of Delilah; Good for the soul?; Passing the love of women; A biological factor; The liar; The outsider; New wine in old bottles; The first stone; Confessions of a "successful" mother; The nagger.

Ath 1914,1:sup:43 My 23 120w

"Out of the whole volume 'The first stone' is the only genuine short story from an artistic point of view, and to the author's credit be it said that she shows an excellent sense of unity and a strong power of suggestion in this one effort. Of course it must not be inferred that the stories in 'The shears of Delilah' are shorn of interest or cropped to awkwardness. Inartistically bare and stridently melodramatic they are, but their seriousness has a direct simplicity and that interest peculiar to thinly disguised fiction."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 300w

"To some readers, we hope, the stories will hold up an accusing mirror, revealing the sure consequence of commonly neglected faults; the grim cynic is probably the only one whose interest in the volume will be wholly pleasurable."

+ Cath World 99:547 J1 '14 250w

"Viewed solely as stories, each of those in the book has its direct human appeal and holds the interest tensely. You want to see how they come out. A book like this, fresh, clean, and delicate, yet not afraid to reveal that men are men and women women, is to be welcomed. It is a book of every-day life, and what is more needed?"

+ N Y Times 19:73 F 15 '14 930w

VAN DE WATER, MRS. VIRGINIA BELLE (TERHUNE). Two sisters. il $1.25 (1½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-8081

The experiences of two young girls struggling with bread winning problems in New York give promise at the start of revealing a good deal about the economic condition of working women in that great metropolis. But it is the heart affairs of the two that soon engage the reader, and matters of earning a livelihood seem only incidental. The younger sister is an example of the wayward type—a girl who craves luxury and who is ready to sacrifice her honor for it; the elder is the patient, plodding type whose courage and loyalty to ideals are duly rewarded.

"Deficient in literary quality, whether in the development of the slight thread of plot or in the delineation of character, the book is not without value as an unvarnished statement of what too frequently takes place in our great cities."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 250w

"The situations are developed consistently, but the author has confined herself to the surface of her characters, and has written her story in a thoroughly conventional way."

+ N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 230w

"The story does not arouse any deep sentiments, but is interesting notwithstanding."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 11 '14 350w

VAN DYKE, HENRY. Grand canyon, and other poems. $1.25 Scribner 14-18742

The dignified ode to the Grand canyon, Sierra Madre, another poem inspired by the southwest, and Texas, a democratic ode, are the opening numbers in this collection of Dr. Van Dyke's poems. Another long poem in part 1 is "Gran' boule," a tale of the sea in French dialect. Part 2 is made up of lighter verse.

"It is by reason of this light verse that the volume deserves a permanent place on the book-shelf." W. S. E.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 16 '15 320w

"Characteristic verses, with much beauty in the title poem and others, two or three delightful trifles, and a number of smooth common-places."

+ Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 30w

"Contains moral and religious landscape-pieces of unexciting merits, poems of home and country dignified by sincere if somewhat pre-ordained feeling, French-dialect verse of authentic charm and humorous ventures in which the author unbends with alacrity and suppleness." O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 100:140 F 4 '15 70w

VAN DYKE, HENRY. Lost boy. il *50c (5c) 12 Harper 14-15403

A story of the boyhood of Jesus. The Boy with his parents has gone to Jerusalem to celebrate the feast of the Passover. Wandering off by himself he becomes lost. He cannot find his way back to the camp of his people and many misadventures befall him. He becomes conscious for the first time in his short happy life of the evil there is in the world. He finds that there are so many people who need help. He wants to help them and goes to the temple to seek advice from the rabbis. He questions them concerning the things that trouble him and they with all their wisdom learn more from his questioning than he does from their teaching. The story was published last year in the Christmas number of "Harper's magazine."

"Many delightful stories have been written by Dr. Van Dyke, but none with more delicate and abiding charm than this little tale of the lost boy Christ."

+ Boston Transcript p22 O 14 '14 200w

"It is beautifully written, but the fact of our Lord's divinity seems to be utterly lost sight of."

+ — Cath World 100:402 D '14 40w

"A suitable book for a Christmas gift or for Sunday-school use."

+ Dial 57:462 D 1 '14 80w

"The effect of the little story is in line with nearly all of the modern investigation and interpretation of Christ's life to make of Him more and more a very human figure."

+ N Y Times 19:399 S 27 '14 320w

"Not a few of the teachings and experiences of Jesus in his public ministry are here foreshadowed and add to the interest with which the little story will be read."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 29 '14 150w

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Amsterdam, The Hague, Haarlem. (New guides to old masters) il *75c (4c) Scribner 14-8404

John C. Van Dyke has undertaken to prepare this series of guide books in the belief that there is a need for a guide "that shall say less about the well-worn saints and more about the man behind the paint-brush; that shall deal with pictures from the painter's point of view, rather than that of the ecclesiastic, the archaeologist, or the literary romancer; that shall have some sense of proportion in the selection and criticism of pictures; that shall have a critical basis for discrimination between the good and the bad; and that shall, for these reasons, be of service to the traveling public as well as to the art student." (Preface to the series) This volume in the series contains critical notes on the Rijks museum, The Hague museum, and the Hals museum.

A L A Bkl 11:66 O '14 (Review of the series)

Dial 57:26 J1 1 '14 200w (Review of 2 v)

+ Dial 57:207 S 16 '14 120w (Review of 4 v)

+ Lit D 49:747 O 17 '14 170w (Review of the series)

+ — Nation 98:735 Je 18 '14 420w (Review of 2 v)

"Broadly speaking, these little books are better calculated to divert the expert than to edify the public."

+ — Nation 98:767 Je 25 '14 330w (Review of 2 v)

Springfield Republican p5 S 10 '14 550w (Review of the series)

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Berlin, Dresden. (New guides to old masters) il *$1 (3c) Scribner 14-11602

This volume of the "New guides" gives critical notes on pictures in the Kaiser-Friedrich museum and the Royal gallery, Dresden, with brief notes on the two galleries.

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Brussels, Antwerp. (New guides to old masters) il *75c (4c) Scribner 14-8405

This volume contains critical notes on the Royal museums at Brussels and Antwerp. A portrait by Rubens is reproduced as a frontispiece, and there are introductory notes on the two museums.

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. London. (New guides to old masters) il *$1 (3c) Scribner 14-7481

In addition to the critical notes, in this case to the pictures in the National gallery and of the Wallace collection, this volume contains a general introduction and a bibliography for the series. This introduction takes up the question of imitations and forgeries, and copies, discusses principles of connoisseurship, standards of judgment, etc.

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Madrid. (New guides to old masters) il *75c (2½c) Scribner 14-11601

This volume is devoted to critical notes on the Prado. Murillo, Titian, Velasquez, are the great names to which much space is given.

+ Ind 79:217 Ag 10 '14 50w

+ — Nation 99:145 J1 30 '14 80w

+ N Y Times 19:339 Ag 9 '14 150w

+ Outlook 107:682 J1 18 '14 150w

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Munich, Frankfurt, Cassel. (New guides to old masters) il *$1 (3c) Scribner 14-10200

The galleries for which critical notes are supplied in this volume are the Old pinacothek, the Stadel institute and the Cassel Royal gallery. Introductory notes on each gallery precede the descriptions of the pictures.

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Paris. (New guides to old masters) il *75c (4c) Scribner 14-7483

The volume devoted to Paris is given up wholly to critical notes on the Louvre. An introductory note gives something of the history of the formation of the collection.

VAN DYKE, JOHN CHARLES. Vienna, Budapest. (New guides to old masters) il *$1 (2c) Scribner 14-11603

The pictures of the Imperial gallery at Vienna and the Budapest museum are the subjects of comment in this handbook. The first of these, Mr. Van Dyke points out in his introductory note, "is by no means inferior to the best of the north-European galleries in works of true art," while the second, altho less well known, contains a notable and growing collection of pictures.

+ Ind 79:217 Ag 10 '14 50w

"In general, the complete casualness of these little manuals is at once their charm and their weakness."

+ — Nation 99:145 J1 30 '14 80w

+ N Y Times 19:339 Ag 9 '14 150w

"This new series should prove of much value. The various descriptions and notes betray a first-hand, intimate sympathy between the author and his subject."

+ Outlook 107:682 J1 18 '14 150w

VAN KLEECK, MARY. Working girls in evening schools: a statistical study. il $1.50 Survey associates 11-22150

This work is a study of the occupations of the girls and women attending evening schools in New York city, rather than an investigation into evening school methods. It is a study of wage-earning women "who are seeking to supplement an inadequate education," and as such is related to the problem of industrial training. Contents: Evening schools and the girls who attend them; Occupations of girls who go to night school; Daily hours of labor; Schooling of wage-earning girls; Relation of the evening schools to vocational training; Irregular attendance in evening classes; Some problems of industrial education.

VAN KLEECK, MARY—Continued.

Boston Transcript p26 D 9 '14 530w

"The book is crowded with condensed information and many illuminating tables." Beulah Kennard

+ Survey 33:465 Ja 30 '15 530w

VAN SCHAICK, GEORGE. Sweetapple Cove.
9 il $1.35 Small 14-30417

"Sweetapple Cove is up on the Newfoundland coast, a little, barren outpost, but, under Dr. Van Schaick's hand, its rocky shores blossom with rare flowers of brotherly love and devotion. The story is told in diary and letter form, the diary being written by a young physician who is there, partly to try his own mettle and partly because the forlorn place sadly needs a doctor's presence. Most of the letters are written by a young woman, and a very splendid young woman she seems, too, the daughter of a wealthy New Yorker, who has gone there in his yacht to try the salmon fishing. . . . And so the reader gets two views of the love romance that develops. . . . But there is, after all, very little of the ordinary love story in the tale. It is mainly a picture of the simple and unconsciously heroic daily life of the fishermen and their families."—N Y Times

A L A Bkl 10:415 Je '14 +

"Appealing is the story—a love story unclouded by modern 'problems' and holding many a briefly vivid description of the primitive life of the fishing hamlets of Newfoundland."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 9 '14 270w

"Though the 'love-interest' is slight and rather commonplace, the local atmosphere is well conveyed. The patient old parson and his perfect wife are worth more than the young pair, at least to a middle-aged reader."

+ Nation 98:605 My 21 '14 200w

"He has told his story with such simplicity and sincerity that he has invested it with the seeming of truth and with a vitality that engages and holds the reader's attention."

+ N Y Times 19:208 Ap 26 '14 470w

R of Rs 49:762 Je '14 80w

"A wholesome, thrilling story full of the winds of the sea, of unaffected sentiment and of the bravery of simple, unaffected folk."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 21 '14 500w

VAN VORST, MARIE. Big Tremaine. 11 $1.35
12 (1½c) Little 14-30791

John Tremaine had left Virginia in disgrace; ten thousand dollars entrusted to his care had disappeared and he was branded a thief. The story opens with his return fifteen years later. He buys up the old family plantation, restores it and makes his mother comfortable. But his mother's love had all been given to an idolized older son, now dead, and she has little to give to this returned black sheep. In all Tremaine's struggle to make a place for himself in his native state and to win his mother's respect and a girl's love he never bears himself for a moment as a repentant criminal should, and the reader is not at all surprised to learn in the end that he has been bearing another's guilt.

"Romantic and written with ease and some grace. Will be quite popular."

+ A L A Bkl 11:124 N '14 +

Reviewed by P. G. Hubert, jr.

Bookm 40:562 Ja '15 140w

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 24 '14 350w

"It is romance, of an ordinary sort, with types rather than persons for characters."

— Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 100w

"Why use such talent to veneer hackneyed material?"

+ — Ind 80:174 N 2 '14 60w

"Apart from its inherent absurdity, this story has merits of detail beyond the customary romance of the type."

+ — Nation 99:525 O 29 '14 370w

"Not important, nor striking, 'Big Tremaine' remains a good story none the less."

+ N Y Times 19:413 O 4 '14 400w

"How John Tremaine gains love, achieves honor in his state, and is cleared of false accusations is told at length and with some degree of art, though the familiarity of the plot and the well-worked material do not offer any particular stimulus to the novel reader."

+ — Outlook 108:440 O 21 '14 80w

Reviewed by M. A. Hopkins

Pub W 86:2016 D 12 '14 400w

VARDON, HARRY; HERD, ALEXANDER; and others. Success at golf; with an introd. by J. G. Anderson. 11 $1 (5c) Little 14-3731

A half dozen golf experts contribute a chapter each to this book. Each has chosen to give an exposition of a particular play. Harry Vardon writes of The art of driving, followed by Alexander Herd, On spoon and iron shots; George Duncan, The push shot; Wilfrid Reid, The use of the mashie; Lawrence Ayton, Recoveries—the art of bunker play; Francis Ouimet, Suggestions for putting.

"The book is remarkably homogeneous in style, simplicity being the guiding principle. It is also admirably systematic. A very satisfactory hand-book for links enthusiasts."

Joseph Mosher

+ Pub W 85:1351 Ap 18 '14 450w

VARISCO, BERNARDINO. Great problems; tr.
10 by R. C. Lodge. $2.75 Macmillan 14-9877

"The aim of the Library of philosophy, edited by Dr. J. H. Muirhead, is to include the most representative thinkers in different countries. When the editor sought a thinker to represent Italy he could conceive of no one more suitable than the author of the present volume. Professor Varisco was born at Chiari in the province of Brescia, in 1850, is now professor of theoretic philosophy in the University of Rome. . . . The present volume is the first of his works to be translated into English. The first chapter is introductory, entitled 'The search after truth.' Then follow chapters on the great problems, which are: sense-perception, memory, feeling, action, cognition, values, reality and reason, and being."—Boston Transcript

"The work is an able and vigorous discussion of the great problems of philosophy."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 2 '14 400w

Reviewed by G. D. Hicks

+ — Hibbert J 12:900 Jl '14 620w

"This is a welcome addition to Professor Muirhead's 'Library of philosophy.' The book is too concise. Had the eighty pages of appendices been woven into the book itself, the presentation and discussion of the 'great problems' would have gained in intelligibility what might have been lost in conciseness."

+ — Sat R 118:150 Ag 1 '14 280w

VASE, GILLAN, pseud. (MRS. RICHARD NEWTON). Great mystery solved; being a continuation of and conclusion to The mystery of Edwin Drood. $1.50 (1½c) McBride, Nast & co. A15-45

A summary of the story so far as it was carried by Dickens is provided by the editor Mr. Jevons. Following this come the solution and conclusion as Gillan Vase has worked them out. Edwin Drood revives after his supposed murder by his uncle, John Jasper, and enters the employ of Grewgious the lawyer. He lives in retirement and keeps watch over the movements of his uncle. John Jasper subsequently commits suicide and Edwin returns to his former associates and marries Rosa.

"The whole thing is outrageous, and might have been allowed to remain in obscurity."

— Ath 1913:2:557 N 15 200w

Boston Transcript p7 Ag 16 '13 250w

Reviewed by E. L. Pearson

— Nation 99:403 O 1 '14 1300w

N Y Times 18:754 D 21 '13 350w

"There is a good deal here that might be omitted; for our own part, we should be ready to begin on page one and continue the process till the end."

— Sat R 116:655 N 22 '13 900w

VASSILI, COUNT PAUL. Behind the veil at the Russian court. il $*1.50 Lane 14-9087

"A book of intimate revelations of the social, political, and family life of the Russian court." (R of Rs) "The records begin with the death of Nicholas I in 1855, and the chief events of the reigns of Alexander II, Alexander III and Nicholas II are unrolled in a mass of vivid anecdotes deliciously gossipy, yet flanked by shrewd and illuminating comment, and varied by those more serious in character anent some of the great political events of the last and present century, which add dignity and strength to the book." (Boston Transcript)

"Unique in its close personal note and entire frankness, it has some value as history, but will appeal more to those who want a gossipy, entertaining record of court life."

+ A L A Bkl 11:23 S '14

Ath 1914:2:591 N 22 40w

"A superficial survey of the book might lead to the decision that its gossip—cynical, amusing, by turns—constitutes its strongest appeal. But reflection intensifies one's appreciation of its more serious matter, which if not technically 'historical,' throws many a brilliant and illuminating sidelight upon history. One confesses, however, a regret, which even the incontestable appeal of the book cannot still, that its publication had not been delayed until those now living, of whom Count Vassili writes with an unreserve at times pitiless, should no longer behold the light of this little day."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Mr 21 '14 800w

"Always bright and entertaining, Count Paul Vassili's book is often, especially in its later chapters, of considerable historical importance."

+ Nation 99:45 J1 9 '14 370w

Outlook 107:563 J1 4 '14 450w

R of Rs 49:508 Ap '14 80w

VASSILI, COUNT PAUL. France from behind the veil: fifty years of social and political life. il $*3.75 Funk 14-11203

"Count Vassili—the name is, we are told, pseudonymous—was appointed Secretary to the Russian embassy in Paris in 1868, and from that date he spent nearly the whole of his official life in the French capital, where he died." (Ath) In this book of his reminiscences "there are descriptions of the aristocratic society of the Faubourgs and of the social splendor of Eugénie's court, with sketches of the principal figures. The chapters which are devoted to the Franco-Prussian war and the Commune throw fresh light on these terrible events. They reveal some of the inner motives and secret diplomacy which brought about the dénouement of the Napoleonic drama. Separate chapters are given to M. Thiers, the Comte de Chambord, last of the Bourbon pretenders, the Orleans princes, the Duc d'Aumale, Marshal MacMahon, Gambetta, Boulanger, and Dreyfus, and there are highly interesting and diverting descriptions of the salons of the republic, of contemporary Parisian literature and journalism." (Lit D)

"The interest is of a gossipy kind."

+ A L A Bkl 11:24 S '14

"This volume, in spite of a title which suggests revelations, contains an immense amount of gossip, interesting if trivial, but little new matter of importance. Some of the French names in the book are wrongly spelt every time they appear."

+ — Ath 1914:1:682 My 16 1800w

Boston Transcript p19 Ag 12 '14 580w

"Count Vassili's present volume is full of the curious political information—possibly sometimes misinformation—and personal gossip with which a veteran diplomat is likely to find his memory well stored as he looks back over his professional career, and he writes in a way to hold the attention, though his anonymous translator leaves something to be desired on his part."

P. F. Bicknell

+ — Dial 57:195 S 16 '14 2200w

"Brilliant volume."

+ Lit D 49:515 S 19 '14 1250w

R of Rs 50:249 Ag '14 130w

VEBLEN, THORSTEIN B. Instinct of workmanship and the state of the industrial arts. $*1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 14-6581

"The following essay attempts an analysis of such correlation as is visible between industrial use and wont and those other institutional facts that go to make up any given phase of civilization. It is assumed that in the growth of culture, as in its current maintenance, the facts of technological use and wont are fundamental and definitive. . . . The analysis proceeds on the materialistic assumptions of modern science, but without prejudice to the underlying question as to the ulterior competency of this materialistic conception considered as a metaphysical tenet." (Preface) Contents; Introductory; Contamination of instincts in primitive technology; The savage state of the industrial arts; The technology of the predatory culture; Ownership and the competitive system; The era of handicraft; The machine industry.

"However much one may wish that the author had given a more definite trend to his argument and however tough the reading is, it must be said that no more stimulating essay on the psychology and sociology of work has appeared in recent years."

+ — Am Econ R 4:860 D '14 700w

"Though comprehensive, it is scarcely lucid, and would be greatly improved by capable editing and rearranging, for the writer's style is awkward, and sometimes difficult to comprehend at first reading."

+ — Ath 1914:2:173 Ag 8 700w

Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 370w

"The bringing together and working out of these conceptions constitute a substantial contribution to the understanding of the material civilization by and under which we live." E. H. Downey

+ J Pol Econ 23:78 Ja '15 800w

Reviewed by H. L. Hollingworth

+ — Psychol Bull 11:441 N 15 '14 420w

"A suggestive essay."

+ R of Rs 49:637 My '14 80w

VEDDER, HENRY CLAY. Gospel of Jesus and the problems of democracy. $*1.50 (1½c) Macmillan 14-15717

Jesus is to the author "the loftiest prophet of the true democracy." It is by reconstructing our social order on the lines outlined by Jesus that a true democracy may be attained. What we have now is a nominal democracy ruled by an aristocracy based on industrial wealth. A chapter on The gospel and the awakening church is followed by discussions of the problems of Social justice, The woman, The child, The slum, Vice, Crime, Disease, Poverty, and Lawlessness. There is a bibliography and an index, and an appendix gives the programs of reform proposed by the Progressive party, the Socialist party, and the Federation of the churches of Christ in America.

"Whether one agrees with all that is found in this book or not, there is no doubt that it will prove to be a stimulating volume, alike for its moral and spiritual earnestness, and for the information with which it is packed."

+ Bib World 44:428 D '14 700w

"No doubt many will disagree with the author in his conclusions, but no one can charge him with a failure to be specific and practical."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 O 10 '14 450w

"The language of the author is often caustic and his methods radical, but he has the courage of his convictions. Perhaps the chief fault of the book is that it does not take sufficient account of what has been achieved in the interests of democracy during the last century."

VEDDER, HENRY CLAY —Continued.

+ — Lit D 50:250 F 6 '15 420w

N Y Times 19:492 N 8 '14 150w

"None of the volumes on social problems heretofore put forth by Christian leaders is better furnished with convincing facts, none so radical at its climax in pronouncing for the abolition of poverty, for which the churches in federal council have resolved to work."

+ Outlook 108:847 D 9 '14 330w

VEDDER, HENRY CLAY. Reformation in Germany. *$3 (1c) Macmillan 14-1922

"The economic interpretation of history has not yet been applied to the period of the reformation," says the author in a foreword, "and that fact is the chief justification of this attempt to retell a story that has been so often told, yet told inadequately." Under the author's treatment this religious struggle appears as only a phase of a great social revolution that involved all of Europe. The main body of the work, which follows an introductory discussion of Germany in the sixteenth century, consists of three parts as follows: Part 1, From the beginning of the reformation to the edict of Worms, 1517-1521; Part 2, From the edict of Worms to the protest of Speyer, 1521-1529; Part 3, From the protest to the peace of Augsburg, 1529-1555.

Reviewed by A. E. Harvey

+ — Am J Theol 19:129 Ja '15 1800w

"Original and scholarly."

+ A L A Bkl 10:365 My '14

"It is for no novelty of details, or even of presentation, that we must look in Prof. Vedder's book. It is rather for a certain independence of judgment, meting out justice to Pope and Emperor, Luther and Erasmus, soldier and reformer—a justice which is, on the whole, even-handed."

+ — Ath 1914,1:443 Mr 28 630w

"Although the economic element is not as prominent in the book as its introduction would lead us to expect, it is so far recognized as to give the work a vigor and modernness of treatment which makes it outstanding."

+ Bib World 43:279 Ap '14 500w

"Skillful restraint of language impresses the reader with the author's fairness, but perhaps the best evidence of the merit of his work is found in the fact that after reading it once one is tempted to sit down and read it all over again."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 9 '14 470w

"Aside from the value of the admirably arranged appendixes, it is a pleasure to commend this volume as an unobtrusive display of originality, insight, and scholarship."

+ Dial 56:252 Mr 16 '14 400w

"In Mr. Vedder's book all the old errors are repeated." R. H. M.

— Eng Hist R 29:608 Jl '14 100w

"What we miss more than anything else is any adequate treatment of that social and economic situation which the author has declared to be the most important aspect of his subject."

+ — Nation 98:502 Ap 30 '14 630w

+ N Y Times 19:311 Jl 12 '14 180w

"The book's prime excellence seems to lie in the author's power of interpreting character, and in the deftness with which he traces the progress of an idea, whether in an individual or in society."

+ No Am 199:623 Ap '14 1200w

Outlook 106:867 Ap 18 '14 80w

"It may be that some theories and idols will be shattered if the conclusions of this author are accepted. Nevertheless, a reading of this volume cannot fail to clarify the historical picture of the significance and worth of the reformation."

+ R of Rs 49:370 Mr '14 150w

VEILLER, LAWRENCE. Model housing law. (Russell Sage foundation pub.) il $2 (2c) Survey associates 14-4294

The greater part of this book is taken up by a working model of a housing law. Other chapters of discussion contained in the book are: Housing reform through legislation; Building codes, tenement house laws and housing laws; What kind of houses can be built under the model law? A model tenement house law; An ideal housing law.

Reviewed by E. L. Talbert

Am J Soc 19:848 My '14 330w

A L A Bkl 10:408 Je '14

"The book needs revision before it can be recommended as a safe guide in the hands of inexpert enthusiasts for housing reform." B. J. Newman

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:343 Jl '14 400w

+ Engin Rec 69:402 Ap 4 '14 270w

Reviewed by R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 13:433 Ja '15 40w

Ind 78:536 Je 22 '14 150w

Reviewed by E. T. Hartman

+ J Pol Econ 22:319 N '14 470w

Reviewed by S. P. Breckinridge

+ Survey 32:345 Je 27 '14 750w

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild

+ Yale R n s 4:190 O '14 200w

VENABLE, EDWARD CARRINGTON. Pierre Vinton: the adventures of a superfluous husband. *$1 (2c) Scribner 14-17924

Pierre Vinton, who tells his own story, is a New York man, newly divorced, who comments lightly and sometimes cynically on the passing show of life. The divorce, as one of their friends put it, had been perfectly "refined," the two had merely been bored. At least that was Marcella's case; Pierre himself found a divorced state much more boring than marriage, and to give the story its needed happy ending, Marcella is in the end brought to see the matter in the same light.

"A volume of very unusual quality."

+ Bookm 40:685 F '15 200w

"Mr. Venable is continually striving to say smart and flippant things, and like most of his school fails at times miserably."

— Cath World 100:688 F '15 160w

"A novel apparently well begun, and one written with humor and force, falls to pieces—except, of course, for the sentimental reader." Lucian Cary

+ — Dial 57:299 O 16 '14 580w

"A delightful, whimsical romance with the charm of W. J. Locke's 'The morals of Marcus,' which in literary style it resembles."

+ Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 80w

"While it has many a chuckle in its pages, has also that touch of pathos that sometimes goes hand in hand with humor." J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:403 D 14 '14 250w

+ Nation 99:715 D 17 '14 250w

"In many ways, an exceedingly interesting novel—a novel which, if it were but possible to eliminate its last three chapters, would rank as one of the notable books of the season." L. M. Field

+ — N Y Times 19:428 O 11 '14 900w

"A light-hearted, conversational manner conveys a sane and noble ideal of marriage in this charming story."

+ Outlook 108:553 N 4 '14 230w

VERRALL, ARTHUR WOOLLGAR. Collected literary essays, classical and modern; ed. by M. A. Bayfield and J. D. Duff, with a memoir. il *$3.50 Putnam 13-22238

"In the volume of 'Collected literary essays' the first six, which are early work taken from the 'Universal review' between 1888 and 1890, deal purely with classical subjects. . . . One of them discusses Martial, 'a Roman of the greater Rome,' and has the advantage of pointing out a fact which Christian apologists, with their eyes fixed most conveniently on the limited material supplied by Tacitus and Juvenal, have been too apt to obscure, the fact that the Roman Empire in the first century of our era was not a pit of iniquity, but on the whole a very satisfactory place to live in. Two others, deal with the works of Propertius in an interesting but by no means epoch-making fashion. Two others again, discuss Statius' poems on the Saturnalia and on the villa of Vopiscus at Tibur respectively, and the sixth provides a sort of first sketch of the author's subsequent work on Euripides by analysing the 'Andromache.' These are followed by two much more interesting papers on Dante's treatment of Statius."—Sat R

+ Ath 1913,1:689 Je 28 900w

+ Class J 10:184 Ja '15 620w

"The literary essays will appeal to layman and scholar."

+ Nation 99:436 O 8 '14 900w

+ Sat R 116:85 Jl 19 '13 750w

+ — Spec 111:653 O 25 '13 900w

VERRALL, ARTHUR WOOLLGAR. Collected studies in Greek and Latin scholarship; ed. by M. A. Bayfield and J. D. Duff. *$3.50 Putnam 13-22237

"This collection of his minor papers includes about twenty short articles already published, and five papers (though the editors in the preface promise six) hitherto unpublished. Of the former only the essay on Tyrtæus which opens the volume seems to us all important; it illustrates Mr. Verrall's fresh, keen, stimulating rehandling of old material. . . . The new papers deal with a lost word in Homer, a metrical jest in Catullus, a vexed passage in Horace, the story of Orpheus and Eurydice in Vergil's fourth 'Georgic,' and the apparent confusion of Philippi and Pharsalia."—Class J

"These essays and studies by Verrall, selected by himself, exhibit well that originality and brightness and the persuasive style which made all that he wrote a delight to read."

+ Ath 1913,1:687 Je 28 900w

+ — Class J 9:229 F '14 300w

"Some of his conclusions are to be accepted, some must be rejected, but all are characteristic of the brilliant man who wrote them."

+ — Nation 99:436 O 8 '14 50w

+ — Sat R 116:85 Jl 19 '13 450w

"It is only when feeling and understanding meet that any work of art can be fully valued, and it is just because Verrall has both these qualities in almost the highest degree that his contributions to scholarship are of such rare excellence. His heart and his intellect are equally sensitive, while his imagination also is ever on the alert. It must be allowed, however, that he had the defects of his qualities."

+ — Spec 111:653 O 25 '13 900w

VERRALL, ARTHUR WOOLLGAR. Lectures on Dryden; ed. by Margaret De G. Verrall. *$2.50 Putnam A14-2968

"On the subject of Dryden's life and character Verrall is sympathetic and eminently reasonable. . . . But certainly the most valuable section in the book is that which treats of the Unities. This vexatious imbroglia, over which Dryden and his contemporaries were never tired of wrangling, is a tangle of misconception and delusion that has never before been satisfactorily unravelled. Verrall has used his great knowledge of Greek tragedy to good purpose in exposing exhaustively and lucidly the various underlying fallacies on which this moonshine battle depended; and it is a service to students of literature which should assure for this book a place in all good libraries."—Ath

"But though, as a poetical Mentor, Verrall is hardly satisfactory, there is much else of the highest interest in the volume, which is a welcome, and in some respects invaluable, addition to the literature of the subject."

+ — Ath 1914,1:483 Ap 4 1800w

Sat R 117:sup3 Mr 21 '14 1750w

"In all that relates to Dryden's art, to the technical excellence of his work, these lectures are of the highest value. Every student of literature will welcome them with gratitude, but not, we think, without some regret that on the great issue of Dryden's true place in English poetry so admirable a critic is almost wholly silent."

+ — Spec 112:393 Je 13 '14 2050w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. American Crusade; a record of remarkable adventures on a desert island with only a jackknife. il *$1.25 (21½c) Dodd 14-18422

"This book for boys has some of the elements of a 'true' story. While on a natural history expedition to the West Indies the author camped for several weeks on the island he describes in his story. He made a study of its natural resources and speculated upon the plight of a man who might be shipwrecked there. Every feat attributed to the hero of his tale was actually tried out by himself, altho to add 'thrills' to the narrative he has introduced extra details of suffering and privation and the discovery of buried treasure."

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:451 D '14 60w

"Here is a really interesting book for boys."

+ N Y Times 19:501 N 15 '14 400w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Cuba past and present. il *$1.50 Dodd 14-19628

"Cuba and Porto Rico are indeed our own tropics, and as such have for American travellers an added interest even beyond what the beautiful islands of British West India can offer. Mr. Verrill's narrative of what Cuba was, is and hopes to be, has interest for many others than merely the traveller—whose road the author smooths with valuable advice. What Cuba is and hopes to be attracts the writer most. With the enthusiasm that carries conviction he tries to make us see this splendid island at our very doors, the aims and hopes of its people, now at last left to develop themselves and their beautiful country in the light of freedom."—Bookm

"The writer's style is delightful in its straightforward earnest simplicity. He manages to convey an astonishing amount of useful and striking information without boring us even when the information takes the form of rows of figures and tables of statistics. And the descriptive writing is free from all hyperbole, although it shows honest enthusiasm." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:570 Ja '15 800w

"A useful and compact popular handbook, both for the traveler and the American business man."

+ R of Rs 50:760 D '14 60w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Harper's book for young gardeners. (Harper's practical books) il *$1.50 (1½c) Harper 14-7233

"This book aims to tell the young gardener how to make the best use of a little land. It is very complete and its use need not be confined to the young people for whom it is designed. Any amateur gardener would find it a useful guide. The book is divided into three parts, as follows: The garden profitable; The garden ornamental; The garden practical. This third part has a chapter on The garden and the school, and one devoted to Burbank and his work."

"A useful and usable book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:35 S '14

"Despite the multiplicity of books of its kind, there is ample room for [this book]." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p5 My 13 '14 70w

+ Ind 80:417 D 14 '14 50w

+ Nation 99:665 D 3 '14 130w

"A valuable handbook for people of all ages who are interested in gardens."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 8 '14 600w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Harper's gasoline engine book. il $1 (1½c) Harper 14-7927

This book, generously supplied with illustrations, tells boys all they will want to know about the gasoline engine; how it is made, how to use it, and how to keep it in order. Part 1 of the book takes up The gas engine; Part 2, Motor anatomy; Part 3, Marine and stationary motors; Part 4, The vehicle motor; Part 5, Troubles and repairs. A glossary of technical terms and an index complete the volume.

"A good book where needed."

+ A L A Bkl 10:420 Je '14

"With a very few corrections, the book will be helpful to the mechanic, farmer and automobilist, as well as to the boy of eighteen."

+ Engin N 72:1045 N 19 '14 370w

"His treatise is intended primarily for boys; but adults will find it an admirably clear, comprehensive and useful work."

+ N Y Times 19:343 Ag 9 '14 60w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Harper's wireless book. il $1 Harper 13-24667

The author's object has been to "to show boys what to do and how to do it in the lines of wireless telegraphy, telephony, and power transmission, and to point out exactly what has been accomplished in the past as well as what still remains to be done." (Introduction) The three parts of the book take up: The why and how of wireless; How to build and use wireless apparatus; Wireless telephony.

A L A Bkl 10:249 F '14

"This is a serviceable and concise book."

+ Lit D 47:1127 D 6 '13 120w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. Porto Rico, past and present, and San Domingo of to-day. il $1.50 (2c) Dodd 14-19864

The book is divided into three parts, dealing respectively with Porto Rico, San Domingo, and Haiti. Part one, devoted to the largest of the islands, takes up over one half of the volume. The author gives a short sketch of the history of Porto Rico, describes its scenery, and writes of its towns, people and customs, agricultural resources, government and politics, manufactures, etc. A chapter on Hotels, board and living expenses, and one on Automobile laws and regulations furnish information for tourists. The book is supplied with folding maps and numerous illustrations.

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:570 Ja '15 800w

+ N Y Times 20:29 Ja 24 '15 60w

VERRILL, ALPHEUS HYATT. South and Central American trade conditions of to-day; including Mexico, Cuba, Haiti and Dominican Republic. il $1.25 Dodd 14-21760

This is a handbook for those interested in Latin-American trade conditions. The European war has turned business attention in the direction of South America and it is to fill the demand for information concerning our southern neighbors that this book has been prepared. "In it will be found a vast amount of information regarding Spanish America and Spanish Americans, their customs, manners and point of view as related to business, as well as a great deal of data concerning the exports, imports, debts, wealth, foreign capital, improvements, population, transportation, and business of the various countries." (Intro.) The book is provided with numerous diagrams and four folding maps.

"It is of the greatest possible interest to the 'real' traveller, who wants to know all about the countries he visits, and does not confine himself to their scenic beauties or possibilities of entertainment alone. There is so much rich interest for a student of national traits in this little book of Mr. Verrill's that many will read it with delight, even though their paths lie far from the marts of trade." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:571 Ja '15 250w

VICKERS, KENNETH HOTHAM. England in the later middle ages. (History of England, v 3) il $3 Putnam (Eng ed 14-2877)

"This volume from the pen of Mr. K. H. Vickers brings to a worthy completion Mr. Oman's 'History of England.' . . . The treatment is primarily political, and necessarily so to conform to the general plan of the work. Thus Mr. Vickers deals at length with Edward I's policy in Wales, Scotland, and France; with the Scottish and French wars of Edward III, and with the renewal of the French war under Henry V. But other topics of at least equal interest are not neglected; the legal and constitutional reforms of Edward I; the oligarchical movement under Edward II; the economic and social upheaval of the later fourteenth century; the constitutional experiments of the Lancastrians—all these matters receive due attention."

—Sat R

"This volume shows careful reading and accurate scholarship. Yet we must confess to a feeling of disappointment, due to the wholly inadequate treatment of the national life and spirit of the period, and the failure to trace the movement of the history along the more important lines of its progress." C. L. Wells

+ — Am Hist R 19:869 Jl '14 950w

"A thoroughly sound and well proportioned history."

+ A L A Bkl 10:408 Je '14

"The narrative is straightforward and plain, and errors and misprints are rare. It is in the judgement of persons that one finds most to seek. Mr. Vickers never seems to have a hero, and the general depreciation of most of the great names which figure in his pages has a somewhat depressing effect on the reader." C. L. Kingsford

+ Eng Hist R 29:555 Jl '14 1100w

"The facts are well organized and the chapters are well proportioned, but the work as a whole lacks symmetry and the treatment lacks depth. Too much attention is paid to personalities and too little to social forces."

+ — Nation 99:74 Jl 16 '14 270w

Reviewed by Joseph Jacobs

+ N Y Times 19:105 Mr 8 '14 830w

"On the whole, a thoroughly sound and useful piece of work."

+ Sat R 117:23-Ja 3 '14 230w

"His work is admirably done, and will be welcome to all who wish to repair a gap in their historical knowledge."

+ Spec 112:618 Ap 11 '14 130w

VILLON, FRANÇOIS. Poems; tr. by H. De Vere Stacpoole. $3 Lane 11-2340

The first part of this book is given up to an English rendering of the ballades and rondels of Villon. (The French text will be found in the appendix.) Then comes "Le petit testament" and "Le grand testament" with the French text printed on the left hand pages and an English prose version on the right.

Ath 1913:2:697 D 13 60w

"The scheme of the book is well devised, and the volume may be recommended to persons with literary inclinations who wish to have some general knowledge of Francois Villon, the sort of man he was and the sort of poetry he wrote. For the purposes of a more intimate study it is inadequate. A translator of the works of this particular poet should be careful never to introduce ideas not found in the text, nor should he omit any idea that is there. In both respects Mr. Stacpoole is an offender, with the result that his lines are not suggestive of a poet whose every word is incisive. There are signs of lack of care in the revision of the proof-sheets."

+ — Ath 1914:1:54 Ja 10 800w

"An acceptable volume for those to whom fifteenth century French is a sealed book." H: C. Shelley

+ — Boston Transcript p7 Ja 3 '14 250w

"Mr. Stacpoole's faithfulness to the original sometimes proves harmful to the smoothness of his own verse, but that is better than too great freedom of rendering."

+ — Dial 57:460 D 1 '14 170w

"It is a pity that a book on so interesting a subject as the 'Poems of François Villon' should not be a better one. For aside from the appendix, in which one finds a complete text of the ballades and rondeaux, and the Great and Little testaments, there is little in de Vere Stacpoole's volume to call for more than slender praise."

+ — N Y Times 19:574 D 20 '14 250w

"Mr. Stacpoole's book is the fullest English tribute yet paid to one of the greatest, if not the greatest of French poets. Mr. Stacpoole calls him 'the voice of old Paris,' but he is the voice of Paris of all times in many of his ballads."

+ Sat R 117:20 Ja 3 '14 750w

"The present translation has reproduced the spirit of the original without sacrificing its finish."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 19 '14 530w

VINOGRADOFF, PAUL. Common-sense in law. (Home univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 14-30419

The author has tried "to explain as briefly and simply as possible the main principles which underlie legal arrangements. Although the details of legal rules are complicated and technical, the operations of the mind in the domain of law are based on common sense." (Chapter I) Contents: Social rules; Legal rules; Legal rights and duties; Facts and acts in law; Legislation; Custom; Judicial precedents; Equity; The law of nature.

A L A Bkl 10:408 Je '14

"As legislation, to say nothing of judicial authority, touches life more intimately, the origin and province of law must acquire a wider interest for the thoughtful citizen, and the Professor's little work, written with lucidity as well as learning, is well designed both to excite and satisfy it."

+ Ath 1914,1:224 F 14 1150w

"It is a book for the layman and is richly deserving of a place in the library of all who wish to be well informed on practical points in jurisprudence."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 90w

Nation 99:49 Jl 9 '14 40w

+ N Y Times 19:338 Ag 25 '14 150w

+ Spec 112:sup677 Ap 9 '14 250w

VISCONTI VENOSTA, GIOVANNI. Memoirs of youth, things seen and known, 1847-1860; tr. from the 3d ed. by W: Prall; with an introd. by W: Roscoe Thayer. il *$3 Houghton 14-11111

"This, it will be remembered, is the life story of the eminent Italian diplomat who played an important part in the unification of Italy." (R of Rs) "Visconti Venosta was only a boy of fourteen when Pius IX's election, in 1846, kindled a delirium of patriotic hopes. A patriotic drama, therefore, covers the life of Visconti Venosta, and of all the dramas played in Europe as a result of that revolutionary year, 1848, it seems the most interesting. As Mr. Thayer says, if this volume contains no more than the account of the amazing expulsion of Radetzky and his twenty thousand troops from Milan, the historian would cherish it, but it supplies first-hand testimony on many other notable events." (Outlook)

A L A Bkl 11:120 N '14

"These memoirs are among the best of those of the Risorgimento."

+ — Ath 1914,2:390 O 17 1000w

"It is one of the attractive elements of this record that it is so naturally told that the emphasis is placed where it appeared to the people of that day." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p2 Je 13 '14 800w

+ Educ R 48:420 N '14 70w

"The particular value, as well as the distinctive charm of Visconti Venosta's 'Memoirs' lies in the fact that through self-revelation and the description of social groups they impart a singularly lively and vital understanding of the spirit that pervaded the Italian struggle for liberty throughout the period from 1847 to 1860."

+ No Am 200:301 Ag '14 950w

"The book should make a treble appeal. First, it discloses noteworthy historical matters. Second, it describes social groups and conditions. Third, it unfolds an interesting personality. As to the historical period involved, these memoirs should be a precious source of information."

+ Outlook 107:942 Ag 15 '14 620w

R of Rs 50:117 Jl '14 90w

+ Spec 113:928 D 26 '14 1450w

"The book is undoubtedly an important contribution to the literature of the 'Risorgimento.'" H. D. Sedgwick

+ Yale R n s 4:410 Ja '15 1800w

VIVIAN, EVELYN CHARLES H. British army from within. *$1 (4c) Doran 14-20242

The books is a companion volume to works on the German, Russian and French armies, all issued since the beginning of the war. Contents: The army as a whole; The way of the recruit; Officers and non-coms; Infantry; Cavalry; Artillery and engineers; In camp; Musketry; The internal economy of the army; The new army; Active service.

"It is written with apparent fulness of knowledge, and with an evidently sincere desire to convey information."

+ Nation 99:635 N 26 '14 80w

N Y Times 19:485 N 8 '14 300w

"The book is an answer to many questions that have arisen since the great war began."

+ R of Rs 50:762 D '14 60w

VIZETELLY, ERNEST ALFRED (Le petit homme rouge, pseud.). My adventures in the Commune; Paris, 1871. il *$4 Duffield

"Although individually complete, the book forms a sequel to 'My days of adventure,' wherein Mr. Vizetelly gave his experiences during the siege of Paris, in 1870. In the present volume he relates the extraordinary events that followed the fall of Paris, giving an unforgettable picture of scenes which might arise in any conquered city at the end of a long siege. There is more historical and less personal data in the present than in the previous volume, the author giving a general survey of the Commune's successive phases, rather than an account of his own personal experiences."—Boston Transcript

+ Ath 1914,2:473 N 7 680w

+ Boston Transcript p21 D 23 '14 820w

"The work is well able to stand on its own merits and can be read with entire satisfaction independently of that previous narrative."

+ Dial 58:58 Ja 16 '15 370w

"This book is at once a most exciting chronicle and a dispassionate study of events."

+ Sat R 118:658 D 26 '14 280w

VIZETELLY, ERNEST ALFRED (Le petit homme rouge, pseud.). My days of adventure: the fall of France, 1870-71. *$2.50 Duffield (Eng ed 14-30:08)

"The most stirring episode in Mr. Vizetelly's adventurous career as a war correspondent was the Franco-German war, with which this volume chiefly deals. Mr. Vizetelly was in Paris when the Third republic was proclaimed, and stayed there during the first fifty days of the siege. He left Paris with a safe-conduct on November 8th, 1870, and afterwards attached himself to the Army of the Loire, with which he saw much fighting." (Spec) "This book is not history; it is a book for historians. The procession of great events in France in 1870 and 1871 does not in these pages march with the periodic stride of a chronicle. Mr. Vizetelly was too near to these events to write of them in the large, detached manner of an historian. He prefers just to remember the things he himself saw and shared." (Sat R)

"The reminiscences are rambling, sometimes trivial, with no attempt at connected history, VIZETELLY, ERNEST ALFRED—Continued, but have value as lively, first-hand accounts of things seen and heard."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:171 D '14

"This is a thoroughly readable and, moreover, useful book. On the whole, the book is remarkably free from mistakes which often abound in volumes of reminiscences. Here and there we have noted a slip. The book is of real value as an historical record, and is lightened by a good many original and hitherto unpublished anecdotes."

+ — Ath 1914,1:486 Ap 4 600w

+ Boston Transcript p24 D 2 '14 1050w

"Regarded as history, Mr. Vizetelly's book possesses merits of a superior order."

+ Lit D 49:1015 N 21 '14 650w

+ Nation 99:227 Ag 20 '14 320w

Reviewed by Joyce Kilmer

+ N Y Times 19:353 Ag 23 '14 1350w

"Its value lies in the confidence it inspires as a first-hand account of things seen and heard. Here, we feel, is a witness with a sense for the things that matter and an ability to present them accurately—one who has lived through important historical events and scenes; whose impressions are first-rate evidence."

+ Sat R 117:373 Mr 21 '14 830w

"He describes his experiences in a straightforward and readable fashion, and we answer the modest question with which his preface ends by saying that the story was assuredly worth telling."

+ Spec 112:sup682 Ap 25 '14 150w

"A happy combination of vivid impressions and sound and unbiased conclusions."

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 17 '14 1150w

VOGÜÉ, EUGÈNE MARIE MELCHIOR, vicomte de. Russian novel; tr. from the 11th French ed. by H. A. Sawyer. il $2.50 Doran

(Eng ed 14-8974)

"This book has passed through twelve editions in France and has been translated into almost every European language. It tells of the origin, rise, and progress of the novel and the circumstances by which it became the specific means of forming modern Russia, freeing the people, and educating the governing classes." (Ath) "It is a striking book, and the scene wherein the Vicomte depicts the fervour of the Russian people around the death-bed of Dostoyevsky is not easily forgotten." (Sat R)

"The present translation is more literal than the early one, has a more pleasing make-up, and has been illustrated with a number of portraits."

+ A L A Bkl 11:87 O '14

+ Ath 1913,2:sup398 O 11 50w

"It is well that so imaginative a book on that Minotaur in modern literature, the Russian school, should be offered the English reader."

+ Sat R 116:593 N 8 '13 380w

+ — Spec 111:875 N 22 '13 220w

VORSE, MARY (MARVIN) HEATON. Heart's country. il $1.35 (1½c) Houghton 14-8697

Only a woman who remembers vividly her own girlhood could have written this story of a young girl's development. It is not a story of outward action altho it carries Ellen Page thru three love affairs. It is concerned with the girl's emotional development thru joy and sorrow and thru the bitter experience that falls to the lot of women—waiting with folded hands. A New England town of a generation ago is the scene of the story.

+ A L A Bkl 11:78 O '14

Reviewed by A. C. Petrie

+ Bookm 39:166 Je '14 320w

+ Boston Transcript p22 J1 1 '14 110w

+ Ind 78:565 Je 29 '14 70w

+ Lit D 48:1497 Je 29 '14 140w

"To those who do not mind introspection, and who are not wedded to complexity of action, it should make a wholesome appeal; though the book is wholly feminine in outline and tone."

+ Nation 98:528 My 7 '14 200w

"The story is told with distinction of style, and with a quiet sincerity which makes it very real. That, however, which will most endear it to its readers is its sympathetic understanding, its warm human touch. Mrs. Stephens has caught the author's spirit, and her illustrations add to the charm of a charming novel."

+ N Y Times 19:218 My 3 '14 700w

"It's a good story, emotional, vivid and sometimes shows unusual insight into the depths below the placid surface of the lives of the most of us. There is little doubt that this analysis of the heart blossoming into girlhood is the finest thing in the book. The suspense and unhappiness take up so large a part of the story that the atmosphere of the book is overcast with Ellen's suffering. The character of Roger seems a trifle overdrawn, but is interesting, none the less."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 My 7 '14 470w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:164 Je '14 40w

VROOMAN, CARL SCHURZ, and VROOMAN, JULIA SCOTT. Lure and the lore of travel. $1.35 (2c) Sherman, French & Co. 14-22579

A book made up of disconnected papers, some signed by one author, some by the other, a few by the two together. Among the papers which are not, strictly speaking, devoted to travel are two by Carl Vrooman on Jean Jaures, the French socialist, and Professor Seignobos of the Sorbonne, and papers by Mrs. Vrooman on Charles Wagner, on Robert Louis Stevenson and Jules Simonneau, and on Stevenson in San Francisco. Some of the other subjects are: Picking up a language; Living as Europeans do; The best side of Paris; A revised version of Venice; Rambles in Switzerland.

"Mr. Vrooman has given us good and nutritious goose; it is not his fault if the enthusiasm of his publishers offers it to us as swan."

+ Nation 100:27 Ja 7 15 270w

"Suggestive and stimulating essays."

+ R of Rs 50:760 D '14 70w

W

WADDELL, HELEN. Lyrics from the Chinese. $1 Houghton (Eng ed 14-16251)

"Miss Waddell tells us just enough about the the source of her material to inform us that these lyrics are not directly translated, but put into metric and rhyme from the prose translations found in the work of Dr. Legge called 'The Chinese classics.'" (Boston Transcript) "There is a curiously modern sound about some of these lyrics." (Lit D)

Ath 1913,2:749 D 27 40w

Reviewed by W. A. Bradley

Bookm 39:202 Ap '14 110w

"Beautiful as Miss Waddell's introduction is to this volume of Chinese lyrics it is a little too fancifully symbolic to be instructive. A reading of these Chinese lyrics will convince one that Miss Waddell has put an exquisite poetic spirit and sympathy for Chinese feeling and life into her metrical versions."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Mr 7 '14 300w

"We can not testify as to the accuracy of Miss Waddell's renditions, but certainly she has made exquisite verse."

+ Lit D 48:505 Mr 7 '14 470w

Reviewed by Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 19:333 Ag 2 '14 330w

"Miss Waddell's 'Lyrics from the Chinese' are interesting historically and not less interesting as poetry. How much is Chinese and how much the translator's we do not know, but the poetic value of these little poems is very high."

+ Spec 112:sup677 Ap 25 '14 80w

WADDINGTON, MME. MARY ALSOP (KING)
 6 (MRS. WILLIAM HENRY WADDINGTON).
 My first years as a Frenchwoman, 1876-1879.
 il *$2.50 (4c) Scribner 14-7161

The author of "Letters of a diplomat's wife" has written another chapter of her reminiscences. The present work begins with her marriage in Paris in 1874. The chapters that make up her book are: When MacMahon was president; Impressions of the assembly at Versailles; M. Waddington as minister of public instruction; The social side of a minister's wife; A republican victory and a new ministry; The exposition year; The Berlin congress; Gaieties at the Quai d'Orsay; M. Waddington as prime minister; Parliament back in Paris; Last days at the foreign office.

"It is more superficial and lacks the charm and spontaneity of the author's earlier works."
 + A L A Bkl 11:29 S '14

+ Ath 1914,2:12 J1 4 670w

"A vivid and graphic picture of the times further illuminated by timely anecdote." E. L. Coubert

+ Bookm 39:457 Je '14 1200w

"At times the book seems to us to be a little full of politics in the dryer sense, but for the most part it is full of interesting anecdotes of well known persons or of accounts of important events. It is very intimate and personal because the author had the opportunity of her position to be in the midst of all the events of which she writes." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 22 '14 1000w

+ Ind 78:259 My 11 '14 100w

+ Lit D 49:520 S 19 '14 200w

"Highly interesting volumes of reminiscences."

+ R of Rs 49:633 My '14 100w

"Her sketches of the men and women she met at the Quai d'Orsay or elsewhere are lively, but she writes with an invariable discretion which we at once admire and regret. Her general view of the society of the period is, however, illuminating, and occasionally she gives a good anecdote."

+ Sat R 117:646 My 16 '14 250w

+ Spec 113:203 Ag 8 '14 1450w

WADE, MRS. MARY HAZELTON (BLANCHARD). Light-bringers. il *$1 (2c) Little 14-16239

A book of biographical sketches for young people. The author writes of the lives and work of Robert Edwin Peary; Clara Barton; The Wright brothers; Julia Ward Howe; Guglielmo Marconi; Roald Amundsen.

"The little book should be in every school and library and in all homes where are young people."

+ Boston Transcript p22 S 16 '14 220w

WADE, MRS. MARY HAZELTON (BLANCHARD). Little folks' plays of American heroes. 4v ea *60c Badger, R: G.

Washington [15-1645]; Franklin [15-1646]; Grant [14-19863]; and Lincoln are the subjects of these four small books. In each the author tells the story of her hero, then gives the text of a play built from the incidents of his life and adapted to the talents of young actors.

WAGGAMAN, MARY TERESA (MCKEE). Ups and downs of Marjorie. il 45c (1½c) Ben-ziger 14-7077

This little story, written for Catholic children, may be enjoyed by other young people as well. Marjorie is a little girl chosen from an orphanage to be a companion to two elderly ladies. The sisters at the orphanage told the two that they were afraid Marjorie would not suit them; she was too heedless and untidy. But perhaps Miss Susan and Miss Martha wanted a little brightness in their home, for they held to their choice, with happy results for all.

"The story is in Miss Waggaman's best vein."

+ Cath World 100:266 N '14 130w

"The frankly conventional plot is worked out quite prettily. Some of the characters show a touch of originality, and the story is told with considerable charm and grace."

+ N Y Times 19:344 Ag 9 '14 100w

WAGSTAFF, MRS. BLANCHE (SHOEMAKER).
 12 Eris. il *$1 Moffat 14-12430

"Eris," a dramatic allegory, is based upon a philosophical conception as old as history itself, — the pursuit of man by the daemon of his own thought." (R of Rs) "There are four characters, 'Man,' and three abstractions, 'Thought,' a demon, 'The past, a spirit,' and 'The future, spirit.' The allegory is in two parts, the first taking place on a plain which might symbolize a state rather than a place, and the second in Greece, which symbolizes the spiritual ideal of the poet's aspiration." (Boston Transcript)

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

Bookm 40:209 O '14 50w

"Everything is in this dramatic allegory but the fusing power to combine the elements into poetry. The piece is finely conceived, the spiritual substance has its ornamentation of symbols, but somehow neither the breath of beauty nor the pulse of life awakens them."

+ Boston Transcript p22 S 16 '14 250w

"The poem is well sustained; there is a wealth of classical allusion, long levels of delicate imagery and frequent passages of lovely and melodious fancy."

+ R of Rs 50:246 Ag '14 320w

WALCOTT, ARTHUR STUART. Java and her neighbors. il *$2.50 (2½c) Putnam 14-6444

The sub-title describes this book as "a traveller's notes in Java, Celebes, the Moluccas, and Sumatra." The author says in his preface that the Dutch East Indies, despite their natural attractions and the ease and comfort with which they may now be visited, are little known to travellers, and he has published these notes "in the hope that they may prove of use to some at least, of the ever-increasing army of travellers and of interest to others who by preference or of necessity do their travelling by proxy." An introductory chapter gives a sketch of the history of the islands; an appendix gives information concerning the present administration. The main text of the book is descriptive, with illustrations from photographs and a map.

+ A L A Bkl 11:27 S '14

"Mr. Walcott seems to have seen pretty well all that was worth seeing."

+ Ath 1914,2:228 Ag 29 550w

"Mr. Walcott appears to have 'done' the islands thoroughly and he has seen and here relates very much of interest."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 300w

"His book is the most helpful account of present travel-conditions in Java and the adjacent islands that is available in English, and the illustrations are exceptionally good."

+ Dial 57:81 Ag 1 '14 350w

Nation 99:21 J1 2 '14 450w

+ N Y Times 19:296 Je 28 '14 80w

+ R of Rs 49:634 My '14 150w

"A readable and intelligent book."

+ Sat R 117:681 My 23 '14 170w

"Respectable but somewhat pedestrian pages."

+ Spec 112:838 My 16 '14 50w

WALCOTT, PHILIP CORY. Modern values and their Christian sources. *$1 (2½c) Pilgrim press 14-15149

A volume made up of four papers on: The worth of life; The transcendence of the spiritual; The sovereignty of righteousness; The consciousness of God. The author says that they "are dedicated to the proposition that Jesus of Nazareth did not live and die in vain; that his handiwork is plainly to be found in the mind of the humanity of today; and that humanity itself is continuously confessing, by its practices if not always with its lips, that this handiwork is the best we have." (Preface)

WALCOTT, PHILIP CORY—Continued.

"The four topics are discussed with directness and originality and from a strictly modern point of view."

+ Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 180w

"Clear and logical in thought, simple and forceful in style. The best in modern life traced to religious faith."

+ Ind 80:210 N 9 '14 20w

N Y Times 19:441 O 11 '14 60w

WALDSTEIN, SIR CHARLES. Greek sculpture and modern art. il $2.50 Putnam A11-1266

"Sir Charles Waldstein's book consists, apart from its illustrations, of two lectures given to Royal academy students on the technique and subjects of ancient sculpture. He is right in insisting on the value of this study to modern artists, especially at a time when the sanity and harmony of which Greek art is representative are in danger of being overwhelmed in a riot of fantastic experiments. . . . He states his case fairly and reasonably, and is ready to recognize what is good in modern art as well as in ancient; and he carefully guards against the misunderstanding that, because he urges art students 'to fill themselves with the spirit which moved the Greek sculptors of old,' he therefore wants them to imitate classic models after the manner of Canova or Thorwaldsen."—Ath

A L A Bkl 11:208 Ja '15

"His book may be recommended as an antidote to many modern expressions of artistic theory and practice."

+ Ath 1914:1:663 My 9 130w

"These lectures have a definite value, not only to the embryo sculptor, but to the general student of Hellenic art." S. O. Dickerman

+ Class J 10:93 N '14 550w

"Eminently judicious discourses."

+ Nation 98:767 Je 25 '14 120w

"The heart of the book lies in the magnificent plates at the end of it, which tell Sir Charles's theme almost better than his letterpress by their mere juxtaposition."

+ Sat R 118:323 S 19 '14 800w

"While scholarly, the book is interesting, and should prove a valuable reference book for a high school or college library."

+ School Arts Magazine 14:443 F '15 370w

"The views expressed are somewhat superficial, and there is no sign of any very clear understanding of the direction in which some of the younger artists are groping."

— Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 100w

WALK, CHARLES EDMONDS. Green seal. Il $1.35 (1½c) McClurg 14-5423

A story of many mysteries. One is the mystery of the ring with the green jade seal; one the mystery of the diamond; one the mystery of the strange mark tattooed on Lois Fox's breast. The green seal comes out of the Far East and is known as "The kiss of the silent death." The story begins when it comes into the hand of a young Los Angeles lawyer, who tells the tale and who in the end, with the aid of Lois and others, solves the various puzzles and shows how one is related to the others.

"The story is well told."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 9 '14 200w

"This tale of a mysterious green jade ring and a still more mysterious and very wonderful diamond has the qualities of intricate plot, swift action, and exciting incidents to be expected in Mr. Walk's novels."

+ N Y Times 19:188 Ap 12 '14 110w

"A clever mystery story with no literary quality."

+ — Outlook 107:317 Je 6 '14 50w

"Mr. Walk has made a considerable success with several well-conceived mystery tales, and there is no doubt that this one possesses the right ingredients to keep the interest at high pitch throughout its progress."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 330w

WALKER, ALICE JOHNSTONE. Little plays from American history for young folks. $1 Holt 14-15432

A little book of plays adapted for school acting. One is a play of Puritan days, one of the revolution, and one presents scenes from the life of Lincoln.

A L A Bkl 11:179 D '14

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:264 N '14 40w

WALKER, GEORGE WALKER. Modern seismology. il $1.40 Longmans A14-743

"Mr. George W. Walker, who has contributed this volume to the series of 'Monographs on physics' is peculiarly qualified to write such a work, inasmuch as he has officially installed at the Observatory at Eskalemuir, in Dumfriesshire, and has had there under his personal observation day after day, a number of the best instruments for recording movements of the earth. . . . All the types of seismograph used at the Observatory are described in this work. The author not only explains their constructive details, showing what means are taken to secure sensitiveness, magnification of movement, and accuracy of registration, but also discusses mathematically the theory of their action."—Ath

+ Ath 1914:1:165 Ja 31 550w

"The first thing to strike one, on glancing through this book, is the absence of an index; the second is the absence of footnote references; and the third is an introduction which, purporting to be a history of the progress of modern seismology, contains about as many errors, of misstatements and omissions, as can be crowded into five pages of print. But, once the book proper is begun, these unfavourable impressions disappear, and we find an excellent introduction to the study of that modern seismology which is very remote from earthquakes."

+ — Nature 53:158 Ap 16 '14 470w

"A good technical account of seismographs."

+ Spec 112:398 Mr 7 '14 160w

WALKER, HUGH, and WALKER, JANIE (ROXBURGH) (MRS. HUGH WALKER). Outlines of Victorian literature. $1 Putnam A13-1989

"Professor Hugh Walker, author of 'The age of Tennyson' and of 'The literature of the Victorian era,' has written 'Outlines of Victorian literature' in collaboration with his wife. The avowed (and excellent) purpose of this small, compact volume, which draws upon the other two, is to 'furnish an introduction, . . . to stimulate interest and curiosity.' (Dial) 'While indicating clearly the well-known landmarks of the period, the authors have avoided the pitfall of filling in their map with too many names. Incidentally they bring out very clearly what we would call the manse and country parsonage influence which was certainly predominant during the period.' (Sat R)

"A serviceable compendium, which, while not marked by originality of thought or style, has human interest and is readable."

+ A L A Bkl 11:164 D '14

"In general the ground is well covered by the collaborators."

+ — Ath 1913:2:61 Jl 19 250w

"The book is valuable rather as a compendium than as a carefully developed history of literature. Although the authors are conscientious in their learning, they are unfortunately wanting in any instinctive or ardent sympathy with creative genius."

+ — Dial 57:261 O 1 '14 150w

"It is not particularly inspiring, but, on the other hand, it is sensible and readable."

+ Sat R 116:342 S 13 '13 140w

WALKER, WILLIAM LOWE. Christ the creative ideal. $2 Scribner (Eng ed A14-674)

Using the epistles to the Ephesians and the Colossians as a basis, the author attacks the old problem of the relationship between religion and science. "He is unstinted in his appreciation of what modern science has done for man, but he is also conscious of the void it cannot fill. This void, he believes can be filled by Christianity. But Christianity must be shown to be large enough to fit into the new conceptions we have received of the universe. To use his words: 'If Christianity is to be placed on the securest foundations, its oneness with creation must be shown, and all suspicion of disharmony with science removed.' (Boston Transcript)

"Offers much to the Christian student."

+ A L A Bkl 10:283 Mr '14

"Much of what he says deserves real consideration."

+ — Ath 1913,2:489 N 1 40w

"The book is one of great strength. It is a clear trumpet call to Christians to proclaim their triumphant gospel in all its fulness; for the author makes his readers feel that the great wonders of science pale before the greater wonders of the Eternal Purpose in Jesus Christ."

+ Boston Transcript p11 N 20 '13 530w

WALLACE, ALFRED RUSSEL. Revolt of democracy. il *$1 Funk 14-30270

"In 'The revolt of democracy' the distinguished scientist voices a sweeping demand that the workers of England shall have a fair share of the wealth they produce; and that no hapless being, however helplessly incompetent, shall be allowed to suffer the extreme penalty of poverty, in the form of starvation. Naturally it is not easy to urge anything new in the way of general arguments on these vital questions; but the author's opinions do carry the prestige of a great name, and he does offer some detailed suggestions of compelling interest. . . . The text proper is preceded by a fairly full and convenient sketch of Wallace's life."—Dial

A L A Bkl 10:321 Ap '14

"While important, it will not secure the attention commanded by its predecessor."

+ Bib World 45:119 F '15 70w

"His own last work, to tell the truth, is a little slight and disappointing."

+ — Cath World 98:543 Ja '14 620w

Dial 56:190 Mr 1 '14 400w

R of Rs 49:376 Mr '14 100w

"Perhaps the most interesting part of the book lies in the biography of the author with which it opens, and which has been sympathetically written by Mr. James Marchant."

+ Spec 111:829 N 15 '13 50w

WALLACE, DILLON. Gaunt gray wolf: a tale of adventure with "Ungava Bob." il *$1.25 (1½c) Revell 14-15738

"That plucky young hero of Mr. Wallace's first story, Ungava Bob, reappears in this new tale, first as guide, then as companion and friend to "Shad" Trowbridge, who came from Boston to spend a summer vacation fishing and hunting in Labrador. Of course many unexpected and exciting adventures befell the two lads, they had more than one hair-breadth escape."—N Y Times

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 160w

"The book is one of real adventure, set down with knowledge and sympathy."

+ Dial 57:391 N 16 '14 100w

+ Lit D 50:158 Ja 23 '15 170w

"A graphic picture of that sub-arctic region and the lives of the fur trappers therein. It is, too, a well-written tale, spirited and swift moving; one which conveys an excellent lesson without undue moralizing."

+ N Y Times 19:371 S 6 '14 220w

"A stirring boys' book."

+ Outlook 108:105 S 9 '14 40w

WALLAS, GRAHAM. Great society: a psychological analysis. *$2 (2c) Macmillan 14-11250

The purpose of this study is to bring the knowledge which has been accumulated by psychologists into touch with the actual problems of present civilized life. Two chapters are devoted to a "rough indication" of the subject-matter and terminology of the science of social psychology and the remainder of the work indicates the lines on which this science may be made most useful for the organization of the "great society." Chapters: The great society; Social psychology; Instinct and intelligence; Disposition and environment; Habit; Fear; Pleasure-pain and happiness; The psychology of the crowd; Love and hatred; Thought; The organization of thought; The organization of will; The organization of happiness.

"Profound in thought, temperate and philosophical in tone, and highly suggestive."

+ A L A Bkl 11:58 O '14

"Incomplete as it is, is perhaps the most suggestive political work of the generation."

+ Ath 1914,2:138 Ag 1 1100w

"The author has made a very thorough and very clear psychological analysis of modern life." F. W. C.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 19 '14 550w

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Ja 27 '15 1700w

"Every page is interesting, illuminating, and suggestive." R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 13:429 Ja '15 160w

Reviewed by H. D. Oakeley

+ Hibbert J 13:435 Ja '15 1900w

Ind 80:210 N 9 '14 900w

"A masterly presentation."

+ Ind 80:245 N 16 '14 70w

Reviewed by E. S. P. Haynes

+ — Int J Ethics 25:264 Ja '15 630w

Reviewed by Durant Drake

+ — J Philos 12:22 Ja 7 '15 1900w

+ Nation 100:59 Ja 14 '15 230w

"Arriving at many significant conclusions about human nature in our modern environment, the author is led into a startlingly clear criticism not only of the classic moralists and economists, but also of the dogmatists of conservatism, socialism, and syndicalism. These criticisms give the book its principal value."

+ N Y Times 19:313 Jl 19 '14 1700w

Reviewed by F. W. Colby

+ No Am 200:468 S '14 2300w

"A thoughtful and thoroughly understandable treatise in social psychology, and it complements admirably his previously published 'Human nature in politics.' It is the work of a close observer, a clear thinker, and a real humanitarian."

+ Outlook 108:105 S 9 '14 210w

R of Rs 50:379 S '14 120w

"Most interesting book."

+ Sat R 118:146 Ag 1 '14 1500w

"One of the most penetrating studies of recent years, a work in which we do not know whether to admire most the analytic power, the breadth of sympathy, or the admirable philosophic temper."

+ Spec 113:202 Ag 8 '14 1500w

"The book should meet with a ready acceptance in America from a class of persons to whom the typical volume of the 'reform' advocate has become, through its accumulation of puling ineptitude, a mere source of exasperation."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 S 17 '14 1800w

WALLE, PAUL. Bolivia; its people and its resources, its railways, mines, and rubber-forests; tr. by Bernard Miall. (South American ser.) il *$3 Scribner (Eng ed 14-14318)

"M. Walle was sent on a special mission to Bolivia in 1911 by the French ministry of commerce, and made a close study of that interesting and promising, but still little-known republic. . . . He sets forth the result of his investigations, and gives a clear account of the topography, population, industries, and mineral resources of Bolivia. Now that the country is being opened up by railway construction, M. Walle thinks that it presents unusual opportunities to the capitalist in search of a new field for development."—Spec

WALLE, PAUL—Continued.

"Comprehensive and authoritative account."
+ A L A Bkl 11:116 N '14

"The high reputation which the author has earned by many years of constant work of this description is well sustained by the present volume. By this book a stranger is enabled to acquire the knowledge which only comes from long and observant sojourn in a country. Mr. Bernard Miall's translation is for the most part straightforward and clear, with occasional lapses into strange sentences."

+ — Ath 1914,2:139 Ag 1 850w

"Little need be said of this description of the country except that it is well up to the high average of the South American series issued by the publishers."

+ Sat R 118:151 Ag 1 '14 100w

"Readable volume."

+ Spec 113:191 Jl 18 '14 100w

WALLER, MARY ELLA. From an island outpost. *$1.25 (2c) Little 14-7909

In a book that is part diary, part journal, the author gives a record of days spent on one of the outlying islands along the Massachusetts coast. There are notes on the life of the island, which seems like a bit of foreign land so different is it from our familiar busy America; and there are notes on books and reading and wise reflections drawn from a richly stored memory.

"In every page Miss Waller has written a striking autobiography of her mind." E. F. E.
+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 8 '14 1200w

"Miss Waller has fullness of life and wealth of thought to draw upon for the enrichment of such a book as she now offers to her readers."

+ Dial 56:390 My 1 '14 300w

+ — Nation 98:605 My 21 '14 200w

+ — N Y Times 19:287 Je 21 '14 250w

"The especial claim that this little book makes upon our attention is to be found in its sanity and clear thinking."

+ Outlook 107:265 My 30 '14 110w

R of Rs 49:762 Je '14 130w

WALLIN, JOHN EDWARD WALLACE. Mental health of the school child. il *$2 (1½c) Yale univ. press 14-12179

A collection of papers dealing with the psycho-educational clinic in relation to child welfare. The author calls them "Contributions to a new science of orthophrenics and orthosomatics." A partial list of contents follows: Medical and psychological inspection of school children; The new clinical psychology and the psychoclinicist; Clinical psychology: what it is and what it is not; The functions of the psychological clinic; Human efficiency; The present status of the Binet-Simon graded tests of intelligence; Current misconceptions in regard to the functions of Binet testing; Individual and group efficiency; The eutheoretical and eugenical aspects of infant and child orthogenesis. The final chapter provides A schema for the clinical study of mentally and educationally unusual children.

Nation 99:321 S 10 '14 430w

N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 200w

WALLING, WILLIAM ENGLISH. Progressivism—and after. *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 14-5321

The author quotes the remark attributed to Jefferson to the effect that no party ought to last more than thirty years, but says that with our present rate of progress it is probable that that number of years is too long. It is inevitable, then, that the present movement, popularly known as Progressivism, but called for the purposes of this book State capitalism, when it has served its day, will be succeeded by something else. That, the author holds, will be State socialism, which in its turn will be succeeded by another form, already being born in the New unionism, Syndicalism, or Industrial socialism. "For a truly scientific interpretation of any movement," the author says, "we must try to place ourselves in advance of it." He attempts, therefore, to look at the progressive movement from the point of view of the later movements that are to follow it—to look, not from the present into the future, but from the future into the present.

Reviewed by P. S. Peirce

+ Am J Soc 20:268 S '14 750w

A L A Bkl 10:408 Je '14

Reviewed by J. S. Schapiro

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:699 N '14 570w

Reviewed by Alexander Fleisher

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:344 Jl '14 520w

"A tremendously interesting book on its merits. Personally we have found it the most stimulating and thought-provoking book on purely economic topics we have ever read." H. E. S.

+ Boston Transcript p10 My 2 '14 1650w

+ Ind 78:564 Je 29 '14 270w

Reviewed by E. L. Talbert

+ Int J Ethics 25:106 O '14 2000w

Reviewed by Paul Wander

+ — J Pol Econ 22:804 O '14 1550w

Nation 98:667 Je 4 '14 600w

+ R of Rs 49:637 My '14 140w

WALLIS, ARTHUR FREDERICK. Idonia: a romance of old London. il *$1.30 (1½c) Little 13-24827

A story of the days of Queen Elizabeth. Young Denis Cleeve, who tells the story, goes up to London in answer to an appeal from a rascally uncle who has sent word to the brother he had once wronged that he is imprisoned in the tower. Denis goes, bearing the bulk of his father's wealth, but learns too late that the appeal is only a ruse. He finds himself in the power of a band of clever rogues, and unaided, save by the girl, Idonia, makes his way to liberty, foils their plots, and unmasks his uncle's villainy. The author succeeds in reproducing the atmosphere of those spacious days without invoking the magic of the great names of the period.

A L A Bkl 10:288 Mr '14

"If Mr. Wallis can sustain and develop the qualities shown in 'Idonia' he is a writer to be reckoned with." H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p5 Jl 19 '13 400w

"Not only is the style attractive, but the author shows marked skill in the invention of plot and incident, and there is no little mild humor in the narrative of young Mr. Cleeve."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ja 17 '14 350w

"Mr. Wallis has affected a style elaborately though not quite consistently Elizabethan. His archaisms, sometimes incorrectly used, constantly distract the reader's attention from the story. The author's own interest, indeed, appears to be more in his style than in his matter."

+ — Nation 98:135 F 5 '14 170w

"Whoever is discouraged by the first hundred pages of 'Idonia' will do well to keep steadfastly on—or to skip judiciously—until the author begins to set forth more stirring scenes. The book will be enjoyed for its literary charm as well as for its interesting story and its graphic presentation of life in old London."

+ — N Y Times 19:776 Ja 4 '14 560w

Spec 111:768 N 8 '13 30w

WALPOLE, HUGH. Duchess of Wrexhe, her decline and death; a romantic commentary. *$1.40 (1c) Doran 14-5432

The duchess was a tradition. For thirty years she had not stirred from her room, had not been seen by the world which she ruled; but Victoria's England, which loved its traditions, continued to be ruled by her. Two forces unite in the end to accomplish her undoing—the force of the rising generation, represented here by two rebels in her own camp, Francis Breton, her out-cast grandson, and Rachel, her hated granddaughter; and the force of the awakening people that began to come into its own when the guns of the South African war battered down class barriers and disclosed England's aristocracy at its true worth. The close of the war marked the passing of the Victorian age with its great traditions, and with them passed the Duchess of Wrexhe.

- + A L A Bkl 11:33 S '14
- + Ath 1914,1:226 F 14 300w
- Atlan 114:529 O '14 250w

"On a single page of 'The duchess of Wrexhe' will be found more about mankind and life than is discoverable in the entirety of many another novel. Structurally it is far from perfect, and frequently its transitions between its several groups of characters are annoying, but it is nevertheless a masterly work of observation and imagination. It presents things as they are, as they ought not to be, and as they should be, and at no moment does it misrepresent any one life, or life as a whole. With the extent and richness of his material it is wonderful that Mr. Walpole has made the story so coherent and so realistic. He has lavished upon it ideas, situations, events and characters sufficient for the life-work of numerous other novelists." E. F. E.

+ + — Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 1050w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

- + — Dial 57:54 J1 16 '14 220w

"Unluckily, her author does not succeed in making [the duchess] terrible or even credible. She is both too wicked and too stacy in her wickedness."

- + Nation 99:105 J1 23 '14 280w

"Mr. Walpole in 'The duchess of Wrexhe,' as in his earlier books, has not quite done it. Has not produced, that is to say, absolutely what he wants to produce. But the effort is so nearly successful, what he has done, though it falls short of what he means to do, is so good that his books must be put in the very front rank of the work of real significance now being produced by English or American writers."

- + — N Y Times 19:293 J1 5 '14 1050w

"The development of the theme is admirable. The greatest lack of the book is perhaps that of buoyancy."

- + — Outlook 107:679 J1 18 '14 180w

"There has not been so splendid a character in recent fiction as the Duchess, nothing technically finer than the artfulness that attempts to convey the mysterious power of her personality."

- + R of Rs 50:247 Ag '14 190w

"Mr. Walpole interests us so much and writes so well that we beg of him to avoid archaisms such as 'discourage' for cowardice, and to drop the vile American trick of inversion, such as 'him all this time she closely observed.' But Mr. Hugh Walpole is far above most of his contemporaries, and as a combination of love, social satire and political philosophy of the lighter kind we recommend the 'Duchess of Wrexhe' to the readers of novels."

- + — Sat R 117:244 F 21 '14 750w
- + — Wis Lib Bull 10:264 N '14 60w

WALSH, JAMES JOSEPH. Century of Columbus. bus. il $3.50 Catholic summer school press 14-15378

"Most of the subject matter in the present volume has been delivered in lecture form to the Knights of Columbus in different cities of the United States. It deals in popular fashion with the renaissance-reformation period, 1450-1550."

... Book I gives a brief sketch of the century's painters, sculptors, architects, musicians, and engravers; Book II has some interesting chapters upon the work of social reform, hospitals, the Jesuits, the reformers, the explorers and empire-builders, the education of women, and the progress of medicine and surgery. Book III treats of the Latin, Italian, English, French, Spanish, and Portuguese literatures of the period.—Cath World

"Dr. Walsh does ample justice to the artistic, intellectual, and humanitarian achievements of the Catholics of that time."

- + Cath World 100:676 F '15 250w

"It is a one-sided picture, of course, but all the more valuable on that account since it presents a side that is commonly overlooked."

- + Ind 80:340 N 30 '14 100w

"Apart from some defects Dr. Walsh's brilliant record of a great cultural epoch of history is commendable and valuable."

- + — Outlook 108:903 D 16 '14 250w

WALSH, WILLIAM SHEPARD. Heroes and heroines of fiction, modern prose and poetry. *$3 Lippincott 14-15549

"Mr. Walsh has compiled a useful book. The sub-title promises 'famous characters and famous names in novels, romances, poems, and dramas classified, analyzed and criticized, with supplementary citations from the best authorities.' The text fulfils this promise in the main, although the list is not, of course, complete."—Dial

"He has done a good deal of useful and careful work for the person who wishes to verify names or discover their purport and origin. The book would have been much more satisfactory if it had been confined to fiction in prose, and omitted poetry altogether. As it is, this volume is inadequate regarding poetry."

- + — Ath 1914,2:587 D 5 900w

"Oversights must be pardoned in view of the wealth of information comprised in the present volume."

- + — Cath World 100:399 D '14 150w
- + Dial 57:394 N 16 '14 60w

"A very useful book."

- + N Y Times 20:42 F 7 '15 50w

"The summaries are clear and accurate, and the brief judgments of the author are astonishingly sound when we consider the enormous scope of his work."

- + Sat R 118:564 N 28 '14 210w

"It is hardly up to Mr. Walsh's standard."

- + — Spec 114:57 Ja 9 '15 100w

WALTON, GEORGE LINCOLN. Flower-finder. il *$2 Lippincott 14-3736

This flower guide "gives accurate pictures of each of the wild flowers, with Latin names, families, and unmistakable descriptions of the blossoms and leaves, [and adds] a glossary and index by families."—Ind

- A L A Bkl 10:426 Je '14

"More useful than the average wild flower guide."

- + Ind 78:212 My 4 '14 170w

"The book is well illustrated, the descriptions are clear, and the guiding directions distinct. It should serve a good purpose in increasing the knowledge of our northern wild flowers."

- + Nation 98:550 My 7 '14 60w
- + R of Rs 50:124 J1 '14 60w

WARD, FLORENCE ELIZABETH. Montessori method and the American school. il *$1.25 (2c) Macmillan 14-1387

The author spent some time in Rome, making a special study of Madame Montessori's work, and since her return has put many of its principles into practice in her own work as Professor of kindergarten education at Iowa state college. The chapters of her book take up: The evolution of the method; Impressions of a Montessori school; Freedom—the underlying principle; The child's world of objects; Language, oral and written; Number development; Mediums of self-expressive and preparatory values; The oldest agency of early education—the home; Other agencies of early education.

"Clearly more useful to American teachers than Culverwell."

- + A L A Bkl 10:366 My '14

"No part of the book is of more genuine human interest than the pages that show the character of the Dottoressa herself."

- + Boston Transcript p3 F 21 '14 400w
- Chaut 72:493 F 21 '14 200w

"An exposition of Mme. Montessori's teaching that is very clear, agreeable and practical."

- + Educ R 47:421 Ap '14 200w

WARD, FLORENCE ELIZABETH—Continued.

"The best chapters are those not so directly dealing with Montessori practice." E. P. C.

+ Nature 93:659 Ag 27 '14 70w

+ Spec 113:164 O 3 '14 120w

Reviewed by F. A. Manny

+ Survey 33:339 D 26 '14 40w

WARD, FRANCIS KINGDON. Land of the blue poppy; travels of a naturalist in eastern Tibet. il $4 Putnam A13-2053

"Mr. Ward, son of the late Professor of Botany at Cambridge, describes his travels on the Chinese border of eastern Tibet, as a collector of decorative plants for a firm of florists. In this work he spent several months in 1911 in the upper valleys of the Yangtse, Mekong, and Salwin, with his headquarters at the missionary station of 'A-tun-tsi' (the A-tun-tzu of the maps), on the north-west frontier of Yunnan. . . . Notwithstanding its scientific deficiencies as 'the journal of a naturalist,' the book gives a lively popular account of adventurous travel off the beaten tracks, and the numerous photographs convey a good idea of the country traversed."—Nature

"He writes interestingly of his experiences with the people, their customs and manner of life, and contributes much of scientific value on the geography, geology and natural history of the region. Good photographs. Needed only in large libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 10:239 F '14

"There is an index, which might with advantage have been more comprehensive; but the book as a whole is a useful contribution to our scanty knowledge of an interesting part of the world."

+ Ath 1913,2:66 JI 19 700w

Reviewed by H. C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 O 18 '13 40w

"Mr. Ward's record of his experiences and observations in western China and in south-eastern Tibet is as valuable to the scientist as it is interesting to the general reader."

+ Boston Transcript p11 N 28 '13 630w

+ Nation 99:413 O 1 '14 230w

"Although he displays no very intimate acquaintance with the writings of previous travelers in those regions, his narrative is pleasantly written, and contains some observations of general interest."

+ Nature 92:168 O 9 '13 600w

"The form of his narrative makes it rather difficult to distinguish between the important and the ephemeral happenings and detracts from the interest to the general reader. It is written for the specialist and is firsthand authority on the geography of the boundary land, as well as the particular subjects of the author's investigation."

+ N Y Sun p4 S 27 '13 120w

"Altogether the book gives a vigorous presentation of travel in little-known regions, and is enlivened by many excellent photographs."

+ Sat R 116:145 Ag 2 '13 1000w

WARD, GILBERT OAKLEY. Practical use of books and libraries: an elementary manual. $1 Boston bk. 14-14476

In this second edition of Mr. Ward's manual a number of revisions have been made to bring the work down to date. The chapters on Reference books and Magazines have been revised; the former has been considerably enlarged; and explanatory lists of common abbreviations relating to books or found in library catalogs have been added. The total number of pages has been increased from 80 to 104

A L A Bkl 11:87 O '14

"It belongs in every public library and, still more, in every high school library."

+ Boston Transcript p21 S 2 '14 100w

+ Dial 57:443 D 1 '14 250w

+ N Y Times 19:393 S 20 '14 50w

WARD, JAMES. Colour decoration of architecture. il $3.50 Dutton (Eng ed A14-1665)

"Mr. Ward urges the reintroduction of colour on our buildings, within and without. His useful book includes practical suggestions and designs and a short historical review of Italian, French, German, and English colour decoration." (Sat R) "The history of art manifests in all its epochal phases an intense delight in the use of color by its artists, decorators and architects. And Mr. Ward strongly deprecates the colorlessness of modern architecture, illustrating by many examples from classic periods the great advantage artistically color gives, and welcoming even its faint note in the red brick and red-tiled roofs of many modern buildings." (Boston Transcript)

"Not the least instructive part of the book are the fine illustrations."

+ Boston Transcript p22 JI 1 '14 520w

"It is difficult to see how, without artistic principles, the author can turn out books on art at such a rate. Perhaps, however, it is this very lack of principles which prevents him from compacting his work, and permits him to impose such an unnecessary burden on the public."

+ Dial 57:112 Ag 16 '14 350w

"Mr. Ward's handling of the subject is workmanlike and practically suggestive. We may not like all the designs he reproduces, but that is a detail."

+ Sat R 117:180 F 7 '14 200w

WARD, JAMES. History and methods of ancient and modern painting. 2v v 1 il ea $2.50 Dutton (Eng ed 13-25247)

v 1 "An historical survey of painting from the Egyptian period to the beginning of the renaissance, together with descriptions of the methods and materials used in all branches and kinds of the art, such as painting in tempera, encaustic on wax, fresco, and oil. The history and treatment of mosaic and miniature painting, and their influence on decorative and pictorial art, are also included in this volume."—Ath

"Covers much the same field as Laurie's 'Materials of the painter's craft,' but is much more comprehensive, though hardly so thorough a work."

+ A L A Bkl 10:409 Je '14 (Review of v 1)

"The illustrations are for the most part selected without discrimination, and are inadequately reproduced. The author would assuredly have done better had he confined himself to a more restricted area, and endeavoured to give us something of more value than a skeleton of existing textbooks. He announces that the second volume will treat of the history of modern painting from the time of Cimabue onwards, and we trust he will not make it a companion in spirit to the first volume."

— Ath 1913,2:353 O 4 370w (Review of v 1)

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 18 90w (Review of v 1)

"This history of painting is very distinctly intended for the student of art, and its clearness and thoroughness recommend it to students."

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 200w (Review of v 1)

"The succinct account of Italian fresco painting, concerning which the author has already written a book, is the best we have seen. For the rest the book is rather clumsily written, rarely cites authorities, and is padded out with general considerations of art history, which is occasionally inaccurate."

+ Nation 99:27 JI 2 '14 130w (Review of v 1)

"To complete the practical value of his work the author should have included a chapter on the requirements and conditions of modern fresco painting, for which he refers us to an earlier work."

+ Sat R 116:816 D 27 '13 550w (Review of v 1)

"This book in no way rivals the numerous histories of painting which have appeared in the last few years. In the section dealing with artists' materials Mr. Ward makes statements for which he gives no reasons, some of which are surprising."

+ Spec 111:sup693 N 1 '13 100w (Review of v 1)

WARD, JOHN J. Insect biographies; with pen and camera. il *$2 Stokes

"Mr. J. J. Ward has written a pleasant and popular account of the life-history of several of our best-known insects. He has contrived to show how full of interest are the facts concerning the growth, development, and general mode of life of the subjects of his pen and camera, without overburdening his pages with technicalities, or, on the other hand, being guilty of inaccuracy or looseness of statement. The photographs with which the book is plentifully illustrated have been in almost every instance taken directly from living specimens in their natural attitudes and surroundings."—Nature

"The general reader will find in it considerable and trustworthy information on many episodes of insect life."

+ Ath 1913,2:531 N 8 120w

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 23 '15 240w

"Both the photographer and the engraver have succeeded exceptionally well in their work. Intensive study directed to a few carefully selected types and carried to a high degree of completeness characterizes this work and lifts it above the level of the ordinary 'nature study' treatment of entomological topics."

+ Dial 58:22 Ja 1 '15 140w

"Printed in large type, filled with excellent and interesting illustrations, it is written in a style below rather than above the level of the layman."

+ Nation 99:612 N 19 '14 50w

"Mr. Ward's bionomic conclusions are for the most part well grounded, but he seems in some passages somewhat too ready to admit without question the interpretation of instinct as inherited habit." F. A. D.

+ Nature 93:214 Ap 30 '14 400w

+ N Y Times 20:21 Ja 17 '15 70w

"A capital instance of a modern popular natural-history book. Mr. John J. Ward is a good photographer, and evidently also a patient observer. He makes his subject interesting and attractive, writes well in a popular fashion, and each chapter contains a fair amount of information."

+ Spec 111:sup950 D 6 '13 230w

WARD, JOSEPHINE MARY (HOPE-SCOTT) (MRS. WILFRID PHILIP WARD). Horace Blake. *$1.35 Putnam 13-22813

The story "deals with the closing days of the life of a genius, who, as a novelist and playwright, has achieved great fame. Brought up in the Roman Catholic faith, in his young manhood he had broken not only with religion, but in private life and in belief, with moral control of whatever sort. . . . But as he nears death subtle influences happen to gather about him that change all his feelings, and especially his attitude toward his own work. And afterward his wife faces the question of whether or not, in view of all that has happened to him, she ought to destroy his last play, at once the greatest and the worst thing he has ever done, and whether it will be more loyal to his memory for her to allow his biography to be written or to close all the doors upon her knowledge of his life and its end."—N Y Times

"A story presented with great ability and charm. The 'changed-at-birth' incident appears to us, artistically speaking, a mistake, and it is not improved by the irrelevant introduction of anti-suffrage propaganda."

+ Ath 1913,2:229 S 6 150w

+ Atlan 114:524 O 14 600w

+ Cath World 99:100 Ap '11 350w

"The real achievement of the book is its successful portrayal of a man of genius."

+ Nation 98:239 Mr 5 '14 320w

"Mrs. Ward's novel is a characteristic piece of English fiction, having a very slender wisp of story and a very large amount of psychological analysis of people, actions, motives, and situations."

+ N Y Times 19:38 Ja 25 '14 250w

"A seriously conceived and admirably worked out novel by Mrs. Wilfrid Ward is found in this unusual character study."

+ Outlook 196:421 F 21 '14 300w

"Another study of psychology, full of dramatic spiritual power."

+ R of Rs 49:375 Mr '14 40w

"It is the latter part which is the more satisfactory, for the conversion of a man of Blake's temperament to the Romantic Roman Catholicism of a Breton 'curé' does not somehow seem convincing."

+ Spec 111:617 O 18 '13 220w

WARD, LESTER FRANK. Glimpses of the cosmos. v 1-3 il ea *$2.50 Putnam 14-33

"These three volumes comprise the collected essays of Dr. Ward. They are so arranged that the entire work may be considered as 'a mental autobiography.' He was born in 1841, but this first volume covers the period between 1858-1871 or the ages of sixteen to thirty. . . . The second volume includes the period between 1875-1882, age thirty to forty. This he terms the beginning of his scientific career. . . . The third volume comprises but three years, 1882-1885. The greater part is given to Dr. Ward's greatest work, 'Dynamic sociology.' It was the result of fourteen years of hard work. The other papers are on botany, geology and Christianity. The last paper in this volume was written in 1885, when the author was forty-four years of age. The work when completed will be in twelve volumes."—Boston Transcript

"Those who not only knew Dr. Ward's works but were also within his circle of acquaintance will find in these volumes invaluable means of understanding him more intimately. They reveal him more distinctly as a great man—not merely as a great craftsman in two broad scientific fields—greater even than those of us who rated him highest had estimated. To students of the development of knowledge and theory about social relations who have never discovered Ward, these books will furnish a key to a body of literature, with a stimulus to study it, without knowledge of which one of the most significant and creditable developments during the last thirty years of American life could be but superficially understood." A. W. Small

+ Am J Soc 19:659 Mr '14 3000w (Review of v 1-3)

Boston Transcript p23 F 25 '14 330w (Review of v 1-3)

Reviewed by T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 57:136 S 1 '14 1200w

"It would be unfair, however, to judge of the value of the whole work by these three volumes for the author's plan of publishing in chronological order, all his minor and unpublished writings, extending over sixty years, puts first his least creditable work, some of it of no possible interest. There is something valuable and refreshing in the very eccentricities of the book—in its reversal of all ordinary proportions and its scorn of impressionistic methods."

+ Ind 77:385 Mr 16 '14 700w (Review of v 1-3)

"Whatever inconsistencies one may find in Lester Ward's philosophy, or however one may differ from those who think that they have found in him a Moses to lead them into the promised land, all must acknowledge that he united to an intellect of very exceptional powers an ardent love of truth and an industry that was truly phenomenal. His 'Glimpses of the cosmos' is a remarkable human document."

+ Nation 98:579 My 14 '14 1350w (Review of v 1-3)

+ N Y Times 19:328 Jl 26 '14 70w

Reviewed by J. Collier

+ Survey 32:637 S 26 '14 1500w

WARD, MARY AUGUSTA (ARNOLD) (MRS. HUMPHRY WARD). Delia Blanchflower. il $1.35 Hearst's int. lib. 14-13258

"Mrs. Ward's 'Delia Blanchflower' is a deliberate study of militancy. . . . Delia is an interesting person. She is daughter of a retired officer (that mainstay of British fiction), has fallen by chance into the hands of a militant leader, and, largely as a matter of personal devotion, has pledged herself to the Cause. The father is outraged, and, dying, leaves his large fortune in the care of a guardian, who is to see that none of it goes to the support of militancy. The guardian, Mark Winnington . . . is that reserved, athletic, handsome Briton with whom, apparently, the fortunate Isles are peopled. Delia resents him and disobeys him, and, of course, in the end loves him and is by him rescued from the perils and absurdities of the Cause."—Nation

"Interesting but not equal to the author's best work."

+ A L A Bkl 11:78 O '14 +

"The intellectual stimulus of the novel, the vigorous life of contemporary events, the inspiration of debatable problems, the entertainment of imaginative literature, are all bound within the covers of Delia Blanchflower. It is fiction at its best, fiction at Mrs. Ward's best, fiction that causes us to think while we are deriving aesthetic enjoyment from it." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 1950w

"The story is told with Mrs. Ward's customary suavity and charm." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 99:462 O 15 '14 250w

"Does not rank with the best of Mrs. Ward's work owing to a certain perfunctory note which sounds in it again and again. Interesting and well written, generally temperate, despite some rather curious remarks."

+ N Y Times 19:397 S 27 '14 1000w

+ Outlook 108:843 D 9 '14 420w

"This novel, while distinctly not the best that Mrs. Ward has ever written, is at the same time distinctly better and more interesting than most of those which she has written in more recent years."

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 3 '14 850w

WARD, WILFRID PHILIP. Men and matters. 5 $3.50 Longmans 14-30365

"Those who are familiar with Mr. Ward's biographical writings need not be told what kind of style and what range of ideas to expect in this book of essays. . . . The reader's pleasure in the papers on Cardinals Vaughan and Newman, on Thomas Aquinas and other more frankly Catholic topics, will naturally depend somewhat on his own religious position; but to no great extent, for Mr. Ward is never bigoted or blind, and in general he brings to the questions of the church the same judicious temper and broad outlook as to the problems of secular philosophy and government. . . . Probably most of Mr. Ward's readers will find more to interest them in his application of this rational conservatism to the problems of politics and secular life than in his specifically religious studies."—Nation

"The essays carry one along by their persuasiveness, whether the reader be of the author's opinion or not."

+ A L A Bkl 10:366 My '14

"The personal studies are attractively written, and are full, moreover, of that penetrating analysis of character which is Mr. Ward's forte."

+ Ath 1914:1371 Mr 14 1000w

Cath World 99:254 My '14 600w

Reviewed by T. P. Beyer

+ Dial 57:14 Jl 1 '14 1850w

"Mr. Ward carries one along with him whether one agrees with him or not—and your reviewer heartily disagrees with him in at least one of his principal tenets."

+ Nation 98:364 Ap 2 '14 1200w

"The most interesting part of this collection of papers is the seventy pages devoted to Disraeli, of whom Dr. Ward tells some of the best anecdotes, and of whom he gives an appreciation marked by sympathy and insight."

+ Sat R 117:277 F 28 '14 850w

"The essays now reprinted were well worth collecting and will repay perusal."

+ Spec 112:398 Mr 7 '14 170w

WARDALL, RUTH AIMEE, and WHITE, EDNA NOBLE. Study of foods. il 70c Ginn 14-14449

A book intended for class use. Its object is to give "some knowledge of food materials, of the effects of heat upon them, of methods of manipulation, and of comparative cost of commercial and domestic products." (Preface) In each chapter there are a few recipes given in illustration of principles just discussed. Laboratory exercises and reading references follow each chapter. The book is illustrated, one valuable series of illustrations showing the different cuts of meat.

+ Ind 80:338 N 30 '14 70w

WARWICK, ANNE, pseud. (MRS. RUTH [CRANSTON] NEWLIN). Meccas of the world (Eng title, My cosmopolitan year). il $2 Lane 13-25637

"Blazing a new trail as a writer of travels, Anne Warwick gives her impressions of modern life in New York, Paris, Vienna, Madrid, and London, as a make-believe drama under the title 'The Meccas of the world.' . . . New York appears only 'in rehearsal' and yet receives more thorough attention than any of the other cities. The 'curtain rises' on Paris, as 'the great article.' Vienna is 'the children's performance,' Madrid 'the broken-down actor,' with intervals of splendor, and London 'in review' is pictured as critic and judge."—N Y Times

"The sketches are readable, characteristic, often vivid, with many suggested contrasts but no attempt to be merely clever in criticism or description."

+ A L A Bkl 10:350 My '14

"Little seems to have escaped her penetrating glance, and being brightly written and admirably illustrated, the work should become a favorite with observant travellers."

+ Ath 1913:2492 N 1 80w

"Though certain impressions may seem superficial and certain pictures overdrawn, the reader will find himself unable to escape the conviction that she has remarkable keenness of perception and power of interpreting life."

+ Boston Transcript p23 D 24 '13 420w

Reviewed by C. E. Hesselgrave

Ind 76:508 D 11 '13 100w

"Insular book."

+ Nation 98:641 My 28 '14 220w

"This is a most readable book of travel memories, possessing as outstanding qualities quickness of observation and glibness of utterance, with a special attraction for us Americans of New York as permitting us to see ourselves as others see us."

+ N Y Times 19:51 F 1 '14 620w

"A lively and stimulating little volume."

+ R of Rs 49:375 Mr '14 40w

WARWICK, ANNE, pseud. (MRS. RUTH [CRANSTON] NEWLIN). Victory. Law. $1.30 Lane 14-5044

The story of an actress who leaves the stage for private life, to feel later its irresistible attraction. "As Sarah Siddons to the latest day of her life always lapsed into silent sadness when the hour at which she was wont to go to theatre arrived, so Victory Law, in spite of her marriage to a man whom she loved, a man of birth, of fortune, of growing distinction, feels the old life, the old comradeships drawing her more and more, until her entire being is at war with itself." (N Y Times) "The husband finally has his eyes opened and learns to dissociate his enemy, the theatre, from fancied corporeal rivals, sees that it is not really an enemy at all—and then the three live happily ever after." (Nation)

"Interesting and unobjectionable but not high art."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:372 My '14

Reviewed by F: T. Cooper

— Bookm 39:326 My '14 400w

"The book holds characters of very unusual interest and worked out with much subtle skill. Out of it all she has made a delightful book."

+ — N Y Times 19:120 Mr 15 '14 630w

Nation 98:332 Mr 26 '14 200w

WASHBURN, CLAUDE CARLOS. Gerald Northrop; a novel. il *$1.25 (1/2c) Duffield 14-17094

A detailed study of a young man's development from boyhood to maturity. Gerald Northrop, grandson of a pioneer miller in a middle western city, has an inheritance from his French mother that keeps him from fitting into the pushing, progressive life about him. He had spent his early boyhood in Paris, and his heart turns back to it, away from what he recognizes as the make-believe culture of Valencia. After his grandfather's death he returns to Paris and finds there an atmosphere sympathetic to his own tastes and emotions. But he finds too that Paris has its shams; that much of its life is make-believe too. An intense and passionate love affair shows the boy that he is Puritan, not all pagan as he would believe himself; and he chooses, after a struggle, to go back to Valencia, marry the sensible and somewhat prosaic girl who is devoted to him, and live as an American citizen.

"Notwithstanding that Gerald Northrop is an utter prig, his adventures are interesting."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 D 26 '14 180w

"This is an excellent example of a type of current fiction which possesses a number of good qualities, and which we might very well do without."

+ — Nation 99:747 D 24 '14 480w

"It is done with remarkable natural aptitude for the peculiar form of fictional art requisite for this kind of novel and with sure artistic instinct for the production of results. But, notwithstanding all this, and the added fact that he has written a very clever book, full of brilliant promise, one looks doubtfully at the figure he has created. In the first place, young Gerald Northrop doesn't seem worth 500 closely printed pages."

+ — N Y Times 19:516 N 22 '14 530w

WASHBURN, ELIZABETH (MRS. HAMILTON WRIGHT). Colour of the East. il *$1.25 (3/4c) Stokes 14-30264

Elizabeth Washburn's journeyings thru the Orient have been wide, and she writes of it as one who loves it. Many of her chapters are descriptive sketches of places, of the Red sea, the Himalayas, Rangoon, Singapore, Manila, Cebu, and Mukden. One or two, The storm in the night, The road to the dawn, are descriptions of natural phenomena, and one, Dawn in the desert, is a short story.

"The descriptions grow a little monotonous, largely because one is always left with a feeling of depression; and some readers would like them better with the stories left out."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:321 Ap '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 20 '14 830w

Ind 77:280 F 23 '14 50w

+ — Nation 99:383 S 24 '14 330w

+ N Y Times 19:314 Jl 19 '14 750w

"A work of singular worth, and the publishers have put it into a book attractive in paper and print and pleasantly light to the hand."

+ Outlook 106:651 Mr 21 '14 270w

"This book has caught the colour of the East. It is a blend of Mr. Kipling and Mr. Hichens."

+ Sat R 117:119 Ja 24 '14 100w

WASHBURN, STANLEY. Two in the wilderness. *$1.25 Lippincott

The hero of this tale "is a prodigal son in search of gold in Canada who meets with two women, the younger being the heroine of this duet of the wilds. Her companion is an elderly novelist seeking local colour in Canada. But she dies of a malignant fever, and when an accident in the rapids carries off the two men accompanying them the girl is thrown entirely on the hands of the hero, who is practically a stranger to her. The incidents are all well-depicted and there is a delightful Irish terrier, named Zing, in the book. How it ends and how the 'Two in the wilderness' become one in civilisation will be easy guesswork for the reader."—Sat R

"The author makes things possible without undue and inartistic straining of coincidence and possibility."

+ Ath 1914,1:310 F 28 300w

"Against a certain excess of romance in the plot is balanced a rather remarkable story of life in the open."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 300w

"A cheerful story, unvexed by moral perplexities."

+ Nation 99:225 Ag 20 '14 320w

"There seems no need for the heroine to behave so outrageously, nor to be quite such a futile creature of luxury as she is represented; neither does one see why either man or woman should have preserved an incognito. The story is, however, clean, wholesome and well told, with a tang of the spicy northern woods about it—a pleasant book to take into such scenes as it describes, or to bring them to those who must needs enjoy them in imagination only."

+ — N Y Times 19:291 Je 28 '14 250w

"In spite of certain crudities and affectations, such as the use of 'gotten' for got, Mr. Stanley Washburn has written a more than ordinarily attractive novel."

+ — Sat R 117:408 Mr 28 '14 150w

WASON, ROBERT ALEXANDER. And then came Jean. il *$1.35 (1c) Small 13-24977

With the possible exception of Jean herself, Grandma, eighty-six years old and the youngest member of her family, is the most fascinating character in this story of Indiana village life. Henry Ham, i. e., Henry Hamilton Trotwood, the hero of the story, is grandma's favorite and chum, and the story itself is chiefly concerned with his success in the American process of "making good."

"The book is too long, several situations seem impossible, but there are many fresh and amusing happenings and much that is true to life in the little town."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:288 Mr '14

"The materials and the characters for a good story are to be found in 'And then came Jean,' and every now and then the author gives hopes that he will use them properly. His reminiscences are so diffuse as to be tiresome, however, and he unfortunately thinks it is humorous to make his hero use oratorical bombast. There is enough that is good in the book nevertheless to make those who have read it feel that they have not wasted their time."

+ — N Y Sun p3 D 13 '13 180w

WASON, ROBERT ALEXANDER. Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle. il *$1.35 (1c) Small 14-18801

In this book, Happy Hawkins, Mr. Wason's loquacious western hero, tells another of his long and wandering, but never wearisome, tales. During the time of the story he is acting as foreman on the Lion Head ranch in Texas. The country at the time is ringing with the deeds of a noted outlaw, the Panhandle kid, but when this famous personage enters on the scene it is in a guise which is not recognizable. Even Happy Hawkins himself is deceived in Tom Smith, the greenhorn from the Kansas City livery stable. A band of outlaws, one of them

WASON, ROBERT ALEXANDER—Continued. a girl; a hermit; an eastern professor; a very attractive heroine; a sure-enough villain, and a variety of cowboys are among the other actors in the cheerful melodrama.

"He again tells his story in his own inimitable way, and the reader cannot help believing that it is the real way for a cowboy of joyous men to talk. There lies the chief charm of the story."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 14 '14 480w

"Shows no deterioration in the standard he set in his former novels."

+ N Y Times 19:487 N 8 '14 270w

WATERLOO, STANLEY. Son of the ages; the reincarnations and adventures of Scar, the link. il *$1.25 (1c) Doubleday 14-5427

In the one figure, Scar, the author gives a composite picture of primitive man from the days of the tree-dwelling link between ape and human up to the sea-roving Viking. We follow the progress of man as he learned successively to wield a club, build a fire, swim, float a hollow log, tame the wild beasts, fashion for himself a dwelling. Thru each age Scar holds to something of his own identity, he is a little wiser, a little more skilled in each reincarnation, yet he is moved in the main by the same impulses, one of them the mating instinct.

Reviewed by Norman Bryce

Bookm 39:687 Ag '14 200w

"It would be hard to find a better book for eager young minds, one which, giving them the excitement and the variety they crave, at the same time enables them to 'take in through the pores' a larger amount of knowledge than is often contained in several textbooks."

+ N Y Times 19:143 Mr 29 '14 750w

"An interesting, instructive and suggestive story or series of stories."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 14 '14 450w

WATSON, EDMUND HENRY LACON. Cloud-lesley Tempest. *$1.35 Brentano's

"We do not, of course, really approve of a careless, lazy young man who gets out of one scrape into another, and in the end congratulates himself that, had it not been for these scrapes, he would not have married a beautiful maiden and obtained a fortune. But we do like to read about him, especially when the tale is told as breezily as the present is." (Ath) "The hero is sound at the core and essentially clean of heart, commanding always the sympathies of the reader in his impudences and troubles. The relation between him and his sterling old father is, finely felt. The young wife is a noble figure. It is her superiority to what we are pleased to call 'feminine weaknesses' that saves a perilous situation and secures the happy ending." (N Y Times)

+ Ath 1914,1:sup873 Je 20 120w

"A novel of many admirable qualities, excelling in its delineation of character. We have rarely read a more satisfactory novel. In both its matter and its manner it is true to the best traditions—a book which it is a pleasure to commend."

+ N Y Times 20:22 Ja 17 '15 400w

"In its general straightforwardness of treatment, scrupulous avoidance of literary frills, and portraiture of the female characters engaged, Mr. Lacon Watson's excellent novel adheres to the Victorian tradition. He writes well, but he is not preoccupied with the quest of the 'soveran word,' he is not concerned with any abnormal problems, and his heroine, charming as she is, would be voted a 'doormat' by many emancipated young Amazons of to-day."

+ Spec 112:961 Je 6 '14 700w

WATSON, JOHN BROADUS. Behavior; an introduction to comparative psychology. il *$1.75 Holt 14-17130

The author treats psychology from the point of view of a behaviorist. Psychology, looked upon as "the science of consciousness," and using introspection as its method, has failed, he holds, to make good its claim as a natural science. Psychology from the behaviorist's point of view is a purely objective, experimental branch of natural science "which needs introspection as little as do the sciences of chemistry and physics." The work is an elaboration of eight lectures given at Columbia university during the winter of 1913.

"This book is full of interest for the ordinary reader. The most pronounced feature of the book is its conservatism, an admirable quality in view of the necessarily compiled character of most of its chapters."

+ Nation 100:86 Ja 21 '15 780w

WATT, FRANCIS. R. L. S. il *$1.50 Macmillan A13-2598

"In 'R. L. S.' Francis Watt has written still another book of Stevensoniana. His plan is, beginning with a chapter on Stevenson's ancestry, to follow in his deviously wandering footsteps along the forty-four years of his life from Edinburgh to Vailima. Each stage of Stevenson's progress through life, each literary trail to be found in his novels, is diligently traced by Mr. Watt, Stevenson himself proving a faithful guide over land and sea. In his final chapters, Mr. Watt plunges into literary criticism."—Boston Transcript

"Needed only in large collections."

+ A L A Bkl 10:321 Ap '14

"Mr. Francis Watt's volume has some defects of detail."

+ Ath 1914,1:444 Mr 28 600w

"Both as compiler and critic Mr. Watt is expert. His book is well arranged and well written, and although it contains nothing new, it compresses into small space many facts that it is desirable to have within reach." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p9 N 15 '13 550w

"That Mr. Watt is himself a lover and a student of his subject goes without saying; he has, moreover, an agreeable style, not without native Scots humor, in record and annotation."

+ Dial 56:148 F 16 '14 650w

+ Ind 78:565 Je 29 '14 120w

"Between the carmine covers of the volume are most of the matters that would engage that ever new public which knows not Stevenson but would like to learn from a book that is not too 'deep.'"

+ Nation 98:138 F 5 '14 150w

"Mr. Francis Watt has written an affectionate panegyric of Robert Louis Stevenson, and has re-told with a good deal of detail the oft-repeated story of his life."

+ Sat R 116:532 O 25 '13 90w

"Mr. Watt knows his Stevenson well and has much of interest to tell us about the real people who gave a hint for his stories, and the places which form their background. We like best the chapters on Edinburgh and the Pentlands."

+ Spec 112:357 F 28 '14 120w

WATTS, DIANA (MRS. ROGER WATTS). Re-naisance of the Greek ideal. il *$5 Stokes 14-10627

"Knowing the perfection of the Greek bodily movement, the balance and harmony and rhythm of the human organism—and seeing in the antique sculpture of the Greeks its accomplishment as a fact to the modern world, Mrs. Watts sets herself to reproduce their freedom and grace of limb and motion in her own experience and thereby deduce the laws and practice for the example of modern humanity. . . . After making a comparative analysis of the ancient Greek development and that of the modern human being, Mrs. Watts discusses the essential training of the foot as a base for the body. . . . The 'Interpretation of sculpture by the laws of balance,' is discussed in an interesting chapter, the concluding chapters being devoted to 'Mental reactions,' and 'Spiritual reactions.'"—Boston Transcript

"These defects are pointed out because there is so much that is good in the book that it is worth making better."

+ — Ath 1914.1:724 My 23 1200w

Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 600w

+ Nation 99:228 Ag 20 '14 430w

"We rather wish these exercises could have been described without the disfiguring plates from kinematograph reproductions. These are frankly hideous; and almost deter one from returning to pages which are fascinating and full of interest."

+ — Sat R 117:478 Ap 11 '14 130w

+ Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 200w

"It may be said at the outset that, while there is much in her theories that will commend itself to those interested in physical culture and in the development of the sound mind in the sound body, she is an enthusiast who falls into the enthusiast's exaggerations, and who even appears to have been carried into the realm of mysticism."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 1100w

WATTS, MARY STANBERY. Rise of Jennie
12 Cushing. *$1.35 (1c) Macmillan 14-17486

But after all her life was not so much a process of rising step by step as it was an orderly progression. Jennie as we leave her, devoting her life to the care of slum children, differs very little in the essentials that make up character from the little slum child who fought the boys of Amelia street for maltreating a cat and was sentenced to the reform school, because the court had no other means of disposing of her. Her five years in the "Home" are passed over lightly and the story goes on with her career afterwards, as a hired girl, a hair-dresser, a lady's maid, as the companion of Donelson Meigs, whom she refuses to marry, as secretary to an English woman's rights advocate, and finally as a friend and protector to friendless children.

+ A L A Bkl 11:124 N '14 +

+ Ath 1914.2:533 N 21 200w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:673 F '15 730w

"There is so much that is good in her novel that we become disgruntled over its many weaknesses. It should be the story of Jennie Cushing and of Jennie Cushing alone."

+ — Boston Transcript p26 N 25 '14 220w

"We feel that Jennie is a little too splendid a creature, a little too richly endowed with strengths, and charms, and capacities. With this exception her story is genuinely to be enjoyed." Lucian Cary

+ — Dial 57:341 N 1 '14 400w

+ — Ind 80:381 D 7 '14 180w

Reviewed by J. L. Gilder

+ Ind 80:405 D 14 '14 220w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

+ — Nation 99:653 D 3 '14 200w

"This story will advance Mrs. Watts's status with many readers, and Jennie, in her tragic, smiling humanness, will linger long in the memory."

+ — N Y Times 19:458 O 25 '14 1000w

"Able, interesting, and courageous story."

+ Outlook 108:552 N 4 '14 400w

Reviewed by Fremont Rider

+ — Pub W 86:2012 D 12 '14 630w

+ Spec 113:854 D 12 '14 20w

WEALE, BERTRAM LENOX PUTNAM, pseud.
12 (BERTRAM LENOX SIMPSON). Eternal priestess: a novel of China manners. *$1.35
(1c) Dodd 14-17922

Many characters, American, European and Chinese move thru the pages of this story of modern China. The promotion of a development company by an Englishman, Ian Mortiboy, and its opposition by a Frenchman Crébillon, and Mortiboy's entanglements with two women, Mrs. Jerrins and Belle Lawson (the latter belonging to that "oldest profession" which gives excuse for the book's title, taken from Lecky) form the foundation of the plot. In Willy Chang and the three Yao girls the author presents interesting studies of young Chinese men and women who have been educated abroad.

"Difficult as it is to follow the narrative and to understand the mysterious and tragic characters, the story is deeply interesting and sincerely impressive."

+ — Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 250w

"His book is much more interesting and valuable for its graphic pictures of native and alien life in a China undergoing rapid transition, a China of high importance to all the rest of the world, than it is as a novel. Nevertheless as a novel it has a number of striking features."

+ — N Y Times 19:516 N 22 '14 450w

+ — Outlook 108:847 D 9 '14 100w

+ — Spec 113:754 N 28 '14 200w

WEATHERS, JOHN, ed. Commercial gardening.
4v il *$15 Macmillan (Eng ed 13-21763)

An English work, prepared by experts in the various lines of gardening. "The first volume takes up in order the science of plant growing, the method of propagation, and the different soils in an interesting and readable way, especially from the botanist's point of view. . . . The second volume is devoted to the raising of hardy and semi-hardy herbaceous plants, bulbs, and flowers suitable for marketable purposes. . . . The third volume is wholly given over to fruits. . . . In the first part of the last volume we find advice as to the growth of trees, shrubs, vines, and woody climbers, directed to the nurseryman and his customers. . . . The remainder of this volume is devoted to vegetable gardening." (Nation)

"We have referred to matters that appear to offer room for improvement in another edition, but the work is the best on the subject, and as good as a first attempt at exhaustive treatment could be expected to be."

+ — Ath 1913.1:653 Je 14 800w

"Nothing has been overlooked in these volumes, yet the author has condensed his great mass of material into a practical and useful book, both for business and pleasure."

+ Nation 98:245 Mr 5 '14 1100w

"Had the volumes been confined to practical matters we should have found little fault with them, but the scope has been widened, and chapters on 'science' have been inserted. Some of the errors are ludicrous, and could have been corrected by any good student at an agricultural college." E. J. Russell

+ — Nature 91:500 J1 17 '13 600w

WEAVER, ELI WITWER, ed. Vocations for 3 girls. il *75c Barnes 13-22483

"In the first thirteen chapters the author deals with general problems of vocational analysis, briefly discussing in a sane and practical manner the necessity of surveying the field of possible occupations; of examining one's self to find in what direction one's tastes and abilities lie; of making a choice; of securing adequate preparation; of finding an opening; and of discovering ways of getting along; of broadening out, and becoming a thrifty and efficient worker. . . . The remaining chapters deal with occupations, and attempt to give general information as to work, wages, and opportunities in a variety of different fields in which girls and women are employed."—Survey

"Of undoubted value to many girls and to all teachers, specially where vocational guidance has not been organized."

+ A L A Bkl 10:239 F '14

Chaut 72:461 F 7 '14 170w

"There is not a page that could not be read with ease and profit by a child in the seventh grade." E. E. Lewis

+ School R 22:203 Mr '14 300w

"In general, the material on occupations is presented impartially with little attempt to prejudice in favor of or against any particular work. There are, however, certain unfortunate exceptions." F. M. Marshall

WEAVER, ELI WITWER, ed. — Continued.

+ — Survey 21:528 Ja 31 '14 600w

"Rather superficial, but more comprehensive than Laselle and Wiley's book."

+ — Wis Lib Bull 16:124 My '14 50w

WEAVER, LAWRENCE. Small country houses: <sup>10</sup> their repair and enlargement; forty examples chosen from five centuries. (Country life lib.) il *$5 Scribner

The author "sees and warns against the many dangers inherent in the desire for restorations and the fashionable attempt to make things look old. In his introduction he makes a strong plea for reverence, discussing with much thoroughness the many preparatory considerations for the prospective repairer, such as old buildings on new sites, the use of old fittings, amateurs in architecture and the risks they run, and the wise limits of enlargements."—Boston Transcript

"There is a fascinating as well as practical interest in the account and suggestions that Mr. Weaver gives for making over old houses into comfortable and artistic dwellings containing the utilities of modern convenience and yet retaining the mellow atmosphere and structural proportions of their originals."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 29 '14 700w

"Lawrence Weaver gives so large a portion of the text to descriptions of mere alterations, and of the trials and tribulations of the remodeling architect, that the book might be tedious and uninteresting but for the frequent reference to historical associations. In any event, the attractive illustrations, particularly of interiors are delightful and well repay the perusal of one who 'reads between the lines,' i. e., skips the text and reads the pictures."

+ — Nation 99:261 Ag 27 '14 170w

+ Spec 113:sup617 N 7 '14 120w

WEBB, SIDNEY, and WEBB, MRS. BEATRICE (POTTER). English local government: the story of the king's highway. *$2.50 Longmans

This is the fourth volume issued in the work on "English local government." "The parish and the county," "The manor and the borough," and "The history of liquor licensing in England" are earlier published works. "The story of the king's highway," unlike its predecessors, begins not with the revolution of 1689, but with the war-chariot of Boadicea, and is 'brought down to the motor-omnibus of today.' A gradual development is shown, uninterrupted by passing events, reflected in the complaints of a thousand travellers, of whom Pepys, Defoe, and Arthur Young are but the best known, and marked only by the coming of Telford and Macadam at one period, and the motor-car at another. The authors, as is their wont, are concerned throughout with the administrative problems of their subject." (Ath)

"Like the previous volumes, this is based on patient researches in widely scattered sources, and the same skill is displayed in marshaling a wealth of illustrative detail in such way as not to burden or obscure clear and logical narrative. Copious references to authorities enhance the value of the work to the historical student, but their relegation to appendices following the several chapters renders their study more difficult without in any way aiding the reader who may desire to skip them." W. E. Lunt

+ — Ann Am Acad 52:262 Mr '14 550w

"Masses of corroborative evidence and authorities are cited, and the book bears abundant evidence of the industry and thoroughness we associate with the authors."

+ Ath 1913.1:248 Mr 1 350w

"It is a lighter volume than its predecessors, but it is scarcely less valuable and is not worse documented than they, which is saying much. There are hardly any misprints, and the index is good." J. H. Clapham

+ — Eng Hist R 23:177 Ja '14 1100w

"The reviewer has very minutely examined, during years of research, the ground which is here covered by the authors; and he has been unable to find any substantial errors as to fact. In contrast with its excellences, the few defects of the book are almost unworthy of mention." W. T. Jackman

+ — J Pol Econ 22:92 Ja '14 800w

+ Nation 97:438 N 6 '13 800w

"They have brought together in small compass a mass of disjointed information scattered through the statute books and local records of England, and have thus produced a work which at once throws light on the social life of the country and its peculiar attitude toward local administrative problems."

+ N Y Times 18:337 Je 8 '13 350w

Reviewed by D. R. Fox

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:135 Mr '14 1600w

Sat R 115:555 My 3 '13 1250w

+ Spec 110:308 F 22 '13 2150w

WEBSTER, HENRY KITCHELL. The butterfly. il *$1.25 (1½c) Appleton 14-1418

The heroine is Elaine Arthur, a world-famous dancer. The hero, or at least the man who tells the story—he modestly disclaims heroic qualities—is Brinsley Butler, professor of the drama in Monroe university. Monroe is a mid-western town, seat of the state university, and the advent of the sensational dancer who is to play a three nights' engagement in the local theatre not only perturbs the serenity of the Monroe branch of the Drama league, it precipitates the staid and very much respected young professor of drama into a series of amazing adventures, which include an eight-mile walk thru the night, a three-hour ride on the tail end of a freight train, suspicious connection with a murder mystery and some hours of durance in a hen house. The whimsical point of view from which it is told gives the story its chief distinction.

"A diverting, but incredible tale told in an amusing way."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:288 Mr '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 18 '14 420w

"Mr. Henry Kitchell Webster is an adept in the writing of 'mystery' stories, and he has never done anything at once more captivating and absorbing than 'The butterfly.'" W. M. Payne

+ Dial 56:251 Mr 16 '14 250w

"The book is a most entertaining mixture of mystery, fantasy, and farce."

+ Nation 98:239 Mr 5 '14 180w

"Mr. Webster has written stories with plots more complicated, more carefully worked out and more convincing than this one possesses, but none that one can read with more entertainment. Nor has he ever furnished one with a more clearly conceived, more graphically realized and more delightful character than his dynamic 'Butterfly.'"

+ N Y Times 19:38 Ja 25 '14 320w

WEBSTER, NESTA H. Sheep track. *$1.40 Dutton 15-15

Marica Fayne, the heroine of this story, finds herself bored by London society. "It is bound, she finds, by irksome and meaningless conventions. The people follow certain leaders as a flock of sheep follow the bell-wether. So Marica leaves what she calls the 'sheep track,' seeking the entertaining company of one Nina Touraine and numerous other divorcees, profligates, and social outcasts of both sexes. Marica's innocence the author would have us believe keeps her from knowing that these vicious people are anything but ladies and gentlemen of somewhat Bohemian tastes. To her cost, however, she finds out the character of the people whose company she has enjoyed. . . . And at last she begins to see that sheep tracks, however monotonous, are, on the whole, more satisfactory than the primrose paths that one selects for himself." (N Y Times)

"In spite of its frequent crudeness, the book is on the whole distinctly well done, and, the characters possess an undeniable personality." F: T. Cooper

+ — Bookm 40:94 S '14 700w

"The story is vividly told and the fact that it carries with it a deep significant message to modern times makes it of unusual value." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p6 S 5 14 950w

"Miss Webster has no satisfactory idea of the sort of persons to be found in the sheep track; those she presents are not much to the point. Her heroine is an attractive girl—and that is well." Lucian Cary

— + Dial 57:107 Ag 16 '14 170w

— Nation 99:164 Ag 6 '14 320w

"It is a pity that Miss Nesta H. Webster chose anything so trite about which to write her excellent first novel. For 'The sheep track' is excellent in many respects; the action is interesting, the dialogue generally real and sometimes amusing, and the characters with one or two exceptions are lifelike."

+ — N Y Times 19:346 Ag 16 '14 430w

"The book is most amusingly written."

+ Spec 112:617 Ap 11 '14 230w

WEDGWOOD, JOSIAH CLEMENT. Staffordshire pottery and its history. il $3.25 McBride, Nast & co. (Eng ed 14-1468)

The great-great-grandson of the first Josiah Wedgwood tells in this volume the story of the famous potteries of North Staffordshire. The book is illustrated with pictures of the works, portraits of the founder and others connected with the development of the industry, and with photographs of interesting examples of Staffordshire ware. The chapter headings are: The creation of the potteries; A peasant industry; Elers and art; The salt glaze potters; The beginning of the factory; Wedgwood and cream colour; The end of the eighteenth century; Spode and blue printing; Methodism and the capitalists; Steam power and strikes; Minton tiles and China; Modern men and methods.

"Of greatest value to the collector and special student of pottery, though worthy also the attention of the sociologist and economist, because of its descriptions of the industrial revolution and resulting labor disturbances."

+ A L A Bkl 10:284 Mr '14

+ Ind 77:169 F 2 '14 80w

"The collector, whether professional or amateur, will find much valuable and heretofore inaccessible information about the North Staffordshire potteries."

+ Nation 98:93 Ja 22 '14 600w

"He has written with much conciseness and directness an extremely interesting account of a great industry and of the men who engaged in it."

+ N Y Sun p5 O 25 '13 130w

"While the book will be invaluable to collectors and pottery students, it will be interesting also to students of history and sociology. The identification and the linking together of the relationships of the old master potters, of their inventions, and factory sites and dates will be helpful and interesting to collectors and students."

+ N Y Times 18:676 N 30 '13 350w

"Much of the popular interest of the present book lies in the author's usually dispassionate attention to the problems of the rich and poor which meet and touch only to repel each other, as in actual life."

+ N Y Times 19:21 Ja 18 '14 780w

"This is a book marked by perfect taste in every detail, and it will be a joy to the collector even apart from its importance as a contribution to his knowledge."

+ Outlook 105:334 D 27 '13 170w

Reviewed by A. G. Porritt

+ Pol Sci Q 29:146 Mr '14 550w

WEEKLEY, ERNEST. Romance of names. $1.25 Dutton (Eng ed 14-30266)

An inquiry into the origin of our surnames. The author seeks "to steer a middle course between a too learned and a too superficial treatment and to show how surnames have been formed and developed during the progress of the centuries." The study of the origin of family names, he says, "is at the same time quite simple and very difficult. Its simplicity consists in the fact that surnames can only come into existence in certain well-understood ways. Its difficulty is due to the extraordinary perversions which names undergo in common speech, to the orthographic uncertainty of our ancestors." Professor Weekley divides surnames into four classes: first, those derived from a sire or an ancestor, as Richards; second, those from places of residence, as Moore; third, those from occupation, as Taylor; fourth, those from bodily attributes or characteristics, as Long." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bkl 10:321 Ap '14

"Prof. Weekley is one of those rare teachers who know how to make learning interesting. We welcomed his book on 'The Romance of words,' published in 1912, and now already in a third impression; and we are equally glad to have its companion 'The Romance of names,' which is at once entertaining and scholarly."

+ Ath 1914:153 Ja 31 1400w

+ Boston Transcript p25 Mr 25 '14 700w

"Why the author assigns one chapter to 'occupative names' and another to 'trades and crafts,' both treating of names having a similar character, is not clear."

+ — Dial 56:349 Ap 16 '14 300w

Ind 80:66 O 12 '14 40w

+ Nation 99:48 Jl 9 '14 300w

"He presents this information in a scholarly and attractive way, so that his book is extremely diverting as well as instructive."

+ N Y Times 19:216 Ap 26 '14 100w

"This is a clever and authentic etymology, tracing the history of English proper names to their many sources. The result is often as entertaining as it is illuminating and curious."

+ Sat R 117:246 F 21 '14 150w

Spec 112:236 F 7 '14 150w

WEEKS, JOHN H. Among the primitive Bakongo. il $3.50 Lippincott (Eng ed 14-10051)

"Mr. Weeks, in the course of some thirty years spent on the Congo, has garnered a vast amount of anthropological material, some of which, dealing with the 'Bangala' tribes of the upper river, is contained in his previous volume, 'Among Congo cannibals.' His present work describes the customs and institutions of the Bakongo, sometimes called 'Fiole,' the inhabitants of the old 'Kingdom of Congo,' whose paramount chief, or 'Ntotela,' lives at Sao Salvador." (Ath) "The author has aimed to give a reflection of the mind of the native of the Lower Congo, to show his manner of life, his attitude toward what he believes to be the spirits which surround him, and, by picturing his life in all its complex stages and phases, to give to the civilized white man a fuller and juster knowledge of the black man in his native home." (N Y Times)

"We heartily recommend this book to all students of African ethnography."

+ Ath 1914:sup432 Mr 21 700w

"Mr. Weeks covers well the course of life among these tribes from the cradle to the grave, and among all classes from kings to the lowest slave."

+ Lit D 49:515 S 19 '14 270w

N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 110w

WEHLE, THEODORE. Origin and meaning of the Old Testament. $1 (3c) Fenno 14-19175

The author's purpose is to present concisely

WEHLE, THEODORE—Continued.
the results of modern criticism of the Old Testament. His treatment is strictly historical. Contents: The Hebrew records; The invasion of Canaan and the establishment of the monarchy; The division of the kingdom to the fall of Samaria; The kingdom of Judah to the destruction of Jerusalem; Exile and return; Foundation of Judaism; Chronological tables and an index complete the work.

"While one is pleased to find that the author has succeeded fairly well in condensing into two hundred pages the main results of Old Testament criticism, one must not fail to perform the less pleasing duty of calling attention to the lack of up-to-date knowledge of the general history of the ancient Orient displayed in the book."

— + Bib World 45:116 F '15 180w

"An excellent monograph."

+ Outlook 108:789 D 2 '14 120w

WEIGALL, ARTHUR EDWARD PEARSE
<sup>10</sup> BROME. Life and times of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt. il *$3.50 (2½c) Putnam
(Eng ed 14-12567)

An attempt to portray the real Cleopatra as distinct from the character of fiction, drama and legend. "I do not presume in this volume to offer any kind of apology for the much-maligned queen," says the author, "but it will be my object to describe the events of her troubled life in such a manner that her aims, as I understand them, may be fairly placed before the reader." He feels that a fair, unprejudiced treatment of the queen and her times will show her to be "a very good average type of womanhood." The first of the two parts into which the book is divided treats of Cleopatra and Cæsar; the second of Cleopatra and Antony. The volume is well illustrated and there are several maps.

"We conclude by recommending the work to our readers as an interesting and stimulating volume."

+ — Ath 1914,2:386 O 17 1000w

"The reader who wishes an adequate conception of Cleopatra, really a great and accomplished woman, will go rather to writers who have more respect than Mr. Weigall for careful historical method."

— Nation 99:524 O 29 '14 1200w

"We can unreservedly praise Mr. Weigall's portraits of Cæsar and Antony. Also we receive his political fancies as inspired history. But, curiously, where his book comes short of its best pages is where he deals with Cleopatra herself. Frankly, we do not see the woman he describes. We see only a great political figure." P.

+ — Sat R 117:801 Je 20 '14 1200w

"When the author writes about what he understands, as in his chapter on Alexandria, [he] is delightful and instructive; but he pursues a hobby and thinks he is an historian."

— + Spec 113:sup691 N 21 '14 2400w

"While there remains some question of its reliability and complete historical justification, it must at least be admitted one of the most vivid and fascinating of recent historical works."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 O 22 '14 1100w

WEINEL, HEINRICH, and WIDGERY, ALBAN
<sup>10</sup> GREGORY. Jesus in the nineteenth century and after. *$3.75 Scribner (Eng ed 14-10471)

"This volume is Weinels 'Jesus im 19. Jahrhundert,' revised and brought to date by Mr. Widgery. . . . The plan of this book is to review the nineteenth century from the standpoint of the influence of Jesus. The great names of the dawn of the century are examined as to their attitude towards Jesus. Then beginning with Strauss the results of the scientific research on the life of Jesus is traced to Wellhausen. Then the results are gathered together in several chapters of those who have studied Jesus from the standpoint, respectively, of the liberal idea or reform, of the social question, of the problem of civilization and of culture, of the religious problem of the present time, and finally a chapter telling of Jesus's place in the new century."—Boston Transcript

Reviewed by S. J. Case

Am J Theol 18:610 O '14 270w

"It is evident that in a history of religious experience, even apart from a history of religious thought, there must be a place for the historical Jesus and an interpretation of His teaching, together with an inquiry into His authority; and therefore a welcome may be given to this book, with its lucid accounts of movements and representative men."

+ Ath 1914,2:210 Ag 22 1300w

"The book is an index of the trend of religious thinking. Those who wish to keep in touch with the best theological thought cannot neglect this volume."

+ Boston Transcript p23 Je 17 '14 450w

WELLER, CHARLES HEALD. Athens and its monuments. il *$4 (4½c) Macmillan 13-25257

"This book is designed to provide a brief and untechnical account of the topography and monuments of ancient Athens for the general reader and the traveler, as well as an introduction to the subject for the student of archaeology and history." (Preface) The ten chapter titles are: Situation and general aspect; Historical sketch; Walls and gates; The Hellenic Agora; The Hellenistic and Roman Agora and other sites; Southeast Athens; The south slope of the Acropolis; The courts and the suburbs; Peiræus and the ports. There are many illustrations from photographs, and a bibliography and an index complete the work.

+ Am Hist R 20:221 O '14 30w

"It embodies the results of the most recent research, and with its many valuable illustrations and maps, will be useful for reference in larger libraries."

+ A L A Bkl 10:321 Ap '14

"The book as a whole is a useful and impartial summary of the present state of our knowledge."

+ — Ath 1914,1:348 Mr 7 1100w

"The book takes a high place among those of historical reference."

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 10 '13 700w

"He has gathered a wealth of information about every part of the city and he weighs with scholarly precision the varying claims, assertions and references of literature and history concerning the structures and monuments of the ancient town."

+ Chaut 72:363 Ja 3 '14 160w

"Professor Weller has generally used good judgment in selecting for presentation the things his public most needs to know. The marshaling of evidence, however, is at times carried farther in the text than is desirable, and might better be transferred to footnotes or an appendix." C. P. Bill

+ — Class J 9:315 Ap '14 1200w

"Professor Weller's style, like his plan, follows that of his Greek prototype—it is a bit dry." J. R. Smith

+ — Dial 56:177 Mr '14 400w

"Scholarly volume." C. E. Hesselgrave

+ Ind 76:510 D 11 '13 40w

"The method is critical and the result trustworthy."

+ Lit D 48:922 Ap 18 '14 120w

+ — Nation 99:139 Jl 30 '14 600w

"Students of art, archaeology, and history should welcome this work. But others than students will welcome it—the tourists and those who may want to know about the Acropolis or the Agora or the Areopagus."

+ Outlook 106:154 Ja 17 '14 120w

R of Rs 49:636 My '14 40w

"It is an authoritative handbook."

+ School Arts Magazine 13:481 F '14 100w

"It is the best book of its kind in English since Professor Gardner's 'Ancient Athens,' and should find a wide public in these days."

+ Spec 112:488 Mr 21 '14 110w

WELLESLEY papers, by the editor of "The Windham papers." 2v il 32s Herbert Jenkins, London 14-13935

"The editor's aim has been first to 'throw light on the character and actions' of the Marquess Wellesley, and secondly to 'supplement our knowledge of affairs during the period of history that comes within his lifetime.' The second aim is less successfully accomplished than the first, perhaps because there is little in the papers to add to our knowledge. . . . There is a good deal that is new in the account of Wellesley's futile efforts to form a Government in 1812." (Ath) "There is much to be learned about Ireland in these volumes. A letter from Wellesley Pole gives one of the best accounts of the Irish rebellion in 1798; it tells the truth against the rebels and against the peculiar horrors of the suppression." (Sat R)

"For the most part the editor's annotations are accurate and to the point, though there are some mistakes and unnecessary repetitions, and a fuller use of the literature of the time would have made the present volumes more interesting; but there is a good deal that now appears in print for the first time which we are glad to see. There is, in fact, a great deal of personal interest in the volumes."

+ — Ath 1914,1:441 Mr 28 1750w

Reviewed by W. Hunt

+ Eng Hist R 29:587 Jl '14 1050w

"The papers have been admirably printed and illustrated, they offer much interesting reading, and are valuable for the history of England in the first part of the nineteenth century."

+ Sat R 117:541 Ap 25 '14 1500w

"The chief interest of 'The Wellesley papers' lies in the fact that they constitute a record of the minor blemishes in the character of one who, in spite of many obvious defects, may fairly be entitled to take rank amongst the foremost of later eighteenth and early nineteenth century British statesmen." C.

+ Spec 112:741 My 2 '14 1650w

WELLINGTON, RAYNOR GREENLEAF. Political and sectional influence of the public lands, 1828-1842. il *$1 Riverside press 14-11574

"This volume endeavors to interpret the influence of the vast public domain of the United States on the conflicting economic interests of the Northeast, South, and West. To this end the author traces carefully the courses of the various bills presented in Congress with respect to these lands, noting carefully the particular motive that prompted each proposition and the considerations that determined its fate." (J Pol Econ) "While the intensive part of the book begins with the passage of the tariff of 1828, a preliminary chapter gives a review of the period since 1820, so that the work connects with Professor Treat's volume upon 'The national land system, 1785-1820.'" (Dial)

Reviewed by P. J. Treat

+ Am Econ R 4:878 D '14 600w

"What Professor Wellington undertook to do, he has accomplished with success."

+ Dial 57:207 S 16 '14 270w

"The author clarifies many points that are frequently obscure to the ordinary reader of American history."

+ J Pol Econ 22:923 N '14 250w

"The monograph is a distinctly creditable addition to the works on American economic history."

+ Pol Sci Q 29:567 S '14 100w

WELLS, AMOS RUSSEL. Reaching up and out. *50c (10c) Crowell 13-17991

In this little book the author attempts to pass on to others his life motto—"The highest for the farthest." This, as he explains it, means, "Reach up as high as you can. Reach out as far as you can. Reach up as high as you can for power. Reach out as far as you can with influence."

WELLS, AMOS RUSSEL. Ten don'ts for Sunday-school teachers. 25c (3½c) Presbyterian bd. 14-2534

A very little book containing within its small covers some sound advice to the Sunday-school teacher. Don't scold, Don't get discouraged, Don't fret, Don't come unprepared, Don't forget your youth, are some of the chapter headings.

WELLS, CAROLYN. Anybody but Anne. il *$1.25 (2c) Lippincott 14-7281

When David Van Wyck is found dead in his study with all doors and windows securely locked from the inside and no weapon with which he could have taken his own life visible, there seems no possible explanation of the mystery. If he was murdered, how did the murderer escape? If he committed suicide, what became of the weapon? Raymond Sturgis, a week-end guest who tells the story, is determined that suspicion shall fall upon anybody but Anne, the young second wife of the murdered man. Nevertheless it is to her that all evidence points, and it is only near the end, when Fleming Stone appears on the scene, that the tangle is straightened out.

"Readable and unobjectionable."

+ A L A Bkl 10:374 My '14

+ Ath 1914,1:sup876 Je 20 100w

"The book marks a welcome advance in technique, which makes it more interesting and more in accord with the canons of good art as applied to this popular form of fiction."

+ — Boston Transcript p8 Ap 4 '14 350w

"It is difficult to imagine that such a commonplace bit of fiction came from the pen of the witty and original Carolyn Wells."

— Ind 78:143 Ap 20 '14 80w

"When the time comes for the solution, this proves rather disappointing on the mechanical side, the preparation in one important particular having been most clumsy. On the psychological side, however, the mystery has been more successfully masked, and the fixing of the guilt comes as a genuine surprise."

+ — Nation 98:433 Ap 16 '14 200w

"Miss Wells develops her plot with a good deal of skill."

+ N Y Times 19:125 Mr 15 '14 400w

"The nice thing about this new book is that we are allowed to become well acquainted with an interesting house party, and not compelled to spend all our time in the society of a detective." F. M. Holly

+ Pub W 85:1341 Ap 18 '14 330w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:164 Je '14 40w

WELLS, CAROLYN. Jolly plays for holidays. 10 60c (3c) Baker, W. H. 14-15818

A half dozen Christmas plays in verse make up the contents of this book. All are adapted for amateur production and, while professional performance of the plays is strictly prohibited, a note on the title page announces that they are free for amateur use. The plays are: The greatest gift; Christmas gifts of all nations; The greatest day in the year; Is Santa Claus a fraud; A substitute for Santa Claus; The day before Christmas.

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Social forces in England and America. *$2 (1½c) Harper 14-6668

This collection of papers, written at different times within the last five or so years, was published in England with the title "An Englishman looks at his world." Mr. Wells, at the beginning of the book, presents this synopsis of the course of the Englishman's musings: "Blériot arrives and sets him thinking. He flies, and deduces certain consequences of cheap travel. He considers the King, and speculates on the new epoch. He thinks imperially, and then, coming to details, about labour, socialism and modern warfare. He discourses on the modern novel and the public library; criticises Chesterton, Belloc, and Sir Thomas More, and deals with the London traffic problem as a socialist should. He doubts the existence of sociology, discusses divorce, schoolmasters, motherhood, doctors and specialisation; questions if there is a people, and diagnoses the political disease of our times. He then speculates upon the future of the American population, considers a possible set-back to civilisation, the ideal citizen, the still undeveloped possibilities of science, and—in the broadest spirit—the human adventure."

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE—Continued.

+ A L A Bkl 10:409 Je '14

"The author's broad interests lead him into fields of which he is not master and in which he is scarcely at home." B. D. Mudgett
+ — Ann Am Acad 55:296 S '14 350w

Reviewed by Bernard Keith

+ Bookm 39:461 Je '14 1450w

Reviewed by F. B. R. Hellems

+ — Dial 56:454 Je 1 '14 2100w

Ind 79:449 S 28 '14 220w

+ J Pol Econ 22:818 O '14 350w

"To say that this book is interesting is to put it mildly. It is absorbing. One need not agree with all Mr. Wells says, and many will probably disagree heartily with much of it; but one cannot help being stimulated and aroused by him, being made to feel the importance of life and a personal responsibility toward its larger aspects. We feel we are 'in it,' and the feeling is exciting."

+ N Y Times 19:217 My 3 '14 1000w

R of Rs 49:625 My '14 80w

+ Sat R 117:275 F 28 '14 1200w

+ — Spec 112:sup681 Ap 25 '14 110w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 2 '14 1350w

Reviewed by V. D. Scudder

+ Survey 32:548 Ag 29 '14 480w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. Wife of Sir Isaac Harman. *$1.50 (1c) Macmillan 14-18457

Like the couple in an earlier story who felt constrained to go off to Labrador, the heroine of Mr. Wells's present novel recognizes the necessity of thinking things out. Her device for securing solitude is simpler, however: with the end of a poker she breaks a plate-glass window and spends a month in gaol. She is Ellen Harman, wife of Sir Isaac Harman of the International Bread and Cake Stores. She had married at twenty, had been a good and dutiful wife and had borne four children, and was just finding herself sufficiently grown up to begin to think. She thinks of her own position as a wife with no rights and no money of her own. She thinks of her husband's business and of the way in which the income which feeds and clothes her is earned. To stop the process of thinking Sir Isaac tries the methods of Petruchio. It is at this point that she smashes the window. The result is a compromise with her husband, and the remaining course of the novel is largely sociological.

"Ideas interesting, characters vivid, story interesting negligible."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:125 N '14

"At the cost of a certain loss of brilliancy Mr. Wells has gained restraint, and we are well content with the exchange, believing that he will thereby obtain the attention of a larger public, though he may lose the more vociferous plaudits of extremists."

+ Ath 1914,2:424 O 24 600w

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

+ Bookm 40:435 D '14 1100w

"The great defect in 'The wife of Sir Isaac Harman' is that it seems to the reader at one moment to be written in the mood of 'Tono Bungay,' at another in the mood of 'Ann Veronica,' and at still another in the mood of 'The history of Mr. Polly.'" E. F. E.

+ — Boston Transcript p24 O 28 '14 1650w

Cath World 100:398 D '14 300w

Reviewed by Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:455 D 1 '14 820w

"Wells has never done better work on social analysis and character sketching than this novel, but he spoils it by a dubious ending."

+ — Ind 80:243 N 16 '14 60w

"His vein of sound humor, his faculty of characterization, are overlaid with 'ideas.'"

+ — Nation 99:581 N 12 '14 600w

+ — New Republic 1:27 N 7 '14 900w

"Mr. Wells's style has escaped from its faults in this book, and has found a new excellence—fits his thought with a perfection not hitherto achieved." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:473 N 1 '14 1150w

"It is a literal translation of 'The taming of the shrew' without the poetry, the imagination, or the humor of the play."

+ Outlook 108:554 N 4 '14 220w

"Since Mr. Wells can never be dull, it follows that 'The wife of Sir Isaac Harman' has its inevitable interest. It must be confessed, however, that one gets an impression, not only of slenderness of plot, but of a rethrengthening of topical straw." Fremont Rider

+ — Pub W 86:1287 O 17 '14 450w

+ — R of Rs 50:761 D '14 300w

WELLS, HERBERT GEORGE. World set free. *$1.35 Dutton 14-5817

"In 'The world set free' Mr. Wells returns to a theme that has long fascinated him, and again he gives a glimpse into the future, a glimpse at the world as it will be in 1959. Unlike some of his earlier romances his latest story is founded solidly on the possibilities, remote as these may now seem, of scientific developments along established lines, and it gains much in reality thereby. The mainspring of its action is the expectation that science may eventually find a way to control and utilize the immense reservoirs of energy which the discovery of radium has shown to be stored in the atom just as at present it controls and utilizes the energy of steam and electricity. In this thought Mr. Wells discovers romantic possibilities for the development of humanity."—Boston Transcript

"Interesting and sets one's imagination to work."

+ A L A Bkl 10:374 My '14

+ — Ath 1914,1:652 My 9 820w

"Frankly it is a charlatan piece of work, palpably and inexcusably unreal, coming as it does from the pen of a man who, in earlier days, could transport us even to the moon, and still make us believe." F. T. Cooper

— Bookm 39:322 My '14 800w

"Whether in the restatement of the broad lines of his philosophy or in the elaboration of new details Mr. Wells is always and unfailingly stimulating, and 'The world set free' is no exception." F. T. P.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Mr 25 '14 1250w

"The value of Wells's romance, aside from its interest, lies in the emphatic way in which it teaches the lesson that civilization is primarily a matter of the utilization of natural energy, and is measurable in horsepower."

+ Ind 77:454 Mr 30 '14 3050w

Nation 98:433 Ap 16 '14 500w

"There is something joyful about this new book; that is one's first impression. The book is a magnificent piece of workmanship. So skillfully has what we know and what has happened been mingled with what Mr. Wells has imagined our knowing and treated as having happened that we soon lose any sense of being outside that world he has indicated. Mr. Wells has a fascinating, tireless mind that soars away on difficult, untraveled paths with the ease of an eagle winging through the air. It is this ease that makes 'The World set free' such enjoyable reading, aside from the thrilling quality of the story itself." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:141 Mr 29 '14 1150w

"In fact, despite the book's compelling interest and stimulating imagery one closes it with a reluctant feeling that it is neither flesh nor fowl. Too inconsequential in incident to be a full-fledged romance; too indeterminate to be an economic dissertation; too brief to cover adequately a title of the imagined and splendid panorama over which Wells' brilliant searchlight erratically swings; one finishes it with some reluctance to call it either a novel or a sociological tract. But, whichever it is, tract or novel, it leaves us gaping for more—which is perhaps the best of attitudes for an author to leave his readers in." Fremont Rider

+ — Pub W 85:1344 Ap 18 '14 1450w

R of Rs 49:499 Ap '14 530w

"The best chapters are those which imaginatively explore the consequences for mankind of the sudden discovery of an illimitable force which at once supersedes the clumsy devices whereby civilisation is now supported."

+ — Sat R 117:605 My 9 '14 1200w

"Mr. Wells's new story of the emancipation of humanity is marked by many of the merits and all the limitations which characterize his periodic excursions into utopian romance."

+ — Spec 112:836 My 16 '14 1250w

Reviewed by V. D. Scudder

+ Survey 32:548 Ag 29 '14 470w

WEMYSS, MRS. MARY C. E. (MRS. GEORGE WEMYSS). Grannie (Eng title, Grannie for granted). *$1.35 (2c) Macmillan 14-5424

Grannie herself is the narrator of this rambling chronicle. She is the mother of six children and the grandmother of thirteen, and she has arrived at a sane and serene and delightful age, where trifles—especially if they concern any of the beloved grandchildren—interest her mightily. There are two love stories in the book—one is that of Patricia, the oldest grandchild, the other of Claudia, the youngest daughter.

A L A Bkl 11:79 O '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 250w

"The confessions of this unassuming, good-natured, mellow little old lady are refreshing."

+ Nation 98:574 My 14 '14 170w

"The book ought to be of interest to Americans because of the insight it gives into English family life at its best. The picture it gives is sweet and wholesome and most pleasing. It is well for any country to know the good features of another."

+ N Y Times 19:136 Mr 22 '14 280w

"Every one would love to own such a Grannie as this sweet English lady of humor, shrewdness, and sufficient submissiveness."

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 60w

"This is a 'pretty' novel. It is packed with sugary sentiment. All the people in the book are kind, pleasant folk enough, but a little too like Dresden shepherds and shepherdesses to excite enthusiasm."

+ Sat R 117:sup10 Mr 21 '14 120w

"Mrs. Legraye is a very lovable and tolerant old lady, and deserves the affection she inspires, but she is very far from being a monster of magnanimity or insipid amiability. Her chapters abound in studies of children under various aspects—notably as theologians and audacious commentators on life."

+ Spec 112:310 F 21 '14 1050w

WENDTE, CHARLES WILLIAM, ed. Freedom and the churches. *$1 (3½c) Am. Unitar. 14-30190

The volume contains ten addresses that made up a part of the program of a liberal religious congress held in Rochester, N. Y., in 1913. The contribution of American churches to religious and civil liberty is the general subject of the volume. Methodism, Congregationalism, Judaism, Unitarianism, etc., are represented, the claims of each being set forth by a man prominent in his church.

"All [ten papers] are well written by competent authorities."

+ A L A Bkl 10:284 Mr '14

N Y Times 19:74 F 15 '14 80w

WERTENBAKER, THOMAS JEFFERSON. Virginia under the Stuarts, 1607-1688. il *$1.50 (2c) Princeton univ. press 14-4205

The flood of new material in the form of letters, reports and documents discovered within the past few decades has made necessary the rewriting of the political history of Virginia. This the author has attempted to do, covering the period from the founding of the colony, in 1607 to the English revolution of 1688. The chapters take up: The founding of Virginia; The establishment of representative government; The expulsion of Sir John Harvey; Governor Berkeley and the commonwealth; The causes of Bacon's rebellion; Bacon's rebellion; The period of confusion; The critical period.

Reviewed by P. A. Bruce

+ — Am Hist R 20:163 O '14 650w

"The author has mastered [the newly discovered facts], and sets them before the reader in a manner that makes his history fascinating reading."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 8 '14 470w

+ Educ R 48:417 N '14 36w

"Economic considerations play the chief part in the political life of a new community; but the book is singularly weak in its treatment of economic questions." H. E. E.

+ — Eng Hist R 29:791 O '14 250w

"The splendid abundance of facts, and coherent arrangement is somewhat offset by the monotonous manner of telling. The ordinary reader yearns in vain for an occasional picturesque written anecdote."

+ — Ind 77:355 Mr 9 '14 37w

"It is scholarly, scientific, sparkling in style, and full of first-hand information."

+ Lit D 48:1126 My 9 '14 160w

R of Rs 49:507 Ap '14 100w

+ — Spec 112:788 My 9 '14 1850w

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 770w

WEST, JAMES HARCOURT. Poems of human progress, and other pieces; including one hundred and fifteen sonnets. il *$1.50 Tufts college press 14-9986

The first of these poems, Man's triumph-era, is the Phi Beta Kappa poem read at Tufts college in 1906. The second, The epic of man, was read before a convention of the Free religious association of America in Boston in 1908. Following these are verses and sonnets grouped as: Poems of religious progress, Poems of living, Poems of nature, etc.

"Mr. West deals with serious themes, bringing to each a message of deep significance to the individual soul and to humanity. He appeals to thoughtful men, who desire, in this restless world of problems, something more than a sensuous delight in the world of nature and fact."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Je 27 '14 200w

"The poems and sonnets may be commended as affording a favourable example of contemporary American verse."

+ Nature 93:374 Je 11 '14 80w

"Many of the sonnets are admirable and invite comparison with Wordsworth."

+ R of Rs 50:636 N '14 150w

"Besides being one of the largest is one of the most satisfying of recent collections of verse. There is not a poem in the book that is a mere experiment in meter or a group of felicitously composed phrases. Beneath each piece of verse lies a definite thought."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 430w

WESTERMARCK, EDWARD ALEXANDER. Marriage ceremonies in Morocco. *$3 Macmillan 14-11758

"This book," says the author, "is meant to be a kind of apology for a serious omission of which I was guilty when I wrote my 'History of human marriage,' over twenty years ago. In that book I devoted only a very short chapter to the wedding ceremonies, and in my brief treatment of them I almost entirely failed to recognize their magical significance." Dr. Wester-

WESTERMARCK, E. A.—Continued.
marck has studied his subject among the people themselves, having made fifteen journeys to Morocco." (Ath) "The arrangement of the book is very judicious. Professor Westermarck splits the ceremonial of marriage into its component parts and devotes a chapter to each phase of procedure, giving the customs connected with it among the Arab-speaking and then among the Berber-speaking tribes. It is necessary to do this, as the tribes vary greatly with regard to their ceremonies and superstitions." (Boston Transcript)

Ath 1913,2:sup397 O 11 90w

+ Ath 1914,1:683 My 16 1200w

"Professor Westermarck apparently did not wish to overweight his book with general theories, and so there is only one chapter of summary and conclusions. This is rather unfortunate, as he is so eminently successful in drawing conclusions, and he would have had justification for doing so."

+ Boston Transcript p7 J1 25 '14 500w

"The work is a splendid monograph, worthy of its author." A. E. Crawley

+ Nature 93:319 My 28 '14 320w

+ Sat R 117:708 My 30 '14 1250w

"To all serious students of anthropology and primitive ideas this must be an indispensable supplement to the author's classical work on marriage."

+ Spec 112:750 My 2 '14 120w

WESTON, JESSIE LAIDLAY, ed. Chief Middle English poets: selected poems, newly rendered and ed., with notes and bibliographical references. *$2 Houghton 14-3087

"It is the first systematic attempt to bring together the main body of Middle English poetry in a form that preserves alike the content and the character of the original. . . . Miss Weston groups her selections under 'Historical,' 'Legendaries,' 'Romance tales,' 'Proverbial and didactic' and 'Religious and lyrical.' She has supplied notes, a bibliography and indexes to her translations."—Boston Transcript

"Competently edited and excellently rendered in modern English verse."

+ A L A Bkl 10:409 Je '14

"Will be welcomed by students particularly, and to all lovers of literature it will afford a convenient and representative compilation of a body of poetry that has hitherto been difficult to obtain in modern renderings."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 500w

Dial 56:255 Mr 16 '14 100w

+ Educ R 49:103 Ja '15 80w

"Miss Weston's renderings are metrically very clever; she keeps closely to the form of her originals, yet contrives to be idiomatic and animated. Omissions are numerous, and in some cases surprising."

+ Nation 98:543 My 7 '14 100w

WESTON, JESSIE LAIDLAY. Quest of the Holy Grail. (Quest ser.) *$1 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-14427)

"In this little volume Miss Weston gives a very clear account of the various romances of the Grail, and the theories concerning its origin which have been entertained—the latter of which she classifies as the Christian, the folklore, and the ritual. She herself leans to the ritual theory, which sees in the earlier and less literary forms of the romance 'an account of an initiation ceremony told from the outside.'"—Ath

+ Ath 1913,2:753 D 27 150w

"No student of mediæval literature commands more justly than Miss Jessie Weston a respectful hearing from scholars for whatever she may have to say." Winifred Smith

+ Dial 56:385 My 1 '14 1050w

"This is a clear and readable summary of modern speculations in regard to the origin and evolution of the legend of the Holy Grail. Apart from this general theory of origins, there is much in Miss Weston's interpretation of the texts that seems to us objectionable."

+ Nation 98:187 F 19 '14 850w

WHARTON, ANNE HOLLINGSWORTH. Rose of old Quebec. il *$1.25 (4½c) Lippincott 13-22756

Mary Thompson of Quebec, one of Lord Nelson's early loves, is the heroine of this little romance. Mary's meeting with the young English captain, their betrothal, the parting when the "Albemarle" sails away, are described in the first part. In part two Mary is pictured in the heart of fashionable London, meeting Lord Nelson after many years. Fortunately her heart is not broken, and marrying Allen MacGregor, who had been Nelson's companion on that early visit to Quebec, she enters into a union that is to be one of lifelong happiness.

"A readable story."

+ A L A Bkl 10:202 Ja '14

"The style has a naïveté which is attractive."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup643 N 29 40w

"An appealing little story."

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 1 '13 280w

"An uninteresting tale."

— N Y Sun p4 N 29 '13 50w

"A rather labored historical romance. Prettily illustrated and conscientiously written, it leaves the reader cold to both hero and heroine."

— Outlook 105:360 D 20 '13 40w

"It is hampered by the writer's style, which is stilted and uncomfortable."

— Spec 112:488 Mr 21 '14 20w

WHEELER, HAROLD FELIX BAKER. Boys' Wellington. il *$1.50 (2c) Crowell A13-2066

This life of the Duke of Wellington written for boys is the last of a trio of books dealing with three men of action. The author expresses the hope that it may be read in conjunction with the lives of Nelson and Napoleon that have preceded it, for the careers of the three, he says, should be studied together. "They are the three sides of a triangle of which Napoleon is the base."

"A work that is scholarly, but not pedantic."

+ N Y Times 18:533 O 12 '13 30w

WHEELER, HAROLD FELIX BAKER. French revolution, from the age of Louis XIV to the coming of Napoleon. il *$2.50 Stokes (Eng ed A14-491)

"Mr. H. F. B. Wheeler's 'French revolution' is a straightforward and well-written account of the events from the time of Louis XIV to the fall of the Directory." (Eng Hist R) "In order to give the proper background for an understanding of the great changes which began with the Meeting of the States General, the author devotes more than a third of his volume to a good sketch of the germs of decay and the development of criticism and unrest with which France was struggling before 1789. The dramatic side of the revolution itself is told with something of the dash of modern journalism." (Nation)

"For the general reader the volume has many attractions." D.

+ Eng Hist R 29:799 O '14 100w

"The author freely quotes apt accounts of the more vivid and trustworthy eye-witnesses and contemporary sources. But he makes no attempt at constructive criticism, offers nothing startlingly new, and is not free from minor inaccuracies. His interesting, spirited volume is to be read for pleasure rather than conned for information."

+ Nation 99:636 N 26 '14 200w

+ N Y Times 19:523 N 29 '14 100w

WHEELER, MARIANNA. Before the baby comes: a practical, non-technical manual for prospective mothers. *$1 (3c) Harper 14-18708

A little handbook for prospective mothers, giving

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

ing directions for pre-natal and ante-natal care of mother and child. There is a sensible chapter on eugenics and on limiting the size of families; advice about clothing and feeding the baby, with formulas for feeding during the first year.

"Eminently sane and sensible advice."

+ Ind 80:478 D 21 '14 60w

WHEELER, MARIANNA. Young mother's handbook. *$1 (3c) Harper 14-5207

Fifteen years' experience as superintendent of the Babies' hospital of New York makes this mother's handbook authoritative. It is intended as an aid in helping mothers recognize and check their children's simple ailments before they become serious enough to demand a physician's attention. Part 1 includes six chapters on "Simple ailments of children"; Part 2, six on "The training of children."

+ A L A Bkl 11:107 N '14 +

"Authoritative instruction."

+ N Y Times 19:246 My 24 '14 50w

WHELOCK, JOHN HALL. Love and liberation: the songs of Adsched of Meru, and other poems. *$1.50 Sherman, French & co. 13-22880

Mr. Wheelock chooses the short lyric as his favorite medium of expression. "His themes in this volume are indicated by the title. But he makes of it much more than it implies. Through the volume runs a sequence of moods." (Boston Transcript)

"Mr. Wheelock needs to speed up his emotive machinery somewhat. At present he is less a lyric poet than an analyst of lyric passion and sentiment. As such, however, he has a very delicate and ideal gift." W: A. Bradley

+ — Bookm 39:201 Ap '14 100w

"The joys, sorrows, emotions, moods, all aspects of love are immortalized in these songs of Mr. Wheelock. The best are full of magic, even the least have a sparkle in phrase or image that is not wholly outshone by their companions." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 12 '14 270w

"Mr. Wheelock devotes himself to a study of love, expressing his passion in exquisite little lyrics sometimes suggestive of the best works of Arthur Symons."

+ Lit D 48:641 Mr 21 '14 270w

Reviewed by O. W. Firkins

+ — Nation 100:13 Ja 7 '15 170w

"The reader's first impression is that he has wandered by chance into a volume of honeymoon verse, not originally intended for the eye of the public. It is very pretty, very intimate, and very monotonous. Many of Mr. Wheelock's love poems, considered purely as such or as parts of a larger whole, are simple and passionate—qualities we have been assured, of great poetry. His philosophy, too, is a good philosophy. The trouble with the present volume is its padding." Helen Bullis

+ — — N Y Times 19:319 Jl 19 '14 480w

"Though there be many—the present critic among them—who find themselves unable to respond whole-heartedly to Mr. Wheelock's mode of celebrating the infinite, while they are baffled in the attempt to distinguish in such utterances as his between insight and illusion, between the vision of truth or beauty and mere meaningless splendor, still few will deny the genuine lyric quality of the verses in 'Love and liberation.'" + — No Am 199:792 My '14 500w

"Mr. Wheelock's best work is found in the more serious poems which close his last volume, 'Love and liberation.'"

+ R of Rs 48:754 D '13 120w

WHELPLEY, JAMES DAVENPORT. American public opinion. *$2.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-15376)

"These fourteen essays were written with the hope of giving the people of Europe a true knowledge of American opinion upon certain large and more or less international questions. The first essay is introductory. It is entitled

'The land of the optimist.' . . . Essays follow on public sentiment, the tariff, President Wilson's problems, and immigration. Then as an introduction to essays on the United States in the Far East, its attitude towards Russia, towards Japan, towards the Balkans, and towards Mexico, we have an essay on the American people and their diplomats. . . . America, the author says in closing, has contributed in no small degree to international peace by the peculiar simplicity of her foreign affairs and policies."—Boston Transcript

A L A Bkl 11:158 D '14

"The essay on the Monroe doctrine is exceedingly interesting."

+ Boston Transcript p20 S 9 '14 600w

+ Ind 80:142 O 26 '14 100w

+ Nation 99:538 N 12 '14 1000w

"There is much in Mr. Whelpley's volume that calls for approving comment."

+ N Y Times 19:400 O 4 '14 1050w

+ R of Rs 50:635 N '14 50w

"A volume made up of separately published essays generally makes rather bad reading. The author must choose between scrappiness and repetitions. Mr. Whelpley has, on the whole, preferred to be scrappy, though the concluding essay on America's foreign relations is full of repetitions of things said elsewhere, and were better omitted altogether in future editions of the book. But the scrappiness is increased by Mr. Whelpley's extraordinary arrangement of his material. And yet, in spite of all these errors in detail, Mr. Whelpley generally gets near the truth in the end."

+ — Sat R 117:740 Je 6 '14 830w

"His essays are marked by knowledge of the country with which they deal, and are worthy of this more permanent form."

+ Spec 112:1000 Je 13 '14 120w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:301 D '14 40w

WHIPPLE, GEORGE CHANDLER. Microscopy of drinking water; with a chapter on the use of the microscope, by J. W. M. Bunker. il *$4 Wiley 14-7053

A third edition of a work which "has proved itself already of real practical assistance in water-supply practice. . . . The new edition is a book of about the same size as the previous edition, but a brief examination shows that it contains a considerable amount of new material, to keep abreast with the times. There has been a slight rearrangement, by which the space formerly given to bibliography is reduced, and 86 more pages of printed matter added. The plates are now slightly colored as once suggested by Engineering News. The book is divided into two parts; part one discussing sanitary problems and part two dealing with a more technical classification of microscopical organisms." (Engin N)

"There is nothing left to be desired at the present time in any of the chapters which deal with the collection of samples, methods of examination, limnology, and seasonal distribution of organisms. In regard to soil stripping, the reviewer thinks that not enough attention has been paid in the public discussions of the subject to the importance of discriminating more fully in the local conditions as regards the desirability of stripping the sites of reservoirs." Desmond Fitzgerald

+ — Engin N 72:419 Ag 20 '14 750w

"To the biologist this volume cannot but prove of great value; to the student, a modern, condensed counterpart of Wollé; to the waterworks superintendent and chemist, a great helper in times of algae troubles, and to the scientific world in general, a classic." G: A. Johnson

+ Engin Rec 69:684 Je 13 '14 170w

"The book is one which should find a place in every bacteriological and public health laboratory and in the office of the water-engineer." R. T. Hewlett

+ Nature 94:33 S 10 '14 200w

Reviewed by C.-E. A. Winslow

+ Science n s 40:448 S 25 '14 850w

WHIPPLE, WAYNE. Story-life of Napoleon. il
 *$2.40 (1c) Century 11-20661

From many biographies, histories and books of memoirs the author has selected paragraphs here and there and so arranged them that they form a continuous narrative. The book is fully illustrated and has a good index.

Boston Transcript p23 D 26 '14 140w

"The one drawback to Mr. Wayne Whipple's method of treating 'The story-life of Napoleon' is that he presupposes a student for reader, and that the student of Napoleon would find his book unnecessary. The life of a great man may be treated either from the intimate or from the public point of view—or from both together. Mr. Whipple falls between the two."

— Nation 100:119 Ja 28 '15 180w

"Such a 'story-life' is undoubtedly easy reading of the predigested sort, which will lead the dilettant on in idle hours from page to page. But it is not satisfactory when it undertakes to handle the serious sides of Napoleon's achievements. It is impossible to get a clear idea of one of his campaigns or of his masterful diplomacy by extracts from many different writers."

+ — N Y Times 20:1 Ja 3 '15 150w

WHIPPLE, WAYNE. Story-life of the Son of 12 Man. il *$2.50 Revell 14-2220

"A life of Christ on a new plan. Instead of writing a narrative of his own, Mr. Whipple has sought to choose from the best that has ever been written or spoken about Jesus, arranging the material, bit by bit, as a mosaic is made, into a vivid and attractive picture. Thus the book is a miniature library, gathering up into a single collection the thoughts of many authors. It consists of forty chapters, giving selections from over one hundred writers, including Phillips Brooks, Henry Ward Beecher, Ernest Renan, Tennyson, Tolstoy, Elizabeth Stewart Phelps, Bouck White, Theodor Kelm, and Horace Bushnell. It has thirty-two illustrations, mostly reproductions of well-known paintings."—Bib World

"We hardly feel that the volume has quite the importance which the compiler attaches to it; yet it is a useful book. Classes engaged in studying the life of Christ will be able to use it in collateral reference. Ministers will find it of almost unending homiletical suggestiveness. We hope that it will find its way into the hands of many readers."

+ Bib World 44:294 O '14 180w

"The book is both interesting and instructive."

+ Boston Transcript p25 N 26 '13 320w

Dial 55:488 D 1 '13 140w

WHITAKER, HERMAN. Cross trails: the story
 3 of one woman in the north woods. il *$1.20
 (2½c) Harper 14-11358

Since E. P. Roe made it popular, the plot, in which "he falls in love with his wife" after marriage, has been a favorite with story-tellers. Given a husband and wife who marry without love, or as in the present book, who marry and part, and who then proceed to discover that they love one another, an interesting tale is sure to follow. In this story it is Gabrielle Ferrier, who learns to love the husband whom she left immediately on learning of a sinister episode in his past. The two meet again under romantic conditions in the far north, and the author is given an opportunity to work out his story in a setting that he knows well.

"The story is a good one, but it is the picturing of the atmosphere of the Canadian lumber camp which makes it especially good."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Jl 1 '14 250w

+ — Ind 79:250 Ag 17 '14 50w

"The story is vigorously told and abounds in effective bits of description."

+ Nation 98:757 Je 25 '14 150w

"Mr. Whitaker has written other novels of the Canadian Northwest and one of Mexico, but this is quite the best and truest piece of fiction that has come from his hand."

+ N Y Times 19:291 Je 28 '14 270w

"The romance plus the sterner incidents, combine to make a story that will hold the attention throughout."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Jl 9 '14 400w

WHITAKER, HERMAN, ed. West winds. il
 2 *$1.50 (2½c) Elder 14-1572

A California book, made up of stories by California authors, with illustrations by California artists. The theme of the stories too are drawn from the life of the state. Some of the stories are: The bandit's better half, by Herman Whitaker; The mother, by Sarah Thurston Nott; Puls, by Julia E. Foster; The enchanted mesa, by Charles F. Lummis; The son of the wolf, by Jack London; and The quest, by Torrey Connor.

"Not all new to print, the tales are none the less full of novel interest and show the California standard of short-story-writing to be a high one."

+ Dial 57:462 D 1 '14 220w

N Y Times 20:6 Ja 3 '15 150w

WHITCOMB, IDA PRENTICE. Young people's 1 story of American literature. il *$1.50 Dodd
 13-19473

The author gives short accounts of the lives and work of the men and women who have made American literature. "Old time Puritan chroniclers, diarists and poets, historians, and romance writers all have their place, their portraits are given, the homes of some of them, and there are naturally many views from the charming old town of Concord, Mass., the home of the Alcotts, of Emerson, and the scene of so many interesting literary events." (N Y Times)

"Will serve as a useful reference book for the upper grades."

+ A L A Bkl 10:165 D '13

"The author has admirably accomplished a not too easy task. The style has zest in it, while the illustrations are outside the usual rut."

+ Ind 76:556 D 18 '13 50w

N Y Times 18:520 O 5 '13 120w

WHITE, ALFRED HOLMES. Technical gas
 5 and fuel analysis. (International chemical ser.) il *$2 McGraw 13-20220

"The book contains seventeen chapters, the first twelve of which deal with gas analysis, the thirteen with the analysis of liquid fuels, and the remaining four with the analysis of coal." (Science) "Descriptions of apparatus are given in great detail and much attention is directed to methods of calibration and precautions to be taken against leakage of air or gas that might tend to vitiate the experiment." (Engin Rec)

"As might be expected from the wide experience of the author, this little book is very comprehensive and well worth while."

+ Elec World 63:500 F 23 '14 120w

"The work is based on the methods advised by the various technical societies and is well adapted to the needs of the student or of the young chemist who is called upon to do commercial testing without special training in this branch of chemical work."

+ Engin Rec 68:475 O 25 '13 180w

Reviewed by R. P. Anderson

+ Science n s 38:745 N 21 '13 1100w

WHITE, BOUCK. Carpenter and the rich man.
 5 *$1.25 (1½c) Doubleday 14-4324

This book is a companion volume to "The call of the Carpenter." "Taking the parables of Jesus as so many attempts to bring home to His hearers Christ's convictions upon the economic conditions of His time, Mr. White studies all of these minutely and shows how and what their terse language connotes in the lives of both Jesus and His followers. . . . And out of it all he comes to the conclusion that Christ's mission, as He Himself understood it, was primarily one of economic revolution." (N Y Times)

"Socialism in its most destructive form seems to be the essence of Mr. White's religion."

— Boston Transcript p6 My 6 '14 380w

Ind 79:107 J1 20 '14 150w

"The Carpenter and the rich man" supplements 'The call of the Carpenter,' and, while it develops and explains the author's theory, it is also in a certain measure practical and constructive, since it links up with its first-century pictures present-day affairs and modes of thought. Although the book is written with a graphic pen, the author sometimes overreaches himself in his effort to use striking words and shape impressive phrases."

+ — N Y Times 19:212 Ap 26 '14 380w

WHITE, BOUCK. Mixing. il *$1.20 Doubleday
13-21293

A description, in the guise of fiction, of the rehabilitation of a country town. "Hillport is so nearly dead that the only real demand of the place seems to be for a community undertaker to bury decently forgotten hopes of defunct aspirations. Out of the impetus furnished by a Neighborhood club whose membership is democratically made up of villagers, summer colonists, commuters, Italian laborers, the town is born into a new life of aesthetic enjoyment, economic profit, social uplift and mental efficiency. Team work does it." (Chaut)

"Very poorly written, but its ideas are good and it might be useful as campaign literature in communities which need the same sort of waking."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:245 F '14

"An unpretentious narrative this, but as readable as it is plain, and as full of inspiration and practical suggestion as there are pages in the book."

+ Chaut 72:236 N 22 '13 140w

"A disappointment after his thought compelling 'Call of the Carpenter.' There is an occasional flash of the spirit of the seer, and the same eager following of idea upon idea with a rapidity that outdistances mere correct sentence structure, but the attempt to lighten theory by a thread of narrative cloaks the real elements of interest in this plan of rural co-operation from the pen of an ardent socialist."

— + Ind 77:73 Ja 12 '14 100w

"The book is cleverly written and will be of much interest and help to all who are engaged in the movement to improve country life."

+ N Y Times 18:684 N 30 '13 330w

"Everyone who is interested in public welfare should read the book."

+ R of Rs 49:374 Mr '14 200w

"It is a book far more likely to be read by villagers than Mr. Farwell's because it is fiction, and it will undoubtedly prove an important educational factor in the movement for village improvement." J. R. Howard, jr.

+ Survey 31:807 Mr 28 '14 320w

WHITE, ELIZA ORNE. First step. *$1.10 (2½c)
' Houghton 14-5195

The story of a woman in the early stages of spinsterhood who after six years of teaching fell heir to a house in a New England village. The lower step needed repairing and she called in the carpenter and thereby found herself involved in a long train of repairs and renovations, for once started on the first step, she found that she would have to make over or mend every other part of the house. A young architect from the city concerns himself with her plans, and her lawyer takes an interest in her affairs that it not wholly professional. So house building and romance move along together.

"A pretty, amusing story."

+ A L A Bkl 10:415 Je '14

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 220w

"A pleasant, natural little tale with a number of agreeable characters and a pretty love story."

+ N Y Times 19:147 Mr 29 '14 330w

"A wholesome, pleasant story."

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 40w

WHITE, W. HOLT. Man who dreamed right.
12 *$1 (1½c) Kennerley

Mr. Myrms began by dreaming about horse races, and he found to his own astonishment that every night he could dream the winner of the next day's race. Would it be immoral to put his money on a dead certainty? This ethical question troubled Mr. Myrms. There were others however who were not bothered by such scruples and who readily took advantage of Mr. Myrms's extraordinary powers. Then he found that he could dream other things than horse races, and as a result found himself very much mixed up in affairs of politics, society and high finance, until finally the fate of the whole world, and the matter of world war or peace, rested on the result of a single dream.

"It is an original and readable tale—an entertaining extravaganza."

+ N Y Times 19:517 N 22 '14 110w

WHITEHEAD, WILBUR C. Whitehead's conventions of auction bridge; ed. by R. F. Foster *$1.25 (4c) Stokes 14-11264

A three-part auction manual covering Conventions of bidding, Conventions of play and Laws of auction bridge. It follows the principles laid down by the leading authorities and gives clear instruction about the cards required to justify specific declarations and the accepted manner of handling situations constantly arising in the bidding. It contains authorized laws, nullos, high spade calls and rules for tournament play.

"The book, which is ingeniously arranged for ready reference, could be used by beginners in connection with a general work and is the best book to give to persons who wish to improve an unscientific game."

+ Cleveland 6:77 S '14 50w

+ N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 100w

WHITING, LILIAN. Athens, the violet-crowned.
1 il *$2.50 (3c) Little 13-22795

To the long list of books in which she has preached the gospel of beauty, Miss Whiting adds this work on Athens. Using the historic past as a background she presents a picture of the Athens of to-day. Her chapter titles are: Athens, the violet-crowned; Saunterings and surprises; The Acropolis; The Eleusinian mysteries; The story of Dr. Schliemann; The archaeological schools in Athens; Greek sculpture and philosophy; Contemporary literature in Greece; Ethical poetry of Greece; The charm of Corfu; The royal family of Greece; The progress of Greece; The first century of Greek independence.

"A pleasant and informing book."

+ A L A Bkl 10:197 Ja '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 8 '13 750w

+ Chaut 72:282 D 6 '13 200w

+ Dial 55:480 D 1 '13 230w

"Delightful volume in which description, history and personal experience are happily blended." C. E. Hesselgrave

+ Ind 76:510 D 11 '13 40w

"Some may find a certain amusement in having Greek art, Greek thought and Greek literature translated or commented on in the language of the society reporter and some may be irritated by it. The author's admiration, however, is genuine enough and well directed, some bits of her own observation may be discovered occasionally and she has secured many extremely good pictures for illustration."

+ — N Y Sun p4 O 25 '13 170w

"It offers a comprehensive and spirited commentary on the achievements of the Greeks in the recent Balkan war."

+ N Y Times 18:701 N 30 '13 80w

Outlook 105:935 D 27 '13 110w

R of Rs 48:751 D '13 80w

WHITING, LILIAN—Continued.

"Sure to make a strong appeal to those interested in art." J. H.

+ School Arts Magazine 13:480 F '14 230w

WHITING, LILIAN. Lure of London. il *$3 (4c) Little 14-18470

If one term would sum up the lure of Great Britain's capital, the author believes it is vitalism. "For London prefigures itself before the gaze like a self-evolving universe." Every building has its associations and many of the movements of the day are related to London. This book describes well known places, as Apsley House, the national galleries, the Abbey, but deals also with the factors in the city's life as its clubs, amusements, customs, its leaders in thought and social activities, while the final chapter is upon the spirit of London life. More than thirty full-page half tones, including portraits, enhance the book.

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

Bookm 40:422 D '14 280w

"With her customary admirable faculty for seeing the beautiful and the joyous in whatever she chooses to write about, Miss Lilian Whiting paints for us a fair and smiling city."

+ Dial 57:458 D 1 '14 200w

"Hardly worth the trouble of the ocean voyage!"

— Ind 80:412 D 14 '14 80w

"It is a glorified guide-book."

+ Lit D 49:1192 D 12 '14 120w

N Y Times 19:532 N 29 '14 80w

"After one really gets into the spirit of the author's understanding of London her treatment of the vast subject is interesting."

+ Outlook 108:900 D 16 '14 180w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 28 '15 500w

WHITLOCK, BRAND. Forty years of it. *$1.50 (1½c) Appleton 14-4523

Brand Whitlock was born in 1869. The incident described in the first chapter of this book occurred in his tenth year, so it follows that the book itself is an autobiography of the author from the age of ten up to the present, but it is, more than that, a history of the progress of democracy in the middle west from 1879 to 1914. Urbana, the first election of Cleveland, Chicago, the hanging of the anarchists, the World's fair, the nomination of Bryan, Eugene V. Debs, Cleveland, Toledo, Tom Johnson, Golden-rule Jones, are some of the places, events, and people who figure in Mr. Whitlock's narrative. The last chapters are devoted to his own experience as mayor of Toledo and to a discussion of the problems of city government.

"Inspiring and full of human interest, a book for any thoughtful American."

+ A L A Bkl 10:366 My '14 *

+ Ann Am Acad 51:327 J1 '14 80w

"From cover to cover 'Forty years of it' will be found an intensely graphic portrayal of American life and its social upheavals as viewed by a sturdy man who is not afraid to speak and to write as he thinks." E. F. E.

+ Boston Transcript p6 Mr 7 '14 2250w

"A book that cannot fail to be widely read as a sincere and also a rather extraordinary piece of autobiographic writing." P. F. Bicknell

+ Dial 56:174 Mr 1 '14 2750w

+ Ind 79:384 S 14 '14 80w

"The tone of the whole autobiography is sane and elevated."

+ Lit D 48:1127 My 9 '14 150w

"No more interesting American autobiography has appeared in a good while."

+ Nation 98:367 Ap 2 '14 450w

+ N Y Times 19:165 Ap 5 '14 1000w

+ R of Rs 49:633 My '14 150w

WHITMAN, ROGER BRADBURY. Motor-cycle principles and the light car. il *$1.50 (3½c) Appleton 11-21032

The preface says: "The small space available on a motor cycle, and the necessity for keeping the weight low, has forced the production of devices quite different from the corresponding parts of an automobile, and the purpose of this book is to make clear their principles and operation." Attention is also given to those parts of the cycle car and of the Ford car that differ from standard automobile practice. The entire subject is treated in the following chapters: Gas-engine principles; Engine power; Engine parts; Lubrication; Carburetion; Ignition; Transmission; Final drive; Suspension; Care of the engine; Care of the ignition system; General care; Causes of trouble.

WHITMAN, SIDNEY. Turkish memories. *$2.25 "Scribner 14-16967

"In this readable and instructive book Mr. Whitman sums up the experiences which he gained during several prolonged visits to Turkey—both in Europe and in Asia—from 1896 to 1908. He mixed freely with all classes of the people, and more than once interviewed the late Sultan. His aim is to show that the Mohammedan Turk is far better than his repute."—Spec

"Very interesting book."

+ Ath 1914:1:677 My 16 1500w

"Whether this volume is intended chiefly as a defence of the Turk in general and of Abdul Hamid in particular, or as a glorification of the newspaper that employed the author, is not quite clear; but it well fulfils both of these purposes—and others, for Mr. Whitman is a careful observer of wide experience, and he writes clearly and forcefully of many people and many things." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p22 Je 17 '14 1000w

+ Ind 78:566 Je 29 '14 80w

"The book is written in a pleasant, graphic style and presents much information upon Turkish life and character."

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 180w

+ Outlook 107:758 J1 25 '14 450w

"It is a pity Mr. Whitman waited so long ere publishing his 'In memoriam'; for his praises of the Turk and of the Great Padishah are now like the tributes graven on tombstones."

+ Sat R 117:606 My 9 '14 820w

"His book throws much light on the character of the average Turk, besides relating many striking incidents."

+ Spec 112:751 My 2 '14 90w

"It is good to find a book which states the case of the Turk in a sympathetic and authoritative manner."

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 24 '14 780w

WHITNEY, GEORGE TAPLEY, and FOGEL, PHILIP HOWARD. Introduction to Kant's critical philosophy. *$1 (1½c) Macmillan 14-10256

The authors have attempted to give such a statement of Kant's philosophy as will meet the needs of the ordinary student and serve as an introduction to the study of his work, now so difficult to the beginner by reason of Kant's obscurity. Modern philosophy, they point out, may be divided into two periods: before, and after Kant. In their introduction they trace, briefly, the two lines of development in the pre-Kantian period, English empiricism and continental rationalism, and show how the two lines met in Kant.

"For a brief introduction to Kant for the undergraduate the volume is to be commended."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Ag 1 '14 330w

WHITNEY, MRS. GERTRUDE CAPEN (MRS. GEORGE ERASTUS WHITNEY). Above the shame of circumstance. il *$1.50 (2c) Sherman, French & co. 13-26556

In telling the story of an over-worked and discouraged servant girl who found a way to rise above her surroundings, Mrs. Whitney advocates what she calls "the practice of the presence of God." Self-knowledge, self-reverence, self-control become the guiding principles of Mary Ellen's life, and they lead her forward to success and happiness.

"The theme of Mrs. Whitney's book is admirable, in its teaching of the doctrines of self-knowledge, self-reverence and self-control; but so affected at times even archaic is its diction and so didactic its method, that any appeal it perhaps might have otherwise had, is almost wholly destroyed. Indeed, it is sometimes difficult to treat it with the seriousness which its many pages, and elaborately decorated format, would seem to demand."

— Boston Transcript p22 Ja 7 '14 250w

Chaut 72:477 F 14 '14 80w

WHITNEY, NATHANIEL RUGGLES. Jurisdiction in American building-trades unions. (Johns Hopkins univ. studies in historical and political science) $1.25; pa $1 Johns Hopkins 14-3114

"To the layman, one of the incomprehensible difficulties arising from trade union activity is the 'jurisdictional strike.' Dr. Whitney has analyzed the causes of such difficulties in an important industry, critically examined prominent instances and suggested remedies. The overlapping of various trades is the chief cause; the solution lies in agreements between unions and in arbitration."—Ann Am Acad

"Dr. Whitney's investigation forms another timely addition to the list of intensive studies that come from the Johns Hopkins economic seminary. Though the study is limited to building trades, it is so thoroughly representative that it may be taken as a safe guide in the analysis of jurisdictional disputes in the much wider field of trade unionism. Though his conclusions may be somewhat discouraging, they are sound." G: G. Groat

+ Am Econ R 4:638 S '14 550w

"This book is an interesting study of a serious and complex problem."

+ Ann Am Acad 53:316 My '14 160w

WHITRIDGE, FREDERICK WALLINGFORD. One American's opinion of the European war: an answer to Germany's appeals. *50c Dutton 14-19007

A book "in which an American who thinks of the Fatherland as 'of an old friend who had gone out of his mind,' and who has some reputation for his epigrammatic bluntness, speaks out plainly what he thinks about Germany's responsibility for the war." (Outlook) "The author some years ago lived in Germany for two years. He has a chapter on 'Germans then and now,' and he finds that the Germany which he revisited not long before the war was quite a different Germany from that in which he had lived." (N Y Times)

Ind 80:477 D 21 '14 60w

N Y Times 19:479 N 1 '14 280w

Outlook 108:817 D 9 '14 40w

+ Spec 113:931 D 26 '14 300w

WHITTAKER, SIR THOMAS PALMER. Ownership, tenure and taxation of land; some facts, fallacies and proposals relating thereto. *$3.75 Macmillan 14-6705

The author "has made a valuable survey of the whole problem, from the origin of property to the latest proposals of the single-taxers, taking one by one the main points in the theory of Henry George and his followers, applying to them the tests of history and statistics, and, finally, considering the social and economic effects of the various practical policies that are vaguely outlined to-day."—Sat R

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:689 N '14 900w

"Some of the arguments advanced against the radical position read well at first blush, but, like the famous oration of Lysias for the fig stealer, will hardly bear a close scrutiny. The ethical questions and matters of economic theory are poorly handled." A. P. Usher

+ — Ann Am Acad 54:345 Jl '14 620w

"This is a most valuable work. There is no other to-day which deals with the whole body of land questions from so many different angles or so thoroughly."

+ — Ath 1914,1:814 Je 13 620w

"As Sir Thomas Whittaker springs from the school of sturdy Victorian radicalism, and as his natural tendencies and sympathies certainly do not predispose him to favour landed property, his trenchant exposure of the fallacies and Utopias so popular in his own party is a remarkable and significant contribution to the controversy, and his book will prove a very useful armoury of facts and arguments to those who have to criticise and expose ill-considered proposals. Though at times he may be inclined to prove too much, he is certainly a destructive critic of no mean ability."

+ — Sat R 117:373 Mr 21 '14 1200w

"The book is full of excellent material very clearly set out, and constitutes one of the most effective replies that have yet been made to the movement organized by the single tax enthusiasts and backed by a large section of the Liberal party."

+ Spec 112:998 Je 13 '14 500w

WHITTINGHAM, HARRISON. That farm, il *$1.20 (2c) Doubleday 14-8071

This is a record of the "adventures of a dry-goods merchant who went back to land." The man who tells the story was a merchant with some forty years experience in his line of business. He gave it up; bought a farm; moved his family to the country; and made the farm pay. He tells here how he did it, quoting freely from the pages of his account books in order that the figures may speak for themselves.

+ A L A Bkl 10:410 Je '14

Boston Transcript p9 My 9 '14 150w

+ Ind 78:212 My 4 '14 80w

"He has made a fascinating story of it. His Harum-like sketches of local types and incidents are worth having for their own sake." H. W. Boynton

+ Nation 98:459 Ap 23 '14 500w

"The practical farmer craves all the light that can be thrown upon his path, while those who read for pure enjoyment have, as the book now stands, but one fault to find with it—its brevity."

+ N Y Times 19:327 Jl 26 '14 900w

WHITWORTH, GEOFFREY. Art of Nijinsky. il *$1.10 (8c) McBride, Nast & co. A14-1077

A discussion, accompanied by ten illustrations in color, of the art of the Russian dancer, once a member of the Imperial ballet. "In analyzing Nijinsky's dancing, the author finds three characteristics that conspire to make this an art consummate—the union of strength and lightness; his unflinching sense of the decorative effect, and the use of dancing as the expression of moods and not of mere grace and rhythm. Mr. Whitworth traces these characteristics through Nijinsky's fourteen ballets, including in reach a narrative of the dance and a sympathetic reading of the interpretation Nijinsky gives his rôle." (N Y Times)

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 13 80w

+ Ath 1913,2:603 N 22 200w

"The sole criticism that can be leveled against Mr. Whitworth's study is his final statement to the effect that Nijinsky, more than any man living, has made beauty for his generation."

+ — N Y Times 19:106 Mr 8 '14 380w

"This book is above the average, both as regards Mr. Whitworth's and Miss Mullock's share."

+ Sat R 116:sup6 N 29 '13 220w

"The praise is desertinating, and, strangest of all in a writer upon dancing, he shows some knowledge of the history and literature of the subject."

+ Spec 111:987 D 6 '13 80w

WHY we are at war; Great Britain's case, by "members of the Oxford faculty of modern history. il *85c; pa *70c Oxford 14-20351

"The admirable statement of the British case entitled 'Why we are at war' has been written by men who are not politicians, who belong to different schools of thought, and who have proved that they possess the power to handle evidence. Much of it is based on the British White Book, but it also contains a reprint of the German White Book and other documents which it is not easy to obtain in England."—Ath

WHY we are at war—Continued.

A L A Bk1 11:214 Ja '15

"The little book under discussion deserves all the praise that can be given to it."

+ Ath 1914.2:321 O 3 1400w

"Of the English presentations at hand this is the best." E: B. Krehbiel

+ Dial 57:379 N 16 '14 50w

"It is a very valuable document, and should be widely read."

+ Sat R 118:362 O 3 '14 11w

"Quite apart from its merits as a defense of Great Britain's action it is a clear and convenient narration of events, putting a good deal of material into available form, and should be welcome to American readers regardless of their sympathies. In general, too, the authors have shown restraint and good manners."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 N 12 '14 1100w

WICKERSHAM, GEORGE WOODWARD.
Changing order. *$1.25 (1½c) Putnam 14-9:22

Essays on government, monopoly and education, bi-products of the writer's work as head of the United States department of justice during the four years from March 5, 1909, to March 5, 1913. They are as follows: The progress of law; The state and the nation; College men and public questions; L'almipsets; Business and the law; Engineering and culture; The study of law and the work of lawyers; Recent interpretation of the Sherman act; Further regulation of interstate commerce; Results of the trust dissolution suits; Federal control of stock and bond issues by interstate carriers; New states and constitutions; The theory of constitutional government in 1787 and 1912.

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:672 N '14 600w

"On the whole, the argument of the author has an uncertain sound. The nature of his utterances appears to have been determined in considerable measure by political considerations. Certainly there is little in this book of value to the student of the trust problem." Eliot Jones

— Ann Am Acad 56:185 N '14 480w

"The pages of this book abound in instances of clear exposition and straight thinking. The essays are written with striking directness and courage. We greatly regret that the value of the book is diminished by the failure to provide an index."

+ — Educ R 48:420 N '14 110w

Ind 78:454 Je 8 '14 40w

J Pol Econ 22:1026 D '14 220w

New Republic 1:27 Ja 23 '15 1000w

N Y Times 19:419 O 4 '14 90w

R of Rs 50:120 Jl '14 100w

WICKS, JOHN BARTLETT. Bird Paradise. il
* $1.50 (2½c) Jacobs 14-12496

A volume made up from the note book of a bird lover. The author writes with an understanding of birds resulting from a life-long friendship with them.

"His book will strongly appeal to ornithologists and to all lovers of nature."

+ N Y Times 19:407 S 27 '14 50w

WIDTSON, JOHN ANDREAS. Principles of irrigation practice. (Rural text-book ser.)
il *$1.75 (1½c) Macmillan 14-14786

"The aim of this book is to furnish to students and intelligent farmers a modern view of the principles of irrigation practice." Two persons are immediately concerned in irrigation, the engineer and the farmer, but while much has been written about irrigation for the engineer, little has been said with the interests of the farmer in mind. "This book is an attempt to develop the principles, so far as present knowledge permits, upon which the correct use of water, by the farmer, must rest. Crop or soil treatments which are not connected directly with the use of water are not discussed or are greatly subordinated." (Preface) The book is illustrated, each chapter is followed by a list of references, and there is an index.

+ — Engin N 73:264 F 11 '15 200w

WIGGIN, KATE DOUGLAS (SMITH) (MRS. G. C. RIGGS). Bluebeard; a musical fantasy. il *50c (7c) Harper 14-4103

An exposition and explanation of the music drama "Bluebeard," a recently discovered work of the late Richard Wagner. After the approved manner of such musical expositions the "vorspiel" is described in detail and the various "leitmotifs" are explained. In the analysis of the drama itself Bluebeard (baritone) is recognized as the pioneer of the trial-marriage idea, and feminism, bigamy and polygamy are other problems with which the opera is said to deal in a most unique and climatic manner.

"Delightfully restrained humor permeates the pages."

+ Ind 77:386 Mr 16 '14 24w

"The average skit is a dull and wearisome thing, but even the most ardent devotees of modern opera will, if possessed of any sense of humor at all, find it impossible not to laugh over this very amusing and good-natured bit of burlesque."

+ N Y Times 19:72 F 15 '14 300w

"The performance is rich in humor and full of sly hits."

+ R of Rs 49:503 Ap '14 130w

WIGHTMAN, RICHARD. Soul-spur. il *$1.25 (4½c) Century 14-18455

A little book of optimistic essays. Contents: The eyes of a friend; The old house; What's in a year; The value of the dream; Little niches; Life; The great restorer; The market-place; Success; Falling leaves and fading trees; You yourself; Child and woman and child. A brief selection in verse by the author introduces each essay.

"Stimulating, as its name would indicate, a book as sure to win favor as it is certain that everyone is eager to know more about the half-hidden things of his own life and his own soul. Observation, reflection, intuition, friendly counsel, apt illustration—of these is the book compounded, and in some of its bracing and wholesome utterances and admonitions it suggests Emerson from whom indeed it fittingly quotes."

+ Dial 57:463 D 1 '14 210w

WIGHTMAN, RICHARD. Things he wrote to her. *60c (5c) Century 14-5815

A handful of letters written by a man well past the first flush of youth after his dream came true that "somewhere on this green earth there was a woman who—who was a real woman." Under the spell of the charm, poise and intellectual strength of this woman the best of his learning, his idealism, and his philosophy becomes fairly radiant in the glow of his newly discovered passion. To a world that gives too little of its time to the inspirational side of love this little volume makes an appeal.

Boston Transcript p22 Ap 15 '14 150w

"Those whose ideals of love face the future instead of the past will find it a very tender, beautiful, and spiritual expression of the human longing for a mate who shall be also friend, companion, and inspirer."

+ N Y Times 19:136 Mr 22 '14 270w

WIGRAM, REV. WILLIAM AINGER, and WIGRAM, EDGAR T. A. Cradle of mankind. il *$4.50 Macmillan (Eng ed 14-14325)

A description of Kurdistan, its people, customs, political problems, etc. "One of the authors of this book lived for ten years in Eastern Kurdistan as a member of the Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian mission; the other derived his knowledge of the country from a stay of three months. Thus they claim that they are able to combine the fresh impressions of the globe-trotter with the knowledge of the resident." (Spec)

+ A L A Bkl 11:116 N '14

"The book bulges with information for the student of geography, ethnology, and history as well as for the casual reader."

+ Outlook 107:681 J1 18 '14 150w

Spec 113:sup617 N 7 '14 80w

WILBY, THOMAS WILLIAM. Motor tour through Canada. il *$1.50 Lane 14-3214

"A plea for the general betterment of Canadian highways, and for a continuous government road from the maritime provinces to the Pacific coast is the real purpose for which Mr. Wilby relates his pioneer tour in a motor car from Halifax to Victoria. Since his was the first motor car to make the entire trip, it is readily surmised that it was one full of interesting experiences. . . . All of Canada seems to have been new ground to the author, who finds that the eastern cities with their likenesses to English and American cities are a disappointment to one who has always kept a boyhood idea of the primitive conditions and the bitter bleak cold of Canada. The west he finds fully up to his expectations. . . . Canada, with her dream of a united Dominion, can never have real unity, Mr. Wilby believes, until she is united not only by a railroad from coast to coast, but by a system of good roads, which shall be built and be under government supervision."—Boston Transcript

"An entertaining account."

+ Ath 1913.2:622 N 29 20w

"Mr. Wilby's descriptions of scenery and people in the country towns and rural districts throughout the Dominion are full of interest, and his photographs especially of the western provinces are very beautiful."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 23 '14 400w

+ Nation 98:640 My 28 '14 330w

"Mr. Wilby is always entertaining, because he was always interested; and he has, moreover, a whimsical slant in his mind's eye, and he likes to turn a neat phrase."

+ N Y Times 19:163 Ap 5 '14 850w

WILCOX, MRS. ELLA (WHEELER). Art of being alive. *$1 (2c) Harper 14-12514

A little volume made up of selections from what the author considers the most helpful of her writings. The message which they carry is expressed on the title-page as "Success through thought."

"Into all of the excerpts are fused the versatile author's enthusiasm and sound perception and reasoning, and all tend toward the solution of the immemorial problem of the human soul—'Is life worth living?'—a problem insistent to-day as it never was before."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 220w

"The author applies the principles of thought to every condition of daily life, to every class of people, and gives for every one helpful counsel and good suggestions."

+ Lit D 49:301 N 7 '14 100w

N Y Times 19:367 Ag 30 '14 70w

WILEY, HARVEY WASHINGTON. 1001 tests<sup>10</sup> of foods, beverages and toilet accessories; arr. by Anne Lewis Pierce. il *$1.25 (3c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-17675

In an introductory chapter Dr. Wiley tells of The pure food battle. The main part of the book is made up of the report on the 1001 tests. The foods tested include baking powders, biscuits, candies, canned goods, cereals, condiments, desserts, extracts, fish, etc. The toilet accessories include cold creams, tooth pastes, soaps, and the like. In each case Dr. Wiley has chosen the best-known, and most-advertised brands and he recommends or rejects without fear of flattery.

"Of special value to housewives."

+ A L A Bkl 11:108 N '14

"Dr. Wiley's new book is one which will be eagerly consulted by all those who, while willing to do their own marketing, do not always know what to buy, because of the many conflicting claims of excellence to be found in the advertising pages of periodicals." H: T. Finck

+ Nation 99:504 O 22 '14 520w

Reviewed by Doris Webb

+ Pub W 86:1236 O 17 '14 800w

"It is information that has a direct bearing on the health and welfare of the community, and which could not possibly be obtained from any other source."

+ R of Rs 50:637 N '14 120w

WILKINSON, MRS. MARY E. (MCNAMARA). Embroidery stitches. il *$1.25 Stokes A13-2697

"Needlewomen, or, as the writer of this book prefers to call them, needle-artists, will here find a great deal of useful information, clearly and practically set out. There are pictures and descriptions of two hundred stitches, arranged alphabetically. . . . She wisely includes plain sewing in her examples, and gives us good diagrams of buttonholes with various ends, and of felling and running, for instance. There are also many pretty little patterns showing the use to which simple stitches can be put, and these can, of course, be altered and adapted almost endlessly."—Spec

Schools Arts Magazine 13:714 My '14 80w

"A serious and excellent book of reference."

+ Spec 110:sup133 Ja 25 '13 220w

WILLIAMS, ANEURIN. Co-partnership and profit-sharing. (Home univ. lib.) *50c (1c) Holt 14-2853

The author has served, so the title page tells us, as Chairman of executive of the International co-operative alliance, and as Hon. secretary of the Labour co-partnership association, and he has written this book, he says in his preface, "in the hope that it may give a useful general idea of a movement to which I have devoted a great part of my time for more than twenty years." The subjects taken up in the eleven chapters are: The nature and origin of profit-sharing; Origins of co-partnership—the labor side; England—the employer's side; Notable English cases; Guise and France generally; In the United States of America; The American type; Co-partnership and trade unionism; Co-partnership and voluntary co-operation; The transformation of capitalism.

"It is a handbook of the subject in every sense of the term." J. L. Leonard

+ Am Econ R 4:699 S '14 250w

+ A L A Bkl 10:410 Je '14

"Although intended primarily for the general reader, the expert will find much of interest and value."

+ Ann Am Acad 53:317 My '14 200w

"His whole treatise is written from the point of view of Capital rather than of Labour. The book gives a clear if one-sided account of Co-partnership and Profit-sharing in themselves, and of the aims and ideals of the employers concerned."

+ Ath 1914.1:sup180 Ja 31 650w

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 3 '14 380w

"Admirable little book." R. P. Farley

+ Hibbert J 12:694 Ap '14 3w

"On reading the book one is at once struck with the honesty, frankness, and open-mindedness with which the author treats his problems."

+ J Pol Econ 22:403 Ap '14 170w

+ Nation 99:49 J1 9 '14 140w

+ N Y Times 19:309 J1 12 '14 1000w

+ Spec 112:sup1062 Je 27 '14 20w

"The major value of the book lies in that it has placed an up-to-date compilation of important instances of profit-sharing and co-partnership in a concise and accessible volume." James Ford

+ Survey 32:100 Ap 25 '14 250w

WILLIAMS, ARCHIBALD. Wonders of modern invention. il *75c (2c) McKay

"The object of this book is to set before young people in a bright and interesting way, and without the use of technical language, accounts of some of the latest phases of modern invention; and also to introduce them to recent discoveries of which the full development is yet to be witnessed." (Preface) Chapters are given to Wireless telegraphy and telephony, the phonograph, the telewriter, modern artillery, dirigible torpedoes, and submarine boats. A note says that the contents have been taken from the author's larger book, "The romance of modern invention."

WILLIAMS, BASIL. Life of William Pitt, earl of Chatham. 2v il *$7.50 Longmans 13-26621

"Mr. Williams has worked over more thoroughly than any of his predecessors the Chatham mss. in the Record office. . . . He has had access to some unpublished material in private collections, makes occasional use of the French archives, and has evidently been much helped by some recent French books on Choiseul. . . . The net effect of the book is not to alter the traditional view or to paint a new picture of Chatham, but rather to fill in the details of the outline which the pen of Macaulay drew for all time."—Sat R

"With an insight equal to his sympathy and his knowledge, Mr. Williams would have given us a more human, a more convincing Pitt." Carl Becker

+ — Am Hist R 19:615 Ap '14 1050w

"It shows painstaking research, a sympathetic understanding of Pitt, skill in handling its mass of material and a thorough knowledge of eighteenth century administration, upon which the author is able to throw some light. The only criticism has been that it is too eulogistic."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:240 F '14

"The book has faults. Carried away by his subject, Mr. Williams is apt to be too Chathamite; he exceeds sober limits both in tone and in narrative. Yet it is a genuine gain to English literature to get a full and sympathetic biography of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, written by an English hand. We should like, too, to point out that eighteenth-century administration—that obscure and intricate affair—has in Mr. Williams a singularly painstaking student. He throws light on practices which the text-books combine to ignore."

+ — Ath 1913,2:586 N 22 1600w

Reviewed by H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript pl0 D 6 '13 670w

"With sound scholarship and good judgment, correcting here a little, adding there a little, Mr. Williams has built up the first credible and convincing portrait of his hero." W. L. Grant

+ — Eng Hist R 29:379 Ap '14 1250w

+ Nation 99:193 Ag 13 '14 1250w

+ N Y Sun p7 D 27 '13 2800w

Reviewed by H. W. Boynton

N Y Times 19:111 Mr 8 '14 1500w

"Mr. Williams is to be warmly congratulated on a most admirable piece of work. An appendix on the dates and various reports of Chatham's speeches is very valuable, and there is an excellent index. There are few misprints, but one unfortunately converts a famous quotation into a lamentable Cockneyism."

+ — Sat R 116:715 D 6 '13 1400w

"Mr. Basil Williams' life of Chatham is altogether admirable. With infinite skill he enables us to understand the struggle which was constantly going on in this very remarkable man's mind." C.

+ Spec 111:1082 D 20 '13 2200w

Reviewed by W. C. Abbott

+ Yale R n s 4:201 O 14 500w

WILLIAMS, CHARLES RICHARD. Life of Rutherford Birchard Hayes, nineteenth president of the United States. 2v il *$7.50 Houghton 14-18560

"Not brilliancy of intellect but moral worth is the dominating characteristic of the portrait that gradually emerges from these pages. As one reads one feels with increasing force the justice of the verdict, rendered by nearly all recent historians, that, no matter how Hayes became President, it was well that he did become President. Mr. Williams himself, Democrat though he is, frankly admits with regard to the disputed election his belief 'that in the final arbitrament essential justice and right prevailed.' His treatment of Mr. Hayes's policies as president, and especially of his termination of 'carpet bag' government in the South, is detailed, careful, and in the main most satisfactory."—Outlook

"Important biography." E. J. C.

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 31 '14 2000w

+ — Nation 100:139 F 11 '15 1900w

"It is written clearly, in excellent order, and in an admirable spirit."

+ N Y Times 19:491 N 8 '14 2200w

"A valuable addition to American political biography."

+ Outlook 108:846 D 9 '14 250w

"A careful, painstaking and vividly interesting biography. Though it cannot be truly called a work of great distinction, it is certainly creditable, readable, illuminating and important."

+ Springfield Republican p5 F 4 '15 1800w

WILLIAMS, EDWARD HUNTINGTON. Question of alcohol. (Personal question ser.) 75c (4½c) Goodhue co. 14-14770

The author holds that prohibition legislation has failed to achieve the results desired and he disapproves of temperance instruction in the public schools. His own methods for control of the drink evil, outlined in his final chapter, are: more rational treatment of the dipsomaniac, a system of saloon regulation based on that of Sweden, and the provision of substitutes for the saloon. The chapters take up: The drug-habit menace; Temperance instruction in public schools and its results; Liquor legislation and insanity; The liquor question in medicine; What shall we do about it? Chapters 1, 3, and 4 appeared in the Medical Record. Chapter 2 was published in the Survey. The final chapter is made up of the substance of an address delivered at the National conference on race betterment held at Battle Creek, Mich., in 1914.

"The little book is admirable for the brewers' purpose, seeking to undermine the two strongholds of the opposing camp—national prohibition and alcohol education—first as carried on in our public schools, later in the form of posters and exhibits. It is the place where Dr. Williams drops subjects that makes a social worker, rightly or wrongly, distrust him. He drops the subject precisely where the social worker would cling to it for dear life." Elizabeth Tilton

— Survey 32:638 S 26 '14 1400w

WILLIAMS, EGERTON RYERSON, jr. Lombard towns of Italy. il *$1.75 (1c) Dodd 14-9888

The last volume of a trilogy upon the interesting cities of Italy—the predecessors being "Hill towns of Italy," describing the cities of the Apennines, north of Rome, from sea to sea; and "Plain-towns of Italy," covering Venetia. Chapters: Bergamo the lower; Bergamo the upper; Monza and the iron crown; Saronno and Varese; Castiglione Olona, Legnano, and Buseto Arsizio; The marvelous Certosa di Pavia; Pavia the primeval; Pavia the pious; Lodi and Crema; Cremona the contentious; Cremona the captivating; Mantova la Gloriosa; Mantua the magnificent; The Palazzo del Tè, Sabbioneta, and environs of Mantua.

+ A L A Bkl 11:116 N '14

Reviewed by Algernon Tassin

+ Bookm 40:425 D '14 400w

"No more delightful and fascinating guide to certain aspects of Italy can be found than Mr. Williams."

+ Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 270w

+ Boston Transcript p4 D 12 '14 1150w

"Some of the descriptive chapters are more likely to prove of practical value to the tourist than to sustain the interest of the general reader, but it is almost inevitable that a narrative of this kind should in places become somewhat pedestrian, and as a companion of a journey to supplement the severely businesslike Baedeker, this book can be cordially recommended. The index, so far as we have tested it, is full and accurate."

+ Nation 38:641 My 28 '14 400w

N Y Times 19:303 J1 5 '14 160w

+ Outlook 107:681 J1 18 '14 270w

R of Rs 50:252 Ag '14 50w

"The book is charming and most readable."

+ Spec 113:239 Ag 15 '14 550w

"A book that should prove both sound and fascinating to all for whom Italy, Italian history and Italian art have any real appeal."

+ Springfield Republican p5 N 5 '14 320w

WILLIAMS, HAROLD WHITMORE. Russia of the Russians. (Countries and peoples ser.) il $1.50 Scribner A14-1023

"An introductory historical chapter outlines the process by which the Russian people secured the political supremacy over the great plain of eastern Europe and western Asia; an account is given of the political situation and of the leading figures in Russian politics; and chapters are devoted to the press, the 'intellectuals,' the literature of recent years, music, painting, and architecture, the relationship between church and people, to peasantry and gentry, to trade and industry, and to some of the lighter sides of Russian life."—Ath

"Covers a less wide field than Winter, but is more intimate and more penetrating in its judgments. The chapter on literature has much that is new for English readers."

+ A L A Bkl 10:410 Je '14

Ath 1913.2:sup397 O 11 50w

"On the whole, 'Russia of the Russians' impresses us as a well-informed description of the country."

+ Ath 1914.1:373 Mr 14 430w

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 18 '14 400w

+ Ind 79:415 S 21 '14 320w

"His book may be recommended without hesitation as the best introductory account of present-day Russia that exists in English, or, so far as the reviewer is aware, in any language."

+ Nation 99:44 J1 9 '14 600w

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 140w

+ Outlook 107:47 My 2 '14 300w

"It does not cover so wide a field as Mr. Winter's book, but its knowledge is more intimate and the penetration of its judgments more evident."

+ Spec 112:705 Ap 25 '14 1350w

WILLIAMS, HENRY SMITH. Adding years to your life. il $1 (1½c) Hearst's int. lib. 14-10240

The author has attempted to show how compliance with simple rules of health on the part of the individual, and the better guardianship of the health of its people on the part of state and municipality may unite to prolong life. Contents: The duel with old age; The battle of the microbes; Messengers of death and how to outwit them; Is your brain all right? Are your nerves in tune? Can you see straight? Do you choose your children? Give your children a chance; Adding years to your life.

"Extremely simple and non-technical and rather commonplace style. Many sensible general suggestions."

+ A L A Bkl 11:16 S '14

Boston Transcript p22 Je 24 '14 180w

Dial 57:346 N 1 '14 230w

WILLIAMS, HENRY SMITH. Miracles of science. il $2 (2c) Harper 13-23519

The author takes up the story of scientific progress where he left it in his "Story of nineteenth century science." The wonders here described are, then, the achievements of the first decade of the twentieth century. He writes of them in the following chapters: The origin of the world; Charting the universe; Weighing the worlds; Exploring the atom; Juggling with life; The creation of species; Mastering the microbe; Banishing the plagues; Working wonders with a top; The conquest of time and space; Our wonderful generation.

"Popular, entertaining, up to date."

+ A L A Bkl 10:198 Ja '14 +

"The book is fascinating from beginning to end."

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 10 '13 470w

"It is an excellent specimen of what 'popular science' should be, on the journalistic side."

+ Ind 77:316 Mr 2 '14 130w

"To the busy man who wishes to keep informed of the progress of events in the scientific world this book may be commended."

+ Lit D 48:30 Ja 3 '14 300w

"In spite of Dr. Williams's overemphasis, and of his too-ready acceptance of scientific achievements, this book is interesting and shows what science is accomplishing, whether one thinks of it as miraculous or not."

+ Nation 98:439 Ap 16 '14 470w

"A review of the advance of modern science, often couched in the somewhat vague generalities that are supposed by some mistaken authors to make matters comprehensible to the popular mind."

+ N Y Sun p5 N 15 '13 110w

"Dr. Williams's book can be recommended as a sane, practical, and accurate summary of modern scientific achievement, and should be read by those who desire to keep in touch with the world of scientific thought and activity."

+ N Y Times 19:30 Ja 25 '14 530w

"The book is clear, and deals with its subject in a popular rather than technical manner."

+ Outlook 105:598 N 15 '13 60w

WILLIAMS, HENRY SMITH. Twilight sleep; a simple account of new discoveries in painless childbirth. *75c (4c) Harper 14-2054

A timely little book on a subject that has received deservedly wide discussion and of which more will be written as investigation into its possibilities proceeds. Dr. Williams sums up all that is at present known of "twilight sleep" as practiced at Freiberg and makes some predictions concerning its future development in this country. Contents: The twilight sleep; To be and not to be; What is pain—and why? Are labor pains a disguised blessing? The twilight sleep and anaesthesia; Being a woman; What the average layman can do; What some philanthropist may do.

WILLIAMS, JESSE LYNCH. "And so they were married": a comedy of the new woman. $1.25 Scribner 14-19309

Helen, the "new woman" of this three-act comedy, has seen so much of the sham and hypocrisy surrounding marriage that she rebels against it. She refuses to marry Ernest Hamilton, the scientist in whose laboratory she has worked, because marriage will mean the end of his career; but to the horror of her family she insists that she will go with him to Paris, there to continue as his assistant. Her uncle, a judge, who has cynical views on matrimony and who predicts a strike against it on the part of women, succeeds in trapping the two lovers into a civil marriage against their own wills and the play ends happily with a "triumph for respectability."

"May be best described as an American imitation of Mr. Shaw's plays." H. E. Woodbridge — Dial 58:48 Ja 16 '15 300w

"What the play lacks is breadth of view and reflection."

+ Nation 99:755 D 24 '14 350w

Figures in parentheses following price indicate cost per 1000 words

WILLIAMS, JESSE LYNCH—Continued.

"In spite of defects, however, the comedy stands out as a peculiarly sincere contribution to the drama of ideas in America."

+ — New Republic 1:28 D 5 '14 900w

"Vivaciously dramatized tale."

+ Outlook 108:553 N 4 '14 160w

WILLIAMS, MARTHA MCCULLOCH. Dishes and beverages of the old South. il $1.25 (12c) McBride, Nast & co. 13-25753

A book that is more than a cook-book, for its chapters reproduce something of the flavor of the old southern way of life. Primarily, tho, as its name implies, it is a book of recipes. Chapters are devoted to: The staff of life; Saving your bacon; Hams and other hams; For thirsty souls; Pies and puddings; Creole cookery; Cakes, great and small; Meat, poultry, game, eggs; Soups, salads, relishes; Vegetables, fruit, desserts, sandwiches; Pickles, preserves, coffee, tea, chocolate; When the orchards "hit"; Upon occasions; Soap and candles.

"Of practical value only to rather experienced cooks."

+ A L A Bkl 10:210 F '14

Reviewed by Calvin Winter

+ Bookm 38:665 F '14 170w

"Here, at last, is abundant, readable, and trustworthy information about the much-vaunted southern cookery, which, on the whole, merits all the praise that has been bestowed upon it."

+ Nation 98:273 Mr 12 '14 200w

"With regard to beverages it is not to be commended; one short chapter contains all that the author chooses to say on that vast subject and her recipes are unorthodox."

+ — N Y Sun p5 N 15 '13 80w

WILLIAMS, MAUD E. Sorrow stones; an unfinished story. *$1.35 Longmans A14-1242

"The story is so simple as to be almost unnecessary, just woven of little events in the life of a country lad, who becomes 'scholar of Queen's college, Oxford,' and fights and dies in the Boer war; but he and Maggie, who cared for him, are most lovable folk and true; and in this narrow space there is, after all, as much room for those passions which are infinite as in the most complex plot."—Spec

+ A L A Bkl 10:415 Je '14

"Within the limits she has set herself the author has done good work, and we shall look with pleasure for more from her pen."

+ Ath 1913,2:526 N 8 120w

"There is much quiet humor too that draws the reader on, but the author unfortunately inclines to be pathetic."

+ — N Y Sun p3 D 27 '13 120w

"It is a sad tale, but Miss Williams makes it graceful as a narrative and convincing as a study of character."

+ Sat R 116:592 N 8 '13 200w

"If this is, as we imagine, Miss Williams's first novel, she is to be congratulated. We took it up expecting to find the usual small-talk, voluble and striving after brilliancy, which the reviewer learns to dread from the modern novelist. We found instead English prose admirable in its restraint and variety, broad as the moors, fresh as the winds, and untroubled as the runic sorrow stones themselves."

+ Spec 112:311 F 21 '14 270w

WILLIAMS, REV. THOMAS RHONDDA. Working faith of a liberal theologian. *$1.50 Scribner (Eng ed A14-2883)

"A simple yet comprehensive religious creed is given by T. Rhondda Williams in this book. Taking what is common to all Christian bodies, he finds the solution of difficulties in the belief in the spiritual constitution of the world." (Nation) "It is fittingly closed by a stirring chapter upon Christianity and social ideals which calls for the realization of brotherhood in organized business, industry and international relations as well as in church and the prayer circle." (Ind)

"The greater part of the Rev. Rhondda Williams's account of his 'Working faith' will no doubt, appeal especially to his fellow-labourers in the ministry, though they may find themselves as powerful for good with a less elaborate scheme of belief. To the lay mind the thought recurs from the chaps. 1 to 7 that the work bears the marks of over-specialization. A sense of overcrowding prevails; the very wealth of reasoning and quotation hints at a need for self-assurance."

+ — Ath 1914,2:41 Jl 11 500w

"This book is a dignified statement of the Christian fundamentals of religion, constructive in spirit, vigorous in thought, and lucid in style."

+ Ind 80:245 N 16 '14 60w

Nation 100:85 Ja 21 '15 40w

"Those to whom religious writings appeal will read with interest this book."

+ N Y Times 19:349 Ag 16 '14 60w

WILLIAMSON, CHARLES NORRIS, and WILLIAMSON, MRS. ALICE MURIEL (LIVINGSTON). It happened in Egypt. il $1.35 (1c) Doubleday 14-506

Plots, sub-plots and counter-plots make this a novel packed with action. Its setting is Egypt, from Cairo to Khartum, and it has among its characters, an American heiress, fabulously rich; an attractive Irish widow; a likable Irish nobleman (who tells the story); a Salem school teacher, seeing the world for the first time; an English army officer, disguised as an Egyptian prince; a New York woman who thinks she is the reincarnation of Cleopatra; an American girl married to a Turk; an English baronet, and an American sculptor. There is plenty of guide-book information for the serious reader, and, for the benefit of the more frivolous, four engagements are arranged among the assorted number of persons referred to above, with a report of another marriage that has taken place, so to speak, off stage.

"The fluency of this novel is remarkable. Nowhere does the story lapse into improbability or do the authors lose control over their good humour."

+ Ath 1914,1:131 Ja 24 150w

"The whole story pulsates with life, and it is difficult to imagine a more pleasant way to pass an evening or two than to read the Williamsons' version of what happened in Egypt."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 14 '14 700w

+ Ind 77:313 Mr 2 '14 70w

+ Nation 98:110 Ja 29 '14 230w

"The book lacks the old-time, galloping, romantic charm with which the authors were accustomed to whirl their readers on from richly described scene to dramatic incident."

+ — N Y Times 19:19 Ja 18 '14 350w

"A pleasing enough concoction, but, it must be added, too long drawn out."

+ — Outlook 106:270 Ja 31 '14 70w

+ Sat R 117:246 F 21 '14 220w

+ — Spec 112:444 Mr 14 '14 180w

WILLIAMSON, CHARLES NORRIS, and WILLIAMSON, MRS. ALICE MURIEL (LIVINGSTON). Soldier of the Legion. *$1.35 (1½c) Doubleday 14-18424

Max Doran of the United States army, stationed at Fort Ellsworth, is summoned to New York to his mother's death bed. His mother has a confession to make, and from her own lips he learns that he is not her child; he is a changeling. The secret told, she dies, leaving Max to search out the young woman who is heir to the Doran fortune. He goes to France and learns that the girl is probably to be found in Algiers. He starts for North Africa at once and on shipboard is greatly attracted to Sanda DeLisle, a young French girl, traveling alone to join her father, a colonel in the Foreign Legion. One suspects at first that this is to be the girl he is seeking, but no, Josephine Delatour, the heiress, turns out to be a quite different person, and having served her purpose, of attracting Max to Africa, where he throws in his lot with the Legion, she practically disappears from the story. The love interest of the tale centers around Max and Sanda DeLisle.

"An abundance of incident and a succession of dramatic situations are the qualities which have made, and still sustain, the reputation of Mr. and Mrs. Williamson."

+ Ath 1914,2:353 O 10 250w

"It follows the well-worn grooves into which these authors pour a slightly varying mixture of romance and agreeable glimpses of unfamiliar corners of the world."

+ Ind 80:290 N 23 '14 60w

"There is romance in abundance, and though the reader is occasionally conscious of the use of whip and spur on a jaded imagination the narrative moves at a fairly lively pace."

+ N Y Times 19:476 N 1 '14 300w

+ R of Rs 50:765 D '14 120w

WILLIAMSON, MARGARET. John and Betty's
* Irish history visit. il $1.25 (2½c) Lothrop
14-6288

This book is a companion to two earlier volumes in which visits to historical spots in England and Scotland were described. In this story the two American children, in company with their English friends, journey thru Ireland and learn much of its legendary and historical past. Good pictures from photographs illustrate the book.

A L A Bk1 10:420 Je '14

"The style is of the conversational Baedeker kind, and there are encyclopaedic stretches of information."

+ Nation 99:695 D 10 '14 70w

WILLIAMSON, ROBERT W. Ways of the * South Sea savage. il $3.50 Lippincott
A14-2580

This book "is well defined by the sub-title as 'a record of travel and observation amongst the savages of the Solomon islands and primitive coast and mountain peoples of New Guinea.' It is a volume of ethnological observations, interspersed with personal experiences and small adventures, gathered from the cannibalistic tribes which had not hitherto been studied and the existence of which was hardly known. . . . The author's account seems to indicate that the mountain tribes of New Guinea resemble in their habits and way of looking at things the more debased Africans of the upper Congo valley more nearly than they do any other barbarians. Mr. Williamson believes them to be a remnant of an aboriginal Negro stock."—Nation

"The present volume will appeal especially to those interested in anthropology."

+ Ath 1914,1:sup430 Mr 21 750w

"Many travellers have written about the South Seas, but few have brought the stay-at-home so close to the everyday life and ceremonies as Mr. Williamson does in his lavishly illustrated volume." F. L. W.

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 950w

"The book, which is copiously illustrated from excellent photographs, is one that no student of the ethnology of New Guinea or of the Solomon islands can afford to neglect."

+ Nation 98:327 Mr 26 '14 300w

N Y Times 19:251 My 31 '14 90w

+ Outlook 106:867 Ap 18 '14 120w

"He has brought back scientific and social information that was not to be found either in official despatches or in the ordinary literature of travel."

+ Sat R 117:sup10 Mr 21 '14 200w

WILLSON, BECKLES. Quebec: the Laurentian
* province. il $3 (4c) Stokes (Eng ed 13-12592)

In this book on Quebec the author has deliberately chosen to ignore politics and present political conditions in the province. The country, its people, its cities, its industries are what concern him. Contents: On the threshold; Quebec's capital; The French language; The Côte de Beaupré; St. Anne and the Laurentians; The church;

Montreal; Montreal characteristics; Temiscouata and the west; Up the St. Maurice; Quebec's literature; The eastern townships; Agriculture and roads; Lake St. John and the Saguenay; The Laurentides national park; Temiscouata and the south-east.

"Mr. Willson's book is one of the most comprehensive and satisfactory on the old French province that have been published in the last ten or fifteen years. His description of the place of the Catholic church in the life of the province has seldom been excelled by a writer who was neither a French-Canadian nor a Roman Catholic."

+ Nation 98:640 My 28 '14 330w

"But with all the manifest shortcomings of the book, it is a kindly sketch of what the traveler in this corner of the world may see, and those who know their Quebec well will only smile at the enthusiasm which it has aroused in the author."

+ N Y Times 19:313 Jl 19 '14 150w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:128 My '14 30w

WILM, EMIL CARL. Henri Bergson: a study in * radical evolution. $1.25 (3½c) Sturgis &
Walton 14-18753

"This little book is intended to be a brief and comparatively non-technical statement of Bergson's philosophy which shall be intelligible to the general reader who wishes to know something of this much talked-of philosopher." (Preface) The author has not meant to offer an interpretation of Bergson which would excuse the reader from an attempt to become familiar with his work at first hand. He has rather tried, he says, to afford a clue which will induce him to go on with Bergson's writings themselves. The work opens with a brief chapter sketching the relations between the philosophies of Bergson, Eucken and James. It ends with two chapters on Bergson and the philosophy of religion.

"In this criticism the author has shown intelligent appreciation of Bergson, but he has not been so over-awed that he fails to see the weak points in the system. The book is a most excellent one."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 11 '14 430w

WILSON, ERNEST HENRY. Naturalist in * western China, with vasculum, camera and gun; with introd. by C. S. Sargent. 2v il
$7.50 Doubleday (Eng ed 14-563)

This two-volume work "contains first-hand information for the botanist, horticulturist, sportsman, ethnologist, the general traveller, the merchant, and, indeed, all interested in things Chinese. In horticulture and botany the author gives a summary of the information gained during eleven years' travel in this remote and little-known land."—Ath

"A comprehensive description of a fascinating region."

+ Ath 1913,2:sup437 O 18 100w

"Not a little charm is added to an interesting and useful book by the evident fact that the writer liked, and was liked by, the natives."

+ Ath 1914,1:190 F 7 350w

"The book has thus a permanent value and place in literature quite apart from that of horticultural lore. Rarely are such sharp and clear half-tones to be found in any volume, and the publishers have done their share in making a book which must be ranked as one of the most notable books of the year." G. H. S.

+ Boston Transcript p22 D 31 '13 1650w

+ Bot Gaz 57:332 Ap '14 380w

"The narrative is a perfectly straightforward one, apparently without undue bias of any kind, but written in a sympathetic spirit. Those who care for exploration and natural history will enjoy it most; but it is to be recommended also to those who are interested in the character of the Chinese, and the future of China."

T. D. A. Cockerell

+ Dial 56:137 F 16 '14 1150w

+ Lit D 50:158 Ja 23 '15 270w

+ N Y Times 19:327 Jl 26 '14 420w

WILSON, ERNEST HENRY —Continued.

+ Sat R 118:55 J1 11 '14 140w

"A book of solid merit and permanent worth."

+ Spec 113:136 J1 25 '14 900w

WILSON, HILL PEEBLES. John Brown, soldier of fortune: a critique. il $2.50 H. P. Wilson, Lawrence, Kan. 13-19682

"Mr. Wilson charges that Brown's biographers suppressed important proofs and so misinformed and misled the public, giving to Brown a thoroughly fictitious character wholly illogical and inconsistent with the facts and circumstances of the man's life. . . . The historical data that forced this conclusion are now spread before the public and Mr. Wilson is confident that they fully support his rating of Brown and completely annihilate the appraisement made of him by earlier biographers."—N Y Times

"[The heroic, self-sacrificing, transfiguring idealism, which emerged in the storm and stress of Charlestown] Mr. Wilson finds to be only the mask of a successful hypocrisy and his misinterpretation is the capital and fatal defect of an aggressive and vigorously phrased book." L. W. Spring

— Am Hist R 19:662 Ap '14 550w

N Y Times 18:615 N 9 '13 300w

"The publication of this 'critique,' with its reckless accusations against Brown's latest and best biographer, is to be deeply regretted."

— Outlook 106:47 Ja 3 '14 220w

WILSON, JAMES GRANT, ed. Presidents of the United States 1789-1914. 4v il $7.50 (2½c) Scribner 14-3717

Brief biographies of the twenty-seven presidents of the United States make up the contents of these four volumes. Some of them are taken from the works of distinguished historians, John Fiske, George Bancroft, and others. Other of the sketches were prepared especially for this volume. "These seven-and-twenty articles contain a complete record of the most important events in the nation's history from the inauguration of our first president to the close of 1913." (Preface) The author has added brief notices concerning the women who have reigned in the White House during each administration. The volumes are well illustrated.

"Valuable cluster of biographies."

+ Boston Transcript p8 Ap 18 '14 400w

+ Ind 78:175 Ap 27 '14 60w

+ Lit D 49:519 S 19 '14 120w

"To such a compilation cannot be given very high praise."

— + Nation 99:637 N 26 '14 300w

+ — N Y Times 19:333 Ag 2 '14 600w

"These volumes are of much value to the student of history. They are of a fortunately popular character. They should have a wide appeal."

+ Outlook 107:215 My 23 '14 150w

"The set is carefully indexed and in binding as well as matter is on a distinctly higher plane than the more usual collection of biographical sketches."

+ Springfield Republican p5 My 7 '14 470w

WILSON, JOHN FLEMING. Tad Sheldon's Fourth of July. il $1 (1½c) Sturgis & Walton 13-24447

A group of short stories. Tad Sheldon, a patrol leader, is the son of a surferman of the Yaquina Bay life saving crew, and the stories are tales of Pacific coast life. The titles are: Tad Sheldon's Fourth of July; The fingers of the tide; Prepared; The king's son; The awakening of Thomas Briggs; One good turn deserves another; The waves of the moon; David Fasnett's relinquishment; The cruise of the Pegasus.

A L A Bkl 10:290 Mr '14

"The second collection of scout adventures that John Fleming Wilson includes in 'Tad Sheldon's Fourth of July' has the strong merits and the fault of the first. The tales, dealing with a wild part of the Pacific coast and with a life saving station also, are exciting in subject and well told."

+ — N Y Sun p5 D 13 '13 130w

WINANS, WALTER. Animal sculpture. il $1.75 Putnam 13-25243

"The author, who has taken up sculpture among his many occupations and has attracted much attention to his statues of horses, has had unusual opportunities in the course of his sporting adventures to watch animals in their natural state. He not only pleads that the truth be observed in reproducing them in effigy, but also gives practical directions for other sculptors to follow. He naturally pays most attention to the horse, but the other, wilder beasts are not neglected."—N Y Sun

"It criticizes many long accepted models and convinces the reader in spite of some misstatements. Interesting specially to the craftsman but also to the layman who likes to appreciate the craftsmanship which produces certain effects."

+ — A L A Bkl 10:241 F '14

Ath 1913,2:sup438 O 18 30w

"The book combines instruction and entertainment, so as to be valuable to the student and interesting to the general reader. Mr. Winans speaks as one having authority; he tells us his own experiences; he points out with enthusiasm the way to success."

+ — Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 270w

"A thoroughly sane, sensible and very helpful little book."

+ Ind 78:216 My 4 '14 80w

"The practical counsels seem to us almost without exception sound, and the whole tendency makes against the superficiality of much modern sculpture."

+ — Nation 98:44 Ja 8 '14 300w

"Entertaining, as well as valuable, are the criticisms of famous statues."

+ — N Y Sun p1 D 13 '13 120w

"Combative, aggravating, opinionative, and therefore rather valuable, is this book by Mr. Winans." D.

+ — Sat R 117:208 F 14 '14 880w

— Spec 113:sup775 D 5 '14 320w

WINDELBAND, WILHELM, and RUGE, ARNOLD, eds. Encyclopedia of the philosophical sciences; tr. by B. Ethel Meyer. v 1 $2 Macmillan 14-30366 v 1 Logic.

"The main purpose of this new series is to show the unity amidst the diversity of philosophical subjects. This purpose is well illustrated in this volume on logic. The introduction is written by Arnold Ruge. Then there follow three sections on the 'Principles of logic.' A German, Wilhelm Windelband, in four chapters, gives his views. An American, Josiah Royce, in three chapters, states his position. And, finally, Louis Couturat, a Frenchman, takes six chapters for his discussion of the principles of logic." (Boston Transcript) The other authors represented are Benedetto Croce, Federico Enriques, and Nicolaj Losskij.

A L A Bkl 10:367 My '14 (Review of v 1)

"Our dissatisfaction with the structure of the book in no way lessens our appreciation of the individual importance of the six essays which it contains."

+ — Ath 1914,1:783 Je 6 980w (Review of v 1)

"The series certainly will be a large contribution to philosophy."

+ Boston Transcript p13 D 2 '13 300w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by A. Wolf

+ — Hibbert J 12:946 J1 '14 2000w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by C. D. Broad

+ — Int J Ethics 24:473 J1 '14 700w (Review of v 1)

Figures in parentheses following price indicate cost per 1000 words

+ — Nation 98:643 My 28 '14 1000w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by A. E. Crawley.
Nature 93:56 Mr 19 '14 250w (Review of v 1)

"One of the distinctive merits of this initial volume lies in its reflection of the modern spirit of interest in and respect for widely divergent and even contradictory modes of thought. W. G. Gore

+ — Psychol Bull 11:108 Mr 15 '14 1000w (Review of v 1)

WINTERBURN, FLORENCE MAY (HULL).
2 Mother in education. *$1.50 (2c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-20406

The best devised system of education can only effect the partial development of the child. School training must be supplemented by training at home. The school trains him for community needs and for citizenship. His development as an individual must be directed in the home. This is the thesis of Mrs. Winterburn's book. She develops it in chapters on: Through play to work; The mother tongue; Cultivating observation; Imagination plays; Nature studies; Form, size and number; Mother wit—and humor; The right method in reading; Self-expression through drawing, etc.

+ N Y Times 19:500 N 15 '14 50w

WINTERBURN, FLORENCE MAY (HULL).
7 Principles of correct dress. *$1 (2c) Harper 14-6810

A guide for women in matters of dress based upon permanent rules of artistic individual dress. There are chapters contributed by Jean Worth and Paul Poirot which lead to the authoritativeness of the book. Some of the points treated are harmony in dress and how to achieve it, what thin and stout women should wear, appropriate colors for different complexions, dress in relation to one's years, the effect of dress on the wearer, uses of tailor made gowns and clinging creations, and symmetry and character in hats.

"While the treatment is informal and rather rambling, the book contains many helpful suggestions."

+ — A L A Bkl 11:16 S '14

N Y Times 19:375 S 6 '14 60w

+ Wis Lib Bull 10:162 Je '14 50w

WINTERBURN, FLORENCE MAY (HULL).
6 and others. Novel ways of entertaining. *$1 (2½c) Harper 14-9097

In this book of suggestions the author has taken account of recent innovations in the social world and has tried to make "a serviceable little book for those who like novelty and search for something newer and more original." There are chapters on: The modern spirit of hospitality; Afternoon tea; Dinner-giving in a large and small way; Informal little novelties; The oriental way; Outdoor entertainments; The question of decorations; For the children; Novelties in breakfasts and suppers; The new dances; Simple recreations.

+ N Y Times 19:375 S 6 '14 60w

WINTHROP, THEODORE. Canoe and the saddle; or Klalam and Klickitat. Il *$5 J: H. Williams, Provident bldg., Tacoma, Wash. 14-636

This reprint is an account of a journey taken thru the northwest sixty years ago. "It was first published fifty years ago after its author's death in one of the early battles of the civil war. A goodly number of readers knew and admired it then and afterward, and the manuscript is now owned by the New York public library. . . . It gives a brilliant picture, unstudied and at first hand, of frontier conditions in the early days of civilization in Washington and Oregon as they looked to a keen and imaginative young pioneer." (N Y Times)

"Valuable record of life and travel on the northwestern frontier."

+ A L A Bkl 10:340 Ap '14

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '13 550w

"As both editor and publisher, Mr. Williams deserves high credit for the diligence and study he has put into the work."

+ Dial 56:114 F 1 '14 250w

"Mr. Williams's edition is often careless in matters of detail. He states that he has followed the 'original text,' when as a matter of fact he has followed Curtis's editing."

+ — Nation 97:594 D 18 '13 500w

"Its pages form a valuable contribution to our social history. As an account by a lover of nature of a trip through some of the wildest and noblest scenes on the continent, other nature lovers will find its vitality and charm undiminished by the years since it was written."

+ N Y Times 19:16 Ja 11 '14 300w

WIRING diagrams of electrical apparatus and installations. Il *$2 McGraw 13-7775

"A collection of circuit diagrams, taken from actual practice, representing more or less completely all branches of the electrical art except telephony and telegraphy. Armature winding is not included, as the publishers state that it would occupy too much space."—Elec World

"Valuable to the operator and repair man in proportion to his training and experience."

+ A L A Bkl 10:322 Ap '14

"Obviously the material has been gathered almost entirely from manufacturers' bulletins, but it embraces in a single publication drawings obtained from a large number of sources. This volume should be of considerable service to the practising electrical engineer."

+ — Elec World 62:46 JI 5 '13 110w

WISE, HERBERT CLIFTON, and BEIDLEMAN, HENRY FERDINAND. Colonial architecture for those about to build. Il *$5 (5½c) Lippincott 14-8

The foreword says: "Individuals and corporations, who contemplate building and are sensible of the merits of the colonial style, are presented in this volume with the best examples of that style from a locality that possesses, of domestic, religious and governmental architecture, examples inferior to none elsewhere." This locality comprises Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. The full-page illustrations showing dwelling houses, churches, public buildings, doorways and other details, and interiors are excellent.

A L A Bkl 10:367 My '14

"For architects and those contemplating house building these types of dwellings offer many valuable suggestions."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 770w

"A welcome addition to the record of the architectural activities of the colonial period. The historical matter given by the authors adds much value to the book as a whole."

+ Nation 98:249 Mr 5 '14 350w

"It is full of suggestions to architects and to those about to build, to be sure, but most readers will be more interested in them as noble remains of a civilization that expressed its own needs and ideas and was not content to imitate."

+ N Y Sun p3 D 13 '13 220w

WITHERS, HARTLEY. Poverty and waste. 10 *$1.25 Dutton (Eng ed 14-14772)

"In very simple and logical fashion, Hartley Withers, of the London 'Times,' sets forth the relations between the spenders, the workers, and the managers. His aim is to show how money spent on luxuries is wasted, and how if spent on necessary articles, such as are wanted by all classes, the prices of such articles would decrease and their production increase, because of the capital set free to be invested. . . . Mr. Withers does not take long to dispose of the grey-whiskered fallacy, that money spent on luxuries is justified because it gives employment to the workers and he meets various other objections to his theory very cogently."—Survey

WITHERS, HARTLEY—Continued.

+ A L A BkI 11:101 N '14

"Not unmindful of the evil of exaggeration, we affirm that this is a welcome addition to the books which are helping to recast the social conscience."

+ — Ath 1914:2:137 Ag 1 1850w

Boston Transcript p20 S 23 '14 430w

"For a serious book by a well-informed man it is about as futile as the law allows; yet it is perfectly correct and obvious in every way and will cause no one indigestion."

+ — Ind 80:289 N 23 '14 110w

"A work that is most attractive in the reading and most convincing in the argument."

+ Nation 99:435 O 8 '14 1000w

"This is a little book with a big idea. It approaches a threadbare topic from a novel point of view."

+ N Y Times 19:404 S 27 '14 1450w

"The theory of poverty as a result of waste is one of the oldest known to modern economists. Mr. Withers elaborates it, as applied to existing conditions, in a thesis well worth the following. It is the fashion nowadays to condemn unreservedly the middleman. Mr. Withers, to some extent takes up the cudgels on his behalf, and his chapter on the subject is the most interesting of all."

+ Sat R 118:22 JI 4 '14 190w

"Moralists may condemn the economics of 'Poverty and waste,' and cold economists may resent the moralizing. But, as a matter of fact, ethics and economics react upon each other so inevitably that we have no quarrel with Mr. Withers for giving us a fine confusion of the two, particularly as his book is short and written in a light, clear style."

+ Spec 113:271 Ag 22 '14 620w

"The tendencies of the time make this book particularly valuable." E. T. Hartman

+ Springfield Republican p5 D 10 '14 550w

"It is written by a business man on a sound business basis, and will appeal to business men and to thoughtful consumers everywhere. Mr. Withers' book is well adapted for use in club work or Consumers' league meetings." F. G. Buckstaff

+ Survey 32:549 Ag 29 '14 780w

WITHERTON, PAUL, ed. Book of athletics.
" il $1.50 (1½c) Lothrop 14-15457

A volume modeled on a "Book of athletics," edited by Norman W. Eingham, jr. and published in 18 5. It is made up of a collection of articles written by players, captains and coaches, and is "designed to give those interested a certain amount of knowledge and insight into the player's side of athletics." There are articles on Football, Track athletics, Field athletics, Baseball, Rowing, Hockey, Lawn tennis, Swimming, Intercollegiate soccer, Wrestling, Lacrosse, Basketball, and Golf. There is also a chapter by Ralph C. Craig on The Olympic games of 1912.

A L A BkI 11:129 N '14

"Full of useful information clearly and concisely stated in simple, everyday language." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:449 D '14 80w

"The book is healthy in tone and a splendid guide."

+ Ind 80:416 D 14 '14 50w

"We remember but one book as full of what the athletic reader wants to know, and that was Walter Camp's fascinating account of football, issued some years ago."

+ Lit D 49:1132 D 5 '14 200w

N Y Times 19:417 O 4 '14 100w

WITTE, KARL HEINRICH GOTTFRIED. Education of Karl Witte; or, The training of the child; ed. with an introd. by H. Ad-dington Bruce; tr. by Leo Wiener. $1.50 (2c) Crowell 14-5318

Karl Witte, who was born in 1800, was one of those child prodigies, who, according to popular supposition, must come to a bad, or at least an inglorious end. This child, however, who matriculated at the University of Leipsic at the age of ten, and took his doctors' degree at fourteen, lived a long and brilliant life, to die, full of years and honor, at the age of 83. His father who conducted his early education has described his methods in this book, now translated into English for the first time. He answers such questions as: Was my son born with extraordinary aptitudes? Did I intend to make a precocious scholar out of my son? How came my son to be a precocious scholar? Should children be left to themselves up to their seventh or eighth year? Must children play much with other children?

"Whatever the opinion of the reader in regard to the advisability or desirability of such a system of education, the case of Karl Witte is of vital interest." D. L. M.

+ Boston Transcript p8 Mr 28 '14 1100w

"The book has a vital interest for parents and educators."

+ Chaut 72:711 My 9 '14 170w

Dial 56:508 Je 16 '14 330w

+ Educ R 49:101 Ja '15 100w

+ Lit D 49:520 S 19 '14 200w

"A rather pleasing book."

+ Nation 98:542 My 7 '14 280w

+ N Y Times 19:336 Ag 2 '14 230w

+ Outlook 107:317 Je 6 '14 100w

WODEHOUSE, PELHAM GRENVILLE. Little nugget. il $1.25 Watt 14-1107

"An American millionaire and his wife have been divorced upon the ground of incompatibility, the incompatibility relating chiefly to their differing views as to the rearing of their only child, 'a singularly repellent little boy,' 12 or 13 years of age. The court has given the father custody of the child, for whom the mother cherishes a weak-minded idolatry. To steal him from his father becomes the purpose of her life. Of course, the father must have him guarded. The mother employs persons to kidnap him. At the same time rival professional kidnappers try to gain possession of him, so as to hold him for a ransom. Around this situation Mr. Wodehouse has written a clever and amusing story."

—N Y Times

+ N Y Times 19:73 F 15 '14 500w

"Not every newcomer to this field is able to duplicate an initial success in subsequent attempts, but Mr. Wodehouse's latest story, 'Little nugget' proves an exception in his case. This is not to say, however, that this book is the superior of the earlier one ['Intrusion of Jimmy'], but it is the equal."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ag 20 '14 450w

WOLFF, HENRY W. Coöperation in agriculture. 6s P. S. King & son, London

"In this work Mr. Wolff does in the field of co-operative agriculture what he has done in co-operative banking. His purpose is 'to give a general outline of what has been accomplished with the addition of such suggestions for the adoption of co-operative methods as occasion may seem to call for.' . . . The chapters dealing with co-operative disposal of milk products, eggs and poultry, grain, live stock, and other produce, co-operative insurance, co-operative credit, the common use of machinery, and co-operation in land tenure are exceedingly full of data concerning the actual working of co-operative societies. The discussion deals with European conditions and perhaps cannot be adopted in America."—J Pol Econ

Reviewed by B. H. Hibbard

+ Am Econ R 3:436 Je '13 400w

"Mr. Wolff has assembled a great quantity of information relating to coöperation throughout the world; probably no other similar book on the subject contains so much information, although it is from the limits of space necessarily lacking in detail." A. P. Winston

+ Ann Am Acad 51:287 Ja '14 250w

"It is to be regretted that the presentation is not up to the standard of the subject-matter, and more particularly so because of the class most interested in the subject. The book is well worth careful study by those concerned in the problem of co-operation in agriculture but will not attract the general reader."

+ — J Pol Econ 22:103 Ja '14 200w

WOLSELEY, GARNET JOSEPH WOLSELEY,
2nd 1st viscount. Decline and fall of Napoleon.
3d ed il $1.25 Lippincott

"In 'The decline and fall of Napoleon' is republished, in book form, a series of articles by the Viscount Wolseley which originally appeared in the 'Pall Mall magazine.' [They are] intended as a study of the strength and weakness—as exhibited in his last disastrous campaigns—of the leader whom the author regarded as 'a super-human genius' and 'by far the greatest of all men.'"—Nation

"Rarely do we encounter a technical volume by a military man so easily to be understood by the civilian reader." E. W. H.

+ Boston Transcript p22 N 18 '14 120w

+ Ind 80:140 O 26 '14 50w

"These collected papers have a special appeal just now, bringing out, as they do, many points of comparison and contrast in Napoleon's final struggle with that at present raging."

+ Nation 99:719 D 17 '14 120w

N Y Times 20:1 Ja 3 '15 100w

WOLZOGEN UND NEUHAUS, ERNST LUD-

<sup>8</sup> WIG, freiherr von. Florian Mayr (der Kraft-Mayr); a humorous tale of musical life; English by E: Breck and C: Harvey Genung.
*$1.35 (1c) Huebsch 14-12286

The introduction of Franz Liszt as one of the characters in this story of musical Germany, places its time in history. In spirit, however, it is as true to musical life of to-day. Florian Mayr is a young pianist who attracts the attention of the great master. In outward appearance he has none of the characteristics of the typical genius. He is healthy and hearty, and generally good humored, but at times the temper, which he does possess in common with other geniuses, gets the better of him, as it did when he soundly slapped the hands of his pupil, Thekla Burmester. And it is with this occurrence that the love story of this very amusing novel begins.

+ Boston Transcript p18 Ag 19 '14 600w

"It is astounding to find this German novelist working in so much feeling with so little sentimentalism; so much respect for the artist with so keen a humor." Lucian Cary

+ Dial 57:54 Jl 16 '14 120w

"It has qualities in it which so strongly remind the reader of Rolland's 'Jean-Christophe' that it might almost be called a pendant to that great novel. To say that 'Jean-Christophe' is a splendid epic and 'Florian Mayr' a vigorous and racy ballad of the same place and period, would not be far from descriptive of their respective qualities. It is a lusty, happy, healthy book, full of a hatred of shams and conventional lies, even to kicking them spectacularly downstairs; with plenty of love and plenty of anger in it, but without morbidity or bitterness either of one or the other." Helen Bullis

+ N Y Times 19:226 My 10 '14 1150w

"Its unique quality and its very real value as a picture of a certain type of life are ample justification for its introduction to American readers. The translation is good in spots, bad in others." G. I. Colbron

+ Pub W 85:1343 Ap 18 '14 580w

"Valuable as a historical document for its fine portrait of Franz Liszt and the whole musical circle of his time in Weimar."

+ R of Rs 50:121 Jl '14 270w

WOLZOGEN UND NEUHAUS, ERNST LUD-

<sup>2</sup> WIG, freiherr von. Third sex; English version by Grace Isabel Colbron. *$1.25 (2c) Macaulay co. 14-17485

It seems to be the author's purpose to satirize some of the poems of revolutionary feminism. He believes, or appears to, that there is in process of evolution a third sex, composed of "those female existences that through natural inclination or by pressure of circumstances have come to feel themselves no longer mere sex individuals, but simply human beings." There is much in the story that is clever, much too that is merely vulgar.

"In spite of the brilliance of the satirical hits scattered through its pages, is far from being the literary tour de force that 'Florian Mayr' was. The drawing of the characters is very unequal in quality; here and there one stands in the colors of flesh and blood, while others are merely labeled clothespins. In the main 'The third sex' is a disappointing novel. It is not deep enough for a truly superficial book, and it is not superficial enough for a deep one."

+ — N Y Times 19:460 O 25 '14 100w

"It seems, on the whole, a work of considerable understanding and much cynical cleverness, revealing a good deal of indelicate sensibility of a typically German kind, to be sure, but informed with humor, good nature and a dispassionateness that the translator has mistaken for sympathy. The novel would have been more interesting if the translator had caught more of the author's spirit."

+ — Springfield Republican p5 D 31 '14 450w

WOMAN'S who's who of America: a biographical dictionary of contemporary women of the United States and Canada, 1914-1915; ed. by J: W: Leonard. $5 Am. commonwealth co.

The "Woman's who's who" gives brief personal sketches of 9644 women, of whom the preface informs us 6303 are married, 3341 unmarried. Music, art, science, education, business, philanthropy, all the lines of endeavor in which women are engaged are represented. The work is modeled after the well-known "Who's who in America," but the need for it arose from the fact that that work gives biographies of a few hundred women only. The editor hopes to make of this a permanent reference work and such periodical revisions will be made as are justified by the demand for the volume.

A L A Bk1 10:410 Je '14

"The book is useful, whether regarded as a book of reference in the ordinary sense or as something like a national directory of club and college women."

+ — Nation 99:527 O 29 '14 120w

WOMEN'S MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF BOSTON.

<sup>5</sup> EDUCATIONAL DEPT. Handbook of opportunities for vocational training in Boston; ed. by T: C. McCracken. il $1.25 Women's municipal league of Boston 13-11694

"For the purposes of this book vocational training is defined as 'any education the controlling purpose of which is to fit for profitable employment.' . . . Besides an alphabetical list of 292 subjects taught in vocational schools and classes in Boston, the book contains classified information regarding professional schools, commercial schools, industrial schools and schools for training in household arts. Both public and private schools are included. Among industrial schools are included pre-vocational, manual training, trade, technical and other improvement schools. With regard to each school the book tells briefly its purpose, courses, admission requirements, tuition, season, and what the school undertakes in the way of placing its students."—Survey

"So far as our examination shows, the book is complete and very accurate."

+ Educ R 46:313 O '13 70w

"The book is commended to the attention of teachers, parents, employers, ministers, social workers, and especially to organizations planned to exercise vocational guidance in any of its phases." F. M. Leavitt

+ Ei School T 14:492 Je '14 170w

"A book like this is a stroke of common sense, if not of genius. Such a handbook ought to be published for every large city in the United States."

WOMEN'S MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF BOSTON. EDUCATIONAL DEPT.—Continued.

+ School Arts Magazine 13:717 My '14 150w
Reviewed by W. D. Lane
Survey 30:308 My 31 '13 350w

WOOD, ALEXANDER. Physical basis of music. (Cambridge manuals of science and literature) il *40c (1c) Putnam 13-7926

In preparing this book the author has assumed that the reader possesses very little previous knowledge of the subject. He has tried to make it comprehensible to the average reader, but says that, "at the same time the subject is no easy one, and the book is not one for an idle half-hour." Some of the matters taken up are: the characteristics of musical notes; interference of waves; resonance; vibrations of strings; the structure and action of the ear; consonant intervals; the scale, and musical instruments.

WOOD, SIR HENRY TRUEMAN WRIGHT. History of the Royal society of arts; with a preface by Lord Sanderson. il *$5 Dutton (Eng ed 13-24767)

"For 160 years the Royal society of arts has led an honorable and useful existence, and its record as presented by its secretary, Sir Henry Trueman Wood, has various points of interest. Started in 1753 through the initiative of a rather obscure painter-philanthropist, William Shipley, the society set before itself the simple aim, from which it has never deviated, of promoting invention in the fine and useful arts through awarding medals and other premiums."—Nation

+ Ath 1913:2:487 N 1 1200w

"It is a valuable contribution to the history of humanity"

+ Boston Transcript p9 My 23 '14 570w

"Offers something of interest to every sort of reader."

+ Nation 98:736 Je 18 '14 380w

Reviewed by A. A. C. Swinton

+ Nature 94:415 D 17 '14 900w

"The story is well and impressively told."

+ N Y Times 19:306 Jl 12 '14 70w

"Sir Henry Trueman Wood has written the first systematic history of the Royal society; and it will be a long time before any one can hope to displace it. This is what Bacon would have called a 'full' book."

+ Sat R 116:593 N 8 '13 200w

+ Spec 111:826 N 15 '13 750w

WOOD, IRVING FRANCIS, and GRANT, ELIHU. Bible as literature: an introduction. il *$1.50 Abingdon press 14-16792

"This volume belongs to a series of Bible-study textbooks for the use of undergraduate classes in colleges. It deals with the Bible as literature from the modern scientific point of view, while it lays stress on the religious value of the Scriptures." (Bib World) "The books of the Old Testament are taken in groups. First are treated the books of prophecy for the better understanding of the historical and narrative books which are taken up for study later. The books of poetry and of wisdom are put in a class by themselves and include the Psalms, the Proverbs, Job, Ecclesiastes, the Song of Solomon and Lamentations." (Boston Transcript)

"We should like to see this book studied by the more intelligent laymen in the church."

+ Bib World 45:54 Ja '15 110w

+ Boston Transcript p26 D 9 '14 130w

"The method of presentation is concise, the information given is in harmony with the generally accepted views, and the language is untechnical."

+ Ind 80:142 O 26 '14 70w

WOOD, RUTH KEDZIE. Tourist's California. 12 il *$1.25 (1½c) Dodd 14-17630

A book designed as a guide for the many tourists who will visit California within the next year. A chapter of general information is followed by information relating to hotels, theaters, festivals, etc., with outlines of trips which may be taken out from Los Angeles, San Francisco, and other cities, and descriptions of the Yosemite, the mission country, etc. A list of tourist cities and resorts in California completes the volume. There are illustrations and a folding map.

"A comprehensive guidebook, readable, and timely."

+ A L A Bkl 11:116 N '14

Reviewed by G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 40:572 Ja '15 50w

"For two classes of readers is this book especially adapted: those who are going to the California exposition and those who are not."

+ Boston Transcript p8 O 31 '14 350w

+ Cath World 100:694 F '15 100w

"It is a question whether anything has been left out, and, what is more, the information is exact."

+ Ind 80:140 O 26 '14 60w

"Apart from Baedeker, there is no book which gives so much useful information on California for travellers as this."

+ Nation 99:714 D 17 '14 370w

+ N Y Times 19:441 O 11 '14 60w

WOOD, RUTH KEDZIE. Tourist's Spain and Portugal. il *$1.25 Dodd 13-23507

"The author has contrived to pack into her little book a surprising amount of information. This has the merit of being the result of her own researches; nothing seems to have been taken from other guide books. There is full information with regard to steamboats, railways, cab tariffs, history, art, local customs, and many other things of interest to the traveller. In the appendix is a list of recommended hotels. Even timetables are given showing the service rendered between principal points, together with the cost of tickets."—Nation

"The chapters on Portugal include much not found in the usual tourists' manual."

+ A L A Bkl 10:368 My '14

"The descriptions are well written, but the mechanics of the journey and an anxiety to omit mention of none of 'liens' of each city make the style at times labored. The chapters on Portugal contain much information not found in the usual tourists' manual."

+ Ann Am Acad 52:238 Mr '14 80w

"Although this volume does not pretend to be more than a practical guide-book, it is written with a personal charm and sprightliness that have come to be recognized as this author's particular qualities. The practical portions of the book are excellently arranged, tabled in such a way that the desired information can be located at once." G. I. Colbron

+ Bookm 38:683 F '14 50w

"Maps, pictures and a good index add to the value of a book which has been written evidently with great care. If only the author had been content to use the English language on all occasions and had resisted the temptation to include foreign words and phrases!"

+ Boston Transcript p11 D 11 '13 200w

"In future editions the publishers would do well to correct the too numerous misspellings of foreign words. There are eight of these on page 52 alone. These trivial errors produce a bad impression and mar an otherwise admirable work."

+ Nation 97:541 D 4 '13 150w

"The author deals with the leading features of the two countries in a very pleasing way, admirably combining instruction and entertainment."

+ N Y Times 19:25 Ja 18 '14 50w

+ Spec 113:60 Jl 11 '14 450w

+ Springfield Republican p5 O 15 '14 300w

WOOD, WILLIAM ALLEN, ed. After-dinner speeches and how to make them. $2 (1½c) Flood, T. H. 14-10285

A constructively helpful volume which in a thirty-page introduction tells how to make a good after-dinner speech, and in the body of the book includes more than sixty examples of our best after-dinner speeches. The author believes that nearly all addresses worth hearing are the result of successful training or are carefully prepared beforehand. The good after-dinner speech, the author says, must have the following qualifications: good composition, good style, force, charm in matter, method and manner, and naturalness—not the rambling sort but the higher naturalness of art. Everything negative in effect should be avoided, as, for example, the habit of apologizing and explaining, malicious or offensive irony and satire, unpleasant fault-finding, too apparent didacticism, giving statistics and lists, exhibitions of vanity and affectation, matters of private interest, a mincing fastidiousness and undue elaboration of detail. There are given some general suggestions on the preliminaries to making a speech, some advice to the timid, and an appeal to hosts to observe the principles of gastronomy in serving their feasts.

WOODBERRY, GEORGE EDWARD. Flight, and other poems. $1.25 Macmillan 14-2053

"The present volume is the first definite and emphatic contribution Mr. Woodberry has made to American poetry since the publication of his collected poems some fourteen or more years ago. Within that time the whole outward character of American poetry has changed. It has been less an evolution than a revolution. . . . Mr. Woodberry himself is a different kind of poet than he was at the close of the nineteenth century. But the poems in this new volume are a rebuke to those tendencies that have grown up in the meantime."—Boston Transcript

+ A L A Bkl 11:112 N '14

"Mr. Woodberry's new book is without question the poetic event of the year." W: A. Bradley
+ Bookm 39:200 Ap '14 530w

"There is no poem in the volume, one could almost say truthfully there is hardly a line in any poem in the entire book, that is not bright with the penetrating ray of vision; there has come into the poet's being such childlike freshness of interest and wonder in regarding the dark riddle of life and the bright transparent mystery of nature, that with unconscious instinct his language shapes its meaning into profound symbols of the human spirit; and into spiritual sympathy, prophetic visions, and symbolic interpretations he has poured the glow of passion in which his ideals and philosophies shine upon human experience. What could we ask more than this from any poet?" W. S. B.
+ Boston Transcript p8 F 7 '14 1400w

"One of the important literary events of the spring is the publication of the collected poems of George Edward Woodberry."

+ Lit D 48:449 F 28 '14 400w

+ Nation 98:437 Ap 16 '14 350w

Reviewed by L: V. Ledoux

+ N Y Times 19:423 O 11 '14 1100w

+ No Am 199:630 Ap '14 350w

"Their equal can scarcely be found in the work of any other contemporaneous poet for nobility, freedom of style, richness of culture, and originality of theme."

+ R of Rs 49:371 Mr '14 70w

Reviewed by E: B. Reed

+ Yale R n s 4:178 O '14 500w

WOODBERRY, GEORGE EDWARD. North Africa and the desert; scenes and moods. $2 (2½c) Scribner 14-8030

In Mr. Woodberry's recent book of verse there was a group of poems that owed its inspiration to Africa and the desert; the present prose work is a more definite result of a visit to the lands along the Mediterranean. The titles of the chapters are: Tunisian days; Tlemcen; Figuig; Tougourt; Scenes and visions; On the mat; Djerba; Tripoli.

+ A L A Bkl 10:411 Je '14

Reviewed by A. M. Chase

+ Bookm 40:57 S '14 1150w

"A book that is certain to become a classic." W. S. B.

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 20 '14 1600w

+ Dial 57:57 Jl 16 '14 450w

"This volume has something far rarer than information. It has feeling, tone, color, insight. Professor Woodberry penetrates to the heart of the desert, actually if not geographically, and he depicts Berber and Arab with a sympathetic touch."

+ Ind 78:259 My 11 '14 80w

+ Lit D 49:1192 D 12 '14 180w

+ Nation 99:20 Jl 2 '14 500w

+ N Y Times 19:303 Jl 5 '14 350w

+ Outlook 107:319 Je 6 '14 110w

+ Springfield Republican p5 S 3 '14 1600w

WOODBURN, JAMES ALBERT. Political parties and party problems in the United States. il $2.50 (2c) Putnam 14-9269

A new edition of a work published ten years ago with such revisions as have been made necessary by changes in party conditions and party problems. The increase of interest in civic, economic and political matters manifest in high schools and colleges and among all classes of American citizens, both men and women, is leading to a nation-wide awakening and inquiry into the methods of party organization and to a demand for a truer and more responsible representative government within political parties. Therefore the author offers in his revised book an impartial and non-partisan presentation of the chief matters of concern in party government as affected by current questions and discussions.

A L A Bkl 11:187 D '14

"A new edition that maintains the high standing of the original work. The book may be commended to old voters as well as to young, to women as well as to men. It contains much information that will be helpful to all who are inclined to participate in public affairs."

+ Boston Transcript p8 My 29 '14 200w

"The chief merit of the new edition is its careful attention to the political history that has been made since 1903. The book would gain by condensation, and especially by the correction of a tendency to fervency."

+ Nation 99:21 Jl 2 '14 320w

+ Outlook 107:819 Ag 1 '14 80w

WOODROFFE, JOSEPH F. Upper reaches of the Amazon. il $3 Macmillan

(Eng ed 14-12324)

"In this book Mr. Woodroffe tells a plain, simple story of his eight years wandering along the numberless affluents of the mighty Amazon and in the dense primeval forests and jungles of the great Amazon valley. During that time, in his capacity in turn of trader, storekeeper, laborer, fisherman, and rubber-gatherer, he met with many adventures, suffered great hardship, but acquired an intimate knowledge of conditions such as few men possess. In the first chapters of the book the author describes the leading centers of trade and industry in this region, his experiences as a trader and storekeeper and his interesting life and adventures among the native Indians. In the later chapters he tells with great moderation what he saw in the rubber camps."—Outlook

+ Ath 1914,2:170 Ag 8 900w

"Mr. Woodroffe has observed well. He has also availed himself of other good authorities in order to give correct information, and he has not given credit to any false statements. The most significant feature of the book is his account of the peonage of the rubber-workers, and the cruelties which are inflicted on them."

+ Boston Transcript p7 Jl 25 '14 480w

"An interesting and authoritative work."

+ Cleveland 6:89 O '14 60w

Ind 78:564 Je 29 '14 20w

+ N Y Times 19:329 Ag 2 '14 1700w

WOODROFFE, JOSEPH F.—Continued.

"Mr. Woodroffe, in addition to giving us a most interesting and trustworthy account of life in this little-known region of the world, has performed a great public service by writing this book."

+ Outlook 107:502 Je 27 '14 350w

"A good book to read in connection with reports of Colonel Roosevelt's explorations in Brazil."

+ R of Rs 50:116 J1 '14 50w

"The volume gives a very vivid and intimate account of many aspects of life on the upper Amazon. The ethnologist and the naturalist will find much in it to interest them, and those who love tales of adventure will not be disappointed."

+ Spec 112:1092 Je 27 '14 1500w

WOODRUFF, HELEN S. Lady of the light-house. il *$1 (6c) Doran 13-23879

The lady of the lighthouse was so named by the blind boys of a mission school to whom she brought light and sunshine. This story tells how she entered the lives of a little rich boy and his discouraged father; how she taught the little boy to "see" with his "ten eyes," and how finally perfect happiness was restored to their home.

"A little story attractive in itself and filled with helpful suggestion for the care of blind children."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 3 '14 170w

+ Dial 55:535 D 16 '13 70w

"A book that comes straight from the heart of the author has always a distinctive quality that atones, in a measure, for the crudities which may or may not go with it. Mrs. Woodruff's little book is of this genuine sort."

+ — N Y Times 19:330 Ag 2 '14 180w

WOODRUFF, HELEN S. Little house. *$1 (1½c) 12 Doran 14-16176

The story of a little girl who goes South to live with a grandfather who had never forgiven his daughter for marrying a Yankee. The grandfather is willing to give the child a home but is determined not to love her. There is a grandmother, too, whose mind had never recovered from the shock of the loss of her daughter and who lives in a dream of the past. The story tells how little Dorothy restores her memory by giving her some one to love and live for, as well as how the child melts the harsh old grandfather's heart.

"Will be pleasant reading for girls in their teens and will be enjoyed also by some women readers who have passed that decade."

+ N Y Times 19:512 N 22 '14 250w

WOODS, MRS. MARGARET LOUISA. Collected poems. il *$1.50 Lane 14-2955

"The collected poems of Margaret L. Woods' is a singularly attractive volume, the interest of which is enhanced by the inclusion of fifteen new poems. Several of these additions betray the influence of the sights of London notably 'Under the lamp' and 'High tide on the Victoria embankment.'" (Boston Transcript) "The two plays 'Wild justice' and 'The princes of Hanover,' are grim tragedies." (Outlook)

"The poems are on a variety of themes, but all are marked by restraint and dignity, fine sensibility and imagination. One is struck by their even level as well as by their evidence of a wide and exact culture, which does not in any way affect their spontaneity. Mrs. Woods is one of the foremost woman-poets of England and this is the first collection of her works."

+ A L A Bkl 10:322 Ap '14

"A notable volume, which will be welcomed by those acquainted with the work of Mrs. Woods."

+ Ath 1913,2:725 D 20 60w

Reviewed by W: A. Bradley

+ Bookm 40:205 O '14 1150w

Reviewed by H: C. Shelley

+ Boston Transcript p9 D 20 '13 600w

"Mrs. Woods's ballads and lyrics are too delicate and intellectual ever to obtain wide popularity and there is in them, perhaps too little humanity."

— + Lit D 48:910 Ap 18 '14 600w

Reviewed by S. P. Sherman

+ — Nation 98:523 My 7 '14 3350w

"Serious thought, great dignity, and much dramatic power, characterize these poems, often written in musical yet irregular form."

+ Outlook 106:505 F 28 '14 90w

"The great merit of these collected poems is their even level."

+ Sat R 117:177 F 7 '14 650w

"The first thing that strikes us about Mrs. Woods's work is that she is a poet of a wide and exact culture. Her atmosphere, her allusions, her metres, have all the accuracy of a sure scholarship. Again, this culture enhances, but never over-weighs, a splendid spontaneity, the inevitableness of one who sings because she must. Further, she has a most delicate ear for rich and curious sounds, and this is shown especially in her unrhymed verses, which have scarcely been bettered by Henley or Matthew Arnold."

+ Spec 112:307 F 21 '14 1150w

+ Springfield Republican p5 Je 18 '14 780w

WOODS, MRS. MARGARET LOUISA. "Come unto these yellow sands." il *$2 (3c) Lane 14-20369

The Craistors believed that fairies were silly things invented in olden days to amuse the people who had no microscopes. For Sir Gort and Lady Craistor were scientific, and their son Darwin was being trained in a sensible manner; no nonsense about fairies, and no toy soldiers for him; he had a microscope. Now this story tells how Darwin, with fairies and wholesome fun banished, made a play-mate of Jaw-Boho, and also how the fairies themselves (for they aren't nonsense, don't you ever think it!) had their revenge on Sir Gort and Lady Craistor.

"A volume of fairy stories somehow reminiscent of Kipling's 'Puck of Pook's hill,' but more poetic in coloring, if narratively less interesting, and thoroughly modern."

+ Nation 99:666 D 3 '14 20w

"No mere holiday confection, but literature. It belongs on the book shelf that holds 'The golden age' and 'Alice in Wonderland.'"

+ N Y Times 19:528 N 29 '14 150w

"A prettily told fairy tale for children."

+ Outlook 108:847 D 9 '14 30w

+ Sat R 118:sup5 D 5 '14 140w

"So sure is her touch, and so intimate her knowledge of fairyland, not to speak of her sympathetic insight into the hearts of human beings, that her characters, from the horrid Jaw-Boho to the painstaking Lady Craistor, are real and interesting. Of the coloured illustrations, we will only say that they are the product of that process which throws a cloak of monotonously bright colours over work which in itself is attractive, and full of pretty, fanciful details."

+ — Spec 113:853 D 12 '14 200w

WOODS, MATTHEW. In spite of epilepsy. il *$1.50 Cosmopolitan press 13-19107

"Dr. Woods, who is an authority of international reputation on the diagnosis and cure of that much-dreaded disease, gives a lively and interesting study of the lives of Julius Caesar, of the prophet Mohammed and of Lord Byron, who in spite of attacks from 'falling sickness' became the 'founders respectively of an empire, a religion and a school of poetry.' The book is intended as a message of hope to all such sufferers. Dr. Woods believes 'that in spite of general professional incredulity many epileptics can be cured, that nearly all may be helped, that frequently seizures may be almost indefinitely averted and the patient restored to useful occupation, and that even in the most trying and inveterate cases it is better to persevere in hopefulness than to surrender in despair."—Boston Transcript

+ Boston Transcript p8 N 22 '13 650w

"Dr. Woods is a promising recruit for the small group of Americans who know how to write. He apologizes because his work has been done in the hurried intervals of professional occupation. Truth to say, good proofreading would have removed a number of misprints and errors of reference. It might also have reformed some of the sentences which have lost their right grammatical alignment, or which are wild and whirling in meaning. Occasionally, too, his liveliness becomes cheap or smart. But these are slight blots. He has that instinct for saying things which lifts writing into literature and makes books readable." C. L. Moore

+ Dial 55:351 N 1 '13 1450w

"It is well that Dr. Woods makes this disclaimer of literary pretension, for these studies are distinctly 'unfinished' in respect to form and style. In general his book is not only a specific encouragement of those who may directly or indirectly be concerned with its main theme, but for the broader audience it is an interesting reminder of the familiar, yet too frequently forgotten, fact that in perhaps most lives of achievement there has been the necessity of overcoming some handicap of one sort or another."

+ Springfield Republican p5 J1 2 '14 450w

WOODS, ROBERT ARCHEY, and KENNEDY, ALBERT JOSEPH, eds. Young working girls; with an introd. by Jane Addams. $1 Houghton 13-21035

This work, which presents a summary of evidence from two thousand social workers, "deals with every phase of the life of the adolescent girl, her home, her recreation, her club, her work, her temptations. Miss Addams in a foreword says: 'Because the modern industrial city is so new that we are as yet ignorant of its ultimate reactions upon human life, the following study should be valuable, as a revelation of the impressions, and scars which this new type of city makes upon that most highly sensitized material, the body and soul of the young girl at the moment she is most keenly conscious of her surroundings.'" (Boston Transcript)

Reviewed by F. F. Bernard

+ Am J Soc 20:561 Ja '15 160w

+ A L A Bkl 10:199 Ja '14

Reviewed by F. D. Tyson

+ Ann Am Acad 51:288 Ja '14 330w

"The book contains a vast amount of interesting material and common sense, giving one an exceptionally broad outlook."

+ Boston Transcript p8 D 13 '13 170w

+ Ind 79:30 J1 6 '14 130w

"The generalizations are made with care and the recommendations are cautious."

+ N Y Sun p7 O 4 '13 70w

"Intelligently prepared summary."

+ N Y Times 18:531 O 12 '13 100w

"One can accept with confidence both the facts cited and the remedies offered."

+ Outlook 106:45 Ja 3 '14 200w

"The book is as useful as a rule-book in baseball and as right-minded as 'The conduct of life.' To read it is somehow like having a conversation with Benjamin Franklin." A. W. Allen

+ Survey 31:363 D 27 '13 580w

WOODWARD, WILLIAM HARRISON. Cesare Borgia; a biography. il *$3.50 Dutton (Eng ed 14-12647)

"Mr. Woodward offers no apology for presenting to our attention still another life of the most stormy of the Borgias. Like other recent writers upon this subject, he has made original research in the archives of the Vatican, which have been wisely opened to such research, of recent years; and he has sought out and followed the routes of march of Cesare Borgia and his cohorts in their various campaigns. . . . The author does not content himself alone with the recital of the life story of Cesare Borgia, but he rather enters upon the broader theme of that of the family as a whole. In fact the narrative may be regarded almost as a history of papal Italy of the day."—Boston Transcript

"As every writer has the defect of his qualities it will not occur to any one to look to Mr. Woodward for brilliant writing. His book, like good English beef, can be assimilated only by the aid of vigorous mastication. It includes an appendix of documents printed, most of them, for the first time and offers a bibliography which is a model of its kind." Ferdinand Schevill

+ Am Hist R 19:876 J1 '14 700w

"Solid, scholarly and based on exhaustive research, this work is at once an authoritative biography and a history of the time."

+ A L A Bkl 11:74 O '14

"A most important study, which will take its place among the original contributions to the history of the time."

+ Ath 1914.1:375 Mr 14 560w

"Altogether, Mr. Woodward has had an unusually good equipment for his task, and he has made excellent use of his materials. He does not seem to have been able, however, to obtain any new facts genealogical concerning the early history of the family of Borgia."

+ Boston Transcript p24 N 19 '13 580w

+ Boston Transcript p4 My 27 '14 1300w

"This is an admirable book, based on exhaustive research and distinguished throughout by the discriminating judgement which springs from old and intimate acquaintance with the conditions of renaissance Italy. Fresh discoveries are hardly to be expected in a field which has been ransacked both by historians of the papacy and students of Machiavelli, but the familiar facts of Cesare's meteoric career gain meaning and unity in the light of Mr. Woodward's interpretation." C. M. Ady

+ Eng Hist R 29:367 Ap '14 900w

"Deserves commendation as a solid piece of work."

+ Nation 97:537 D 4 '13 80w

"He has dealt with his theme with a judicial mind and with a most admirable sense of historical perspective."

+ N Y Times 19:323 J1 26 '14 200w

+ Sat R 116:716 D 6 '13 1300w

"His book is not to be classed among those sensational and romantic biographies with which we are being inundated continually. He has the temper, if not the style, of a scholar, more perhaps of intelligence than of originality, but he has used his authorities with care and discrimination, and his criticism is invariably sane."

+ Spec 112:702 Ap 25 '14 1850w

WOOLMAN, MRS. MARY (SCHENCK), and MCGOWAN, MRS. ELLEN (BEERS). Textiles; a handbook for the student and the consumer. il *$2 Macmillan 13-24852

This book "is offered as a text-book for college classes and study clubs, and as a guide for the house-keeper, consumer, and others interested in the matters with which it deals. The book is based on long experience in teaching college students in textiles."—N Y Times

"An authoritative textbook, useful in the classroom, to the housekeeper, to the salesman, and to the consumer."

+ A L A Bkl 10:322 Ap '14

+ Educ R 47:102 Je '14 50w

"The book represents a well-defined arrangement of accurate information gathered from a multitude of sources, chiefly of a highly technical nature, and rewritten in a simple and interesting manner." W. S. Taggart

+ Nature 93:186 Ap 23 '14 380w

+ N Y Times 19:240 My 17 '14 70w

WORCESTER, ALFRED. Nurses for our neighbors. *$1.25 (2½c) Houghton 14-10315

A practical, unbiased treatment of the nursing problem as it confronts us to-day. Dr. Worcester shows that in the handling of helplessness there is less need for new avenues of outlet for kind-heartedness than for more effective expression of it in lines of work already projected. He makes a plea for wiser organization with a nice balance between scientific methods and the sympathy that underlies loving fellow-service. Contents: Our common problem; Medical methods old and new; Ideal nursing; my search for it; The art of nursing in the old world; Old-time nursing in New England; American nursing schools; Responsibility for shortcomings of modern nurses; How to get better nursing schools; Amateur nursing and neighbor helping.

WORCESTER, ALFRED—Continued.

A L A Bkl 11:62 O '14

Springfield Republican p5 J1 9 '14 400w

"It should be possible for every nurse to read with respect this searching criticism of her profession, for even if she feels that in her own case and that of others she knows all Dr. Worcester's statements may not apply, she must admit that by and large they do apply, and that much good would follow if his book could meet with a reception on the part of hospital training schools, open-minded and humble, instead of resentful and self-defensive." Alice Hamilton

+ Survey 32:640 S 26 '14 750w

WORCESTER, DEAN CONANT. Philippines, past and present. 2v il *$6 (1½c) Macmillan 14-3179

An important contribution to the literature on the Philippines that takes exception to the charges made by Judge Blount in his rather sensational work on "The American occupation of the Philippines," published last year. The author answers first the charge that the Filipino leaders were deceived and betrayed by the American officials, and shows that these so-called leaders had established no government worthy of the name. He follows the subsequent historical events, describes the work of the first and second Philippine Commissions, gives facts concerning the geography of the islands and the native races, and shows why these people are incapable of self-government. Before he began his service as member of the Philippine commission, the author had had the benefit of two visits to the islands, one made in 1886, one in 1890.

Reviewed by D. P. Barrows

+ — Am J Soc 20:264 S '14 2250w

"An authoritative, important work."

+ A L A Bkl 10:368 My '14

Reviewed by F. W. Williams

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:705 N '14 920w

Reviewed by G. B. Roorbach

+ Ann Am Acad 56:186 N '11 550w

Reviewed by George Middleton

+ — Bookm 39:452 Je '14 1000w

Reviewed by B. L. Conway

+ Cath World 99:472 J1 '14 5000w

Reviewed by Wallace Rice

— Dial 56:464 Je 1 '14 420w

"It is hardly likely that the Democratic administration, in the face of the accurate statements and irrefutable conclusions of this work, will dare to persist in its implied policy of abandoning the islands."

+ Ind 78:47 Ap 6 '14 1150w

Ind 81:175 F 1 '15 70w (Review of 2d ed)

+ — Lit D 48:1263 My 23 '14 570w

"We are quite clear that valuable and striking as Mr. Worcester's book is, it will never stand as the final word about our occupation of the islands any more than will Mr. Blount's."

+ — Nation 98:361 Ap 2 '14 1700w

"The author is the one man on earth who knows most about the subject. No man can expect to have a correct idea of Philippine progress without reading this latest, best and most interesting contribution. The copious illustrations tell the tale without reading a word." C. E. Woodruff

+ N Y Times 19:69 F 15 '14 2850w

"Mr. Worcester's volumes are thoroughly readable and they cannot be ignored by those who would face with intelligence and wisdom our current national problems."

+ R of Rs 49:447 Ap '14 1400w

Reviewed by Ellsworth Huntington

+ — Yale R n s 4:399 Ja '15 1000w

WORCESTER, ELWOOD. Religion and life. *$1.25 (1½c) Harper 14-3984

A group of essays, or sermons, by the rector of Emanuel church, Boston. "Some of the studies deal with the social aspects of religion, with the mighty spirit of aspiration and unrest which penetrates the world to-day, and with the difficult problems presented to Christianity by the tendencies of contemporary society. Some chapters are concerned with the problem of the personal life. Others discuss important phases of the life and teaching of Jesus, the meaning of his death and the reality of his resurrection." (Preface) The author describes the book as "frankly, avowedly, and positively Christian."

A L A Bkl 10:368 My '14

"In that theme in which there was the largest opportunity for a significant contribution to the discussion of important modern problems, namely, the social aspects of Christianity, Dr. Worcester is least convincing. Indeed all the papers brought together under this head might have been omitted with little loss to the real worth of the book. Dr. Worcester has the gift of vitalizing for us the Bible narratives, whether of the Old or the New Testament, and of giving them a reality which we did not know that they possessed. This is the greatest charm of 'Religion and life,' a charm that even the unorthodox can appreciate." R. T. P.

+ — Boston Transcript p22 Mr 4 '14 820w

+ Educ R 49:105 Ja '15 80w

Ind 79:250 Ag 17 '14 60w

"A great deal in this book will appeal to every thinking man and woman. Some of it will be denied by one and another. But that it is a sincere, even a valuable, contribution to modern religious thought, or that it will be of interest to many people who do not consider themselves religious, no one will deny. Books of this kind are needed, and few are likely to lay it down without feeling that the writer is a man with whose mind it is a privilege to come into contact." Hildegard Hawthorne

+ N Y Times 19:93 Mr 1 '14 1500w

+ — No Am 199:948 Je '14 770w

"The reader may not agree with all of Dr. Worcester's processes. We do not. That is wholly immaterial. He is always frank; always open-minded; always ready to see and state the difficulty; never evades it, never condemns the doubt or the doubter as immoral."

+ — Outlook 106:816 Ap 11 '14 380w

WORSFOLD, WILLIAM BASIL. Reconstruction of the new colonies under Lord Milner. 2v *$7.50 Dutton

These volumes are "a continuation of the author's earlier book, 'Lord Milner's work in South Africa, 1897-1902,' and cover nominally the three critical years from the final surrender of the last Boer commandos by the Vereeniging agreement of May 31, 1902, until Lord Milner's retirement from South Africa in March, 1905; but they include also an interesting 'epilogue' in which the author summarizes the economic and constitutional changes in the Transvaal and Orange colony until May 31, 1910, when these new colonies joined with Natal and Cape Colony in the creation of the Union of South Africa."—Nation

"His volumes are more than partisan. They are rather of the nature of special pleading—the case of the defendant, as set forth by his barrister before the court of public opinion. Later when a real history of the period is written, these volumes will furnish invaluable material to the historian." A. G. P.

+ — Am Pol Sci R 8:309 My '14 1000w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

"The story of Crown colony government as directed by Milner is told in such a thorough manner that no student of colonial affairs can afford to neglect these volumes." C. G. Haines
+ — Ann Am Acad 54:347 J1 '14 700w

"By reason of the importance of the problem of Oriental immigration in the United States, portions of Mr. Worsfold's volumes which are most likely to prove of interest to American readers are those (chaps. 11-14) in which is discussed the question of Chinese labor in the colonies."
+ Dial 56:387 My 1 '14 450w

"The work is valuable from three points of view: (1) as a treasury of information covering the years immediately following the struggle, (2) as an apologia for British imperialism, and (3) as a vivid presentation of the devastating nature of war." D. A. MacGibbon
+ J Pol Econ 22:1020 D '14 700w

"His volumes are a vigorous defence of Lord Milner against ignorant critics in England as well as a clear and valuable history of South Africa from an imperial point of view."
+ Nation 99:167 Ag 6 '14 430w

+ N Y Times 19:359 Ag 23 '14 150w

"Mr. Worsfold's bias is, on the whole, a salutary one, for Lord Milner's work in South Africa has been much traduced and little understood."
+ Spec 112:355 F 28 '14 470w

WREN, PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER. Snake and sword. il $1.35 Longmans

"This study in mental pathology is unique in that its ghastly passages lead not down, but up, and to a happy conclusion; and in the vivid reality of its Indian background. Its fundamental conception is of an orphaned hero. Damocles de Warenne, who by reason of pre-natal influence has a morbid horror of snakes. His strange malady preys upon his mind as a boy in India; it labels him as a coward at his English school; a spasmodic attack at sight of a snake on a golf-course ruins his engagement to Lucile Gavestone, and results in the cutting off of his support from his relatives, forcing him into the army as private; while, to crown all, service in Hindustan, where every day supplies some fresh motive for his unnatural horror, seems to be driving him slowly into the madhouse. It is to Lucile's restored faith, and to a weird situation in which, willy-nilly, he must fight for his life against a cobra, that he owes his ultimate salvation from the obsession."
— Nation

"There is not a chapter in the book which is lacking in interest."
+ Ath 1914.1:sup874 Je 20 300w

+ — Boston Transcript p4 Je 10 '14 230w

"The psychology of the book, though carefully studied, is not as successful as its crowded incident. The dignity of his style is sometimes painfully inadequate to the task he has here essayed."
+ — Nation 98:728 Je 18 '14 250w

"An interesting story, as well written as it is unusual. The author knows India, apparently knows the British army as well, and blends his knowledge into the background of a thoroughly readable tale. He makes no attempt at character study, but he gives us a collection of exciting incidents and some good pictures of various kinds of life."
+ N Y Times 19:242 My 24 '14 550w

+ — Spec 113:25 J1 4 '14 270w

"In addition to his apparent intimate knowledge of army life, the author evinces an equal intimacy with India and the psychology and ethics of the native. He has written a dramatic and strongly-sustained story that keeps the interest at highest pitch throughout."
+ — Springfield Republican p5 Je 11 '14 500w

WRIGHT, SIR ALMROTH EDWARD. Unexpurgated case against woman suffrage. *$1 Hoebner 13-25106

"This book embodies the author's generalizations on the subject of woman, arrived at after an endeavour to call to mind without distinction all the different women he has encountered, and to extricate from his impressions what was common to all. He submits his generalizations to the reader, asking him, 'after going through the same mental operations,' to review his judgment and pronounce his verdict."—Ath

A L A Bkl 10:241 F '14

Ath 1913.2:416 O 18 180w

Boston Transcript p8 D 27 '13 550w

"What Sir Almroth Wright says of woman's mind may with equal justice be said of 'The unexpurgated case against woman suffrage': 'It is over-influenced by individual instances, arrives at conclusions on incomplete evidence, has a very imperfect sense of proportion, accepts the congenial as true, the uncongenial as false.'" Nancy Catty

— Int J Ethics 24:375 Ap '14 650w

"One may suppose that Sir Almroth sat down in a blind rage after dinner and completed the book in the course of a single night. Only once does he betray any consciousness of humor. He is not precisely a model of dispassionate reason."

— Nation 98:272 Mr 12 '14 300w

"Every one of Sir Almroth's pages is vitriol for the woman suffragists; but there is no real offence in these pages for men, or women, with brains enough to distinguish between what is abstract and what is personal, and with humour enough to discount the hearty and occasionally entertaining truculence with which Sir Almroth goes into his subject. Such readers will find the soundest and wisest discussion of woman suffrage yet written."

+ — Sat R 116:sup14 O 11 '13 350w

"Though sincerity obliges us to say that we do not think Sir Almroth Wright's book is a good book, or that the particular line of argument against the suffrage he uses therein is either sound or expedient, we are also bound to say that the tone and temper in which it is written afford one of the most poignant and powerful arguments that could possibly be adduced in opposition to the suffragist agitation in its later phases. Our special quarrel with Sir Almroth Wright is that he mistakes the whisper of a faction, or rather, we should say, the hysterical shrieks of a minute section of women, for the authentic voice of a sex."

— Spec 111:612 O 18 '13 1300w

WRIGHT, ELIZABETH MARY. Rustic speech and folk-lore. $2 Oxford univ. press

"With a keen relish for the vocabulary, idiom, imagery, lore, and superstition of dialect-speakers, the author has assembled her treasures from every shire of Albion, supplementing her original gleanings with material drawn from fifty or sixty glossaries and collections of folk-lore and the rich stores of the Oxford English dictionary. This material she has distributed into twenty-one chapters under such headings as Corruptions and popular etymologies, Archaic literary words in the dialects, Foreign loan words, Alliterative and rhyming phrases, etc." — Nation

"A delightful book."

+ Ath 1913.2:652 D 6 900w

"The great value of the work lies in the conveniently assorted masses of 'living speech' which it presents. Its defect for the general reader is in the density of the citations, rather too infrequently relieved by the comment of the collector."

+ — Nation 100:23 Ja 7 '15 900w

"Let it not be used so much as a book to be read straight through, as a lucky-bag into which to dip for scattered treasures of rustic word and wit, and few will resist its charm."

+ Spec 111:1028 D 13 '13 750w

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL. Eyes of the world. il *$1.35 Book supply co., Chicago 14-13881

"The title suggests a protest against the world's

WRIGHT, HAROLD BELL—Continued.

way of looking at things. That's the case: writers and artists who prostitute their talent are soundly scourged, and the sordid, self-seeking 'patrons of art,' so called, will find a most thorough denunciation of themselves in those Croesan flesh-pot hunters, the Taines. Pompous art-critics, with their voluble rant, also come in for a good share of the author's salting. . . . The action is staged among the trails and vales of Southern California."—Pub W

Reviewed by F. T. Cooper

— Bookm 40:429 Ja '15 720w

"A novel that would put to the blush Elinor Glyn, Victoria Cross, Dolf Wyllarde and other experts in pornographic fiction." E. F. E.

— Boston Transcript p20 Ag 5 '14 800w

+ — Lit D 50:107 Ja 16 '15 200w

"It is evident that the thirty million [readers] lay heavy upon Mr. Wright's mind while he was writing this new novel. He was preaching to them—a yellow-journal sort of a sermon—rather than writing a story."

— N Y Times 19:346 Ag 16 '14 520w

"The story has the elements which make for popularity." Joseph Mosher

+ — Pub W 86:811 S 19 '14 400w

"Mr. Wright's purpose is a worthy one, but his methods lack originality and cleave to familiar lines. His story is a preachment, thinly mantled by a rather crude romance of a conventional order. His characters are exceptions to the run of people in the real world. As a story purely, it is distinctly inferior to its immediate predecessor, 'The winning of Barbara Worth.'"

— Springfield Republican p5 Ag 13 '14 420w

WRIGHT, HENRY WILKES. Self-realization. 3 $1.60 (1c) Holt 13-18724

The author says: "To introduce the principle of self-realization by a preliminary study of the opposing theories of hedonism and rationalism, in which the inadequacy of each is clearly shown, has always seemed to me a logical procedure and one well suited to the purposes of a text-book." It is such a study that he presents here, an attempt to synthesize the teachings of the two schools of ethics, which he holds, do not contradict, but rather supplement each other. The subject is treated in four parts as follows: Part 1, Ethics as the science of good conduct; Part 2, The nature of the good; The good as self-realization; The life of self-realization.

"An outline of ethics that is built upon a wise and helpful philosophy."

+ Educ R 47:310 Mr '14 30w

"Following in general the course laid by T. H. Green, Professor Wright has steered clear of the Scylla of mere practical moralizing, but he has not escaped the Charybdis of abstractness and remoteness. One reason is that his handling of the ethical problem is not quite rigorous. Especially unsatisfactory is his treatment of the crucial problem of self-sacrifice."

+ — Nation 97:541 D 4 '13 200w

"Thoughtful, helpful, and stimulating book."

+ — Outlook 106:322 F 7 '14 120w

WRIGHT, RICHARDSON LITTLE. Open door. 12 $1.35 (1c) McBride, Nast & co. 14-18117

A mysterious house, with shutters always closed and door always unlocked, is the scene of this story. Its owner, Miss Kitty Flint, has not crossed its threshold for fourteen years and the reason for her strange course is a mystery to her neighbors. An odd assortment of people, however, among them a twelve-year-old lad, a butter-and-egg man, and a young bride, have access to the house and the privilege of entering without ringing the bell. Miss Kitty Flint as we grow to know her is a most interesting personality and it seems a pity, since there was no adequate reason against it, that her old romance could not have come to a happier ending.

"Novelty of subject and a certain word-ingenity give the author a promising start, but the working out of his theme slips into an obvious effort to avoid the rut of dullness."

+ — Ind 80:172 N 2 '14 80w

"The book has some of the faults usual in a first novel. But it is cleverly written, there is humor, some deft phrasing, a feeling for character, and an interesting point of view. Altogether, it is a novel which inclines one to the belief that its author has a worth-while future before him."

+ — N Y Times 19:474 N 1 '14 700w

WRIGHT, WALTER PAGE. Garden trees and shrubs, il $4.80 Stokes (Eng ed Agr14-165)

"Mr. Wright has divided his book into three unequal parts. In the first part he discusses with taste and a feeling for the refinements of his art the beauty and value of shrubs and trees in the build of a landscape. In the second part he is strictly practical, discussing soils and shade and sun and planting and pruning and thinning and pests and disease. In the third part he advises gardeners upon the selection of their shrubs and trees."—Sat R

+ N Y Times 20:14 Ja 10 '15 70w

"This is an extremely helpful book as well for gardeners as for all who are interested in gardens."

+ Sat R 116:sup14 O 11 '13 220w

"A comprehensive treatise."

+ Spec 112:104 Ja 17 '14 150w

WRIGHT, WILLIAM BOURKE. Quaternary ice age, il $5 Macmillan GS14-694

"This learned volume represents the study of a lifetime. Mr. Wright, who is attached to the Geological survey of Ireland, began with the intention of supplying a guide to the study of glacial geology—a subject which has made such vast strides in recent years that only the specialist can keep abreast of it. He was led, however, in the course of his work, to incorporate new ideas of his own, especially in regard to the isostatic theory of the Quaternary oscillations of sea-level."—Spec

"He expresses fear that 'personal colouring' is unavoidable, but the original touches which he introduces, so far from needing apology, give a distinctly valuable character to the book. Mr. Wright not only appeals to the specialist, but also gives the general reader a clear insight into the subject. The subjects throughout are treated in lucid language, and illustrated by excellent plates."

+ Ath 1914,2:183 Ag 8 620w

"A notable contribution to the voluminous literature relating to glacial geology." J: Horne

+ Nature 94:351 D 24 '14 1100w

"Valuable general summary of the literature of glacial geology. Colored to some extent by the author's personal reasoning and speculation."

+ — Pittsburgh 20:17 Ja '15 50w

"A comprehensive study of glacial geology that will delight not only the student interested in glacial subjects, but the general reader as well."

+ R of Rs 50:252 Ag '14 100w

"The press work is good and the photographic illustrations excellent. In [several matters] the author displays a distinctly sophomoric air." Frank Leverett

+ — Science n s 40:274 Ag 21 '14 1800w

"Well-arranged and lucid treatise."

+ Spec 112:919 My 30 '14 100w

WU TING FANG. America, through the spectacles of an Oriental diplomat, il $1.60 (2½c) Stokes 14-6450

Wu Tingfang, twice Chinese minister to the United States, gives in this book his impressions of America. "Everything from hobble skirts to eugenics has passed under Mr. Wu's spectacles, and he tells us exactly what he thinks of them, and all the other things lying as it were, between these two extreme outposts of civilization. . . . His chapters comparing American and Chinese civilizations, not always to the advantage of the former, are most interesting; and, of course, so is all that he has to say about Oriental immigration, particularly at this time." (Boston Transcript)

+ A L A Bk1 10:411 Je '14
+ Ath 1914,2:114 J1 25 600w

"If it is no such profound study of America as Mr. Bryce has given us, for instance, it is nevertheless interesting in its treatment and reasonably sound in its psychology." G: R. Brown

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ap 8 '14 1450w
+ Catn World 39:687 Ag '14 100w
+ Dial 57:26 J1 1 '14 130w

"With accuracy, simplicity and sparkle, Wu Tingfang, gives Oriental impressions of many aspects of America."

+ Ind 78:106 Ap 13 '14 40w
+ Nation 99:434 O 8 '14 1150w

"As a political commentator Wu Ting Fang seems too much under the constraint of diplomatic expediency to say anything that might set the mind going, and his remarks on American government and public men are elementary and non-committal. When he writes in his own person as an observer of our morals and manners he is candid, critical, sometimes provocative, and always interesting." F. M. Colby
+ No Am 199:774 My '14 4000w

+ Outlook 107:371 Je 13 '14 630w

"A series of keen observations on America."

+ R of Rs 49:635 My '14 100w
+ Spec 113:26 J1 4 '14 140w
+ Spec 113:268 Ag 22 '14 1250w

"It is a lightly entertaining and often shrewd commentary written in faultless English. It is all written, or seems so to one who has heard Dr. Wu's ironical talk, with a sort of infectious twinkle."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ap 16 '14 450w

WYETH, JOHN ALLAN. With sabre and scalpel: the autobiography of a soldier and surgeon, il *$3 (1½c) Harper 14-18824

This book of reminiscences begins with a picture of the old South before the war. The author was born in Alabama in 1845, and altho but a boy at the outbreak of the war, he did his part like many another boy of the time, and served in the Confederate army. After the war he studied medicine and in 1869 began to practice in his native state. He went to New York City in 1872 and there has risen to the head of his profession. He has been twice president of the New York academy of medicine, and was founder of the Polyclinic hospital. Part 2 of the book is devoted wholly to his work as a surgeon and teacher and presents some of his contributions to the science of medicine and surgery.

"Most interesting are Dr. Wyeth's descriptions and anecdotes of southern society and plantation life before the civil war. This portion of his work entitles him to be styled a contributor of valuable data in the history of this country."

+ Lit D 50:250 F 6 '15 160w
+ N Y Times 20:54 F 14 '15 130w
+ R of Rs 50:754 D '14 150w

"A delightful volume of reminiscences."

+ Springfield Republican p5 Ja 28 '15 780w

WYLIE, IDA ALENA, ROSS. Eight years in Germany. il *10s 6d Mills and Boon, London A15-65

Miss Wylie "gives us the impressions and experiences of her eight years' residence [in Germany], and in what she says there is much by which English people may profit."—Ath

"An interesting book. Her sympathy with Germans blinds her a little, perhaps, to the real position and strength of France, and makes her a little deaf to anything that might be said on our behalf about the difficulties which confront us in our own dealings with Prussia."

+ Ath 1914,1:680 My 16 1100w

"The author holds a brief for Germany, and she is a strenuous advocate."

— Sat R 117:744 Je 6 '14 390w

"A very enlightening book. Quite apart from its political purpose, it gives a very interesting picture of many other aspects of German life and character."

+ Spec 113:169 Ag 1 '14 2000w

WYLIE, IDA ALENA, ROSS. Five years to find out. il *$1.35 (1½c) Bobbs 14-5313

What it took Cecilia and Heathcote St. John five years to find out was that that they had a small son whose acquaintance was worth cultivating. They had married for certain well-understood reasons involving certain mutual advantages. Both wished to be perfectly free from responsibilities and duties. Naturally young Archibald's appearance disturbed this well-ordered scheme to some extent, but with a competent nurse and an up-to-date nursery this disturbance was minimized. So for five years his parents were able to ignore his presence and lead their own selfish and far from happy lives. At the end of that time he succeeded in introducing himself and in hastening the discovery before referred to.

+ Boston Transcript p24 Ap '14 380w

"Well-written but rather acutely moral story."

+ N Y Times 19:144 Mr 29 '14 400w

WYLIE, IDA ALENA, ROSS. Red mirage. *50c (1½c) Bobbs (Eng ed 13-15638)

To save his father's name from dishonor Richard Farquhar resigns his commission in a British regiment. Then having taken one burden upon himself assumes another and allows himself to be branded as a traitor for the sake of the woman he loves. He leaves his home and country and enlists in the French foreign legion in north Africa. Here on the edge of the desert the other characters of the story are gathered together, Sylvia, who has married Captain Arnaud of the French army; Gabrielle, the girl who had befriended Richard in a time of need; and, under an assumed name, the father whom Richard had never seen. The two, father and son, play at cross purposes for a long while and it is in a dramatic moment, when Richard has been condemned to death, that there is recognition between them.

+ A L A Bk1 11:177 D '14

"With a little more cohesion this would be a fine novel; as it is, though a distinct advance on the author's previous work, it is too disjointed. It also suffers from the fact that it is too continuously strenuous; this said, it remains a book worth reading."

+ Ath 1913,1:671 Je 21 70w

+ Boston Transcript p20 D 23 '14 160w

+ N Y Times 19:475 N 1 '14 100w

"The personages of the drama are unfortunately too like lay figures to possess vital interest but the author contrives to suggest the atmosphere of the desert, and the scenes which pass there are well worth reading."

+ Spec 112:66 Ja 10 '14 60w

WYLIE, JAMES HAMILTON. Reign of Henry V. v 1, 1413-1415. *$9 Putnam

v 1 This is the first volume of a history planned by Dr. Wylie to follow his four-volume work on the reign of Henry IV. "It covers the first two years of the reign and the contents make a solid volume of nearly six hundred pages. . . . Mr. Wylie has gathered together an immense amount of information, all of which he appears to have utilized either in the text or in his several thousand footnotes, which comprise at least two-thirds of the entire work. He deals with a great variety of facts and discusses almost every imaginable phase of the reign: continental diplomacy, British affairs, the civil strife in France, the Lollard movement, the English church, hospitals, almshouses, religious foundations, and the material necessities of warfare are some of the larger topics that Mr. Wylie has treated." (Dial)

WYLIE, JAMES HAMILTON—Continued.

Reviewed by G. C. Sellery

+ — Am Hist R 20:143 O '14 650w (Review of v 1)

"The book is a mine of information on the social life of the time; it deserves not a mere cursory reading, but serious and sustained study. Probably no historian has made more fruitful use of manuscript sources which are as yet uncalendared; while the author's work is as remarkable for sound judgment as it is for painstaking accuracy."

+ — Ath 19:141:646 My 9 1100w (Review of v 1)

"Students of English history will find Mr. Wylie's work a mine of interesting and valuable information; but the general reader is not likely to be attracted to a work in which the general course of events is lost sight of in a maze of rather minute details."

+ — Dial 57:145 S 1 '14 350w (Review of v 1)

Reviewed by C. L. Kingsford

+ — Eng Hist R 30:138 Ja '15 1500w (Review of v 1)

"There are many instances of irrelevant learning hurled at the reader's head in the extraordinarily lengthy notes to this volume. But when that protest has been made we can say with satisfaction that this volume tells much that cannot be learned elsewhere of England and France upon the eve of Agincourt. An urgent need in connection with the book is that a subsequent volume should contain a full list of works that are cited, as at present only the names of authors are given and students must often be confused as to which particular book is quoted."

+ — Sat R 117:475 Ap 11 '14 1800w (Review of v 1)

X

XENIER, TOM R. Motor tour in Belgium and Germany. il $3 Post A14-401

"The author's tour began at Antwerp, took him through the smaller towns of Belgium, like Malines, Louvain and Spa; crossed the French borders to visit Amiens, Soissons and Rheims, and then led into Germany. He visited the towns of Bavaria, skirting the northern boundaries of Switzerland, and the shore of Lake Constance. He went east to the western edge of the Austrian empire, stopping at places like Ober-Ammergau and Munich, and on the return at Nuremberg, Darmstadt and Coblenz—to mention only a few among many. He crossed Luxembourg on his return, and embarked once more for his native England at Boulogne."

—Boston Transcript

"It sometimes smacks of Baedeker but is readable and informing."

+ A L A Bkl 10:241 F '14

"It is a tolerably readable book of travel though not of burning interest or importance. When the author confines himself to his own wayside adventures he is moderately worth while."

+ — Boston Transcript p24 N 5 '14 250w

"Mr. Xenier is a good journalist, he makes the most of every incident. On the whole, his volume is readable but annoying."

+ — N Y Times 19:15 Ja 11 '13 500w

"The book is written in a light and easy style, seasoning description and adventures with scraps of legend and history."

+ Spec 111:389 S 13 '13 130w

Y

YALE UNIVERSITY. SHEFFIELD SCIENTIFIC SCHOOL. Questions of public policy. $1.25 (4½c) Yale univ. press 13-25662

The four addresses that are reprinted in this volume are: The character and influence of recent immigration, by Jeremiah W. Jenks; The essential and the unessential in currency legislation, by A. Piatt Andrew; The value of the Panama canal to this country, by Emory R. Johnson; The benefits and evils of the stock exchange, by Willard V. King. These addresses were delivered in the Page lecture series, 1913, before the senior class of the Sheffield scientific school.

Am Econ R 4:188 Mr '14 70w

A L A Bkl 10:284 Mr '14

"The authors of these papers are recognized authorities on their respective subjects, and the papers themselves are written in an interesting style, with the needs of the general reader in mind."

+ Am Pol Sci R 8:292 My '14 180w

Ann Am Acad 52:235 Mr '14 70w

"The four lectures make a valuable contribution to important public problems of today."

+ Boston Transcript p6 Ja 10 '14 270w

"Well worth anyone's reading."

+ J Pol Econ 22:402 Ap '14 160w

YEATS, WILLIAM BUTLER. Stories of Red Hanrahan. $1.25 (2c) Macmillan 14-6154

Rewritten versions of three of Mr. Yeats's prose works appear in this volume. They are: Stories of Red Hanrahan; The secret rose; and Rosa Alchemica.

"Mr. Yeats's prose tales are endured throughout with an extraordinary sensitiveness—a feature, however, which does not preclude occasional slight lapses from the continuous beauty of his thought and diction."

+ — Ath 19:13:382 Ap 5 70w

+ — Dial 57:110 Ag 16 '14 420w

Ind 79:29 Jl 6 '14 100w

+ Nation 98:501 Ap 30 '14 300w

+ R of Rs 50:121 Jl '14 250w

Spec 110:545 Mr 29 '13 50w

YORKE, PHILIP CHESNEY. Life and correspondence of Philip Yorke, earl of Hardwicke, lord high chancellor of Great Britain. 3v il $13.50 Univ. of Chicago press

(Eng ed 13-21497)

"In these three volumes, each containing some 600 closely printed pages the career and character of Lord Hardwicke are traced with a care and minuteness which have never been excelled in the whole range of legal biography. The work is mainly founded on the Hardwicke mss., an extensive collection which was purchased by the Trustees of the British museum in 1839, and most of the innumerable letters that make it so massive a production are published for the first time."—Ath

"It must be confessed that the many letters, which make the chief value of the work, do not enable us, any better than Mr. Yorke's narrative, to know the man Hardwicke." Carl Becker

+ — Am Hist R 19:347 Ja '14 1800w

"Lord Hardwicke has, for the most part, been fortunate in his latest biographer, who has brought learning as well as zeal and industry to his task."

+ — Ath 19:13:273 S 20 1200w

"An excessive piety has made this monument to the memory of Lord Chancellor Hardwicke less effective than it might otherwise have been. Its bulk is too great, its laudation too high-pitched and unvaried. Mr. Yorke has done his work with excellent diligence; he shows a sufficient knowledge of the political questions and intrigues of the period on which he writes, and his foot-note quotations and references are many and helpful." W. Hunt

+ — Eng Hist R 29:166 Ja '14 2500w

"On the whole, the selection of letters has been well done, when it is remembered from what a large mass of material the choice had to be made."

+ — Nation 99:163 Ag 6 '14 700w

"In conclusion it should be said that the 'Life and correspondence' corrects errors of previous ill-informed or prejudiced biographers of Lord Hardwicke, and presents an apparently just portrait of a really eminent man, together with a wealth of historical information."

+ No Am 198:570 O '13 2150w

"It is fortunately possible to distinguish between Mr. Yorke the editor and Mr. Yorke the historian. For the former we have much praise; for the latter we can have only charity. Ancestor-worship is not a good basis for historical interpretation. Of the value and interest of the mass of correspondence contained in these volumes there can be no question. Whoever reads it through shall have his reward." R. L. Schuyler

+ — Pol Sci Q 29:307 Je '14 3500w

"The biography will rank as classical, if only from its thoroughness, for Mr. Yorke's industry is monumental. But he has been unable to escape entirely from the fault of nearly all biographers: 'Methinks the lady doth protest too much.' A stronger sense of humour would have saved Mr. Yorke from his uncompromising eulogy of all the points of Lord Hardwicke's character."

+ — Sat R 115:649 My 24 '13 2500w

"The glimpses we get of the family life and of the relations between father and sons, and between the sons themselves, are not the least fascinating parts of a book which we have found full of interest of many and various kinds, and which should appeal to all lovers and students of the eighteenth century."

+ Spec 110:1062 Je 21 '13 2600w

YOUNG, F. E. MILLS. Purple mists. $1.30 (1c)
Lane 14-5176

Altho the setting for this story is the South African veldt, environment plays little part in its development. The plot is an old and simple one. A man marries a woman who does not return his love, believing that the intensity of his own passion must in time awaken a like feeling in her. The rift between the two, evident from the beginning, grows wider, till the wife, feeling that she has made her husband utterly unhappy, leaves her home with another man. It is only then that her heart awakens and she comes to realize that she has loved and still loves her husband.

"There is much to commend in the telling, though because the book will make appeal to the larger and less intelligent novel-reading public, we could wish that the author had taken more pains to set out the underlying reasons why two fine, though narrow-minded people became estranged and had painfully to pick their way back to life's broad sanctuary. Our interest in the character of the second man, who has so much influence over the couple, is almost totally unsatisfied, a fact for which we owe the author a grudge."

+ — Ath 1314:160 Ja 31 300w

Reviewed by Norman Bryce

+ — Bookm 39:683 Ag '14 160w

"Miss Young writes well of South Africa and its people, and she surrounds the land and the people with an atmosphere that seems real."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 22 '14 300w

"In order to make such a plot interesting it is necessary that there should be admirable character drawing, or at least great freshness and ingenuity of incident—qualities in which 'The purple mists' is conspicuously deficient."

— N Y Times 19:238 My 17 '14 250w

"Miss Mills Young writes with vigour and her pictures of the veldt are particularly well done. But she needs to cultivate restraint in the use of adjectives."

+ — Sat R 117:246 F 21 '14 250w

"Miss Young writes with remarkable fluency and has a strong grip of the plot."

+ Spec 112:878 My 23 '14 30w

YOUNG, F. E. MILLS. Valley of a thousand hills. $1.30 (1c) Lane 14-18309
A story of South Africa, with two Englishmen and a Boer girl as its chief characters. Alieta Van der Vyver had fancied herself in love with Harold Johnson, because he was the only man in her world, until Anthony Heckraft came, and in the development of the story the conflict is between her sense of loyalty to the one man and her growing love for the other. A native uprising and the entrance of a second woman bring matters to a crisis.

"A fascinating romance with a heroine of unusual charm."

+ Boston Transcript p22 Ja 6 '15 260w

"It is a story of a group of people, a pleasing, well-told, and mildly interesting romance."

+ — N Y Times 19:488 N 8 '14 430w

"A story of English life in South Africa, well written and of high value."

+ Outlook 108:847 D 9 '14 100w

"Miss Mills Young tells her story well, and there is no lack of variety in her portraiture."

+ Spec 113:807 D 5 '14 1000w

YOUTZ, HERBERT ALDEN. Enlarging conception of God. $1.25 (3c) Macmillan 14-9521

"The critical problem for the religious preacher and teacher to-day," says the author, "is the problem of method in thinking or interpreting religious truth so that the heart shall be satisfied without scandalizing the mind; and the mind shall be satisfied without starving the heart." The six chapters of the book, all bearing on this problem of the readjustment of spiritual conceptions were prepared as separate lectures and essays, but the author feels that the unity of theme has not suffered by this "undesignated assembling" but that there has been "a gain in concreteness by reason of the fact that each chapter was intended to stand in its own right." Contents: The enlarging conception of God; The problem of theological method; The justification of the method; The consequences of the method; The peril of a safe theology; The truth about God.

"The book as a whole is a refreshing and stimulating contribution to the progress of theological inquiry." G. B. Smith

+ — Am J Theol 19:138 Ja '15 750w

"A direct, suggestive little book."

+ A L A Bkl 11:97 N '14

Bib World 44:430 D '14 120w

+ Boston Transcript p9 Je 27 '14 680w

"The book is modern in its attitude. It will be especially helpful to those who imagine that there is an antagonism between culture and religion."

+ Boston Transcript p20 Jl 8 '14 450w

YOXALL, SIR JAMES HENRY. More about collecting. il $2 Jacobs (Eng ed A14-1354)

This book is a continuation of the author's work "The A B C about collecting." "In an easy and somewhat rambling style he pleasantly discusses almost all the varied ramifications of the curio-hunter's quest. Here is great store of hints for the tyro and much that the more experienced collector may read with advantage." (Int Studio)

+ A L A Bkl 11:67 O '14

"Once more Sir James Yoxall has laid the beginner and amateur in collecting under an obligation by the production of this new book on a subject about which he can write so authoritatively. The volume contains a number of illustrations which have, however, only occasionally intimate relation with the text, and the index is hardly as comprehensive as it might be."

+ — Int Studio 51:333 F '14 100w

"Sir James Yoxall has written the book of the connoisseur and he flits genially from one delightful topic to another."

+ Sat R 116:753 D 13 '13 100w

Figures in parenthesis following price indicate cost per 1000 words

Z

ZAYAS ENRIQUEZ, RAFAEL DE. Case of Mexico, and the policy of President Wilson; tr. from the Spanish by Andre Tridon. *$1.35
Boni 14-13509

The author, who is a Mexican historian and statesman, "discusses the overthrow of Madero, the assumption of the presidency by Huerta, and the course of the Washington government toward Mexico from the point of view of one who believes Huerta is the right man in the right place and that President Wilson's policy is unjust and full of peril to both Mexico and the United States." (N Y Times)

"The present work is interesting and typical only as an example of ordinary Latin-American political discussion; its value is that of an inspired campaign document."

+ — Nation 98:467 Ap 23 '14 900w

N Y Times 19:184 Ap 12 '14 90w

R of Rs 49:623 My '14 130w

ZINSSER, HANS. Infection and resistance. il 2 *$2.50 (1½c) Macmillan 14-17293

A work described on its title-page as "an exposition of the biological phenomena underlying the occurrence of infection and the recovery of the animal body from infectious disease." Without a knowledge of these biological principles, which have been revealed by laboratory study, any understanding of infectious disease and its treatment is impossible, and this book has been written with the purpose of rendering this knowledge easily accessible. It has been written with the needs of the undergraduate student in mind. To the author's text has been added a chapter on Colloids and colloidal reactions, by Professor S. W. Young of Stanford university.

"Few works are more thoro and authoritative than this."

+ Ind 80:340 N 30 '14 80w

"There are altogether but very few books that attempt to give a comprehensive summary of immunological knowledge of the same general scope as this one by Dr. Zinsser, but their number is increasing; for the present Dr. Zinsser's is the most serviceable." Ludwig Hektoen

+ — Science n s 41:28 Ja 1 '15 300w

ZIZEK, FRANZ. Statistical averages; tr. by Warren Milton Persons. *$2.50 (2c) Holt 14-157

In his preface the translator says: "I have long felt the want of a general methodological work to be used as the basis of a college course in statistics. 'Die statistischen mittelwerte,' by Dr. Franz Zizek, seemed to me to meet the requirements of a non-mathematical text-book on statistics better than any work available in English, and, consequently, this English translation was undertaken. . . . Perhaps the most important advantage that 'Statistical averages' offers to American readers is to be found in the explanations of, and copious references to, statistical data and methods from French, German, and Italian sources." Part 1, takes up Statistical averages in general; Part 2, The various kinds of averages; Part 3, Dispersion about the mean or average.

"On the whole it is a useful recruit for the reference-shelf." J. A. Field

+ — Am Econ R 4:436 Je '14 770w

"Dr. Zizek's book is exhaustive and appears authoritative, but such works are not for the average reader, nor are they proper subjects of criticism by any but experts in statistical matters."

+ Boston Transcript p22 F 25 '14 300w

"Its thoro discussion of some of the most vital questions in the 'science of averages,' as one scholar has defined statistics, will make the book of value and profit to the specialist in the university or the census bureau, but the technical character of the book will prevent it from having a wide circulation outside of these circles."

+ Ind 79:175 Ag 3 '14 80w

ZWEIG, STEFAN. Emile Verhaeren; tr. by Jethro Bithell. il *$2 Houghton

Verhaeren is a living Belgian poet and this translation from a work by a German author is the first notice accorded him in England and America. "The translation is especially needed in America, for elsewhere Verhaeren has not long suffered from our disabilities of language and geography. France has known him long and well, for while he has written in French, he is distinctly not a Frenchman writing from Belgium, but a Belgian vehemently interpreting to the outer world not Belgian life only, nor only his own life, but the very spirit of all his age."

The Belgian's greatest achievement is his discovery of the majesty and magic of life as it is today—the life of the underground railway, the roaring steel mill, the aeroplane whining in the air overhead." (Boston Transcript)

"Herr Zweig's monograph is difficult to read, partly because the rhetorical German prose of which it consists seldom translates well into English (though Mr. Jethro Bithell has certainly done his best), but mainly because he is too much of an enthusiast and disciple to produce a discriminating and intelligible picture."

+ — Ath 1914.2:559 N 28 950w

"The best aid to a comprehension of Verhaeren is of course Verhaeren himself. But Zweig offers some excellent aid in seeking the man and catching his message. At least he helps with the account he has given of Verhaeren's life and the forces that have shaped his mind and his work."

+ Boston Transcript p27 D 16 '14 700w

Nation 99:740 D 24 '14 1600w

"To Herr Zweig belongs honest praise for a rich, vivid impression, much as it may be colored by his personal admiration of a man who is undoubtedly one of the looming figures of the day, and the fact that he mixes with his critical estimate some very noble poetic feeling is rather to his lasting credit than otherwise."

+ — N Y Times 20:2 Ja 3 '15 1500w

Subject and Title Index

To Author Entries, January, 1914—February, 1915

- A B C of artistic photography in theory and practice. Anderson, A. J. (Ap '14)
- A B C of collecting old continental pottery. Blacker, J. F. (Ap '14)
- Abbreviations
Rogers, W. T. Dictionary of abbreviations. (Je '14)
- Abolition of poverty. Hollander, J. H. (F '15)
- Above the shame of circumstance. Whitney, G. C. (Mr '14)
- Abroad at home. Street, J. L. (F '15)
- Account of mediæval figure-sculpture in England. Prior, E. S., and Gardner, A. (Ja '15)
- Accounting
Dickinson, A. L. Accounting practice and procedure. (Ja '15)
- Achievement. Thurston, E. T. (D '14)
- Across Siberia alone. Lee, H. (Ap '14)
- Acting
Matthews, B. On acting. (D '14)
- Adding years to your life. Williams, H. S. (O '14)
- Adolescence
Alexander, J. L., ed. Teens and the rural Sunday school. (O '14)
- King, I. High-school age. (O '14)
- Advanced American history. Forman, S. E. (Mr '14)
- Adventures in the Alps. Knowles, A. C. (Ja '14)
- Adventures of Akbar. Steel, F. A. (F '14)
- Adventures of the infallible Godahl. Anderson, F. I. (My '14)
- Adventures while preaching the gospel of beauty. Lindsay, N. V. (D '14)
- Adventures with a sketch book. Maxwell, D. (F '15)
- Adventurings in the psychical. Bruce, H. A. B. (Jl '14)
- Advertising
Hollingworth, H. L. Advertising and selling. (Ja '14)
- Opdycke, J. B. News, ads, and sales. (S '14)
- Taylor, H. C. pseud. What an advertiser should know. (Ag '14)
- Advice to violin students. Ritchie, W. (Ag '14)
- Aegean days. Manatt, J. I. (Ap '14)
- Aeronautics
Mellor, C. Airman. (Ja '14)
- Aeronautics, Military
Spaight, J. M. Aircraft in war. (S '14)
- Aeroplanes
Corbin, T. W. Aircraft: aeroplanes, airships. (O '14)
- Duchêne, E. A. Flight without formulæ. (Ja '15)
- Hubbard, T. O., and Turner, C. C. Boys' book of aeroplanes. (F '14)
- Æsthetic dancing. Rath, E. (D '14)
- Africa
Harris, N. D. Intervention and colonization in Africa. (F '15)
- Africa, Central
Adolf Friedrich. From the Congo to the Niger and the Nile. (Ag '14)
- Crawford, D. Thinking black. (Ag '14)
- Africa, East
Dracopoli, I. N. Through Jubaland to the Lorian swamp. (Ag '14)
- Africa, North
Woodberry, G. E. North Africa and the desert. (Je '14)
- African abroad. Ferris, W. H. (My '14)
- African adventure stories. Loring, J. A. (O '14)
- Afro-American folksongs. Krehbiel, H. E. (F '14)
- After dinner speeches and how to make them. Wood, W. A., ed. (Jl '14)
- After house. Rinehart, M. (F '14)
- Age of Erasmus. Allen, P. S. (S '14)
- Age of mother-power. Gallichan, C. G. (O '14)
- Agricultural chemistry
Johnson, S. W. From the letter-files of S. W. Johnson. (My '14)
- Agricultural credit
Herrick, M. T., and Ingalls, R. Rural credits. (Ja '15)
- Agriculture
Burkett, C. W., and Swartzel, K. D. Farm arithmetic. (Ja '14)
- Corbett, L. C. Intensive farming. (F '14)
- Dahlinger, C. W. New agrarianism. (Mr '14)
- Hall, A. D. Pilgrimage of British farming, 1910-1912. (O '14)
- Hunt, T. F., and Burkett, C. W. Soils and crops. (Ag '14)
- Livingston, G. Field crop production. (O '14)
- Nida, W. L. Farm animals and farm crops. (Ap '14)
- Olin, W. H. American irrigation farming. (Ja '14)
- Smith, W. C. Business of farming. (Jl '14)
- Wolff, H. W. Coöperation in agriculture. (Ap '14)
- Aircraft: aeroplanes, airships. Corbin, T. W. (O '14)
- Aircraft in war. Spaight, J. M. (S '14)
- Airman. Mellor, C. (Ja '14)
- Alaska
Jones, L. F. Study of the Thingets of Alaska. (My '14)
- Scully, E. M. Hunting in the Arctic and Alaska. (S '14)
- Stuck, H. Ten thousand miles with a dog sled. (Jl '14)
- Tuttle, C. R. Alaska. (F '15)
- Albania
Peacock, W. Albania. (D '14)
- Alcohol, Physiological effect of Williams, E. H. Question of alcohol. (F '15)
- Alcott family
Bonstelle, J., and De Forest, M., comps. Little women letters from the house of Alcott. (N '14)
- All men are ghosts. Jacks, L. P. (Ja '14)
- Alone in the wilderness. Knowles, J. (F '14)
- Alps
Knowles, A. C. Adventures in the Alps. (Ja '14)
- Lunn, A. H. M. Exploration of the Alps. (Ja '15)
- Alps and sanctuaries of Piedmont and the Canton Ticino. Butler, S. (Mr '14)
- Alternating currents and alternating current machinery. Jackson, D. C. and J. F. (Ja '14)
- Amateur garden. Cable, G. W. (Ja '15)
- Amateur theatricals
Perry, S. G. S. When mother lets us act. (Ja '14)
- Amazing Argentine. Fraser, J. F. (Jl '14)
- Amazing Grace. Sharber, K. (Ja '15)
- Amazon river
Fountain, P. River Amazon from its sources to the sea. (Ja '15)
- Lange, A. Lower Amazon. (F '15)
- Woodroffe, J. F. Upper reaches of the Amazon. (Ag '14)
- America
Civilization
Ferrero, G. Ancient Rome and modern America. (Jl '14)
- America. Dawson, W. J. (F '15)
- America and the Philippines. Crow, C. (Jl '14)

- America through the spectacles of an Oriental diplomat. Wu Ting Fang. (My '14)
- American and English studies. Reid, W. (F '14)
- American boys' workshop. Kelland, C. B., ed. (S '14)
- American citizenship. Beard, C. A. and M. R. (Jl '14)
- American college. Thwing, C. F. (Ag '14)
- American cook book. Hill, J. M. (Ag '14)
- American Crusoe. Verrill, A. H. (D '14)
- American doctrine of judicial supremacy. Haines, C. G. (Mr '14)
- American electricians' handbook. Croft, T. W., comp. (Jl '14)
- American handbook for electrical engineers. Pender, H., ed. (F '15)
- American irrigation farming. Olin, W. H. (Ja '14)
- American Japanese problem. Gulick, S. L. (Je '14)
- American labor unions. Marot, H. (D '14)
- American literature
- Townsend, J. W. Kentucky in American letters, 1784-1912. (S '14)
- Whitcomb, I. P. Young people's story of American literature. (Ja '14)
- American office. Schulze, J. W. (Ja '14)
- American policy. Bigelow, J., jr. (Jl '14)
- American public opinion. Whelpley, J. D. (O '14)
- American Red cross textbook on elementary hygiene and home care of the sick. Delano, J. A., and McIsaac, I. (Ap '14)
- Americans and the Britons. Sumichrast, F. C. J.; M. S.; R. de (F '15)
- Americans in the Philippines. Le Roy, J. A. (Jl '11)
- America's conquest of Europe. Jordan, D. S. (Je '14)
- "America's" cup races. Stone, H. L. (Jl '14)
- Among the Canadian Alps. Burpee, L. J. (Ja '15)
- Among the primitive Bakongo. Weeks, J. H. (D '14)
- Amsterdam
- Van Dyke, J. C. Amsterdam, The Hague, Haarlem: critical notes on the Rijks museum, The Hague museum, Hals museum. (Je '14)
- Amusements
- Crozier, G. B. Children's parties. (Ja '15)
- Curtis, H. S. Play and recreation for the open country. (Ap '14)
- Fraser, C. C. Every boy's book of handicraft, sports and amusements. (Mr '14)
- Ancient gems in modern settings. Grundy, G. B., ed. (Je '14)
- Ancient India. Rapson, E. J. (O '14)
- Ancient Roman empire and the British empire in India. Bryce, J. (Jl '14)
- Ancient Rome and modern America. Ferrero, G. (Jl '14)
- Ancient town-planning. Haverfield, F. J. (S '14)
- "And so they were married." Williams, J. L. (D '14)
- And then came Jean. Wason, R. A. (Mr '14)
- Angel island. Gillmore, I. H. (F '14)
- Anglo-French entente in the seventeenth century. Bastide, C. (Ja '14)
- Anglo-German problem. Sarolea, C. (Ja '15)
- Anglo-Indian studies. Mitra, S. M. (Ap '14)
- Anglo-Roman relations, 1558-1565. Bayne, C. G. (Ag '14)
- Animal communities in temperate America. Sheffield, V. E. (My '14)
- Animal flight. Hankin, E. H. (D '14)
- Animal sculpture. Winans, W. (Mr '14)
- Animals
- Dugdale, F. E. Book of baby pets. (Mr '14)
- Gask, L. Hundred best animals. (F '15)
- Animals, Habits and behavior of
- Pycraft, W. P. Courtship of animals. (Ap '14)
- Roosevelt, T., and Heller, E. Life-histories of African game animals. (Je '14)
- Seton, E. T. Wild animals at home. (Ja '14)
- Sharp, D. L. Beyond the pasture bars. (Jl '14)
- Step, E. Messmates. (My '14)
- Thompson, J. M. Wild kindred of fur, feather, and fin. (F '15)
- Animals, Legends and stories of
- Claudy, C. H. Tell-me-why stories about animals. (N '14)
- Roberts, C. G. D. Hoof and claw. (N '14)
- Animals, Photographs and photography of
- Kearton, C. Wild life across the world. (Ja '14)
- Annals and memoirs of the court of Peking. Packhouse, E., and Bland, J. O. P. (Mr '14)
- Anne Feversham. Snaith, J. C. (D '14)
- Anne's Bridge. Chambers, R. W. (F '15)
- Another man's shoes. Bridges, V. (Mr '14)
- Antarctic penguins. Levick, G. M. (Je '14)
- Antarctic regions
- Maclean, J. K. Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South. (Ap '14)
- Anthology of magazine verse for 1913. Braithwaite, W. S., comp. (Mr '14)
- Anthology of magazine verse for 1914. Braithwaite, W. S., comp. (F '15)
- Anthony the absolute. Merwin, S. (Mr '14)
- Anti-alcohol movement in Europe. Gordon, E. B. (My '14)
- Antiquities of India. Barnett, L. D. (Je '14)
- Antiquity of man in Europe. Geikie, J. (F '15)
- Anti-trust act and the Supreme court. Taft, W. H. (D '14)
- Antwerp
- Van Dyke, J. C. Brussels, Antwerp: critical notes on the royal museums at Brussels and Antwerp. (Je '14)
- Anybody but Anne. Wells, C. (Ap '14)
- Apache gold. Altscheler, J. A. (Ap '14)
- Ape's-face. Fox, M. (Ja '15)
- Aphrodite. Helston, J. (F '14)
- Apocrypha and pseudepigrapha of the Old Testament in English. Bible. Old Testament. (Ja '14)
- Apostles' creed
- Ross, G. A. J. God we trust. (My '14)
- Appearances. Dickinson, G. L. (Ja '15)
- Applied city government. James, H. G. (O '14)
- Aragon
- Miron, E. L. Queens of Aragon. (Jl '14)
- Arbitration, International
- Reely, M. K., comp. World peace. (Jl '14)
- Taft, W. H. United States and peace. (Jl '14)
- Arcadian adventures with the idle rich. Leacock, S. B. (Ja '15)
- Archeology
- Avebury, J. L. Prehistoric times. (Ap '14)
- Architecture
- Briggs, M. S. Baroque architecture. (Mr '14)
- Brooks, A. M. Architecture and the allied arts. (Jl '14)
- Richardson, A. E. Monumental classic architecture in Great Britain and Ireland. (S '14)
- Ward, J. Colour decoration of architecture. (S '14)
- Architecture, Colonial
- Northend, M. H. Historic homes of New England. (D '14)
- Wise, H. C., and Beidleman, H. F. Colonial architecture for those about to build. (Mr '14)
- Architecture, Domestic
- Ambler, L. Old halls and manor houses of Yorkshire. (Mr '14)
- Book of little houses. (Ja '15)
- Dana, W. S. B. Swiss chalet book. (Ja '14)
- Embury, A., II. Country houses. (Ja '15)
- Goodnow, R. R., and Adams, R. Honest house. (Ja '15)
- Lutyens, E. L. Houses and gardens. (Ag '14)
- Sawyer, J. D. How to make a country place. (O '14)
- Weaver, L. Small country houses. (O '14)
- Architecture, Gothic
- Bumpus, T. F. Guide to Gothic architecture. (F '15)
- Street, G. E. Gothic architecture in Spain. (My '14)
- Architecture, Spanish
- Street, G. E. Gothic architecture in Spain. (My '14)
- Arctic regions
- Maclean, J. K. Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South. (Ap '14)
- Seull, E. M. Hunting in the Arctic and Alaska. (S '14)
- Ardennes, Forest of
- Edwards, G. W. Forest of Arden. (Ja '15)

Argentina

- Fraser, J. F. Amazing Argentina. (Jl '14)
 Ariadne of Allan Water. Fenollosa, M. M. (My '14)

Arithmetic

- Burkett, C. W., and Swartzei, K. D. Farm arithmetic. (Ja '14)
 Arizona. Brady, C. T. (Ja '15)

Armenia

- Buxton, N. and H. Travel and politics in Armenia. (N '14)
 Armenian princess. Banks, E. J. (S '14)

Arms and armor

- Hall, C. Modern weapons of war. (Ja '15)
 Arms and industry. Lane, R. N. A. (Je '14)
 Arrows in the gale. Giovannitti, A. (S '14)

Art

- Bell, C. Art. (Ag '14)
 Cox, K. Artist and public. (D '14)
 Cram, R. A. Ministry of art. (Jl '14)
 Crawford, R. Plague and pestilence in literature and art. (O '14)
 Gaultier, P. Meaning of art. (Je '14)
 Head, R. How to enjoy pictures. (Ja '15)
 Kandinsky, W. Art of spiritual harmony. (D '14)
 Phillips, D. C., jr. Enchantment of art. (F '15)
 Pier, G. C. Temple treasures of Japan. (F '15)
 Ranger, H. W. Art-talks with Ranger. (Ja '15)
 Richter, L. M. Chantilly in history and art. (My '14)
 Shaftesbury, A. A. C. Second characters. (F '15)
 Valentiner, W. R. Art of the Low Countries. (F '15)
 Waldstein, C. Greek sculpture and modern art. (F '15)

History

- Bulley, M. H. Short history of ancient and medieval art. (S '14)
 Lees, F. Art of the great masters. (O '14)
 Parry, E. L. Two great art epochs. (Ja '15)

Study and teaching

- Bailey, H. T. Art education. (Je '14)
 Hurl, E. M. How to show pictures to children. (O '14)

Art, Flemish

- Rooses, M. Art in Flanders. (Je '14)

Art, Greek

- Gardner, P. Principles of Greek art. (Mr '14)
 Smith, S. C. K. Greek art and national life. (Je '14)

Art, Medieval

- Mâle, E. Religious art in France of the thirteenth century. (Mr '14)
 Art education. Bailey, H. T. (Je '14)

Art galleries

- See Van Dyke, J. C. (Je '14)
 Art in Flanders. Rooses, M. (Je '14)
 Art metalwork with inexpensive equipment. Payne, A. F. (F '15)
 Art of being alive. Wilcox, E. (S '14)
 Art of collecting. Cassell, R. J. (Ja '14)
 Art of Nijinsky. Whitworth, G. (Ap '14)
 Art of short-story writing simplified. Jordan, M. H. (Je '14)
 Art of silhouette. Coke, D. (Jl '14)
 Art of spiritual harmony. Kandinsky, W. (D '14)
 Art of story-telling. Cowles, J. D. (Jl '14)
 Art of the book. Holme, C., ed. (O '14)
 Art of the great masters. Lees, F. (O '14)
 Art of the photoplay. Ball, E. H. (Mr '14)
 Art of the short story. Grabo, C. H. (My '14)
 Art of tone-production on the violoncello. Krall, E. (Ag '14)
 Art-talks with Ranger. Ranger, H. W. (Ja '15)
 Artificial parthenogenesis and fertilization. Loeb, J. (My '14)
 Artist and public. Cox, K. (D '14)
 Artist in Spain. Michael, A. C. (F '15)

Artists

- Strickland, W. G. Dictionary of Irish artists. (Ap '14)
 As it is in England. Osborne, A. B. (Ja '14)
 Ascent of Denali (Mount McKinley). Stuck, H. (Ap '14)
 Ashes of vengeance. Somerville, H. B. (My '14)
 Asia at the door. Kawakami, K. K. (Jl '14)

Asia Minor

- Clark, F. E. Holy land of Asia Minor. (F '15)
 Aspects of modern drama. Chandler, F. W. (F '15)

Asphalt

- Danby, A. Natural rock asphalts and bitumens. (Ja '14)

Astronomy

- Chambers, G. F. Astronomy. (Ja '14)
 Farnham, C. Astronomy. (N '14)
 Hawks, E. Boys' book of astronomy. (F '15)
 Jacoby, H. Astronomy. (Je '14)
 Macpherson, H., jr. Wonders of modern astronomy. (Ap '14)
 Putnam, E. W. Essence of astronomy. (Ag '14)
 At home in the water. Corsan, G. H. (Jl '14)
 At the Casa Napoléon. Janvier, T. A. (Jl '14)
 At the sign of the van. Monahan, M. (Jl '14)
 At the world's heart. Rice, C. Y. (F '15)
 Athanase de Mézières and the Louisiana-Texas frontier, 1768-1780. Bolton, H. E., ed. (S '14)

Athens

- Eosanquet, E. Days in Attica. (Jl '14)
 Davis, W. S. Day in old Athens. (O '14)
 Weller, C. H. Athens and its monuments. (Ja '14)
 Whiting, L. Athens, the violet-crowned. (Ja '14)

Athletics

- Hjertberg, E. W. Athletics in theory and practice. (Je '14)
 Murphy, M. C. Athletic training. (Jl '14)
 Mussabini, S. A., and Ranson, C. Complete athletic trainer. (Je '14)
 Withington, P., ed. Book of athletics. (O '14)

Atomic theory

- Cox, J. Beyond the atom. (Ap '14)
 Attack and defense of Little Round Top. Norton, O. W. (My '14)
 Auction block. Beach, R. E. (O '14)

Auction bridge

- Clark, H. P. Royal auction bridge up-to-date. (Mr '14)
 Foster, R. F. Royal auction bridge with nullos. (Mr '14)
 Irwin, F. Auction high-lights. (Mr '14)
 Irwin, F. Nullo auction. (Ja '15)
 Whitehead, W. C. Whitehead's conventions of auction bridge. (Ja '15)
 Auction high-lights. Irwin, F. (Mr '14)
 Auguries. Pinyon, L. (Jl '14)
 Augustine, St., 354-430 A. D.
 Bertrand, L. Saint Augustin. (Ag '14)

Australia

- Fitchett, W. H. New world of the south. (Ja '14)

Austria-Hungary

- Kellner, L., and others. Austria of the Austrians and Hungary of the Hungarians. (Jl '14)
 Steed, H. W. Hapsburg monarchy. (Mr '14)

Authors

- Moncrieff, A. R. H. Book about authors. (Jl '14)
 Author's craft. Bennett, A. (O '14)

Authorship

- Bennett, A. Author's craft. (O '14)
 Marden, O. S. Hints for young writers. (F '15)

Autographs

- Joline, A. H. Rambles in autograph land. (Ja '14)

Automobiles

- Brennan, A. L., jr. Automobile operation. (F '15)
 Pagé V. W. Questions and answers relating to modern automobile design, construction, driving and repair. (Mr '14)

Average

- Zizek, F. Statistical averages. (Ap '14)

Aviation

- Hamel, G., and Turner, C. C. Flying. (O '14)
 Awakening. Bordeaux, H. (F '15)

Babylonia

- Jastrow, M., jr. Hebrew and Babylonian traditions. (Jl '14)
 Back yard farmer. Bolte, J. W. (F '14)
 Backward child. Morgan, B. S. (Jl '14)

- Bacon, Roger, 1214?-1294
 Little, A. G., comp. and ed. Roger Bacon essays. (F '15)
- Bacteriological examination of food and water. Savage, W. G. (F '15)
- Bad times. Hannay, J. O. (Je '14)
- Bagehot, Walter, 1826-1877
 Barrington, E. I. Life of Walter Bagehot. (S '14)
- Bailey twins. Chamberlain, A. C. (Ja '15)
- Balkan war, 1912-1913
 Cassavetti, D. J.: Hellas and the Balkan wars. (Jl '14)
 Durham, M. E. Struggle for Scutari. (S '14)
 Farnsworth, H.: W. Log of a would-be war correspondent. (Mr '14)
 Monroe, W. S. Bulgaria and her people. (N '14)
 Schurman, J. G. Balkan wars, 1912-1913. (Ag '14)
- Balkans. Sloane, W. M. (Ag '14)
- Ball of fire. Chester, G. R. and L. (N '14)
- Ballads
 Jewett, S. Folk-ballads of southern Europe (Mr '14)
 Noyes, G. R., and Bacon, L., eds. and trs. Heroic ballads of Servia. (Ja '14)
 Steenstrup, J. C. H. R. Medieval popular ballad. (Jl '14)
- Ballet
 Terry, E. Russian ballet. (Mr '14)
- Balzac, Honoré de, 1799-1850
 Faguet, E. Balzac. (Ja '15)
- Bamibi. Cooke, M. B. (O '14)
- Banks and banking
 Brandeis, L.: D. Other people's money, and how the bankers use it. (Jl '14)
 Conway, T., jr., and Patterson, E. M. Operation of the new bank act. (Mr '14)
 Holdsworth, J.: T. Money and banking. (F '15)
 Parnabetta, Martin, H. R. (Ap '14)
 Barnstormers. Aley, M. (Jl '14)
- Baroque architecture. Briggs, M. S. (Mr '14)
- Baseball
 McGraw, J.: J. How to play baseball. (S '14)
- Basketry book. Blanchard, M. M. (Ja '15)
- Basketwork
 Blanchard, M. M. Basketry book. (Ja '15)
- Bat Wing Bowles. Coolidge, D. (Ap '14)
- Battle royal. De Veer, W. (N '14)
- Battles
 Atteridge, A. H. Famous land fights. (N '14)
 Boys' book of battles. (Ja '15)
- Battles of peace. Hodges, G. (Jl '14)
- Bayeux tapestry
 Belloc, H. Book of the Bayeux tapestry. (D '14)
- Beacon for the blind. Holt, W. (F '15)
- Beacon lights of prophecy. Knudson, A. C. (S '14)
- Beaconsfield, Benjamin Disraeli, 1st earl of, 1804-1881
 Monypenny, W. F., and Buckle, G. E. Life of Benjamin Disraeli, earl of Beaconsfield. (Ja '15)
- Beasts and super-beasts. Munro, H. H. (D '14)
- Beaumont, Francis, 1581-1616
 Gayley, C.: M. Beaumont, the dramatist. (Je '14)
- Beautiful. Lee, V., pseud. (My '14)
- Beauty, Personal
 Montaigne, M., and others. How to be beautiful. (Mr '14)
- Beauty for ashes. Bacon, A. F. (D '14)
- Beavers
 Dugmore, A. R. Romance of the beaver. (Ja '15)
- Bedesman 4. Skrine, M. J. H. (My '14)
- Bedouin lover. Knight, W.: A. (Ja '14)
- Beethoven, Ludwig van, 1770-1827
 Berlioz, H. Critical study of Beethoven's nine symphonies. (Ap '14)
 Indy, V. d'. Beethoven. (Ja '14)
- Before the baby comes. Wheeler, M. (F '15)
- Before Vassar opened. Taylor, J. M. (Jl '14)
- Beginner's garden book. French, A. (Jl '14)
- Beginnings of libraries. Richardson, E. C. (My '14)
- Behavior. Watson, J.: B. (F '15)
- Behind the scenes in the schoolroom. Montgomery, F. (F '14)
- Behind the veil at the Russian court. Vassill, P. (Je '14)
- Belgium
 Case of Belgium in the present war. (Ja '15)
 MacDonnell, J.: de C. Belgium, her kings, kingdom and people. (N '14)
 Rice, W.: G. Carillons of Belgium and Holland. (F '15)
 Xenier, T. R. Motor tour in Belgium and Germany. (Mr '14)
- Belief and doubt
 Burton, M. L. Our intellectual attitude in an age of criticism. (My '14)
- Belief in personal immortality. Haynes, E. S. P. (Je '14)
- Bellamy. Mordaunt, E., pseud. (N '14)
- Belshazzar court. Strunsky, S. (D '14)
- Bengal
 Gouldsbury, C.: E. Tigerland. (Jl '14)
 Benjamin the Jew. Gratacap, L. P. (Je '14)
 Benton's venture. Barbour, R. H. (Jl '14)
- Bergson, Henri Louis, 1859-
 Gerrard, T.: J. Bergson; an exposition and criticism. (My '14)
 Kallen, H. M. William James and Henri Bergson. (F '15)
 Wilm, E. C. Henri Bergson. (F '15)
- Berlin
 Van Dyke, J.: C. Berlin, Dresden: critical notes on the Kaiser-Friedrich museum and the Royal gallery, Dresden. (Je '14)
- Bernadotte. Barton, D. P. (Ja '15)
- Best man. Lutz, G. H.-. (Ap '14)
- Better babies and their care. Richardson, A. S. (O '14)
- Better rural schools. Betts, G.: H., and Hall, O. E. (Ag '14)
- Betty Musgrave. Findlater, M. (Mr '14)
- Betty's Virginia Christmas. Seawell, M. E. (Ja '15)
- Between eras from capitalism to democracy. Small, A. W. (Ja '14)
- Between friends. Chambers, R. W. (F '15)
- Between the old world and the new. Ferrero, G. (O '14)
- Beyond the atom. Cox, J. (Ap '14)
- Beyond the breakers. Sterling, G. (F '15)
- Beyond the pasture bars. Sharp, D. L. (Jl '14)
- Bible. Whole
 About the Bible
 Dobschütz, E. A. A. O. A. v. Influence of the Bible on civilisation. (Jl '14)
 Wood, I. F., and Grant, E. Bible as literature. (F '15)
 History
 De Knoop, F. Bible story and its teaching for children. (Mr '14)
 History, Literary
 Smyth, J.: P. Bible in the making in the light of modern research. (F '15)
 Introductions
 Blakiston, A. Bible of to-day. (N '14)
 Pictorial illustrations
 Holbein, H., the Younger. Hans Holbein the Younger. (Ja '14)
 Theology
 Charles, R. H.: Religious development between the Old and the New Testaments. (N '14)
- Bible. Old Testament
 About the Old Testament
 Robinson, H.: W. Religious ideas of the Old Testament. (Je '14)
 Wehle, T. Origin and meaning of the Old Testament. (F '15)
 Biography
 Hastings, J., ed. Greater men and women of the Bible. (D '14)
 Parts of the Old Testament
 Prophetic books
 Knudson, A. C. Beacon lights of prophecy. (S '14)

Apocryphal books

James, M. R. Old Testament legends. (Ap '14)
Bible. New Testament

About the New Testament

Jones, M. New Testament in the twentieth century. (Ja '15)
 Moffatt, J. New translation of the New Testament. (My '14)

Criticism, interpretation, etc.

Martin, A. W. Life of Jesus in the light of the higher criticism. (Ja '14)

Parts of the New TestamentGospels

Schell, H. New ideals in the gospel. (My '14)

Revelation

Charles, R. H. Studies in the Apocalypse. (N '14)

Bible story and its teaching for children. De Knoop, F. (Mr '14)

Biblical libraries. Richardson, E. C. (F '15)

Bibliography

A. L. A. Index to general literature; supplement 1900-1910. (N '14)

Select bibliography for the study, sources, and literature of English mediæval economic history. (Je '14)

Slater, J. H. Stevenson bibliography. (Je '14)

Big game fields of America: North and South. Singer, D. J. (F '15)

Big Tremain. Van Vorst, M. (D '14)

Billiards

Daly, M. Daly's billiard book. (Ap '14)

Billy To-morrow's chums. Carr, S. P. (Mr '14)

Biography

Gilbert, A. More about conquerors. (N '14)

Samuel, H. B. Modernities. (Je '14)

Slosson, E. E. Major prophets of to-day. (O '14)

Stanhope, A. On the track of the great. (O '14)

Biology

Abbott, J. F. Elementary principles of general biology. (S '14)

Johnstone, J. Philosophy of biology. (Ja '15)

Minot, C. S. Modern problems of biology. (Je '14)

Thomson, J. A. Wonder of life. (Ja '15)

Biology of sex for parents and teachers. Galloway, T. W. (D '14)

Bird Paradise. Wicks, J. B. (F '15)

Bird-store man. Duncan, N. (N '14)

Birds

Lowe, P. R. Our common sea-birds. (My '14)

Wicks, J. B. Bird Paradise. (F '15)

Birth rate

Drysdale, C. V. Small family system. (S '14)

Bishop among his flock. Talbot, E. (My '14)

Black is white. McCutcheon, G. B. (Ap '14)

Black tales for white children. Stigand, C. H. and N. Y., comps. and trs. (F '15)

Blanchette and The escape. Brioux, E. (Mr '14)

Blind

Holt, W. Beacon for the blind. (F '15)

Blind eyes. Peterson, M. (D '14)

Blind spot. Forman, J. M. (N '14)

Blister Jones. Foote, J. T. (Ja '14)

Blossoming rod. Cutting, M. S. (D '14)

Blossoms from a Japanese garden. Fenollosa, M. M. (Ja '14)

Blue buckle. Osborne, W. H. (Ap '14)

Bluebeard. Wiggin, K. D. (Ap '14)

Boarding schools

Holden, H. Young boys and boarding-school. (My '14)

Boats and boating

Kendrick, E. W. Practical sailing and motor-boating. (Ja '14)

Bob Spencer the life saver. Armitage, T. (N '14)

Bobby. Bell, J. J. (Ag '14)

Bolivia

Walle, P. Bolivia. (D '14)

Book about authors. Moncrieff, A. R. H. (Jl '14)

Book of athletics. Withington, P., ed. (O '14)

Book of baby pets. Dugdale, F. E. (Mr '14)

Book of entertainments and frolics for all occasions. Dawson, M., and Telford, E. P. (O '14)

Book of friendly giants. Fuller, E. (Ja '15)

Book of modern Palestine for boys and girls.

Salmon, P. R. (D '14)

Book of parties and pastimes. Dawson, M., and

Telford, E. P. (O '14)

Book of pictures. Rackham, A. (Ap '14)

Book of the Bayeux tapestry. Belloc, H. (D '14)

Book of the blue sea. Newbolt, H. J. (F '15)

Book of the epic. Guerber, H. A. (Ja '14)

Book of the lion. Pease, A. E. (Jl '14)

Bookbinding

Bean, F. O., and Brodhead, J. C. Bookbinding for beginners. (D '14)

Holme, C., ed. Art of the book. (O '14)

Booklover's London. Adcock, A. St. J. (Ja '14)

Bookman's letters. Nicoll, W. R. (Ap '14)

Books and reading

Jenkins, M. Reading public. (F '15)

Mursell, W. A. Byways in bookland. (F '15)

Ward, G. O. Practical use of books and libraries. (S '14)

Boomers. Norton, R. (Je '14)

Booth-Clibborn, Mrs. Catherine, 1860-

Strahan, J. Maréchale. (S '14)

Borderlands and thoroughfares. Gibson, W. W. (Ja '15)

Borghese, Maria Paolina (Bonaparte) principessa, 1780-1825

Fleischmann, H. Pauline Bonaparte and her lovers. (F '15)

Borgia, Cesare, 1476?-1507

Woodward, W. H. Cesare Borgia; a biography. (Ag '14)

Borrow, George Henry, 1803-1881

Shorter, C. K. George Borrow and his circle. (Mr '14)

Boston

Bacon, E. M. Rambles around old Boston. (Ja '15)

Boston symphony orchestra

Howe, M. A. De. W. Boston symphony orchestra. (F '15)

Botany

Brucker, E. Botany. (My '14)

Clements, F. E.; and E. S. Rocky mountain flowers. (My, Jl '14)

Coulter, J. G. Plant life and plant uses. (Je '14)

Coulter, J. M. Elementary studies in botany. (Ap '14)

Farmer, J. B. Plant life. (Ja '14)

Haberlandt, G. Physiological plant anatomy. (Ja '15)

Praeger, R. L. Weeds. (S '14)

Saunders, C. F. With the flowers and trees in California. (N '14)

Thompson, H. S. Flowering plants of the Riviera. (S '14)

Boucher, François, 1703-1770

Bearne, C. M. Court painter and his circle. (N '14)

Bourget, Paul Charles Joseph, 1852-

Dimnet, E. Paul Bourget. (Ja '14)

Boy editor. Kirkland, W. M. (Ja '14)

Boy electrician. Morgan, A. P. (D '14)

Boy in Eirinn. Colum, P. (Ag '14)

Boy kings and girl queens. Marshall, H. E. (Ja '15)

Boy scout. Davis, R. H. (Je '14)

Boy scout in the Balkans. Finnemore J. (Je '14)

Boy scouts

Eastman, C. A. Indian scout talks. (N '14)

Boy scouts in the Dismal swamp. Eaton, W. P. (F '14)

Boy scouts in the White mountains. Eaton, W. P. (Ja '15)

Boy with the U. S. explorers. Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. (F '15)

Boy with the U. S. Indians. Rolt-Wheeler, F. W. (F '14)

Boycotts and the labor struggle. Laidler, H. W. (Mr '14)

Boys

Herrick, C. My boy and I. (Ja '14)

Holden, H. Young boys and boarding-school. (My '14)

Johnson, F. W. Problems of boyhood. (Ja '15)

- McKeever, W: A. Industrial training of the boy. (Ap '14)
- Raffety, W: E: Brothering the boy. (Mr '14)
- Boys' book of aeroplanes. Hubbard, T: O., and Turner, C: C. (F '14)
- Boys' book of astronomy. Hawks, E. (F '15)
- Boy's book of famous regiments. Ogden, H. A. (Ja '15)
- Boys' book of stamp collecting. Armstrong, D. B. (Ja '15)
- Boy's camp book. Cave, E: (Je '14)
- Boys' clubs
- Bernheimer, C: S., and Cohen, J. M. Boys' clubs. (F '15)
- Boys' life of General Sheridan. Goss, W. L. (Ja '14)
- Boys' Motley. Banks, H. W. (Ja '15)
- Boys' Wellington. Wheeler, H. F. B. (Mr '14)
- Bransford in Arcadia. Rhodes, E. M. (Ap '14)
- Brazil
- Roosevelt, T. Through the Brazilian wilderness. (D '14)
- Bread and circuses. Eden, H. P. (Ag '14)
- Breath of the Karroo. Brinkman, L. H. (D '14)
- Bremen, Germany
- King, W. Chronicles of three free cities. (S '14)
- Bridges
- Jacoby, H: S., and Davis, R. P. Foundations of bridges and buildings. (S '14)
- Britain as Germany's vassal. Bernhardt, F: von. (Ja '15)
- Britain's case against Germany. Muir, R. (F '15)
- British army from within. Vivian, E. C: H. (D '14)
- British empire and the United States. Dunning, W: A. (D '14)
- British painters. Staley, J: E. (F '15)
- British railways. Lawson, W. R. (Ag '14)
- British shipping. Kirkaldy, A. W. (D '14)
- Britton of the Seventh. Brady, C. T. (F '15)
- "Broke," the man without the dime. Brown, E. A. (Ja '14)
- "Broken music." Bottome, P. (Jl '14)
- Brontë family
- Chadwick, E. A. In the footsteps of the Brontës. (Ag '14)
- Brothering the boy. Raffety, W: E: (Mr '14)
- Brown, John, 1800-1859
- Wilson, H. P. John Brown. (My '14)
- Browning, Robert, 1812-1889
- Mayne, E. C. Browning's heroines. (F '15)
- Bruges
- Stratton, M. Bruges. (F '15)
- Brussels
- Van Dyke, J: C. Brussels, Antwerp: critical notes on the royal museums of Brussels and - Antwerp. (Je '14)
- Bubble ballads. Chater, M. (N '14)
- Budapest
- Van Dyke, J: C. Vienna, Budapest: critical notes on the Imperial gallery and Budapest museum. (Ag '14)
- Buddhism
- Noble, M. E., and Coomaraswamy, A. K. Myths of the Hindus and Buddhists. (Jl '14)
- Buddhist China. Johnston, R. F. (Mr '14)
- Builder and blunderer. Saunders, G: (Ja '15)
- Building
- Burt, H: J. Steel construction. (Ja '15)
- Hoves, B: A. Building by a builder. (Je '14)
- Bulgaria
- Monroe, W. S. Bulgaria and her people. (N '14)
- Bull Run, Battle of
- Johnston, R. M. Bull Run. (F '14)
- Burbury Stoke. Hopkins, W: J: (F '14)
- Burgage tenure in mediaeval England. Hemmeon, M. de W. (S '14)
- Burglar and the blizzard. Miller, A. (D '14)
- Burroughs, John, 1837-
- Barrus, C. Our friend John Burroughs. (Ap '14)
- Business
- Brandsis, L: D. Business—a profession. (Jl '14)
- Fisk, A. K. Honest business. (Ja '15)
- Jones, E: D. Business administration. (N '14)
- Business education
- Farrington, F: E. Commercial education in Germany. (Jl '14)
- Business English and correspondence. Davis, R., and Lingham, C. H. (N '14)
- Business ethics
- Page, E: D. Trade morals. (Ja '15)
- Business of a gentleman. Dickinson, H. N. (Ap '14)
- Business of farming. Smith, W: C. (Jl '14)
- But she meant well. Caine, W: (D '14)
- Butterfly. Webster, H: K. (F '14)
- By and large. Adams, F. P. (Ja '15)
- By the bend of the river. Clark, C: H. (Ja '15)
- By the blue river. Clarke, I. C. (Ap '14)
- Byways in bookland. Mursell, W. A. (F '15)
- California
- Atherton, G. F. California. (Ja '15)
- Austin, M. California. (D '14)
- Beasley, T: D. Tramp through the Bret Harte country. (Ja '15)
- Cobb, I. S. Roughing it de luxe. (S '14)
- Davis, J: F. California, romantic and resourceful. (Ja '15)
- Dumbell, K. E. M. California and the far West. (F '15)
- Elder, D: P. Old Spanish missions of California. (Mr '14)
- Goodwin, C. Establishment of state government in California, 1846-1850. (S '14)
- James, G: W. California. (Ja '15)
- James, G: W. Old Franciscan missions of California. (Ja '14)
- Markham, E. California, the wonderful. (F '15)
- Sanchez, N. V. Spanish and Indian place names of California. (F '15)
- Wood, R. K. Tourist's California. (D '14)
- Call of the East. Fraser, T. (D '14)
- Call of the stars. Kippax, J: R. (Jl '14)
- Campaigning with Braddock. Graydon, W: M. (N '14)
- Camping
- Bates, F. A. Camping and camp cooking. (Jl '14)
- Beard, D. C. Shelters, shacks, and shanties. (N '14)
- Carpenter, W. S. Winter camping. (Je '14)
- Cave, E: Boy's camp book. (Je '14)
- Hinckley, G: W. Roughing it with boys. (Mr '14)
- Stone, J: H. Caravanning and camping-out. (Ap '14)
- Camping in Crete. Trevor-Battye, A. B. R. (Je '14)
- Can we still be Christians? Eucken, R. C. (Je '14)
- Canada
- Bryce, G: Short history of the Canadian people. (Ja '15)
- Burpee, L. J. Among the Canadian Alps. (Ja '15)
- Dunraven, W. T: W. Q. Canadian nights. (D '14)
- Ferguson, E. Seeds of pine. (D '14)
- Johnson, S. C. History of emigration from the United Kingdom to North America, 1763-1912. (S '14)
- Myers, G. History of Canadian wealth. (Ag '14)
- Tupper, C. Recollections of sixty years. (Je '14)
- Wilby, T: W. Motor tour through Canada. (My '14)
- Canadian nights. Dunraven, W. T: W. Q. (D '14)
- Canadian nights. Hickman, A. (S '14)
- Canal tolls and American shipping. Nixon, L: (Jl '14)
- Cancer
- Brainbridge, W: S. Cancer problem. (Ja '15)
- Candle flame. Howard, K. (S '14)
- Candy
- Glover, E. H. "Dame Curtsey's" book of candy making. (Ag '14)
- Canning and preserving
- Neil, M. H. Canning, preserving and pickling. (Jl '14)
- Canoe and the saddle. Winthrop, T. (My '14)
- Canoes and canoeing
- Pinkerton, R. E. Canoe. (Ja '15)
- Cap'n Dan's daughter. Lincoln, J. C. (Mr '14)
- Captain of his soul. Forman, H: J. (D '14)
- Captain of the Cat's-paw. Stoddard, W: O., jr. (F '15)

- Captain of the King. Saxby, C. L. (F '15)
- Capture at sea
 Loreburn, R. T. R. Capture at sea. (My '14)
- Caravanning and camping-out. Stone, J. H. (Ap '14)
- Care and education of crippled children in the United States. Reeves, E. G. (F '15)
- Careful investor. Mead, E. S. (F '15)
- Caribou
 Dugmore, A. R. Romance of the Newfoundland caribou. (Ja '14)
- Caricatures and cartoons
 Beerbohm, M. Fifty caricatures. (Ja '14)
- Carillons of Belgium and Holland. Rice, W. G. (F '15)
- Carmen and Mr. Dryasdust. Jordan, H. R. (Ap '14)
- Carpenter and the rich man. White, B. (My '14)
- Carrying out the city plan. Shurtleff, F., and Olmsted, F. L. (F '15)
- Carson, Christopher, 1809-1868
 Sabin, E. L. Kit Carson days (1809-1868). (D '14)
- Case of Mexico and the policy of President Wilson. Zayas Enriquez, R. de. (Jl '14)
- Cassel, Germany
 Van Dyke, J. C. Munich, Frankfort, Cassel: critical notes on the Old pinacothek, the Stadel institute, the Cassel Royal gallery. (Je '14)
- Cathedrals
 Bushnell, A. J. de H. Storied windows. (S '14)
- Galichan, C. G. Cathedrals of southern Spain. (Jl '14)
- Rose, E. W. Cathedrals and cloisters in northern France. (D '14)
- Cause and cure of crime. Henderson, C. R. (Ja '15)
- Cause of business depressions. Bilgram, H., and Levy, L. E. (Ag '14)
- Cause of the war. Jefferson, C. E. (F '15)
- Cavalry
 Bernhardt, F. von. Cavalry. (D '14)
- Cavour, Camillo Benso di, count, 1810-1861
 Orsi, P. Cavour and the making of modern Italy. (Ap '14)
- Cecil family
 Dennis, G. R. Cecil family. (S '14)
- Celebrity's daughter. Hunt, V. (Jl '14)
- Censorship in England. Powell, F., and Palmer, F. (Ja '14)
- Central America
 Domville-Fife, C. W. Guatemala and the states of Central America. (Ja '14)
- Century of Columbus. Walsh, J. J. (F '15)
- Century of parody and imitation. Jerrold, W. C., and Leonard, R. M., eds. (Je '14)
- Century's change in religion. Harris, G. (F '15)
- Cervantes Saavedra, Miguel de, 1547-1616
 Fitzmaurice-Kelly, J. Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra. (Jl '14)
- Chainbreakers. Talbot, R. J. (O '14)
- Challenge. Untermeyer, L. (S '14)
- Challenge of facts. Sumner, W. G. (F '15)
- Chamber music. Dunhill, T. F. (Ja '14)
- Chance. Conrad, J. (Mr '14)
- Change. Francis, J. O. (D '14)
- Changing drama. Henderson, A. (Ja '15)
- Changing order. Wickersham, G. W. (Jl '14)
- Chanticleer. Story of. Rostand, E. E. A. (Ja '14)
- Chantilly in history and art. Richter, L. M. (My '14)
- Chapters at the English lakes. Rawnsley, H. D. (Mr '14)
- Character
 Holmes, A. Principles of character making. (My '14)
- Shand, A. F. Foundations of character. (S '14)
- Taylor, C. K. Character development. (Ap '14)
- Charles XIV, king of Sweden and Norway, 1764-1844
 Barton, D. P. Bernadotte. (Ja '15)
- Charlie and Arabella Chick. Garis, H. R. (Jl '14)
- Charm of Ireland. Stevenson, B. E. (F '15)
- Charm of Scandinavia. Clark, F. E. and S. A. (Ja '15)
- Charm of the antique. Shackleton, R. and E. (S '14)
- Charmed life of Miss Austin. Merwin, S. (O '14)
- Chassevant method of musical education, Guide to. Gibb, M. P. (S '14)
- Chastity
 Parsons, E. W. Religious chastity. (Je '14)
- Chaucer, Geoffrey, 1340?-1400
 Fansler, D. S. Chaucer and the Roman de la Rose. (Je '14)
- Hadow, G. E. Chaucer and his times. (S '14)
- Chelsea, England
 Davies, R. Greatest house at Chelsea. (Ap '14)
- Chemistry
 Brown, J. C. History of chemistry. (Ja '14)
- Darzens, G. Chemistry. (My '14)
- Jones, H. C. New era in chemistry. (F '14)
- Kahlenberg, L., and Hart, E. B. Chemistry and its relations to daily life. (Mr '14)
- Letts, E. A. Some fundamental problems of chemistry. (Ag '14)
- Loeb, M. Scientific work of Morris Loeb. (Jl '14)
- Meldola, R. Chemistry. (F '15)
- Philip, J. C. Wonders of modern chemistry. (Mr '14)
- Smith, E. F. Chemistry in America. (Ag '14)
- Stewart, A. W. Chemistry and its borderland. (F '15)
- Chemistry, Technical
 Benson, H. K. Industrial chemistry for engineering students. (Ja '14)
- Martin, G. Industrial and manufacturing chemistry. (Ja '14)
- Snell, J. F. Elementary household chemistry. (Ag '14)
- Thorpe, E. Dictionary of applied chemistry. (Je '14)
- Chemistry of cattle feeding and dairying. Murray, J. A. (D '14)
- Chevreuse, Marie de Rohan, duchesse de, 1600-1679
 Batiffol, L. Duchesse de Chevreuse. (O '14)
- Chicago
 Cox, H. J., and Armington, J. H. Weather and climate of Chicago. (N '14)
- Quaife, M. M. Chicago and the old northwest, 1673-1835. (Ja '14)
- Chief Middle English poets. Weston, J. L., ed. (Ag '14)
- Chief of the ranges. Cody, H. A. (Ja '14)
- Child and his spelling. Cook, W. A., and O'Shea, M. V. (O '14)
- Child labor
 Keeling, F. Child labour in the United Kingdom. (O '14)
- Markham, E., and others. Children in bondage. (S '14)
- Child of the Orient. Brown, D. (Jl '14)
- Child study
 Wallin, J. E. W. Mental health of the school child. (O '14)
- Child went forth. Pawlowska, Y. (Ja '15)
- Childhood. Arden, J. S. (14)
- Childhood. Meynell, A. C. (F '14)
- Childhood of the world. Clodd, E. (Ag '14)
- Children
 Culverwell, E. P. Montessori principles and practice. (Mr '14)
- Fisher, D. F. Mothers and children. (Ja '15)
- Mangold, G. B. Problems of child welfare. (O '14)
- Meynell, A. C. Childhood. (F '14)
- Terman, L. M. Hygiene of the school child. (Ap '14)
- Wheeler, M. Young mother's handbook. (Jl '14)
- Children in bondage. Markham, E., and others. (S '14)
- Children in verse. Burke, T., ed. (O '14)
- Children of banishment. Sullivan, F. W. (O '14)
- Children of the dead end. MacGill, P. (Je '14)
- Children of the sea. Stacpoole, H. D. (Mr '14)
- Children's amusements and occupations
 Fryer, J. Mary Frances housekeeper. (Ja '15)
- Grubb, M. B. When mother lets us make gifts. (F '15)
- Rich, G. E. When mother lets us make paper box furniture. (Ja '15)
- Children's Blue bird. Maeterlinck, M. (Ja '14)
- Children's literature
 Lowe, O. Literature for children. (S '14)

Children's parties. Crozier, G. B. (Ja '15)

Children's songs

Quigley, M. C., and others, comps. Index to kindergarten songs. (F '15)

Chimes and chiming

Rice, W. G. Carillons of Belgium and Holland. (F '15)

China

- Backhouse, E., and Bland, J. O. P. Annals and memoirs of the court of Peking. (Mr '14)
 Blakeslee, G. H., ed. Recent developments in China. (N '14)
 Christie, D. Thirty years in the Manchu capital. (N '14)
 Gaunt, M. E. B. Woman in China. (F '15)
 Gibson, R. R. Forces mining and undermining China. (Jl '14)
 Gowen, H. H. Outlines history of China. (Mr '14)
 Johnston, R. F. Buddhist China. (Mr '14)
 Thomsen, J. S. China revolutionized. (Mr '14)
 Wilson, E. H. Naturalist in western China. (Ap '14)

Social life and customs

- Cooper, E. My lady of the Chinese courtyard. (Jl '14)
 China collector. Lewer, H. W. (Je '14)
 Chitra. Tagore, R. (Ap '14)
 Choice of life. Maeterlinck, G. (F '15)
 Chopin, Fryderyk Franciszek, 1809-1849
 Kelley, E. S. Chopin, the composer. (Ja '14)

Choral music

- Coward, H. Choral technique and interpretation. (S '14)
 Choral technique and interpretation. Coward, H. (S '14)
 Christ and the dramas of doubt. Flewelling, R. T. (My '14)
 Christ the creative ideal. Walker, W. L. (Ap '14)
 Christian approach to social morality. Cabot, R. C. (F '14)

Christian art and symbolism

- Collins, A. H. Symbolism of animals and birds represented in English church architecture. (Ja '14)
 Morey, C. R. East Christian paintings in the Freer collection. (F '15)

Christian life

- Hodges, G. Christianity between Sundays. (Jl '14)
 Peabody, F. G. Christian life in the modern world. (Ja '15)
 Christian life in the modern world. Peabody, F. G. (Ja '15)
 Christian reconstruction of modern life. Dickinson, C. H. (Je '14)
 Christian tradition and its verification. Glover, T. R. (Je '14)

Christianity

- Bacon, B. W. Christianity old and new. (Ag '14)
 Case, S. J. Evolution of early Christianity. (Ja '15)
 Eucken, R. C. Can we still be Christians? (Je '14)
 Glover, T. R. Christian tradition and its verification. (Je '14)
 Mains, G. P. Christianity and the new age. (D '14)
 Moulton, J. H. Religions and religion. (Ap '14)
 Practice of Christianity. (F '15)
 Weinle, H., and Widgery, A. G. Jesus in the nineteenth century and after. (O '14)
 Christianity and ethics. Alexander, A. B. D. (S '14)
 Christianity and sin. Mackintosh, R. (S '14)
 Christianity and the social rage. Berle, A. A. (Ja '15)
 Christianity between Sundays. Hodges, G. (Jl '14)
 Christina, princess of Denmark, 1521-1590
 Ady, J. Christina of Denmark. (Mr '14)
 Christmas bishop. Kirkland, W. M. (Ja '11)
 Christopher Quarles. Brebner, P. J. (D '14)
 Chronicles of Erthlg on the dyke. Cust, A. L. (N '14)
 Chronicles of three free cities. King, W. (S '14)

Church advertising

Reisner, C. F. Church publicity. (Ag '14)

Church and social work

Forbes, E. S., ed. Social ideals of a free church. (Je '14)

Church and state

Smith, A. L. Church and state in the middle ages. (My '14)

Church and the working man

Thoms, C. S. Working man's Christ. (My '14)

Church architecture

Eond, F. Introduction to English church architecture. (My '14)
 Embury, A., II. Early American churches. (Ja '15)

Church history

Ayer, J. C. Source book for ancient church history. (Mr '14)
 Edmundson, G. Church in Rome in the first century. (Ag '14)
 Martin, A. W. Dawn of Christianity. (F '15)
 Muntz, W. S. Rome, St. Paul and the early church. (My '14)
 Stubbs, M. W. How Europe was won for Christianity. (My '14)
 Church in Rome in the first century. Edmundson, G. (Ag '14)

Church of England

Tatham, G. B. Puritans in power. (F '15)
 Church publicity. Reisner, C. F. (Ag '14)
 Church, the people and the age. Scott, R., and Gilmore, G. W., eds. (Jl '14)

Church unity

Streeter, B. H. Restatement and reunion. (O '14)

Cicero, Marcus Tullius, 106-43 B. C.

Sihler, E. C. Cicero of Arpinum. (F '15)

Cinematograph

Talbot, F. A. Practical cinematography and its applications. (Ap '14)
 Circe's daughter. Shore, T. (Ja '14)
 Cities of Romagna and the Marches. Hutton, E. (F '14)

Citizenship

Dunn, A. W. Community and the citizen. (F '15)
 Hall, N. M. Civic righteousness and civic pride. (Ja '15)
 Lien, A. J. Privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States. (Ap '14)
 City of numbered days. Lynde, F. (O '14)

City planning

Haverfield, F. J. Ancient town-planning. (S '14)
 Koester, F. Modern city planning and maintenance. (Jl '14)
 Shurtleff, F., and Olmsted, F. L. Carrying out the city plan. (F '15)
 City school supervision. Elliott, E. C. (Jl '14)
 Civic righteousness and civic pride. Hall, N. M. (Ja '15)

Civil engineering

Ketchum, M. S. Structural engineers' handbook. (F '15)
 Kirby, R. S. Elements of specification writing. (My '14)

Civilization

Ferrero, G. Between the old world and the new. (O '14)
 Marvin, F. S. Living past. (Ap '14)
 Civilization and health. Hutchinson, W. (Ja '15)
 Clarion. Adams, S. H. (O '14)
 Clark's field. Herrick, R. (Jl '14)

Classical literature

Sturgeon, M. C. Women of the classics. (F '15)

Classical philology

Verrall, A. W. Collected literary essays, classical and modern. (Je '14)
 Verrall, A. W. Collected studies in Greek and Latin scholarship. (Je '14)
 Clay and fire. Crippen, L. W. (S '14)
 Clay and rainbows. Calthrop, D. C. (O '14)
 Clean heart. Hutchinson, A. S.-M. (O '14)
 Clear grit. Collyer, R. (My '14)
 Clear waters. Bradley, A. G. (Ja '15)
 Cleek of Scotland Yard. Hanshew, T. W. (Ap '14)

- Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, 69-30 B. C.
Weigall, A. E.: P. E. Life and times of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt. (O '14)
- Clio, a muse. Trevelyan, G. M. (Mr '14)
- Clocks and watches
Cescinsky, H., and Webster, M. R. English domestic clocks. (Jl '14)
- Clothing and dress
Winterburn, F. M. Principles of correct dress. (Jl '14)
- Cloudesley Tempest, Watson, E. H.: L. (F '15)
- Club-makers and club-members. Escott, T.: H. S. (S '14)
- Club woman's handybook of programs and club management. Roberts, K. L., comp. (Je '14)
- Clubs
Escott, T.: H. S. Club-makers and club-members. (S '14)
- Clutch of circumstance. Osmun, L. G. (Ap '14)
- Coal mines and mining
Burns, D. Safety in coal mines. (Ja '14)
Cantrill, T.: C. Coal mining. (O '14)
Coasting Bohemia. Carr, J. W.: C. (D '14)
- Coleridge, Samuel Taylor, 1772-1834
Knight, W.: A. Coleridge and Wordsworth in the West country. (Ag '14)
- Colette in France. McDonald, E. A. (Ja '14)
- Collected literary essays, classical and modern. Verrall, A. W. (Je '14)
- Collected studies in Greek and Latin scholarship. Verrall, A. W. (Je '14)
- Collecting of accounts
Cassell, R. J. Art of collecting. (Ja '14)
- Collectivist state in the making. Davies, E. (D '14)
- Collectors and collecting
Conway, M. Sport of collecting. (Ja '15)
Joline, A. H. Rambles in autograph land. (Ja '14)
Vallois, G. M. First steps in collecting. (Mr '14)
Yoxall, J. H.: More about collecting. (D '14)
- College Chaucer. MacCracken, H.: N., ed. (Je '14)
- College men without money. Riddle, C. B., ed. (F '15)
- College students
Fitch, A. P. College course and the preparation for life. (F '15)
Lockwood, F. C., comp. Freshman and his college. (Ja '14)
Riddle, C. B., ed. College men without money. (F '15)
- Colleges and universities
Thwing, C.: F. American college. (Ag '14)
- Colonial architecture for those about to build. Wise, H. C., and Beidleman, H.: F. (Mr '14)
- Colonial mansions of Maryland and Delaware. Hammond, J.: M. (Ja '15)
- Colonies
Hearnshaw, F. J.: C., ed. King's college lectures on colonial problems. (Ag '14)
- Colonising activities of the English Puritans. Newton, A. P. (Jl '14)
- Color prints
Salaman, M. C.: French color prints of the 18th century. (Mr '14)
- Colour decoration of architecture. Ward, J.: S. (14)
- Colour of the East. Washburn, E. (F '14)
- Colorado river
Grand Canyon
Kolb, E. L.: Through the Grand Canyon. (Ja '15)
- Columbia university
Keppel, F.: P. Columbia. (Jl '14)
"Come unto these yellow sands." Woods, M. L. (F '15)
- Comedies of Holberg. Campbell, O. J., jr. (Mr '14)
- Comedy of manners. Palmer, J.: (Je '14)
- Comic kingdom. Pickthall, R. (My '14)
- Coming back with the spitball. Hopper, J. (Mr '14)
- Coming Hawaii. Goodrich, J. K. (Je '14)
- Coming of Cassidy. Mulford, C. E.: (Ja '14)
- Commerce
Brown, H. G.: International trade and exchange. (F '15)
- Commercial correspondence and postal information. Altmaier, C. L.: (Mr '14)
- Commercial education in Germany. Farrington, F.: B. (Jl '14)
- Commercial gardening. Weathers, J.: ed. (Ap '14)
- Commodore. Peterson, M. H. (F '15)
- Common-sense golf. Clarke, C.: and Gilbert, M. (Je '14)
- Common-sense in law. Vinogradoff, P. (My '14)
- Community and the citizen. Dunn, A. W.: (F '15)
- Commuter's garden. Hayward, W. B., ed. (Ap '14)
- Complete athletic trainer. Mussabini, S. A., and Ranson, C.: (Je '14)
- Complete Hoyle. Foster, R. F.: (Ja '15)
- Compressed air
Ivens, E. M.: Pumping by compressed air. (Ja '15)
Richards, F.: Compressed air practice. (Mr '14)
Simons, T.: Compressed air. (D '14)
- Comrade of Navarre. Hobson, H. M. (F '15)
- Comstock, Anthony, 1844-
Trumbull, C.: G. Anthony Comstock, fighter. (Mr '14)
- Concept of consciousness. Holt, E. B. (D '14)
- Concerning justice. Emery, L. A. (Ja '15)
- Concessions. Schiff, S. (Mr '14)
- Concise dictionary of proper names and notable matters in the works of Dante. Toinbee, P. J. (F '15)
- Concordance to the poetical and dramatic works of Alfred, lord Tennyson. Baker, A. E., ed. (D '14)
- Concrete construction
Cochran, J.: Treatise on the inspection of concrete construction. (S '14)
- Conder, Charles, 1868-1909
Gibson, F.: Charles Conder. (My '14)
- Conduct of life
Cabot, R.: C. Christian approach to social morality. (F '14)
Call, A. P.: How to live quietly. (O '14)
Cooper, H. H., ed. Right living. (N '14)
Desmond, H. J.: Larger values that make for the well rounded life. (Ja '14)
Edwards, A.: Our common road. (Mr '14)
Gladden, W.: Live and learn. (Ja '15)
Wells, A. R.: Reaching up and out. (Mr '14)
Wilcox, E.: Art of being alive. (S '14)
- Confederate portraits. Bradford, G. (Jl '14)
- Confederation of Europe. Phillips, W. A.: (D '14)
- Confession of a fool. Strindberg, A. (My '14)
- Conflicting principles in teaching and how to adjust them. McMurray, C.: A. (S '14)
- Congo and other poems. Lindsay, N. V. (Ja '15)
- Congresswoman. Curtis, I. (Je '14)
- Connecticut
Clark, G.: L. History of Connecticut. (S '14)
- Conquerors of Mexico. Gilbert, H.: (F '15)
- Conquest of Mount McKinley. Browne, B. (Ja '14)
- Conquest of the tropics. Adams, F.: U. (Ag '14)
- Conrad, Joseph, 1857-
Curle, R.: Joseph Conrad. (Ag '14)
- Conscience
Rashdall, H.: Is conscience an emotion? (F '15)
- Consciousness
Holt, E. B.: Concept of consciousness. (D '14)
- Consolation
Hall, B.: Mastery of grief. (Ja '14)
- Constantine I, the Great, emperor of Rome, 306-337
Coleman, C. B.: Constantine the Great and Christianity. (F '15)
- Constitution of matter. Ames, J. S. (Ja '14)
- Constructive basis for theology. Ten Broeke, J. (D '14)
- Constructive natural theology. Smyth, N. (F '14)
- Consular treaty rights and comments on the "most favored nation" clause. Ludwig, E. (Ag '14)
- Contemporary American history, 1877-1913. Beard, C.: A. (My '14)
- Continent of Europe. Lyde, L. W.: (Ja '14)

- Continental drama of to-day. Clark, B. H. (Jl '14)
- Continuation committee conferences in Asia, 1912-13. Mott, J. R., ed. (Ag '14)
- Continuous and alternating current machinery. Morecroft, J. H. (Ag '14)
- Control of water as applied to irrigation, power and town water supply purposes. Parker, P. (My '14)
- Conventions of auction bridge. Whitehead, W. C. (Ja '15)
- Cookery
- Conley, E. Principles of cooking. (N '14)
- Gillmore, M. Meatless cookery. (F '15)
- Harbison, E. G., comp. Low cost recipes. (O '14)
- Hill, J. M. American cook book. (Ag '14)
- Pearse, C. M. Kitchen garden and the cook. (S '14)
- Price, H., pseud. Table decorations and delicacies. (Jl '14)
- Williams, M. M. Dishes and beverages of the old South. (Mr '14)
- Co-operation
- Fay, C: R. Copartnership in industry. (My '14)
- Roberts, I: Looking forward. (Je '14)
- Coöperation in agriculture. Wolff, H: W. (Ap '14)
- Co-partnership and profit-sharing. Williams, A. (Mr '14)
- Copartnership in industry. Fay, C: R. (My '14)
- Copper
- Hofman, H: O. Metallurgy of copper. (Ja '15)
- Copy-cat. Freeman, M. E. (O '14)
- Cordelia Blossom. Chester, G: R. (Jl '14)
- Cork
- Stecher, G. E. Cork: its origin and industrial uses. (D '14)
- Corner-stone of education. Lyttleton, E: (Jl '14)
- Corporate promotions and reorganizations. Dewing, A. S. (Ag '14)
- Corporations
- Hayes, H. V. Public utilities. (F '14)
- Cosin, John, 1595-1672
- Osmond, P. H. Life of John Cosin. (My '14)
- Cosmology
- Carus, P. Mechanistic principle and the non-mechanical. (Ap '14)
- Cost of a promise. Reynolds, G. M. (N '14)
- Cost of living
- Nearing, S. Reducing the cost of living. (O '14)
- Reeves, M. S. Round about a pound a week. (Je '14)
- Cost of wings. Graves, C. I. M. (Je '14)
- Costume
- Hughes, T. Dress design. (Mr '14)
- Country houses. Embury, A., II. (Ja '15)
- Country life
- Cubberley, E. P. Rural life and education. (Jl '14)
- Curtis, H: S. Play and recreation for the open country. (Ap '14)
- Country of "The ring and the book." Treves, F: (My '14)
- County library. Antrim, S. and E. I. (Jl '14)
- Courts
- Bizzell, W: B. Judicial interpretation of political theory. (O '14)
- Davis, H. A. Judicial veto. (Ja '15)
- Haines, C: G. American doctrine of judicial supremacy. (Mr '14)
- Courtship of animals. Pycraft, W: P. (Ap '14)
- Cradle of mankind. Wigram, W: A. and E. T. A. (D '14)
- Craft of hand-made rugs. Hicks, A. M. (Je '14)
- Credit
- Hagerty, J. E: Mercantile credit. (F '14)
- Creeds
- Briggs, C: A: Theological symbolics. (S '14)
- Crete
- Trevor-Battye, A. B. R. Camping in Crete. (Je '14)
- Crime and criminals
- American academy of medicine. Physical bases of crime. (D '14)
- Garofalo, R. Criminology. (My '14)
- Henderson, C: R. Cause and cure of crime. (Ja '15)
- Macfarlane, P. C. Those who have come back. (Ja '15)
- Crime and punishment. Dostoevski, F. M. (D '14)
- Crime doctor. Hornung, E. W: (S '14)
- Criminology. Garofalo, R. (My '14)
- Crimson fist. Neland, O. H. (My '14)
- Cripples
- Reeves, E. G. Care and education of crippled children in the United States. (F '15)
- Crisis of morals. Begbie, H. (Ag '14)
- Critical study of Beethoven's nine symphonies. Berlioz, H. (Ap '14)
- Criticism. Brownell, W: C. (Ja '15)
- Cross trails. Whitaker, H. (Ag '14)
- Crowds jr. Lee, G. S. (F '14)
- Cruise of the Janet Nichol among the South Sea islands. Stevenson, F. O. (D '14)
- Cry of youth. Kemp, H. (F '15)
- Cuba
- Verrill, A. H. Cuba, past and present. (F '15)
- Cubists and post-impressionism. Eddy, A. J. (F '15)
- Cuddy Yarrowborough's daughter. Silberrad, U. L. (My '14)
- Culture of ancient Israel. Cornill, C. H: (S '14)
- Cured! Dunne, B. B. (F '15)
- Curing Christopher. Tremlett, H. (Je '14)
- Curious lore of precious stones. Kunz, G: F: (Ja '14)
- Currency question
- Conway, T., jr., and Patterson, E. M. Operation of the new bank act. (Mr '14)
- Curves of life. Cook, T. A. (F '15)
- Cutlery trades. Lloyd, G. I: H. (Ag '14)
- Cyclopedia of American government. McLaughlin, A. C., and Hart, A. B., eds. (S '14)
- Cyclopedia of education. Monroe, P., ed. (Ap '14)
- Dairying
- Murray, J. A. Chemistry of cattle feeding and dairying. (D '14)
- Dalmatia
- Moqué, A. L. Delightful Dalmatia. (Ja '15)
- Damaged goods. Sinclair, U. B. (Ag '14)
- "Dame Curtsey's" book of candy making. Glover, E. H. (Ag '14)
- "Dame Curtsey's" book of games for children. Glover, E. H. (D '14)
- Dancing
- Castle, V. and I. Modern dancing. (Ap '14)
- Kinney, T. and M. W. The dance. (My '14)
- Kinney, T. and M. W. Social dancing of to-day. (Je '14)
- Rath, E. Æsthetic dancing. (D '14)
- Whitworth, G. Art of Nijinsky. (Ap '14)
- Danny Fists. Camp, W. C. (Ja '14)
- Dante Alighieri, 1265-1321
- Carpenter, W: B. Spiritual message of Dante. (S '14)
- Garrod, H. B. Dante, Goethe's Faust and other lectures. (Je '14)
- Toynbee, P. J. Concise dictionary of proper names of notable matters in the works of Dante. (F '15)
- Dare we be Christians? Rauschenbusch, W. (F '15)
- Dark Hollow. Green, A. K. (F '14)
- Darkness and dawn. England, G: A. (Mr '14)
- Dartmouth college
- Quint, W. D. Story of Dartmouth. (F '15)
- Daughter of love. Key, Mrs. K. J. (Jl '14)
- Dawn of Christianity. Martin, A. W. (F '15)
- Day in old Athens. Davis, W: S. (O '14)
- Day that changed the world. Begbie, H. (S '14)
- Day with father. Leupp, F. E. (My '14)
- Days in Attica. Bosanquet, E. (Jl '14)
- Days in the open. Crandall, L. A: (N '14)
- Deaf and dumb
- Best, H. Deaf. (Jl '14)
- Harry, G. Man's miracle. (Ap '14)
- Death
- Maeterlinck, M. Our eternity. (Mr '14)
- Death of a nobody. Romain, J. (F '15)

Debating

- Ketcham, V.: A. Theory and practice of argumentation and debate. (O '14)
 Lyon, L. S.: Elements of debating. (Mr '14)
 Decline and fall of Napoleon. Wolseley, G. J. W. (F '15)

Decoration of the school and home. Dillaway, T. M. (Ja '15)

Dedications. Brown, M. E., comp. (Mr '14)
 Deering at Princeton. Griswold, L. (Ja '14)

De La Ramée, Louise (Ouida, pseud.), 1840-1908
 Lee, E. Ouida. (D '14)

Delia Blanchflower. Ward, M. A. (N '14)

Delightful Dalmatia. Moqué, A. L. (Ja '15)

Demi-gods. Stephens, J. (D '14)

Democracy

Cleveland, F.: A. Organized democracy. (Ja '14)

Croly, H. D.: Progressive democracy. (D '14)

Democracy and race friction. Mecklin, J.: M. (Ag '14)

Democracy in New Zealand. Siegfried, A. (Ap '14)

Democratic Rhine-maid. Gifford, F. K. (O '14)

Demonology

Seymour, St. J.: D. Irish witchcraft and demonology. (My '14)

Demosthenes and the last days of Greek freedom, 384-322 B. C. Pickard-Cambridge, A. W. (S '14)

Department of state of the United States. Hunt, G. (O '14)

Deposits of the useful minerals and rocks. Bayschlag, F. H.: A., and others. (F '15)

Desert and Mrs. Ajax. Moffat, E.: S. (Je '14)

Design

Rhead, G.: W. Principles of design. (My '14)

Design and construction in wood. Noyes, W.: (My '14)

Design in landscape gardening. Root, R. R., and Kelley, C.: F. (F '15)

Desserts

Larned, L. One hundred cold desserts. (My '14)

Deuces wild. MacGrath, H. (Ja '14)

Deutschland über alles. Chapman, J.: J., comp. (Ja '15)

Development of American nationality. Fish, C. R. (Je '14)

Development of English theology in the nineteenth century. Storr, V. F. (My '14)

Devil's garden. Maxwell, W.: B. (Ja '14)

Dialogues concerning two new sciences. Galilei, G. (S '14)

Diamond story book. Coussens, P. W., comp. (D '14)

Diane and her friends. Hardy, A. S. (N '14)

Diane of the green van. Dalrymple, L. (My '14)

Dickens, Charles, 1812-1870

Browne, E. Phiz and Dickens as they appeared to Edgar Browne. (O '14)

Fitzgerald, P. H. Memories of Charles Dickens. (My '14)

Jaques, E. T. Charles Dickens in Chancery. (O '14)

Keim, A., and Lumet, L.: Charles Dickens. (O '14)

Dictionary of abbreviations. Rogers, W. T. (Je '14)

Dictionary of applied chemistry. Thorpe, E.: (Je '14)

Dictionary of Irish artists. Strickland, W. G. (Ap '14)

Dictionary of medieval romance and romance writers. Spence, L.: (S '14)

Diplomacy

Hill, D.: J. History of diplomacy in the international development of Europe. (S '14)

Diplomatic history of the war. Price, M. P., ed. (F '15)

Dirk. Marchand, A. B. (Ja '14)

Disarmament

Reely, M. K., comp. World peace. (Jl '14)

Disease and its causes. Councilman, W.: T. (Mr '14)

Diseases of tropical plants. Cook, M. T. (Ag '14)

Dishes and beverages of the old South. Williams, M. M. (Mr '14)

Dr. Llewellyn and his friends. Stanley, C. (D '14)

Doctrine of judicial review. Corwin, E.: S. (F '15)

Documents illustrative of international law. Lawrence, T.: J., comp. (Ja '15)

Dodo's daughter. Benson, E. F.: (Ap '14)

Doers. Hopkins, W.: J. (F '15)

Dogs

Lemmon, R. S. Training the dog. (Je '14)

Domestic science

Butler, A. M. Household physics. (N '14)

Campbell, M. G. Textbook of domestic science for high schools. (My '14)

Kinne, H., and Cooley, A. M. Foods and household management. (Mr '14)

Lynde, C. J.: Physics of the household. (N '14)

Snell, J.: F. Elementary household chemistry. (Ag '14)

Story, J. For the comfort of the family. (F '15)

Dominant passion. Bryant, M. (Ja '14)

Dominican republic

Verrill, A. H. Porto Rico, past and present, and San Domingo of to-day. (D '14)

Dons of the old pueblo. Cooney, P. J.: (Ja '15)

Doubtful character. Reynolds, G. M. (Ap '14)

Drama

Andrews, C. Drama to-day. (F '14)

Burton, R.: How to see a play. (Ja '15)

Chandler, F. W. Aspects of modern drama. (F '15)

Clark, B. H. Continental drama of to-day. (Jl '14)

Cornford, F. M. Origin of Attic comedy. (D '14)

Flewelling, R. T. Christ and the dramas of doubt. (My '14)

Forsythe, R. S. Relations of Shirley's plays to the Elizabethan drama. (F '15)

Hamilton, C. M. Studies in stagecraft. (My '14)

Henderson, A. Changing drama. (Ja '15)

Palmer, J.: Comedy of manners. (Je '14)

Peers, E. A. Elizabethan drama and its mad folk. (Jl '14)

Dramas
 Andreieff, L. N. Savva, and The life of man. (Ag '14)

Barrie, J. M.: "Der tag." (F '15)

Barrie, J. M.: Half hours. (D '14)

Björnson, B. Plays. (Ag '14)

Bonnet, T. F. Friend of the people. (Ja '15)

Brownell, A. Unseen empire. (O '14)

Bryner, W. Little king. (Ja '15)

Bryner, W. Tiger. (Ja '14)

Chesterton, G. K. Magic. (F '14)

Clark, B. H., tr. Four plays of the Free theater. (F '15)

Dickinson, T.: H., ed. Wisconsin plays. (Ja '15)

Dunsany, E.: J. M. D. P. Five plays. (Jl '14)

Echeagaray y Eizaguirre, J. Great Galeoto. (S '14)

Ellis, E. Mary Jane's pa. (N '14)

Francis, J. O. Change. (D '14)

Galsworthy, J.: The fugitive. (Mr '14)

Galsworthy, J.: Mob. (Ag '14)

Galsworthy, J.: Plays; 3d series. (O '14)

Gayley, C.: M., ed. Representative English comedies. (N '14)

Giacosa, G. The stronger; Like falling leaves; Sacred ground. (Je '14)

Guimerá, A. Marta of the lowlands. (F '15)

Hagedorn, H., jr. Makers of madness. (D '14)

Hauptmann, G. J. R. Dramatic works. (Je '14)

Hervieu, P. E. Labyrinth. (F '14)

Howard, G.: F. B.-. Red light of Mars. (Je '14)

Howard, K. Candle flame. (S '14)

Ibsen, S. Robert Frank. (Ja '15)

Jones, H.: A. Mary goes first. (S '14)

Kennedy, C.: R. The idol-breaker. (Ap '14)

Kenyon, C.: Kindling. (Ap '14)

Kinross, M. Tristram and Isoult. (S '14)

Long, L. A. Radisson, the voyageur. (F '15)

MacKaye, P. Thousand years ago. (Ap '14)

MacMillan, M. L. Short plays. (F '14)

Manners, J. H. Happiness. (Ja '15)

Masefield, J.: Tragedy of Pompey the Great. (Je '14)

Merington, M. Festival plays. (Mr '14)

Middleton, G.: Nowadays. (Ap '14)

Noyes, A. Rada. (D '14)

- Parker, L: N. Joseph and his brethren. (Ap '14)
- Peabody, J. P. Wolf of Gubbio. (Ja '14)
- Putnam, N. W. Orthodoxy. (F '15)
- Roberts, M. G. Foot of the rainbow. (F '15)
- Robinson, E. A. Van Zorn. (D '14)
- Rogers, M. D. The gift. (Ap '14)
- Shakespeare, W: Principle plays. (F '15)
- Shaw, G: B. Misalliance. (D '14)
- Sheldon, E: B. Romance. (D '14)
- Strindberg, A: Plays: Swanwhite, Advent, The storm. (Mr '14)
- Tagore, R. Chitra. (Ap '14)
- Tagore, R. King of the dark chamber. (D '14)
- Tagore, R. Post office. (Ag '14)
- Thomas, A. E. Her husband's wife. (Jl '14)
- Three modern plays from the French. (D '14)
- Wade, M. H. Little folks' plays of American heroes. (F '15)
- Walker, A. J. Little plays from American history for young folks. (F '15)
- Wells, C. Jolly plays for holidays. (O '14)
- Williams, J. L. "And so they were married." (D '14)
- Dramatic portraits. Howe, P. P. (S '14)
- Dramatists
- Henderson, A. European dramatists. (Ja '14)
- Monahan, M. Nova Hibernia. (Jl '14)
- Dread of responsibility. Faguet, E. (Ja '15)
- Dream doctor. Reeve, A. B: (Jl '14)
- Dreams
- Bergson, H: L. Dreams. (Ag '14)
- Dresden
- Van Dyke, J: C. Berlin, Dresden: critical notes on the Kaiser-Friedrich museum and the Royal gallery, Dresden. (Je '14)
- Dress design. Hughes, T. (Mr '14)
- Drift and mastery. Lippmann, W. (D '14)
- Dry fly and fast water. La Branche, G: M. L. (Je '14)
- Dryden, John, 1631-1700
- Verrall, A. W. Lectures on Dryden. (Jl '14)
- Duchess of Wrexhe. Walpole, H. (Ag '14)
- Duke of Oblivion. Scott, J: R. (O '14)
- Dutch days. Hall, M. E. (N '14)
- Dutch East Indies
- Walcott, A. S. Java and her neighbors. (My '14)
- Dynamics
- Lamb, H. Dynamics. (S '14)
- Dyspepsia
- Dunne, B. B. Cured! (F '15)
- E. Hinckley, J. (Je '14)
- Early American churches. Embury, A., II. (Ja '15)
- Early days on the Yukon and the story of its gold finds. Ogilvie, W: (Ap '14)
- Early New England schools. Small, W. H. (F '15)
- Earmarks of literature. Bostwick, A. E. (Mr '14)
- Earth
- Gibson, C: R. Great ball on which we live. (F '15)
- Earth-hunger. Sumner, W: G. (Ja '14)
- Earthquakes
- Walker, G: W. Modern seismology. (Je '14)
- Earth triumphant. Aiken, C. (F '15)
- East Christian paintings in the Freer collection. Morey, C: R. (F '15)
- East I know. Claudel, P. (F '15)
- East of the shadows. Barclay, E. N. (My '14)
- East of the sun and west of the moon. Quiller-Couch, A. T: (F '15)
- Eastern question (Balkan)
- Sloane, W: M. Balkans. (Ag '14)
- Economic conditions
- Gathering storm. (Ap '14)
- Economic history of Russia. Mavor, J. (S '14)
- Economic organization of England. Ashley, W: J. (O '14)
- Economic synthesis. Loria, A. (Ag '14)
- Economics
- Bilgram, H., and Levy, L: E: Cause of business depressions. (Ag '14)
- Croce, B. Philosophy of the practical, economic and ethic. (F '14)
- Gide, C: Political economy. (Ja '15)
- Hobson, J: A. Work and wealth. (S '14)
- Knoop, D. Outlines of railway engineering. (My '14)
- Loria, A. Economic synthesis. (Ag '14)
- Marshall, L. C., and others, eds. Materials for the study of elementary economics. (Mr '14)
- Penson, T: H. Economics of everyday life. (Je '14)
- Sumner, W: G. Earth-hunger. (Ja '14)
- Economics and syndicalism. Kirkaldy, A. W. (O '14)
- Economics of efficiency. Brisco, N. A. (F '15)
- Economics of enterprise. Davenport, H. J. (Mr '14)
- Economics of interurban railways. Fischer, L: E. (Ag '14)
- Ecuador
- Enock, C. R. Ecuador. (Jl '14)
- Edge of the woods, and other papers. Humphrey, Z. (Ap '14)
- Educating the child at home. Lynch, E. F. (Ag '14)
- Education
- Cabot, E. L. Volunteer help to the schools. (O '14)
- Darroch, A. Education and the new utilitarianism. (D '14)
- Eggleston, J. D., and Bruère, R. W. Work of the rural school. (Ja '14)
- Eliot, C: W: Tendency to the concrete and practical in modern education. (Je '14)
- Emerson, M. I. Evolution of the educational ideal. (Ag '14)
- Foerster, N., and others. Essays for college men. (Ja '14)
- Graves, F. P. History of education in modern times. (Mr '14)
- Hanus, P: H: School efficiency. (Ap '14)
- Henderson, C: H. What is it to be educated? (Jl '14)
- Holmes, E. G. A. Tragedy of education. (Je '14)
- Monroe, P., ed. Cyclopedia of education (Ap '14)
- England
- Jackson, C. Outlines of education in England. (My '14)
- New England
- Small, W. H. Early New England schools. (F '15)
- Norway
- Anderson, D: A. School system of Norway. (Je '14)
- Education, Elementary
- Holmes, E. G. A. In defence of what might be. (F '15)
- Legge, J. G. Thinking hand. (Ja '15)
- Plasted, L. L. Handwork and its place in early education. (Ja '14)
- Education, Higher
- Thwing, C: F. American college. (Ag '14)
- Education, Secondary
- De Garino, C: Principles of secondary education. (Mr '14)
- King, I. High-school age. (O '14)
- Monroe, P., ed. Principles of secondary education. (F '15)
- Education of children
- Lynch, E. F. Educating the child at home. (Ag '14)
- Lytelton, E: Corner-stone of education. (Jl '14)
- Stoner, W. S. Natural education. (O '14)
- Winterburn, F. M. Mother in education. (F '15)
- Witte, K:, sr. Education of Karl Witte. (Je '14)
- Education of women
- Brown, H. D. Talks to freshman girls. (N '14)
- Burton, M. E. Education of women in Japan. (S '14)
- Taylor, J. M. Before Vassar opened. (Jl '14)
- Thwing, C: F. Letters from a father to his daughter entering college. (Mr '14)
- Educational metalcraft. Davidson, P. W. (Ag '14)

- Edward II, king of England, 1284-1327
Tout, T. F. Place of the reign of Edward II in English history. (O '14)
- Edward VII, king of England, 1841-1910
Legge, E. More about King Edward. (My '14)
- Efficiency, Industrial
Brisco, N. A. Economics of efficiency. (F '15)
Schulze, J. W. American office. (Ja '14)
- Efficient kitchen. Child, G. B. (My '14)
- Ego and its place in the world. Shaw, C. G. (Ag '14)
- Egotistical I. Tompkins, E. W. (Ja '14)
- Egypt
Budge, E. A. T. W. Short history of the Egyptian people. (D '14)
Cooper, C. S. Man of Egypt. (Ja '14)
Cooper, E. Women of Egypt. (O '14)
Crouse, M. E. Out of Egypt. (Jl '14)
Low, S. J. M. Egypt in transition. (Ap '14)
Scott-Moncrieff, P. D. Paganism and Christianity in Egypt. (S '14)
- Egyptian literature
Budge, E. A. T. W. Literature of the ancient Egyptians. (D '14)
- Eight years in Germany. Wylie, I. A. R. (O '14)
- Eighteen nineties. Jackson, H. (F '14)
- Eighteen thousand words often mispronounced. Phylfe, W. H. P. (Je '14)
- Elba
Pickthall, R. Comic kingdom. (My '14)
- Electric apparatus and appliances
Shafer, D. C. Harper's every-day electricity. (D '14)
Electric arcs. Child, C. D. (Ja '14)
Electric cooking, heating and cleaning. Lancaster, M. (Ja '15)
- Electric currents, Alternating
Jackson, D. C. and J. P. Alternating currents and alternating current machinery. (Ja '14)
- Electric engineering
Croft, T. W., comp. American electricians' handbook. (Jl '14)
Gray, A. Principles and practice of electrical engineering. (F '15)
Pender, H., ed. American handbook for electrical engineers. (F '15)
- Juvenile and popular literature
Morgan, A. P. Boy electrician. (D '14)
- Electric lamps
Ogley, D. H. Incandescent electric lamps. (Ag '14)
- Electric machinery
Jackson, D. C. and J. P. Alternating currents and alternating current machinery. (Ja '14)
Morecroft, J. H. Continuous and alternating current machinery. (Ag '14)
- Electric power transmission
Still, A. Overhead electric power transmission. (Ja '14)
- Electric railroads
Fischer, L. E. Economics of interurban railways. (Ag '14)
- Electric wire and wiring
Wiring diagrams of electrical apparatus and installations. (My '14)
- Electricity
Gibson, C. R. Our good slave electricity. (F '15)
Gibson, C. R. Wonders of modern electricity. (Mr '14)
Hughes, A. L. Photo-electricity. (Ag '14)
Jansky, C. M. Elementary magnetism and electricity. (Ja '15)
Shafer, D. C. Harper's beginning electricity. (Ja '14)
Thomson, J. J. Rays of positive electricity and their application to chemical analyses. (Je '14)
- Electrons
Allen, H. S. Photo-electricity. (S '14)
Elementary household chemistry. Snell, J. F. (Ag '14)
Elementary magnetism and electricity. Jansky, C. M. (Ja '15)

- Elementary principles of general biology. Abbott, J. F. (S '14)
- Elementary studies in botany. Coulter, J. M. (Ap '14)
- Elements of debating. Lyon, L. S. (Mr '14)
- Elements of general science. Caldwell, O. W., and Eikenberry, W. L. (F '15)
- Elements of specification writing. Kirby, R. S. (My '14)
- Elements of water bacteriology. Prescott, S. C., and Winslow, C. E. A. (My '14)
- Elizabeth, queen of England, 1533-1603
Locke, G. E. Queen Elizabeth. (Mr '14)
Mumby, F. A. Elizabeth and Mary Stuart. (My '14)
- Elizabeth, Betsy, and Bess. Blanchard, A. E. (Mr '14)
- Elizabethan drama and its mad folk. Peers, E. A. (Jl '14)
- Elizabethan literature. Robertson, J. M. (D '14)
- Elizabethan rogues and vagabonds. Aydelotte, F. (Jl '14)
- Embroidery
Wilkinson, M. E. Embroidery stitches. (Je '14)
- Embryology
Kellicott, W. E. Textbook of general embryology. (My '14)
- Emotions
Shand, A. F. Foundations of character. (S '14)
- Employment systems
Blackford, K. M. H., and Newcomb, A. W. Job, the man, the boss. (Jl '14)
- Enamel and enameling
Davidson, P. W. Educational metalcraft. (Ag '14)
Marvon, H. Metalwork and enamelling. (Je '14)
- Enchantment of art. Phillips, D. C., jr. (F '15)
- Encounter. Sedgwick, A. D. (N '14)
- Encyclopaedia of religion and ethics. Hastings, J., ed. (Je '14)
- Encyclopaedia of the philosophical sciences. Windelband, W., and Ruge, A., eds. (Je '14)
- Encyclopedias
Hopkins, A. A., and Bond, A. R., eds. Scientific American reference book (Mr '14)
End of the trail. Powell, E. A. (F '15)
Engineering geology. Ries, H., and Watson, T. L. (D '14)
- England
- Description and travel
Abraham, G. D. Motor ways in Lakeland. (Mr '14)
Fea, A. Quiet roads and sleepy villages. (Jl '14)
Grant, A. In the old paths. (Je '14)
Hissey, J. J. Leisurely tour in England. (Ja '14)
Hutton, E. England of my heart: Spring. (F '15)
Hutton, W. H. Highways and byways in Shakespeare's country. (Jl '14)
Osborne, A. B. As it is in England. (Ja '14)
Rawnsley, H. D. Chapters at the English lakes. (Mr '14)
Rawnsley, W. F. Highways and byways in Lincolnshire. (F '15)
- Economic conditions
Ashley, W. J. Economic organization of England. (O '14)
- Industries and resources
Salzmann, L. F. English industries of the middle ages. (Ja '14)
- Social life and customs
Aydelotte, F. Elizabethan rogues and vagabonds. (Jl '14)
Berry, M. and A. Berry papers. (N '14)
Salzmann, L. F. Mediaeval byways. (Mr '14)
- England in the later middle ages. Vickers, K. H. (Ag '14)
- England since Waterloo. Marriott, J. A. R. (Mr '14)
- English domestic clocks. Cescinsky, H., and Webster, M. R. (Jl '14)
- English drama
Boyer, C. V. Villain as hero in Elizabethan tragedy. (S '14)

- Howe, P. P. Dramatic portraits. (S '14)
 Nettleton, G. H. English drama of the restoration and eighteenth century (1642-1780). (My '14)
 Schelling, F. E. English drama. (F '15)
 English historical literature in the fifteenth century. Kingsford, C. L. (Je '14)
 English industries of the middle ages. Salzmann, L. F. (Ja '14)
 English language
 Skeat, W. W., comp. Glossary of Tudor and Stuart words. (My '14)
 Wright, E. M. Rustic speech and folk-lore. (F '15)

Composition

- Davis, R., and Lingham, C. H. Business English and correspondence. (N '14)
 Utter, R. P. Guide to good English. (D '14)
 English literature
 Cambridge history of English literature. (Je, D '14)
 Chubb, E. W. Masters of English literature. (F '15)
 Kingsford, C. L. English historical literature in the fifteenth century. (Je '14)
 Mair, G. H. Modern English literature. (D '14)
 Robertson, J. M. Elizabethan literature. (D '14)
 Spurgeon, C. F. E. Mysticism in English literature. (Je '14)
 Verrall, A. W. Collected literary essays, classical and modern. (Je '14)
 Walker, H. and J. Outlines of Victorian literature. (Ja '15)

History and criticism

- Halleck, R. P. Halleck's new English literature. (Mr '14)

Study and teaching

- Pearson, P. H. Study of literature. (Ja '14)
 English local government. Webb, S. and B. (Ja '14)
 English monasteries. Thompson, A. H. (Ap '14)
 English prose. Roe, F. W., and Elliott, G. R., eds. (My '14)
 English travellers of the renaissance. Howard, C. M. (F '14)

Engraving

- Richter, E. H. Prints. (Ja '15)
 Enlarging conception of God. Youtz, H. A. (D '14)

Entertaining

- Dawson, M., and Telford, E. P. Book of entertainments and frolics for all occasions. (O '14)
 Dawson, M., and Telford, E. P. Book of parties and pastimes. (O '14)
 Dav, L. C. Social entertainments. (D '14)
 Dickinson, D., comp. How to entertain your guests. (Ja '15)
 Dickinson, D., comp. More ways of entertaining your guests. (Ja '15)
 Winterburn, F. H., and others. Novel ways of entertaining. (Je '14)

Epic poetry

- Guerber, H. A. Book of the epic. (Ja '14)

Epilepsy

- Woods, M. In spite of epilepsy. (Ag '14)

Erasmus, Desiderius (surnamed Roterdamus), 1465-1536

- Allen, P. S. Age of Erasmus. (S '14)
 Eris. Wagstaff, B. (D '14)
 Erna Vitek. Kreymsborg, A. (S '14)
 Escape of Mr. Trimm. Cobb, I. S. (Ja '14)
 Eskimo twins. Perkins, L. F. (F '15)
 Essays and miscellanies. Auerbach, J. S. (Jl '14)
 Essays for college men. Foerster, N., and others, comps. (Ja '14)
 Essays on books. Phelps, W. L. (Ja '15)
 Essays on faith and immortality. Tyrrell, G. (F '15)
 Essays on Milton. Thompson, E. N. S. (F '15)
 Essays on truth and reality. Bradley, F. H. (Ag '14)
 Essence of astronomy. Putnam, E. W. (Ag '14)
 Essentials in music history. Tapper, T., and Goetschius, P. (F '15)

- Establishment of state government in California, 1846-1850. Goodwin, C. (S '14)

Esthetics

- Carritt, E. F. Theory of beauty. (Ja '15)
 Griggs, E. H. Philosophy of art. (F '14)
 Lee, V., pseud. The beautiful. (My '14)

Etchers

- Salaman, M. C. Great painter-etchers from Rembrandt to Whistler. (Je '14)

Etching

- Plowman, G. T. Etching and other graphic arts. (Ja '15)
 Reed, E. H. Etching. (Ja '15)
 Eternal priestess. Weale, B. L. P., pseud. (D '14)

Ethics

- Croce, B. Philosophy of the practical, economic and ethic. (F '14)
 Crothers, S. M. Three lords of destiny. (F '14)
 De Laguna, T. Introduction to the science of ethics. (F '15)
 Drake, D. Problems of conduct. (F '15)
 Eucken, R. C. Ethics and modern thought. (F '14)
 Hastings, J., ed. Encyclopedia of religion and ethics. (Je '14)
 Wright, H. W. Self-realization. (Mr '14)

Ethics, Christian

- Alexander, A. B. D. Christianity and ethics. (S '14)

- Ethics and modern thought. Eucken, R. C. (F '14)

Etiquet

- Hall, F. H. Good form for all occasions. (Jl '14)

Eucken, Rudolf Christof, 1846-

- Booth, M. Rudolf Eucken. (Ja '14)

Eugenics

- Jordan, D. S. and H. E. War's aftermath. (N '14)
 Saleeby, C. W. Progress of eugenics. (D '14)

Euripides, 480-406 B. C.

- Murray, G. Euripides and his age. (F '14)

Europe

Description and travel

- Barrett, M. Rambles in Catholic lands. (Ja '15)
 Bennett, A. From the log of the Velsa. (Ja '15)
 Cobb, I. S. Europe revised. (D '14)
 Cole, G. A. J. Growth of Europe. (S '14)
 Howard, C. M. English travellers of the renaissance. (F '14)
 Lee, V., pseud. Tower of the mirrors. (My '14)
 Lyde, L. W. Continent of Europe. (Ja '14)
 Maxwell, D. Adventures with a sketch book. (F '15)
 Mead, W. E. Grand tour in the eighteenth century. (F '15)
 Murphy, T. D. On Old-world highways. (Je '14)
 Shackleton, R. Unvisited places of old Europe. (Mr '14)
 Vrooman, C. S. and J. S. Lure and the lore of travel. (F '15)

History

- Bourne, H. E. Revolutionary period in Europe (1763-1815). (F '15)
 Davis, W. S., and McKendrick, N. S. History of mediaeval and modern Europe for secondary schools. (S '14)
 Grant, A. J. History of Europe. (Mr '14)
 Morris, C. One hundred years of conflict between the nations of Europe. (O '14)
 Parsons, J. H. Historical papers upon men and events of rare interest in the Napoleonic epoch. (O '14)

Politics and government

- Hill, D. J. History of diplomacy in the international development of Europe. (S '14)
 Phillips, W. A. Confederation of Europe. (D '14)

Social life and customs

- Hegemann-Lindencrone, L. de. Sunny side of diplomatic life, 1875-1912. (Ja '15)
 Mencken, H. L., and others. Europe after 8:15. (Jl '14)
 Warwick, A., pseud. Meccas of the world. (Mr '14)

Europe after 8:15. Mencken, H. L., and others. (Jl '14)

European dramatists. Henderson, A. (Ja '14)

European war, 1914-

Adcock, A. S. In the firing line. (Ja '15)

Baldwin, E. F. World war. (F '15)

Beck, J. M. Evidence in the case. (F '15)

Bennett, A. Liberty! (N '14)

Blatchford, R. Germany and England. (Ja '15)

Bourdon, G. German enigma. (Ja '15)

Brereton, C. S. H. Who is responsible? (N '14)

Case of Belgium in the present war. (Ja '15)

Chapman, J. J., comp. Deutschland über alles. (Ja '15)

Cook, E. T. Why Britain is at war. (N '14)

Davis, R. H. With the allies. (Ja '15)

Dillon, E. J. Scrap of paper. (Ja '15)

Doyle, A. C. Great Britain and the next war. (N '14)

Gibbons, H. A. New map of Europe (1911-1914). (D '14)

Hart, A. B. War in Europe. (N '14)

Jefferson, C. E. Cause of the war. (F '15)

Johnson, R., ed. War in Europe. (F '15)

Kennedy, J. M. How the war began. (O '14)

McCabe, J. Treitschke and the great war. (F '15)

Martin, E. S. War week by week. (Ja '15)

Morris, C. One hundred years of conflict between the nations of Europe. (O '14)

Muir, R. Britain's case against Germany. (F '15)

Münsterberg, H. War and America. (N '14)

O'Neill, E. War, 1914. (F '15)

Powell, E. A. Fighting in Flanders. (Ja '15)

Price, M. P., ed. Diplomatic history of the war. (F '15)

Sheip, S. S., ed. Handbook of the European war. (D '14)

Simonds, F. H. Great war. (D '14)

Sladen, D. B. W. Real "Truth about Germany." (N '14)

Whitridge, F. W. One American's opinion of the European war. (F '15)

Why we are at war. (N '14)

Evening and continuation schools

Van Kleeck, M. Working girls in evening schools. (F '15)

Every boy's book of handicraft, sports and amusements. Fraser, C. C. (Mr '14)

Everybody's birthright. Laughlin, C. E. (D '14)

Everyman's garden, every week. Selden, C. A. (Mr '14)

Evidence in the case. Beck, J. M. (F '15)

Evolution

Bateson, W. Problems of genetics. (Ag '14)

Chapin, F. S. Introduction to the study of social evolution. (Ja '14)

Evolution of early Christianity. Case, S. J. (Ja '15)

Evolution of new Japan. Longford, J. H. (Jl '14)

Evolution of the educational ideal. Emerson, M. I. (Ag '14)

Examination of school children. Pyle, W. H. (Je '14)

Excavating machinery. McDaniel, A. B. (Ja '14)

Exercises for women. Bolton, F. (Mr '14)

Expectant motherhood. Ballantyne, J. W. (S '14)

Exploration of the Alps. Lunn, A. H. M. (Ja '15)

Extra-Biblical sources for Hebrew and Jewish history. Mercer, S. A. B., ed. and tr. (My '14)

Eye of dread. Erskine, P. (Mr '14)

Eyes of the world. Wright, H. E. (S '14)

Ezekiel expands. Pratt, L. (F '14)

Faces in the dawn. Hagedorn, H., jr. (N '14)

Factory administration and accounts. Elbourne, E. T. (N '14)

Factory management

Elbourne, E. T. Factory administration and accounts. (N '14)

Kimball, D. S. Principles of industrial organization. (Ja '14)

Facts about Shakespeare. Neilson, W. A., and Thorndike, A. H. (Ja '14)

Facts of socialism. Hughan, J. W. (Ap '14)

Fair haven and foul strand. Strindberg, A. (O '14)

Fairies—here and now. Littlewood, S. R. (S '14)

Fairy tales of eastern Europe. Curtin, J. (Ja '15)

Faith

Flewelling, R. T. Christ and the dramas of doubt. (My '14)

Randolph, J. F. Law of faith. (F '15)

Tyrrell, G. Essays on faith and immortality. (F '15)

Faith of Japan. Harada, T. (My '14)

Faith Tresilion. Philipotts, E. (Ag '14)

Fakers. Blythe, S. G. (Ja '15)

Falconer of God. Benét, W. R. (F '15)

Fall of protection, 1840-1850. Holland, B. H. (Ap '14)

Familiar talks on the history of music. Gantvoort, A. J. (S '14)

Family

Gillette, J. M. Family and society. (Ag '14)

Howard, G. E. Family and marriage. (Ap '14)

Todd, A. J. Primitive family as an educational agency. (Ja '14)

Famous land fights. Atteridge, A. H. (N '14)

Famous war correspondents. Bullard, F. L. (O '14)

Far East

Claudel, P. East I know. (F '15)

Cooper, C. S. Modernizing of the Orient. (Ja '15)

Dickinson, G. L. Appearances. (Ja '15)

Washburn, E. Colour of the East. (F '14)

Far Eastern question

Lazarovich-Hrebellanovich, S. L. E. Orient question to-day and to-morrow. (Ja '14)

Far journey. Rihbany, A. M. (D '14)

Farm animals and farm crops. Nida, W. L. (Ap '14)

Farm arithmetic. Burkett, C. W., and Swartzel, K. D. (Ja '14)

Farm buildings

Eckblaw, K. J. T. Farm structures. (Jl '14)

Sawyer, J. D. How to make a country place. (O '14)

Farm engines

Hirshfeld, C. F., and Ulbricht, T. C. Farm gas engine. (Je '14)

Pagé, V. W. Modern gas tractor. (Mr '14)

Farm gas engines. Hirshfeld, C. F., and Ulbricht, T. C. (Je '14)

Farm life

Whittingham, H. That farm. (Ap '14)

Farm structures. Eckblaw, K. J. T. (Jl '14)

Farm woodlot. Cheyney, E. G., and Wentling, J. P. (Jl '14)

Fascination. Lewis, C. C. (Ja '14)

Fated or free? Slosson, P. W. (F '15)

Father Ralph. O'Donovan, G. (D '14)

Fear

Benson, A. C. Where no fear was. (Jl '14)

Fear and conventionality. Parsons, E. W. (Ja '15)

Federal systems of the United States and the British empire. Poley, A. P. (Mr '14)

Feeble-minded

Goddard, H. H. Feeble-mindedness. (O '14)

Goddard, H. H. School training of defective children. (Ja '15)

Feeding of school children. Bulkley, M. E. (F '15)

Felicidad. Thomas, R. (My '14)

Fences

Butterfield, W. H. Making fences, walls and hedges. (Je '14)

Festival plays. Merington, M. (Mr '14)

Fiction

Pillsbury, H. G. Figures famed in fiction. (My '14)

Walsh, W. S. Heroes and heroines of fiction, modern prose and poetry. (F '15)

Fiddling girl. Campbell, D. R. (Jl '14)

Field crop production. Livingston, G. (O '14)

Fifty caricatures. Beerbohm, M. (Ja '14)

Fighting in Flanders. Powell, E. A. (Ja '15)

Figures famed in fiction. Pillsbury, H. G. (My '14)

Finance

Great Britain

Higgs, H. Financial system of the United Kingdom. (D '14)

Financial history of New York state, 1789-1912. Sowers, D. C. (Ag '14)

United States

- Beard, C. A. American city government. (Ja '13)
- Munro, W. B. Government of American cities. (F '13)
- Robbins, E. C., comp. Selected articles on the commission plan of municipal government. (Ja '13)
- Municipal ownership
Knoop, D. Principles and methods of municipal trading. (Mr '13)
- Murder in any degree. Johnson, O. M. (S '13)
- Muse in exile. Watson, W. (Jl '13)
- Music
Davison, J. W. From Mendelssohn to Wagner. (F '13)
- Music, English
Ford, E. A. C. Short history of English music. (Ja '13)
- Music lovers' cyclopedia. Hughes, R., ed. (My '13)
- Musicians
Aronson, R. Theatrical and musical memoirs. (Ag '13)
- Hughes, R., ed. Music lovers' cyclopedia. (My '13)
- Kellogg, C. L. Memoirs of an American prima donna. (D '13)
- Upton, G. P. In music land. (D '13)
- Muslim Sir Galahad. Dwight, H. O. (Je '13)
- My autobiography. Judith, J. B. (Ap '13)
- My dog and I. Sidney, G. (Ja '13)
- My friends at Brook farm. Sears, J. V. (F '13)
- My lady of the chimney corner. Irvine, A. F. (S '13)
- My Lady Peggy leaves town. Mathews, F. A. (Je '13)
- My life. Bebel, A. (Jl '13)
- My life with the Eskimo. Stefánsson, V. (D '13)
- My little sister. Robins, E. (F '13)
- My Parisian year. Annesley, M. (Ja '13)
- My past. Larisch von Moennich, M. L. E. (Jl '13)
- My Russian year. Reynolds, R. (Je '13)
- My Sudan year. Stevens, E. S. (Ap '13)
- My unknown chum "Aguecheek." Fairbanks, C. B. (Ap '13)
- Myles Calthorpe, I. D. B. Young, F. E. M. (D '13)
- Myself and I. Davis, F. S. (S '13)
- Mystery of the barranca. Whitaker, H. (Ap '13)
- Mystery of 31, New Inn. Freeman, R. A. (Je '13)
- Mystic way. Underhill, E. (O '13)
- Myth of the pent cuckoo. Field, J. E. (Ag '13)
- Mythology, Classical
Baker, E. K. Stories of old Greece and Rome. (N '13)
- Comstock, F. A. Dramatic version of Greek myths and hero tales. (F '13)
- Mythology, Norse
Mortensen, K. A. Handbook of Norse mythology. (My '13)
- Myths of Mexico and Peru. Spence, L. (O '13)
- Myths of the Modocs. Curtin, J. (Ap '13)
- Napier, Lady Sarah (Lennox) Bunbury, 1745-1826
- Hinkson, K. Rose of the garden. (D '13)
- Napoleon I, emperor of the French, 1769-1821
Fisher, H. A. L. Napoleon. (My '13)
- Petre, F. L. Napoleon's last campaign in Germany. (F '13)
- Pillans, T. D. Real martyr of St. Helena. (D '13)
- Rose, J. H. Personality of Napoleon. (Ap '13)
- Napoleonic wars
Fraser, E. War drama of the eagles. (Mr '13)
- Goltz, C. Jena to Eylau. (D '13)
- Narrow way. Findlater, M. (D '13)
- Nation and the empire. Milner, Lord. (O '13)
- National characteristics, American
Reppiler, A. Americans and others. (Mr '13)
- Smart, G. T. Temper of the American people. (F '13)

National gallery, London

- Flitch, J. E. C. National gallery. (My '13)
- National housing association. Academy of political science, N. Y. (Ja '13)
- National supremacy. Corwin, E. S. (O '13)
- Natural history
Townsend, C. W. Sand dunes and salt marshes. (N '13)
- Verrill, A. H. Harper's book for young naturalists. (Jl '13)
- Weed, C. M. Seeing nature first. (Jl '13)
- Natural resources
Fanning, C. E., comp. Selected articles on the conservation of natural resources. (Ap '13)
- Naturalization
Fowler, N. C., jr. How to obtain citizenship. (Jl '13)
- Kallmeyer, C. How to become a citizen of the United States of America. (O '13)
- Nature
Eaton, W. P. Barn doors and byways. (D '13)
- Nature in literature
Geikie, A. Love of nature among the Romans. (F '13)
- Nature of woman. Tayler, J. L. (My '13)
- Nature photography
Dugmore, A. R. Wild life and the camera. (Ja '13)
- Nature study
Claxton, W. J. Lessons from nature's workshop. (N '13)
- Naval history of the American revolution. Allen, G. W. (Je '13)
- Near east. Hichens, R. S. (D '13)
- Necessary evil. Kennedy, C. R. (Ap '13)
- Ned Brewster's bear hunt. Hawkins, C. J. (D '13)
- Negroes
Brawley, B. G. Short history of the American negro. (Je '13)
- Haynes, G. E. Negro at work in New York city. (Mr '13)
- Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount, 1758-1805
Callender, G. A. R. Life of Nelson. (S '13)
- Moorhouse, E. H. Nelson in England. (Ag '13)
- Nelson in England. Moorhouse, E. H. (Ag '13)
- Nervous breakdowns and how to avoid them. Musgrove, C. D. (O '13)
- Nest. Sedgwick, A. D. (My '13)
- Netherlands
Boulger, D. C. D. Holland of the Dutch. (O '13)
- Dawson, A. H. Stories from Dutch history. (N '13)
- Loon, H. W. v. Fall of the Dutch republic. (Ag '13)
- Nevin, Ethelbert Woodbridge, 1862-1901
Thompson, V., ed. Life of Ethelbert Nevin. (D '13)
- New American drama. Burton, R. E. (O '13)
- New book of cookery. Farmer, F. M. (F '13)
- New brooms. Shores, R. J. (D '13)
- New comedies. Gregory, I. A. (Ap '13)
- New competition. Eddy, A. J. (Mr '13)
- New England
Douglas, J. New England and New France. (D '13)
- New freedom. Wilson, W. (Je '13)
- New gardening. Wright, W. P. (My '13)
- New government for the British empire. Bus-sell, F. W. (D '13)
- New Guinea, Dutch
Rawling, C. G. Land of the New Guinea pygmies. (My '13)
- Wollaston, A. F. R. Pygmies and Papuans. (Ja '13)
- New hostess of to-day. Larned, L. (Ap '13)
- New Humpty-Dumpty. Chaucer, D. (F '13)
- New ideals in rural schools. Betts, G. H. (D '13)
- New industrial day. Redfield, W. C. (Ja '13)
- New Leaf Mills. Howells, W. D. (Ap '13)
- New letters of an idle man. Warner, H. J. (N '13)
- New light on the old truth. Dinsmore, C. A. (Mr '13)
- New lives for old. Carleton, W. (My '13)

Frankfort-on-the-Main

Van Dyke, J. C. Munich, Frankfort, Cassel: critical notes on the Old pinacothek, the Staedel institute, the Cassel Royal gallery. (Je '14)

Fraud

Hopkins, T. Romance of fraud. (S '14)
Free hand. Roberts, H. C. (Jl '14)
Freedom and the churches. Wendte, C. W.; ed. (Ap '14)

Frémont, John Charles, 1813-1890

Dellenbaugh, F. S: Frémont and '49. (N '14)
French Canada and the St. Lawrence. Hopkins, J. C. (Mr '14)
French civilization in the nineteenth century. Guérard, A. L. (My '14)

French color prints of the 18th century. Salaman, M. C. (Mr '14)

French revolution. Adams, H. P. (Ja '15)

French revolution. Wheeler, H. F. B. (D '14)

French revolution in San Domingo. Stoddard, T. L. (F '15)

Freshman and his college. Lockwood, F. C., comp. (Ja '14)

Freshman eight. Quirk, L. W. (Ja '14)

Friend of the people. Bonnet, T. F. (Ja '15)

From alien to citizen. Steiner, E. A. (N '14)

From an island outpost. Waller, M. E. (Ap '14)

From Dublin to Chicago. Hannay, J. O. (O '14)

From Locke to Montessori. Boyd, W. (Jl '14)

From the angle of seventeen. Phillpotts, E. (Ja '14)

From the Congo to the Niger and the Nile. Adolf Friedrich. (Ag '14)

From the log of the Velsa. Bennett, A. (Ja '15)

From the porch. Ritchie, A. I. (F '14)

Frontier and pioneer life

Stewart, E. Letters of a woman homesteader. (Ag '14)

Fruit culture

Rockwell, F. F. Making a garden of small fruits. (Ap '14)

Sears, F. C. Productive orcharding. (D '14)

Fruit trade

Adams, F. U. Conquest of the tropics. (Ag '14)

Fuel*Analysis

White, A. H. Technical gas and fuel analysis. (My '14)

Fugitive. Galsworthy, J. (Mr '14)

Full of the moon. Lockhart, C. (Ap '14)

Full swing. Frankau, J. (Je '14)

Fundamental basis of nutrition. Lusk, G. (Ag '14)

Fundamentals of plant-breeding. Coulter, J. M. (F '15)

Fungi

Stevens, F. L. Fungi which cause plant disease. (Je '14)

Furniture

Eberlein, H. D., and McClure, A. Practical book of period furniture. (F '15)

Hunter, G. L. Home furnishing. (Ja '14)

Hunter, G. L. Inside the house that Jack built. (S '14)

McClure, A. Making built-in furniture. (Ap '14)

McClure, A., and Eberlein, H. D. House furnishing and decoration. (S '14)

Ricci, S. de. Louis XVI furniture. (Ja '14)

Shackleton, R., and E. Charn of the antique. (S '14)

Future of nations. Babson, R. W. (N '14)

Future of the women's movement. Swanwick, H. M. (Ja '15)

Gallatin, Albert, 1761-1849

Gallatin, J. Great peace maker. (Ja '15)

Galton, Sir Francis, 1822-1911

Pearson, K. Life, letters and labours of Francis Galton. (F '15)

Gambier's advocate. Macdonald, R. (N '14)

Game fishes of the world. Holder, C. F. (Ap '14)

Game of life and death. Colcord, L. (N '14)

Game protection

Hornaday, W. T. Wild life conservation in theory and practice. (F '15)

Games

Crozier, G. B. Indoor games for children. (Ja '15)

Crozier, G. B. Outdoor games for children. (Ja '15)

Foster, R. F. Foster's complete Hoyle. (Ja '15)

Glover, E. H. "Dame Curtsey's" book of games for children (D '14)

Monckton, O. P. Pastimes in times past. (F '14)

Smith, L. R. Sixty musical games and recreations for little musicians. (S '14)

Garden architecture. Humpireys, P. W. (Je '14)

Garden city. Purdom, C. B. (My '14)

Garden craft in Europe. Triggs, H. I. (Ja '14)

Garden farming. Corbett, L. C. (Ja '14)

Garden oats. Herbert, A. (Ap '14)

Garden of girls. Concannon, H. (Ja '15)

Garden patch. Flint, E. D. (Je '14)

Garden trees and shrubs. Wright, W. P. (F '15)

Gardener's pocket manual. Rockwell, F. F. (My '14)

Gardening

Barnes, P. T. Suburban garden guide. (Mr '14)

Bolte, J. W. Back yard farmer. (F '14)

French, A. Beginner's garden book. (Jl '14)

Frothingham, J. P. Success in gardening. (Je '14)

Hayward, W. B., ed. Commuter's garden. (Ap '14)

Logan, A. Principles and practice of school gardening. (My '14)

Rockwell, F. F. Gardener's pocket manual. (My '14)

Verrill, A. H. Harper's book for young gardeners. (Ap '14)

Weathers, J., ed. Commercial gardening. (Ap '14)

Gardens

Ady, J. Italian gardens of the renaissance. (F '15)

Cable, G. W. Amateur garden. (Ja '15)

Castle, A. and E. Our sentimental garden. (Ja '15)

Triggs, H. I. Garden craft in Europe. (Ja '14)

Gas and oil engines

Clerk, D., and Burls, G. A. Gas, petrol, and oil engines. (Ja '14)

Hirshfeld, C. F., and Ulbricht, T. C. Farm gas engines. (Je '14)

Page, V. W. Modern gas tractor. (Mr '14)

Slauson, H. W. Gasoline motor. (Ap '14)

Verrill, A. H. Harper's gasoline engine book. (Je '14)

Gas, petrol, and oil engine. Clerk, D., and Burls, G. A. (Ja '14)

Gases*Analysis

White, A. H. Technical gas and fuel analysis. (My '14)

Gasoline motor. Slauson, H. W. (Ap '14)

Gaunt gray wolf. Wallace, D. (O '14)

Gay adventure. Bird, R. (F '14)

Gay and festive Claverhouse. French, A. (D '14)

Gay morning. Buckrose, J. E. (Jl '14)

General history of the world. Browning, O. (Je '14)

General hygiene. Overton, F. (Je '14)

General metallurgy. Hofman, H. O. (Ap '14)

General William Booth enters into heaven. Lindsay, N. V. (F '14)

Genesis of Lancaster. Ramsay, J. H. R. (Ag. '14)

Genius

Türck, H. Man of genius. (F '15)

Geography

Dodge, R. E., and Kirchwey, C. B. Teaching of geography in elementary schools. (Ag '14)

Holtz, F. L. Principles and methods of teaching geography. (Mr '14)

Geography, Commercial

Smith, J. R. Industrial and commercial geography. (Je '14)

Geology

Gregory, J. W. Geology of to-day. (F '15)

Geology, Economic

Ries, H., and Watson, T. L. Engineering geology. (D '14)

George I, king of Greece, 1845-1913

Christmas, W. King George of Greece. (Ja '15)

- George the Third and Charles Fox. Trevelyan, G. O: (D '14)
- Gerald Northrop. Washburn, C. C. (D '14)
- German Central African expedition of 1910-1911
Adolf Friedrich. From the Congo to the Niger and the Nile. (Ag '14)
- German classics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Francke, K., and Howard, W: G., eds. (Ja '14)
- German empire's hour of destiny. Frobenius, H. (D '14)
- German enigma. Bourdon, G: (Ja '15)
- German literature
Francke, K., and Howard, W: G., eds. German classics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. (Ja '14)
- Porterfield, A. W. Outline of German romanticism, 1766-1866. (F '15)
- German masters of art. Dickinson, H. A. S. (Ja '15)
- Germany
Dawson, W: H. Municipal life and government in Germany. (S '14)
- Reich, E. Germany's madness. (D '14)
- Wylie, I. A. R. Eight years in Germany. (O '14)
- Army
Bernhardi, F: von. How Germany makes war. (N '14)
- Biise, O. T. Life in a garrison town. (F '15)
- Edelsheim, F. von. Operations upon the sea. (Ja '15)
- German army from within. (N '14)
- Henderson, E. F. Germany's fighting machine. (N '14)
- Court and courtiers
Topham, A. Memories of the Kaiser's court. (O '14)
- Description and travel
Xenier, T. R. Motor tour in Belgium and Germany. (Mr '14)
- Foreign relations
Bernhardi, F: von. Britain as Germany's vassal. (Ja '15)
- Blatchford, R. Germany and England. (Ja '15)
- Bourdon, G. German enigma. (Ja '15)
- Bülow, B. H. M. K. Imperial Germany. (My '14)
- Cramb, J: A. Germany and England. (N '14)
- Dillon, E. J. Scrap of paper. (Ja '15)
- Frobenius, H. German empire's our of destiny. (D '14)
- Graves, A. K: pseud., and Fox, E: L. Secrets of the German war office. (S '14)
- Mach, E. R. O: von. What Germany wants. (D '14)
- Sarolea, C: Anglo-German problem. (Ja '15)
- Treitschke, H: G. von. Treitschke: his doctrine of Germany's destiny and of international relations. (D '14)
- History
Holland, A. W. Germany. (Ag '14)
- Marshall, H. E. History of Germany. (F '14)
- Gettysburg, Battle of, 1863
Norton, O. W. Attack and defense of Little Round Top. (My '14)
- Gideon's band. Cable, G: W. (O '14)
- Gift. Rogers, M. D. (Ap '14)
- Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck, 1836-1911
Cellier, F., and Bridgeman, C. Gilbert and Sullivan. (N '14)
- Gilded chrysalis. Pawlow, G. (N '14)
- Gilds
Orage, A. R., ed. National guilds. (D '14)
- Gillespie, Hay, J. M. (My '14)
- Girl and her religion. Slattery, M. (S '14)
- Girl who found the blue bird. Maeterlinck, G. (F '15)
- Girls
McKeever, W: A. Industrial training of the girl. (F '15)
- McKeever, W: A. Training the girl. (Ap '14)
- Slattery, M. Girl and her religion. (S '14)
- Woods, R. A., and Kennedy, A. J., eds. Young working girls. (Ja '14)
- Occupations
Van Kleec, M. Working girls in evening schools. (F '15)
- Weaver, E. W., ed. Vocations for girls. (Mr '14)
- Girls and boys. France, A., pseud. (Ap '14)
- Girl's marriage. Lennox A. G. (Je '14)
- Glacial epoch
Wright, W. B. Quaternary ice age. (S '14)
- Glimpses of the cosmos. Ward, L. F. (Ap '14)
- Glimpses of the East. Adams, H: C. (Ja '14)
- Glossary of Tudor and Stuart words. Skeat, W. W., comp. (My '14)
- God
Begbie, H. Proof of God. (N '14)
- Fowler, W: W. Roman ideas of deity in the last century before the Christian era. (O '14)
- Youtz, H. A. Enlarging conceptions of God. (D '14)
- God we trust. Ross, G: A. J. (My '14)
- Goddess of the dawn. Sullivan, M. D. (Mr '14)
- Godwin, William, 1756-1836
Brailsford, H. N. Shelley, Godwin, and their circle. (Mr '14)
- Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von, 1749-1832
Garrod, H. B. Dante, Goethe's Faust, and other lectures. (Je '14)
- Gold (as money)
Barbour, D: M. Influence of the gold supply on prices and profits. (Ag '14)
- Golden age of Prince Henry, the navigator. Oliveira Martins, J. P. de. (Ag '14)
- Golden goblet. Stocking, J. T: (F '15)
- Golden hollow. Sheffield, R. C. (Ja '14)
- Goldoni, Carlo, 1707-1793
Chatfield-Taylor, H. C. Goldoni. (Ja '14)
- Golf
Clarke, C: C. and Gilbert, M. Common-sense golf. (Je '14)
- Leach, H: Happy golfer. (D '14)
- Vardon, H., and others. Success at golf. (My '14)
- Good form for all occasions. Hall, F. H. (Jl '14)
- Good stories for great holidays. Olcott, F. J., ed. (D '14)
- Gospel of Jesus and the problems of democracy. Vedder, H: C. (F '15)
- Gothic architecture in Spain. Street, G: E. (My '14)
- Government ownership of railways. Dunn, S: O. (Mr '14)
- Government ownership of telegraph and telephone. Selected articles on. Judson, K. B., comp. (Ja '15)
- Governor of England. Bowen, M., pseud. (Mr '14)
- Goya y Lucientes, Francisco José de, 1746-1828
Fitch, J: E. C. Idler in Spain. (N '14)
- Stokes, H. Francisco Goya. (Ap '14)
- Grail
Weston, J. L. Quest of the Holy Grail. (Ap '14)
- Grain trade
Usher, A. P. History of the grain trade in France, 1400-1710. (O '14)
- Grammar of English heraldry. Hope, W: H: S. (Ag '14)
- Grand assize. Carton, H. (Ja '15)
- Grand canyon. Van Dyke, H: (F '15)
- Grand tour in the eighteenth century. Mead, W: E: (F '15)
- Granger movement. Buck, S. J. (Ja '14)
- Granite. Trevena, J: (S '14)
- Grannie. Wemyss, M. C. E. (Ap '14)
- Grannis of the fifth. Pier, A. S. (O '14)
- Grant, Ulysses Simpson, 1822-1885
King, C: True Ulysses S. Grant. (Ja '15)
- Graphic methods for presenting facts. Brinton, W. C. (F '15)
- Grasses
Hitchcock, A. S. Text-book of grasses. (F '15)
- Gray youth. Onions, O. (Jl '14)
- Great adventures. Turquan, J., and Auriac, J. E. d'. (Ag '14)
- Great ball on which we live. Gibson, C: R. (F '15)
- Great Britain
Bernhardi, F: von. Britain as Germany's vassal. (Ja '15)
- Doyle, A. C. Great Britain and the next war. (N '14)
- Army
Kilpatrick, J. A. Tommy Atkins at war. (D '14)

Our soldiers and sailors in war and peace. (Ja '15)
 Vivian, E. C. H. British army from within. (D '14)

Biography

Elias, E. L. In Georgian times. (Ja '15)
 Ward, W. P. Men and matters. (My '14)

Colonies

Hearnshaw, F. J. C. ed. King's college lectures on colonial problems. (Ag '14)
 Mitra, S. M. Anglo-Indian studies. (Ap '14)

Commercial policy

Holland, B. H. Fall of protection, 1840-1850. (Ap '14)

Constitution and constitutional history

Baldwin, J. F. King's council in England during the middle ages. (My '14)
 Usher, R. G. Rise and fall of the High commission. (Je '14)

Court and courtiers

Craven, E. Beautiful Lady Craven. (Ja '14)

Diplomatic and consular service

Newton, T. W. L. Lord Lyons. (My '14)

Economic conditions

Perris, G. H. Industrial history of modern England. (Ja '15)

Emigration and immigration

Johnson, S. C. History of emigration from the United Kingdom to North America, 1763-1912. (S '14)

Foreign relations

Barclay, Sir T. Thirty years: Anglo-French reminiscences (1876-1906). (O '14)
 Bastide, C. Anglo-French entente in the seventeenth century. (Ja '14)
 Cramb, J. A. Germany and England. (N '14)
 Dunning, W. A. British empire and the United States. (D '14)
 Sarolea, C. Anglo-German problem. (Ja '15)

History

Bayne, C. G. Anglo-Roman relations, 1558-1565. (Ag '14)
 Cheyney, E. P. History of England from the defeat of the Armada to the death of Elizabeth. (My '14)
 Cross, A. L. History of England and Greater Britain. (N '14)
 Fortescue, J. W. Military history. (O '14)
 Innes, A. D. History of England and the British empire. (Ap, D '14)
 Innes, A. D., ed. Source book of English history. (D '14)
 Leyland, J. Royal navy. (O '14)
 Macaulay, T. B. M. History of England from the accession of James II. (My, D '14)
 Marriott, J. A. R. England since Waterloo. (Mr '14)
 Mitchell, S. K. Studies in taxation under John and Henry III. (S '14)
 Mowat, R. B. Wars of the roses, 1377-1471. (Ja '15)
 Powicke, F. M. Loss of Normandy. (My '14)
 Ramsay, J. H. Genesis of Lancaster. (Ag '14)
 Thomas, A. C. History of England. (Mr '14)
 Tout, T. F. Place of the reign of Edward II in English history. (O '14)
 Trevelyan, G. O. George the Third and Charles Fox. (D '14)
 Vickers, K. H. England in the later middle ages. (Ag '14)
 Wylie, J. H. Reign of Henry V. (O '14)

Sources

Pollard, A. F., ed. Reign of Henry VII from contemporary sources. (Je '14)

Intellectual life

Ritchie, A. I. From the porch. (F '14)

Navy

Hurd, A. S. Our navy. (D '14)
 Hutchinson, J. R. Press-gang afloat and ashore. (Ap '14)
 Leyland, J. Royal navy. (O '14)
 Our soldiers and sailors in war and peace. (Ja '15)

Parliament

Selborne, W. W. P. State and the citizen. (My '14)
 Turberville, A. S. House of lords in the reign of William III. (Je '14)

Politics and government

Beaconsfield, B. D. Whigs and whiggism. (My '14)
 Blease, W. L. Short history of English liberalism. (F '14)
 Butler, J. R. M. Passing of the great Reform bill. (S '14)
 Wellesley papers. (Je '14)

Social conditions

Wallace, A. R. Revolt of Democracy. (Ap '14)
 Great days. Harris, F. (Ji '14)
 Great debates in American history. Miller, M. M., ed. (Ag '14)
 Great Galeoto. Echegaray y Eizaguirre, J. (S '14)
 Great mystery solved. Vase, G., pseud. (O '14)
 Great painter-etchers from Rembrandt to Whistler. Salaman, M. C. (Je '14)
 Great peace maker. Gallatin, J. (Ja '15)
 Great plan. Mason, E. H. (Ja '14)
 Great poems interpreted. Barbe, W. (Je '14)
 Great problems. Varisco, B. (O '14)
 Great small cat, and others. Southworth, M. E. (F '15)
 Great society. Wallas, G. (Ag '14)
 Great war. Simonds, F. H. (D '14)
 Greater men and women of the Bible. Hastings, J., ed. (D '14)
 Greatest books in the world. Portor, L. S. (Je '14)
 Greatest house at Chelsey. Davies, R. (Ap '14)
 Greatest of these. Marshall, A. (O '14)

Greece

Bosanquet, E. Days in Attica. (Ji '14)
 Cassavetti, D. J. Hellas and the Balkan wars. (Ji '14)
 Garnett, L. M. J. Greece of the Hellenes. (S '14)
 Macgregor, M. Story of Greece. (Ja '15)
 Manatt, J. I. Aegean days. (Ap '14)
 Pickard-Cambridge, A. W. Demosthenes and the last days of Greek freedom, 384-322 B. C. (S '14)
 Stephens, K. Greek spirit. (S '14)
 Greek and Roman sculpture. Furtwängler, A., and Ulrichs, H. L. (S '14)
 Greek art and national life. Smith, S. C. K. (Je '14)
 Greek philosophy. Burnet, J. (Ja '15)
 Greek sculpture and modern art. Waldstein, C. (F '15)
 Greek spirit. Stephens, K. (S '14)
 Green, Andrew Haswell, 1820-1903
 Foord, J. Life and public services of Andrew Haswell Green. (F '14)
 Green graves of Balgowrie. Findlater, J. H. (My '14)
 Green seal. Walk, C. E. (My '14)
 Greenstone door. Satchell, W. (S '14)
 Greylake of Mallerby. Cribb, W. L. (N '14)
 Group of famous women. Horton, E. (Ja '15)
 Growth of a soul. Strindberg, A. (Ji '14)
 Growth of Europe. Cole, G. A. J. (S '14)
 Growth of music. Colles, H. C. (D '14)
 Guardian angels. Prévost, M. (My '14)

Guatemala

Domville-Fife, C. W. Guatemala and the states of Central America. (Ja '14)
 Guide to good English. Utter, R. P. (D '14)
 Guide to Gothic architecture. Bumpus, T. F. (F '15)
 Guide to historical fiction. Baker, E. A. (My '14)
 Guide to materials for the history of the United States in the principal archives of Mexico. Bolton, H. E. (O '14)
 Guide to the Chassevant method of musical education. Gibb, M. P. (S '14)
 Guide to the materials for United States history in Canadian archives. Parker, D. W. (My '14)
 Guide to the materials in London archives for the history of the United States since 1783. Paullin, C. O., and Paxson, F. L. (F '15)
 Guns of Bull Run. Altsheuler, J. A. (Ag '14)
 Guy Garrick. Reeve, A. B. (D '14)

- Gypsy trail. Goldmark, P., and Hopkins, M. comps. (F '15)
- Haarlem
Van Dyke, J. C. Amsterdam, The Hague, Haarlem: critical notes on the Rijks museum, The Hague museum, Hals museum. (Je '14)
- Hague
Van Dyke, J. C. Amsterdam, The Hague, Haarlem: critical notes on the Rijks museum, The Hague museum, Hals museum. (Je '14)
- Hail and farewell. Moore, G. (My '14)
- Haiti
Stoddard, T. L. French revolution in San Domingo. (F '15)
- Half hours. Barrie, J. M. (D '14)
- Hamburg, Germany
King, W. Chronicles of three free cities. (S '14)
- Hamilton, Emma, lady, 1761?-1815
Turquan, J., and Auriac, J. E. d'. Great adventures. (Ag '14)
- Handbook for machine designers and draftsmen. Halsey, P. A. (Ja '14)
- Handbook of American pageantry. Davol, R. (F '15)
- Handbook of conundrums. Ordway, E. B. (Mr '14)
- Handbook of journalism. Fowler, N. C., jr. (Mr '14)
- Handbook of opportunities for vocational training in Boston. Women's municipal league of Boston. Educational dept. (Ag '14)
- Handbook of quotations. Ordway, E. B. (Ap '14)
- Handbook of stock exchange laws. Goldman, S. P. (N '14)
- Handbook of style. Riverside press. (Ap '14)
- Handbook of the European war. Sheip, S. S., ed. (D '14)
- Handbook of vocational education. Taylor, J. S. (F '15)
- Handbook to the poetry of Rudyard Kipling. Durand, R. A. (Ja '15)
- Handcraft in wood and metal. Hooper, J., and Shirley, A. J. (D '14)
- Handicapped. Greene, H. (Ja '15)
- Handicraft
Fraser, C. C. Every boy's book of handicraft, sports and amusements. (Mr '14)
- Kelland, C. B., ed. American boys' workshop. (S '14)
- Hands of Esau. Deland, M. W. (O '14)
- Handwork and its place in early education. Plaisted, L. L. (Ja '14)
- Hänsel and Gretel. Isaacs, I.: M., and Rahlson, K. J. (F '14)
- Happiness
Finot, J. Science of happiness. (Je '14)
- Schauffler, R. H. Joyful heart. (D '14)
- Happiness, and other plays. Manners, J. H. (Ja '15)
- Happy art of catching men. Patterson, R. J. (S '14)
- Happy golfer. Leach, H. (D '14)
- Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle. Wason, R. A. (D '14)
- Happy Irish. Begbie, H. (S '14)
- Hapsburg monarchy. Steed, H. W. (Mr '14)
- Hardwicke, Philip Yorke, 1st earl of, 1690-1764
Yorke, P. C. Life and correspondence of Philip Yorke. (Ag '14)
- Hardy, Thomas, 1840-
Lea, H. Thomas Hardy's Wessex. (Ja '14)
- Harlan, James, 1820-1899
Brigham, J. James Harlan. (Ja '14)
- Harmony wins. Olmsted, M. (Mr '14)
- Harper's beginning electricity. Shafer, D. C. (Ja '14)
- Harper's book for young gardeners. Verrill, A. H. (Ap '14)
- Harper's every-day electricity. Shafer, D. C. (D '14)
- Harper's gasoline engine book. Verrill, A. H. (Je '14)
- Harper's wireless book. Verrill, A. H. (Ja '14)
- Harrowians. Lunn, A. H.: M. (Ap '14)
- Haskalah movement in Russia. Raisin, J. S. (My '14)
- Hat shop. Peel, D. C. (Ap '14)
- Hauptmann, Gerhart Johann Robert, 1862-
Holl, K.: Gerhart Hauptmann. (My '14)
- Hawaiian Islands
Goodrich, J. K. Coming Hawaii. (Je '14)
- Hawthorne, Nathaniel, 1804-1864
Stearns, F. P. Life of genius of Nathaniel Hawthorne. (F '15)
- Ticknor, C. Hawthorne and his publisher. (Ja '14)
- Hay John, 1838-1905
Sears, L. John Hay, author and statesman. (D '14)
- Hayes, Rutherford Birchard, 1822-1893
Williams, C. R.: Life of Rutherford Birchard Hayes. (F '15)
- Hazel. Ovington, M. W. (S '14)
- He took it upon himself. Stattery, M. (F '15)
- Health work in the schools. Hoag, E. B., and Terman, L.: M. (S '14)
- Heart
Hirschfeld, I. H. Heart and blood-vessels. (Jl '14)
- Heart's country. Vorse, M. H. (Je '14)
- Heat
Shealy, E.: M. Heat. (S '14)
- Heating
Barker, A. H. Theory and practice of heating and ventilation. (Ja '14)
- Hebrew and Babylonian traditions. Jastrow, M., jr. (Jl '14)
- Hedges
Butterfield, W. H. Making fences, walls and hedges. (Je '14)
- Hellas and the Balkan wars. Cassavetti, D. J. (Jl '14)
- Henry II, king of England, 1133-1189
Salzmann, I.: F. Henry II. (F '15)
- Henry V, king of England, 1387-1422
Wylie, J. H. Reign of Henry V. (O '14)
- Henry VII, king of England, 1457-1509
Temperley, G. Henry VII. (F '15)
- Henry, prince of Portugal, 1394-1460
Oliveira Martins, J. P. de. Golden age of Prince Henry, the navigator. (Ag '14)
- Henry of Navarre, Ohio. Porter, H. E. (Ag '14)
- Hepburn, James Curtis, 1815-1911
Griffis, W.: E. Hepburn of Japan, and his wife and helpmates. (F '14)
- Her husband's wife. Thomas, A. E. (Jl '14)
- Her ladyship's conscience. Fowler, E. T. (Ap '14)
- Her wings. Allen, F. N. S. (N '14)
- Heraldry
Hope, W.: H. S. Grammar of English heraldry. (Ag '14)
- Heredity and sex. Morgan, T.: H. (Mr '14)
- Heresy of Cain. Hodges, G. (Jl '14)
- Hero tales and legends of the Serbians. Petrovitch, W. M. (D '14)
- Heroes
Holland, R. S. Historic heroes of chivalry. (N '14)
- Lang, J.: and J., comps. Poetry of heroism. (Mr '14)
- Maclean, J. K. Heroes of the farthest North and farthest South. (Ap '14)
- Parry, D. H. Victoria cross. (My '14)
- Heroes and heroines of fiction, modern prose and poetry. Walsh, W.: S. (F '15)
- Heroic ballads of Servia. Noyes, G.: R., and Bacon, L., eds. and trs. (Ja '14)
- Heroines of modern religion. Foster, W. D., ed. (F '14)
- Hidden children. Chambers, R. W.: (O '14)
- Higginson, Thomas Wentworth, 1823-1911
Higginson, M. P. Thomas Wentworth Higginson. (Je '14)
- High-school age. King, I. (O '14)
- High schools
Ballou, F. W. High school organization. (O '14)
- Davis, C. O. High school courses of study. (O '14)
- Johnston, C.: H., ed. Modern high school. (D '14)

- Highways and byways in Lincolnshire. Rawnsley, W. F. (F '15)
- Highways and byways in Shakespeare's country.
Hutton, W. H. (Jl '14)
- Highways and byways in the Border. Lang, A.
and J. (Ja '14)
- Hill, Aaron, 1685-1759
Brewster, D. Aaron Hill, poet, dramatist, projector. (Mr '14)
- Hinduism
Noble, M. E., and Coomaraswamy, A. K.
Myths of the Hindus and Buddhists. (Jl
'14)
- Hindus
Mitra, S. M. Anglo-Indian studies. (Ap '14)
- Hints for young writers. Marden, O. S. (F '15)
- Hiram the young farmer. Todd, B. L. (Je '14)
- His official fiancée. Onions, Mrs. O. (F '15)
- His Royal Happiness. Cotes, S. J. (N '14)
- Historic heroes of chivalry. Holland, R. S. (N '14)
- Historic homes of New England. Northend,
M. H. (D '14)
- Historical Christ. Conybeare, F. C. (O '14)
- Historical fiction
Baker, E. A. Guide to historical fiction. (My '14)
- Historical papers upon men and events of rare interest in the Napoleonic epoch. Parsons,
J. H. (O '14)
- Historical register of officers of the Continental army during the war of the revolution. Heitman, F. B. (Ag '14)
- History
Morley, J. M. Notes on politics and history.
(F '14)
- History, Universal
Browning, O. General history of the world.
(Je '14)
- O'Neill, E. Story of the world. (Je '14)
- History and methods of ancient and modern painting. Ward, J. (Ag '14)
- History of Canadian wealth. Myers, G. (Ag '14)
- History of chemistry from the earliest times till the present day. Brown, J. C. (Ja '14)
- History of Connecticut. Clark, G. L. (S '14)
- History of diplomacy in the international development of Europe. Hill, D. J. (S '14)
- History of education in modern times. Graves,
F. P. (Mr '14)
- History of emigration from the United Kingdom to North America, 1763-1912. Johnson, S. C.
(S '14)
- History of England. Macaulay, T. B. M. (My,
D '14)
- History of England. Thomas, A. C. (Mr '14)
- History of England and Greater Britain. Cross,
A. L. (N '14)
- History of England and the British empire.
Innes, A. D. (Ap, D '14)
- History of England, from the defeat of the Armada to the death of Elizabeth. Cheyney,
E. P. (My '14)
- History of Europe. Grant, A. J. (Mr '14)
- History of Germany. Marshall, H. E. (F '14)
- History of land mammals in the western hemisphere. Scott, W. B. (Ja '14)
- History of mediaeval and modern Europe for secondary schools. Davis, W. S., and Mc-
Kendrick, N. S. (S '14)
- History of painting in Italy. Crowe, J. A., and Cavalcaselle, G. B. (O '14)
- History of penal methods. Ives, G. (My '14)
- History of philosophy. Thilly, F. (Jl '14)
- History of poor relief legislation in Pennsylvania, 1682-1913. Heffner, W. C. (O '14)
- History of psychology. Baldwin, J. M. (Ja '14)
- History of religions. Moore, G. F. (J '14)
- History of Russia. Kluchevsky, V. O. (Jl '14)
- History of Russian music. Montagu-Nathan, M.
(D '14)
- History of socialism. Kirkup, T. (My '14)
- History of the dwelling-house and its future.
Thompson, R. E. (D '14)
- History of the grain trade in France, 1400-1710.
Usher, A. P. (O '14)
- History of the national capital. Bryan, W. B.
(Ag '14)
- History of the reconstruction period, 1865-1877.
Schouler, J. (Ja '14)
- History of the Royal society of arts. Wood, H.
T. W. (Ag '14)
- History of the town of Lexington, Mass. Hudson, C. (Ag '14)
- Hocken and Hunken. Quiller-Couch, A. T. (Ja
'14)
- Holbein, Hans, the Younger, 1497-1543
Chamberlain, A. B. Hans Holbein the Younger. (Ja '14)
- Holberg, Ludwig, baron, 1684-1754
Campbell, O. J., jr. Comedies of Holberg. (Mr
'14)
- Holy land of Asia Minor. Clark, F. E. (F '15)
- Home. Chamberlain, G. A. (Ja '14)
- Home furnishing. Hunter, G. L. (Ja '14)
- Home nurse. Lowry, E. B. (Je '14)
- Home of the seven devils. Newte, H. W. C. (Je
'14)
- Home vegetable garden. Kruhm, A. (Ag '14)
- Honest business. Fiske, A. K. (Ja '15)
- Honest house. Goodnow, R. R., and Adams, R.
(Ja '15)
- Honey-star. Edwardes, T. (Ap '14)
- Honorable Percival. Rice, A. C. (D '14)
- Honour of the Clintons. Marshall, A. (Ja '14)
- Honour of the house. Fraser, M., and Stahlmann,
J. I. (Ja '14)
- Hoof and claw. Roberts, C. G. D. (N '14)
- Hoosier volunteer. Boyles, K. and V. D. (Jl '14)
- Horace Blake. Ward, J. M. (Mr '14)
- Horse training
Brooke, G. F. H. Training young horses to jump. (My '14)
- Horses
Gask, L. True stories about horses. (F '15)
- Gay, C. W. Productive horse husbandry. (Jl
'14)
- Horticulture
Bailey, L. H., ed. Standard cyclopedia of horticulture. (Jl, S '14)
- Hospitals
Cannon, I. M. Social work in hospitals. (Ja '14)
- Hour of conflict. Gibbs, H. (Ap '14)
- House. Bordeaux, H. (N '14)
- House as home. Stallard, Mrs. A. (My '14)
- House decoration
Dillaway, T. M. Decoration of the school and home. (Ja '15)
- Hunter, G. L. Home furnishing. (Ja '14)
- Hunter, G. L. Inside the house that Jack built. (S '14)
- McClure, A., and Eberlein, H. D. House furnishing and decoration. (S '14)
- Quinn, M. J. Planning and furnishing the home. (N '14)
- Stallard, Mrs. A. House as home. (My '14)
- House furnishing and decoration. McClure, A.,
and Eberlein, H. D. (S '14)
- House in Demetrius road. Beresford, J. D. (N
'14)
- House of lords in the reign of William III. Tur-berville, A. S. (Je '14)
- House of the dawn. Ryan, M. E. (Ja '15)
- House of toys. Miller, H. R. (D '14)
- House with the silver door. Tappan, E. M. (Ja
'14)
- Household physics. Butler, A. M. (N '14)
- Houses
Thompson, R. E. History of the dwelling-house and its future. (D '14)
- Houses and gardens. Lutyens, E. L. (Ag '14)
- Housing problem
Veiller, L. Model housing law. (My '14)
- How Europe was won for Christianity. Stubbs,
M. W. (My '14)
- How France is governed. Poincaré, R. (F '14)
- How Germany makes war. Bernhardi, F. von.
(N '14)
- How I kept my baby well. Noyes, A. B. (Ap
'14)
- How it happened. Boshier, K. L. L. (N '14)
- How the piano came to be. Glover, E. H. (F
'14)
- How the war began. Kennedy, J. M. (O '14)
- How to be beautiful. Montaigne, M., and others. (Mr '14)
- How to cook and why. Condit, E., and Long,
J. A. (N '14)
- How to enjoy pictures. Head, R. (Ja '15)
- How to entertain your guests. Dickinson, D., comp. (Ja '15)
- How to live quietly. Call, A. P. (O '14)

- How to make a country place. Sawyer, J. D. (O '14)
- How to play baseball. McGraw, J. J. (S '14)
- How to read Shakespeare. Stalker, J. (Mr '14)
- How to see a play. Burton, R. (Ja '15)
- How to see the Vatican. Sladen, D. B. W. (Ag '14)
- How to show pictures to children. Hurl, E. M. (O '14)
- How to sing. Lehmann, L. (Mr '14)
- Hugo, Victor Marie, viscomte, 1802-1885
- Drouet, J. Love letters of Juliette Drouet to Victor Hugo. (Ja '15)
- Human desire. Irwin, V. M. (Ja '14)
- Human side of plants. Dixon, R. (N '14)
- Hundred best animals. Gask, L. (F '15)
- Hungarian fairy book. Pogany, N., comp. (Mr '14)
- Hungary
- Hengelmüller von Hengervar, L. Hungary's fight for national existence. (My '14)
- Hunt the slipper. Hueffer, O. M. (Ag '14)
- Hunting
- Dracopoli, I. N. Through Jubaland to the Lorian swamp. (Ag '14)
- Gouldsbury, C. E. Tigerland. (Jl '14)
- Haughton, H. L. Sport and folk-lore in the Himalaya. (Mr '14)
- Hepburn, A. B. Story of an outing. (F '14)
- Scul, E. M. Hunting in the Arctic and Alaska. (S '14)
- Singer, D. J. Big game fields of America: North and South. (F '15)
- Hussites
- Lützow, F. H. H. V. Hussite wars. (Ag '14)
- Hyacinth. Hannay, J. O. (Je '14)
- Hydraulic engineering
- Parker, P. & M. Control of water as applied to irrigation, power and town water supply purposes. (My '14)
- Hydraulic turbines. Daugherty, R. L. (Je '14)
- Hygiene
- Delano, J. A., and McIsaac, I. American Red Cross textbook on elementary hygiene and home care of the sick. (Ap '14)
- Hirschfeld, I. H. Heart and blood-vessels. (Jl '14)
- Hutchinson, W. Civilization and health. (Ja '15)
- Overton, F. General hygiene. (Je '14)
- Overton, F. Personal hygiene. (Je '14)
- Rosenau, M. J. Preventive medicine and hygiene. (Ag '14)
- Terman, L. M. Hygiene of the school child. (Ap '14)
- Williams, H. S. Adding years to your life. (O '14)
- Ibsen, Henrik, 1828-1906
- Rose, H. Henrik Ibsen, poet, mystic and moralist. (Ja '14)
- Ice-boating. Stone, H. L., ed. (F '14)
- Ice boats
- Stone, H. L., ed. Ice-boating. (F '14)
- Iceland
- Russell, W. S. C. Iceland: horseback tours in Saga land. (S '14)
- Ideal motor tour in France. Hale, W. (Jl '14)
- Idealism
- Caldwell, W. Pragmatism and idealism. (Ap '14)
- Ideals
- Gordon, G. A. Revelation and the ideal. (Ap '14)
- Idle wives. Oppenheim, J. (My '14)
- Idler in Spain. Flitch, J. E. C. (N '14)
- Idol-breaker. Kennedy, C. R. (Ap '14)
- Idonia. Wallis, A. F. (Ja '14)
- Idylls of a Dutch village. Ulfers, S. (Jl '14)
- Igneous rocks and their origin. Daly, R. A. (Ja '15)
- Imagina. Ford, J. E. (Ja '15)
- Immigrants
- Antin, M. They who knock at our gates. (Jl '14)
- Tupper, G. W. Foreign-born neighbors. (F '15)
- Immigration
- Jenks, J. W., and Lauck, W. J. Immigration problem. (F '14)
- Ross, E. A. Old world in the New. (D '14)
- Yale university, Sheffield scientific school. Questions of public policy. (Ap '14)
- Immortality
- Haynes, E. S. P. Belief in personal immortality. (Je '14)
- Maeterlinck, M. Our eternity. (Mr '14)
- Tyrrell, G. Essays on faith and immortality. (F '15)
- Immovable East. Baldensperger, P. J. (D '14)
- Imperial America. Kennedy, J. M. (Ja '15)
- Imperial Germany. Bülow, B. H. M. K. (My '14)
- Imperialism
- Frank, T. Roman imperialism. (Jl '14)
- Impressionism (art)
- Eddy, A. J. Cubists and post-impressionism. (F '15)
- Impressions and comments. Ellis, H. (Ja '15)
- Improvement of rivers. Thomas, B. F., and Watt, D. A. (Mr '14)
- In black and white. Hammond, L. (Ag '14)
- In Cheyne Walk and thereabout. Blunt, R. (Ag '14)
- In deep places. Burr, A. J. (Ja '15)
- In defence of what might be. Holmes, E. G. A. (F '15)
- In Dickens's London. Smith, F. H. (D '14)
- In far New Guinea. Newton, H. (Ag '14)
- In freedom's birthplace. Daniels, J. (Jl '14)
- In Georgian times. Elias, E. L. (Ja '15)
- In my youth. Dudley, R. (Ja '15)
- In powder and erinoline. Quiller-Couch, A. T. (Ap '14)
- In Red man's land. Leupp, F. E. (D '14)
- In spite of epilepsy. Woods, M. (Ag '14)
- In sunny Spain with Pilarica and Rafael. Bates, K. L. (Ja '14)
- In the college days. Barbee, L. (S '14)
- In the firing line. Adcock, A. S. (Ja '15)
- In the footsteps of the Brontës. Chadwick, E. A. (Ag '14)
- In the garden of delight. Richardson, J., comp. (Ap '14)
- In the high hills. Burt, M. S. (S '14)
- In the old paths. Grant, A. (Je '14)
- In the path of La Salle. Fitzhugh, P. K. (Ja '15)
- In the sunlight of health. Patterson, C. B. (Ap '14)
- In the wake of the Eighteen-twelveers. Snider, C. H. J. (Ap '14)
- In the web of life. Van de Water, V. B. (F '15)
- Incandescent electric lamps. Ogley, D. H. (Ag '14)
- Incandescent lily. Morris, G. (Je '14)
- Income
- Loria, A. Economic synthesis. (Ag '14)
- Income tax
- Black, H. C. Treatise on the law of income taxation under federal and state laws. (S '14)
- Tucker, G. F. Income tax law of 1913 explained. (Je '14)
- Incredible adventures. Blackwood, A. (Ja '15)
- Index to general literature; supplement 1900-1910. A. L. A. (N '14)
- Index to kindergarten songs. Quigley, M. C., and others, comps. (F '15)
- India
- Fielding-Hall, H. Passing of empire. (Je '14)
- Loti, P. India. (Mr '14)
- Manucci, N. Pepys of Mogul India, 1653-1708. (Ag '14)
- Antiquities
- Barnett, L. D. Antiquities of India. (Je '14)
- History
- Rapson, E. J. Ancient India. (O '14)
- Rawlinson, H. G. Indian historical studies. (Mr '14)
- Languages
- Anderson, J. D. Peoples of India. (Ag '14)
- Social conditions
- Munson, A. Jungle days. (F '14)

Social life and customs

- Noble, M. E. Studies from an Eastern home. (Ja '14)
 Spens, A. B. Winter in India. (O '14)
 Indian blankets and their makers. James, G: W. (Ja '15)
 Indian historical studies. Rawlinson, H. G. (Mr '14)
 Indian scout talks. Eastman, C: A. (N '14)
 Indian slavery in colonial times within the present limits of the United States. Lauber, A. W. (Ja '14)

Indians of North America

- Catlin, G: North American Indians. (D '14)
 Curtis, E: S. Indian days of the long ago. (D '14)
 Dixon, J. K. Vanishing race. (Mr '14)
 Eastman, C: A. Indian scout talks. (N '14)
 James, G: W. Indian blankets and their makers. (Ja '15)
 Judson, K. B., ed. Myths and legends of the great plains. (Mr '14)
 Judson, K. B., comp. and ed. Myths and legends of the Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes. (Ja '15)
 Lauber, A. W. Indian slavery in colonial times within the present limits of the United States. (Ja '14)
 Leupp, F. E. In Red man's land. (D '14)
 Rolt-Wheeler, F. W: Boy with the U. S. Indians. (F '14)
 Spence, L: Myths of the North American Indians. (F '15)

Individualism

- Carus, P. Nietzsche and other exponents of individualism. (Ap '14)

Individuality

- Driesch, H. A. E: Problem of individuality. (S '14)

- Indoor games for children. Crozier, G. B. (Ja '15)

- Industrial and commercial geography. Smith, J. R. (Je '14)

- Industrial and manufacturing chemistry. Martin, G. (Ja '14)

Industrial arts

- Salzmann, L. F. English industries of the middle ages. (Ja '14)

- Industrial chemistry for engineering students. Benson, H: K. (Ja '14)

- Industrial education. Leake, A. H. (Ja '14)

- Industrial history of modern England. Ferris, G: H. (Ja '15)

- Industrial poisoning from fumes, gases and poisons of manufacturing processes. Ramboušek, J. (Mr '14)

- Industrial situation. Carlton, F. T. (Ag '14)

- Industrial training of the boy. McKeever, W: A. (Ap '14)

- Industrial training of the girl. McKeever, W: A. (F '15)

Industry

- Davenport, H. J. Economics of enterprise. (Mr '14)

- Kelley, F. Modern industry in relation to the family, health, education, morality. (Jl '14)

- Veblen, T. B. Instinct of workmanship and the state of the industrial arts. (Jl '14)

Infants*Care and hygiene

- Noyes, A. B. How I kept my baby well. (Ap '14)

- Richardson, A. S. Better babies and their care. (O '14)

Infectious diseases

- Zinsser, H. Infection and resistance. (F '15)

- Influence of the Bible on civilisation. Dobschütz, E. A. A. O. A. V. (Jl '14)

- Influence of the gold supply on prices and profits. Barbour, D: M. (Ag '14)

- Initiation. Benson, R. H. (Mr '14)

- Initiation into literature. Faguet, É. (My '14)

- Initiation into philosophy. Faguet, É. (Je '14)

- Inner life of the Royal academy. Leslie, G: D. (F '15)

- Innocent. Corelli, M. (D '14)

Inquisition

- Sabatini, R. Torquemada and the Spanish inquisition. (Ja '14)

Insects

- Bastin, H. Insects. (D '14)

- Herrick, G. W. Insects injurious to the household and annoying to man. (Ja '15)

- Slingerland, M. V., and Crosby, C. R: Manual of fruit insects. (D '14)

- Ward, J: J. Insect biographies. (F '15)

- Inside the house that Jack built. Hunter, G: L. (S '14)

- Instinct of workmanship. Veblen, T. B. (Jl '14)

Insulation

- Hemming, E. Molded electrical insulation and plastics. (S '14)

Insurance, Industrial

- Boyd, J. H. Workmen's compensation and industrial insurance under modern conditions. (Ja '14)

- Rubinow, I: M. Social insurance. (Mr '14)

- Insurgent Mexico. Reed, J: (O '14)

- Intensive farming. Corbett, L. C. (F '14)

Interest

- Hoag, C. G. Theory of interest. (S '14)

- Intermediate types among primitive folk. Carpenter, E: C. (S '14)

International law and relations

- Higgins, A. F. War and the private citizen. (O '14)

- Lane, R. N. A. Arms and industry. (Je, D '14)

- Lawrence, T: J., comp. Documents illustrative of international law. (Ja '15)

- Ludwig, E. Consular treaty rights and comments on the "most favored nation" clause. (Ag '14)

- Page, A. War and alien enemies. (D '14)

- Stockton, C: H. Outlines of international law. (F '15)

- International perspective in criticism. Pollak, G. (S '14)

- International trade and exchange. Brown, H. G. (F '15)

- Interpretations and forecasts. Branford, V: (Jl '14)

- Intervening lady. Jepson, E. (Jl '14)

- Intervention and colonization in Africa. Harris, N. D. (F '15)

- Intimate letters of Hester Piozzi and Penelope Pennington, 1788-1821. Piozzi, H. L. T. (F '14)

- Intriguers. Bindloss, H. (Mr '14)

- Introduction to English church architecture from the eleventh to the sixteenth century. Bond, F. (My '14)

- Introduction to Kant's critical philosophy. Whitney, G: T., and Fogel, P. H. (S '14)

- Introduction to the history of medicine. Garison, F. H. (Je '14)

- Introduction to the history of religions. Toy, C. H. (Ap '14)

- Introduction to the science of ethics. De Laguna, T. (F '15)

- Introduction to the study of social evolution. Chaplin, F. S. (Ja '14)

Inventions

- Williams, A. Wonders of modern invention. (Mr '14)

- Investigating an industry. Kent, W: (Jl '14)

Investments

- Mead, E: S. Careful investor. (F '15)

- Skinner, E. B. Mathematical theory of investment. (My '14)

Ireland

- Begbie, H. Happy Irish. (S '14)

- Coffey, D. O'Neill & Ormond. (Ja '15)

- Dunlop, R., ed. Ireland under the Commonwealth. (Ag '14)

- Hinkson, K. Twenty-five years. (Je '14)

- Rowe, J: G. Romance of Irish history. (D '14)

- Stevenson, B. E. Charm of Ireland. (F '15)

- Williamson, M. John and Betty's Irish history visit. (Je '14)

- Irish literary and musical studies. Graves, A. P. (Ag '14)

- Irish witchcraft and demonology. Seymour, St. J: D. (My '14)

- Iron

- Hudson, O. F. Iron and steel. (Ja '14)

- Iron year. Bloem, W. (My '14)

- Irresistible intruder. Calne, W: (Mr '14)

Irrigation

- Olin, W. H. American irrigation farming. (Ja '14)
 Widdsoe, J.: A. Principles of irrigation practice. (F '15)
 Is conscience an emotion? Rashdall, H. (F '15)

Isabella II, (Maria Isabella Louisa) queen of Spain, 1830-1904

- Gribble, F. H: Tragedy of Isabella II. (Ja '14)
 Island of the stairs. Brady, C. T. (Ja '14)
 It happened in Egypt. Williamson, C: N. and A. M. (Ja '14)

Italian gardens of the renaissance. Ady, J. (F '15)*Italian yesterdays. Fraser, M. (F '14)*Italy

- Fraser, M. Italian yesterdays. (F '14)
 Steedman, A. Legends and stories of Italy for children. (F '15)
 Tittoni, T. Italy's foreign and colonial policy. (F '15)

Description and travel

- Hutton, E: Cities of Romagna and the Marches. (F '14)
 Treves, F: Country of "The ring and the book." (My '14)
 Williams, E. R., jr. Lombard towns of Italy. (Jl '14)

History

- Crispi, F. Memoirs of Francesco Crispi. (Ja '15)
 Orsi, P. Cavour and the making of modern Italy, 1810-1861. (Ap '14)
 Visconti Venosta, G. Memoirs of youth. (S '14)

Italy in North Africa. McClure, W. K. (Je '14)*Ivy hedge. Egan, M. F. (F '15)*Jack and Jill. MacDonald, G. (Ap '14)*Jack Straw in Mexico. Crump, I. (Ja '15)*Jam girl. Sterrett, F. R. (F '14)*James, William, 1842-1910

- Kallen, H. M. William James and Henri Bergson. (F '15)

Janice Day. Long, H. B. (N '14)*Japan

- Anderson, I. W. Spell of Japan. (N '14)
 Exner, A. H. Japan as I saw it. (Ap '14)
 Fujimoto, T. Night side of Japan. (Ja '15)
 Longford, J. H: Evolution of new Japan. (Jl '14)
 Mabie, H. W. Japan to-day and to-morrow. (Ja '15)
 Masaoka, N., ed. Japan to America. (Ja '15)
 Mitford, E. B. Japan's inheritance. (Mr '14)
 Okakura-Yoshisaburo. Life and thought of Japan. (Mr '14)
 Sladen, D. B. W. Queer things about Japan. (Ap '14)
 Terry, T: P. Terry's Japanese empire. (Ap '14)

Religion*Harada, T. Faith of Japan. (My '14)*Japanese empire. Terry, T: P. (Ap '14)*Japanese flower arrangement. Averill, M. (Ja '14)*Japanese in the United States

- Gulick, S. L: American Japanese problem. (Je '14)
 Kawakami, K. K: Asia at the door. (Jl '14)
 Japan's inheritance. Mitford, E. B. (Mr '14)
 Java and her neighbours. Walcott, A. S. (My '14)
 Jean and Louise. Dusserre, A. (Ap '14)
 Jean Cabot in cap and gown. Scott, G. F. (F '15)
 Jean Gilles, schoolboy. Lafon, A. (N '14)

Jefferson, Thomas, 1743-1826

- Lambeth, W: A., and Manning, W. H: Thomas Jefferson as an architect and a designer of landscapes. (My '14)
 Jehane of the forest. Talbot, L. A. (Jl '14)
 Jenny Cartwright. Stevenson, G: (O '14)
 Jess of the river. Roberts, T. G. (S '14)

Jesus Christ

- Anderson, F: L. Man of Nazareth. (F '15)
 Barton, B. Young man's Jesus. (N '14)
 Conybeare, F: C. Historical Christ. (O '14)
 Miller, L. H. Our knowledge of Christ. (F '15)

Whipple, W. Story-life of the Son of Man. (D '14)

- Jesus in the nineteenth century and after. Weinel, H., and Widgery, A. G. (O '14)
 "Jesus is here!" Sheldon, C: M. (My '14)

Jewelry

- Davidson, P. W. Educational metalcraft. (Ag '14)

Ryley, A. B. Old paste. (Ag '14)*Jewish immigration to the United States from 1881 to 1910. Joseph, S: (Ja '15)*Jewish life in modern times. Cohen, I. (D '14)*Jews

- Cohen, I. Jewish life in modern times. (D '14)
 Joseph, S: Jewish immigration to the United States from 1881 to 1910. (Ja '15)

History

- Cornill, C. H: Culture of ancient Israel. (S '14)
 Mercer, S: A. B., ed. and tr. Extra-Biblical sources for Hebrew and Jewish history. (My '14)

Religion

- Jastrow, M., jr. Hebrew and Babylonian traditions. (Jl '14)
 Smith, H: P. Religion of Israel. (D '14)

Jews in Russia

- Raisin, J. S. Haskalah movement in Russia. (My '14)

Joan's green year. Doon, E. L. (Mr '14)

- Job, the man, the boss. Blackford, K. M. H., and Newcomb, A. W. (Jl '14)

John and Betty's Irish history visit. Williamson, M. (Je '14)*John Ward, M. D. Vale, C: (Ja '14)

- Jole, Tommie and Kattie Kat. Garis, H. R. (Jl '14)

Jolly book of boxcraft. Beard, P. (D '14)*Jolly plays for holidays. Wells, C. (O '14)

- Joseph and his brethren. Parker, L: N. (Ap '14)

Journalism

- Bleyer, W. G. Newspaper writing and editing. (Ja '14)

- Fowler, N. C., jr. Handbook of journalism. (Mr '14)

Joyful heart. Schauflier, R. H. (D '14)

- Judgment of the sword. Diver, K. H. M. (Mr '14)

- Judicial interpretation of political theory. Bizzeil, W: B. (O '14)

Judicial veto. Davis, H. A. (Ja '15)*Jungle days. Munson, A. (F '14)

- Jurisdiction in American building-trades unions. Whitney, N. R. (O '14)

Just around the corner. Hurst, F. (D '14)*Justice

- Emery, L. A. Concerning justice. (Ja '15)

Justice, Administration of

- Faguet, E. Dread of responsibility. (Ja '15)

Juvenile courts

- Eliot, T: D. Juvenile court and the community. (Ja '15)

- Flexner, B., and Baldwin, R. N. Juvenile courts and probation. (O '14)

Juvenile delinquency

- Bowen, L. H. Safeguards for city youth at work and at play. (Ja '15)

Kaiser. Dickinson, A. D., ed. (D '14)*Kant, Immanuel, 1724-1804

- Chamberlain, H. S. Immanuel Kant. (O '14)
 Whitney, G: T., and Fogel, P. H. Introduction to Kant's critical philosophy. (S '14)

Kashmir

- Neve, A. Thirty years in Kashmir. (My '14)

Katya. Jessen, F. de. (Je '14)*Kazan. Curwood, J. O. (Ap '14)

- Keeper of the vineyard. Stanley, C. (Ja '14)

Keeping up appearances. Foster, M. (Je '14)*Keller, Helen Adams, 1880-

- Maeterlinck, G. Girl who found the blue bird. (F '15)

- Kent Knowles: quahaug. Lincoln, J. C. (D '14)

- Kentucky in American letters, 1784-1912. Townsend, J: W. (S '14)

Kind adventure. Perry, S. G: S. (D '14)*Kindling. Kenyon, C: (Ap '14)*King behind the king. Deeping, W. (N '14)

- King of Alsander. Flecker, J. E. (S '14)
 King of the dark chamber. Tagore, R. (D '14)
- Kings
 Marshall, H. E. Boy kings and girl queens. (Ja '15)
 King's college lectures on colonial problems. Hearnshaw, F. J. C., ed. (Ag '14)
 King's council in England during the middle ages Baldwin, J. F. (My '14)
- Kipling, Rudyard, 1865-
 Durand, R. A. Handbook to the poetry of Rudyard Kipling. (Ja '15)
 Kit Carson days (1809-1868). Sabin, E. L. (D '14)
 Kitchen garden and the cook. Pearse, C. M. (S '14)
- Kitchens
 Child, G. B. Efficient kitchen. (My '14)
- Kitecraft and kite tournaments. Miller, C. M. (Jl '14)
- Kites
 Miller, C. M. Kitecraft and kite tournaments. (Jl '14)
- Knave of hearts. Symons, A. (S '14)
 Knight of the cross. Saint, L. B. (F '15)
 Knight on wheels. Beith, J. H. (O '14)
- Knowledge, Theory of Eucken, R. C. Knowledge and life. (My '14)
- Kongo
 Weeks, J. H. Among the primitive Bakongo. (D '14)
- Korea
 Terry, T. P. Terry's Japanese empire, including Korea and Formosa. (Ap '14)
- Korean folk tales. Im Bang and Yi Ryuk. (Ap '14)
- Kurdistan
 Wigram, W. A. and E. T. A. Cradle of mankind. (D '14)
- Labor and administration. Commons, J. R. (Ja '14)
- Labor and laboring classes
 Carlton, F. T. Industrial situation. (Ag '14)
 Crapsey, A. S. Rise of the working-class. (O '14)
 Hunter, R. Violence and the labor movement. (Je '14)
 Nearing, S. Financing the wage-earners' family. (F '14)
- Great Britain
 Wallace, A. R. Revolt of democracy. (Ap '14)
- Labor laws and legislation
 Commons, J. R. Labor and administration. (Ja '14)
- Labrador
 Lee, C. With Dr. Grenfell in Labrador. (N '14)
- Labyrinth. Hervieu, P. E. (F '14)
- Lace and lace-making
 Ricci, E. Old Italian lace. (Ja '14)
 Lad of Kent. Harrison, H. (Ag '14)
 Lady and her husband. Reeves, A. (My '14)
 Lady Cassandra. Vaizey, J. (D '14)
 Lady of leisure. Sidgwick, E. (My '14)
 Lady of the lighthouse. Woodruff, H. S. (Mr '14)
- Lahoma. Ellis, J. B. (Ja '14)
 Land of mystery. Moffett, C. (F '14)
 Land of the blue poppy. Ward, F. K. (My '14)
- Land tenure
 Hemmeon, M. de W. Burgage tenure in mediaeval England. (S '14)
 Whittaker, T. P. Ownership, tenure and taxation of land. (Ag '14)
- Landmarks. Lucas, E. V. (D '14)
 Landmarks of a lawyer's lifetime. Strong, T. G. (My '14)
- Lands forlorn. Douglas, G. M. (Ja '15)
- Landscape gardening
 Root, R. R., and Kelley, C. F. Design in landscape gardening. (F '15)
- Larger values that make for the well rounded life. Desmond, H. J. (Ja '14)
 Last Christian. Turner, G. K. (D '14)
 Last invasion. Haines, D. H. (O '14)
 Last rose of summer. Hughes, R. (Ja '15)
 Last shot. Palmer, F. (Je '14)
- Later contemporaries of Shakespeare. Gayley, C. M., ed. (N '14)
 Latest light on the Bible lands. Handcock, P. S. P. (Je '14)
- Latin America
 Shephard, W. R. Latin America. (Ap '14)
 Verrill, A. H. South and Central American trade conditions of to-day. (F '15)
 Latin songs. Brown, C. S., ed. (O '14)
- La Trémoille family
 Stephens, W. La Trémoille family. (F '15)
- Laughing cavalier. Orczy, E. (O '14)
- Law
 Ames, J. B. Lectures on legal history and miscellaneous legal essays. (S '14)
 Vinogradoff, P. Common-sense in law. (My '14)
 Law, legislative and municipal reference libraries. Kaiser, J. B. (Jl '14)
 Law of faith. Randolph, J. F. (F '15)
- Lawyers
 Gest, J. M. Lawyer in literature. (Je '14)
 Strong, T. G. Landmarks of a lawyer's lifetime. (My '14)
 Lay Anthony. Hergesheimer, J. (S '14)
 League of the leopard. Bindloss, H. (Jl '14)
 Learning and doing. Swift, E. J. (O '14)
- Leather industry and trade
 Procter, H. R. Making of leather. (O '14)
 Lectures on legal history and miscellaneous legal essays. Ames, J. B. (S '14)
- Lee, Robert Edward, 1807-1870
 Bowen, J. J. Strategy of Robert E. Lee. (N '14)
- Left end Edwards. Barbour, R. H. (Ja '15)
 Legal history and miscellaneous legal essays. Lectures on. Ames, J. B. (S '14)
 Legend of the Sacred Image. Lagerlöf, S. O. L. (F '15)
 Legends and satires from mediæval literature. Shackford, M. H., ed. (S '14)
 Legends and stories of Italy for children. Steedman, A. (F '15)
- Legislation
 Ilbert, C. P. Mechanics of law making. (O '14)
 Leisurely tour in England. Hissey, J. J. (Ja '14)
- Letchworth, England
 Purdom, C. B. Garden city. (My '14)
 Letter of the contract. King, B. (Ja '15)
 Letters from a father to his daughter entering college. Thwing, C. F. (Mr '14)
 Letters from a living dead man. Barker, E. (Jl '14)
 Letters from La-Bas. Hayward, R. (Ap '14)
 Letters of a self-made failure. Switzer, M. (D '14)
 Letters of a woman homesteader. Stewart, E. (Ag '14)
 Letters of Edward Dowden and his correspondents. Dowden, E. (Ag '14)
 Letters of William Green. Foley, J. W. (F '15)
- Levant
 Beaman, A. Travels without Baedeker. (Ja '14)
- Leviathan. Marks, J. A. (Mr '14)
- Lexington, Massachusetts
 Hudson, C. History of the town of Lexington, Mass. (Ag '14)
- Liberalism
 Bleas, W. L. Short history of English liberalism. (F '14)
 Liberty! Bennett, A. (N '14)
- Libraries
 Antrim, S. and E. I. County library. (Jl '14)
 Gibson, S. Some Oxford libraries. (S '14)
 Kaiser, J. B. Law, legislative and municipal reference libraries. (Jl '14)
 Richardson, E. C. Beginnings of libraries. (My '14)
 Richardson, E. C. Biblical libraries. (F '15)
- Libraries and schools
 Bostwick, A. E., ed. Relationship between the library and the public schools. (S '14)
 Library jokes and jottings. Coutts, H. T. (Ag '14)
- Library science
 Rae, W. S. C. Public library administration. (My '14)

- Ward, G. O. Practical use of books and libraries. (S '14)
- Life
 Black, H. Open door. (Ja '15)
 Fucken, R. C. Knowledge and life. (My '14)
 Sanders, F. W. Religio doctoris. (Ag '14)
 Life and law. Glasgow, M. (Ja '15)
 Life and thought of Japan. Okakura-Yoshisaburo. (Mr '14)
 Life and times of Cleopatra, queen of Egypt. Weigall, A. E. P. B. (O '14)
 Life-histories of African game animals. Roosevelt, T., and Heller, E. (Je '14)
 Life in a garrison town. Bilse, O. F. (F '15)
 Life in America one hundred years ago. Hunt, G. (Ja '15)
 Life is a dream. Curle, R. (Jl '14)
 Life of a little college. MacMechan, A. M. (N '14)
 Life of Jesus in the light of the higher criticism. Martin, A. W. (Ja '14)
 Life-story of a Russian exile. Sukloff, M. (Ja '15)
 Life's lure. Neihardt, J. G. (D '14)
 Light-bringers. Wade, M. H. (D '14)
 Light of western stars. Grey, Z. (F '14)
- Lighthouses
 Talbot, F. A. Lightships and lighthouses. (Mr '14)
- Lighting book. Godlnez, F. L. (F '14)
 Lights are bright. Mabie, L. K. (S '14)
 Lightships and lighthouses. Talbot, F. A. (Mr '14)
- Lillecrona's home. Lagerlöf, S. O. L. (Mr '14)
- Lincoln, Abraham, 1809-1865
 Browne, F. F. Every-day life of Abraham Lincoln. (Ja '14)
 Pillsbury, A. E. Lincoln and slavery. (Ja '14)
 Strunsky, R. Abraham Lincoln. (F '15)
- Lions
 Pease, A. E. Book of the lion. (Jl '14)
 Lip-reading. Mitchie, E. B. (My '14)
 Liquid steel. Carnegie, D., and Gladwyn, S. C. (Ja '14)
 Lismoyle. Croker, B. M. (N '14)
 Listener. Blackwood, A. (Ja '15)
- Literary criticism
 Brownell, W. C. Criticism. (Ja '15)
 Pollak, G. International perspective in criticism. (N '14)
- Literature
 Crawford, R. Plague and pestilence in literature and art. (O '14)
 Faguet, E. Initiation into literature. (My '14)
 Guthrie, K. S. Spiritual message of literature. (S '14)
 James, H. Notes on novelists. (D '14)
 Phelps, W. L. Essays on books. (Ja '15)
 Portor, L. S. Greatest books in the world. (Je '14)
- History and criticism
 Bostwick, A. E. Earmarks of literature. (Mr '14)
- Literature, Medieval
 Shackford, M. H., ed. Legends and satires from mediæval literature. (S '14)
 Spence, L. Dictionary of mediæval romance and romance writers. (S '14)
 Literature for children. Lowe, O. (S '14)
 Literature of the ancient Egyptians. Budge, E. A. T. W. (D '14)
 Little angel of Canyon Creek. Brady, C. T. (D '14)
 Little book of modern verse. Rittenhouse, J. B., comp. (Ja '14)
 Little essays in literature and life. Burton, R. (My '14)
 Little Eve Edgarton. Abbott, E. H. (O '14)
 Little folks' plays of American heroes. Wade, M. H. (F '15)
 Little god Ebisu. Dix, B. M. (Ja '15)
 Little house. Woodruff, H. S. (D '14)
 Little king. Bynner, W. (Ja '15)
 Little Merry Christmas. Arnold, W. (Ja '15)
 Little nugget. Wodehouse, P. G. (S '14)
 Little plays from American history for young folks. Walker, A. J. (F '15)
 Little red chimney. Leonard, M. F. (Ja '15)
 Little schools of Port-Royal. Barnard, H. C. (O '14)
 Little Sir Galahad. Gray, P. (Ja '15)
- Little women letters from the house of Alcott. Bonstelle, J., and de Forest, M., comps. (N '14)
- Live and learn. Gladden, W. (Ja '15)
Living past. Marvin, F. S. (Ap '14)
Lodger. Lowndes, M. A. (Mr '14)
- Log cabins
 Beard, D. C. Shelters, shacks, and shanties. (N '14)
 Log of a would-be war correspondent. Farnsworth, H. W. (Mr '14)
Logging. Bryant, R. C. (Mr '14)
- Logic
 Windelband, W., and Ruge, A., eds. Encyclopedia of the philosophical sciences. v 1 (Je '14)
Lollardy and the reformation in England. Gairdner, J. (Mr '14)
Lombard towns of Italy. Williams, E. R., jr. (Jl '14)
- London
 Adcock, A. St. J. Booklover's London. (Ja '14)
 Blunt, R. In Cheyne Walk and thereabout. (Ag '14)
 Ditchfield, P. H. London survivals. (D '14)
 Forman, H. J. London, an intimate picture. (Ja '14)
 Gomme, G. L. London. (D '14)
 Smith, F. H. In Dickens's London. (D '14)
 Van, Dyke, J. C. London: critical notes on the National gallery and the Wallace collection. (Je '14)
 Whiting, L. Lure of London. (Ja '15)
 London, 1913. Stacpoole, M. (N '14)
 Lone Wolf. Vance, L. J. (D '14)
 Lonely dancer. Le Gallienne, R. (F '14)
 Looking after Sandy. Turnbull, M. (D '14)
 Looking forward. Roberts, I. (Je '14)
 Loot, from the temple of fortune. Vachell, H. A. (Ap '14)
 Lord London. Bell, J. K. (F '14)
 Loss of Normandy, 1189-1204. Powicke, F. M. (My '14)
 Lost boy. Van Dyke, H. (D '14)
 Lost diaries. Baring, M. (Ja '14)
 Lost in the fur country. Lange, D. (Ja '15)
 Lost language of symbolism. Bayley, H. (Ja '14)
 Lost parchment. Hume, F. W. (Ag '14)
 Lost tribes. Hannay, J. O. (Ag '14)
 Lost valley. Blackwood, A. (S '14)
 Lost vocal art and its restoration. Shaw, W. W. (Je '14)
 Louis Norbert. Lee, V., pseud. (Ag '14)
 Louis XVI furniture. Ricci, S. de. (Ja '14)
- Louvre
 Van Dyke, J. C. Paris: critical notes on the Louvre. (Je '14)
- Love (in theology)
 Rauschenbusch, W. Dare we be Christians? (F '15)
Love affair of a homely girl. De Forest, J. L. (Mr '14)
Love affairs of Napoleon. Turquan, J. (Jl '14)
Love and liberation. Wheelock, J. H. (S '14)
Love and the soul maker. Austin, M. (Ag '14)
Love insurance. Biggers, E. D. (O '14)
Love's legend. Fielding-Hall, H. (O '14)
Loves of Ambrose. Vandercook, M. O. (Ap '14)
Low cost recipes. Harbison, E. G., comp. (O '14)
Lower Amazon. Lange, A. (F '15)
- Lübeck, Germany
 King, W. Chronicles of three free cities. (S '14)
- Lucky stone. Brown, A. F. (O '14)
- Lumbering
 Bryant, R. C. Logging. (Mr '14)
 Lure and the lore of travel. Vrooman, C. S. and J. S. (F '15)
 Lure of London. Whiting, L. (Ja '15)
 Lure of the camera. Olcott, C. S. (D '14)
 Lure of the little drum. Peterson, M. (Ja '14)
- Luxembourg
 Renwick, G. Luxembourg. (Je '14)
- Lyons, Richard Bickerton Pemell Lyons, 1st earl, 1817-1887
 Newton, T. W. L. Lord Lyons. (My '14)
 Lyrics from the Chinese. Waddell, H. (Je '14)

- MacColl, Malcolm, 1831-1907
 Russell, G. W. E., ed. Malcolm MacColl, memoirs and correspondence. (S '14)
- Macdonald clan
 Stirling, A. M. D. W. Macdonald of the Isles. (Je '14)
- Machine drawing. Griffin, C. L.; and Adams, C. C. (F '15)
- Machine-shop practice
 Halsey, F. A. Methods of machine shop work. (Ja '15)
- Machinery
 Griffin, C. L.; and Adams, C. C. Machine drawing. (F '15)
- Design
 Halsey, F. A. Handbook for machine designers and draftsmen. (Ja '14)
 Machinery. Machinery's handbook for machine shop and drafting-room. (Je '14)
- McKim, Charles Follen, 1847-1909
 Granger, A. H. Charles Follen McKim. (F '14)
- McKinley, Mount
 Browne, B. Conquest of Mount McKinley. (Ja '14)
 Stuck, H. Ascent of Denali (Mount McKinley). (Ap '14)
- Madcap. Gibbs, G. F. (Ja '14)
- Madrid
 Van Dyke, J. C. Madrid: critical notes on the Prado. (Ag '14)
 Magic. Chesterton, G. K. (F '14)
 Maid Melicent. Dix, E. M. (N '14)
 Maid of the forest. Parrish, R. (Ja '14)
 Maid of the mist. Oxenham, J. (O '14)
 Maje. Gordon, A. C. (My '14)
 Major prophets of to-day. Slosson, E. E. (O '14)
 Makers of madness. Hagedorn, H., jr. (D '14)
 Makers of music. Sharp, R. F. (Mr '14)
 Makers of the nation. Coe, F. E. (N '14)
 Making a garden of small fruits. Rockwell, F. (Ap '14)
 Making built-in furniture. McClure, A. (Ap '14)
 Making fences, walls and hedges. Butterfield, W. H. (Je '14)
 Making of an Englishman. George, W. L. (Mr '14)
 Making of an oration. Brink, C. M. (Je '14)
 Making of leather. Procter, H. R. (O '14)
 Making of musicians. Trotter, T. H. Y. (F '15)
- Mammals
 Scott, W. B. History of land mammals in the western hemisphere. (Ja '14)
- Man
 Clodd, E. Childhood of the world. (Ag '14)
 Geikie, J. Antiquity of man in Europe. (F '15)
 Man and the moment. Glyn, E. (N '14)
 Man behind the bars. Taylor, W. L. (Ja '15)
 Man inside. Lincoln, N. S. (Je '14)
 Man of Egypt. Cooper, C. S. (Ja '14)
 Man of genius. Türck, H. (F '15)
 Man of Nazareth. Anderson, F. L. (F '15)
 Man of the desert. Lutz, G. H.- (D '14)
 Man who dreamed right. White, W. H. (D '14)
 Man with the double heart. Coxon, M. (S '14)
 Man with the iron hand. Parish, J. C. (Ja '14)
 Management and feeding of sheep. Shaw, T. (F '15)
- Manners and customs
 Parsons, E. W. Fear and conventionality. (Ja '15)
- Man's miracle. Harry, G. (Ap '14)
- Manual of fruit insects. Slingerland, M. V., and Crosby, C. R. (D '14)
- Manual of mechanical drawing. Dales, J. H. (Ja '15)
- Manual of petrographic methods. Jchannsen, A. (Ag '14)
- Manual of weeds. Georgia, A. E. (F '15)
- Manual training
 Legge, J. G. Thinking hand. (Ja '15)
 Plaisted, L. L. Handwork and its place in early education. (Ja '14)
 Marechale. Strahan, J. (S '14)
 Maria. Hutten zum Stolzenberg, B. (Ag '14)
 Mark Tidd. Kelland, C. B. (Ja '14)
 Mark Tidd in the backwoods. Kelland, C. B. (N '14)
 Markets for the people. Sullivan, J. W. (Mr '14)
- Marlborough, John Churchill, 1st duke of, 1650-1722
 Reid, S. J. John and Sarah, duke and duchess of Marlborough. (F '15)
- Marriage
 Howard, G. E. Family and marriage. (Ap '14)
 Westermarck, E. A. Marriage ceremonies in Morocco. (Ag '14)
 Marriage of Cecilia. Leeson, M. (My '14)
 Marryers. Bacheller, I. A. (My '14)
- Mars
 Housden, C. E. Riddle of Mars. (S '14)
 Marta of the lowlands. Guimera, A. (F '15)
 Martha and cupid. Lippmann, J. M. (N '14)
 Mary Eliza's wonder-life. Davis, G. E. (Mr '14)
 Mary Frances housekeeper. Fryer, J. (Ja '15)
 Mary Frances sewing book. Fryer, J. (Ja '14)
 Mary goes first. Jones, H. A. (S '14)
 Mary Jane's pa. Ellis, E. (N '14)
- Mary Stuart, queen of Scots, 1542-1587
 Mumby, F. A. Elizabeth and Mary Stuart. (My '14)
- Masks
 MacKaye, P. Saint Louis. (Jl '14)
 MacKaye, P. Sanctuary. (Ap '14)
 Masks of love. Gerry, M. (F '14)
 Mason-bees. Fabre, J. H. C. (Ja '15)
 Masters of English literature. Chubb, E. W. (F '15)
 Masters of past time. Fromentin, E. (Mr '14)
 Mastery of grief. Hall, B. (Ja '14)
 Materials for the study of elementary economics. Marshall, L. C., and others, eds. (Mr '14)
 Mathematical theory of investment. Skinner, E. B. (My '14)
- Mathematics
 Bromley, C. H., and Cobleigh, H. R. Mathematics for the practical engineer. (Ja '15)
 Laisant, C. A. Mathematics. (Je '14)
 Moritz, R. E. Memorabilia mathematica. (O '14)
- Matter
 Carr, W. K. Matter and some of its dimensions. (Mr '14)
- Matter, Constitution of
 Ames, J. S. Constitution of matter. (Ja '14)
 Matthew Hargraves. Tallentyre, S. G., pseud. (D '14)
- Maximilian I, emperor of Germany, 1459-1519
 Hare, C., pseud. Maximilian the dreamer. (Ja '14)
- Maximilian, Ferdinand Joseph, 1832-1867
 Martin, P. F. Maximilian in Mexico. (F '14)
 May Iverson's career. Jordan, E. G. (Ja '15)
 Meaning of art, its nature, rôle, and value. Gaultier, P. (Je '14)
 Meatless cookery. Gillmore, M. (F '15)
 Meccas of the world. Warwick, A., pseud. (Mr '14)
- Mechanical drawing
 Dales, J. H. Manual of mechanical drawing. (Ja '15)
- Mechanical engineering
 Machinery. Machinery's handbook for machine shop and drafting-room. (Je '14)
 Smallwood, J. C. Mechanical laboratory methods. (Ag '14)
 Mechanical laboratory methods. Smallwood, J. C. (Ag '14)
 Mechanical refrigeration. Macintire, H. J. (My '14)
- Mechanical theory of life
 Haldane, J. S. Mechanism, life and personality. (Je '14)
- Mechanics
 Guillaume, C. E. Mechanics. (My '14)
 Mechanics of law making. Iibert, C. P. (O '14)
 Mechanism, life and personality. Haldane, J. S. (Je '14)
 Mechanistic principle and the non-mechanical. Carus, P. (Ap '14)
 Mediæval byways. Salzmann, L. F. (Mr '14)
 Mediæval popular ballad. Steenstrup, J. C. H. R. (Jl '14)
 Medical and sanitary inspection of schools. Newmayer, S. W. (My '14)

Medicine

Medical research and education. (O '14)

History

Garrison, F. H. Introduction to the history of medicine. (Je '14)

Meditations on votes for women. Crothers, S. M. (D '14)

Memorabilia mathematica. Moritz, R. E. (O '14)

Memorials of eminent Yale men. Stokes, A. P., jr. (F '15)

Memories of my youth, 1844-1865. Putnam, G. H. (Jl '14)

Memories of the Kaiser's court. Topham, A. (O '14)

Memory

Meumann, E. Psychology of learning. (Je '14)

Men and matters. Ward, W. P. (My '14)

Men and women of the Italian reformation. Hare, C., pseud. (Je '14)

Mental and physical life of school children. Sandiford, P. (O '14)

Mental health of the school child, Wallin, J. E. W. (O '14)

Mental hygiene

Carey, A. A. New nerves for old. (Ja '15)

Mental work and fatigue. Thorndike, E. L. (Jl '14)

Mercantile credit. Hagerty, J. E. (F '14)

Merchant of Venice. Shakespeare, W. (S '14)

Merchants from Cathay. Benét, W. R. (Ja '14)

Mercy of the Lord. Steel, F. A. (N '14)

Mésalliance. Hinkson, K. (Ja '14)

Message of new thought. Allen, A. L. (My '14)

Messmates. Step, E. (My '14)

Messmates. Stevens, W. O. (Mr '14)

Metal work

Davidson, P. W. Educational metalcraft. (Ag '14)

Hooper, J., and Shirley, A. J. Handcraft in wood and metal. (D '14)

Maryon, H. Metalwork and enamelling. (Je '14)

Metal work, Artistic

Payne, A. F. Art metalwork with inexpensive equipment. (F '15)

Metallurgy

Gowland, W. Metallurgy of the non-ferrous metals. (Ja '15)

Hofman, H. O. General metallurgy. (Ap '14)

Hofman, H. O. Metallurgy of copper. (Ja '15)

Methods of machine shop work. Halsey, F. A. (Ja '15)

Mexican archæology. Joyce, T. A. (O '14)

Mexican people. Gutierrez de Lara, L., and Pinchon, E. (My '14)

Mexico

Bell, E. I. Political shame of Mexico. (Ag '14)

Carson, W. E. Mexico, the wonderland of the south. (Mr '14)

Fyfe, H. H. Real Mexico. (My '14)

Gilbert, H. Conquerors of Mexico. (F '15)

Gutierrez de Lara, L., and Pinchon, E. Mexican people. (My '14)

Haferkorn, H. E. War with Mexico, 1846-1848. (Ag '14)

MacHugh, R. J. Modern Mexico. (My '14)

Martin, P. F. Maximilian in Mexico. (F '14)

Reed, J. Insurgent Mexico. (O '14)

Starr, F. Mexico and the United States. (Je '14)

Terry, T. P. Mexico. (Ag '14)

Zayas Enriquez, R. de. Case of Mexico and the policy of President Wilson. (Jl '14)

Antiquities

Joyce, T. A. Mexican archæology. (O '14)

Bibliography

Haferkorn, H. E. War with Mexico, 1846-1848. (Ag '14)

Microscopy of drinking water. Whipple, G. C. (S '14)

Midstream. Comfort, W. L. (Jl '14)

Mid-Victorian memories. Francillon, R. E. (Ag '14)

Military art and science

Aston, G. G. Sea, land, and air strategy. (N '14)

Bernhardi, F. von. How Germany makes war. (N '14)

O'Ryan, J. F., and Anderson, W. D. A. Modern army in action. (D '14)

Military history

Portescue, J. W. Military history. (O '14)

Ogden, H. A. Boys' book of famous regiments. (Ja '15)

Milky way. Jesse, F. T. (Je '14)

Milton, John, 1608-1674

Sampson, A. Studies in Milton and an essay on poetry. (My '14)

Thompson, E. N. S. Essays on Milton. (F '15)

Minds in distress. Bridger, A. E. (My '14)

Mine sampling and valuing. Herzig, C. S. (Ag '14)

Mine surveying. Durham, E. B. (Ja '14)

Minions of the moon. Cawein, M. J. (Mr '14)

Ministry of art. Cram, R. A. (Jl '14)

Mirabeau, Honoré Gabriel Riquetti, comte de, 1749-1791

Barthou, L. Mirabeau: a biography. (Ja '14)

Miracle man. Packard, F. L. (My '14)

Miracles of science. Williams, H. S. (Ja '14)

Mirandy. Dix, D., pseud. (Ag '14)

Misadventures of Joseph. Bell, J. J. (N '14)

Misadventures of three good boys. Shute, H. A. (Jl '14)

Misalliance. Shaw, G. B. (D '14)

Miss Billy—married. Porter, E. (Ap '14)

Missions

Capen, E. W. Sociological progress in mission lands. (S '14)

Clough, J. E. Social Christianity in the Orient. (F '15)

Crawford, D. Thinking black. (Ag '14)

Eddy, G. S. New era in Asia. (My '14)

Faunce, W. H. P. Social aspects of foreign missions. (Ja '15)

Mott, J. R., ed. Continuation committee conferences in Asia, 1912-13. (Ag '14)

Pennell, A. M. Pennell of the Afghan frontier. (Ja '15)

Mississippi valley

Parish, J. C. Man with the iron hand. (Ja '14)

Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo. Oppenheim, E. P. (Ja '15)

Mr. Faust. Ficke, A. D. (Mr '14)

Mrs. Brand. Keays, H. A. M. (My '14)

Mrs. Day's daughters. Mann, M. E. (Ap '14)

Mrs. Vanderstein's jewels. Bryce, C. (Ag '14)

Mixing. White, B. (Ja '14)

Mob. Galsworthy, J. (Ag '14)

Model housing law. Veiller, L. (My '14)

Modern army in action. O'Ryan, J. F., and Anderson, W. D. A. (D '14)

Modern city planning and maintenance. Koester, F. (Jl '14)

Modern dancing. Castle, V. and I. (Ap '14)

Modern English literature. Mair, G. H. (D '14)

Modern gas tractor. Page, V. W. (Mr '14)

Modern high school. Johnston, C. H., ed. (D '14)

Modern industry in relation to the family, health, education, morality. Kelley, F. (Jl '14)

Modern Mexico. MacHugh, R. J. (My '14)

Modern parliamentary eloquence. Curzon, G. N. C. (D '14)

Modern problems of biology. Minot, C. S. (Je '14)

Modern Russia. Alexinsky, G. (Ja '14)

Modern seismology. Walker, G. W. (Je '14)

Modern short-story. Notestein, L. L., and Dunn, W. H. (My '14)

Modern tunneling. Brunton, D. W., and Davis, J. A. (N '14)

Modern values and their Christian sources. Walcott, P. C. (F '15)

Modern weapons of war. Hall, C. (Ja '15)

Modernities. Samuel, H. B. (Je '14)

Modernizing of the Orient. Cooper, C. S. (Ja '15)

Molded electrical insulation and plastics. Hemming, E. (S '14)

Molly Beamish. Stacpoole, H. D. (F '14)

Mommsen's law

Adams, C. F., jr. Monroe doctrine and Mommsen's law. (O '14)

Monasteries

Thompson, A. H. English monasteries. (Ap '14)

Money

- Parker, D. A. Theory of money. (Ja '14)
 Bilgram, H., and Levy, L.: E: Cause of business depressions. (Ag '14)
 Holdsworth, J.: T. Money and banking. (F '15)
 Scott, W.: A. Money. (Mr '14)

Mongolia

- Carruthers, D. Unknown Mongolia. (Jl '14)
 Perry-Ayscough, H. G. C., and Otter-Barry, R. B. With the Russians in Mongolia. (Ap '14)

Monksbridge. Ayscough, J., pseud. (My '14)Monmouth, James Scott, duke of, 1649-1685

- Nepean, E. M. On the left of a throne. (My '14)

Monologs

- Barbee, L. In the college days. (S '14)
 Monologues. Middleton, R.: (Mr '14)

Monroe doctrine

- Adams, C. F., jr. Monroe doctrine and Momm-sen's law. (O '14)
 Bigelow, J., jr. American policy. (Jl '14)
 Taft, W. H. United States and peace. (Jl '14)
 Monsignor Villarosa. Litta-Viscount-Arese, P. (F '15)

Mont Saint Michel

- Adams, H.: Mont-Saint-Michel and Chartres. (Ja '14)

Monte Carlo. Stacpoole, M. (Mr '14)Montenegro

- Trevor, R. Montenegro: a land of warriors. (Ag '14)

Montessori method

- Boyd, W.: From Locke to Montessori. (Jl '14)
 Culverwell, E.: P. Montessori principles and practice. (Mr '14)
 Fisher, D. F. Montessori manual. (Ap '14)
 Montessori, M. Dr. Montessori's own handbook. (Jl '14)
 Ward, F. E. Montessori method and the American school. (Ap '14)

Montrose, James Grahame, 1st marquils of, 1612-1650

- Buchan, J.: Marquis of Montrose. (Ja '14)
 Monumental classic architecture in Great Britain and Ireland. Richardson, A. E. (S '14)

Moral education

- Lytelton, E.: Corner-stone of education. (Jl '14)

More about collecting. Yoxall, J. H.: (D '14)More about King Edward. Legge, E.: (My '14)More than conquerors. Gilbert, A. (N '14)More ways of entertaining your guests. Dickinson, D. (Ja '15)Mormons and Mormonism

- Cannon, F. J., and Knapp, G.: L. Brigham Young and his Mormon empire. (Mr '14)

Morocco

- Holt, G.: E. Morocco, the bizarre. (Jl '14)
 Loti, P., pseud. Morocco. (F '15)
 Westermarck, E.: A. Marriage ceremonies in Morocco. (Ag '14)

Morris, William, 1834-1896

- Clutton-Brock, A. William Morris; his work and influence. (S '14)

Mostly true. Fleming, G. (My '14)Mother in education. Winterburn, F. M. (F '15)Mothers

- Key, E. K. S. Renaissance of motherhood. (Jl '14)
 Lovejoy, S. Self-training for motherhood. (D '14)
 Spargo, J.: Socialism and motherhood. (S '14)
 Mothers and children. Fisher, D. F. (Ja '15)

Motor cycles

- Whitman, R. B. Motor-cycle principles and the light car. (F '15)
 Pagé, V.: W. Motorcycles, sidecars and cycle-cars. (D '14)

Motor tour in Belgium and Germany. Xenler, T. R. (Mr '14)Motor tour through Canada. Wilby, T. W.: (My '14)Motor ways in Lakeland. Abraham G.: D. (Mr '14)Mountaineering and exploration in the Selkirks. Palmer, H. (Ag '14)Mountains

- Geikie, J. Mountains: their origin, growth, and decay. (My '14)

Moving pictures

- Bail, E. H. Art of the photoplay. (Mr '14)
 Talbot, F.: A. Practical cinematography and its applications. (Ap '14)

Munger, Theodore Thornton, 1830-1910

- Bacon, B. W. Theodore Thornton Munger, New England minister. (My '14)

Munich

- Van Dyke, J.: C. Munich, Frankfurt, Cassel: critical notes on the Old pinacothek, the Stadel institute, the Cassel Royal gallery. (Je '14)

Municipal charters

- Matthews, N., jr. Municipal charters. (F '15)

Municipal corporations

- Pond, O. L.: Treatise on the law of public utilities operating in cities and towns. (Ag '14)

Municipal government

- Dawson, W.: H. Municipal life and government in Germany. (S '14)
 James, H. G. Applied city government. (O '14)

Municipal improvement

- Farwell, P. T. Village improvement. (My '14)
 Municipal life and government in Germany. Dawson, W.: H. (S '14)

Municipalities of the Roman empire. Reid, J. S. (Ag '14)Mural painting in America. Blashfield, E. H. (Ja '14)Music

- Aubry, P. Trouvères and troubadours. (F '15)
 Colles, H.: C. Growth of music. (D '14)
 Gantvoort, A. J. Familiar talks on the history of music. (S '14)
 Gehrkens, K.: W. Music notation and terminology. (O '14)
 Gilman, L. Nature in music. (F '15)
 Graves, A. P. Irish literary and musical studies. (Ag '14)
 Huneke, J. G. Old Foggy. (My '14)
 Matthay, T. A.: Musical interpretation. (Jl '14)
 Montagu-Nathan, M. History of Russian music. (D '14)
 Tapper, T., and Goetschius, P. Essentials in music history. (F '15)
 Wiggin, K. D. Bluebeard: a musical fantasy. (Ap '14)
 Wood, A. Physical basis of music. (Ap '14)

Instruction and study

- Gibb, M. P. Guide to the Chassevant method of musical education. (S '14)
 Trotter, T. H. Y. Making of musicians. (F '15)

Musical interpretation. Matthay, T. A.: (Jl '14)Musicians

- Cowen, F.: H. My art and my friends. (Ag '14)
 Rolland, R. Musicians of to-day. (D '14)
 Sharp, R. F. Makers of music. (Mr '14)

Mutiny of the Elsinore. London, J. (O '14)My adventures in the Commune. Vizetelly, E. A. (F '15)My art and my friends. Cowen, F.: H. (Ag '14)My beloved South. O'Connor, E. (Ap '14)My Bohemian days in Paris. Price, J. M. (S '14)My boy and I. Herrick, C. (Ja '14)My days of adventure. Vizetelly, E. A. (Je '14)My father. Stead, E. W. (Ja '14)My first years as a Frenchwoman, 1876-1879. Waddington, M. A. (Je '14)My garden doctor. Duncan, F. (My '14)My lady of the Chinese courtyard. Cooper, E. (Jl '14)My path through life. Lehmann, L. (Ja '15)My voyage in the United States frigate Congress. Van Denburgh, E. D. (Mr '14)Mystery of pain. Hinton, J. (Jl '14)Mystery of the oriental rug. Lewis, G.: G. (Ja '15)Mysticism

- Cobb, W.: F. Mysticism and the creed. (D '14)
 Spurgeon, C. F. E. Mysticism in English literature. (Je '14)

Mythology, Norse

- Baker, E. K. Stories from northern myths. (N '14)
 Myths and legends of the great plains. Judson, K. B., ed. (Mr '14)
 Myths and legends of the Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes. Judson, K. B., comp. and ed. (Ja '15)
 Myths of the Hindus and Buddhists. Noble, M. E., and Coomaraswamy, A. K. (Jl '14)
 Myths of the North American Indians. Spence, L. (F '15)

Names, Personal

- Weekley, E. Romance of names. (Ap '14)
 Nantucket. Douglas-Lithgow, R. A. (S '14)

Naples

- Turquan, J., and Auriac, J. E. d'. Great adventures. (Ag '14)

Napoleon I, emperor of the French, 1769-1821

- Burton, R. G. Napoleon's invasion of Russia. (N '14)
 Fleischmann, H. Unknown son of Napoleon. (N '14)
 Foord, E. A. Napoleon's Russian campaign of 1812. (Ja '15)
 Fraser, E. Napoleon the gaoler. (Ja '15)
 Griffiths, A. G. F. Life of Napoleon. (Ja '15)
 Hudson, W. H. Man Napoleon. (Ja '15)
 Montagu, V. M. Napoleon and his adopted son. (F '15)
 Petre, F. L. Napoleon at bay, 1814. (My '14)
 Pickthall, R. Comic kingdom. (My '14)
 Turquan, J. Love affairs of Napoleon. (Jl '14)
 Vachée, Col. Napoleon at work. (D '14)
 Whipple, W. Story-life of Napoleon. (F '15)
 Wolseley, G. J. W. Decline and fall of Napoleon. (F '15)

Narratives of the Indian war, 1675-1699. Lincoln, C. H., ed. (F '14)*Narratives of the witchcraft cases, 1648-1706.*Burr, G. L., ed. (Jl '14)*National guilds. Orage, A. R., ed. (D '14)*Natural education. Stoner, W. S. (O '14)*Natural history

- Kirkham, S. D. North and South. (Ap '14)
 Needham, J. G. Natural history of the farm. (D '14)
 Sharp, D. L. Where rolls the Oregon. (Jl '14)

Wilson, E. H. Naturalist in western China. (Ap '14)*Natural law in science and philosophy. Boutroux, É. (Ag '14)*Natural sources of energy. (O '14)*Natural rock asphalts and bitumens. Danby, A. (Ja '14)*Natural sources of energy. Gibson, A. H. (O '14)*Naturalist in western China. Willson, E. H. (Ap '14)*Nature*Burroughs, J. Summit of the years. (Ja '14)*Nature and origin of fiords. Gregory, J. W. (Jl '14)*Nature in music. Gilman, L. (F '15)*Naval art and science*Thursfield, J. R. Naval warfare. (Je '14)*Naval battles*Newbolt, H. J. Book of the blue sea. (F '15)*Naval warfare. Thursfield, J. R. (Je '14)*Navies*Hurd, A. S. Fleets at war. (D '14)*Ned Brewster's caribou hunt. Hawkins, C. J. (Ja '15)*Negro races. Dowd, J. (Ja '15)*Negroes*Daniels, J. In freedom's birthplace. (Jl '14)*Dowd, J. Negro races. (Ja '15)*Ferris, W. H. African abroad. (My '14)*Hammond, L. In black and white. (Ag '14)*Miller, K. Out of the house of bondage. (F '15)*Neighborhood stories. Gale, Z. (D '14)*Neighbors. Riis, J. A. (D '14)*Nerves. Harris, D. F. (Mr '14)*Nervous system

- Sadler, W. S. Worry and nervousness. (F '15)

Netherlands

- Banks, H. W. Boys' Motley. (Ja '15)
 Hall, M. E. Dutch days. (N '14)
 Rice, W. G. Carillons of Belgium and Holland. (F '15)

Neurasthenia

- Bridger, A. E. Minds in distress. (My '14)
 New agrarianism. Dahlinger, C. W. (Mr '14)
 New Clarion. Harben, W. N. (O '14)
 New dawn. Laut, A. C. (Mr '14)
 New discovery of the old art of teaching school. Hoole, C. (F '14)

New England

- Crawford, M. C. Social life in old New England. (Ja '15)
 Northend, M. H. Historic homes of New England. (D '14)
 New English literature. Halleck, R. P. (Mr '14)
 New era in Asia. Eddy, G. S. (My '14)
 New era in chemistry. Jones, H. C. (F '14)
 New golden treasury of songs and lyrics. Rhys, E., ed. (F '15)

New Guinea

- Newton, H. In far New Guinea. (Ag '14)
 New ideals in the Gospel. Schell, H. (My '14)
 New map of Europe (1911-1914). Gibbons, H. A. (D '14)
 New men for old. O'Brien, H. V. (Jl '14)
 New Mr. Howerson. Read, O. P. (D '14)
 New movement in the theatre. Cheney, S. (F '15)
 New nerves for old. Carey, A. A. (Ja '15)
 New optimism. Staupoole, H. D. (Jl '14)
 New politics. Brown, W. G. (Jl '14)
 New Testament in the twentieth century. Jones, M. (Ja '15)

New thought

- Allen, A. L. Message of new thought. (My '14)
 Patterson, C. B. In the sunlight of health. (Ap '14)

New translation of the New Testament. Moffatt, Rev. J. (My '14)*New Tripoli. Braun, E. (Ja '15)*New world of the south. Fitchett, W. H. (Ja '14)*New York (city)*Warwick A., pseud. Meccas of the world. (Mr '14)*New York (state)*Sowers, D. C. Financial history of New York state, 1789-1912. (Ag '14)*Stebbins, H. A. Political history of the state of New York, 1865-1869. (Mr '14)*New Zealand*Gooding, D. P. Picturesque New Zealand. (Ja '14)*Siegfried, A. Democracy in New Zealand. (Ap '14)*News, ads, and sales. Opdycke, J. B. (S '14)*News from the duchy. Quiller-Couch, A. T. (Mr '14)*Newspapers*Bleyer, W. G. Newspaper writing and editing. (Ja '14)*Opdycke, J. B. News, ads, and sales. (S '14)*Nietzsche, Friedrich Wilhelm, 1844-1900*Brandes, G. M. C. Friedrich Nietzsche. (S '14)*Carus, P. Nietzsche and other exponents of individualism. (Ap '14)*Night side of Japan. Fujimoto, T. (Ja '15)*Night watches. Jacobs, W. W. (D '14)*Nightingale, Florence, 1820-1910*Cook, E. T. Life of Florence Nightingale. (Ja '14)*Matheson, A. Florence Nightingale. (F '15)*Nightingale. Stoothoff, E. (D '14)*Nineteenth century*Jackson, H. Eighteen nineties. (F '14)*North Africa and the desert. Woodberry, G. E. (Je '14)*North American Indians. Catlin, G. (D '14)*North and South. Kirkham, S. D. (Ap '14)*North of fifty-three. Sinclair, B. W. (My '14)*Northwest, Canadian*Douglas, G. M. Lands forlorn. (Ja '15)

Northwest, Old

Quaife, M. M. Chicago and the Old Northwest. (Ja '14)

Notes of a son and brother. James, H. (Ap '14)

Notes on novelists. James, H. (D '14)

Notes on politics and history. Morley, J. M. (F '14)

Nothing but the truth. Isham, F. S. (D '14)

Nothing else matters. Johnson, W. S. (S '14)

Nova Hibernia. Monahan, M. (Jl '14)

Novel ways of entertaining. Winterburn, F. H., and others. (Je '14)

Nowadays. Middleton, G. (Ap '14)

No. 13 Washington Square. Scott, L. (Jl '14)

Nullo auction. Irwin, F. (Ja '15)

Nurses and nursing

Delano, J. A., and McIsaac, I. American Red Cross textbook on elementary hygiene and home care of the sick. (Ap '14)

Lowry, E. B. Home nurse. (Je '14)

Worcester, A. Nurses for our neighbors. (Jl '14)

Nutrition

Lusk, G. Fundamental basis of nutrition. (Ag '14)

Occupational diseases. Thompson, W. G. (D '14)

Occupations*Diseases and hygiene

Thompson, W. G. Occupational diseases. (D '14)

Ocean

Murray, J. Ocean (Ap '14)

Ocean trade and shipping. Owen, D. (Ja '15)

Oceanica

Johnson, M. E. Through the South Seas with Jack London. (Mr '14)

Oddsfish! Benson, R. H. (D '14)

Office management

Schulze, J. W. American office. (Ja '14)

Oh! James! Edginton, H. M. (S '14)

Oh, Mr. Bidgood! Blundell, P. (Je '14)

Oil production methods. Paine, P. M., and Stroud, B. K. (S '14)

Old Boston post road. Jenkins, S. (Ja '14)

Old court life in Spain. Elliot, F. M. (Ja '15)

Old English china. Hodgson, W. (My '14)

Old Foggy Hunker. J. G. (My '14)

Old Franciscan missions of California. James, G. W. (Ja '14)

Old game. Blythe, S. G. (S '14)

Old halls and manor houses of Yorkshre. Ambler, L. (Mr '14)

Old Italian lace. Ricci, E. (Ja '14)

Old Mole. Cannan, G. (F '14)

Old paste. Ryley, A. B. (Ag '14)

Old Spanish missions of California. Elder, D. P. (Mr '14)

Old Testament legends. James, M. R. (Ap '14)

Old valentines. Havens, M. (F '14)

Old world in the New. Ross, E. A. (D '14)

On acting. Matthews, E. (D '14)

On life and letters. France, A., pseud. (S '14)

On nature's trail. St. Mars, F. (Mr '14)

On Old-world highways. Murphy, T. D. (Je '14)

On the cosmic relations. Holt, H. (F '15)

On the left of a throne. Nepean, E. M. (My '14)

On the seaboard. Strindberg, A. (F '14)

On the staircase. Swinnerton, F. A. (N '14)

On the track of the great. Stanhope, A. (O '14)

On the warpath. Schultz, J. W. (N '14)

On war to-day. Bernhardt, F. von. (F '15)

Once to every man. Evans, L. (Ag '14)

One American's opinion of the European war. Whitridge, F. W. (F '15)

One clear call. Greene, F. N. (N '14)

One hundred cold desserts. Larned, L. (My '14)

One hundred salads. Larned, L. (My '14)

One hundred years of conflict between the nations of Europe. Morris, C. (O '14)

One kind and another. Fain, B. E. O. (F '15)

1000 things worth knowing. Fowler, N. C., Jr. (Mr '14)

1001 tests of foods, beverages and toilet accessories. Wiley, H. W. (O '14)

O'Neill, Owen Roe, 1590-1649

Coffey, D. O'Neill & Ormond. (Ja '15)

Opal pin. Gillmore, R. H. (Je '14)

Open-air politics and the conversion of Governor Soothem. Jay, J., pseud. (F '15)

Open door. Black, H. (Ja '15)

Open door. Wright, R. L. (D '14)

Open water. Stringer, A. (F '15)

Opera

Cellier, F., and Bridgeman, C. Gilbert and Sullivan. (N '14)

Isaacs, L. M., and Rahlson, K. J. Hänsel and Gretel. (F '14)

Newmarch, R. Russian opera. (D '14)

Stories, plots, etc.

Shubert, E. Stories of the operas. (Ap '14)

Operation of the new bank act. Conway, T., Jr., and Patterson, E. M. (Mr '14)

Operations upon the sea. Edelsheim, F. von. (Ja '15)

Oratory

Brink, C. M. Making of an oration. (Je '14)

Curzon, G. N. C. Modern parliamentary eloquence. (D '14)

Ore-deposits

Beyschlag, F. H. A., and others. Deposits of the useful minerals and rocks. (F '15)

Ore sampling

Herzig, C. S. Mine sampling and valuing. (Ag '14)

Organized democracy. Cleveland, F. A. (Ja '14)

Orient question to-day and to-morrow. Lazarovich-Hrebelianovich, S. L. E. (Ja '14)

Oriental rugs. Hawley, W. A. (Ja '14)

Origin and meaning of the Old Testament. Wehle, T. (F '15)

Origin of Attic comedy. Cornford, F. M. (D '14)

Origin of property and the formation of the village community. Lewinski, J. S. (Ap '14)

Original nature of man. Thorndike, E. L. (Ag '14)

Ormond, James Butler, 1610-1688

Coffey, D. O'Neill & Ormond. (Ja '15)

Orthodoxy. Putnam, N. W. (F '15)

Other people's money, and how the bankers use it. Brandeis, L. D. (Jl '14)

Otis, Harrison Gray, 1765-1848

Morison, S. E. Life and letters of Harrison Gray Otis. (My '14)

Our common road. Edwards, A. (Mr '14)

Our common sea-birds. Lowe, P. R. (My '14)

Our dishonest constitution. Benson, A. L. (S '14)

Our domestic birds. Robinson, J. H. (Je '14)

Our eternity. Maeterlinck, M. (Mr '14)

Our friend John Burroughs. Barrus, C. (Ap '14)

Our good slave electricity. Gibson, C. R. (F '15)

Our intellectual attitude in an age of criticism. Burton, M. L. (My '14)

Our Irish theatre. Gregory, I. A. (Ja '14)

Our knowledge of Christ. Miller, L. H. (F '15)

Our knowledge of the external world as a field for scientific method in philosophy. Russell, B. A. W. (F '15)

Our many-sided navy. Neeser, R. W. (S '14)

Our Mr. Wrenn. Lewis, S. (Mr '14)

Our modern debt to Israel. Baldwin, E. C. (My '14)

Our navy. Hurd, A. S. (D '14)

Our Philadelphia. Pennell, E. (Ja '15)

Our sentimental garden. Castle, A. and E. (Ja '15)

Our villa in Italy. Lucas, J. (D '14)

Out of bondage. Newman, F. H. (O '14)

Out of Egypt. Crouse, M. E. (Jl '14)

Out of the house of bondage. Miller, K. (F '15)

Outdoor games for children. Crozier, G. B. (Ja '15)

Outdoor life

Jackson, C. T. Fountain of youth. (Ja '15)

Knowles, J. Alone in the wilderness. (F '14)

Outlaw. Hennessey, D. (F '14)

Outline history of China. Gowen, H. H. (Mr '14)

Outline of German romanticism, 1766-1866. Porterfield, A. W. (F '15)

Outline of stationery testing. Bromley, H. A. (Ap '14)

Outlines of education in England. Jackson, C. (My '14)

Outlines of international law. Stockton, C. H. (F '15)

Outlines of railway economics. Knoop, D. (My '14)

Outlines of Victorian literature. Walker, H. and J. (Ja '15)

- Over the hills. Findlater, M. (My '14)
Overhead electric power transmission. Still, A. (Ja '14)
Overland Red. Knibbs, H. H. (Ap '14)
Ownership, tenure and taxation of land. Whitaker, T. P. (Ag '14)
Oxford book of Canadian verse. Campbell, W. W., comp. (Ap '14)
Oxford book of Spanish verse. Fitzmaurice-Kelly, J., comp. (Ag '14)
Oxford university
Lang, A. Oxford. (Ja '15)
- Pagan poems. Giddings, F. H. (F '15)
Paganism and Christianity in Egypt. Scott-Moncrieff, P. D. (S '14)
- Pageants
Davol, R. Handbook of American pageantry. (F '15)
- Pain
Hinton, J. Mystery of pain. (Jl '14)
- Painters
Staley, J. E. British painters. (F '15)
- Painting
Anderson, M. S. Study of modern painting. (D '14)
Blashfield, E. H. Mural painting in America. (Ja '14)
Norton, R. D. Painting in East and West. (Mr '14)
Ward, J. History and methods of ancient and modern painting. (Ag '14)
Technique
Laurie, A. P. Pigments and mediums of the old masters. (S '14)
- Painting, Dutch
Fromentin, E. Masters of past time. (Mr '14)
- Painting, German
Dickinson, H. A. S. German masters of art. (Ja '15)
- Painting, Italian
Brown, A. V., and Rankin, W. Short history of Italian painting. (Ag '14)
Crowe, J. A., and Cavalcaselle, G. B. History of painting in Italy. (O '14)
- Paintings
See Van Dyke, J. C. (Je, Ag '14)
Pelle of darkened windows. Bradley, M. (S '14)
- Palestine
Baldensperger, P. J. Immovable East. (D '14)
Handcock, P. S. P. Latest light on the Bible lands. (Je '14)
Kaleel, M. J. When I was a boy in Palestine. (Jl '14)
Salmon, P. R. Book of modern Palestine for boys and girls. (D '14)
- Panama canal
Abbot, W. J. Panama and the canal. (My '14)
Bunau-Varilla, P. Panama, the creation, destruction, and resurrection. (Mr '14)
Harrison, E. Panama canal. (My '14)
Haskin, F. J. Panama canal. (My '14)
Marshall, L. Story of the Panama canal. (Ap '14)
Miller, H. G., and Freehoff, J. C. Panama canal tolls controversy. (F '15)
Nixon, L. Canal tolls and American shipping. (Jl '14)
- Pan-Angles. Kennedy, S. (D '14)
- Paper
Bromley, H. A. Outline of stationery testing. (Ap '14)
Paper and cardboard construction. Buxton, G. F., and Curran, F. L. (Mr '14)
- Paper work
Beard, P. Jolly book of boxcraft. (D '14)
- Paris
Barnard, C. I. Paris war days. (D '14)
Price, J. M. My Bohemian days in Paris. (S '14)
Van Dyke, J. C. Paris: critical notes on the Louvre. (Je '14)
- Parnell, Charles Stewart, 1846-1891
Parnell, J. H. Charles Stewart Parnell: a memoir. (D '14)
Parnell, K. Charles Stewart Parnell. (N '14)
- Parthenogenesis
Loeb, J. Artificial parthenogenesis and fertilization. (My '14)
- Party government in the United States of America. Sloane, W. M. (D '14)
- Passing of empire. Fielding-Hall, H. (Je '14)
- Passing of the great Reform bill. Butler, J. R. M. (S '14)
- Pasteur, Louis, 1822-1895
Keim, A., and Lumet, L. Louis Pasteur. (O '14)
- Pastimes in times past. Monckton, O. P. (F '14)
- Pastor's wife. Arnim, M. A. (D '14)
- Patents
Thomson, H. C. Patents, trade-marks, design patents. (Ag '14)
- Path flower and other verses. Dargan, O. T. (Ja '15)
- Path to freedom in the school. MacMunn, N. (S '14)
- Patricia plays a part. Grundy, M. S. B-. (Mr '14)
- Patrol of the Sun Dance trail. Connor, R., pseud. (D '14)
- Patrons of industry
Buck, S. J. Granger movement. (Ja '14)
- Paul, St.
Carré, H. B. Paul's doctrine of redemption. (F '15)
Deissmann, G. A. St. Paul. (Ja '14)
Muntz, W. S. Rome, St. Paul and the early church. (My '14)
- Pavements
Baker, I. O. Treatise on roads and pavements. (Ap '14)
- Pawns of liberty. Tsanoff, C. and R. A. (F '15)
- Peace
Jordan, D. S. America's conquest of Europe. (Je '14)
Neland, O. H. Crimson fist. (My '14)
Reely, M. K., comp. World peace. (Jl '14)
Taft, W. H. United States and peace. (Jl '14)
- Peacock feather. Moore, L. (Mr '14)
- Peerage
Hall, T. Romances of the peerage. (Ag '14)
- Peg o' my heart. Manners, J. H. (Ja '14)
- Pelle the conqueror: apprenticeship. Nexö, M. A. (Ja '15)
- Pelle the conqueror: boyhood. Nexö, M. A. (Ja '14)
- Pen drawing
Hall, J. With pen and ink. (F '14)
- Penguins
Levick, G. M. Antarctic penguins. (Je '14)
- Pennell, Theodore Leighton
Pennell, A. M. Pennell of the Afghan frontier. (Ja '15)
- Pennsylvania
Heffner, W. C. History of poor relief legislation in Pennsylvania, 1682-1913. (O '14)
Penrod, Tarkington, B. (My '14)
- People's man. Oppenheim, E. P. (Ja '14)
- Peoples of India. Anderson, J. D. (Ag '14)
- Pepys of Mogul India, 1653-1708. Manucci, N. (Ag '14)
- Perch of the devil. Atherton, G. F. (S '14)
- Perkins, George Hamilton, 1835-1899
Alden, C. S. George Hamilton Perkins, commodore U. S. N. (Jl '14)
- Personal hygiene. Overton, F. (Je '14)
- Personality of American cities. Hungerford, E. (F '14)
- Personality plus. Ferber, E. (O '14)
- "Persons unknown." Tracy, V. D. (Ag '14)
- Perspective. Lubschez, B. J. (Ag '14)
- Peru
Todd, M. Peru, a land of contrasts. (D '14)
- Peter Piper. Jones, D. E. (Je '14)
- Petrographic methods. Manual of. Johannsen, A. (Ag '14)
- Petroleum
Paine, P. M., and Stroud, B. K. Oil production methods. (S '14)
- Philadelphia
Pennell, E. Our Philadelphia. (Ja '15)
- Philip the king. Masefield, J. (Ja '15)

Philippine islands

- Crow, C. America and the Philippines. (Jl '14)
 Le Roy, J. A. Americans in the Philippines. (Jl '14)
 Worcester, D. C. Philippines, past and present. (Ap '14)

Philistines

- Macalister, R. A. S. Philistines. (S '14)

Philosophy

- Abercrombie, L. Speculative dialogues. (O '14)
 Boutroux, E. Natural law in science and philosophy. (Ag '14)
 Burnet, J. Greek philosophy. (Ja '15)
 Eucken, R. C. Collected essays. (O '14)
 Faguet, E. Initiation into philosophy. (Je '14)
 Jevons, F. B. Philosophy: what is it? (D '14)
 Russell, B. A. W. Our knowledge of the external world as a field for scientific method in philosophy. (F '15)
 Shaw, C. G. Ego and its place in the world. (Ag '14)
 Tagore, R. Sadhana, the realisation of life. (Je '14)
 Thilly, F. History of philosophy. (Jl '14)
 Varisco, B. Great problems. (O '14)
 Whitney, G. T., and Fogel, P. H. Introduction to Kant's critical philosophy. (S '14)
 Windelband, W., and Ruge, A., eds. Encyclopedia of the philosophical sciences. v 1 (Je '14)
 Philosophy of art. Griggs, E. H. (F '14)
 Philosophy of biology. Johnstone, J. (Ja '15)
 Philosophy of Giambattista Vico. Croce, B. (Ap '14)
 Philosophy of religion. Galloway, G. (Jl '14)
 Philosophy of the practical, economic and ethic. Croce, B. (F '14)
 Philosophy of Welsh history. Morgan, J. V. (S '14)
 Physiological plant anatomy. Haberlandt, G. (Ja '15)
 Phiz and Dickens as they appeared to Edgar Browne. Browne, E. (O '14)
 Photo-electricity. Allen, H. S. (S '14)
 Photo-electricity. Hughes, A. L. (Ag '14)
Photography
 Anderson, A. J. A B C of artistic photography in theory and practice. (Ap '14)
 Olcott, C. S. Lure of the camera. (D '14)
 Phyllis. Daviess, M. T. (D '14)
 Physical bases of crime. American academy of medicine. (D '14)
 Physical basis of music. Wood, A. (Ap '14)
Physical education and training
 Bolton, F. Exercises for women. (Mr '14)
 Watts, D. Renaissance of the Greek ideal. (Ag '14)
Physical geography
 Cole, G. A. J. Growth of Europe. (S '14)
Physics
 Butler, A. M. Household physics. (N '14)
 Galilei, G. Dialogues concerning two new sciences. (S '14)
 Lynde, C. J. Physics of the household. (N '14)
 Owen, D. Recent physical research. (My '14)
 Physiological plant anatomy. Haberlandt, G. (Ja '15)
Planoforte
 Glover, E. H. How the piano came to be. (F '14)
 Pick, shovel and pluck. Bond, A. R. (F '15)
 Picturesque New Zealand. Gooding, D. P. (Ja '14)
 Pidgin Island. MacGrath, H. (Je '14)
Piedmont
 Butler, S. Alps and sanctuaries of Piedmont and the Canton Ticino. (Mr '14)
 Pierre Vinton. Venable, E. C. (D '14)
 Pigeon raising. Mactood, A. (Ap '14)
 Pigments and mediums of the old masters. Laurie, A. P. (S '14)
 Pilgrimage of British farming, 1910-1912. Hall, A. D. (O '14)
 Pillar of salt. Newte, H. W. C. (F '15)
 Pillar of sand. Castle, W. R. jr. (Ap '14)
 Pillars of society. Gardiner, A. G. (D '14)
 Pipes of Clovis. Boylan, G. (Ja '14)
 Pirate of Panama. Raine, W. M. (S '14)
Pirates
 Chatterton, E. K. Romance of piracy. (F '15)
 Pitcher Pollock. Mathewson, C. (Je '14)

- Pitt, William, 1st earl of Chatham, 1708-1778. Williams, B. Life of William Pitt, earl of Chatham. (F '14)
 Place beyond the winds. Comstock, H. T. (D '14)
 Place of the reign of Edward II in English history. Tout, T. F. (O '14)
 Plague and pestilence in literature and art. Crawford, R. (O '14)
 Planning and furnishing the home. Quinn, M. J. (N '14)
Plant-breeding
 Coulter, J. M. Fundamentals of plant-breeding. (F '15)
 Plant life. Farmer, J. B. (Ja '14)
 Plant life and plant uses. Coulter, J. G. (Je '14)
Plants
 Dixon, R. Human side of plants. (N '14)
Plants, Diseases of
 Stevens, F. L. Fungi which cause plant disease. (Je '14)
Plants, Irritability and movements of Bose, J. C. Researches on the irritability of plants. (Ag '14)
 Plato, 430?-347? B. C. Adam, A. M. Plato. (S '14)
Play
 Cabot, R. C. What men live by. (F '14)
 Play and recreation for the open country. Curtis, H. S. (Ap '14)
 Playing with fire. Earr, A. E. (Jl '14)
Pleasure
 Cabot, R. C. What men live by. (F '14)
Plumb, Preston B., 1837-1891
 Connelley, W. E. Life of Preston B. Plumb. (Ap '14)
Poems, Books of
 Adams, H. C. Glimpses of the East. (Ja '14)
 Aiken, C. Earth triumphant. (F '15)
 Arensberg, W. C. Poems. (Ag '14)
 Bangs, J. K. Foothills of Parnassus. (My '14)
 Barbe, W. Great poems interpreted. (Je '14)
 Beaumont, J. Minor poems. (Ag '14)
 Benét, W. R. Falconer of God. (F '15)
 Benét, W. R. Merchants from Cathay. (Ja '14)
 Binyon, L. Auguries. (Jl '14)
 Braithwaite, W. S., comp. Anthology of magazine verse for 1913. (Mr '14)
 Braithwaite, W. S., comp. Anthology of magazine verse for 1914. (F '15)
 Brown, A. F. Songs of sixpence. (N '14)
 Buck, M. S. Srinx. (F '15)
 Burke, T., ed. Children in verse. (O '14)
 Burr, A. J. In deep places. (Ja '15)
 Burt, M. S. In the high hills. (S '14)
 Campbell, W. W., comp. Oxford book of Canadian verse. (Ap '14)
 Carducci, G. Carducci. (Ja '14)
 Cawein, M. J. Minions of the moon. (Mr '14)
 Chater, M. Bubble ballads. (N '14)
 Dargan, O. T. Path flower and other verses. (Ja '15)
 Dawson, C. Florence on a certain night. (S '14)
 Dawson, W. J. America. (F '15)
 Dickinson, E. Single bound. (N '14)
 Donne, J. Poems. (F '14)
 Dunbar, P. L. Complete poems. (F '14)
 Eden, H. P. Bread and circuses. (Ag '14)
 Evans, F. W. Ride home. (Ja '15)
 Fenollosa, M. M. Blossoms from a Japanese garden. (Ja '14)
 Ficke, A. D. Sonnets of a portrait-painter. (F '15)
 Fitzmaurice-Kelly, J., comp. Oxford book of Spanish verse. (Ag '14)
 Georgian poetry, 1911-1912. (Ja '14)
 Gibson, W. W. Borderlands and thoroughfares. (Ja '15)
 Giddings, F. H. Pagan poems. (F '15)
 Giovannitti, A. Arrows in the gale. (S '14)
 Goldmark, P., and Hopkins, M., comps. Gypsy trail. (F '15)
 Goodwin, A. H., comp. and tr. Rhymes from the Rhineland. (Je '14)
 Hardy, T. Satires of circumstance. (F '15)
 Helston, J. Aphrodite. (F '14)
 Judson, H. C. Songs toward the sunlight. (Ag '14)

- Kemp, H. Cry of youth. (F '15)
 Kilmer, J. Trees, and other poems. (Ja '15)
 Knibbs, H. H. Songs of the outlands. (F '15)
 Lang, J.; and J., comps. Poetry of heroism. (Mr '14)
 Ledoux, L. V. Shadow of Ætna. (O '14)
 Le Gallienne, R. Lonely dancer. (F '14)
 Letts, W. M. Songs from Leinster. (F '14)
 Lindsay, N. V. Congo. (Ja '15)
 Lindsay, N. V. General William Booth enters into heaven. (F '14)
 Litchfield, G. D. Collected poems. (My '14)
 Low, E. R. C. Wand and strings. (My '14)
 Lowell, A. Sword blades and poppy seed. (Ja '15)
 Lucas, E. V. Swollen-headed William. (Ja '15)
 MacGill, P. Songs of the dead end. (Ag '14)
 MacKaye, P. Present hour. (D '14)
 Martin, E. S. Poems. (F '15)
 Masefield, J. Philip the king. (Ja '15)
 Mitchell, S. W. Complete poems. (F '15)
 Monroe, H. You and I. (F '15)
 Moore, T. S. Sea is kind. (D '14)
 Newman, F. H. Out of bondage. (O '14)
 Norton, G. F. Sister of the wind. (S '14)
 Noyes, A. Wine-press. (F '14)
 Oppenheim, J. Songs of the new age. (D '14)
 Ordway, E. B. Handbook of quotations. (Ap '14)
 Rhys, E., ed. New golden treasury of songs and lyrics. (F '15)
 Rice, C. Y. At the world's heart. (F '15)
 Richardson, J., comp. In the garden of delight. (Ap '14)
 Riley, J. W. Complete works. (Mr '14)
 Rittenhouse, J. B., comp. Little book of modern verse. (Ja '14)
 Rosenfeld, M. Songs of labor. (F '15)
 Songs and sonnets for England in war time. (N '14)
 Sterling, G. Beyond the breakers. (F '15)
 Stevenson, R. L. B. Poems and ballads. (F '14)
 Stringer, A. Open water. (F '15)
 Symons, A. Knave of hearts, 1894-1908. (S '14)
 Untermeyer, L. Challenge. (S '14)
 Van Dyke, H. Grand canyon. (F '15)
 Villon, F. Poems. (F '15)
 Waddell, H. Lyrics from the Chinese. (Je '14)
 Wagstaff, B. Eris. (D '14)
 West, J. H. Poems of human progress. (D '14)
 Weston, J. L., ed. Chief Middle English poets. (Ag '14)
 Wheelock, J. H. Love and liberation. (S '14)
 Woodberry, G. E. Flight. (Ap '14)
 Woods, M. L. Collected poems. (My '14)
 Poems of human progress. West, J. H. (D '14)
 Poet. Nicholson, M. (N '14)
- Poetry
 Barbe, W. Great poems interpreted. (Je '14)
 Cowl, R. P. Theory of poetry in England. (D '14)
 Quiller-Couch, A. T. Poetry. (F '15)
 Poetry of heroism. Lang, J.; and J., comps. (Mr '14)
- Polsons
 Rambousek, J. Industrial poisoning from fumes, gases and poisons of manufacturing processes. (Mr '14)
 Policy and paint. Longueville, T. (My '14)
 Political and literary essays, 1908-1913. Cromer, E. B. (Je '14)
 Political and sectional influence of the public lands, 1828-1842. Wellington, R. G. (D '14)
 Political economy. Glide, C. (Ja '15)
- Political ethics
 Emery, H. C. Politician, party, and people. (Ja '14)
 Political history of secession. Howe, D. W. (Ja '15)
 Political history of the state of New York, 1865-1869. Stebbins, H. A. (Mr '14)
- Political parties
 Bizzell, W. B. Judicial interpretation of political theory. (O '14)
 Sloane, W. M. Party government in the United States of America. (D '14)
- Woodburn, J. A. Political parties and party problems in the United States. (Ag '14)
- Political science
 Coker, F. W. Readings in political philosophy. (F '15)
 Gettell, R. G. Problems in political evolution. (S '14)
 Howard, G. E. Present political questions. (Ap '14)
 Political shame of Mexico. Bell, E. I. (Ag '14)
 Politician, party, and people. Emery, H. C. (Ja '14)
- Pöllnitz, Karl Ludwig, freiherr von, 1692-1775
 Cuthell, E. E. Vagabond courtier. (S '14)
 Polly Page motor club. Forrester, I. L. (Mr '14)
- Poor
 Hollander, J. H. Abolition of poverty. (F '15)
 Riis, J. A. Neighbors. (D '14)
 Withers, H. Poverty and waste. (O '14)
- Poor laws
 Heffner, W. C. History of poor relief legislation in Pennsylvania, 1682-1913. (O '14)
 Poppyland. Stacpoole, H. D. (F '15)
 Popular government. Taft, W. H. (Mr '14)
- Porcelain
 Lewer, H. W. China collector. (Je '14)
- Port Royal des Champs (Cistercian abbey)
 Barnard, H. C. Little schools of Port-Royal. (O '14)
- Porto Rico
 Verrill, A. H. Porto Rico, past and present, and San Domingo of to-day. (L '14)
 Portraits and caricatures of James McNeill Whistler. Gallatin, A. E. (O '14)
- Portugal
 Oliveira Martins, J. P. de. Golden age of Prince Henry, the navigator. (Ag '14)
 Wood, R. K. Tourist's Spain and Portugal. (Mr '14)
 Possessed. Dostoevski, F. M. (F '14)
 Post-impressions. Strunsky, S. (Jl '14)
 Post office. Tagore, R. (Ag '14)
- Postage stamps
 Armstrong, D. B. Boys' book of stamp collecting. (Ja '15)
 Pot-pourri mixed by two Earle, M. T., and Case, E. (N '14)
- Pottery
 Blacker, J. F. A B C of collecting old continental pottery. (Ap '14)
 Cox, G. J. Pottery. (Ja '15)
 Hodgson, W. Old English china. (My '14)
- Poultry
 Bolte, J. W. Back yard farmer. (F '14)
 Joos, R. Success with hens. (Mr '14)
 Park, P. R. Poultry guide post. (O '14)
 Robinson, J. H. Our domestic birds. (Je '14)
 Poverty and waste. Withers, H. (O '14)
- Power
 Gibson, A. H. Natural sources of energy. (O '14)
 Power of ideals in American history. Adams, E. D. (Ja '14)
 Practical book of garden architecture. Humphreys, P. W. (Je '14)
 Practical book of outdoor rose growing for the home garden. Thomas, G. C., jr. (F '15)
 Practical book of period furniture. Eberlein, H. D., and McClure, A. (F '15)
 Practical cinematography and its applications. Talbot, F. A. (Ap '14)
 Practical sailing and motor-boating. Kendrick, E. W. (Ja '14)
 Practical stone quarrying. Greenwell, A., and Elsdon, J. V. (Ag '14)
 Practical use of books and libraries. Ward, G. O. (S '14)
- Pragmatism
 Caldwell, W. Pragmatism and idealism. (Ap '14)
- Prayer
 McComb, S. Prayer, what it is and what it does. (F '14)
- Preaching
 Horne, C. S. Romance of preaching. (F '15)
 Hoyt, A. S. Vital elements of preaching. (F '15)

Precious stones

Kunz, G. F: Curious lore of precious stones. (Ja '14)

Precious stones, Artificial

Itley, A. B. Old paste. (Ag '14)
 Precipice. Peattie, E. W. (F '14)
 Prehistoric times. Avebury, J. L. (Ap '14)
 Present hour. MacKaye, P. (D '14)
 Present political questions. Howard, G. E. (Ap '14)
 Present relations of science and religion. Bonney, T. G. (Ag '14)
 Presentation. Stacpoole, H. de V. (N '14)
 Presidents of the United States 1789-1914. Wilson, J. G., ed. (Ap '14)
 Press-gang afloat and ashore. Hutchinson, J. R. (Ap '14)
 Pressing questions. Mackmurdo, A. H. (Ap '14)
 Prestige. Leopold, L. (Ja '14)
 Preventive medicine and hygiene. Rosenau, M. J. (Ag '14)
 Price of love. Bennett, A. (Je '14)
 Price of place. Blythe, S. G. (Ja '14)

Prices

Barbour, D. M. Influence of the gold supply on prices and profits. (Ag '14)
 Fisher, I. Why is the dollar shrinking? (F '15)

Primal lure. Roc, V. E. (Ap '14)
 Primer of higher space. Bragdon, C. F. (O '14)
 Primer of social science. Parkinson, H. (My '14)
 Primitive family as an educational agency. Todd, A. J. (Ja '14)
 Prince of Graustark. McCutcheon, G. B. (O '14)
 Prince of Mercuria. Kimball, A. (D '14)

Princeton university

Collins, V. L. Princeton (O '14)
 Principles and methods of teaching geography. Holtz, F. L. (Mr '14)
 Principles and practice of electrical engineering. Gray, A. (F '15)
 Principles and practice of school gardening. Logan, A. (My '14)
 Principles of character making. Holmes, A. (My '14)
 Principles of cooking. Conley, E. (N '14)
 Principles of correct dress. Winterburn, F. M. (Jl '14)
 Principles of design. Rhead, G. W. (My '14)
 Principles of Greek art. Gardner, P. (Mr '14)
 Principles of industrial organization. Kimball, D. S. (Ja '14)
 Principles of irrigation practice. Widtsoe, J. A. (F '15)
 Principles of secondary education. De Garmo, C. (Mr '14)
 Principles of secondary education. Monroe, P., ed. (F '15)
 Principles of taxation. Lyon, W. H. (Ja '15)
 Principles of war historically illustrated. Altham, E. A. (S '14)

Printing

Holme, C., ed. Art of the book. (O '14)
 Prints. Richter, E. H. (Ja '15)

Prisons and prisoners

Hawthorne, J. Subterranean brotherhood. (D '14)
 Lytton, C. Prisons and prisoners. (Jl '14)
 Osborne, T. M. Within prison walls. (Jl '14)
 Taylor, W. L. Man behind the bars. (Ja '15)
 Private affairs. McEvoy, C. (N '14)
 Privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States. Lien, A. J. (Ap '14)

Probation system

Flexner, B., and Baldwin, R. N. Juvenile courts and probation. (O '14)
 Problem of individuality. Driesch, H. A. E. (S '14)
 Problems of boyhood. Johnson, F. W. (Ja '15)
 Problems of child welfare. Mangold, G. B. (O '14)
 Problems of conduct. Drake, D. (F '15)
 Problems of genetics. Bateson, W. (Ag '14)
 Problems of political evolution. Gettell, R. G. (S '14)
 Problems of science. Enriques, F. (Jl '14)
 Prodigals and sons. Ayscough, J., pseud. (Mr '14)
 Productive horse husbandry. Gay, C. W. (Jl '14)
 Productive orcharding. Sears, F. C. (D '14)
 Productive swine husbandry. Day, G. E. (Ja '14)

Professor and the petticoat. Johnson, A. S. (My '14)

Profit-sharing

Mackmurdo, A. H. Pressing questions. (Ap '14)
 Williams, A. Co-partnership and profit-sharing. (Mr '14)
 Progress of eugenics. Saleeby, C. W. (D '14)
 Progressive democracy. Croly, H. D. (D '14)
 Progressive movement. Duncan-Clark, S. J. (Ja '14)

Progressive party

Duncan-Clark, S. J. Progressive movement. (Ja '14)
 Walling, W. E. Progressivism—and after. (Je '14)
 Progressivism—and after. Walling, W. E. (Je '14)

Pronunciation

Phyfe, W. H. P. Eighteen thousand words often mispronounced. (Je '14)
 Proof of God. Begbie, H. (N '14)

Proof-reading

Riverside press, Cambridge, Mass. Handbook of style. (Ap '14)

Property

Ely, R. T. Property and contract in their relations to the distribution of wealth. (Ja '15)
 Lewinski, J. S. Origin of property and the formation of the village community. (Ap '14)
 Property, its duties and rights. (Ag '14)

Prophets

Baldwin, E. C. Our modern debt to Israel. (My '14)
 Buttenwieser, M. Prophets of Israel. (Ag '14)
 Prostitution in Europe. Flexner, A. (F '14)
 Provincial Russia. Stewart, H. (Mr '14)

Psychical research

Bruce, H. A. Adventurings in the psychical. (Jl '14)
 Holt, H. On the cosmic relations. (F '15)
 Hyslop, J. H. Psychical research and survival. (Ap '14)
 Maeterlinck, M. Unknown guest. (Ja '15)

Psychology

Baldwin, J. M. History of psychology. (Ja '14)
 Münsterberg, H. Psychology and social sanity. (Je '14)
 Münsterberg, H. Psychology, general and applied. (Ja '15)
 Prince, M. The unconscious. (My '14)
 Seashore, C. E. Psychology in daily life. (F '14)

Psychology, Comparative

Watson, J. B. Behavior. (F '15)

Psychology, Educational

Morgan, B. S. Backward child. (Jl '14)
 Sandiford, P. Mental and physical life of school children. (O '14)
 Thorndike, E. L. Mental work and fatigue. (Jl '14)
 Thorndike, E. L. Original nature of man. (Ag '14)
 Wallin, J. E. W. Mental health of the school child. (O '14)

Psychology, Pathological

Freud, S. Psychopathology of everyday life. (N '14)

Psychology, Physiological

Goddard, H. H. Feeble-mindedness. (O '14)
 Psychology of learning. Meumann, E. (Je '14)
 Psychology of management. Gilbreth, L. M. (Je '14)
 Psychopathology of everyday life. Freud, S. (N '14)

Public lands

Wellington, R. G. Political and sectional influence of the public lands, 1828-1842. (D '14)
 Public library administration. Rae, W. S. C. (My '14)
 Public opinion and popular government. Lowell, A. L. (Ja '14)

Public ownership

Guyot, Y. Where and why public ownership has failed. (My '14)

Public schools

United States

- Cabot, E. L. Volunteer help to the schools. (O '14)
 Public utilities. Hayes, H. V. (F '14)
Pulitzer, Joseph, 1847-1911
 Ireland, A. Joseph Pulitzer. (Jl '14)
 Pumping by compressed air. Ivens, E. M. (Ja '15)
 Punch and Judy. Pugh, E. W. (Jl '14)
Punishment
 Ives, G. History of penal methods. (My '14)
 Puritans in power. Tatham, G. B. (F '15)
 Purple mists. Young, F. E. M. (Je '14)
Pyrenees
 O'Connor, V. C. S. Travels in the Pyrenees. (Ja '14)

Quarries and quarrying

- Greenwell, A., and Elsdon, J. V. Practical stone quarrying. (Ag '14)
 Quaternary ice age. Wright, W. B. (S '14)

Quebec (province)

- Hopkins, J. C. French Canada and the St. Lawrence. (Mr '14)
 Willson, B. Quebec: the Laurentian province. (Ag '14)

Queens

- Marshall, H. E. Boy kings and girl queens. (Ja '15)

- Queens of Aragon. Miron, E. L. (Jl '14)
 Queer things about Japan. Sladen, D. B. W. (Au '14)

- Quest of life. Brown, C. R. (Ja '14)
 Quest of the Holy Grail. Weston, J. L. (Ap '14)

- Question of alcohol. Williams, E. H. (F '15)
 Questions and answers relating to modern automobile design, construction, driving and repair. Pagé, V. W. (Mr '14)

- Questions of public policy. Yale university. (Ap '14)

- Quick action. Chambers, R. W. (My '14)

- Quiet roads and sleepy villages. Fea, A. (Jl '14)
 Quinneys'. Vachell, H. A. (D '14)

- Quitter. Fisher, J., pseud. (D '14)

Quotations

- Ordway, E. B. Handbook of quotations. (Ap '14)

Race problems

- Mecklin, J. M. Democracy and race friction. (Ag '14)
 Rada. Noyes, A. (D '14)

Radioactivity

- Cox, J. Beyond the atom. (Ap '14)
 Radisson, the voyageur. Long, L. A. (F '15)
 Raft. Dawson, C. (O '14)
 Ragged trousered philanthropists. Tressall, R. (Je '14)

Railroads

- Kenna, E. D. Railway misrule. (F '15)
 Knoop, D. Outlines of railway economics. (My '14)
 Lawson, W. R. British railways. (Ag '14)
 Monkswell, R. A. H. C. Railways of Great Britain. (O '14)
 Protheroe, E. Railways of the world. (Ag '14)
 Ripley, W. Z., ed. Railway problems. (Ap '14)

Rates

- Reeder, R. P. Validity of rate regulations, state and federal. (D '14)

Railroads and state

- Dunn, S. O. Government ownership of railways. (Mr '14)
 Railway conductors. Robbins, E. C. (F '15)
 Railway misrule. Kenna, E. D. (F '15)
 Railway problems. Ripley, W. Z., ed. (Ap '14)
 Railways of Great Britain. Monkswell, R. A. H. C. (O '14)

- Railways of the world. Protheroe, E. (Ag '14)
 Rambles around old Boston. Bacon, E. M. (Ja '15)

- Rambles in autograph land. Joline, A. H. (Ja '14)

- Rambles in Catholic lands. Barrett, M. (Ja '15)
 Ranch at the Wolverine. Bower, E. M., pseud. (N '14)

- Rays of positive electricity. Thomson, J. J. (Je '14)

- Reaching up and out. Wells, A. R. (Mr '14)

Reading

- Klapper, P. Teaching children to read. (F '15)

- Reading public. Jenkins, M. (F '15)

- Readings in American history. James, J. A., ed. (My '14)

- Readings in political philosophy. Coker, F. W. (F '15)

- Real Billy Sunday. Brown, E. P. (Ag '14)

- Real Mexico. Fyfe, H. H. (My '14)

- Real South Africa. Pratt, A. A. (My '14)

- Real "Truth about Germany." Sladen, D. B. W. (N '14)

- Real Turk. Cobb, S. (N '14)

- Recent developments in China. Blakeslee, G. H., ed. (N '14)

- Recent physical research. Owen, D. (My '14)

- Recollections and reflections of a Japanese artist. Markino, Y. (Ja '15)

- Recollections of full years. Taft, H. (D '14)

- Reconnaissance. Gardiner, G. (Ap '14)

- Reconstruction of the new colonies under Lord Milner. Worsfold, W. B. (F '15)

- Recreations of a physician. Chisholm, A. S. M. (Ja '15)

- Red emerald. Scott, J. R. (Mr '14)

- Red light of Mars. Howard, G. F. B.-. (Je '14)

- Red mirage. Wylie, I. A. R. (N '14)

- Red mist. Parrish, R. (F '15)

- Red wrath. Oxenham, J. (Je '14)

- Reducing the cost of living. Nearing, S. (O '14)

- Reed, Thomas Brackett, 1839-1902

- McCall, S. W. Life of Thomas Brackett Reed. (F '15)

Reformation

- Gairdner, J. Lollardy and the reformation in England. (Mr '14)

- Hare, C., pseud. Men and women of the Italian reformation. (Je '14)

- Hulme, E. M. Renaissance. (Ja '15)

- Vedder, H. C. Reformation in Germany. (Ap '14)

Reformers

- Jones, R. M. Spiritual reformers in the 16th and 17th centuries. (D '14)

Refrigeration and refrigerating machinery

- MacIntire, H. J. Mechanical refrigeration. (My '14)

- Reign of Henry V. Wylie, J. H. (O '14)

- Reign of Henry VII from contemporary sources. Pollard, A. F., ed. (Je '14)

- Rejuvenation of Father Christmas. Park, J. E. (D '14)

- Relations of Shirley's plays to the Elizabethan drama. Forsythe, R. S. (F '15)

- Relationship between the library and the public schools. Bostwick, A. E., ed. (S '14)

- Religio doctoris. Sanders, F. W. (Ag '14)

Religion

- Erierley, J. Religion and to-day. (Ja '14)

- Burr, A. R. Religious confessions and confessions. (S '14)

- Cohu, J. R. Vital problems of religion. (D '14)

- Coit, S. Soul of America. (Jl '14)

- Dresser, H. W. Religion of the spirit in modern life. (N '14)

- Galloway, G. Philosophy of religion. (Jl '14)

- Harris, G. Century's change in religion. (F '15)

- Hastings, J., ed. Encyclopædia of religion and ethics. (Je '14)

- Shotwell, J. T. Religious revolution of to-day. (Mr '14)

- Worcester, E. Religion and life. (Ap '14)

Religion and science

- Bonney, T. G. Present relations of science and religion. (Ag '14)

- Keyser, C. J. Science and religion. (Ja '15)

- Religion in social action. Taylor, G. (Mr '14)

- Religion of Israel. Smith, H. P. (D '14)

- Religion of the Sikhs. Field, D. (S '14)

Religions

- Moore, G. F. History of religions. (F '14)

- Moulton, J. H. Religions and religion. (Ap '14)

- Toy, C. H. Introduction to the history of religions. (Ap '14)

- Religious art in France of the thirteenth century. Mâle, E. (Mr '14)

- Religious chastity. Parsons, E. W. (Je '14)
 Religious confessions and confessants. Burr, A. R. (S '14)
 Religious development between the Old and the New Testaments. Charles, R. H. (N '14)
 Religious ideas of the Old Testament. Robinson, H. W. (Je '14)
Religious liberty
 Wendte, C. W., ed. Freedom and the churches. (Ap '14)
 Religious revolution of to-day. Shotwell, J. T. (Mr '14)
 Remington sentence. Ridge, W. P. (Ap '14)
Renaissance
 Gobineau, J. A. Renaissance. (F '14)
 Hulme, E. M. Renaissance. (Ja '15)
 Sichel, E. H. Renaissance. (D '14)
 Walsh, J. J. Century of Columbus. (F '15)
 Renaissance of motherhood. Key, E. K. S. (Jl '14)
 Renaissance of the Greek ideal. Watts, D. (Ag '14)
 Representative English comedies. Gayley, C. M., ed. v 3 (N '14)
 Republican Rome. Havell, H. L. (D '14)
 Researches on the irritability of plants. Bose, J. C. (Ag '14)
 Restatement and reunion. Streeter, B. H. (O '14)
 Retail selling and store management. Neystrom, P. H. (Ja '15)
 Return of the prodigal. Sinclair, M. (Jl '14)
 Revelation and the ideal. Gordon, G. A. (Ap '14)
 Revolt of democracy. Wallace, A. R. (Ap '14)
 Revolt of the angels. France, A., pseud. (N '14)
 Revolutionary period in Europe (1763-1815). Bourne, H. E. (F '15)
Rhodes, Cecil John, 1853-1902
 Le Sueur, G. Cecil Rhodes, the man and his work. (F '14)
 Rhymes from the Rhineland. Goodwin, A. H., comp. and tr. (Je '14)
 Riddle of Mars. Housden, C. E. (S '14)
Riddles
 Ordway, E. B. Handbook of conundrums. (Mr '14)
 Ride home. Evans, F. W. (Ja '15)
 Right living. Cooper, H. H., ed. (N '14)
 Right track. Burnham, C. L. R. (O '14)
 Rise and fall of the High commission. Usher, R. G. (Je '14)
 Rise of Jennie Cushing. Watts, M. S. (D '14)
 Rise of South Africa. Cory, G. E. (Ag '14)
 Rise of the American people. Usher, R. G. (My '14)
 Rise of the working-class. Crapsey, A. S. (O '14)
Ritchie, Thomas, 1778-1854
 Ambler, C. H. Thomas Ritchie. (Ag '14)
 River. Aiken, E. (D '14)
 River Amazon from its sources to the sea. Fountain, P. (Ja '15)
Rivers
 Thomas, B. F., and Watt, D. A. Improvement of rivers. (Mr '14)
Roads
 Baker, I. O. Treatise on roads and pavements. (Ap '14)
 Blanchard, A. H., and Drowne, H. B. Text-book on highway engineering. (Mr '14)
 Webb, S. and B. English local government. (Ja '14)
 Robert Frank. Ibsen, S. (Ja '15)
Roberts, Frederick Sleigh Roberts, 1st earl, 1832-1914
 Forrest, G. Life of Lord Roberts. (D '14)
Rock
 Johannsen, A. Manual of petrographic methods. (Ag '14)
Rock gardens
 Jenkins, E. H. Small rock garden. (Ag '14)
Rocks, Igneous
 Daly, R. A. Igneous rocks and their origin. (Ja '15)
 Rocks of Valpré. Dell, E. M. (Mr '14)
 Rocky mountain flowers. Clements, F. E. and E. S. (My, Jl '14)
 Roman ideas of deity in the last century before the Christian era. Fowler, W. (O '14)
 Roman imperialism. Frank, T. (Jl '14)
 Roman memories, in the landscape seen from Capri. Jerome, T. S. (S '14)
 Romance. Sheldon, E. B. (D '14)
 Romance of fraud. Hopkins, T. (S '14)
 Romance of Irish history. Rowe, J. G. (D '14)
 Romance of names. Weekley, E. (Ap '14)
 Romance of piracy. Chatterton, E. K. (F '15)
 Romance of preaching. Horne, C. S. (F '15)
 Romance of scientific discovery. Gibson, C. R. (Ap '14)
 Romance of the beaver. Dugmore, A. R. (Ja '15)
 Romance of the Newfoundland caribou. Dugmore, A. R. (Ja '14)
 Romance of Tristan and Iseult. Bédier, J. (D '14)
 Romances of the peerage. Hall, T. (Ag '14)
Rome
Antiquities
 Jerome, T. S. Roman memories in the landscape seen from Capri. (S '14)
Civilization
 Ferrero, G. Ancient Rome and modern America. (Jl '14)
History
 Havell, H. L. Republican Rome. (D '14)
 Macgregor, M. Story of Rome. (Ja '14)
Politics and government
 Bryce, J. Ancient Roman empire and the British empire in India. (Jl '14)
 Frank, T. Roman imperialism. (Jl '14)
 Reid, J. S. Municipalities of the Roman empire. (Ag '14)
Religion
 Fowler, W. W. Roman ideas of deity in the last century before the Christian era. (O '14)
 Rome, St. Paul and the early church. Muntz, W. S. (My '14)
 Rose of old Quebec. Wharton, A. H. (Ja '14)
Roses
 Thomas, G. C., jr. Practical book of outdoor rose growing for the home garden. (F '15)
 Thomas, H. H., and Easlea, W. Rose book. (My '14)
 Rosie world. Fillmore, P. H. (N '14)
 Roughing it de luxe. Cobb, I. S. (S '14)
 Roughing it with boys. Hinckley, G. W. (Mr '14)
 Round about a pound a week. Reeves, M. S. (Je '14)
 Round the wonderful world. Mitton, G. E. (Ja '15)
 Round the world in a motor car. Mann, J. J. (Jl '14)
 Round the world in any number of days. Baring, M. (Ja '15)
Royal academy of arts, London
 Leslie, G. D. Inner life of the Royal academy. (F '15)
 Royal auction bridge up-to-date, including nullos. Clark, H. P. (Mr '14)
 Royal auction bridge with nullos. Foster, R. F. (Mr '14)
 Royal navy. Leyland, J. (O '14)
Royal society of arts, London
 Wood, H. T. W. History of the Royal society of arts. (Ag '14)
 Royal Spain of today. Batcheller, T. B. (Ja '14)
Rubber
 Lock, R. H. Rubber and rubber planting. (My '14)
Rubens, Peter Paul, 1577-1640
 Longueville, T. Policy and paint. (My '14)
Rugs
 Hicks, A. M. Craft of hand-made rugs. (Je '14)
Rugs, Oriental
 Hawley, W. A. Oriental rugs. (Ja '14)
 Lewis, G. G. Mystery of the oriental rug. (Ja '15)
 Runaway. French, A. (O '14)
 Rung ho! Mundy, T. (My '14)
 Rural credits. Herrick, M. T., and Ingalls, R. (Ja '15)
 Rural life and education. Cubberley, E. P. (Jl '14)

Rural schools

- Betts, G. H., and Hall, O. E. Better rural schools. (Ag '14)
 Cubberley, E. P. Rural life and education. (Jl '14)
 Miller, J. C. Rural schools in Canada. (F '15)

Russia

- Alexinsky, G. Modern Russia. (Ja '14)
 Baedeker, K. Russia. (S '14)
 Jarintzoff, N. Russia, the country of extremes. (Ag '14)
 Stewart, H. Provincial Russia. (Mr '14)
 Williams, H. W. Russia of the Russians. (Je '14)

Army

- Steveni, W. B. Russian army from within. (N '14)

Court and courtiers

- Vassili, P. Behind the veil at the Russian court. (Je '14)

Economic conditions

- Mavor, J. Economic history of Russia. (S '14)

History

- Burton, R. G. Napoleon's invasion of Russia. (N '14)
 Kluchevsky, V. O. History of Russia. (Jl '14)

Social conditions

- Raisin, J. S. Haskalah movement in Russia. (My '14)
 Russian army from within. Steveni, W. B. (N '14)
 Russian ballet. Terry, E. (Mr '14)

Russian literature

- Vogüé, E. M. M. Russian novel. (D '14)
 Russian novel. Vogüé, E. M. M. (D '14)
 Russian opera. Newmarch, R. (D '14)
 Rustic speech and folk-lore. Wright, E. M. (F '15)
 Ruth Anne. Bryant, R. C. (F '14)

- Sadhana, the realisation of life. Tagore, R. (Je '14)

- Safeguards for city youth at work and at play. Bowen, L. H. (Ja '15)
 Safety in coal mines. Burns, D. (Ja '14)

Sahara

- Gordon, H. C. Woman in the Sahara. (F '15)
 Saint Louis. MacKaye, P. (Jl '14)

Salads

- Larned, L. One hundred salads. (My '14)
 Salamander. Johnson, O. M. (Je '14)

Salesmen and salesmanship

- Hollingworth, H. L. Advertising and selling. (Ja '14)
 Leichter, E. Successful selling. (Ja '15)
 Maxwell, W. M. Salesmanship. (O '14)
 Neystrom, P. H. Retail selling and store management. (Ja '15)
 Sanctuary. MacKaye, P. (Ap '14)
 Sandy. Crockett, S. R. (F '14)

Sanskrit literature

- Bhartrihari. The satakas, or Wise sayings of Bhartrihari. (My '14)
 Sarah Eden. Stevens, E. S. (O '14)
 Satakas. Bhartrihari. (My '14)
 Satires of circumstance. Hardy, T. (F '15)
 Saturday's child. Norris, K. (S '14)

Savages

- Williamson, R. W. Ways of the South Sea savage. (Ap '14)
 Savva, and The life of man. Andreieff, L. N. (Ag '14)

Scandinavia

- Clark, F. E. and S. A. Charm of Scandinavia. (Ja '15)
 Scarlet wagon. Girardeau, C. M. (D '14)

School administration and organization

- Cubberley, E. P. State and county educational reorganization. (O '14)
 Elliott, E. C. City school supervision. (Jl '14)

School children

- Pyle, W. H. Examination of school children. (Je '14)

School children, Free food and clothing of

- Bulkley, M. E. Feeding of school children. (F '15)

School decoration

- Dillaway, T. M. Decoration of the school and home. (Ja '15)

School discipline. Bagley, W. C. (F '15)School efficiency. Hanus, P. H. (Ap '14)School gardens

- Logan, A. Principles and practice of school gardening. (My '14)

School health administration. Rapeer, L. W. (Je '14)School hygiene

- Hoag, E. B., and Terman, L. M. Health work in the schools. (S '14)

Rapeer, L. W. School health administration. (Je '14)Terman, L. M. Hygiene of the school child. (Ap '14)School management

- Bagley, W. C. School discipline. (F '15)
 School system of Norway. Anderson, D. A. (Je '14)

School training of defective children. Goddard, H. H. (Ja '15)Schools*Medical inspection

- Newmayer, S. W. Medical and sanitary inspection of schools. (My '14)

Schools and the nation. Kerschensteiner, G. M. A. (Ja '15)Science

- Boutroux, E. Natural law in science and philosophy. (Ag '14)
 Caldwell, O. W., and Eikenberry, W. L. Elements of general science. (F '15)
 Enriques, F. Problems of science. (Jl '14)
 Gibson, C. R. Romance of scientific discovery. (Ap '14)
 Poincaré, H. Foundations of science. (Mr '14)
 Williams, H. S. Miracles of science. (Ja '14)
 Science and religion. Keyser, C. J. (Ja '15)
 Science of happiness. Finot, J. (Je '14)
 Scientific American reference book. Hopkins, A. A., and Bond, A. R. (Mr '14)

Scientific management

- Gilbreth, L. M. Psychology of management. (Je '14)

Kent, W. Investigating an industry. (Jl '14)Thompson, C. B., ed. Scientific management. (D '14)Scientific work of Morris Loeb. Loeb, M. (Jl '14)Scotland

- Lang, A. and J. Highways and byways in the Border. (Ja '14)
 Scott's last expedition. Scott, R. F. (Ja '14)
 Scouting with Daniel Boone. Tomlinson, E. T. (Ja '15)

Scrap of paper. Dillon, E. J. (Ja '15)Sculpture

- Brooks, A. M. Architecture and the allied arts. (Jl '14)

Bryant, L. What sculpture to see in Europe. (Jl '14)Furtwängler, A., and Ulrichs, H. L. Greek and Roman sculpture. (S '14)Prior, E. S., and Gardner, A. Account of mediæval figure sculpture in England. (Ja '15)Waldstein, C. Greek sculpture and modern art. (F '15)Winans, W. Animal sculpture. (Mr '14)Sea captain. Bailey, H. C. (Ap '14)Sea is kind. Moore, T. S. (D '14)Sea, land, and air strategy. Aston, G. G. (N '14)Seafaring life

- Nelson, A. W. Yankee Swanson. (Ja '14)
 Sealed valley. Footner, H. (N '14)

Secession

- Howe, D. W. Political history of secession. (Ja '15)

Second blooming. George, W. L. (F '15)Second characters. Shaftesbury, A. A. C. (F '15)Second nights. Ruhl, A. B. (Je '14)Secret book. Pearson, E. L. (Je '14)Secret of the night. Leroux, G. (Je '14)Secrets of the German war office. Graves, A. K., and Fox, E. L. (S '14)Seeds of pine. Ferguson, E. (D '14)

- Seen and unseen at Stratford-on-Avon. Howells, W.: D. (Je '14)
- Seething pot. Hannay, J. O. (My '14)
- Selected articles on government ownership of telegraph and telephone. Judson, K. B., comp. (Ja '15)
- Self-culture through the vocation. Griggs, E.: H. (F '15)
- Self help for singers. Taylor, D.: C. (Je '14)
- Self-realization. Wright, H.: W. (Mr '14)
- Self-training for motherhood. Lovejoy, S. (D '14)
- Selina. Martin, G.: M. (Ja '15)
- Selkirk range
- Palmer, H. Mountaineering and exploration in the Selkirks. (Ag '14)
- Semmes, Raphael, 1809-1877
- Meriwether, C. Raphael Semmes. (S '14)
- Serra, Junípero, 1713-1784
- Fitch, A. H. Junípero Serra. (Ag '14)
- Set to partners. Dudeney, H.: E. (Je '14)
- Seven years on the Pacific slope. Fraser, M. and H. C. (F '15)
- Sewage disposal
- Tillmans, J. Water purification and sewage disposal. (My '14)
- Sewing
- Fryer, J. Mary Frances sewing book. (Ja '14)
- Jessup, A. L. Sewing book. (D '14)
- Sex
- Galloway, T.: W. Biology of sex for parents and teachers. (D '14)
- Geddes, P., and Thomson, J.: A. Sex. (S '14)
- Glasgow, M. Life and law. (Ja '15)
- Morgan, T.: H. Heredity and sex. (Mr '14)
- Sex instruction
- Foster, W.: T., ed. Social emergency. (N '14)
- Hood, M. G. For girls and the mothers of girls. (Jl '14)
- Lowry, E. B. Teaching sex hygiene in the public schools. (O '14)
- Steinhardt, I. D.: Ten sex talks to boys (10 years and older). (S '14)
- Steinhardt, I. D.: Ten sex talks to girls (14 years and older). (Je '14)
- Seymour family
- Locke, A. A. Seymour family. (D '14)
- Shadow of Ætna. Ledoux, L.: V. (O '14)
- Shakespeare, William, 1564-1616
- Chambrun, C. de. Sonnets of William Shakespeare. (Ag '14)
- Howells, W.: D. Seen and unseen at Stratford-on-Avon. (Je '14)
- Masson, D.: Shakespeare personally. (Ag '14)
- Neilson, W.: A., and Thorndike, A. H. Facts about Shakespeare. (Ja '14)
- Porter, C., and Clarke, H. A. Shakespeare study programs: the comedies. (Jl '14)
- Porter, C., and Clarke, H. A. Shakespeare study programs: the tragedies. (Jl '14)
- Shelley, H.: C. Shakespeare and Stratford (Ja '14)
- Stalker, J. How to read Shakespeare. (Mr '14)
- Stewart, C.: D. Some textual difficulties in Shakespeare. (F '15)
- True Ophelia and other studies of Shakespeare's women. (My '14)
- Shall I drink? Crooker, J. H.: (D '14)
- Shallow soil. Hamsun, K. (Ap '14)
- Shaw, George Bernard, 1856-
- McCabe, J. George Bernard Shaw. (F '15)
- Shea of the Irish brigade. Parrish, R. (My '14)
- Shears of Delilah. Van de Water, V. B. (Je '14)
- Sheep
- Bissett, S. W. Story of wool. (Ap '14)
- Shaw, T.: Management and feeding of sheep. (F '15)
- Sheep track. Webster, N. H. (S '14)
- Shelley, Percy Bysshe, 1792-1822
- Brailsford, H. N. Shelley, Godwin, and their circle. (Mr '14)
- Medwin, T.: Life of Percy Bysshe Shelley. (Ap '14)
- Shelters, shacks, and shanties. Beard, D. C. (N '14)
- Sheridan, Philip Henry, 1831-1888
- Goss, W. L. Boys' life of General Sheridan. (Ja '14)
- Shield of silence. Ruffin, M. E. (S '14)
- Shifting sands. Fedden, K. W. D. (Ja '15)
- Shipping
- Kirkaldy, A. W. British shipping. (D '14)
- Owen, D. Ocean trade and shipping. (Ja '15)
- Ships and ways of other days. Chatterton, E.: K. (Ja '14)
- Short history of ancient and medieval art. Bulley, M. H. (S '14)
- Short history of English liberalism. Blease, W. L. (F '14)
- Short history of Italian painting. Brown, A. V., and Rankin, W.: (Ag '14)
- Short history of the Canadian people. Bryce, G.: (Ja '15)
- Short history of the Egyptian people. Budge, E. A. T. W. (D '14)
- Short plays. MacMillan, M. L. (F '14)
- Short stories
- Cross, E. A. Short story. (F '15)
- Grabo, C. H.: Art of the short story. (My '14)
- Jordan, M. H. Art of short-story writing simplified. (Je '14)
- Notestein, L. L., and Dunn, W. H. Modern short-story. (My '14)
- Siam
- Loti, P., pseud. Siam. (Ja '15)
- Siberia
- Lee, H. Across Siberia alone. (Ap '14)
- Nansen, F. Through Siberia. (D '14)
- Sukloff, M. Life-story of a Russian exile. (Ja '15)
- Sicily Ann. Lea, F. H. (D '14)
- Sight to the blind. Furman, L. (Ja '15)
- Sikhism
- Field, D. Religion of the Sikhs. (S '14)
- Silent Sam. O'Higgins, H. J. (Mr '14)
- Silhouettes
- Coke, D. Art of silhouette. (Jl '14)
- Silver king. Barrett, A. W.: (S '14)
- Silver Sand. Crockett, S.: R. (O '14)
- Simple Simon. Lyons, A. N. (Mr '14)
- Sin
- Mackintosh, R. Christianity and sin. (S '14)
- Singing
- Lehmann, L. How to sing. (Mr '14)
- Shaw, W.: W. Lost vocal art and its restoration. (Je '14)
- Taylor, D.: C. Self help for singers. (Je '14)
- Single hound. Dickinson, E. (N '14)
- Sinister street. Mackenzie, C. (Ja '15)
- Sister of the wind. Norton, G. F. (S '14)
- Sixty musical games and recreations for little musicians. Smith, L. R. (S '14)
- Sizing up Uncle Sam. Fitch, G.: (N '14)
- Skepticism
- Bevan, E. R. Stoics and sceptics. (Je '14)
- Slavery in the United States
- Lauber, A. W. Indian slavery in colonial times within the present limits of the United States. (Ja '14)
- Sleeping waters. Trevena, J.: (F '15)
- Small country houses. Weaver, L. (O '14)
- Small family system; is it injurious or immoral? Drysdale, C.: V. (S '14)
- Small rock garden. Jenkins, E. H. (Ag '14)
- Small souls. Couperus, L.: M. A. (N '14)
- Smith, Goldwin, 1823-1910
- Haultain, T. A. Goldwin Smith, his life and opinions. (F '14)
- Smith, Nathan, 1762-1829
- Smith, E. A. Life and letters of Nathan Smith. (S '14)
- Snake and sword. Wren, P. C. (Jl '14)
- Snow upon the desert. Macnaughtan, S. (Ja '14)
- Social aspects of foreign missions. Faunce, W.: H. P. (Ja '15)
- Social Christianity in the Orient. Clough, J.: E. (F '15)
- Social conditions
- Gathering storm. (Ap '14)
- Nearing, S. Social sanity. (F '14)
- Social dancing of to-day. Kinney, T. and M. W. (Je '14)
- Social emergency. Foster, W.: T., ed. (N '14)
- Social entertainments. Day, L. C. (D '14)
- Social ethics
- Clark, J.: B. Social justice without socialism. (Ag '14)
- Coffin, J. H. Socialized conscience. (Je '14)

- Social forces in England and America. Wells, H. G. (Je '14)
- Social heredity and social evolution. Conn, H. W. (Ja '15)
- Social ideals of a free church. Forbes, E. S., ed. (Je '14)
- Social insurance. Rubimow, I. M. (Mr '14)
- Social justice without socialism. Clark, J. B. (Ag '14)
- Social life in old New England. Crawford, M. C. (Ja '15)
- Social problems
- Carton, H., pseud. Grand assize. (Ja '15)
- Hobson, J.: A. Work and wealth. (S '14)
- Key, E. K. S. Younger generation. (D '14)
- Lee, G. S. Crowds jr. (F '14)
- Münsterberg, H. Psychology and social sanity. (Je '14)
- Slattery, M. He took it upon himself. (F '15)
- Small, A. W. Between eras from capitalism to democracy. (Ja '14)
- Stacpoole, H.: de V. New optimism. (Jl '14)
- Wells, H. G. Social forces in England and America. (Je '14)
- Social psychology
- Leopold, L.: Prestige. (Ja '14)
- Wallas, G. Great society. (Ag '14)
- Social sanity. Nearing, S. (F '14)
- Social work in hospitals. Cannon, I. M. (Ja '14)
- Social worship. Coit, S., comp. (My '14)
- Socialism
- Hillquit, M., and Ryan, J.: A. Socialism, promise or menace? (Je, D '14)
- Hughan, J. W. Facts of socialism. (Ap '14)
- Kirkaldy, A. W. Economics and syndicalism. (O '14)
- Kirkup, T.: History of socialism. (My '14)
- Weader, J.: R. Your pay envelope. (F '15)
- Spargo, J.: Socialism and motherhood. (S '14)
- Walling, W.: E. Progressivism—and after. (Je '14)
- Socialized conscience. Coffin, J. H. (Je '14)
- Sociological progress in mission lands. Capen, E.: W. (S '14)
- Sociology
- Branford, V.: Interpretations and forecasts. (Jl '14)
- Chapin, F. S. Introduction to the study of social evolution. (Ja '14)
- Conn, H. W.: Social heredity and social evolution. (Ja '15)
- Dickinson, C. H.: Christian reconstruction of modern life. (Je '14)
- Parkinson, H.: Primer of social science. (My '14)
- Sociology, Christian
- Berle, A. A. Christianity and the social rage. (Ja '15)
- Coit, S. Soul of America. (Jl '14)
- Taylor, G. Religion in social action. (Mr '14)
- Thoms, C. S. Working man's Christ. (My '14)
- Vedder, H.: C. Gospel of Jesus and the problems of democracy. (F '15)
- Soil management. King, F. H. (F '15)
- Soils
- Hunt, T. F., and Burkett, C. W.: Soils and crops. (Ag '14)
- King, F. H. Soil management. (F '15)
- Soldier of the Legion. Williamson, C.: N. and A. M. (D '14)
- Some fundamental problems in chemistry, old and new. Letts, E. A. (Ag '14)
- Some Oxford libraries. Gibson, S. (S '14)
- Some textual difficulties in Shakespeare. Stewart, C.: D. (F '15)
- Somebody's luggage. Randall, F. J. (Ap '14)
- Son of the ages. Waterloo, S. (Ap '14)
- Son of the hills. Comstock, H. T. (Ja '14)
- Songs for the new age. Oppenheim, J. (D '14)
- Songs from Leinster. Letts, W. M. (F '14)
- Songs of labor. Rosenfeld, M. (F '15)
- Songs of sixpence. Brown, A. F. (N '14)
- Songs of the dead end. MacGill, P. (Ag '14)
- Songs of the outlands. Knibbs, H.: H. (F '15)
- Songs toward the sunlight. Judson, H. C. (Ag '14)
- Sonnets of a portrait-painter. Ficke, A. D. (F '15)
- Sonnets of William Shakespeare. Chambrun, C. de. (Ag '14)
- Sons of the Rhine. Herzog, R. (F '15)
- Sorcerer's stone. Grimshaw, B. E. (My '14)
- Sorrow stones. Williams, M. E. (Ag '14)
- Soul of America. Coit, S. (Jl '14)
- Soul of life. Lisle, D.: (F '14)
- Soul of Melicent. Cabell, J. B. (S '14)
- Soul of Paris. Reed, V. Z. (Ap '14)
- Soul-spur. Wightman, R.: (F '15)
- Sound of water. Gerry, M. (D '14)
- Source book for ancient church history. Ayer, J. C. (Mr '14)
- Source book of English history. Innes, A. D., ed. (D '14)
- South
- O'Connor, E. My beloved South. (Ap '14)
- Studies in southern history and politics. (F '15)
- South Africa
- Cory, G.: E. Rise of South Africa. (Ag '14)
- Hosking, W. H. South African year book, 1914. (S '14)
- Pratt, A. Real South Africa. (My '14)
- Tilby, A. W. South Africa, 1486-1913. (Je '14)
- Worsfold, W.: B. Reconstruction of the new colonies under Lord Milner. (F '15)
- South America
- Holland, W.: J. To the River Plate and back. (F '14)
- Lange, A. Lower Amazon. (F '15)
- Peck, A. S. South American tour. (Ap '14)
- Reyes, R. Two Americas. (Je '14)
- Van Denburgh, E. D. My voyage in the United States frigate Congress. (Mr '14)
- Verrill, A. H. South and Central American trade conditions of to-day. (F '15)
- Woodroffe, J. F. Upper reaches of the Amazon. (Ag '14)
- South American tour. Peck, A. S. (Ap '14)
- South pole
- Scott, R. F. Scott's last expedition. (Ja '14)
- South sea islands
- Stevenson, F. O. Cruise of the Janet Nichol among the South Sea islands. (D '14)
- Spain
- Batcheller, T. B. Royal Spain. (Ja '14)
- Bates, K. L. In sunny Spain with Pilarica and Rafael. (Ja '14)
- Clark, K. Spell of Spain. (Ja '15)
- Elliot, F. M. Old court life in Spain. (Ja '15)
- Flitch, J.: E. C. Idler in Spain. (N '14)
- Gallican, C. G. Cathedrals of southern Spain. (Jl '14)
- Michael, A. C. Artist in Spain. (F '15)
- Wood, R. K. Tourist's Spain and Portugal. (Mr '14)
- Spanish America
- Shepherd, W.: R. Latin America. (Ap '14)
- Spanish and Indian place names of California. Sanchez, N. V. (F '15)
- Spare room. Fedden, K. W. D. (Ja '14)
- Speculative dialogues. Abercrombie, L. (O '14)
- Spell of Japan. Anderson, I. W. (N '14)
- Spell of Spain. Clark, K. (Ja '15)
- Spell of Switzerland. Dole, N. H. (Je '14)
- Spell of Tyrol. McCrackan, W.: D. (N '14)
- Spelling
- Cook, W.: A., and O'Shea, M. V. Child and his spelling. (O '14)
- Sphinx in the labyrinth. Annesley, M. (F '14)
- Spider's web. Kauffman, R. W. (Ja '14)
- Spirals
- Cook, T. A. Curves of life. (F '15)
- Spirit of life. Saben, M. (F '15)
- Spiritual drama in the life of Thackeray. Stephenson, N. W. (Mr '14)
- Spiritual life
- Crippen, L. W. Clay and fire. (S '14)
- Spiritual message of Dante. Carpenter, W.: B. (S '14)
- Spiritual message of literature. Guthrie, K. S. (S '14)
- Spiritual reformers in the 16th and 17th centuries. Jones, R. M.: (D '14)
- Spiritualism
- Barker, E. Letters from a living dead man. (Jl '14)
- Splendid failures. Graham, H. J. C. (F '14)
- Sport and folk-lore in the Himalaya. Haughton, H. L. (Mr '14)
- Sport of collecting. Conway, M. (Ja '15)

- Sports
 Fraser, C. C. Every boy's book of handicraft, sports and amusements. (Mr '14)
 Hjertberg, E. W. Athletics in theory and practice. (Je '14)
- Spring lady. Fulver, M. B. (O '14)
- Staffordshire pottery and its history. Wedgwood, J. C. (Mr '14)
- Stained glass
 Arnold, H. Stained glass of the middle ages in England and France. (Ja '14)
 Bushnell, A. J. de H. Storied windows. (S '14)
- Stammering
 Bluemel, C. S. Stammering and cognate defects of speech. (My '14)
- Standard cyclopedia of horticulture. Bailey, L. H. (Jl, S '14)
- Stanhope, Charles Stanhope, 3d earl of, 1753-1816
 Stanhope, G., and Gooch, G. P. Life of Charles, third earl of Stanhope. (F '15)
- Stanhope, Hester Lucy, lady, 1776-1839
 Hamel, F. Lady Hester Lucy Stanhope. (Ag '14)
- Stars
 Campbell, W. W. Stellar motions. (Mr '14)
 Kippax, J. R. Call of the stars. (Jl '14)
- Stars and stripes and other American flags. Harrison, P. D. (N '14)
- State, The
 Gettell, R. G. Problems in political evolution. (S '14)
 Oppenheimer, F. State. (Ag '14)
 Treitschke, H. G. von. Selections from Treitschke's lectures on politics. (D '14)
- State and county educational reorganization. Cubberley, E. P. (O '14)
- State and the citizen. Selborne, W. W. P. (My '14)
- Stationery testing. Outline of. Bromley, H. A. (Ap '14)
- Statistical averages. Zizek, F. (Ap '14)
- Statistical study of eminent women. Castle, C. (S '14)
- Statistics
 Brinton, W. C. Graphic methods for presenting facts. (F '15)
 Griffen, R. Statistics. (Ap '14)
- Stead, William Thomas, 1849-1912
 Stead, E. W. My father. (Ja '14)
- Steel
 Carnegie, D., and Gladwyn, S. C. Liquid steel. (Ja '14)
 Hudson, O. F. Iron and steel. (Ja '14)
- Steel construction. Burt, H. J. (Ja '15)
- Stellar motions. Campbell, W. W. (Mr '14)
- Stepdaughter of the prairies. Lynn, M. (Jl '14)
- Stevenson, Robert Louis Balfour, 1850-1894
 Slater, J. H. Robert Louis Stevenson. (Je '14)
 Stevenson, F. O. Cruise of the Janet Nichol among the South Sea islands. (D '14)
 Watt, F. R. L. S. (Ap '14)
- Stock exchange
 Goldman, S. P. Handbook of stock exchange laws. (N '14)
- Stoics
 Bevan, E. R. Stoics and sceptics. (Je '14)
- Stone
 Greenwell, A., and Elsdon, J. V. Practical stone quarrying. (Ag '14)
 Storied windows. Bushnell, A. J. de H. (S '14)
 Stories and poems. Harte, B. (Ag '14)
 Stories and toasts for after dinner. Fowler, N. C., Jr. (My '14)
 Stories from northern myths. Baker, E. K. (N '14)
 Stories in grey. Pain, B. E. O. (F '15)
 Stories of Red Hanrahan. Yeats, W. B. (My '14)
 Stories of Russian life. Tchekhov, A. P. (Jl '14)
 Stories of the operas. Shubert, E. (Ap '14)
 Stories without tears. Pain, B. E. O. (F '15)
 Storm. Steele, W. D. (Ap '14)
 Storming Vicksburg. Dunn, B. A. (Mr '14)
 Story-life of Napoleon. Whipple, W. (F '15)
 Story-life of the Son of Man. Whipple, W. (D '14)
 Story of an outing. Hepburn, A. B. (F '14)
 Story of Chanticleer. Rostand, E. E. A. (Ja '14)
 Story of Dartmouth. Quint, W. D. (F '15)
- Story of Duciehurst. Craddock, C. E., pseud. (S '14)
- Story of Greece. Macgregor, M. (Ja '15)
- Story of Helga. Herzog, R. (F '14)
- Story of Iron. Samuel, E. I. (N '14)
- Story of Louie. Onions, O. (Ja '14)
- Story of Mary Dunne. Blundell, M. E. (Ja '14)
- Story of our army for young Americans. Abbot, W. J. (Ja '15)
- Story of our navy. Stevens, W. O. (D '14)
- Story of Phaedrus. Hillis, N. D. (Je '14)
- Story of Rome. Macgregor, M. (Ja '14)
- Story of the flute. Fitzgibbon, H. M. (Ag '14)
- Story of the Panama canal. Marshall, L. (Ap '14)
- Story of the world. O'Neill, E. (Je '14)
- Story of wool. Bassett, S. W. (Ap '14)
- Story-telling
 Cowles, J. D. Art of story-telling. (Jl '14)
 Olcott, F. J., ed. Good stories for great holidays. (D '14)
- Stowe, Mrs. Harriet Elizabeth (Beecher) 1811-1896
 Crow, M. F. Harriet Beecher Stowe. (Ja '14)
 Strange woman. Fenollosa, M. M. (F '15)
 Strategy of Robert E. Lee. Bowen, J. J. (N '14)
- Stratford-on-Avon
 Shelley, H. C. Shakespeare and Stratford. (Ja '14)
- Streak. Potter, D. (Ja '14)
- Street of seven stars. Rinehart, M. (O '14)
- Strength of the strong. London, J. (Jl '14)
- Strong heart. Goring-Thomas, A. R. (Mr '14)
- Stronger; Like falling leaves; Sacred ground. Giacosa, G. (Je '14)
- Structural engineers' handbook. Ketchum, M. S. (F '15)
- Struggle for Scutari. Durham, M. E. (S '14)
- Students' history of the United States. Channing, E. (Ja '14)
- Studies from an eastern home. Noble, M. E. (Ja '14)
- Studies in Milton and an essay on poetry. Sampson, A. (My '14)
- Studies in stagecraft. Hamilton, C. M. (My '14)
- Studies in taxation under John and Henry III. Mitchell, S. K. (S '14)
- Studies in the Apocalypse. Charles, R. H. (N '14)
- Studies in water supply. Houston, A. C. (Ag '14)
- Study of foods. Wardall, R. A., and White, E. N. (N '14)
- Study of literature. Pearson, P. H. (Ja '14)
- Study of modern painting. Anderson, M. S. (D '14)
- Study of the Thlingets of Alaska. Jones, L. F. (My '14)
- Subconsciousness
 Prince, M. The unconscious. (My '14)
 Substance of his house. Bouicault, R. H. (Mr '14)
- Subterranean brotherhood. Hawthorne, J. (D '14)
- Suburban garden guide. Barnes, P. T. (Mr '14)
- Success
 Cooper, H. H., ed. Right living. (N '14)
 Switzer, M. Letters of a self-made failure. (D '14)
- Success at golf. Vardon, H., and others. (My '14)
- Success in gardening. Frothingham, J. P. (Je '14)
- Success with hens. Joos, R. (Mr '14)
- Successful selling. Leichter, E. (Ja '15)
- Suffragettes
 Pankhurst, E. My own story. (D '14)
- Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour, 1842-1900
 Cellier, F., and Bridgeman, C. Gilbert and Sullivan. (N '14)
- Sultana. Rowland, H. C. (My '14)
- Summit of the years. Burroughs, J. (Ja '14)
- Sun
 Sampson, R. A. The sun. (O '14)
 Sun lore of all ages. Olcott, W. T. (Je '14)
- Sunday, William Ashley, 1863-
 Brown, E. P. Real Billy Sunday. (Ag '14)
- Sunday schools
 Alexander, J. L., ed. Teens and the rural Sunday school. (O '14)

- Dennen, E. J. Sunday school under scientific management. (O '14)
 Faris, J. T., ed. Sunday school at work. (O '14)
 Hartshorne, H. Worship in the Sunday school. (Ap '14)
 Mark, H. T. For childhood and youth. (Mr '14)
 Wells, A. R. Ten don'ts for Sunday-school teachers. (O '14)
 Sunny side of diplomatic life, 1875-1912. Hegermann-Lindencrone, L. de. (Ja '15)
 Sunrise valley. Hill, M. (My '14)
 Sunshine Jane. French, A. (Mr '14)
 Survey of the woman problem. Mayreder, R. (Ja '14)
 Susette. Calthrop, D. C. (F '14)
 Swanwhite, Advent, The storm. Strindberg, A. (Mr '14)
- Sweden
 Steveni, W. B. Things seen in Sweden. (F '15)
 Sweetapple Cove. Van Schaick, G. (Je '14)
- Swimming
 Corsan, G. H. At home in the water. (Jl '14)
 Swindler. Dell, E. M. (N '14)
- Swine
 Day, G. E. Productive swine husbandry. (Ja '14)
- Swiss chalet book. Dana, W. S. B. (Ja '14)
- Switzerland
 Benson, E. F. Winter sports in Switzerland. (Ja '14)
 Dole, N. H. Spell of Switzerland. (Je '14)
 Swollen-headed William. Lucas, E. V. (Ja '15)
 Sword blades and poppy seed. Lowell, A. (Ja '15)
 Sword hand of Napoleon. Brady, C. T. (My '14)
 Sylvia's marriage. Sinclair, U. B. (D '14)
- Symbiosis
 Step, E. Messmates. (My '14)
- Symbolism
 Bayley, H. Lost language of symbolism. (Ja '14)
 Symbolism of animals and birds represented in English church architecture. Collins, A. H. (Ja '14)
- Symonds, John Addington, 1840-1893
 Brooks, V. John Addington Symonds. (S '14)
 Symphonies and their meaning. Goepf, P. H. (Mr '14)
- Syndicalism
 Kirkaldy, A. W. Economics and syndicalism. (O '14)
- Synge, John Millington, 1871-1909
 Bourgeois, M. John Millington Synge and the Irish theatre. (Mr '14)
 Synonyms and antonyms. Ordway, E. B. (Ap '14)
- Syria
 Leary, L. G. Syria, the land of Lebanon. (Ja '14)
 Syrinx. Buck, M. S. (F '15)
 Syrup of the bees. Bain, F. W. (F '15)
- Table decorations and delicacies. Price, H., pseud. (Jl '14)
 Tad Sheldon's Fourth of July. Wilson, J. F. (Mr '14)
 Tag, Der. Barrie, J. M. (F '15)
 Tale of red roses. Chester, G. R. (D '14)
 Tales of two countries. Gorky, M., pseud. (Ja '15)
 Talks to freshman girls. Brown, H. D. (N '14)
 Tansy. Edwardes, T. (O '14)
- Tariff
 Great Britain
 Holland, B. H. Fall of protection, 1840-1850. (Ap '14)
 Tarzan of the apes. Burroughs, E. R. (Ag '14)
- Taxation
 Fillebrown, C. B. Taxation. (Je '14)
 Lyon, W. H. Principles of taxation. (Ja '15)
 Mathews, F. Taxation and the distribution of wealth. (F '14)
 Mitchell, S. K. Studies in taxation under John and Henry III. (S '14)
 Smith, H. E. United States federal internal tax history from 1861 to 1871. (S '14)
- Whittaker, T. P. Ownership, tenure and taxation of land. (Ag '14)
- United States
 Taussig, F. W. Tariff history of the United States. (Jl '14)
- Taxidermy
 Pray, L. L. Taxidermy. (Ap '14)
- Teaching
 Hoole, C. New discovery of the old art of teaching school. (F '14)
 MacMunn, N. Path to freedom in the school. (S '14)
 McMurry, C. A. Conflicting principles in teaching and how to adjust them. (S '14)
 Swift, E. J. Learning and doing. (O '14)
 Teaching children to read. Klapper, P. (F '15)
 Teaching of geography in elementary schools. Dodge, R. E., and Kirchwey, C. E. (Ag '14)
 Teaching sex hygiene in the public schools. Lowry, E. B. (O '14)
- Technical education
 Women's municipal league of Boston. Educational dept. Handbook of opportunities for vocational training in Boston. (Ag '14)
 Technical gas and fuel analysis. White, A. H. (My '14)
 Teens and the rural Sunday school. Alexander, J. L., ed. (O '14)
 Teeth of the tiger. Leblanc, M. (N '14)
- Telegraph
 Judson, K. B., comp. Selected articles on government ownership of telegraph and telephone. (Ja '15)
- Telephone
 Judson, K. B., comp. Selected articles on government ownership of telegraph and telephone. (Ja '15)
 Tell-me-why stories about animals. Claudy, C. H. (N '14)
 Telling the truth. Hewlett, W. (S '14)
- Temperance
 Blythe, S. G. Old game. (S '14)
 Crooker, J. H. Shall I drink? (D '14)
 Gordon, E. B. Anti-alcohol movement in Europe. (My '14)
 Patterson, R. J. Happy art of catching men. (S '14)
- Temple treasures of Japan. Pier, G. C. (F '15)
 Ten don'ts for Sunday-school teachers. Wells, A. R. (O '14)
 Ten minute stories. Blackwood, A. (S '14)
 Ten sex talks to boys. Steinhardt, I. D. (S '14)
 Ten sex talks to girls. Steinhardt, I. D. (S '14)
 Ten thousand miles with a dog sled. Stuck, H. (Jl '14)
 Tendency to the concrete and practical in modern education. Elliot, C. W. (Je '14)
 Tendency towards industrial combination. Carter, G. R. (O '14)
- Tennis
 Hall, M. Tennis for girls. (Je '14)
 Little, R. D. Tennis tactics. (Ja '14)
- Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, 1809-1892
 Baker, A. E., ed. Concordance to the poetical and dramatic works of Alfred, lord Tennyson. (D '14)
 Tents of a night. Findlater, M. (O '14)
 Terms of surrender. Tracy, L. (Ap '14)
 Tess Harcourt. Napier, R. (N '14)
 Texan triumph. Altsheier, J. A. (Mr '14)
 Textbook of domestic science for high schools. Campbell, M. G. (My '14)
 Textbook of general embryology. Kellcott, W. E. (My '14)
 Text-book of grasses. Hitchcock, A. S. (F '15)
 Text-book on highway engineering. Blanchard, A. H., and Drowne, H. B. (Mr '14)
 Text-book on wireless telegraphy. Stanley, R. (F '15)
- Textile industry and fabrics
 Woolman, M., and McGowan, E. Textiles. (Je '14)
- Thackeray, William Makepeace, 1811-1863
 Stephenson, N. W. Spiritual drama in the life of Thackeray. (Mr '14)
 That affair at Portstead manor. Locke, G. E. (S '14)
 That farm. Whittingham, H. (Ap '14)

Theater

- Carter, H. Theatre of Max Reinhardt. (S '14)
 Cheney, S. New movement in the theatre. (F '15)
 Fowell, F., and Palmer, F. Censorship in England. (Ja '14)
 Gregory, I. A. Our Irish theatre. (Ja '14)
 Hamilton, C. M. Studies in stagecraft. (My '14)
 Moderswell, H. K. Theatre of to-day. (D '14)
 Ruhl, A. B. Second nights. (Je '14)
 Shipman, L. E. True adventures of a play. (Ag '14)
 Theatre of Max Reinhardt. Carter, H. (S '14)
 Theological symbolics. Briggs, C. A. (S '14)

Theology

- Mackintosh, R. Christianity and sin. (S '14)
 Scott, R., and Gilmore, G. W., eds. Church, the people and the age. (Jl '14)
 Smyth, N. Constructive natural theology. (F '14)
 Storr, V. F. Development of English theology in the nineteenth century. (My '14)
 Ten Broeke, J. Constructive basis for theology. (D '14)
 Walker, W. L. Christ the creative ideal. (Ap '14)
 Williams, T. R. Working faith of a liberal theologian. (F '15)
 Theory and practice of argumentation and debate. Ketcham, V. A. (O '14)
 Theory and practice of heating and ventilation. Barker, A. H. (Ja '14)
 Theory of beauty. Carritt, E. F. (Ja '15)
 Theory of interest. Hoag, C. G. (S '14)
 Theory of money. Barker, D. A. (Ja '14)
 Theory of poetry in England. Cowl, R. P. (D '14)
 Theory of social revolutions. Adams, B. (Je '14)
 These shifting scenes. Russell, C. E. (Je '14)
 They who knock at our gates. Antin, M. (Jl '14)
 Things. Miller, A. (Je '14)
 Things he wrote to her. Wightman, R. (Ag '14)
 Things learned by living. Bascom, J. (O '14)
 Things seen in Sweden. Steveni, W. B. (F '15)
 Things that count. Eyre, L. (Ja '15)
 Thinking black. Crawford, D. (Ag '14)
 Thinking hand. Legge, J. G. (Ja '15)
 Third sex. Wolzogen, E. L. (F '15)
 Thirty years: Anglo-French reminiscences (1876-1906). Barclay, T. (O '14)
 Thirty years in Kashmir. Neve, A. (My '14)
 Thirty years in the Manchu capital. Christie, D. (N '14)

Thompson, Francis, 1859?-1907

- Meynell, E. Life of Francis Thompson. (Ja '14)
 Those of his own household (Madame Corentine). Bazin, R. (Ja '15)
 Those who have come back. Macfarlane, P. C. (Ja '15)
 Thousand years ago. MacKaye, P. (Ap '14)
 "Thracian Sea." Helston, J. (N '14)
 Three Furlonges. Kaye-Smith, S. (N '14)
 Three lords of destiny. Crothers, S. M. (F '14)
 Three Rivers kids. Cheley, F. H. (N '14)
 Three sisters. Sinclair, M. (N '14)
 Through Jubaland to the Lorian swamp. Dracopoli, I. N. (Ag '14)
 Through other eyes. McLaren, A. (My '14)
 Through Siberia. Nansen, F. (D '14)
 Through the Brazilian wilderness. Roosevelt, T. (D '14)
 Through the Grand Canyon from Wyoming to Mexico. Kolb, E. L. (Ja '15)
 Through the South Seas with Jack London. Johnson, M. E. (Mr '14)

Tibet

- Ward, F. K. Land of the blue poppy. (My '14)

Ticknor, William Davis, 1810-1864

- Ticknor, C. Hawthorne and his publisher. (Ja '14)

Tiger. Bynner, W. (Ja '14)

- Tigerland. Gouldsbury, C. E. (Jl '14)
 Tim. Talbot, E. (F '15)
 Time and Thomas Waring. Roberts, M. (N '14)
 Titan. Dreiser, T. (Je '14)

Tlinget Indians

- Jones, L. F. Study of the Tlingets of Alaska. (My '14)

- To the land of the caribou. Tomlinson, P. G. (F '15)

- To the River Plate and back. Holland, W. J. (F '14)

- Toaster's handbook. Edmund, P., and Williams, H. W., comps. (My '14)

Toasts

- Edmund, P., and Williams, H. W., comps. Toaster's handbook. (My '14)

- Fowler, N. C., jr. Stories and toasts for after dinner. (My '14)

- Toby. Goldsmith, E. E. (F '14)

- To-day's daughter. Bacon, J. D. (N '14)

- Toe. Harvey, A. (F '14)

- Told by the camp fire. Cheley, F. H. (F '15)

- Tolstol, Leo Nikolalevitch, count, 1828-1910. Garnett, E. Tolstoy: his life and writings. (Ag '14)

- Tolstol, I. Reminiscences of Tolstoy. (D '14)

- Tom Strong, boy-captain. Mason, A. B. (Ja '14)

- Tommy Atkins at war. Kilpatrick, J. A. (D '14)

- Tonti, Henri, de, d. 1704

- Parish, J. C. Man with the iron hand. (Ja '14)

Toombs, Robert Augustus, 1810-1885

- Phillips, U. B. Life of Robert Toombs. (Ja '14)

- Torch bearer. Marquis, R. (S '14)

- Torch bearer. Thurston, I. T. (Ja '14)

- Torch of life. Macnamara, R. S. (O '14)

Torquemada, Tomas de, 1420-1498

- Sabatini, R. Torquemada and the Spanish inquisition. (Ja '14)

- Totem of Black Hawk. McNeill, E. (F '15)

- Tourist's California. Wood, R. K. (D '14)

- Tourist's Spain and Portugal. Wood, R. K. (Mr '14)

- Tower of the mirrors. Lee, V., pseud. (My '14)

Trade-marks

- Thomson, H. C. Patents, trade-marks, design patents. (Ag '14)

- Trade morals. Page, E. D. (Ja '15)

Trade-unions

- Cole, G. D. H. World of labour. (N '14)

- Commons, J. R. Labor and administration. (Ja '14)

- Marot, H. American labor unions. (D '14)

- Robbins, E. C. Railway conductors. (F '15)

- Whitney, N. R. Jurisdiction in American building trades unions. (O '14)

- Tragedy of education. Holmes, E. G. A. (Je '14)

- Tragedy of Isabella II. Gribble, F. H. (Ja '14)

- Tragedy of Pompey the Great. Masefield, J. (Je '14)

- Trail dust of a maverick. Brininstool, E. A. (Ag '14)

- Trail to El Dorado. Hanson, J. M. (Mr '14)

- Training of a forester. Pinchot, G. (Ag '14)

- Training the dog. Lemmon, R. S. (Je '14)

- Training the girl. McKeever, W. A. (Ap '14)

- Training young horses to jump. Brooke, G. F. H. (My '14)

- Tramp through the Bret Harte country. Beasley, T. D. (Ja '15)

- Trans-Atlantic historical solidarity. Adams, C. F., jr. (Ja '14)

- Transition. Re-Bartlett, L. (Jl '14)

Travel

- Mead, W. E. Grand tour in the eighteenth century. (F '15)

- Vrooman, C. S. and J. S. Lure and the lore of travel. (F '15)

- Travel and politics in Armenia. Buxton, N. and H. (N '14)

- Travel notes of an octogenarian. Smith, W. S. (S '14)

Travels

- Baring, M. Round the world in any number of days. (Ja '15)

- Beaman, A. Travels without Baedeker. (Ja '14)

- Mann, J. J. Round the world in a motor car. (Jl '14)

- Mitton, G. E. Round the wonderful world. (Ja '15)

- Ridger, A. L. Wanderer's trail. (Ag '14)

- Smith, W. S. Travel notes of an octogenarian. (S '14)

- Travels in the Pyrenees. O'Connor, V. C. S. (Ja '14)

- Trawler. Connolly, J. B. (Ja '15)
Treasure. Norris, K. (F '14)
Treatise on roads and pavements. Baker, I. O. (Ap '14)
Treatise on the inspection of concrete construction. Cochran, J. (S '14)
Treatise on the law of income taxation under federal and state laws. Black, H. C. (S '14)
Treatise on the law of public utilities operating in cities and towns. Pond, O. L. (Ag '14)
- Trees
Wright, W. P. Garden trees and shrubs. (F '15)
Trees, and other poems. Kilmer, J. (Ja '15)
- Treitschke, Heinrich von, 1834-1896
McCabe, J. Treitschke and the great war. (F '15)
- Trend. Arkwright, W. (Jl '14)
- Tripoli
Braun, E. New Tripoli. (Ja '15)
Tristram and Isoult. Kinross, M. (S '14)
Tropical plants, Diseases of. Cook, M. T. (Ag '14)
Trout fly-fishing in America. Southard, C. Z. (Ag '14)
Trouvères and troubadours. Aubry, P. (F '15)
True adventures of a play. Shipman, L. E. (Ag '14)
True stories about horses. Gask, L. (F '15)
True Ulysses S. Grant. King, C. (Ja '15)
- Trusts, Industrial
Carter, G. R. Tendency towards industrial combination. (O '14)
Dewing, A. S. Corporate promotions and reorganizations. (Ag '14)
Taft, W. H. Anti-trust act and the Supreme court. (D '14)
- Truth
Bradley, F. H. Essays on truth and reality. (Ag '14)
Ladd, G. T. What can I know? (Ja '15)
- Tuberculosis
Otis, E. O. Tuberculosis. (Ap '14)
- Tunnels and tunneling
Brunton, D. W.; and Davis, J. A. Modern tunneling. (N '14)
- Turbines
Daugherty, R. L. Hydraulic turbines. (Je '14)
Turbulent duchess. Brebner, P. J. (Ja '15)
- Turco-Italian war, 1911-1912
McClure, W. K. Italy in North Africa. (Je '14)
- Turkey
Brown, P. M. Foreigners in Turkey. (N '14)
Cobb, S. Real Turk. (N '14)
Whitman, S. Turkish memories. (S '14)
- Turkeys
McInenny, E. A. Wild turkey and its hunting. (Ja '15)
Turkish memories. Whitman, S. (S '14)
Twenty-five years. Hinkson, K. (Je '14)
Twenty-fourth of June. Richmond, G. L. (S '14)
- Twilight sleep
Williams, H. S. Twilight sleep. (F '15)
Twins of Suffering Creek. Cullum, R. (Ja '14)
Two Americas. Reyes, R. (Je '14)
Two great art epochs. Parry, E. L. (Ja '15)
Two in a bungalow. Smith, M. P. (F '15)
Two in the wilderness. Washburn, S. (Jl '14)
Two sisters. Van de Water, V. B. (Jl '14)
- Type-setting
Riverside press, Cambridge, Mass. Handbook of style. (Ap '14)
- Tyrol
McCrackan, W. D. Spell of Tyrol. (N '14)
- Una Mary. Hunt, U. A. (Ja '15)
Unafraid. Ingram, E. M. (Ja '14)
Uncertain glory. Battersby, H. F. P. (O '14)
Uncle Sam's modern miracles. Du Puy, W. A. (F '15)
Unconscious. Prince, M. (My '14)
Under cover. Megrue, R. C. (N '14)
Under handicap. Gregory, J. (My '14)
Understanding the French. Hartt, R. L. (N '14)
- Unemployed
Brown, E. A. "Broke," the man without the dime. (Ja '14)
Pigou, A. C. Unemployment. (My '14)
Unemployment. Pigou, A. C. (My '14)
Unexpurgated case against woman suffrage. Wright, A. E. (Ap '14)
Unfinished song. Ghosal, Mrs. (S '14)
- United fruit company
Adams, F. U. Conquest of the tropics. (Ag '14)
- United States. Constitution
Federalist. Selections from. (Ja '15)
- United States. State, Dept. of Hunt, G. Department of state of the United States. (O '14)
- United States
Adams, E. D. Power of ideals in American history. (Ja '14)
Fitch, G. Sizing up Uncle Sam. (N '14)
Graham, S. With poor immigrants to America. (N '14)
Hannay, J. O. From Dublin to Chicago. (D '14)
Hungerford, E. Personality of American cities. (F '14)
Kennedy, J. M. Imperial America. (Ja '15)
Lippmann, W. Drift and mastery. (D '14)
Miller, M. M., ed. Great debates in American history. (Ag '14)
Street, J. L. Abroad at home. (F '15)
Sumichrast, F. C. J. M. S. R. de. Americans and the Britons. (F '15)
- Army
Heitman, F. B. Historical register of officers of the Continental army during the war of the revolution. (Ag '14)
- Biography
Bradford, G. Confederate portraits. (Jl '14)
- Constitutional history
Corwin, E. S. Doctrine of judicial review. (F '15)
- Emigration and immigration
Johnson, S. C. History of emigration from the United Kingdom to North America, 1763-1912. (S '14)
- Foreign relations
Dunning, W. A. British empire and the United States. (D '14)
Masaoka, N., ed. Japan to America. (Ja '15)
Starr, F. Mexico and the United States. (Je '14)
Tower, C. Essays, political and historical. (D '14)
Whelpley, J. D. American public opinion. (O '14)
- History
Abbott, W. J. Story of our army for young Americans. (Ja '15)
Channing, E. Students' history of the United States. (Ja '14)
Coe, F. E. Makers of the nation. (N '14)
Fish, C. R. Development of American nationality. (Je '14)
Forman, S. E. Advanced American history. (Mr '14)
Lincoln, C. H., ed. Narratives of the Indian wars, 1675-1699. (F '14)
Smith, T. C. Wars between England and America. (S '14)
Usher, R. G. Rise of the American people. (My '14)
- Bibliography
Haferkorn, H. E. War with Mexico, 1846-1848. (Ag '14)
- Sources
Bolton, H. E. Guide to materials for the history of the United States in the principal archives of Mexico. (O '14)
James, J. A., ed. Readings in American history. (My '14)
Lee, R. H. Letters of Richard Henry Lee. (S '14)
Parker, D. W. Guide to the materials for United States history in Canadian archives. (My '14)
Paullin, C. O., and Paxson, F. L. Guide to the materials in London archives for the history of the United States since 1783. (F '15)

Colonial period

Newton, A. P. Colonizing activities of the English Puritans. (Jl '14)

Colonial period—Sources

Bolton, H. E., ed. Athanasie de Mézières and the Louisiana-Texas frontier, 1768-1780. (S '14)

War of 1812

Snider, C. H. J. In the wake of the Eighteen-twelvvers. (Ap '14)

Civil War

Adams, C. F., jr. Trans-Atlantic historical solidarity. (Ja '14)

Alden, C. S. George Hamilton Perkins, commodore U. S. N. (Jl '14)

Bowen, J. J. Strategy of Robert E. Lee. (N '14)

Putnam, G. H. Memories of my youth, 1844-1865. (Jl '14)

1865-

Beard, C. A. Contemporary American history. (My '14)

Schouler, J. History of the reconstruction period, 1865-1877. (Ja '14)

Navy

Neeser, R. W. Our many-sided navy. (S '14)

Stevens, W. O. Story of our navy. (D '14)

Politics and government

Adams, B. Theory of social revolutions. (Je '14)

Adams, J. Q. Writings of John Quincy Adams. (Ag '14, F '15)

Beard, C. A. and M. R. American citizenship. (Jl '14)

Benson, A. L. Our dishonest constitution. (S '14)

Brown, W. G. New politics. (Jl '14)

Cleveland, F. A. Organized democracy. (Ja '14)

Cole, A. C. Whig party in the South. (N '14)

Croly, H. D. Progressive democracy. (D '14)

Du Puy, W. A. Uncle Sam's modern miracles. (F '15)

Howard, G. E. Present political questions. (Ap '14)

Kales, A. M. Unpopular government in the United States. (My '14)

McLaughlin, A. C., and Hart, A. B., eds. Cyclopaedia of American government. (S '14)

Poley, A. P. Federal systems of the United States and the British empire. (Mr '14)

Reid, W. American and English studies. (F '14)

Sloane, W. M. Party government in the United States of America. (D '14)

Taft, W. H. Popular government. (Mr '14)

Whelpley, J. D. American public opinion. (O '14)

Wickersham, G. W. Changing order. (Jl '14)

Woodburn, J. A. Political parties and party problems in the United States. (Ag '14)

Social conditions

Whitlock, E. B. Forty years of it. (Mr '14)

Social life and customs

Hunt, G. Life in America one hundred years ago. (Ja '15)

Wu Ting Fang. America, through the spectacles of an Oriental diplomat. (My '14)

United States and peace. Taft, W. H. (Jl '14)

United States federal internal tax history from 1861 to 1871. Smith, H. E. (S '14)

Universe and the mayonnaise. Robertson, T. B. (F '15)

University sermons. Coffin, H. S. (D '14)

Unknown guest. Maeterlinck, M. (Ja '15)

Unknown Mongolia. Carruthers, D. (Jl '14)

Unknown son of Napoleon. Fleischmann, H. (N '14)

Unpopular government in the United States. Kales, A. M. (My '14)

Unseen empire. Brownell, A. (O '14)

Unto Cæsar. Orczy, E. (Je '14)

Unvisited places of old Europe. Shackleton, R. (Mr '14)

Upper reaches of the Amazon. Woodroffe, J. F. (Ag '14)

Ups and downs of Marjorie. Waggaman, M. T. (S '14)

Uttermost farthing. Freeman, R. A. (Je '14)

Vacuum cleaning systems. Cooley, M. S. (My '14)

Vagabond courier. Cuthell, E. E. (S '14)

Vagabonds in Périgord. Bashford, H. H. (N '14)

Vain oblation. Gerould, K. F. (Ap '14)

Vale. Moore, G. (My '14)

Validity of rate regulations, state and federal. Reeder, R. P. (D '14)

Valley of a thousand hills. Young, F. E. M. (D '14)

Vandover and the brute. Norris, F. (My '14)

Van Gogh, Vincent, 1853-1890

Du Quesne-van Gogh, E. H. Personal recollections of Vincent van Gogh. (F '14)

Vanguard. Bronson, E. B. (My '14)

Vanished messenger. Oppenheim, E. P. (S '14)

Vanishing race. Dixon, J. K. (Mr '14)

Van Zorn. Robinson, E. A. (D '14)

Vatican

Begni, E., and others, eds. Vatican—its history—its treasures. (Ja '15)

Hugues de Ragnau, E. Vatican. (Jl '14)

Sladen, D. B. W. How to see the Vatican. (Ag '14)

Vegetable gardening

Corbett, L. C. Garden farming. (Ja '14)

Flint, E. D. Garden patch. (Je '14)

Kruhm, A. Home vegetable garden. (Ag '14)

Pearse, C. M. Kitchen garden and the cook. (S '14)

Selden, C. A. Everyman's garden, every week. (Mr '14)

Venice

Lucas, E. V. Wanderer in Venice. (Ja '15)

Ventilation

Barker, A. H. Theory and practices of heating and ventilation. (Ja '14)

Verhaeren, Emil, 1855-

Zweig, S. Emile Verhaeren. (F '15)

Verlaine, Paul Marie, 1844-1896

Thorley, W. C. Paul Verlaine. (D '14)

Vermeer, Jan, 1632-1675

Hale, P. L. Jan Vermeer of Delft. (Mr '14)

Via P. & O. Stocking, J. (My '14)

Vices in virtues. Longueville, T. (Jl '14)

Vico, Giovanni Battista, 1668-1743

Croce, B. Philosophy of Giambattista Vico. (Ap '14)

Victim. Dixon, T. (Ag '14)

Victoria, empress consort of Frederick III, German emperor, 1840-1901

Empress Frederick (Ap '14)

Victoria cross. Parry, D. H. (My '14)

Victory Law. Warwick, A., pseud. (Ap '14)

Vienna

Van Dyke, J. C. Vienna, Budapest: critical notes on the Imperial gallery and Budapest museum. (Ag '14)

Village improvement. Farwell, P. T. (My '14)

Village Romeo and Juliet. Keller, G. (My '14)

Villain as hero in Elizabethan tragedy. Boyer, C. V. (S '14)

Vincent de Paul, Saint, 1576-1660

Sanders, E. K. Vincent de Paul. (Ap '14)

Vinci, Leonardo da, 1452-1519

Thiis, J. Leonardo da Vinci. (D '14)

Violence and the labor movement. Hunter, R. (Je '14)

Violin

Ritchie, W. Advice to violin students. (Ag '14)

Violoncello

Krall, E. Art of tone-production on the violoncello. (Ag '14)

Virginia

Ambler, C. H. Thomas Ritchie. (Ag '14)

Wertenbaker, T. J. Virginia under the Stuarts, 1607-1688. (My '14)

Vision splendid. Broster, D. K., and Taylor, G. W. (Ag '14)

Vital elements of preaching. Hoyt, A. S. (F '15)

Vital problems of religion. Cohu, J. R. (D '14)

Vocation of woman. Colquhoun, E. M. (Ap '14)

Vocational education

- Kerschesteiner, G: M. A. Schools and the nation. (Ja '15)
 Taylor, J. S. Handbook of vocational education. (F '15)

Vocational guidance

- Davis, J. B. Vocational and moral guidance. (F '15)

Vocational training. Association of collegiate alumnae. (Ap '14)Vocations for girls. Weaver, E. W., ed. (Mr '14)Volcanoes

- Bonney, T: G: Volcanoes. (Ja '14)
 Volunteer help to the schools. Cabot, E. L. (O '14)

Wagner, Richard, 1813-1883

- Huckel, O. Richard Wagner: the man and his work. (Je '14)
 Newman, E. Wagner as man and artist. (D '14)
 Runciman, J: F. Richard Wagner, composer of operas. (Mr '14)

Wales

- Hissey, J. J: Leisurely tour in England. (Ja '14)
 Morgan, J. V. Philosophy of Welsh history. (S '14)

Wall between. Paine, R. D. (S '14)Wall of partition. Barclay, F. L. (N '14)Wand and strings. Low, B: R. C. (My '14)Wanderer in Venice. Lucas, E: V. (Ja '15)Wanderer's necklace. Haggard, H: R. (Mr '14)Wanderer's trail. Ridger, A. L. (Ag '14)Wanderfoot. Stockley, C. (Ja '14)War

- Altham, E: A. Principles of war historically illustrated. (S '14)
 Bernhardt, F: von. On war to-day. (F '15)
 Colin, J. France and the next war. (Ja '15)
 Loreburn, R. T. R. Capture at sea. (My '14)
 Page, A. War and alien enemies. (D '14)
 Royce, J. War and insurance. (D '14)

War. Newton, W. D. (S '14)War and America. Münsterberg, H. (N '14)War and the private citizen. Higgins, A. P. (O '14)War correspondents

- Bullard, F: L. Famous war correspondents. (O '14)

War in Europe. Hart, A. B. (N '14)War in Europe. Johnson, R., ed. (F '15)War lord. Kennedy, J. M. (F '15)War, 1914. O'Neill, E. (F '15)War week by week. Martin, E: S. (Ja '15)War with Mexico, 1846-1848. Haferkorn, H: E. (Ag '14)Ward of Tecumseh. Marriott, C. (D '14)War's aftermath. Jordan, D: S. and H. E. (N '14)Wars between England and America. Smith, T. C. (S '14)Wars of the roses, 1377-1471. Mowat, R. B. (Ja '15)Washington, George, 1732-1799

- Hill, F: T. Washington, the man of action. (F '15)

Washington, D. C.

- Bryan, W. B. History of the national capital. (Ag '14)

Taft, H. Recollections of full years. (D '14)Washington (state)

- Fraser, M. and H. C. Seven years on the Pacific slope. (F '15)

Wasp. Roberts, T. G. (Mr '14)Wasps

- Morley, M. W. Will o' the wasps. (O '14)

Water*Christie, W: W. Water. (Ja '14)Prescott, S: C., and Winslow, C: E: A. Elements of water bacteriology. (My '14)Savage, W: G: Bacteriological examination of food and water. (F '15)Analysis

- Whipple, G: C. Microscopy of drinking water. (S '14)

Water purification

- Tillmans, J. Water purification and sewage disposal. (My '14)

Water supply

- Houston, A. C. Studies in water supply. (Ag '14)

Waves

- Cornish, V. Waves of sand and snow, and the eddies which make them. (Jl '14)

Way of the strong. Cullum, R. (N '14)Wayfaring soul. Raymond, W. (My '14)Ways of the South Sea savage. Williamson, R. W. (Ap '14)

- "We are French!" Sheehan, P. P., and Davis, R. H. (D '14)

Wealth*Cannan, E. Wealth. (O '14)

- Ely, R: T. Property and contract in their relations to the distribution of wealth. (Ja '15)

- Mathews, F: Taxation and the distribution of wealth. (F '14)

Wealth, Ethics of*Goldfish. (My '14)White, B. Carpenter and the rich man. (My '14)Weather and climate of Chicago. Cox, H: J., and Armington, J: H. (N '14)Webster, Daniel, 1782-1852*Ogg, F: A. Daniel Webster. (Jl '14)Wedgwood ware

- Wedgwood, J. C. Staffordshire pottery and its history. (Mr '14)

Weeds*Georgia, A. E. Manual of weeds. (F '15)Praeger, R. L. Weeds. (S '14)Well-bred dolls. Allen, C. S. (Ja '14)Wellington, Arthur Wellesley, 1st duke of, 1769-1852*Wheeler, H. F. B. Boy's Wellington. (Mr '14)Wessex, England*Lea, H. Thomas Hardy's Wessex. (Ja '14)West

- McElroy, R. M. Winning of the far West. (F '15)

Description and travel*Powell, E. A. End of the trail. (F '15)Winthrop, T. Canoe and the saddle. (My '14)West winds. Whitaker, H., ed. (F '15)Westminster abbey*Pratt, H. M. Westminster abbey. (F '15)What a man wants. Marriott, C: (Je '14)What an advertiser should know. Taylor, H: C., pseud. (Ag '14)What can I know? Ladd, G: T. (Ja '15)What Germany wants. Mach, E. R. O: von. (D '14)What is it to be educated? Henderson, C: H. (Jl '14)What men live by. Cabot, R: C. (F '14)What sculpture to see in Europe. Bryant, L. (Jl '14)What will people say? Hughes, R. (Je '14)What women want. Hale, B. F-R. (F '15)When ghost meets ghost. De Morgan, W: F. (F '14)When I was a boy in Palestine. Kaleel, M. J. (Jl '14)When love flies out o' the window. Merrick, L. (Jl '14)When Max came. Brown, E. A. (Ag '14)When mother lets us act. Perry, S. G: S. (Ja '14)When mother lets us make gifts. Grubb, M. B. (F '15)When mother lets us make paper box furniture. Rice, G. E. (Ja '15)When they were children. Steedman, A. (F '15)When thoughts will soar. Suttner, B. F. S. (Jl '14)When to lock the stable. Croy, H. (O '14)When William came. Munro, H. H. (Ap '14)Where and why public ownership has failed. Guyot, Y. (My '14)Where no fear was. Benson, A. C. (Jl '14)Where rolls the Oregon. Sharp, D. L. (Jl '14)Whig party in the South. Cole, A. C: (N '14)Whigs and Whiggism. Beaconsfield, B: D. (My '14)

- Whispering dust. Reynolds, E. (Mr '14)
- Whistler, James Abbott McNeill, 1834-1903
Gallatin, A. E. Portraits and caricatures of James McNeill Whistler. (O '14)
- Whitaker's dukedom. Jepson, B. (N '14)
- White dawn. Peck, T. A. (F '15)
- White gate. Deeping, W. (Mr '14)
- White sapphire. Hartman, L. F. (F '14)
- White Witch. Buchanan, M. (Ja '14)
- Whitman, Walt, 1819-1892
De Selincourt, B. Walt Whitman. (Jl '14)
- Traubel, H. With Walt Whitman in Camden. (Jl '14)
- Who is responsible? Brereton, C. S. H. (N '14)
- Why Britain is at war. Cook E. T. (N '14)
- Why is the dollar shrinking? Fisher, I. (F '15)
- Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd. Lawrence, D. H. (Je '14)
- Wife of Sir Isaac Harman. Wells, H. G. (D '14)
- Wild animals at home. Seton, E. T. (Ja '14)
- Wild honey. Stockley, C. (S '14)
- Wild kindred of fur, feather, and fin. Thompson, J. M. (F '15)
- Wild life across the world. Kearton, C. (Ja '14)
- Wild life conservation in theory and practice. Hornaday, W. T. (F '15)
- Wild mustard. Nicolls, W. J. (N '14)
- Wild turkey and its hunting. McIlhenny, E. A. (Ja '15)
- Wild woods and waterways. Covert, W. C. (F '15)
- Wilde, Oscar Fingall O'Flahertie Willis, 1856-1900
Douglas, A. Oscar Wilde and myself. (S '14)
- Will
Croce, B. Philosophy of the practical, economic and ethic. (F '14)
- Slosson, P. W. Fated or free? (F '15)
- Will o' the wasps. Morley, M. W. (O '14)
- William II, emperor of Germany, 1859-1918
Dickinson, A. D., ed. Kaiser. (D '14)
- Kennedy, J. M. War lord. (F '15)
- Real Kaiser. (D '14)
- Saunders, G. Builder and blunderer. (Ja '15)
- Topham, A. Memories of the Kaiser's court. (O '14)
- William and Bill. Cooke, G., and Morrison, C. W. (Ja '14)
- Winds of Deal. Griswold, L. (N '14)
- Wine-press. Noyes, A. (F '14)
- Winning of the far West. McElroy, R. M. (F '15)
- Winning of the wilderness. McCarter, M. (F '15)
- Winter camping. Carpenter, W. S. (Je '14)
- Winter in India. Spens, A. B. (O '14)
- Winter sports in Switzerland. Benson, E. F. (Ja '14)
- Wintering Hay. Trevena, J. (D '14)
- Wireless telegraph
Fleming, J. A. Wonders of wireless telegraphy. (Ap '14)
- Fortescue, C. L. Wireless telegraphy. (My '14)
- Gibson, C. R. Wireless telegraphy and telephony without wires. (Ap '14)
- Marchant, W. H. Wireless telegraphy. (D '14)
- Stanley, R. Text-book on wireless telegraphy. (F '15)
- Verrill, A. H. Harper's wireless book. (Ja '14)
- Wireless telegraphy. Fortescue, C. L. (My '14)
- Wireless telegraphy. Marchant, W. H. (D '14)
- Wireless telegraphy and telephony without wires. Gibson, C. R. (Ap '14)
- Wisconsin plays. Dickinson, T. H., ed. (Ja '15)
- Wise son. Sherman, C. (Ap '14)
- Wit and humor
Anecdotes of the hour, by famous men. (Je '14)
- Edmund, P., and Williams, H. W., comps. Toaster's handbook. (My '14)
- Fowler, N. C., jr. Stories and toasts for after dinner. (My '14)
- Witch. Johnston, M. (N '14)
- Witchcraft
Burr, G. L., ed. Narratives of the witchcraft cases, 1648-1706. (Jl '14)
- Seymour, St. J. D. Irish witchcraft and demonology. (My '14)
- With Dr. Grenfell in Labrador. Lee, C. (N '14)
- With pen and ink. Hall, J. (F '14)
- With poor immigrants to America. Graham, S. (N '14)
- With sabre and scalpel. Wyeth, J. A. (F '15)
- With the allies. Davis, R. H. (Ja '15)
- With the best intention. Lessing, B., pseud. (Ag '14)
- With the flowers and trees in California. Saunders, C. F. (N '14)
- With the men who do things. Bond, A. R. (Ja '14)
- With the Russians in Mongolia. Perry-Ayscough, H. G. C., and Otter-Barry, R. B. (Ap '14)
- Within prison walls. Osborne, T. M. (Jl '14)
- Witness for the defence. Mason, A. E. W. (Ja '14)
- Wolf hunters. Peck, R. M. (O '14)
- Wolf of Gubbio. Peabody, J. P. (Ja '14)
- Woman
Castle, C. Statistical study of eminent women. (S '14)
- Galliehan, C. G. Age of mother-power. (O '14)
- George, W. L. Woman and to-morrow. (Ja '14)
- Hale, B. F.-R. What women want. (F '15)
- Laselle, M. A. Young woman worker. (Ja '15)
- Laughlin, C. E. Work-a-day girl. (F '14)
- Swanwick, H. M. Future of the women's movement. (Ja '15)
- Biography
Concannon, H. Garden of girls. (Ja '15)
- Foster, W. D., ed. Heroines of modern religion. (F '14)
- Horton, E. Group of famous women. (Ja '15)
- Woman's who's who of America. (My '14)
- Employment
Morley, E. J., ed. Women workers in seven professions. (Ag '14)
- Woods, R. A., and Kennedy, A. J., eds. Young working girls. (Ja '14)
- Health and hygiene
Ballantyne, J. W. Expectant motherhood. (S '14)
- Bolton, F. Exercises for women. (Mr '14)
- Wheeler, M. Before the baby comes. (F '15)
- Occupations
Association of collegiate alumnae. Com. on vocational opportunities. Vocational training. (Ap '14)
- Weaver, E. W., ed. Vocations for girls. (Mr '14)
- Social and moral questions
Begbie, H. Crisis of morals. (Ag '14)
- Colquhoun, E. M. Vocation of woman. (Ap '14)
- George, W. L. Woman and to-morrow. (Ja '14)
- Key, E. K. S. Renaissance of motherhood. (Jl '14)
- Mayreder, R. Survey of the woman problem. (Ja '14)
- Reed, M. Woman's career. (F '15)
- Societies and clubs
Burrell, C. B. Woman's club work and programs. (My '14)
- Roberts, K. L., comp. Club woman's handy-book of programs and club management. (Je '14)
- Woman alone. Urner, M. H. (D '14)
- Woman in China. Gaunt, M. E. B. (F '15)
- Woman in the alcove. Lee, J. B. (O '14)
- Woman in the Sahara. Gordon, H. C. (F '15)
- Woman suffrage
Crothers, S. M. Meditations on votes for women. (D '14)
- Howe, J. W. Julia Ward Howe and the woman suffrage movement. (Ap '14)
- Mackmurdo, A. H. Pressing questions. (Ap '14)
- Wright, A. E. Unexpurgated case against woman suffrage. (Ap '14)
- Woman's career. Reed, M. (F '15)
- Woman's club work and programs. Burrell, C. B. (My '14)
- Woman's law. Thompson, M. (Ap '14)
- Women in China
Cooper, E. My lady of the Chinese courtyard. (Jl '14)

Women in EgyptCooper, E. Women of Egypt. (O '14)Women in JapanBurton, M. E. Education of women in Japan. (S '14)Women of Egypt. Cooper, E. (O '14)Women of the classics. Sturgeon, M. C. (F '15)Women we marry. Pier, A. S. (My '14)Women workers in seven professions. Morley, E. J., ed. (Ag '14)Wonder of life. Thomson, J. A. (Ja '15)Wonder worker. Brown, V. (D '14)Wonderful romance. Favre de Coulevain, Mlle. (Ja '15)Wonders of modern astronomy. Macpherson, H., jr. (Ap '14)Wonders of modern chemistry. Phillip, J. C. (Mr '14)Wonders of modern electricity. Gibson, C. R. (Mr '14)Wonders of modern invention. Williams, A. (Mr '14)Wonders of wireless telegraphy. Fleming, J. A. (Ap '14)Wood people and others. Haviland, M. D. (F '15)Woodneys. Ellis, J. B. (S '14)WoodworkHooper, J., and Shirley, A. J. Handcraft in wood and metal. (D '14)Noyes, W. Design and construction in wood. (My '14)Woolman, John, 1720-1772Shore, W. T. John Woolman. (My '14)Wordsworth, William, 1770-1850Knight, W. A. Coleridge and Wordsworth in the West country. (Ag '14)Work, Ethics ofCabot, R. C. What men live by. (F '14)Griggs, E. H. Self-culture through the vocation. (F '15)Work-a-day girl. Laughlin, C. E. (F '14)Work and wealth. Hobson, J. A. (S '14)Work of the rural school. Eggleston, J. D., and Bruère, R. W. (Ja '14)Working faith of a liberal theologian. Williams, T. R. (F '15)Working girls in evening schools. Van Kleeck, M. (F '15)Working man's Christ. Thomas, C. S. (My '14)Workmen's compensation and industrial insurance under modern conditions. Boyd, J. H. (Ja '14)World of labour. Cole, G. D. H. (N '14)World peace. Reely, M. K., comp. (Jl '14)World set free. Wells, H. G. (Ap '14)World war. Baldwin, E. F. (F '15)World's-End. Troubetzkoy, A. C. (Je '14)WorrySadler, W. S. Worry and nervousness. (F '15)WorshipCabot, R. C. What men live by. (F '14)Coit, S., comp. Social worship. (My '14)Hartshorne, H. Worship in the Sunday school. (Ap '14)

X rays. Kaye, G. W. C. (Ja '15)

Yachts and yachtingStone, H. L. "America's" cup races. (Jl '14)Yale universityStokes, A. P., jr. Memorials of eminent Yale men. (F '15)Yankee Swanson. Nelson, A. W. (Ja '14)Years of discretion. Hatton, F. and F. L. (My '14)Yorke familyCust, A. L. Chronicles of Erthig on the dyke. (N '14)You and I. Monroe, H. (F '15)You never know your luck. Parker, G. (Jl '14)Young, Brigham, 1801-1877Cannon, F. J., and Knapp, G. L. Brigham Young and his Mormon empire. (Mr '14)Young, Edward, 1683-1765Shelley, H. C. Life and letters of Edward Young. (D '14)Young boys and boarding-school. Holden, H. (My '14)Young farmer. Hill, G. B. (Mr '14)Young homesteaders. Lincoln, J. W. (Mr '14)Young man's Jesus. Barton, E. (N '14)Young mother's handbook. Wheeler, M. (Jl '14)Young people's story of American literature. Whitcomb, I. P. (Ja '14)Young sharpshooter. Tomlinson, E. T. (Ja '14)Young trappers. Pendexter, H. (Ja '14)Young woman worker. Laselle, M. A. (Ja '15)Young working girls. Woods, R. A., and Kennedy, A. J., eds. (Ja '14)Younger generation. Key, E. K. S. (D '14)Youngest world. Dunn, R. (My '14)Your affectionate godmother. Glyn, E. (Je '14)Your pay envelope. Meader, J. R. (F '15)Yourself and the neighbours. MacManus, S. (D '14)Yukon TerritoryOgilvie, W. Early days on the Yukon and the story of it gold finds. (Ap '14)ZionismGottheil, R. J. H. Zionism. (N '14)ZoologyBrucker, E. Zoology. (My '14)EcologyShelford, V. E. Animal communities in temperate America. (My '14)

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

3 9999 04834 747 8

BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

---

BATES HALL.

---

NOT TO BE TAKEN AWAY.

Form No. 174 3-1-'56-6M.